PERMISSION IS GIVEN TO USE DOUBLE TRACK

Board of Public Works Grants Privilege—Company Anxious to Proceed.

HAMILTON, Aug. 19.—(Special.)—The board of works held a special meeting this evening and gave the Dominion Power & Transmission Co. permission to double-track Main street, from James-street to the terminal station. The company is anxious to proceed with the work at once.

It will have the whole street, between James and Hughson-streets, and will agree to charge the Street Railway only half what other railways are charged for the use of these tracks.

The question of the street lighting contract was also over until next Thursday. The hydro-electric power commission will be interviewed as to terms in the meantime.

The city solicitor was instructed to protect the rights of the city in connection with the low-level road, and the G.T.R. has fenced in. A sub-committee was named to consider the application of the Hamilton Bridge Works Company for permission to lay a trackway across Barton-street.

commission, as exhibited in the draft bill, we might attain some degree of certainty as to the meaning of clause 51, relating to the limitation of capital.

As it is, in fact, as I fancy that we have as yet no occasion for losing sleep about this matter. While there is undoubtedly an intention to limit agency expenses, the agent who holds an ordinary fair contract to-day can safely hold his hands in calm resignation to the provisions of clause 51.

The next resolution in regard to the advisability of incorporation of the Life Underwriters' Association, with a view to a reasonable limitation of agents for their vocation, was absolutely ignored by the commission.

In other words, the offer of safeguarding the interests of the public by the elimination of undesirable or incompetent agents was deemed unworthy of regard.

Estimates of Profits. The subject of the estimate formed the subject of the next resolution. The delegates debated this very thoroughly with the result that it was resolved "That in the opinion of this association, conservative estimates of the probable profits should be furnished by the companies to the agents."

"I find that clause 88 of the bill reads as follows: 'No such life insurance company, and no officer, director or agent thereof, shall issue or circulate or cause or permit to be issued or circulated an estimate, illustration or statement of the dividends or share of surplus expected to be received in respect of any policy issued by it.'"

"Please not carefully the wording. It would not appear contrary to this clause to issue statements of the actual results of policy No. 9999 for $2000 on the 20 payment life plan, in order that the agent might innocently show his equipping client what his economy had lost due to Mr. Jones, who happened to have just such a policy as he was recommending. The commission were practically told that if official estimates were banned, the condition of unofficial estimates would surely be both inevitable and worse.

Deferred Dividends. The subject of a resolution affirming the right of an intending insurer to buy whatever policy he desired, whether with or without dividend, with deferred or annual dividends.

"The commission replies to this by stating that profits shall be distributed annually and otherwise." There appears to be a most unwarrantable interference with the right of contract.

There is no precedent for this outside of New York State and Russia. The former was admittedly suffering from just one of the evils at the time of this enactment, and the word "Russia" is generally prefixed by the adjective "darkest."

"In England the annual distribution is universally condemned as unjust to the policyholder and risky to the company. The quinquennial or septennial distribution is generally approved.

"Advisory board and stock schemes were condemned by the delegates, and on this point the commissioners were good enough to concur.

"Publicity was fully endorsed in the following resolution: 'That the widest publicity and information would check and cure most of the evils alleged against the life insurance business.'"

"The bill devotes no less than twenty-one pages to the skeletons of various statements and schedules designed by the commission to comply with the need of publicity. If these become law, it will be good thing for any unemployed clerical help that may be floating.

That any real advantage to the insuring public can accrue from such voluminous statements is another and much more doubtful matter.

"That, gentlemen, is the position today on matters most closely affecting your special interests in the bill. We cannot, of course, believe that a large proportion of it will not become law. General Agent's Work.

An interesting address was delivered by C. Jerome Edwards, president of the New York Life Underwriters' Association on the "general agent and his work." The Armstrong committee had apparently regarded the general agent as an excrecence who was a parasite upon the man in the field, and the assured alike. This is not the view of the required enthusiasm unless he could have stimulus and sympathetic encouragement from his general manager or general agent. The general agent was a perpetual fount of enthusiasm.

E. Hal Brown, general manager London and Lancashire Life, spoke on motives and ideals. They must be high and grove, or the insurance man could not succeed.

Defends Man in Field. A. S. McGregor of London defended the dignity of insurance, and H. Vipond defended the man in the field. He denounced "switching" policies. Let the agent get new insurance. The agents were thought too persistent, but more than once a widow had complained to an agent after her husband's death.

"You should have been more persistent and my husband would not have died without insurance and left his family unprotected."

W. J. Bell of Guelph created a mild sensation by contrasting the banks and the insurance companies. He felt that the Banking Act stood in need of amendment far more than did the Insurance Act.

The agent got new insurance, had failed since 1890, some of them as the result of criminality. No insurance company had failed in the meaning of the act.

The banks could invest where they pleased, and the agent got new insurance, had failed since 1890, some of them as the result of criminality. No insurance company had failed in the meaning of the act.

Toronto Defeats Providence in a Pitchers' Battle by 3 to 1

Buffalo Trims Baltimore, While Jersey City Wins in Tenth at Montreal—No Game at Newark.

A charity in the initial innings yesterday along with a pair in succession in the second, followed up by the needful on each occasion, allowed the Leafs to tap the till for three registers, and as the hard hitting Grays could only cross the platter once, the game ended 3-1 in favor of Toronto. But bases on balls are like chickens—they always come home to roost.

Both moguls sent in southsiders to work, Barry being the choice of the victors while Larry Hesterer was sent in to try and fool the five side-wheelers of the Grays and trust to the fielders to look after the other four, which he certainly did.

It was one of Larry's good days, and only one period—the fourth—were they able to cash a ticket. Hesterer only issued one free transportation and all three had the batsmen guessing as to what safeties will indicate.

Southpaw Barry, as before stated, spoiled his usefulness by being too liberal with his passes, but after the second he settled down and the Pats never got a man to second, the locals being retired in order. The connections of him were limited to four. Duffy batted for him in the eighth and Mack finished the game.

It was a pitchers' battle, both twirlers being on their good behavior, with Hesterer having the upper hand all the way thru. Four men left on bases for each team will show the effectiveness of the twirling.

There was a high wind blowing across the field that bothered the outfielders, especially in right. Bill Phye was on the stick last, Joe Kelley playing third and Crooks, the new man from Trenton, of the Tri-State, going to center. Crooks is a big fellow and resembles Pat Dillard on his feet. He did not do anything with the bat, but accepted everything that came his way.

DISTURBING THE CONFIDENCE OF THE PEOPLE.

Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former secretary of the treasury, and now president of the Carnegie Trust Company, has been interviewed in New York.

Between the lines it is easy to read Mr. Shaw's opinion that the only danger of a financial panic at this time proceeds from the course President Roosevelt has taken.

This impression is being cultivated and disseminated by the great corporations, their owners and satellites, from John D. Rockefeller down. An attempt is being made to indoctrinate the people with the notion that they ought to be exceedingly prosperous, and that any clouds which lower upon their financial horizon are due entirely to the misdirected activity of the government officials, especially of President Roosevelt.

It might be interesting to ask Mr. Shaw, and others, why it is that they object to the president of the United States obeying his oath of office and seeing to it that the laws of the United States are enforced and obeyed. Do they believe or consider that certain corporations, or any of them, are above the law? Are they contending that laws passed by congress should not be enforced as against certain powerful combinations of rich men? Do they countenance lawlessness on the part of corporations? Do they condone the arrogant and continued aggressions upon the rights of the people made by trusts and combinations? If yes, then how can they logically condemn the Western Federation of Miners or any other combination which undertakes to override the law and defy the constituted authorities? Do these critics of President Roosevelt take the position that the law itself is altogether wrong? Do they believe that rebating, discriminating and other practices are to be upheld, and that status denouncing them are mischievous and absurd?

We hear a great deal about the president "disturbing the confidence of investors," but the ordinary investor is a man who obeys the law. Why should he be disturbed because the laws are being enforced. As a rule investors prefer a country where law is supreme.

The fact is that it is not the president or the law officers of the United States who have disturbed the confidence of the people, but it is the Rockefeller, the Harriman, and others who have done it. The people have learned that these men juggle securities and misappropriate the money of investors.

The people have not had their confidence shaken by learning that the government is honest and strong. On the contrary, they have more faith in the government, and therefore in the country, than they ever had before. They have lost confidence, however, in certain law-breakers, and are timid about entrusting their money to them.

SHOULD MINISTERS OF THE CROWN GROW RICH IN OFFICE?

The Summerside (P. E. I.) Journal recently said that Sir Herbert Tupper left the government a poor man, "in striking contrast to the case of some other gentlemen who have served as ministers of the crown."

"Yes," replies The Toronto Globe, "in striking contrast to his father, for instance, who did not leave office poor."

The Globe then, dealing with The Journal's evident reference to a minister who resigned from the Laurier government and is reputed to be a millionaire, in western lands and limits, says:

The Liberal press used to say the same things of the elder Sir Charles. They credited him with wealth which at that day in Canada was miraculous, and then asked, "Where did he get it?" The answer that every partisan gave imputed all sorts of public crimes to the rich politician.

The Journal and those of its ilk are practising similar tactics on the other side to-day. It is a discreditable business.

Sir Charles was probably not as wealthy as the excited politicians gave him credit for being. He was in office in a time of expansion. He had access to information, had speculative opportunities, and did not need to rob the treasury to do so.

All experience shows us that the public man who does not possess the primary virtue of common honesty does not last very long. However clever he may be, he resembles the pitcher which goes often to the well, but is broken at last.

But, after all, does not the proverb say that it is the broken pitcher which goes oftenest to the well? And should a man, for his private gain, make use of "information and speculative opportunities" obtained in his official capacity? The Globe's defence of the Liberal ex-minister is a weak one.

AUSTRALIAN BUTTER EXPORTS.

Canadian farmers who have been accustomed to regard Australia as practically a negligible quantity in the British market so far as regards dairy produce may be surprised to learn that the butter exports of the commonwealth amount in a year to over 31,000 tons.

What is of even greater interest is the exceptional care taken to secure the qualities required to maintain the confidence of British consumers. The regulations for this object are contained in the commonwealth Commerce Act, which came into effect in October of last year.

They provide for the compulsory inspection and supervision of all food exports, and for a specific form of marking on packages with a trade description, the basic principle of which is that all brands shall be true to description.

If any other matter is placed by individual exporters on their products the contents of the package must be in strict accordance with the representation.

These stringent rules were adopted because it was found that prior to the passing of the Commerce Act absolutely the worst butter borne the most superlative appellations. Owing to the opposition of one of the states, where supervision was not practiced, the grading of butter has not been made compulsory, and is in the option of the shipper, but inspection is absolutely necessary before shipment, and the application for inspection must certify that the butter contains more than 82 per cent. of butter fat and less than 16 per cent. moisture, four per cent. salt, three per cent. casein and five per cent. butyric acid, and any coloring matter deemed harmless by the agricultural department.

An export permit is only issued when the butter is found to be in accordance with the specification.

Altho classification is only optional it has become very popular. When it is desired the department grades the butter, brands the package with the commonwealth stamp and issues a certificate. First qualities are designated as "first-class, super-fine," and "lower grades" comprise "first-class," "second-class" and "pastry." All the shippers from the state of Victoria have had their butter graded and branded with the grade certificate numbered. The department takes an active part in securing proper quality, and notifies factory managers of the nature and extent of the defects, at the same time suggesting methods of improvement. As a result orders are now cabled from London for specific quantities weekly based on the government certificates.

The international weekly section of The New York Commercial, from which this information is taken, says that considerable controversy has taken place both in Melbourne and London regarding the subject of butters, and certain modifications in the present system have been suggested. But with further experience the friction will no doubt be removed, and compulsory departmental grading and branding is looked forward to as one of the ultimate results of the existing legislation.

There is a lesson for Canada in all this in view of the complaints reported by the Dominion trade agents in Great Britain, and it is one which ought to be taken in the cultivation of that market.

THREE HURT IN EXPLOSION.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 19.—At 9 o'clock this morning, Robert Little, superintendent of the waterworks, and Herman Webber, sewer and plumbing inspector, with an Italian laborer, went into a manhole of the trunk sewer at the corner of Simcoe-street and Victoria-avenue to make an examination.

When at the bottom of the manhole, one of the trio lighted a match and an explosion from gas occurred, blowing Webber out thru the manhole and 10 feet into the air. He was badly injured, one arm being broken and his face and hands scorched. Mr. Little escaped with a few scorches, and the Italian was badly burned and bruised. The presence of gas in the sewer was unexpected, and not supposed to be regular sewer gas but had filled into the sewers from natural gas leakage.

Injured by Dynamite. BELLEVILLE, Aug. 19.—Arthur Price, a six-year-old lad living near this city, found a stick of dynamite and pounded it with a stone. He lost two fingers, an eye and was horribly cut about the face, but will recover.

DEFENDANTS AT ENQUIRY SAY LETTERS WERE FAKED

Murray and Hickey Admit That Lucas Was Paid Money, But Deny Crooked Work.

Evidence given in the trial of Messrs. Hickey and Murray before the Boot and Shoe Workers' International Convention at the Labor Temple yesterday tends to show that the questionable methods adopted in political campaigns on this continent to secure votes were extensively employed during the last election of officers of this organization.

Hickey and Murray, the defendants, were both placed on the stand and denied that they had paid or promised anyone any reward for services rendered, but admitted saying that if elected they intended being surrounded with their friends. When confronted with several letters which they are alleged to have written, both denied any knowledge of them.

This led to a lively scuffle between the respective counsel and insinuations were freely made that the letters were "faked." An appeal was made to the committee to decide if the letters should be used in evidence and whether they were bona fide.

The committee will give their decision on this point to-day when the trial is resumed.

It is understood other charges are to be made as soon as these are finished. Edgar B. Lucas of Hamilton was the first witness called. He is one of the inspectors alleged to have accepted bribes from the defendants. He admitted having met the general secretary at Boston previous to counting the votes and was told that Inspector Edmunds would be O. K., but that Hayden would not. He had met Hickey at Haverhill and told him he would get a square deal on the count. He emphatically denied that Hickey promised to "take care" of him and Edmunds.

In cross-examination Lucas acknowledged saying that he "held John Tobin in the hollow" of his hand, but explained that he had done so because he thought he had held the balance of power between the Tobin advocate, and Edmunds, an equally warm Hickey supporter. Also he had once been promised the position of Canadian organizer by the Tobin administration, but had not been appointed, consequently he was "sore" on Tobin.

He had received money from Hickey, "but only in the way of a loan," and had also increased the loan since his arrival in Toronto to give evidence at this trial.

These admissions produced a great sensation among the delegates, which was intensified later when Mr. Murphy elicited the fact that Lucas, while in Boston, was accompanied by the American Express Co.'s office by Hickey, and there sent money home—all this before the position of Canadian organizer by the Tobin administration, but had not been appointed, consequently he was "sore" on Tobin.

Witness said: "I went to Dauber's regularly two or three times a week at that time to see my mother, who told me that Donovan had called him on the telephone and told him he must see him at once, and that he was very busy at that time and asked if I would call on Donovan when I went to Dauber's, and I did so, and he told me that it was the general opinion in Brockton that Edmunds could be bought very cheaply, and that our only chance was a fair count was to keep him sober. Donovan promised to stick close to Edmunds and keep him in line."

"Donovan then told me to ask Hickey if he was elected to see that he (Donovan) was given a position in the general office. I reported this to Hickey, but as far as I know Hickey never promised anybody anything for his support. The general opinion in Brockton, when it was heard that Edmunds had been chosen, was that he was a bad man for the position of inspector."

Political Intelligence

What the electors of Canada want is the actual political news, and all of it, rather than partisan distortions. There is widespread suppression of important political news by the partisan press of this country.

Both Liberal and Conservative organs avoid publishing anything that reflects on both sides, or suggests any new ideas, that both the old parties consider dangerous. And whoever broaches a new idea in parliament will get a line, or at most a distorted paragraph report from the partisan press.

The World is trying, in this column of political intelligence, to give the whole story of the political situation. The Toronto News has also started in to print political news that the people of Canada ought to have, and last week it discussed in a candid way the condition of the Conservative party, and its lack of leaders in the provinces. We have already reproduced a part of it. On Saturday it printed the letter of a correspondent, in reply to its delineation of Conservative party conditions.

We print it in this column to-day. Already, as a result of the outspoken and fair statement of what is being said, thought and done in connection with our politics as published in these columns, the partisan press have had to take some notice. Indeed, half the political discussion carried on in the party press of Canada for the past week seems to be based on The World's political intelligence.

THE CONSERVATIVE LEADER.

To the Editor of The Toronto News:

I have read your Ottawa correspondent's letter of to-night, and several other letters from the same correspondent, and I have read quite a number of your articles on the condition of the Conservative party.

I am a Conservative, and never voted otherwise in my 20 years of manhood. And, as such, I take the liberty of saying that your correspondent and your editorials on this subject are all marked by one thing whether by design or not I will not here attempt to say until you have had an opportunity of reply—they avoid the question. The question is not only Mr. Borden's lieutenants and the Conservative organization, but pre-eminently the question is Mr. Borden. How is he leader; is he the best man available; why have the people not responded to him? When Mr. Borden was in Vancouver a couple of years or more ago, he was, to use the phrase of a friend of mine, "a frost." As to his elevation to the leadership, I have heard something of the facts, and the real truth is that he is in the position because he was put into it by clever manipulation of the Tupper and certain Conservative M. P.'s and ex-ministers, who had brought about the wreck of 1896. Having wrecked the party, they plotted to retain control, and they selected Mr. Borden for that purpose.

THE SAME OLD CROWD.

This old and discredited crowd are still there, and they arrange deals with Liberals, and they agree to support pension and salary grants, and they wheedled Mr. Borden into taking a salary, and they say and believe that the only way to beat the Crows is to stick to the Canadian Pacific, in the hope of a big election campaign fund. They have kept control, and they have plotted steadily night and day to counteract the influence of the progressive party of this country. These are the men behind Mr. Borden; these are the men who made him leader; these are the men, some of them, who, even when in opposition, by the records of the insurance commission, went wrong in land deals with the Canadian Pacific, and with trust funds, and who insist on being recognized as chiefs. And Mr. Borden recognizes them and defends them.

MR. BORDEN'S QUALITIES.

Now, as to Mr. Borden: I grant that his character is good, that his intellectual calibre is high, that his private life is stainless, that he is a sound lawyer. He would make a model judge or a minister of justice somewhat after the type of Sir John Thompson. But a leader must have imagination, must have progressive ideas, and able to seize at a flash other progressive ideas, and who can win the heart of the people. The heart of the Conservative rank and file, as you rightly said, is big, strong and true, but R. L. Borden, with all his cold virtues, has not the one essential gift of being able to warm that heart, to make it responsive. To quote my friend again, Borden is a frost, and Foster an icicle.

If, therefore, you mean business, a convention must be called, not only to settle the question of lieutenants, but more important still that of leader. And it is the last point that you take for granted as settled.

FREE AND OPEN CONVENTION.

Why do you evade it? And there must be a progressive platform. No "organized" or "arranged" convention will do. There must be a great big free and open convention, and every man who goes into it must go into it with a chance of having even the leader's seat in his ambition, and the right to be heard in formulating a policy and a program.

But enough at present. If I were to make any further suggestions, I might hurt a great cause. A "John A." Boy.

Toronto, August 16, 1907.

THE BOURASSA HAMMER.

The blows of the Bourassa hammer on the political anvil can be heard all over Canada to-day. There's a clear-cut ring in them that makes you take notice of the clanging. To-day he is hammering the politicians of Quebec, and especially the Liberals. I saw him at his meeting last Sunday at Rigaud, near the confluence of the Ottawa with the St. Lawrence. Rigaud, or to use the proper title of the village, Sainte Madeleine de Rigaud, is on the west bank of the Ottawa, and celebrated its centennial some years ago. There are some old French houses in the place, an old church, and, of still greater importance, there is a shrine up the mountain, behind the village, that is the scene of many a pilgrimage of the faithful.

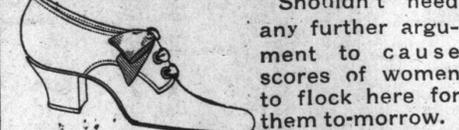

On Sunday last there was a pilgrimage to this shrine, and Mr. Bourassa had the good judgment to fix his meeting on the day of one of the big pilgrimages. On Sunday several thousand people gathered in the village. Some attended the church service, and many ascended the mountain to visit the shrine after their devotions.

The women and children picked largely, but most of the men went to the political meeting, which was held in front of the house of the village mayor—a fine brick structure, with a big verandah all about it. The representatives of the county, both for the Dominion and the local, were invited to meet Mr. Bourassa, and the meeting itself was under the auspices of the Liberals in the locality. There must have been two or three thousand people at the meeting. All the details of the meeting were arranged beforehand by a friendly conference, and the mayor was chosen to act as chairman, or rather, as they call him, president. All the speaking was in French.

Three or four of the lesser lights spoke at the first, turn about, and then Mr. Bourassa spoke for half an hour or so. Those who have heard him speak in English—and he is an admirable speaker in English—can only have a fair idea of his effectiveness on a stump in his native tongue. Where he at times seems to pose in the house of commons, when speaking in English, he certainly lives the very part when he stands up and addresses his fellow-countrymen in French. He is always well-dressed, his manners are of the best. He looks somewhat like a Parisian, and not only has he a good diction, but he has a splendid delivery in a voice the tone of which recalls the good actors of the Parisian theatres.

As soon as he began to speak, everyone was still, and they listened to him as he really was—a tribune of the people. He told them that he was a Liberal, the son of a Liberal, and the grandson of a Liberal. He read them the declarations of Liberals and the programs of Liberals, and he said that what he read was his platform; and then he proceeded to contrast the acts of the Liberal government at Quebec with this platform. He showed them that the public domain was being wasted, that all sorts of concessions were given, to the disadvantage of the people, and he wound up this portion of his address by some very drastic comments on the ministers whose names are involved in the so-called Abitibi scandal, in which Baron Lepine and Hon. Mr. Prevost were very much involved.

What Mr. Bourassa said, in substance, was: "I am a Liberal, but I cannot stand for this." Then he took up the question of public instruction, and he showed, by quotations from Liberals and from the clergy, that the children of Quebec could stand much better schools, and that if they had these better schools they would be better fitted for the battle of life. These quotations, he said, were his views, and therefore it was as a Liberal pure and simple that he stood up for honesty in the administration of the public domain and for better education of the people. If he had occasion to criticize the conduct of Liberals, he was not to be blamed, but the Liberals had to be blamed, inasmuch as they had departed from their program, and had allowed the public rights and the public domains to be raided.

When Mr. Boyer, the commons member, was speaking, and he spoke before Mr. Bourassa, he made quite an impression on his own friends by the way he handled Mr. Bourassa. But it was only a temporary advantage, for as soon as Mr. Bourassa got on his feet he was able to shatter all that Mr. Boyer had said, and to make Mr. Boyer look somewhat ridiculous in the eyes of his own constituents. Bourassa is a man of first-class ability, and the people are coming to him more and more because they recognize in him a genuine tribune of the people. Every word that he says they eagerly listen to, and they go home with ideas in their heads that will force them to think of the actual condition of affairs in their province and in Canada. "M."

The Wabigoon, Ont., Star, Aug. 8: The Toronto World remarks that the way to get a universal two-cent fare is to compel those companies already required by law to give that service, to put the same into effect. As soon as the Grand Trunk has a two-cent fare, the Canadian Pacific will have the same, and before long the two-cent fare service will, by the mere law of competition, become almost universal.

RAILWAYS IN THE WEST HAVE GREATLY IMPROVED

Chief Engineer of Commission Says Facilities Are Increased—Plans Approved.

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—(Special.)—The railway commission has now approved all the plans of the Grand Trunk Pacific from Winnipeg to Fort George, in the Rocky Mountains.

George Mountain, chief engineer of the railway commission, has just returned from a six weeks' tour of the railways in the Canadian west. He reports that conditions with respect to roads, rolling stocks, etc., have greatly improved during the last few months, and transportation facilities this fall and winter will be much better than last year.

The C. N. R. lines, especially, says Mr. Mountain, were found to be much better than he had expected, owing to the large amount of work done this summer. All the C. N. R. lines are now in fairly good condition and are perfectly safe for traffic of all kinds. Large additions have also been made to rolling stock and terminal facilities have been improved.

Perney Hirtschman Tells His Part of Story

The Case Fully Reported, Proves the Work Was Done by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 19.—A well-known resident of 93 Sackville-street, Mr. Perney Hirtschman, who has been afflicted with a serious condition, has recovered, and says: "Six months ago my appetite fell off and my health became very poor. I had terrible attacks of indigestion and my food was unable to sleep at night. My liver color showed what an ill man I was. I tried numerous remedies, but the only genuine one was Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butter-tongue barks cured my indigestion. My appetite increased and my strength came back quickly. To-day I have a fine zest for my meals. I feel as strong and healthy as a young boy. Because they are so cleansing and so tonic in their effect I think Dr. Hamilton's Pills should be used by every person. My wife used them regularly with grand results."

Women's Stylish Black Silk Suits, $15

No doubt you will wonder how we can offer smart new Silk Suits at $15.00, when the present state of the silk market would lead one to believe that the commonest quality would figure up to more than $15.00, when made up into suit.

It's because we gave our orders for silks long before this present rise, and because we have a perfect manufacturing equipment that we are able to present so tempting an offer. The suits are all perfect reproductions of New York's latest models, that we would have to sell at $25.00, if imported; and what makes this offering all the more attractive, we promise you that the silk we use is better than what we get in the imported articles.

The garments are made with all the skill and care that high-priced tailors are capable of, in the newest Marie Antoinette style, waist trimmed with flutings and medallions of lace. Note the range of extra large sizes. Bust measurements 34 to 42; Wednesday in our Mantle Show Rooms 15.00

Buy More on Declines. NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Speaking about the decline in prices of all our stocks, it has been a great object lesson to the onlooker to notice the effect of the price declines, as between the curb and the inside markets.

Traders in the inside markets on the decline seemed greatly desirous to get out of the stocks and go short of the market, while it has been noticeable especially among the stockholders of that company as the Cobalt Central, that there has been a desire on the part of stockholders to increase their holdings as further recession from present levels for this stock will meet with resistance.

New York Curb. Charles Head & Co. report the following closing transactions and sales on the New York curb: Nipissing, closed 2 1/2, high 2 3/4, low 2 1/4; no sales. Red Rock Silver Min., 2 1/2; no sales. Cobalt Central, 19 to 20, high 19, low 18; no sales. Green-Meehan, 1/4 to 1/2; no sales. King Edward, 1/4 to 1/2; no sales. McKinley, 1/4 to 1/2; no sales. BEER WHEN HE AWOKE POISON HAD BEEN TAKEN

Arthur Wildbore Attempted Suicide in Downtown Boarding House—He Will Recover.

"I only had a glass of beer," said the statement of Arthur Wildbore at St. Michael's Hospital last night when returned to consciousness, after working on him for over three hours.

The young man, who had been despondent for some days, was found at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by his sweetheart, Nellie Leonard, in his room at 40 William-street. She thought him sleeping, but failing to rouse him noticed two bottles which had contained laudanum.

The young woman, who rooms in the same house, ran screaming downstairs and summoned Mrs. E. Feinborough, who with the assistance of a neighbor, walked the young man about and administered emetics, while the girl went in search of a doctor.

None could be found until after 4 o'clock. Then Dr. Lavine and another attended and the man was sent to St. Michael's Hospital. On arrival there, measures to revive him were continued until after 10 o'clock, and he is now out of danger.

Wildbore was engaged as mail clerk in a downtown hotel until a week ago when he did not go back to work on time and later feared that his position would be gone.

He had been with Mrs. Feinborough since May and had always been cheerful until recently.

Earlier in the afternoon he had tried to borrow 50 cents from Mrs. Feinborough's little girl and had then gone out.

At 2.30, about half an hour later, he had returned with two small parcels.

perform a number of sensational military marches and evolutions, fancy musket drills and other military manoeuvres at top speed, and with astounding accuracy. As a finish the young soldiers gave a thrilling wall-scaling exhibition. The band will play every afternoon and evening. It is impossible also give their performance during the week.

Scarboro Beach. The lover of horses will enjoy a visit to Scarboro Beach this week. There are two equine troops on the bill, and to say that they are both good is not giving sufficient credit to the double company of actors, Miss E. Foster, a famous equestrienne, last night put a troupe of beautiful thoroughbreds through some evolutions which most people present had hitherto deemed it impossible for horses to perform.
