"I shall stay till he is free," added. "I shall stay till he is free," added Lee. And with uneasy heart she crossed the bridge and walked on and on toward the cabin till she was close enough to detect the lines of care on her lover's haggard face. "Stop!" he called sharply. "Keep away! Why don't you obey me? Why don't you go back to the valley?" "Because I will now the same alone. 19c. each

"Because I will not leave you alon I can't! Please let me stay!" "I beg of you go back." "I beg of you go back."

The roar of the stream made it necessary, to speak loudly, and he could not put into his voice the tenderness he felt at the moment, but his face was knotted with pain as he asked, "Don't you see you add "to my unessiness—my paint."

"We've so emitous; about you," she answered. "It seems as though we should be doing something to help you."

He understood and was grateful for the tenderness which brought her so near to him, but he was forced to be

Eleanor has decided to take the children abroad for a couple of years, and as I am to be over there part of the time I don't feel justified in holding down the supervisor's position. I shall resign in your favor, Wait now!" he called warningly. "The district forester and I framed all this up as we rode down the hill yesterday, and it goes. Oh, yes, there's one thing more. Old man yes, there's one thing more. Old man Dunn"—

"How did you learn it?" "A reporter came boiling over the ridge about noon today wanting me to give him the names which Dunn had given me. I was strongly tempted to do as he asked me to-you know these newspaper men are sometimes the best kind of detectives for running down criminals—but on second thought I concluded to wait until I had discussed the matter with you. I haven't much faith in the county authorities." "Ordinarily I would have my doubts myself," replied Redfield, whole country is roused, and we're going to round up these men this time sure. The best men and the big papers all over the west are demanding an exercise of the law, and the re-ward we have offered"— He paused suddenly. "By the way, that reward will come to you if you can bring will come to you if you can bring about the arrest of the criminals."

"The reward should go to Dunn's family," replied the ranger soberly, "Poor chap, he's sacrificed himself for the good of the state."

"That's true. His family is left in bad shape"— Cavanagh broke off the conversation maddenia. "I must so heak to". He suddenly. "I must go back to"— He had almost said "back to Wetherford. "My patient needs me!" he exclaimed. "How does he seem?"

"He's surely dying. In my judg-pent he can't last the night, but so long as he's conscious it's up to me to be on the spot." Redfield walked slowly back across age of the ranger.

"It isn't the obvious kind of thing, but it's courage all the same," he said to himself. Meanwhile Lize and Virginia, left alone beside the fire, had drawn closer together.

The girl's face, so sweet and so pensive, wrought strongly upon the older woman's sympathy. Something of her own girlhood came back to her. Be-ing freed from the town and all its as-sociations, she became more considerate, more thoughtful. She wished to speak, and yet she found it very hard to begin. At last she said, with a touch of mockery in her tone, "You like Ross Cavanagh almost as well as remained steady. "I would not be here if I did not," she replied.

"Neither would I. Well, now, I hav got something to tell you—something ought to have told you long ago something that Ross ought to know. I intended to tell you that first day you came back, but I couldn't somehov get to it, and I kept putting it off till—well, then I got fond of you, and every day made it harder." Here she made her supreme effort. "Child, I'm an old bluff. I'm not your mother at

The girl's mind ran swiftly over the past as she listened. The truth of the revelation reached her instantly, explaining a bundred strange things which had puzzled her all her life, The absence of deep affection between herself and Lize was explained. Their hought—all became plain. "But my nother," she said at last—"who was my mother?" (To be Continuent):

Experienced naval authorities declared more than once there was not a training ship in the British navy better fitted for its purpose than the "Niobe." All the foolish chatter about ing lad. It was his brother, Alfred, who the "tin-pot navy" was greatly misplaced had tumbled off a log he was floating upsarcasm when applied to this vessel, for it utterly misrepresented the purpose for down twice before his elder brother, a which she was intended. They do not use powerful swimmer, seized him and towed Dreadnoughts for training ships in the him shore. Alfred was unconscious, but British or in any navy. Neither do they John Doerzaph, a high school student, who use the newest and most formidable battle-cruisers for this purpose. The British satior and officer receives his training course in smaller, obsolescent or obsolete vessels, in some cases antique wooden selling craft of the early Victorian age being used. There is probably not the superior of the "Niobe" in all the list of British training ships at the present time. Thus we ing ships at the present time. Thus we see that a vessel splendidly adapted for a floating school has been put out of commission on the infair plea that she is not fitted to take her place in the battle front. All that remains now is for Mr. Borden-to close up the other training school, the Naval College.

Naval College.

The presence of the "Niobe" here in Halifax has been a factor of no little importance in many ways. The officers, educated and intelligent men, were of course popular, and deservedly so, in social circles, among them being talented musicians who were always ready to Join with local taient in giving entertainments for various philanthrophic purposes. Popular sike were the "Joil years," for a better behaved body of men have aver served on this tation. The year's pay for the crews has amounted to about $174,000, the principal part of which was spent here. The average total year's expenses came to over $462,000, the greater portion of which was expended in this place. In the year 1912 alone, the bild of one local batcher came to $2,525; a hardware bill was $4,634, a groover's bild, 30,340, and as econd meet bill was $4,140, while the Dominion Coal Company solin early $23,000 worth of coal to the vessel. But the ship goes out of commission. No more meet, grocery and coal supplies to be purchased; young Canadians ambitious to enter the navais service at home have no longer any opportunity of so doing; and old countrymen are turned out of their positions without, in most cases, the becessary cash to provide them with a ticket to return home.

But if Mr. Borden and the other leaders of the present temporary Administration imagine for a moment that this is the end of the policy of a Canadian Navy, they are vastly mistaken. The Liberal party are committed to that policy, and whenever they come into power the policy will be arrived forward to its completion.

Get to work again.

The "Toronto Globe" gives some good advice to Canadians, which it would be well for every oue to act upon a thighing the past five years to the blowing of financial soap bubbles. There are thousands of canadians has been devoded during the past five years to the blowing of financial soap bubbles. process and passed from "savers" to "spenders," and must have been in no small degree dissipated in luxurious living—there have been vast aums sunk in public works and services such as rallways that have not yet begun to earn interest on the money invested. The interest must as yet be met either by supplementary borrowings or out of the proceeds of other wealth-profineting industries.

This triple burden, the carrying of unproductive real estate, of inflated industries securities, and of public services that have not yet been sufficiently developed to carry themselves—is not beyond the strength and the resources of the Canadian people if they will get down to work again, to hard, steady, wealth-producing work, on the farm, in the mine, in the forest, and in the factory. In the Studio, the results of the year's work in the Art Department were exhibited, and, as usual, bore ample testimony to the proficiency of the teacher and the faithful correspondence on the part of the faithful correspondence on the paint pupils.

Among the many beautiful oil paintings, the most attractive was a tapestry, the work of Miss Lillian Flanagan.

The water color studies displayed much artistic talent on the part of the young lady pupils. The two panel plotues by Miss Frances Mahan are especially worthy of mantion. of mention.

The subjects in charcoal by Miss Greta Ogle are the successful results of much persevering work and show that younglady to be the happy possessor of decided talent for the artistic.

The variety of daintily decorated chinaware was a great attraction to the lady visitors.

ARTICLE V.

In Previous Talks We Showed How Coal, Freights And Marine Insurance All Have A Bearing On The Cost Of Anthracite.

Another feature is the difference in cost of delivery as between the Spring-Summer period and the Autumn-Winter period. With good roads and an all-daylight working day, more work and better work at less cost can be done by Storemen, Drivers and Horses during the former period than in the price and we ask our late Fall and Winter, when days are short customers to give us and the "going" at times exceedingly bad. their orders and allow Coal delivered at a low rate cheapens the us to make deliveries cost to the Consumer. This is one more before the price ad-reason why Coal is low in Summer and vances which is certain higher in Winter. Another reason, also, for Consumers to purchase early. Besides, dealers can give their customers better attention and greater satisfaction as regards deliveries and the condition of the Coal which they send out during the Summer months than they can during the "rush" periods of Autumn and Winter.

and "Cap of Life." In all his sympathetic tenor was effective, the audience voicing cordial appreciation.

Miss Edna Cotter, who possesses a very sweet colorature soprano, was very charming in three numbers, two songs and an aria "Chausson Provinciale."

Miss Mabel K. Sanford gave with pleasing effect, "A Tear from Heaven," with violin obligato charmingly rendered by Mrs. Affleck.

Mr. Fritz Schaefer, who was in splendid volce, was heard in a group, the last number being the popular "Vulcan's Song," to which he did full justice.

Miss Hildred Jones sang in charming style Gounod s beautiful aris, "Lend me your Ald." At the conclusion the number was enthusiastically ensored, but as encores were not permitted the audience had to be content with the singer's graceful acknowledgement of their appreciation.

Miss Dorothy Brockfield was very sweetly heard in two pleasing numbers, "The River of Life" and "Laughing Valley." In the latter song Miss Brockfield was particularly effective and received generous applause.

Miss Elia Courtney sang with superbeffect the magnificent aria, "Ahl d'estitud ancor," and again delighted the house in a group of songs, a duet with Mr. S. Farley, and in the contralto obligato of the motette. "The Three Kings." Miss Court-

Miss Courtney was in charming voice last night, her rendition of the aria "brought down the house," so to speak, while each song number received distinct appreciation, especially after the singer's exquisite interpretation of "Little Boy Blue."
Mr. S. Farley sang in pleasing style two songs, "The Crown," and "Trinacria's Isla."

Where To Buy Your Meats The Coming Summer.

In the winter months when all the markets are cold and the dus ir not so prevalent on the streets, cleanliness is not so, difficult to secure as during the summer months. It's about now that particular people look more carefully into the matter of cleanliness and decide where they are going to buy their meats during the summer months.

We want you to come here and let us show you just how we are fitted up in this respect—concrete floors that are washed up, not swept, refrigerators so arranged that meats can be run in when not being out, and all other modern sanitary methods and conveniences pire's Most Amating Veterans. The recent arrival in England of ir Charles Tupper, the veteran anadian statesman, utraishes a ondon Daily Chronicle writer with ome interesting reflections that London Daily Chronicle writer with some interesting reflections that now, more than ever, it is the day of the old man with vitality.

Sir Charles Tupper is, at ninety-one, still hale and hearty. He carries memory back a long way, for he is the sole survivor of the "Fathers of Confederation," as the framers of the Constitution of Canada, the men who weled the scattered provinces of British North America into of the Constitution of Canada, the men who welded the scattered provinces of British North America into a new nation, are called.

"The first time I came to England was in 1840," said Sir Charles, when he arrived in London recently, after making his sixty-fourth trip across the Atlantic. "I crossed the Atlantic in a brigantime of 180 tons, and we were forty days getting from St. John to Lough Foyle."

In the ranks of the veterans one of the most interesting figures is Sir George Birdwood. He attributes his long life "to a certain playful devilry of spirit, a ceaseless militancy, quite suffragettic, so that when I left the India Office I declared I would live another ten years instead of one, which was all an insurance society told me I was worth." His extraordinary amount of knowledge on out of the-way subjects, which earned him in India the fitting nickname of "Dictionary Birdy," has not put him out of love with life, and at eighty-one he declares that the old man of vitality is the youngest man in the world.

Lord Wemyss, at ninety-four, is perhaps the most astonishing of the Old Guard, which, like Napoleon's veteran corps, may die, but never surrenders. At eighty he could produce a fine piece of statuary; at ninety-two he could play an excellent game of golf and drive his own motor-car. Lord Wemyss is the only legislator now living who sat in the temporary building which was erect game of golf and drive his own motor-car. Lord Wemyss is the only legislator now living who sat in the temporary building which was erected after the old House of Commons was burned down, and utilized while the present House was being built.

With Lord Wemyss must be bracketed Lord Halsbury. At eighty-seven he still enjoys life. He will never regard himself as old emough to do nothing. His secret of long life is, perhaps, that he has never given up work, and to-day he often puts in as hard a day as anyone in the legal world At eighty-five he found that he was just young enough to begin the great work of reducing the whole of the law of England into a handy and complete work of twenty volumes. He is a believer intearly rising, hates tobacco, and has never touched it all his life. He never went to school, yet he reached the highest position open to his profession. J. D. CHIPMAN, C. P. and F. Agent

No More True St. Bernards The Hospice of St. Bernard has lost much of its former importance through the opening of the tunnels between Switzerland and Italy, but through the opening of the tunnels between Switzerland and Italy, but it still employs its famous dogawrites a correspondent.

It is no longer the custom, however, to send forth the dogs with baskets of food and wine; a man always accompanies them; and the animals employed are not really of the famous St. Bernard breed. The true St. Bernard originated in the fourteenth century through a cross between a shepherd dog from Wales and a Scandinavian cross-breed, half Great Dane and half Pyrenean mastiff. The last pure descendant of the tribe was buried beneath an avalanche in 1816.

Those who wish to see a true St. Bernard dog may do so in the Natural History Museum at Berne, where the stuffed body of the tamous Barry is preserved. A popular story has it that Barry, having gone to the rescue of a traveler, was mistaken by the man for a wolf, and shot as such; but he seems really to have died in the course of nature at Berne, nearly a hundred years ago. There is plenty of St. Bernard blood left, however, crossed with other strains, and the fame of the breed can never perish.

One of the happiest compliments sver paid to Gladstone was Lord Houghton's.

"I haven't seen you for ages. I live the life of a dog," said the hardworking statesman.

"Yes," said Lord Houghton, "of a working statesman.

"Yes," said Lord Houghton, "of St. Bernard, the savior of men."

When Arnold Bennett Forgot. Arnold Bennett, says The Daily Sketch, loves to be taken for a Paris-ian. He knows his Paris well, and ian. He knows his Paris well, and has written of her magic nights. At luncheon one day, in a little resturant just off the Boulevard des Italiens, he asked a friend of mine: "If you didn't know, would you take me for an Englishman?" "Of course," replied his companion, eyeing him maliciously over his wine glass. "More than that, I could name your county —Staffordshire!" "What in the world makes you say that?" inquired the mortified nowelist. "Deduction, my dear Watson, deduction," crowed my friend; "every time the waiter brings you a plate automatically you lift it and turn it over to see the 'pot mark'—the maker's imprint." -the maker's imprint.

"—And may the Lord have mercy on those who lost their money to-night. Amen," it concluded. The Shackleton and Scott expeditions in search of the South Pole have shown that large quantities of coal exist in the Antarctic continent. The deposits are very extensive, and Australian experts who have examined the coal pronounce it of good quality ity.
It is hard to grasp the climatic changes indicated by this discovery. Coal is a vegetable deposit. It is the preserved and buried carbon of growing plants. Yet here it is found in wast amounts in a land covered with ice that seems eternal; a country compared to which southern Greencompared to which southern Greenland is hospitable and mild.

Long before this supply will be needed other things than coal will probably be turning the wheels of our factories. Men now living may see the tides of the Bay of Fundy harnessed and put to work and the sunshine falling on our southwestern deserts, perform more labor than even our output of coal.

But it piles tragedy on tragedy to think of Capt. Scott and his men freezing and starving, with food only 11 miles away, and coal almost under Got Pork Monopoly. Rather a curious piece of news comes from Shivegyin in Burn.a, In-dia. A Mahomedan bid at an auction at Shwegyin for the right to vend pork in the bazaar, and, the Chinese having agreed not to go beyond certain figure, the pork monopol was knocked down to a Mohamm was knocked Jown to a Mohammedan. His co-religionists are very indignant over the matter, and have held a meeting to consider what step should be taken. Apparently, it is not known in Burma that Mohammedan servants in European houses in Calcutta have not the slightest objection to handling pork, and that there are Mohammedan pork butchers as well in the city.
