S. S. POKANOKET SANK AT WHARF

Story From Norfolk, Va., Says That ex-Star Liner Filled and Went Down--Believe Disaffected Sailor Opened Seacocks and Caused Disaster.

A dispatch from Norfolk, Virginia, says the steamer Pokanoket sank on Wednesday night at her pier at Petersburg. It is believed the seacocks were opened by a disaffected member of the crew. It is thought that the steamer can be raised again without very great damage resulting. The Pokanoket, it will be remembered, was one of the Star line vessels owned and operated by the James River Navigation Company at Norfolk, Va. She sailed from St. John on May 4th in charge of Capt. Frederick H. Brown. It was stated at about that time that the purchase price was about $40,000. She was a steel boat, very nicely fitted up inside and was one of the fastest of the Star line fleet. She was registered at 332 tons.

NEWPORT HAS A HAUNTED HOUSE "Knockers" Take Possession of Fashionable Villa Every Night.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 20--Newport has a house of mystery that is attracting much attention. It is owned by Police Commissioner Jeremiah W. Horton and is located in Church street, almost opposite old Trinity church. In the evening of July 6 Bostonian Hugh Sweeney, U. S. N., while sitting quietly in the lower parlor, with his family, heard a mysterious knocking. It seemed to be from the walls. Mr. Sweeney's children were terror-stricken, and he went for a policeman, thinking some one was playing a practical joke on him.

Every night since the knocking has been heard some times so loud that the dishes rattle and the doors shake ominously. Officer Horton continues a systematic inquiry. Thinking some animal had got into the walls he took down the fire boards and found a few mice and a rat today, but he could find nothing.

DETAILS OF LAND GRANT. Canadian Pacific Has Redeemed Last of the Bonds--Value of Its Unsold Holdings.

From the proceeds of its land sales the Canadian Pacific has redeemed the last of its land grant bonds, the original issue of which amounted to $15,000,000. It is estimated that the lands which the railroad now has on hand are worth, at current prices, including town sites, in the neighborhood of $150,000,000.

AMERICAN ARTISTS TO DEFEND WHITE'S MEMORY

PARIS, July 20--The Herald's European edition publishes the following--Believing that in the distorted opinion found largely through reports in sensational newspapers after the Thaw-White tragedy in the Madison Square garden, great injustice has been done to the memory of Stanford White, American artist in the United States and Europe intend to give public expression to the opinion in which they held Mr. White personally and as the designer of some of America's most beautiful architectural monuments.

HENRY GORD CHARGED WITH BIGAMY IN THE POLICE COURT TODAY

A very important case will come before the police court on Monday next. A Russian Jew named Henry Gord will have to face the serious charge of bigamy. This morning shortly before ten o'clock a well-dressed and fine looking man accompanied by Officer Henry appeared in the police court and stated to Mr. Henderson that he wished to lay information against his husband, Henry Gord. Gord has been in this city for about two years and during that time has been a pedlar. Last August he married Miss Wisel, daughter of Michael Wisel, a prisoner in the police court this morning arrested by Officer Henry.

Venezuela's President Paying Tribute to a Patriot's Memory

Vilva Lomb Castro's New Residence on the Paradise Road

CARACAS, Venezuela, July 19--General Castro's proclamation on his return to the presidency of the republic, setting free all political prisoners except traitors and ordering the return of the millions of dollars of embargoed property to General Matos and to Senator Ortega Martinez, is a coup which eliminates the possibility of the fall of the Republic, and of Matos joining any revolutionary plan which General Henriquez, "El Micho," may be concocting. This many times unfortunate leader has been reported as having sailed from New York for the West Indies, and in Caracas it is rumored that he has arrived in Colombia.

WITH THE YACHTSMEN ON "HAPPY DAYS" CRUISE

HAMPSHIRE, July 21 (By Telegraph)--The R. N. Y. C. squadron will not go up to the "Happy Days" cruise until tomorrow morning. After the service the yachts will head for Middleboro and it is expected that by five o'clock tomorrow afternoon they will reach their anchorage at the "Happy Days" cruise of 1905 will pass into history. There was a very heavy rain here last night but this did not dampen the spirits of the yachtsmen and the evening passed pleasantly. A concert was held on the ship, the Commodore proved an excellent host and the programme was a first-class one.

THE CONCERT

While the times man was in the telephone office during the afternoon, a young lady asked if there was any possibility of prevailing on the yachtsmen to give a concert in aid of the organ fund of the Baptist church. They had bought a new organ, and a balance still remained unpaid. The concert was held on the ship, the Commodore proved an excellent host and the programme was a first-class one.

ON A HAMSSTEAD

Everybody was early out on Friday morning, to discover a thin land fog that was soon dissipated by the rising sun. The air was very calm, but before the fleet set sail at ten o'clock a light breeze sprang up.

ON A SAD ERRAND

Tenyson Smith, the English temperance worker who came to America to take part in the political campaign in behalf of no license and yesterday arrived in Boston next Tuesday and will sail for England next Tuesday. Mr. Smith is taking to England the body of his wife, who died in Virginia last March, while accompanying her husband on his tour of America. Mr. Smith returned in October in time again to take part in the political canvass preceding the November elections.

MOTHER THAN FLOW PLEADS WITH SON WANTS HIM TO ACCEPT INSANITY PLEA AND THUS SAVE HIS LIFE--WHITE'S FRIENDS NOT ANXIOUS TO BRING CASE TO TRIAL--THAW OBDURATE.

NEW YORK, July 21--Following the report yesterday that Harry Thaw had been reported insane by alcoholics employed to make preliminary examination by W. M. K. O'Leary, it was asserted that although without direct co-operation, friends of Stanford White were on the side of the mother of the prisoner in her efforts to settle the case without the necessity of a trial.

SHE POISONED HER HUSBAND

MOBILE, Ala., July 21--Mrs. Joseph Mizell, mother of 17 children, was arrested yesterday on a charge of poisoning her husband, Race Hall, a neighbor, as charged in an accomplice. The body of Mizell was removed to the morgue.

THE MACAMITE CO.

If the Americans who are after the profits of the Macamite Co. secure it under the option they hold, some $300,000 will come to New Brunswick. Of that amount it is said about one-third will go to the Macamite Co. If the "deal" goes through it is thought New Brunswickers will get about their own money back, and in addition, some stock in the purchasing company. The principal shareholders in the province reside in St. John, York and Northumberland counties. --New Freeman.

INDIANS IN SORE TROUBLE

BRANTFORD, Ont., July 20 (Special)--Two Indians, Levi Claws and Thomas Green, and a colored man, John Joe, yesterday drove from Hamilton to the Indian Reserve. All had been drinking and in attempting to drive across the Grand River, near the Reserve, the current carried away the rig in which Joe carried green rods. Green managed to swim to the bank, but Joe was drowned, together with a horse. Claws attempted an assault on Mrs. Sarah Miller, and escaped, but was arrested at a late hour last night.

PRISONER IN WALSH ASSAULT CASE REMANDED TO JAIL--OTHER CASES DEALT WITH.

This morning in the police court Fred Keefe was charged with assault by Richard Walsh and it may be that on account of Walsh's finger being bitten, Keefe will be charged with aggravated assault.

PRISONER IN WALSH ASSAULT CASE REMANDED TO JAIL--OTHER CASES DEALT WITH.

After Keefe had pleaded not guilty, Richard Walsh, of No. 1 Hook & Ladder Company said that at 7 o'clock on Sunday night he was in a fight with another dog. The dog was named "the other dog" and was thrown over a fence. Just then the witness came along with his little dog and Keefe's bull dog attacked his canine. Mr. Walsh took a hand in the scarp and placing his foot on the bull dog's neck got them parted. Walsh's dog was badly hurt and before he had time to pick up the dog, Keefe's mother, interferred. He motioned her to keep away from the dog, but she was not to be deterred. She went up to No. 1 Hook and Ladder station on King street east and was sitting out in front of it when Keefe with a number of followers came along and seeing the injured dog screeched who was the owner. On being told that Walsh was Keefe's mother, she struck the witness on the face. Walsh said that Keefe during the scarp took his finger in his mouth and bit it. The incidents were separated and between 10 and 11 o'clock Keefe was arrested by Officer Scott.

THE WEATHER

Light to moderate south to south westerly wind; mostly fair and decidedly warmer today and on Sunday, but a few local showers or thunderstorms.

MESSINGER BOY AS HOUSE MAID AT 30 CENTS PER HOUR

(New York Globe.) At least the servant girl problem has been solved, and by a bright Harlem woman. About 8 o'clock this morning a woman living in West 124th street, who keeps a cozy fireproof apartment and one maid was surprised and not a little chagrined to find that her maid, who sleeps at home, did not materialize at breakfast over and over again. Husband went downtown and the flat was topsy-turvy. What could she do? A bright idea then occurred to this bright Harlem woman, and she called up the West 124th street branch of the Postal Telegraph Company and ordered a messenger boy. Little did she appreciate that by one call she solved the problem which has caused wrinkles to gather in the faces of good housewives since the days of Eve. The boy came. He had curly hair inclined to be wavy in places, long legs and arms with dirty hands, long accustomed to smoking penny thrillers and cigarettes. He walked up the stairs and pushed the bell at the door. Out looks housewife smiles. "Please step inside," she said. "The boy, step inside," she said. "I've been sweeping and dusting in a first-class way, and when you're ready to go to work, I'll be ready to go to work."

BEIT NOT A BACHELOR

Famous "Diamond King" Left Insurance Policy Payable to Elizabeth Bennett.

NEW YORK, July 21.—A hidden romance in the life of Alfred Beit, the British multi-millionaire whose death was recorded in London last Monday, was revealed yesterday, when it was found that in his application for a life insurance policy in the Equitable, made in 1888, Mr. Beit declared his intention of marrying, the woman's name being given as Elizabeth Bennett, and that the policy subsequently issued was made payable to "my wife Elizabeth Bennett Beit."

At the time of the medical examination by the company's physicians, however, Mr. Beit is said to have declared himself unmarried. In the many reports published from time to time of the "Diamond King's" engagement to this or that woman, the name of Elizabeth Bennett was never mentioned and much mystery exists as to who she may be and as to whether or not the South African millionaire married her. That Mr. Beit should have declared to the physicians examining him as to his eligibility as an insurance risk that he was single, and that he should at the same time have had the policy issued to him made payable to "my wife, Elizabeth Bennett Beit," is a puzzle that only the will of the dead man or the testimony of the woman herself can solve.

If the marriage which the dead millionaire appeared so near to contracting never occurred, it would be interesting to know what caused the evidently crank and eccentric engagement to be broken and the almost climaxed marriage to be blighted. If the Elizabeth Bennett mentioned as beneficiary in the Equitable policy was Elizabeth Bennett Beit, wife of Alfred Beit, the multi-millionaire, the marriage was kept a strict secret. Mr. Beit died a widower, and his most intimate friends were in ignorance of the fact that he had married the beneficiary of his life insurance. He could easily have settled an annuity upon her in some other way which did not involve the acknowledgment of the relationship. Also, if the romance proceeded only to the engagement point, he had plenty of opportunity to alter the policy taken out in the Equitable so that it might read as reverting to "my wife Elizabeth Beit."

NATION NEEDS MORE DIMES

Public Pockets Too Many, Says Treasurer, but More Will Be Coined.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—United States Treasurer Treat said that he was confronted with a situation regarding the coinage of the late Alfred Beit, the South African financier, and the terms of his will, which provided for the payment of $25,000,000 to his estate. He said that the New York banks have only 12,000,000 in dimes and that the Treasury supply of small coin generally is very low, and that they are now being sent to the various mints directing the coinage of a large amount of subsidiary coin.

MALE STENOGRAPHERS IN DEMAND

Considering the great demand for male stenographers, and the many remarkable instances of advancement to positions of influence and emolument by shrewdly selected men, it is surprising that so few capable and well educated young men make a specialty of shorthand. Many girls do hold good positions, draw large salaries and are doing excellent work. But there are lots of places where girls are not wanted if men can be got, and large firms and corporations are constantly in search of capable young men to put in training as prospective managers and heads of departments, and the first qualification usually required of these is ability to do good shorthand work. Nearly every business college in Canada, and the United States is overwhelmed with applications for male stenographers. As an instance of the opportunities of shorthand, Messrs. Kerr & Son received a telegram last week from a western city offering $50 a month, to start, for a capable shorthand man. This telegram was followed next day, by another offering $30 additional for travelling expenses. In this case, Messrs. Kerr were able to make a recommendation, and a young man with bright hopes and prospects is now journeying westward, but in the great majority of cases they can only reply "Our male stenographers are all engaged."

DEATHS

ELECTRICAL ASSOCIATION

SYDNEY, N. S., July 20 (Special).—The Maritime Electrical Association held its last business session this morning and this afternoon made a trip to Glouce Bay, where they inspected the collision, especially the electrical equipment. At the morning session J. H. Winfield read a very interesting paper on the "Evolution of the Telephone," and the subject of the pole rentals was reported on by a number of committees. This evening a banquet was held at the Sydney Hotel at which several prominent members of the association spoke. Among those present were Prof. Alexander Bell, who was the guest of honor. The address of the distinguished inventor of the telephone, which was listened to with great attention, comprised an extensive reference to the telephone and its possibilities and the prospective of his scheme of aerial navigation. Most of the members of the association leave for their homes to-morrow.

It is understood in Ottawa that W. T. R. Preston will go to England at once to close up his work as immigration commissioner and that he will then take a position in the department of trade and commerce. Before Chinese justice, man and god are treated the same. Viceroy Shun, who was anxious to see the end of the lottery mania, was very angry with the guardian joss of Canton, who remained deaf to all prayers for a little sunshine. A man was dispatched to the temple with orders to remove the roof over the joss' head and let him have his fair share of the rain.

The 20th Century Saline. ABBEY'S is the "salt of salts." It never had an equal. It has no equal to-day. It is the ideal formula to correct the blood—strengthen the stomach—regulate bowels, liver and kidneys—and keep the whole system actively healthy. THEY ARE LEARNING

Canadian protests against the action of British judges in dismissing criminals upon their agreeing to emigrate to Canada are having their effect.

The editor was in the post office lately for his mail and when he had just opened the box a lady came in and stood near him.

So far as can be learned quite a large number of St. John people did not go to the circus either in the afternoon or the evening.

On the whole the session was a busy one, and the members are entitled to a well-earned rest.

Other English justices have offended in the same way. With the example of the Recorder of London before them we may hope that they will now turn over a new leaf.

Winnipeg is now 105,000. Winnipeg real estate has always been good buying, but it never was as good as it is today.

SPECTRES Several Canadian newspapers and many across the line are speculating about the probability of a general uprising of Mahomedans, one effect of which would be the loss of India to the British Empire.

MANHOOD

Our country has new need of man today. Not such alone as bravely may withstand the shock of battle or with strenuous hand.

IN LIGHTER VEIN HIS SERVICE. "I have done the state some service," the politician began, "and I—"

DOMESTIC BOONOMOY. Angeline, the thin, slender, "I have done the state some service,"

HARD TIMES. "No, ma'am," said Baggot Titters. "I ain't duty from choice. I'm just bound to honor. I wrote a testimonial for a soap maker once 'promised to use no other."

TRAGEDY. "No, George, I can never, never be your wife. Despair written upon his every feature, George Worthington reeled and clutched at the mantel for support. The blow had fallen.

A SUSPICIOUS OPENING. "Tell me honestly what you think of my musical talent."

NOT ELIGIBLE. Kind Lady—My poor man, when the last trump called he gave me a bar of soap. He cut it open and found a note inside with an offer of marriage from a pretentious doctor.

AN ASPIRATION. "Of course," said the new vector, "you hope eventually to reside in a heavenly mansion where—"

THE INSULT. First Hen—So you've been sitting on imitation eggs, too, have you? Didn't I make you furious?

Male Gypsy Moth. The Caterpillar.

Nests of the Moths.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 20.—Westward the gypsy moth takes its way. It has caused millions of dollars' worth of damage in Massachusetts, has escaped to New Hampshire and Connecticut, and now the invasion is turning toward New York State.

Experience has shown that automobiles are very active agents in transporting this insect, and, with their increased use in recent years, no one can foresee where the pest may appear next.

Two rows of warts down the back of the gypsy moth caterpillar make it easily distinguishable. It is about two inches long and the ten anterior warts are blue, the twelve posterior red.

Caterpillars of both species, says Mr. Felt, may be destroyed by spraying with an arsenical poisoning, preferably five pounds of arsenate of lead to fifty gallons of water, though the gypsy moth caterpillar, especially when nearly full grown, are quite resistant to poison.

THE ADVENTURES OF PECK'S BAD BOY

RUMORS WAFTED FROM PARISIAN WORKSHOPS

It seems singular that Autumn styles should be shown in July, yet the first Fall openings are always at this time. The fashions now displayed are tentative, of course, and are rather to supply a need made by the Summer fashions...

On old loveliness are more calculated to be the thing in the near future than the perfectly new and less becoming thing. But costumes are likely to outdistance all other toilettes on first Autumn days. The complete suit is far smarter than the old coat, and with a change of hat and other accessories it can be made very elegant...

It seems especially strange that such a story should be told of Lawrence Hanley. He knew more about ghosts, perhaps, than any other person who ever died there, for his long and brilliant stage career acquainted him intimately with Shakespeare's ghostly company...

AN ACTOR'S GHOST REAPERS

At Los Angeles, Cal., a more uncanny visitor than ghost has appeared at the County Hospital, according to the inmates. It is the ghost of a man who died three months ago. The 'ghost' said to have appeared not only in the building where he died, but upon the lawn, and the old tale was revived both by the assertion of a woman generally an inmate of the ward that she had seen the disembodied spirit of the dead actor stalking about.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS. THE ONLY KIDNEY DISEASE. CURE FOR NEURALGIA, RHEUMATISM, DIABETES, BRUISES, SCALDS, BURNS, AND ALL AFFECTIONS OF THE URINARY SYSTEM.

Black, hunter's green, imperial blue, smoky gray and the creamy brown are noted as the colors most observed for first practical wear. Headgear will accord in color or else brilliantly contrast—red, blue and greens going with black, and black being thought always suitable with color. Black and white, by the way, is likely to be revived as a smart combination for many imported models show this scheme. A great vogue, too, is predicted for silk as a gown material, and some gowns now being exploited in superb frocks have much of the old heavy splendor.

Which looks as if the soft clinging textures so long employed are to give way to more stately materials. But one can only premise at this early date, and however much fashion may propose, it is woman who will dispose. One thing at least is certain: women have become too sensible to wear the gowns of dress so set aside becoming styles merely because they are a season old, and so improvements and variations are put on in the same way, at the least side or front of the hat, seldom high crested and stiff upstanding line, it sees the head squarely, and with some slight underrunning at sides and back to fill in the inevitable space.

Most beautiful are the fancy quills which adorn these hats, and which vary in wide and artistically decorated as to be in some instances the chief trimming. One or two of the quills are used in conjunction with a velvet or satin rosette, this placed smartly at the left and the quills emerging from it. A French turban seen in a show and handsome brown—a shade with a stiff fringe of cream—was evenly trimmed at the sides of the front in automobile fashion, with huge oval beads in mottled brown, a beryl knot of satin ribbon in the hat color standing between them.

The tiny toque of flowers or gilded tulle is scarcely more than a hair ornament, and fan-tails of a very fragile and fairy sort are still further approved. These consist of a circlet of gold, ivory, ribbon or velvet, with a side flip, or covering wreath of ornaments. One theatre bandeau closely described was a circle of gold, trimmed with a wreath of jeweled dragon flies. Wreaths of plain ivory, and of gold and silver leaves, are also given as evening hat ornaments in Paris.

Along with these first small hats are displayed some so big as to warrant the belief that large ebullience are again to be revived. These have none of the perilous tilt of the old little hats which have had such a vogue, though brims are bent in many fantastic shapes, to lift abruptly at the left side or back or undulate all round.

The pretty habit of wearing a hat with a low evening dress continues, so as the large hat is more suitable here than the small. Evening dresses are likely to become picturesque in the extreme. But for theatre use small hats and head-dresses are discussed by French authorities. Apropos of one small discussed that ornament a Paris correspondent writes: "The scandal of the theatre, the possession of which entails both the death of the mother bird and her young, must in time do away with these charming ornaments entirely."

The Federation of Musicians of Chicago is considering a scheme which is described by its sponsors as a plan for "carrying high-class music to the doors of the poor." It contemplates, among other features, the "charity" band, which is to furnish free street concerts during the summer in the crowded residence districts of the city.

England is now interested in three plans for scientific regulation of wages. The principal is that of basing the wages on the return on the capital employed. There is to be established a commission board, and the rate of wages that is to be used as the standard rate, was that paid before the last five per cent. advance.

CHOICE RECIPES FOR RASPBERRIES

Of all berries, raspberries have least consideration from the average housewife. The reason for this is partly that there are so many other fresh fruits in the market at the same time, and partly that they seem so difficult to clean. Here are some timely suggestions for service, and also ways to prepare them in new and unusual guises.

Raspberries growing above ground seldom require washing. Should they be washed, however, it is well to put them in cold water once, gently lift it out. If they are to be served plain, give them this cold bath, just before sending to the table. Then throw them lightly into a chafin dish and squeeze the juice of one lemon over them. Pass with powdered sugar.

Raspberry Whisk Ice-Cream - Pass one and a half pounds of sound, ripe raspberries through a fine hair sieve into a basin. Then add one and a half pints of syrup made according to the directions given below. Add the juice of two lemons, and freeze the mixture until it is quite hard. For the syrup, put three pounds of loaf sugar into a stewpan with a quart of cold water, and stir occasionally until it is melted. Then place the stewpan on the stove and let the syrup gradually reach boiling point, and continue to boil for about ten minutes. The scum should be removed as it rises, and when ready it should be strained and left until cold. This syrup, if kept well covered, will remain good for some time, and it may be employed to sweeten both cream and water ices. But when mixed with fresh fruit it must be added with discretion, as some kinds will need more than others.

Raspberry Cream Cake - Make a plain cake in the usual way, flavoring it with lemon peel and a small quantity of vanilla essence. As soon as the cake is baked, turn it out of the mold onto a wire rack, and when it is cool (not cold), carefully remove the middle of the cake to within rather more than an inch of the sides and top, and put it aside for several hours. Stew two pounds of raspberries with plenty of sugar, and rub them through a fine hair sieve. Then measure the puree and make hot. Add gelatine in the proportion of an ounce to each pint of liquid. Be careful to ascertain that the gelatine is quite melted before taking the puree from the stove. Then put it into a basin to cool. When it is cold but not set, add an equal quantity of whipped cream which has been sweetened, and whisk the mixture for a few moments. Then pour it into the hollow cake and place on ice until the filling is firm.

Raspberry Jelly With Cream Ice - Put half a pound or a pint of loaf sugar into a stewpan with half a pint of cold water and the thinly pared rind of two lemons. Let the water come to a boil and then simmer for ten minutes. Stew until all the juice has been drawn from them. Pass the juice through a fine hair sieve. Then measure and reheat, dissolving in it gelatine in the proportion of half an ounce to each pint of liquid. Taste to see if it requires any more sugar and strain it into a basin. If handy when the jelly is cool, add a wineglass of sherry and pour all into a mould to set. Put a cup of milk into a double boiler with eight teaspoonfuls of sugar and the thinly pared rind of a lemon. Stir on the stove until the sugar has dissolved and leave until cold. Whip a cup of cream, stir it into the basin containing the cooled milk and freeze. Serve together with raspberry jelly.

Raspberry Butty. - Take two pounds of ripe raspberries, remove their hulls and see what there are no insects in the hollow of the berries. Have in readiness also one pound of dry bread-crumbs. Then butter a pudding dish, and cover the bottom with a layer of the dry bread-crumbs. On the top of this place a layer of raspberries, sprinkle plenty of sugar over them, add another layer of bread-crumbs, then a layer of raspberries sprinkled with sugar, and so on until the dish is filled. Let the last layer be bread-crumbs. On top of this last layer put bits of butter. Place a plate or cover over it and bake about thirty minutes. Remove the plate or cover a few minutes before serving and let it brown. Serve cream with it.

Ice-Raspberries - The raspberries must be large and good. Wash them and examine the hollows carefully to see that there are no insects in them. Beat up the white of an egg with one teaspoonful of water. Dip the raspberries, one at a time, into the mixture of egg and water and roll them in powdered sugar one at a time. As they are taken out of the water place them at short distances from each other on white paper and leave them until they are quite dry, which will probably take six or seven hours. When dry keep on ice until ready to be served.

Bottled Raspberries - Buy large raspberries which are quite sound. Pick them over very carefully without bruising them, and drop gently into quite clean bottles till filled to the neck. Stand the bottles in a large kettle of cold water with block of some sort between to prevent their boiling on the bottom or turning over. As soon as the water comes to a boil, lift the kettle from the stove. Take each bottle out and fill up absolutely with boiling water to the neck of the bottle, just covering the fruit. Then strike three sulphur matches together and hold them lighted in the neck of the bottle till it is full of white fumes. Withdraw the matches and very quickly cover and fasten down tightly. Return the bottle to its place in the kettle and leave till next day to get quite cold. These raspberries keep perfectly and are like fresh fruit when opened.

Isn't This Convincing

When a man is so sleepless and nervous that his constitution breaks down, he is in a bad way. When he is thoroughly cured, he naturally feels grateful toward the remedy that worked his cure. He will tell of his recovery as does Mr. Nazaire Begin, who writes thus: "If anyone had told me any remedy could build up my nervous system so well, I would not have believed it. Before using Ferrone's I was run down in nerve and vital energy, and in very weak health. I didn't get enough sleep at night, felt poorly in the day time. Ferrone's has filled me with energy and vim, increased my weight and made a new man of me."

Hundreds tell the same story - Weak and depleted, everything going wrong, unable to catch up. They took Ferrone's and all was changed to health and serenity. Price 50c. per box at all druggists, or by mail from M. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A. and Kingston, Ont.

Miss Turban - Archie Featherbottom tells me you are advising him to spend his vacation this summer in the Swiss mountains. Mrs. Challinor-Kearney - Yes; I thought that if I could induce him to fall down some precipice I would be doing a real favor to you, dear. - Chicago Tribune.

Tickling Epicurean Palates How Harvey of Washington Pleased Presidents, Diplomats and Statesmen.

Harvey's Oyster House, where Presidents dined

Geo. W. Harvey, Washington's Famous Restaurateur

President Arthur Delighted to Eat Harvey's Terrapin.

Gen. Grant Ate a Peck of Oysters at a Sitting there.

A Cartoon of Harvey, by the late Thomas Nast.

'Uncle Joe' Cannon May Still be Seen There.

Incidentally, a century ago, George W. Harvey, the famous oyster and restaurant keeper of Washington, D.C., has been tickling the palates of Presidents, diplomats, warriors and statesmen. He has never failed to contemplate at his table fifty years of good eating and drinking, both for himself and his patrons. Harvey, perhaps, has devised more new dishes than any other restaurateur in America, if not in the world. His bill-of-fare presented 300 different styles in which oysters alone were served, many of them being unique. Oysters, wild ducks and terrapin he considered the finest gifts of the Creator to mankind, and he devoted most of his research and knowledge of the culinary art to serving them. Since before the Civil War nearly every prominent American had known Harvey and his eating house. He is the inventor of the steamed oyster, and the fame of his meat sauces has encircled the earth. It is asserted that he can make a better salad dressing than any chef that France ever saw. Now, the man under whose direction statesmen from two continents were served, to whom Presidents of the United States have looked for the rarest of dishes, has decided to retire with the fame and fortune which his business life brought, and which placed him among the most conspicuous figures of Washington life. During all his long career in pleasing to appetites, Harvey has clung to three specialties as a Hindoo clings to his gods. He considered all food, except the oyster, the canvasback duck and the terrapin, as mere raw material, from which, however, gratifying results could be obtained for those whose tastes did not extend to—or pocket-books permit—levels in true epicurean feasts. When canvasback ducks were not plentiful he served other ducks—the real chef can prepare a redhead, a blackhead, or even a fat mallard, in a way to tickle the fancy of an imperial epicure. Diners desiring a feast of real terrapin usually went to Harvey's, because he kept a stock of the genuine Chesapeake Bay diamond-back in his cellar. There are plenty of things that pass for diamond-back among the uninitiated. A Pennsylvania terrapin may be had in large numbers; the "wild" of the South comes in to fill many gaps. But there is only one diamond-back, and upon it Harvey banked. All the tricks of the trade were known to Harvey. His wonderful skill could cause a dish of "slider" to pass almost anywhere for the real thing, should he choose to serve the imitation. But, when he promised to serve a patron with real diamond-back, the patron got diamond-back. The patron had to pay for it, for genuine diamond-backs are now almost as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth; but he had the satisfaction of knowing that upon the table before him was no skillful combination of spurious meat. Seekers for Harvey's restaurant were directed to the southeast corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Eleventh street. Within the walls of the rather modest-looking structure more history has been made than the public has thought. Men famous in the annals of European and American life have sat around the little tables in the upstairs and downstairs cafe and discussed national and international questions to the aroma of the celebrated steamed oysters, which first made this place famous, way back in the sixties. President Grant went there many a time, walking down Pennsylvania avenue from the White House. He always occupied the same seat, in the alcove of the second-floor dining room, and his regular order, a peck of steamed oysters and two bottles of Scotch ale, was rarely modified. When he had finished, the President would light a big cigar and saunter slowly up the avenue, nodding right and left to the people whom he met on his way to the White House. If one could but gather together all the illustrious men who have at one time or another partaken of the steaming oyster dishes and of other good things which Harvey always had to offer, what a notable assemblage it would be! Among them were Rutherford B. Hayes, Benjamin Franklin Butler, "Sunset" Cox. This was the favorite place for President Arthur, for the late William C. Whitney, Speakers Carlisle, Crisp, Henderson and Cannon. "Uncle Joe" can be seen frequently even at present enjoying a quiet dinner. Names which have been handed down in stage history were familiarly called over a dish of oysters in Harvey's many years ago. Edwin Forrest, John McCullough and Lawrence Barrett never played an engagement in Washington that they did not enjoy more than one after-theatre supper there, and in later days the familiar figure of Joseph Jefferson could be seen there. John Drew and Richard Mansfield are frequent visitors, and the lesser lights of the profession who could tell of the wonderful cuisine would number thousands. One of the most celebrated men who frequented Harvey's was the famous cartoonist, Thomas Nast. An amusing incident is related of Mr. Nast's first visit. He had been invited to attend one of the famous Canvasback Club dinners, and in the journey from New York Mr. Nast's dress-suit case disappeared. He had no more time than it would take to get to the hotel and to Harvey's, and so was compelled to go in his business suit. Later he sent Mr. Harvey a cartoon of himself "as he should have looked." With this was one of the genial host. These cartoons have since that time hung on the walls of the restaurant, and Harvey has been offered $1,000 apiece for them, but refuses to part with such interesting mementoes. When any one went to Mr. Harvey to arrange a dinner, the restaurateur was in his element. First on the list, of course, must be oysters, but the menu would not be complete without duck and terrapin. It was his delight to serve such a dinner, and the sauce was always of his own making. Harvey tells a good story on himself that happened when he was visiting abroad. "I was spending a little time in London," he said, "and one afternoon I sat in the smoking room of the hotel, when a man approached me and asked if I were not an American. I told him I was. 'Where do you come from?' the man asked. I told him I lived in Washington. 'Thereupon he invited me to dine with him that night, and I did. The man proved to be a United States Army officer, and during the dinner we chatted about Washington. 'By the way,' he said, 'there is a very famous restaurant there—noted for its steamed oysters. It is called Harvey's. Know anything about it?' I told him I knew the place very well, and, after he talked of some of the dinners he had eaten there, he said: 'It's a strange thing about that man Harvey. He's a victim of nervous indigestion, and is compelled to live on a diet. Sort of rough on him, when he's right in a business where the good things amount to full. He only weighs ninety pounds, and they tell me he's in such wretched health that the doctors can give him little encouragement.' 'That was news to me, and, when we parted for the night, he gave me his card, with a cordial invitation to be his guest again. I reached for my cardcase, and, when he looked at the little pastboard, he glared his eyes to the name, looked at me and, grasping my hand, said: 'Well, the laugh's on me this time, and we'll have that other dinner to-morrow night.'" Harvey weighs 280 pounds. The famous restaurant began its career in the days of President Franklin Pierce. Its first success, however, was achieved during the early days of the Civil War, when hundreds of soldiers were taken to the most delicious concoctions the force of chefs could make. Almost numberless bushels and millions of gallons of oysters went to feed the armies. Many changes were wrought by the war, but none more remarkable than that by which Harvey taught the American people to eat oysters. They had not known the real steamed oyster until he offered it to them. It was in 1850 that George W. Harvey and his [unclear] brother, Thomas M. Harvey, decided to establish an oyster house, a place which Washington had not, but which they knew would be successful. An old brick blacksmith shop at Eleventh and C streets, northwest, was selected, and the oyster house was formally opened. The place was directly opposite the Grand Theatre, which was then the most fashionable playhouse in Washington. The wit, beauty and fashion of the city gathered within the theatre, not only for the dramatic entertainments, but for balls and other entertainments given in exclusive social circles. This little, old shop was rented, cleaned and whitewashed to the queen's taste. In the middle of the floor was a huge iron cauldron, in which oysters were boiled; around the walls were booths where oysters were opened and served to order, and again there was a "raw" counter. And so it was that the famous house of Harvey came into being. Before Harvey's was opened, one saloon of oysters supplied Washington for two weeks. As business increased, other buildings were taken in, and in 1862-63 it required 500 boatloads of oysters a week and 300 men in Harvey's to attend to the business. So many troops were in an around Washington during wartime that Harvey soon realized that the oyster-boiling process was too slow, and a method of steaming was evolved. From this came the famous steamed oysters. In 1868 Mrs. Seward, wife of the then Secretary of State, wished to entertain at luncheon President and Mrs. Lincoln, and decided that steamed oysters should be the principal feature of the menu. The private office was placed at the disposal of the distinguished party, and the President said he had never enjoyed anything so much in his life. In 1866 Harvey's was moved to its present location Eleventh and Pennsylvania avenues. It is an imposing three-story brick building, with an inviting and suggestive air of comfort and good cheer. There never was a more genial host than Harvey himself, nor a better judge of the good things of the table. Good-natured as the day is long, ready with a hearty handshake to welcome every one who came in his place, and solicitous the best of attention, he was the ideal host. He laughingly relates how once he came near "firing" one of his old negro waiters. He had no thought of discharging the man, and, in fact, kept him longer than any other waiter he ever employed. One day a stranger came into the restaurant and ordered a steak. "I want a double porterhouse steak, John," the visitor explained, "and one that has been hanging just the right time. I want it four inches thick, and, mind you, have it tender and juicy. Cook it to a turn and serve it with mushrooms. I want the finest piece of beef in Washington." "Dead, boss, we ain't got no steak like dat. If we had, Marsa George Harvey would eat it himself."

They Used Dynamite as a Table Prop at a Poker Game

SMALL things of life often lead to tragic and far-reaching results. No one can tell where a chain of circumstances, started in the most inconsequential way, may end. It was at Mumfordsville, Ky., that three children of James Park met death while endeavoring to kill a bodbug. The little ones were in bed when they discovered the predatory insect. All were impelled by an impulse to kill it. Rising, they brought out the family oil can, and proceeded to pour its contents over the insect. This saturated part of the bed, and, in some way not explained, the ticking caught fire, the flames reaching the night clothing of Willis Park. In his terror the boy leaped in bed with his young brother and sister, and all three were either burned to death or suffocated by smoke. No one intended that dynamite should take a hand in a poker game that seemed to be in progress at the card table in order that a firmer playing basis might be established. It was only a small stick, and one of the players placed it under a leg of the card table in order that a firmer playing basis might be established.

Tried to Stop Two Fighting Girls and Was Stabbed to Death With a Hairpin.

When one of the players, in a moment of excitement, thumped the table a tremendous crack with his fist, something entirely unforeseen happened. The dynamite exploded, quite naturally. It blew a hole five feet wide through the floor, and, incidentally, took off the left arm of Michael Cox, one of the players. A lamp in the room was upset and set fire to the building. Within a short time the seventeen families occupying the four floors were in wild flight, fire engines were arriving and hundreds of spectators from the surrounding neighborhood had gathered at the scene. An unhappy experience befall Edward Ralston, of Eldersbridge, Pa., when he attempted to separate and bring peace to two quarrelling girls. They were spectators at a baseball game at which feeling ran high. When the struggle on the diamond was over the girl supporters of the defeated team attempted to take the colors away from the adherents of the victors. It was while trying to separate the two combatants that Ralston received a serious stab from a hairpin. The wielder of the weapon could not be found, and physicians stated that the injured man could not recover. From time to time since the days of Cain and Abel there have been family feuds and quarrels, and many have had tragic endings. It remained, however, for two men of Steubenville, Ohio, to give up their lives in a disagreement over the possession of pet cats. William Cox and his son-in-law, William Carney, were the men in question. The cats were just ordinary fence-climbing cats, but the fam-

While two boys of Butler, Pa., were experimenting with a toy steam engine it exploded, killing Oscar Otto and wounding Lewis Cooper. At Millville, N.J., an alleged aviator was apprehended because of the peculiar twitching of an eyelid. Victims among whom he had operated recognized him because of this physical peculiarity and caused his arrest. When the works of the Phoenix Powder Company, at East St. Louis, Ill., were blown up last spring, the explosion was traced to a little carpet tack that had become entangled in the cogwheels. Quarrelling over a tin can with which they had been "rushing the growler," a gang of men of Brooklyn, N.Y., started a fight. When it was over James McLean, leader of the gang, was found dead from a pistol shot, and Vincent Majowski, with the other members of the crowd, was locked up to await the finding of a jury. Ramsey Moore, of Beaver Falls, Pa., was driven insane by the monotonous noise of drills used in the work of street improvements in Philadelphia. Abraham Whistler, a prominent and wealthy farmer of Carlisle, Pa., was stung to death by bees released from a hive in his wagon when it was overturned by a rut in the road over which he was traveling. Because the sight of broad expanses of plate glass windows offended his eyes, John Grogan, of New York, broke eighteen such windows, valued at $3,600, while loitering past the Mercantile Building. Twenty-third street and Fourth avenue Grogan was arrested, hatchet in hand, while demolishing his eighteenth plate glass window. "I can't bear the sight of them," he explained to the Magistrate before whom he was taken. "I have no use for plate glass windows." This little idiosyncrasy promises to make it hard for Grogan.

THE TURE English Derby Was Won by a Ringer But Fraud Was Discovered.

The history of the turf contains many stories of fraud, but none more audacious and impudent than that associated with the Derby of 1844, which has been described as the most sensational race on record—at least in its developments.

The Derby of that year was won, as the records tell us, by "A. Wood's Running Hen, by the Saddler, out of Queen Mab, by Duncan Grey," ridden by Meen.

NINA AND SIR PERCIVAL.

By Mabel Niblo.

It was always a question whether Nina took Sir Percival for a walk or whether it was Sir Percival who took Nina through the by-ways of the park.

This afternoon Sir Percival had decided to take the path to the lake. Nina urged him to go over by the conservatory where the flowers were looking their best.

With a cry of dismay, Nina pulled at the leash, but the dog was too much for her to handle, and she was jerked from her feet and dragged over the rough carpet.

In an instant the young man was bending over her, while the dog fawned upon him and rendered more difficult his task of assisting her to her feet.

"If you are not badly hurt?" he said, anxiously. "Can I get you a cab? I believe there is a cab rank just outside the gate."
