LITERARY .- The Young People's Aid Society Literary Class, in connection with the Wesleyan Methodist Church of this the Wesleyan Methodist Church of this town, met on Monday night. The programme was select and well rendered. Miss Howard gave a recitation in such a manner that if her merit as a reciter has not yet been recognized, it is time it should, for of all the lady and gentteman amateurs we have heard for a long time, she surpasses them all. The Society has indeed got a treasure in this lady.

Los Out For Them.—A party of deceiving impostors are at present traveling through the country districts, swinding farmers with dry goods samples, and it will therefore be well to keep a sharp look-out for them. Their game is to go from house to house exhibiting samples of cotton goods, etc. These they propose to sell for about one-quarter of their real value, and of course take a large number of orders therefor, with the promise to deliver the goods soon. Them they exhibit a lot of cloths and cassimeres, almost worthless, which they sell for a big price, delivering the goods on the spot, and receiving the cash therefor. Of course the cotton goods are never forthcoming, while the swindlers have disappeared with the money they received for worthless goods.—Hamilton Times.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION, 1875.—A meeting composed of the Directors of the City of Ottawa Agricultural Society and a Committee of the Ottawa City Council, appointed to carry out the plans of the Provincial Exhibition, was held in Ottawa on Monday. It was then resolved to ask all the surrounding Cunties—Ottawa, Carleton, Russell, the Renfrews, Lanarks, Pontiac, &c., to each appoint 10 gentlemen to act as a committee along with the Agricultural magnates at Ottawa, for the purpose of making preparations for, and ensuring the success of the Provincial Exhibition of 1875. The following is the architect's estimate, given at a meeting of citizens, of the probable cost of buildings required for the Exhibition: Central hall, $7,500; Horticultural hall, $2,145; two-labes, $4,200; poultry shed, $955; cattle-pens, $1,950; office, $100; sheep and hog pens, $700. A resolution was adopted by $the meeting requesting the Ottawa City Council to appropriate $25,000 to defray the expenses of the exhibition.

To Mr. Blake—Have nothing to fix the month by further than it was near the 'spring. Was not particular about remembering either the month or the time of the day. In thinking the matter over recently, I have come to the conclusion that it was about the time mentioned.

To Mr. Moss—It was not so late as six o'clock.!

To the Judge—I think the dinner was over, when Dr. Tuck called.

Charles Teak, a stage driver between Preston and Berlin, gave evidence of an unimportant character.

Dr. Herod was called and gave some medical caidence with regard to Mrs. Peterson, whom he had attended in January, 1872, and subsequent to that date, in August.

R. McKersie—To Mr. Moss—Am the brother of Mrs. Field. Asked Dr. Tuck to pay a visit to Mrs. Field's house in a professional capacity. I cannot tell to a week or a fortuight, when it was; I think about the end of May or beginning of June. We were finishing seeding.

Do not know when the water was brought there.

To Mr. Blake — Mrs. Peterson did not bring any water into the room that evening. Did not accompany Mrs. Peterson to Dr. Tuck's upon any occasion. The water in the room was fordrinking. Am living at Mr. Peterson's now and have been ever since the last trial. No person in particular has spoken to me about this case. Mr. Peterson and some of the Granges have spoken to me about it. Mr. Madonald was speaking to me to-day about what I could prove. I was not in bed when Mrs. Peterson came in. The children were in bed. The children were playing in the sitting room next morning.

Peterson came in. The children were in bed. The children were playing in the sitting room next morning.

This closed the evidence.
Mr. Moss then in an exhaustive speech, which lasted for upwards of an hour and a half, carefully reviewed the evidence of evidence of every state of the case, where the happiness of a family had been destroyed by Mrs. Peterson's having proved a faithless wife and listened to the vaice of the seducer. He pointed out various discrepancies in the evidence. It could not have been at the time that Dr. Tuck made the visit at Mrs. Fields that he went to Preston. According to the evidence given by Mrs. Fields and Mr. McKersie, it was in May or early in a June that that visit was made. The visit to Preston was later in the season. Dr. Tuck's going to Preston and his actions and those of Mrs. Peterson while there were very improper proceedings. They rand attracted the attention of the landlord and others about the hotel. Dr. Tuck knew no other parties in Preston, and consequently must have gone there solely for the purpose of enjoying the tecmpany of Mrs. Peterson. The story about going down stars for the water in Roat's Hotel, in Beriin, had been concected for the purpose of explaining his (Dr. Tuck's) whereabouts when the leastnew as being made in Mrs. Peterson's room by Mr. and Mrs. Roat. There was no necessity to go down's for water as shown by the evidence of Jane Ludlow. Mr. A. H. Macdoneld, in a short speech, also reviewed the evidence.

St. Andrew's Day in Guelph.
THE ANNUAL CELEBRATION.

The sons of St. Andrew in Guelph and cinity celebrated the anniversary of which came off in the Town Hall on which came on in the flown half of Monday night. The St. Andrew's So-ciety, with that spirit and thoroughness which characterize all that they do in connection with their annual celebration, had made every arrangement to ensure its success, and the wish of the most sanguine in this respect was more than gratified. The Hall was beautifully degranted. The rail was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and the committee who had this special work in charge deserve the greatest credit for the way in which it was done, as it was the general theme of admiration and praise. Gay coloured tartans and cloths were disposed along the walls in graceful folds, and the St. Andrew's cross, made of the same material under the ceiling, told plainly to all comers the nature of the celebration. Flags and banners also adorned the endwalls, and on the one behind the platform were suspended a fine portrait of Our gracious Sovereign, and over that a splendid representation of the Royal Arms. A number of very appropriate motioes—mostly in Scotch, and apropes to the occasion—gave more character to the decorations, while the rich hangings around the windows, and the many engravings which were distributed along the walls, gave an air of elegance and comfort to the Hall which was thoroughly appreciated by all.

Shortly after eight o'clock the Hall was well filled, and by the time the whole audience had assembled there was not sitting room for many. On the platform were the President of the Society, Mr. William Stewart, the two Vice-Presidents, Messrs. Audiew Armstrong, and James Anderson, The Rev. Dr. Hogg, and Rev. Thorasa Wardrope, Chaplains to the Suciety, Messrs. D. Stirton, M.P., P. Gow, M.P.P., Robert Boyd, James Massie, David Allan, D. Guthrie, William Whitelaw, James Hazelton (representing the St. Patrick's Society), James Gow, Charles Davidson, G. B. Fraser, J. Innes, etc.

The proceedings opened with a stirring time on the bagpipes by the Society's piper, Mr. John Watt, after which Vale's fine Quadrille Band played the overture to "Guy Mannering" in splendid style, for which they were accorded the most hearty applanse.

The President then came forward and gave the following address, which was received with cheers:

they not? whether in the reclaimed jungles of India, the shadeless bush of Australia, the towering forests or rolling prairies of our own Dominion or the neightoring Republic, the St. Andrew's Cross is a symbol honored, and the 30th of November appeals to their hearts and their patriotism as the day of the year. Setting asial all feelings of sentimentalism, we think it well that there should be one such day set aside by common consent of our countrymen, to meet and talk over bygone times, to recall the momories of old and familiar scenes, and to revive associations which deepen and become more tender as time forces them back amongst the shadows of the past. One of the chief objects of St. Andrew's Society is benevolence, and our meeting to renew the bonds of Friendship between us. We Scotsmen, particularly in America, are blamed for clanishness, but if clanishness consists in love and veneration for the country of our burth, in loving to hear of the glories of her ancient and historic renown, and in aiding a brother Scot when aid is required, we plead guilty to the charge and feel proud of our plea.

and other amusements provided; and outside the bar Mrs. Edwards had some excellent refreshments laid out, to which the company did full justice during the progress of the ball. The celebration throughout was most Successful, and the members of the Society, and all interested in it, have good cause for congratulation that their Annual Festival was so largely attended, so popular, and that everything went off so well.

We should state that Messra, W. Ball

Goldwin Smith.

It is not likely that many of your constituents ever saw Prt. Goldwin Smith face to face, or heard him speak. He is not a man that impresses one with a sense of his greatness, either seen or heard. He is a good master of English, however, and along with having a most extensive knowledge of contemperaneous and probably a large portion of bygone history, with being also a pronounced interait no pointes, and a Wesleyan Methocist by profession, he is becoming a power in the body politic, as witness his elevation to the presidency of the new-formed National party. Prof. Smith is a man about five feet ten inches in height; of spare build, with a long neck and as many corners in his frame as were in Hawthorn's House of the Seven Gables. He has dark hair, cut close, a dark beard and dark moustache, with clean shave a chin. His features are good, but the syes are so hollow or far back that he makes one think he is unhappy, which some sort of historians doubtless are, for there is in the study of our race a very great deal that is not of a cheerful character, or fitted to give one a profound respect for the great men, particularly those that have served to illuminate the highways of human destiny. Then in his discourse, while Prof. Smith is faultless in his style as a lecturer,—not brilliant but formalistic, and an excellent teacher of what he has for the moment in hand—there seems to be awant of human interest about the man that prevents his carrying you with him. There is too much intellect for the show of downright human, or animal elements, and by so much a want of conclusiveness to the argument that he would deduce from historical records. He is a man of fine cultivation, and fair upright character, but with the mass, for him ever to become a leader among the active spirits of the age.—Toronto cor. Cornwall Gazette.

FARMERS' DIARIES. — If our farmers knew how little trouble it is to keep a diary, and with what satisfaction they would look over it in a few years, we feel sure they would, many of them, be induced to begin one. A simple record of the weather and the operations of the farm, the writing of which would not occupy two minutes a day, will, in after years, be not only a source of pleasure, but also of great practical benefit; by reference back to the record of former years, one can see how late he planted certain crops, and at what time they matured, also items of interest to the family prices, &c. At Day's Bookstore will be found a large stock of Diaries and Farm Account Books. Day will sell you a large foolscap Diary for 35 cents, and Pocket Diaries from 15 cents upwards. Begin now, and it will pay you well for the few minutes?lost in entering your day's work.

THE BRIDE'S SACRIFICE.

CHAPTER VII.

Down by the chore, under the shade of an overhanging willow, he knew Jessie had a favorite seat, where on pleasant days she used to take her work. Here he was sure of finding her, and in this direction he bent his steps.

She sat sewing under the shade of the draning willow, singing softly to herself, and looking like some sylvan goddess of a sylvan scene, or some beautiful seanymph, just risen from her grotto of coral and crystel.

Radiant and bewildering was the smile and blush with which she welcomed him—a smile and blush that might have been found too strong even for more potent principles than his.

He seated himself beside her with a look of moody abstraction all unusual with him, watching her covertly from under his eyelashes, as she bent smilling and happy over her work.

For a time, Jessie chatted gaily on various common-place matters; but at last, catching her tone from his, she, too grew silent and thoughtful, She bent lower over her work, wondering if she had offended him, and involuntarily sighed.

"And wherefore that sigh? Are you unhappy?
"No, not unhappy; but troubled."
"And why should you be troubled, bright one? What can there be to grieve one so fair?"
"I—I—feared I had offended you," she answered, timidly. "You appear out of spirits."
"You offend me, gentle one—you who never offended any one in your life! No, no, it is not that."
"Then you are unhappy?" she said, shyly.

shyly.
"Yes, I am miserable-

shyly.

"Yes, I am miserable—wretched!" he cried, vehemently. "I wish to heaven I had never been bern!"

"Oh, Mr. Clinton, what has happened?" she cried, laying her hand on his, and looking up wistfully in his face. Her touch, her tone, her look, swep away every remaining trace of fidelity. He forgot everything he should have remembered—his vows, his honor, his truth—and saw nothing but the bright, radiant, bewildering vision before him. In an instant he was on his knees at her feet, exclaiming, with impassioned vehemence—feet, exclaiming, with impassioned vehemence—

"Jessie, Jessie, my life, my dream, my hope, I love you! See, I am at your feet, where my heart, my name, my fortune, long have been. With my whole heart, and soul and life, and being, I love you with a love stronger than death or the grave. All the devotion and hopes of my life I offer you, if you can only say you love me."

He was pale and panting; his eyes were fierce and burning, his tones low, thrilling, and passionate.

Trembling, shrinking, blushing, yet with a deep, intense, fervent joy thrilling through all her heart and being, Jessie listened. The blood swept in torrents to her face, neck, and bosom, which rose and fell with her rapid breathing. She dared not look up to meet his ardent, burning gaze.
"Jesie Jessie Jessie my love my life look."

up—speak—answer me! Tell me that you love me!"
Still no reply, only those downcast eyes, deepest blushes, and quick, hurried breathing. breathing.

with a low, gate dry of intense y, she buried her blushing face on his shoulder.

"Thanks—my heart's thanks—for this, sweetest, loveliest Jessie?" he cried, with exultant joy, pressing her yielding form to his bounding heart. "My life, with all its hopes, energies, and amtitions, shall be devoted to but one purpose now—that of rewarding you for your priceless love." "Oh, Mr. Clinton, your love is all the reward I sk," she said, in the deep, earnest voice of perfect trust.

"Not Mr. Clinton now, sweetest Jessie. I am Herbert to you now and forever. Let me always hear that name in music from your lips, and earth has no higher boon in store for me."

"But, oh, can you love me thus—me a poor little, nameless, uncultured girl, while you are rich, distinguished, and highly connected? O Herbert! will you not some day repent this choice — you who might win the highest and fairest in the land?"

"Repent! never—never! Perish my heart if it ever admit of aby love but against Sparks or Flying Embers, as may be easily tosted by anyone, and appears

BLOODY AND FATAL AFFRAX.—A bloody affray occurred in Brantford, resulting in the death of one Donald McKinnor at the hands of one James McNamara, took place some time between the hours of 3 and 5 a.m., on Sunday, in a low, rowdy house near the eastern limits of the town, known as "Zuries." The parties in the affray have had ill feeling towards each other for some time, and this is the second time during the past week that they have been known to have quarrelled. From the appearance of the combatants, they must have been fighting for some time, as McNamara, when taken, was covered with blood and his face badly bruised and swollen. After the first on-slaught, or when McKinnon's blood first flowed from the knife, he went into the room, closed the door and threw himself on the bed, and said, "Let me lie here and die." At this time McNamara was in another apartment, but gathering himself up, he muttered, "Let me finish him," when he kicked in the door and gave him the final thrust. He then left the house by a circuitous way, and called at the house of an acquaintance, James Griffin et him in, and he threw himself down on a lounge and soon fell asleep. This was about the hour of five o'clock in the moraing. Thus matters remained till the dawn of day, when the police, having been summoned, traced the footsteps of the guilty party through the snow, which had just freshly fallen, from Zuries to Griffin et him in, and he threw himself down on a lounge and soon fell asleep. This was about the hour of five o'clock in the moraing. Two gallons will cover over 100 square feet of shingle roof, or over 400 of tin or iron. No Tar is Used in this Cour position, therefore, it does not effect the water from the roof, if turned off from the cistern before the first few rains. On Decayed Shingles it fills up the holes and pores, hardens them, and gives a new, substantial roof that will last for years. Curled or Warped Shingles it brings to their place and keeps them there. It fills up all holes in tm or felt roofs, and STOPS THE LEAKS. The color of the slate when first applied is dark purple, changing in about a month to a light uniform slate colour, and is, to all intents and purposes, SLATE. UNG BALSAM the great modern remedy for Coughs, DS, CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, CROOP and NICHITIS. It is recommended by Physis everywhere, who are acquainted with Dr. A. L. Scovill, of Cincinnati, Ohio,

Pr. A. L. Scovili, of Cincinnati, Ohio, 8ay8:—

"I have witnessed its effects on the young and the old, and I can truly say that it is by far the best expectorant remedy with which I am acquainted. For coughs, and all the early stages of lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about upon the first appearance of disease about and matter to rise without irritating those delicate organs (the lungs), and without producing constipation of the bowels. It also gives strength to the system, stops the night sweats, and changes all the morbid secretions to a healthy state."
