A GOOD SECOND TO FARMERS' DAY THURSDAY HAD 35,000 VISITORS to the Fair.

Peculiar Smoothness in Every Department of Exhibition -The Races.

The directors place yesterday's attendance at the Fair at 35,000. It was a great, big day, although, of course, work out for them in the dairy building was crowded to full capacity all afternoon, and the judges in the butter-making competitions had their great deal. A similar trlo is formed by Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of fair week, if these three are compared with the rest of the 365 days which annually roll through London and dissolve on the shore of time. But then, within the past couple of years, a fourth big wave has been following close upon the other three. This is Friday.

Every knows his duties perfectly. Every ring performer is perfectly at home in the settings which were new to him or her at the beginning of the week. The sideshow men, the peanut venders, the people in the refreshment booths have got their tricks and trades down to the fineness of a hairsbreadth. Los Angeles People Will Bring Down Mountain Stream-Cost $23,000,000.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 15.-By a vote of 14 to 1 the electors of Los Angeles indersed the proposition that the city turn the course of Owens River and oring its waters here from the Sierra Nevada, 246 miles distant.

A bond issue of $1,500,000 is provided for to cover options and other preliminary expenses and the surveyors vill begin operations immediately. This is the largest water project ever undertaken by any city in the world, the complete cost being estimated at $23,000,000 and the time required for construction from four to five years. Los Angeles will get 30,000 inches of ure snow water, solving the greatest problem that has confronted the city, and assuring a supply for all future increase in population. The surrounding country will be vastly benefited, since the city cannot use all the water it will bring. The river is to be carried here through an immense concrete and steel conduit, baving a daily capacity of 260,000,000 gallons, and a mighty mountain range will have to be tunneled. The present water supply which comes from the Los Angeles River, is only sufficient for necessities and not for luxuries. It will not permit of the development of a park system and other plans to beautify the city, and the extension of the orange industry in the surrounding district is retarded for the same reason.

When Los Angeles was founded in 1781 by Don Felipe de Neve, the Spanish Government bestowed upon the pueblo all the water which should originate in the Los Angeles River, and this right was confirmed by the United States. It differs essentially from the ordinary riparian law, which allows a landowner to draw from a river only as much water as he actually needs. And the people have about reached the limit of the possibilities of the Los Angeles River in years of average rainfall. This has been apparent for some time. It is evident that while present facilities might possible stand an increase of another hundred thousand people, they would not be sufficient for more than 300,000 altogether. The water will have a fall of 4,000 feet, which will give it sufficient head for fires and other purposes, and will flow the entire distance by gravity alone. The cost of the property rights for an area of 50 miles square will be $1,200,000, and to secure them the city officials have taken the responsibility of paying a forfeit of $100,000.

THE WESTERN REAL ESTATE MISS ROOSEVELT'S IMPROMPTU BATH

> Jumps Into a Swimming Tank Clothes and All-Dares Her Companion.

Honolulu, Sept. 5, via San Francisco,

a large canvas bathing tank had been erected for the Taft' party. On this particular morning, Miss Roosevelt stood near the tank, her hat off, but with a silken parasol to protect her. She was wearing a white silk waist and silk skirt.

"Congressman Longworth," she re-marked, "if you will take a plunge dressed as you are, I will follow suit." Longworth, who was arrayed in a blue coat, flannel trousers, and white duck shoes, shrugged his shoulders. "Well, if you don't dare, I do," was Miss Roosevelt's remark as quick as she saw the shoulder shrug of Longworth. Before the dozen members of the Taft party could protest, Miss Roose-veit had tossed her parasol aside and caped into the tank with a merry ugh and a loud splash. "Don't you take a dare?" she merrily shouted from the tank to Longworth as she rose to the surface and started to swim as gracefully as her bedraggled clothing would allow. This bantering was too much for th Cincinnati man, and he plunged into the tank and assisted Miss Roosevelt to he step, where they both climbed up and out of the water. But they were a "sight" in their wet nd clinging clothes.

The Northwest Territories, since the eation of the new Provinces of Alerta and Saskatchewan, consist of the ast, unorganized stretch of land to the north, containing only a handful of white people, who are mainly in the employ of the Hudson Bay Company. To this territory the Dominion Goverhment has joined the contiguous diserict of Keewatin, which resembles it in every respect. There is no reason why these fragments should not be bound together, and administered as one. This is the unlimited extension of credit in Manitoba and the Territories. The average storekeeper there has more money on his books than on his shelves, and he is in turn the debtor of the eastern manufacturer or distributor. The western farmer is land crazy, and the question is, Will he seek to acquire more land with the money from this year's harvest. or will he settle up his accounts? This is the sum and substance of more than one report. Mr. J. C. Walsh, of the Montreal Herald, who is surveying the field, sounds a note of warning to the writer, has written a book about chileast. his fiscal faith when he compares his many. Horseflesh has become a staple Berlin great meeting are being held to petition the Government to lower the duties on Russian pork, the price of meat having become almost prohibitive for the poor. The growth of German industrialism has produced a state of Government, taking affairs resembling that in England before the abolition of the corn laws. A great working class population has come into existence, and the demand for foodstuffs has become greater than the soil of Germany can supply. Just as the landowning class were supreme in the British Parliament and only yielded to the overwhelming pressure of public opinion, so the German agrarians today hold the balance of political power, and are fighting to the last ditch against the inevitable triumph of the industrial democracy. The agrarians exert an influence upon legislation out of all proportion to their numbers, but the Government is obliged to compromise with them and with other political groups, through fear of the socialists, who have a greater following than any other party in the empire The new commercial treaties which Germany has concluded with neighboring countries are based upon an increase of the German tariff on imported foodstuffs, the only condition upon which the agrarians would support a renewal of the treaties. It would appear that the urban population has reached the limit of endurance, and that Germany is destined before long to pass through the same experience as Great Britain 60 years ago.

[New York Times.] The mayor of Huddersfield, England. has acquired world-wide fame as a practical enemy of race suicide. But his offer of one pound sterling is not merely for every child born in the town during his term of office, but for very child whose mother takes such good care of it that it survives at east one year. It is not so much the mayor's ambition to increase the birth rate of Huddersfield, as to decrease he appalling rate of infant mortality. A practical system of instruction for nothers and a periodical inspection of the homes of the infants are important arts of the scheme. Maternal instinct in women does not, unhappily, include right knowledge of feeding or housing. Instead of deploring the failing birth rate, attention should be drawn to the importance of institut-ing some system of instruction in hild-rearing among the poor.

A HOODOO RING

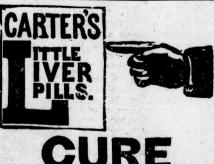

Sold Twice and Each Time Returned by the Purchaser.

Jewelry dealers can tell some interesting stories of business experiences, which, so far, at least, as they appeal to the superstitious, are unique. "Some time ago," says one local dealer in gems and precious metals, "a young man came into my store and said he wanted to see some diamond rings. He had just been engaged, he informed me (and he looked it), and he wanted to get something nice. I showed him a trayful, and after a time selected one a triple setting affair. had forgotten the man and his purhase, when one day, a few months subsequently, he entered the store with a different look on his face and the ame ring in his hand. It was all off, he informed me, and would I take back the ring, as he had no further use for it. I agreed, and he moved out of the store with a grin-and-bear-it air. "I put the ring away in the safe, and there it remained until one day about six months afterwards, another young man came in. He, too, had heard the word which was to make him happy while this life lasted, and he, too, want ed a ring. The tray was brought out, but the fellow was harder to please than the first one. He examined every ring, and yet, apparently, did not see what he wanted. I thought of the three-stone circlet, with a history, in the safe, and brought it out. It was the very thing he wanted, and he bought it

"About six months later this young chap came back, and he looked desperate. The girl had gone back on him and he would be glad to have the ring out of his sight, though he couldn't afford to throw it away. I took it off the poor fellow's hands and have not seen him since. Whether he took the drink route or drowned himself, I have never heard, but it was clear that life had no further charm for him. "About six months later this young life had no further charm for him. "I broke the setting of the hoodoo or jonah ring, and made it up in another form, for it had certainly wrought enough wretchedness.'

They also have fancy askets, wedding ropes, jardinieres, ribbons for all occasions, vases, bulbs of all descriptions and beautiful gold Jand fancy aquarium fish. One feature of the exhibit that is at tracting much attention is the curious Tritoma Pfitzerii, or "red-hot poker plant, which is well worth seeing. Last year Mr. Gammage won first prize at the Toronto Fruit, Flower and Honey Show with his magnificent chrysanthemums. At the Western he has won first prize for a handsome funeral design, consisting of a broken column of roses, lilies and white asters, with Joe, Dr. Routledge's grand little horse, a white dove hovering at the top; for a display of 25 foliage plants which include many rare varieties, and for his palms, rubber plants, ferns and other beautiful floral subjects.

Mr. Gammage ships flowers from Halifax to the Pacific coast, and even to the City of Mexico. His greennouses at Knollwood Park comprise 100,000 square feet of glass, where all kinds of flowers from the rarest hothouse plants to those in season are Visit Mr. Gammage's greenhouses or his city store, at 207 Dundas street, and you will be delighted with his beautiful flowers.

TELEPHONE TALKS.

Before we close our review of Telephone conditions in Europe we wish to add a few general statements which will tend to a fuller comprehension of the situation.

In England owing to the number of long distance lines, no one is allowed to hold a conversation of more than six minutes duration. This is a harrassing condition which would rob the long distance telephone of a great deal of its usefulness and would not be submitted to by the business men of this country.

In Great Britain telephone subscribers are required to make a deposit in advance to guarantee payment of long distance tolls. When the deposit is exhausted it must be renewed before further service will be given.

Calling for long distance connections is entirely by number and the full charge is exacted whether the party wanted is obtained or not. If the number asked for is in use locally at the moment, an enquiry charged is enforced. In Canada, a particular individual can be asked for and if the party is not obtained there is no charge. The conclusion of the expert testimony before the Special Committee was that Government operation of the telephone in European countries has been a blight on development, has maintained rates higher by far than the rates charged in Canada; and generally resulted in poor service. The limited license system adopetd in Great Britain has restricted growth, for the reason that capitalists would not invest in a Company whose right to do business expires within a few years. It was stated in evidence that $15,000,000 to $20, 000,000 additional capital per annum might have been employed profitably in the extension of the telephone business in Great Britain for years past, but capital could not be obtained in view of the expiring Government license. The Government itself, apparently will not provide the capital to increase long distance facilities, although there is, admittedly, a great deficiency of lines to meet the demands of the public. There can be only one of three conclusionseither the Government is purposely driving the business to the telegraph service, or it will not invest more capital in an unprofitable business, or it is indifferent to the requirements

Judging by the results of the Government operation in France and elsewhere, matters in Great Britain will be worse instead of better when the whole telephone service of the country is taken over by the Post Office Department. This seems to be the view of the Chairman of Edinburgh Municipal Telephone Committee, who in his evidence before the Special Committee expressed his concern at the prospect of the Government taking over the telephone exchange service throughout the country, as it meant increase of rates He might have added, prospective inefficiency.

Sept. 15.—Cattle—Receipts. 2.—60 head: sees and feed-to f the Wabash, asking for proxies from the stockholders of that road, led to rather heavy buying of Wabash, common and preferred, and sharp advances. The impression prevails that some powerful interests are behind Mr. Ramsey, and there is a possibility that a campaign will be inaugurated a campaign will be inaugurated speech as a campaign will be an a campaign will be inaugurated speech as a campaign will be in a campaign will be inaugurated against Mr. Gould and his associates. The rest of the market, after a strong opening, which attracted some liquidation, sold off slowly, but no loss of importance took place. Professional sentiment is somewhat bearish, owing to the lack of confirmation of the story circulated yesterday, that $5,000,000 of gold bad been engaged in Europe for exportation to New York. In banking circles, it is believed that next week will see a lower sterling exchange market and further gold engagements. Manipulation in Missouri Pacific has been resumed after a long pause. The traders believe that the manipulation has been intrusted to a new set of brokers, and that a more liberal policy will be pursued than in the past. Commission business remains small. Sales

Shipments of apples to European ports for the week ending Sept. 9 amounted to i 20,524 barrels, against 20,378 for the same week last year, and 77,799 in 1903. Since the season opened 46,241 barrels have been shipped, against 45,841 for the same period last year, and 179,689 in 1903.

It is understood apples in the Hudson River district are very poor this year, and Canadian shipments so far this year have been principally Astrachans and have been principally Astrachans and Duchess, to a large extent immature and uncolored. In fact, little that has arrived out as yet has had any quality what-ever, and it is surprising fruit has sold as well as it has. The season in Ontario is later than it has been for years, and it is felt that with improved quality ar-riving, prices will pick up and be entirely satisfactory to shippers

Resolutions Passed by Trades and Labor Congress.

Montreal, Sept. 15.—At yesterday's session of the Congress of National Trades and Labor Councils of Canada the following resolutions were passed: "This congress indorses the efforts of the Lord's Day Alliance to further Sunday observance by having all unnecessary work avoided on Sundays, "That the Government be asked to furnish to the executive its interpretation of a decision by Mr. Justice Anglin in reference to the employment of alien workingmen, this being in contravention of the Canadian alien labor law now in force. "That this congress protests against the system of immigration now in force, and that the Government be asked to frame a law to protect Canadian workingmen. "That this congress wishes action to be taken to prohibit the employment agencies in this city and throughout the Dominion from advertising in the newspapers for men in terms which are far from the truth, and which tend to benefit their pockets and fill the country with undesirables."

on Saturday for

Here's a Raincoat spap that comes at a particularly opportune time. Cool nights and mornings are making men think of fall coats, and in most instances that means a raincoat, the handiest and best of all light coats. These are the snappiest coats you'll find, cut in the latest models and from the newest patterns and shades-but here's full particulars:

45 Men's and Young Men's Fine Raincoats of Imported Scotch Tweeds and Cheviots and English Worsteds and Venetians. The very newest shades of tan, olive, grays and fawns. Cut in newest shapes with or without belts; splendidly tailored and perfect fitting in every way. Sizes are from 33 to 42. Regular prices from $10.00

Swell Chicago Raincoats.

In these Hart, Schaffner and Marx hand-tailored raincoats, we've a line of coats that discount anything you've seen or will see around town. We guarantee to beat in style, fit and finish any custom made garment that you can show us. The price, of course, is away below what even the poorest tailors charge. We also guarantee you exclusive patterns and shades, the kinds that won't be common.

We'd like you to see these Coats, and try them on, examine them as critically as you can in any way you will; bring a friend or two or three of them and have them criticise them. Then, if you don't think they're the best you've seen and reasonable at the price, walk out, as free as you came in. If you're as enthusiastic about them as we think you'll be, take a Coat and

CHAPTER XXIX.

Kate and Desmond were left alone. Surely no woman had ever been placed in so strange and terrible a position as she was then! The man she loved had stepped in between her and her husband, had surrendered rank and wealth for her sake-for pure love of herand she was alone with him!

All through the trying scene she had remained silent and downcast, leaving her fate in the hands of the man who loved her, trusting to him implicitly

She sank now on to a rock, exhausted and bewildered, too bewildered to feel anything save humble gratitude to him who had stood before her, as a buckler and a shield, against her husband who had confessed himself base and vile. But Arthur Carr-Lyon was her husband, after all was said and done, and how would the world look upon her conduct? What was to become of her? She had not a friend in the world excepting Lady Warner, and she, Kate knew, had left Sandford that morning for the Riviera. To whom should she where she could find shelter? The same question was flashing through Desmond's mind. He had saved her from her husband-from the man who was coward enough to revenge himself upon her for the humiliation that had been inflicted upon him; but he had now to protect her fair name, her honor; and both would be reart. She knew now who it was that lost if he allowed her to remain under filled Clifford Raven's heart so com-

But for the future-" He stopped Why could he not keep her near him or follow her like a shadow, protecting and guarding her? It was a moment or delirious temptation, but he put it from him. "Have you any plans - any thought of what you will do? Forgive me, dearest, but I must think for you!" he added, tenderly. She shook her head.

"No. I have no plans. I do not know where to go," she said, "Lady Warner-she was my friend-is abroad. I have no one else," and her lips quivered as she thought of her father, who ought to have been her friend and protector in this awful crists. "I must go somewhere. I-I cannot go back tohim," she added, almost inaudibly. "No," he said, almost sternly; "I

"What can you do there, alone-you, who know nothing of life and its hardships and cruelties?" I must learn to live alone," she said, terly. figure coming down the path. It was Nellie. With an inarticulate cry of thanksgiving he sprang forward. "Wait!" he said; and, going up to Nellie, seized her hand.

She had stopped at sight of the two, and blushing and paling, fixed her eyes upon Kate. With the quickness of love and, alas! jealousy-she recognized Kate, and guessed at the rest.

"She is an injured and friendless woman, Nellie," he interrupted, "and very unhappy. I know I have only to tell you that to enlist your sympathy. Let me bring her to you.'

He went to Kate, who had been standing looking at them. She had rec-ognized in Nellie the blue-eyed girl she had seen in his arms the night of the fete, and in her bosom rose the reflecion of the jealousy that burnt in Nellie's; and yet she knew that it was without cause

'See, Kate," she said in a low voice: Providence has come to our aid, and sent us a friend in our utter need. This s Nellie, of whom you have heard. The cottage in which she lives is on the edge of the quarry; she will do anyhing, everything, to help you. You will go?

"Yes," she said, suppressing a sigh for she was only a woman, and it was hard to be under an obligation to the girl she had regarded as her rival. He took her hand and led her to where Nellie still stood. "This is Lady Carr-Lyon, Nellie," he said; "and this is the truest and best friend a man ever had, Lady Carr-Lyon. You will go with her and stay with her until-until I can form some Kate raised her veil, and the two

Presently Kate stopped and panted a "I-I am rather tired," she said, humbly and apologetically, "and the path is steep.' "Oh, forgive me!" said Nellie quick-ly and remorsefully. "Take my arm, Do

"You must be worn out," said Nellie, pityingly; and, without another word, she threw a cloth on the table and made some tea. Kate sat and looked at the fire. She was nearly worn out, too weary even

The Hamilton Tigers and the Toronto Argos are getting into shape, and they both look strong. Hamilton has some young blood that seems good to them. Some fine Rugby ought to be served up this season. It looks as if it is going to catch on hight here this fall.

Great is that little horse of Dr. Routledge's. He has paced six heats in races in two days in 1:06 and less. He is as honest and true a little horse as ever drew a wagon. He is always willing, and does his level best all the time. His first heat yesterday was in 1:05, but his heat Wednesday at 1:05% to wagon was better. The doctor is teaming him with great judgment. The little fellow is a find.

When the national highway from the Golden Gate to Hell's Gate is completed it will be possible for automomiles to start from New York or San Francisco and cross the continent in from five to six days without trouble, and at an expense of hardly more than one-half the present railroad fare. In fact, the automobile will carry its occupants to the Pacific Coast quite as quickly as the train and the trip will be a great deal more enjoyable. The recent 3,202-mile trip of the Frayer-Miller car at Long Branch demonstrated the truth of the assertion. This car traveled a distance equivalent to the distance from coast to coast with but two minor stops en route. In the journey but ten gallons of oil and 220 gallons of gasoline were consumed, and the tires used suffered by two small punctures. From three to four passengers were carried in the machine constantly, and, in the distance driven, nearly 3,600 turns were made. These were sharp turns, too. The cities passed through en route were far more numerous than would be the case on a coast to coast trip, necessitating slow speed frequently. On a national highway it would hardly be necessary to cut down the speed so materially, for fast driving would be expected. The user of on automobile today dreams of the time when he may start his car at New York, and, with an assistant, drive night and day to the land of sunshine and flowers at the Golden Gate, without a stop of the engine and stopping the car only long enough to take or oil and gasoline. Given a good road throughout, the five-day trip would be a constant source of enjoyment to both the driver and his passengers. It would be a trip not possible by one railroad locomotive, and no two engineers probably would ever be able to carry a relay of great locomotives through such a journey.

The motorman, Michael Chial, not expectnd ing the sudden stop of the car ahead, was unable to bring his car to a standstill in time to prevent a smash that wrecked the colliding dashboards and threw nearly all the passengers from their seats. A panic resulted and many were hurt in jumping from the car, among them the husband of the woman who lost the bill.

Others injured were: Mary D. Barry, of Newark, shock and contusions of the right side; George J. Barry, sprain of the right knee; Miss Jane Byrnes, sprained ankle; Lottie Graves, also of Newark, cut on left thigh; John Shannahan, of No. 389 Eighteenth street, Brooklyn, cuts on foot and hip; Samuel Silverman, of No. 196 Court street, limbs cut; Edward Cook, No. 55 West First street and Coney Island avenue, cuts on the left hip and right knee. All were attended by an ambulance surgeon from the Reception Hospital at Coney Island.

Help in India.

Intricacies of caste among the servants prevent housekeeping from deand directs some other persons, who perform the actual labor. The man who serves the food at the table will never bring it from the kitchen, which is in a separate building of the com-pound. There must be a special servant for that. The man who did the chamber work and took care of the bathroom was specially unclean to all the rest of the servants. They would neither touch him nor any article which he touched. If a table 384 Were to be moved, not one of the other

26 would lift one end of it if he had hold of the other end. "It is necessary to have a certain number of Mussulman servants to handle the food. No Hindoo servant will touch your food or wash your dishes. This is particularly the case with meat dishes. But the same trouble arises over pork with the Mussulman servants. One day my cook went on strike, and a Mussulman helper fered to get the luncheon. I told him to fry some bacon, but he murmured apologetically that he couldn't touch pig. So I went and sliced the bacon for him, and after that he slid it into the frying pan, and when it was cooked slid it upon the plate, and so served it without touching it. "They are the most imperturbable people in the world. You may throw New York, Sept. 15.—The flight of a one downstairs or pat him on the back

What Eloquence Costs.

A Belgian statistician has amused himself by calculating the cost to his country of parliamentary oratory, and that of noise, and even of silence in parliament, for, according to him, each second of a sitting costs the same amount, and silence is paid for, during the sittings, as dearly as speech. He calculates that each hour of the sittings of the Belgian chamber costs 7,-286 fr, each minute 121.43 fr, and each second something more than 2 fr. Starting from this basis he calculates that the words of the president at the opening of each sitting, "Gentlemen, the sitting has commenced," cost about 5 fr. A laugh, for which, when uttered in his presence, he could find no reason, was timed by him to cost 6 fr 10

"Marks of approval on many beaches" cost as much as £2 or £3; a suitably "prolonged movement" can not be produced at less than 18 fr or 25 fr. "Ironical cheers at the left" are exceedingly costly, while "loud approval at the right" runs to a price beyond all reason.

vants prevent housekeeping from degenerating into a tame and monotonous occupation in India, according to Mrs. O. M. Eakins, whose husband was acting vice-consul-general at Calcutta for two years recently. In a talk with the Tribune, Mrs. Eakins said:

"It required 27 servants to perform the housework for my husband and myself. The man who does the mar-western district of the Ontario Liberal-Conservative Association was held in the local Conservative Club yesterday. The association is composed of 23 disricts and nearly all were represented A resolution was adopted which condemned the Liberal Government for its alleged extravagances in expenditures, and also the increase in sessional alowance which was voted by members of both parties at the last session of the House of Commons. The resolution concluded as follows That we approve of placing candidates in every constituency that may be opened pledged to oppose the further extravagant expenditure of public money and repealing the bill passed at the close of the last session, termed the salary and indemnity bill, so that the electorat, may choose men to fill those high and honorable positions who will aithfully serve the country and not seek personal gain."

Major Beatie presided, and he made speech in which he eulogized Mr.Ga. mey for the part he played against the Ross Government. He also stated that a necessary consequence to an unduly long reign of political party is to multiply the number of civil servants in our public institutions, and he trusted the present dministration deal with question in a fearless manner and dis pense with the services of all those not necessary for an efficient administra ion of the public affairs. Aldermen Too Busy to Meet and Talk Over Street Railway Extension.

The special meeting of the city council petered out last night. Several of city fathers were so busy at the Fair that they found it impossible to attend, and there was no quorum.

Ald. Stevely, however, produced  etter from President Everett, in which the street railway company's answer to the High street extension proposition, as given in yesterday's Advertiser, was presented in a formal way. The president's letter put the matter n plain terms. The city must say at once what it wants the company to do. If the Wortley road stub is to be built, then the company should be notified at once, as the line must be in operation by October 1. If the city wants the Edward street line in lieu of the Wortley read stub, then Mr. Everett asked year's time to construct it. If the stub s built the company proposes to run the cars which now operate on the Dundas and Market line over it, and they feel it will not be an elephant on their hands.

Quite a little informal discussion was idulged in by the mayor and aldernen, and by Messrs. McKillop, Judd nd Ivey, the two former legal lights epresenting the people who are in avor of the Edward street belt, and he latter the company.

Mr. McKillop objected to the proposof the mayor to have the stub line built this year, and then to take a census next year. Mr. McKillop thinks that this would mean that the council would say that South London had reeived all the street railway that is oming to it, and he intends to push or the Edward street belt. The matter will not be again considered until Monday night.

New Form of P. O. Money Orders Made Necessary by Forgeries of a Girl. New York, Sept. 15. - The entire money-order system of the United States has been turned unside down by the 21-year-old Brooklyn woman who, it is alleged, issued forged money orders from the sub-station of the postoffice at Fourteenth street and Sixth avenue. For some time the Government experts at Washington had desired to alter the form of money orders so as to avoid frauds, but it was not until the young postal clerk's operations were detected that the experts discovered a way to prevent crookedness in that branch of the service. All of the outstanding blanks are be ng called in and new blanks, like express orders, are being printed at Washington in a rush. The new order hen torn from the book by the postal clerk, leaves a stub which shows the amount of the money order. The auditor of the New York postoffice said that the name of the missing clerk of the Sixth avenue substation is Lydia A. Engelke, and that she is 21 years old and lives with her parents somewhere in Brooklyn.

The auditor said Miss Engelke's method was to issue money orders for Sarnia, is suing his father, James, who deposit $1 in the cash account of her $100 each, payable to F. J. Needham, Successors Named to Men Who Have is approaching 90 years of age. The son claims that twenty years ago the father promised to bequeath all his property to the son if the latter would support him for the balance of his days. A great latter be F. J. Needham. By accident, the John, of Wisconsin, and Mrs. John Campbell, of West Lorne The remains arisen, the old man threatens to disname of a Fourteenth street publisher.

The forged money orders passed through the clearing house and the pulpits left vacant by probationers, who have returned to college for the continuous postoffice without detection who have returned to college for the continuous term. A number of men were pose of his possessions in other ways. post-dated money orders for $10 each, all cashed the day they were issued, aroused suspicion and led to inquiry and the clerk's flight. The auditor said that with the existing form of money order blank it would be possible for a money order clerk to issue 100 forged orders for $100 each, clearing $10,000. As there are 245 of these offices in New York alone, the authorities were staggered by Miss
