Professor Hutton of Toronto Declares Writing Is Expression of Personal Revolt.

Professor Hutton of Toronto University in the first meeting of the season, addressed the Literary Soclety of the University of Western Ontario last night on "Some Conhe did with the reaction of the artist Buchanan, general manager. in words against the truths of everyday life.

"All literature," said the lecturer "is the expression of the writer's personal revolt against the world as he finds it in life. Plato regarded literature as the expression of the senting ment and ression and feeling of life. ment and passion and feeling of life, and accordingly condemned it, be-cause it clashed with his ideas on the conduct of life solely by reason. Reason For Writing.

"First of all, why does anyone write? Many men of note in Europe consider that literature is just a safety valve, whereby the writer gets rid of his superfluous energy and reaction against the world, and that having got rid of it, is enabled to go his way once more in his right senses. That is a bit hard on the writer I admit, but I do think that much writing is little more than a printed revolt against conditions over which which the writer has no control.

"The only writing worth while is that which is done to please oneself, and written in the Dickens fashion for his own enjoyment. Dickens when he wrote Pickwick Papers and others of his hooks sat back in his den and of his books sat back in his den and roared with laughter at some of the extraordinary positions of his characters, and when his public came to the same place, they caught the infection and joined in the mirth. Literature Is Conspiracy.

"But only the happy and the young and the ardent can write like this, and so I say that literature is a conspiracy of youth and happiness against the hard facts of life, and that the intellectual with his supreme intellect and his absolute lack of intimacy with everyday life and its facts only adds to the great conspiracy.

KEEPING CHILDREN BRING COURT FINE Attendance Officer Points to

Possibility of Parents Summoned.

PETTY EXCUSES

Now that the school year has well advanced steps will be taken by the attendance department of the board of education to insure the full attendance at school of all children under 16 years, with the exception of those exempted under the adoescent act.

This morning Marcus Sims, attendance officer, stated that although the attendance was considered excellent, there was, nevertheless, a number of students who stayed away from school on petty excuses. While these were accepted it was felt that they were not valid enough in many cases.

According to Mr. Sims there are very few parents in the city who realize that there is a penalty attached to keeping their children home from school except in cases of necessity. This runs from $5 for a first offense to a maximum of $20 for subsequent infractions. The parents can be summoned to court to explain why the child is not at school, and already several have been fined. In other cases a heart to heart talk with the parents is tried, the officer pointing out that the child must attend school until his circumth his cir until his sixteenth birthday.

Mr. Sims mentioned that in England, except in the case of real sickness, the parent of a child who stayed away from school was fined seven ed away from school was fined seven shillings six pence per day for the absence. In this country there is no per diem fine, but a lump sum.

Referring to the adolescent act, Mr. Sims stated that many parents thought that because their children were in their sixtanth year they were were in their sixteenth year they were exempt from attendance. This was not the case, as the act states speci-fically that the child must have reached the sixteenth birthday. He pointed out also that attendance at night school did not constitute attendance under the act.

The taxpayers of Canada, progress in that direction. He called Lord Askwith was told, were, if anyone, those were entitled to a compassionate allowance. Canada had taken over the road to prevent it going into bankruptcy. The Can-adian people were meeting heavy ailway deficits, and while it was not paying it was very unlikely that the Canadian parliament or the Canadian people would look favorably on granting a compassionate allowan the Grand Trunk shareholders. In taking over the Grand Trunk, Canada had not acquired a profitable enterprise, Lord Askwith was told, but a burden and a liability.

Lord Askwith asked if in the event of the Grand Trunk ever being in a position to pay a dividend the claim of the junior stockholders would be ecognized. The Grand Trunk stockholders, it was stated, would be well advised to hold their stock. Then, if the time

City Fire Loss In Oct. $7,000

The report of the London fire department for the month of October, as compiled by Fire Chief John Aitken, shows that the department was called to fifteen fires and one chimney fire, with an attending loss of $7,000. Fifteen calls were received by elephone and one from a fire alarm box. The largest blaze of the month was at the Campbell knitting factory on King street October 20, where the damage was estimated at $5,000.

The fire loss for the month was practically the same as that of September, Chief Aitken stated.

Company for the purchase of certain property at the foot of Dundas street, skirting the river front has been completed and all discussion in this connection at the last session of the city council was decidedly out of order and unnecessary, Mayor Wenige announced today.

Since the meeting of the council the mayor has considered all the minutes of the council in this respect and finds that the aldermen have already authorized the purchase of the land and its subsequent sale again to the Penman Company.

As a matter of fact, Mayor Wenige states, the deal has gone through. The land has actually been purchased by the city and again sold to the Penman Company.

"Has any money changed hands?" he was asked.

"Has any money changed hands?" "Everything has been done," replied the mayor. "The property and money have exchanged hands. The deal is completed. There is no need for further action. Turks In Dire Straits. Meanwhile the activities of the British submarines in the Marmora had almost entirely severed the sea communications of the Turkish army, and were also impeding their supply by the roads along the Marmora shore. To meet this peril, which had been approaching flainly, steadily and rapidly during the last two or three months, the German staff had built a new branch railway from the main Turkish system to Kayak at the head of the gulf of Kayak at the head of the gulf o to Kavak at the head of the guir of Xeros. This had been finished in the nick of time, and as the sea transport failed, it became the sole line of supply, relief or reinforcement for the twenty Turkish divisions on the peninsula. From the new railhead at Kavak all transport was by bullock wagon or camel along roads across the Bulair Isthmus which was frequently disturbed by the fire of the fleet. On December 2, Admiral Wemyss succeeded in destroying the three central spans of the Kavak bridge by fire from the Agamemmon, Endymion, and a monitor. The road was also so badly broken by the bombardment that wheeled traffic was completely interrupted. The Turkish 5th army was now in serious straits. which was frequently disturbed

That Final Veto. That Final Veto.

On August 18 the admiralty had telegraphed to Admiral de Robeck authorizing and implicitly urging him to use the old battleships of the fleet to force the Dardanelles, and Admiral de Robeck had declined. When the admiralty was willing the admiral was unwilling. Now the conditions were reversed. On December 10 the same board of admiralty replied that they were not prepared to authorize the attempt by the navy single-handed to force the narrows. This sombre veto was final.

The risks that men are prepared to run in relation to circumstance present some of the strangest manipresent some of the strangest manifestations of psychology. One tithe of the hardihood they display to escape disaster, would often certainly achieve success. Contrast, for intsance, the alternative hazards now presented to the British government and admiralty: on one hand, the chance, even the probability according to all expert opinion, of losing 40,000 men in an evacuation, which, if successful could only result in the total loss of the campaign; on the other, the chance of losing a squad-

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturely and evenly that nobody can tell has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.—Advt.

FOUND IN OLD HOUSE

When the University of Western Ontario fits out its museum, for which many Londoners are carefully hoarding various objects of interest and value, there will be a red and blue pennant and a little painted cross from Northern Russia ready to grace its walls. The history of the flag, which is in the possession of C. V. Walters of 420 Nelson street, is part of the story of the Canadian expeditionary force in Europe in the years of the war.

Mr. Walters, who was a sergeant in the C. F. A., was one of the 16th Brigade, who sailed from England on Sept. 19, 1918, for Archangel. Accompanied by a detachment of the Royal Scots, who, by the way were mostly B class men, and a detachment of American troops, the Canadians having reached Archangel, proceeded to travel up the Dwina River on barges, towed by tugs. The Bolshevist was the man they were after, and for ten months they met him in a series of engagements, inflicting defeats on him with more of less regularity until in June of 1919. Together with his battery, he was moving down the river banks, when an old storehouse, standing all alone in its emptiness, was noticed, and on investigation, found to contain nothing but this flag rolled up in a bundle and tossed in a corner.

Offered To University.

Sergeant Walters picked it up as a curiosity, and it now hangs on his walls as a memento of his Russian trip and his scraps with the Bolshvist, or the 'Bolo' as the battery called them. He decided that a plain wall is hardly a fitting place for the pennant and has accordingly offered it to the university for its new museum. Col. W. J. Brown, executive secretary of the university, has been collecting all sorts of things for this museum for a long time and such an interesting war relic is sure to appeal to his fancy. The flag itself is a long V shaped pennant, the broad end being divided lengthways into two red and blue strips. The tail of the pennant is a white background hearing a blue anchor and an axe crossed. The whole flag is about seven feet long. Mr. Walters believes it seven feet long. Mr. Walters believes it to be one of the old Russian naval flags, and not belonging to the Bolsheviks, whose flags when they used them were of the red flag order. In the Walters home are other relies of war days which he will probably keep at home for his own interest. There is one of those great curved Cossack cavalry swords, a long heavy weapon attached to a leather sword belt, very much like the ordinary Canadian Sam Browne. the ordinary Canadian Sam Browne.

The other rather unusual memento is a little painted wooden cross inscribed with texts in Russian. When

When the Canadian troops were leaving for England, a little chap in one of the villages gave it to Mr. Walters as a last gift to the stranger who had come to his aid, for he was a child of the d Russian rarty. Being a Mother-in-Law Is a Career, Not a Joke-And the Sooner She Is Put in the Favored Class With One's Own Mother, the Better.

An altruistic and optimistic woman has headed a movement to can all W. humor appertaining to and concerning mothers-in-law. She proposes to put the lid down good and hard on all the side-splitting quips and cynical come-backs about the wife's mother—for

Why the mother-in-law should ever have appeared to anyone as a figure of fun is a mystery past finding out. Probably the man who first set the ball of humor rolling in her direction saw in her a tragic creature about whom we must either laugh or cry, and he chose laughter as the better alternative. That is why the jokes about mother-in-law have always such a salt and bitter taste to them. They are flavored with tears.

Nor does anyone know why the wife's mother should be the one to b articularly held up to ridicule, and to have her little eccentricities made to furnish mirth for the populace, while the husabnd's mother has escaped unlibeled. In the funny column of the newspaper, in the comic strip, in the farce on the stage, it is always the wife's mother who is lampooned. It is always the wife's mother who arrives with innumerable trunks, and bundles, and boxes, and a parrot, and a mangy dog, to pay an unexpected visit, and it is at the demise of his wife's mother that the son-in-law, yet visit, and it is at the demise of his wife's mother that the son-in-law, yet women know the worst of the mother-in-law proposition. Even the man who is most fed up with his mother-in-law has had to stand little of her peculiarities, and ways, and whims, compared with what the woman has to endure who lives with her mother-in-law. The virago mother-in-law of men is mostly a myth, but with women she is often an actuality.

Of their scattered nation. And they were finding their inspiration for a new Poland in essays and letters written secretly one hundred years ago and buried during an outbreak against a little band of students, which was at that time struggling for their scattered nation. And they were finding their inspiration for a new Poland in essays and letters written secretly one hundred years ago and buried during an outbreak when is mostly a myth, but with women she is often an actuality.

As a matter of fact, women are anxious to get their daughters married, and they are disposed to welcome their sons-in-law with open arms, and to love and spoil them if they will let them. Any man with half a grain of tact in his system, and a bit of jolly on his tongue, can make his mother-in-law his abject slave and worshipper if he will take the trouble to do so.

But women do not want their sons to marry. They resent their daughters-in-law, and hate them, sight unseen. Their backs are up, and they are ready to scratch the eyes out of the interlopers who have taken their sons from them. And so it takes a woman with the patience of Job, and the wisdom of Solomon, and the diplomacy of a Talleyrand, to win over her mother-in-law, and make a friend

The divorce courts credit the mother-in-law with being the captain of the home-wrecking crew. The judges of the Domestic Relations Court say that in most of the cases of domestic infelicity that come before them, the mother-in-law is at the bottom of the trouble. They say that when a young couple gets married, and goes off to live alone, that they kiss and make up after their little squabbles, and finally live together in peace and harmony, but that when the mother of either one of the newlyweds makes her hon with them, and takes a hand in their fights, that the end is in sight. The dove of peace utters a loud piercing moan of despair, and flaps away to parts unknown at mother's arrival.

Perhaps human nature, and especially woman nature, will have to be made over before this state of affairs can be changed, is most human for the mother who has borne a child, who has given it her very heart's blood, who has spent years sacrificing to it, to be filled with an instinctive jealousy of the stranger who is loved better than she is, who is put before her, who is closer to her son or daughter than she has ever been.

It is also human for a mother to be incapable of holding the scales of justice even when her child's desires conflict with those of another. It is human that a mother should think that her own daughter's husband should indulge her in every extravagance, while her son's wife should be a model of thrift, and do her own housework, and make her own clothes.

And it's very human, and very, very feminine for every mother to think that she has a right to run her married children's houses, and to load them

Poland. and risked the name of "traitor" in doing it.

"However, after Paderewski had been president of the cabinet for six months, it become evident that he knew no more about statesmanship than a child. It also became evident that Madame Paderewski thad the leave that she has a right to run her married children's houses, and to load them that she has a right to run her married children's houses, and to load them down with advice, and put her finger in every pie, even though she knows perfectly well that the price of doing so makes her in-laws gnash their teeth, and wish her in Jericho.

So the in-laws deride her. Yet they are strangely silent about one thing: There are no good stories about the times when there is sickness in the house, or need, and when a hurry call is sent out for mother-in-law who never fails to answer the summons. Those are the-times when mother-in-law doesn't look like a humorous subject. She looks like a ministering angel, and the man to whose rescue she comes when there's an ill wife, and a crying baby, and no cook, and chaos reigns, doesn't see anything to laugh at in her grizzled, scant hair. It appears to him like the halo of a saint.

Being a mother-in-law is a career in itself. But it isn't a joke.

in the same favored class with one's own mother, so to speak.

Thus is another insidious blow aimed at our personal liberties, for if we may not make merry at what we choose, what freedom is left us? Also it takes the bread out of the mouths of many honest and hardworking jokesmiths and vaudevillians, for since time immemorial the gibe at mothers-in-law has been their main stock in trade, and the one sure thing that they could depend upon as a laugh-getter.

"I am sure that the whole trouble with Germany in 1914 was that the people were obsessed with an idea of a short cut to bring about the Kingdom of God in the world," reclared W. J. Rose of Poland, in an eloquent address before the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon. "I believe that the same thing obsesses the Bolsheviks today. They have not the patience to wait. They do not realize that they are but part of a great whole, all of which must work together in harmony to this great end. And they break out into something rash, which defeats their end."

Mr. Rose, who is a Canadian, has spent a great many years working among the students of Poland and has come to the city in connection with the Students' Christian Move-

During the course of his address he traced the historic struggles of the Polish people to find freedom for themselves and their countrymen. Here and there throughout the pages of Polish history were names of men whose passion for their country and its eventual rise to a place among the nations of the earth was something almost fanatical.

Poland in the War.

He told of the story of Poland's unfortunate part in the war, how brother had often to fight against prother. And now how the people were trying to gather up the reins were trying to gather up the reins of their scattered nation. And they freedom and called itself "The Lovers of Knowledge."
The big problem in Poland today was the problem of education. If peace in Europe prevailed, it would take until 1942 before Poland could hope to have schools established in the land, in which every boy and girl could receive an education.

The speaker mentioned the big place which Paderewski had played in the new Poland. How, when the late war was ended, he was asked by a conservative group of Poles, which had been trying to govern the country from Paris, to go to Poland and establish a democracy there. Paderewski left America for this purpose, succeeded in getting himself smug-yled into Poland and was received with a great outburst of national feeling. The Germans remaining were literally pushed out of hte coun-

Won Name of "Traitor."

"When he got there, however Paderewski was big enough to realize that a coalition of forces was the only thing for Poland. So he took the hand of the leader of the radical party and consented to form a coalition government. He did this realizing that by it he would stir the Paris Conservative party to a blind fars Conservative party to a blind fury again him. They had sent him to Poland to establish their government there and he had failed them, But by acting as he did he accomplished the biggest thing he could for Poland, and risked the name of traitor in doing it.

"And so Paderewski had to leave the office of president. And perhaps, who knows (this humorously) that if It had not been for Madame Paderew-ski he might have been president of

Dufferin Hall was the scene of one of the jolliest of the Halloween parties last evening ,when the girls of the London Life Club held a mas-

Shaded lights, with black cats and Shaded lights, with black cats and ghosts hovering about, lent a spooky atmosphere to the rooms, and the evening's program commenced with a number of games and stunts. Later a promenade of the masqueraders was held, and the judging of the many attractive and humorous costumes took place, Miss Verna Osgoode and Miss Bertha Sutton acting as judges. The prize for the most artistic costume was awarded to Miss Pearl Yake, who represented Cleopatra, and Miss Edith Jones, dressed as a farmer, won the prize for the humorous costume.

An interesting feature was the reading of the initial edition of the club paper, "The Buzzer." The editors of this clever paper, which records the activities of the club life, are as follows: Miss Kathleen England, managing editor; Miss Jennie Fidler, honorary editor; personal column, Miss Adamena Webster; Seen and Heard column, Misses Agnes Aikenheard column, Misses Agnes Aikenheard (Helen Sevalwell and Helen Nichol; poetry, Miss Evelyn Greer; sport, Miss Norma Springett; Health and Beauty hints, Miss Lotta Fiasher; jokes, Miss Vera Gee. And moving about the gay rooms was the gay throng of girls, all in masquerade costumes, and in so great numbers that the "Y" seemed to be bursting its walls in an effort to accommodate them all. Even the fireplaces were not for-

There are some charming varia-tions of the conventional shade that may be used in bathrooms and livingrooms. But before I speak of these I would like to say that the only shades for the bedroom are the practical dark ones. There are shades that come in two tones, white on the inside and dark outside, which should appeal to those who do not like a appeal to those who do not like a dark green ar blue shade. It is necessary above all that it be possible to keep the light out of the room in which one sleeps. Naturally I am speaking of the room one offers to a guest, for one's own room de pends upon individual taste.

Glazed Chintz Blind.

For the bathroom a glazed chintz of a gay design is often very charm-ing and if one is interested in picking up odd pieces of this material, this is one amusing way of using them. A few years ago I ran across a charming piece of old glazed chintz that was so tempting in price that I couldn't resist it in spite of the fact that I could think of no room in which it would go. Then I thought of my bathroom. I found that I had just enough to make shades. I put them up unlined with a narrow blue fringe along the bottom, the blue matching the blue in the design, and they look so lovely with the sun shining through them that I can never bear to roll them all the way odist Church, two dozen doughnuts; Mrs. H. THEY HAD THE TIME. Citizen regrets that Brittain report the cause of another flare-up in civic matters. Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir.—Just a word in regard to what I consider another fiasco. Representative businessmen in the city joined in the request that the exrts from the Citizens' Research Bureau should be engaged to come to London and conduct a survey into the administration of certain civic departments. Whether these departments were in such shape that a survey was required, or whether the city got value for the money expended, does not enter into the present phase of the question. The regretable fact is that, after the Brittain report was received and forwarded to the city council, a majority of the aldermen casually voted to send it over to 1924 for the consideration of their successors in office, putting up what seems to me a lame excuse that they did not have time to give it the attention its importance demanded.

HE PUZZLES THE SCIENTISTS

RAFAEL SCHERMANN. The name of Rajael Schermann in Vienna and all Central Europe is as widely known as the name of Sherlock Holmes. Until recent despatches announced Schermann's coming to America early in November, few had heard of his amazing powers, which are well recognized in Europe. The achievements of Schermann, a Polish citizen, in his adopted city of Vienna, have aroused the curiosity of scientists and police officials. During his stay in United States Schermann will give demonstrations before various scientific bodies, and may be employed in connection with hitherto unsolved criminal musteries.

Lizzie, oppressed with guilt and fright, watched in sulky obstinacy. Now the teams spurted into her eyes and she began to cry!

"I don't care! He had no right to bite me. He hurt me, he did. Look, the small red mark, but none of the children would speak to her.

Jimmy covered up the hole: Katy stuck daises all around the edge, made a little mound in the center and dotted that with daises.

When she looked up, Denny, his lips trembling said the two figures sprang apart. Aunt Josie opened the door.

"Where is he?" "I said he's gone, didn't I?" Suddenly Katy began to sob loudly: "En he ain't comin' back."

Aunt Josie dropped the spoon into the pot of baked beans, her broad cheeks growing white. "Violet" she said in a low plea, "go and look for Denny."

Denny had no idea where he was going or what he might do. He ran wildly for three or four blocks, then he went along dragging his feet, too wretched even to stop the tears that tickled as they ran into the corners of his mouth.

He thought he would keep walking and walking until finally he died. For a while he didn't think, an abrupt pang shivered ump for the morsel of gingersnap heard Lizzie's frantic scream, then the new collar and Uncle Matt dragging Jerry into the basement.

"He's breathin'. Can yet hear him, Jimmy?" Denny's hands went gently about Jerry's neck. He tried to open his mouth and force down the water Katy brought. Then in a wild desperation they stood Prince Jerry on his feet.

"No use!" Denny's chin doubled up.

"Tain't no use, Gwan away, Katy. Jerry's dead. He's dead, too!"

It was, a long time before Katy dared to speak. Then she edged against his cheek.

"Doncher cry, Denny. Doncher do it. Maybe we'll get another dog."

That was the worst thing she could have said. Denny shook her off. But she went sneaking upstairs and came back quickly.

"Here, Denny, you can bury him in this." It was Katy's treasure—a little doll's trunk about half as big as Prince Jerry. Denny was putting leaves and grass into an old fruit box.

"Wouldn't fit!" He went on tufting the leaves. Jimmy Foley helped him lift Jerry into the box.

The covering was the hardest part. Denny knelt there, his tears raining on Prince Jerry's nose. Then he lifted the dog out, held him quite a while. Finally he let Jimmy nail on the cover, and set the box in the hole they had dug.

"We looked everywhere, ma. Didn't ween was us, was the proken gate, hiding in the saw the bright bow in her head, then her face indistinct yet haunting. When she looked up, Denny, his lips trembling, said brokenly: "Bye, Katy."

Terror flew like a wild bird to Katy's young heart, her tears dropped faster. She caught his hand.

"Where you goin'. Denny? It's supper time now. Where you goin'?"

That's all right, Katy. I'm goin'. Aunt Josie was calling. Denny ran out the alleyway gate. Katy, mute with awe, leaned on the little trowel, then she flung it down, darted after him. There was no sign of Denny when she reached the street. Trembling with the momentous tragedy, she went to the kitchen.

"Call Denny," her aunt said with the more reproach at him and he said half aloud: "Gee, didn't yer know that?"

That time there was no doubt about it. She was crying.

As soon as Jimmy was gone Denny ran up and caught his aunt's billowing skirt. Seeing who it was, she started, clapped her big hand over her face. But she held fast to his shoulder. All at once she said:

"Come home. Denny. Poor child!"

Aunt Josie stooped down, her dress trailing in the wet street, and kissed him. He felt kind toward her, not thinking of her coarse lips.

Nearly all night—so it seemed—Denny lay awake listening to the rain rattling on the tin roof, watching a strip of torn wall paper twisting in the wind that whistled through the broken pane. Sometimes he imagined Prince Jerry, I couldn't help it. Gee, didn't yer know that?"

They claim that Edouard Horemans, the Belgian, is the greatest billiard player in the world—in practice. That goes for so many athletes in so many lines of sport—the lack of being there when it comes to the pinch.

While London basketball bodies are getting together, in other places the players are getting together, and it's the latter who win games.

That match between Floyd Johnson and Jack Renault should be really good bout. Floyd Johnson has all the courage and fighting spirit in the world. When he first came into prominence he looked as if he might be a great fighter. They say that his early successes went to his head a little and that he got to the point where he was unwilling to take advice from those who knew more about the game than he did. This isn't anything remarkable if it is true. Johnson is a young fellow and success is a heady wine. But we like his courage. His defeat by Willard-which was in a large part due to poor headwork-didn't discourage him. In fact it may have helped him in some ways.

Jack Renault is a queer fighter. He seems to have plenty of courage and sometimes he fights like a champion. At other times he has put up such disgraceful exhibitions that a referee has ordered him out of the ring. Londoners saw something of this spirit when he boxed his exhibition with the world's champion at Port Stanley two years ago. There was, however, some justification for his attitude then. He was working at so much a day, boxing as many as eight rounds per day and eating and sleeping at irregular hours, and, moreover, wasn't paid to be too good.

Sentiment aside, he filled the last part of the bill, local fans thought.

Bert Walker, Detroit Times venerable sporting writer, says:

"After having been tendered the job as president of the Mint League, unantmous vote of the directors the other day, President T. J., Halligan refused to take it unless the term be made three years instead of one. He argues that the affairs of the league cannot be properly administered when the officers of the league are changed from year to year, as it takes more than a year for a man to get his system working properly. "This sounds reasonable. Other leagues continue their officers in office for years. Ban Johnson, for instance, is the only president the American League has ever had and it is more than 20 years old. He not only has been president all these years, but he is secretary and treasurer as well, and his league has been remarkably successful

"Harry Dayton, writing in the Flint Journal, advocates the retention of Mr. Halligan for a period of years, but in advancing his reasons he declares that it was not until the present year or since Mr. Halligan was made president of the league, that the league was recognized by the National Board of Professional Leagues. "In this he is clearly in error. Several years ago, when George H. Maines was president of the Mint organization, he was a member of the national that really ended the threatened war between the majors and minors Maines, at the time, while president of the Minters, was made a member of the major-minor joint draft committee, which was headed by Judge Landis. It was this committee that drew up the present major-mino league agreement. It was Maines who really put the Mint League on the baseball map."

Tonight's Drill Will See New Code Put Into Effect At Armories.

TEAM OUT TO WIN

Special to The Advertiser. St. Thomas, Oct. 30 .- St. Thomas and Sarnia will exchange games on Saturday, Nov. 3. The Sarnia Collegiate boys will play the first game in the second series in the Inter-scholastic O. R. F. U. with the St. Thomas C. I., and the Elgin Athletics will play the second round of the Junior O. R. F. U. series.

The Athletics overcame the two-point lead held by Petrolia in a bril-liant game here last Saturday, when they held the Hard Oils scoreless for he entire game.

A big practice is arranged for tonight at the armories at 7:45, at which some new players will be tried out. The management will endeavor to put aside the tunnel boys, and to that end silent signals will be practised for the first time tonight. Eddie Robinson and his Sarnia in-terscholastic team will make their first venture into the title series at Thomas Saturday afternoon in the first of the home and home series.

For years the local boys have been stopped in the road to victory by the activities of the Tunnel City team, and they are more than ever deter-mined to hand Sarnia the lemon this year. The local boys will be put through their paces every night this week, and if they lose the game on Saturday, it won't be through lack of a bullish statement by a prominent speculator who had been previously credited with having operated extensively on the shortage of the market caused the list to rise buoyantly in the early afternoon. Many prominent stocks showed advances of four to five points, including U. S. Steel, American Can. Harvester, Baldwin, Coca-Cola, Dupont, Gulf States Steel, National Lead and Crucible Steel.

It could stand a better first baseman and shortstop, and an outfielder or two. The pitchers are a little too flighty for the most part, and Chance will need all the skill he once possessed as a catcher to get four winners out of the llst.

—When the immediate requirements of the shorts were satisfied, there was a renewal of selling pressure against the oil shares on the stock exchange, this morning, which temporarily checked the upward movements. New low prices for the year were registered by Texas Company, Marland, White Eagle, Associated and Cosden preferred, selling of these isues also being influenced by a reiteration of rumor of new financing by some of the smaller companies. Th usual leaders receded but slightly, however, from the high levels, and before noon the movement to higher ground was resumed with increased vigor. United States Steel was pushed up 3% to 90, while Woolworth, Studebaker, American Can. Gulf States Steel and Keisey Wheel extended their early gains to 3 points or more. #### FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE CAUSES IMMENSE LOSS

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Oct. 31.—British live stock owners are agitated over the frequent and mysterious outbreaks of the foot and mouth disease, of which there have been no less than 160 in Great Britain since the end of August, resulting in the compulsory slaughter of 4,705 cattle, 6,279 sheep and 3,637 hogs. For these the government has been obliged to pay nearly £150,000 in compensation.

As the outbreaks have been far apart, infection therefore being seemingly precluded, the suggestion is made that the disease is spread intentionally, and the breeders are endeavoring to get the ministry of agriculture to institute an inquiry. They also demand that police detectives be set to work to trace the supposed offenders.

Associated Press Despatch. London, Oct. 31 .- Chief among the recommendations in an interim report made by the committee appointed by the government to inquire into the methods and costs of selling and distributing British agricultural produce are the following:

That the railroad freights on flour should be reduced; that the farmers should concentrate on the production of newly-evolved varieties of wheat of high milling quality; that the farmers, millers and bakers should combine to supply the consumers with a high-class all-English loaf.

November 1 Brings Payment On 1918 Victory Loan.

If you are one of the many Canadians who still hold Victory bonds of the 1918 issue coming due on November 1 then tomorrow is going to be a milestone in your affairs. Why? Well, because when these bonds fail due and are redeemed by the government through your banker you are going to be left with a nice little cash surplus on hand, and considering that Christmas is already shadowed in the north wind that makes you shiver on the corner until your car shadowed in the north wind that makes you shiver on the corner until your car comes, it will be quite a minor temptation to buy something. Won't it?

As the canny Scot said, "There's buying and buying." Just as there's street cars and street cars, and overcoats and overcoats, and so on. What about that surplus now?

There are plenty of good bonds on the market at this time. There is still a large allotment of the recent issue of the province of Ontario bands. Here is a buy that would surely satisfy even the aforesaid canny Scot. Money invested today in either this or in any similar loan that is as safe and sure is money that is going to stand by you when your energy is less and your ability to get the comforts you need, and that your wife needs, is vastly less than it is today.

your wife needs, is vastly less than it is today.

Does it require so very much argument and logic and statistics and all the rest of it to prove or to suggest what is the right course for you who are one of these very lucky bondholders to follow? In twenty-four hours your banker will pay that money into your account. In twenty-four hours you will be the value of your bond richer in cash. What will you do with it?

Ottawa, Oct. 30 .- On and after May 1 next every package containing cheese, creamery butter or whey butter shall bear a registered number showing the factory where it was made, except prints of butter put up under the brand or trademark of a wholesale or retail dealer.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Calgary, Oct. 31.—One hundred delegates from all parts of Alberta, representing the majority of the 30, 000 Canadian Pacific Railway land contract holders in this province, decided at a meeting here last night not to sign the 34-year amortization plan announced by President E. W. Beatty some time ago. Official notification was received by the contract holders about two weeks ago, giving Nov. 1 as the last date on which the agreements were to be signed and the first payment made.

The farmers decided not to sign the agreement, and stated that if the graph of the gra

Canadian Press Despatch.
Winnipeg, Oct. 30.—Farmers in the Prairie Provinces where threshing has been completed have made excellent progress with their fall plowing, and, with best of soil conditions, an increased acreage is looked for next year, according to the final crop report issued by the Canadian Pacific Railway today. Threshing has been completed in Mani-toba, almost completed in Saskatche-wan, and has made considerable ad-vancement in Alberta during the past week.

In Manitoba 90 per cent of the plowing has been completed and a great deal of plowing has been finished in Saskatchewan, and farmers hope it will result in many of the weed seeds being germinated this fall.

Grain Markets

Canadian Press Despatch.

Wininpeg, Oct. 31.—The export trade of Canadian wheat has been much heavier in recent weeks than has been reported locally, according to informatio nobtained from grain exchange traders yesterday. It is believed that foreign interests have been purchasing fair quantities, although exporters have been reporting a light trade for weeks past.

The crop movement from interior points this year was two weeks behind that of a year ago, but despite this, 63,500,000 bushels have been shipped from Port Arthur and Port William, which is only 10,000,000 bushels less than last season at this time. It is fair to assume, according to local traders, that a very small proportion of wheat clearings from the lake ports is unsold, so, they say, the only inference to take is that there has been a heavier volume of business transacted, represented by these clearances than has been given out.

It is also pointed out that farmers.

It is also pointed out that farmers have marketed 19,000,000 bushels more have marketed 19,000,000 bushels more than a year ago.

Canadian Press Despatch Toronto, Oct. 30 .- Progress toward an agreement regarding the price to be paid by the City of London for the don Stret Railway was made this afternoon at the Parliament Buildings at a conference between representatives of the two parties, with the Ontario Cabinet also present in order to lend its good offices. No definite agreement, however, was reached as. despite urices concessions on the port of the street railway authorities, Sir Adam Beck considered their figures to be still too high to be submitted to the London ratepayers for their ratification. The way was left open for further negottiations, however, and while the Ontario Gevernment has now definitely withdrawn from par-ticipation, it is anticipated that the conference between the railway and the civic authorities will be resumed. The price which the London Street Railway asked for its property at the opening of the conference was close to two million dollars, while Sir Adam Beck, as arbitrator presenting the city of London's case, was willing to pay only slightly in excess of $1,000,000. Washington, Oct. 30.—Canadian our is giving United States flour harp competition in the German arket, partly because of its quality, taken in consequence of the fact. flour is giving United States flour sharp competition in the German market, partly because of its quality, but also in consequence of the fact that the Canadian mills are satisfied that the Canadian mills are satisfied to accept payment in cash documents at Hamburg, whereas United States mills will only sell against sight draft in New York, says a report received by the United States department of agriculture from its commissioner in Berlin

Recently the German flour market erly Canadian flour passed into has been active owing to unfavorable Czecho-Slovakia through Germany. The contention of the city is that this legislation lapses in 1925, the end of the present franchise, but the railway argues that it continues so long as the railway holds a franchise, as as the railway holds a franchise, as the present franchise is automatically renewable for five-year periods. A decision upon this point will affect the value of the railway enterprise.

Canadian Press Despatch Toronto, Oct. 30 .- R. Home Smith, chairman of the Toronto Harbor Commission, of which body he has been a member for twelve years, announced tonight his resignation from the commission. The announcement was made at a dinner given by him to his colleagues on the commission. and members of the city council and transportation commission.

Mr. Smith said that his step was due to the fact that the harbor commissioners had not behind them a "solid public opinion, a united newspaper support and the unanimous backing of the city council." He said that all had been well until a year ago, since which time the board had been faced "with a condition of hyper-criticism with the result that our efforts of the past year have been of no avail and we are dead-locked."

The retiring chairman said that owing to the war, delay over the esplanade viaduct agreement, non-completion of the Welland Canal and circumstances over which the harbor board had no control, the harbor undertaking was not in the abundantly successful position it otherwise would have been in, but that he had absolute confidence in the future. #### QUART OF WATER CLEANS KIDNEYS

Take a Little Salts If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Is Troubling You.

No man or woman can make a mis-take by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness, and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

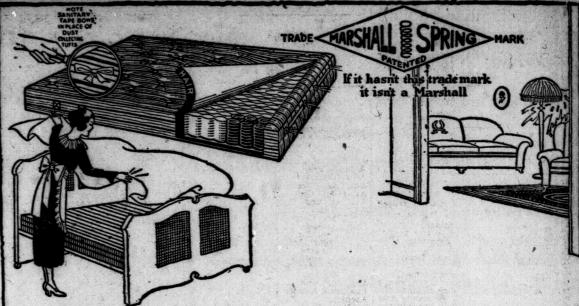

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, com-bined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Advt.

The mattress that 'breathes"

THE Marshall, with nearly a thousand small, sensitive springs, responds resili-ently to every motion of the body.

Every movement causes the mattress to expel and draw in fresh, pure air through the eyeleted vents—preventing odors being retained. The Marshall is a marvel of sanitary cleanliness. It needs turning but one or two times a year.

As each little spring works independently in a cotton pocket, the mattress "breathes" with silence and without restriction, for the tapes go only part way through the mattress.

The nested springs cannot get out of place. The mattress cannot get lumpy, nor sag. Two persons occupying the same bed enjoy equal comfort, for each uses his own set of springs. Above and under the springs are two inches of curled hair or fine cotton, enclosed with ticking made exclusively for Marshall Mattresses.

For perfect body-building, natural sleep from now on, you need the Marshall Mattress. Guaranteed for five years. If your dealer does not sell it, write us direct.

Middle Age THE critical stage of a woman's life usually comes between the years of 45 and 55, and is often beset with annoving symptoms such as nervousness, irritability, melancholia, heat flashes which produce headache and dizziness, and a sense of suffocation. Guard your health carefully, for if this period be passed over safely, many years of perfect health may be enjoyed.

Lydia F.. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted to help women through this crisis. It exercises a restorative influence, tones and strengthens the system, and assists nature in the long weeks and months covering this period. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics. Its value is proven by many such letters as these:

Viscount, Saskatchewan—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Gompound for a female weakness. I had pains in the back and bearing-down pains in the abdomen and was in a general run-down condition. I could not eral run-down condition. I could not sleep, rest, or work, and was quite unfit to do even slight household tasks. A friend told me about your Vegetable Compound and I in my turn truly recommend it, as my severe symptoms vanished and I am better in every way. I do my own work, look after my children and see to chickens, a cow, and my garden. I also recommend it for young girls who are weak and run-down, as my 16-year-old daughter has taken it and is quite her own gay self again."—Mrs. Fred Wiley, Viscount, Saskatchewan.

Brockville, Ontario-"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and female disorders. I was so weak at times that I could not stand up. I had been this way for nearly three years, and the different medicines I had taken had not done me any good. I found one of your little books at my door one day, and I thought I would give your medicine a trial. I am now on my fifth bottle, and it has helped me. I am feeling much better, have no weak spells and can do all my work now. I am recommending your Vegetable Compound to all I know."— MRS. CASEY LEMERY, 176 Abbott St., Brockville, Ontario.

The indescribable jauntiness of the little pyjama suits I saw today! They have been developed in the soft, downy flannelette demanded by sleeping porches and breezy bed-rooms during the winter months.

It is an exploded theory that sleeping-wear can't be warm and com-fortable and pretty. If you need to be convinced of that, just look at the gay showing of Brighton Carls-bad and Good Night pyjamas on our Second Floor.

These cosy two-piece suits have well-made seams, with extra fullness cleverly tailored in. They are be-coming styles with kimono steepes, round or V necks, and convenient little cords which draw them up snugly around the ankles.

In maize with blurry yellow roses of a deeper tint comes a youthful little model with kimono sleeves and a round neck. The yellow silk frill which is hemstitched into the neckband and around the jaunty patch pocket gives it a de-lightfully frivolous air, without detracting from its unmistakable sturdiness of purpose.

Children's Sleepers

Hygienic sleeping wear plays an important part in the health and comfort of your children. To keep them sturdy and rosy and well, their restless little arms and legs must be warmly covered at night. Special sleeping garments have been designed to do this.

The many excellent qualities of Dr. Denton's sleeping suits for children has recommended them to thoughtful mothers. They are made from unbleached cotton and natural wool.

FOR BABY'S BATH. To any mother it is one of the important events of the day when she collects fresh wee garments, mild soaps and powders, and bathes her pink plump baby. But she often wishes for more space, and that she didn't have to stoop over. That's why she will be delighted with this new tub of ours. It has a white-painted wooden frame, which fits in the top of the bath tub. Then baby's little tub is at a convenient height. It is made of heavy but flexible rubberized material. It has a plug which lets the water drain into the big bath tub.
