The Ottawa Valley was well represented, and excursions from Renfrew, Arntpior, and elsewhere brought in large numbers. There were several bands in line, including the Renfrew, Smith's Fails, Billing's Bridge, and Hull, and the two bands of the 23rd Regiment. The Kilties' band, from Montreal, twenty strong, gave a Scottish touch to the reception. Lord Dundonald left Crichton Lodge, New Edinburgh, about 7.45, and his journey to the station was certainly one of triumph. The carriage, to which long ropes were attached, was drawn by fully three hundred men, and was followed by fully two hundred carriages, occupied by prominent citizens, members of Parliament and others riages, occupied by prominent citizens, members of Parliament, and others. members of Parliament, and others. His Lordship stood up in his carriage, and was kept busy doffing his silk hat to the cheering crowds. He was accompanied by Mayor Ellis, representing the city, and Warden George Boyce, representing Carleton county. At the corner of Sussex and Rideau streets, where the crowd was the greatest the carriage was stoned. greatest, the carriage was stopped, and, in response to the clamor, Lord Dundonald delivered a brief speech, the most pronounced sentence of which was "Men of Canada keep both hands on the Union Loke". This which was "Men of Canada keep both, hands on the Union Jack." This caused a deafening cheer. On reaching the station, no time was lost in boarding the train, which pulled out in a very short time. On the train with Lord Dundonald were Lady Elizabeth Cachrane, Capt Newton, A. D. C.; Mr. McAulister, private secretary, and others.

"On behalf, I think I may say, of the great majority of the citizens of Ottawa, I have to bid you good-bye. It is with the deepest feeling of sorrow and regret that I do so. When you were appointed G. O. C. of the Canadian militia the people of Canada felt that the British Government had honored them by nominating an officer who had carned a great reputation on the field of battle. During your two years' residence in the Dominion we have all felt, and in the Dominion we have all felt, and particularly the rank and file of the militia, that at last we had a general at the head of affairs who would put the organization of the militia on a sound and substantial basis

London, July 26, 6.57 p. m.—The Foreign Office has not heard of the seizure of the steamer Formosa this afternoon, and, while expressing regret, it says the only possible explanation consists in the fact that the Russian Government's orders to there shall be no more Red Sea

St. Petersburg, July 27, 2.05 a. m .-General Kuropatkin's telegrams, recording the withdrawal of the southern army from Ta Tche Kiao to Hai Cheng, fails to give details of the continuous rear guard action preceding the retreat, but the War Office thinks the losses were several hundred, which would indicate severe fighting. The preceding determined attack on Tan Tche, ten miles southeast of Ta Tche Kiao, probably rendered the evacuation of the latter place imperative. In anticipation of a retirement from Ta Tche Kiao, orders were sent July 25 to the Russian garrison at Yin Kow to withdraw. Considerable nervousness is manifested here by those not in the secrets of the Russian commander-in-chief, especially as General Kuropatkin himself points out the danger threatening his line of communications to the north, owing to the development of the Japanese advance from Saima'sze toward Mukden. If this column be pushed home, and the Japanese cordon should at the same time be tightened from the south and east, General Kuropatkin's danger would be easily conceivable, and consequently, there is already talk of his preparing to meet this danger by withdrawing to Mukden and there awaiting further reinforcements. In this connection a report from Vladivostok to-night that Viceroy Alexieff is going there is peculiarly interesting. It also stated that the Vladivostok squadron is now eastward of the island of Formosa. This report comes from a Russian correspondent who is peculiarly well situated to have definite information regarding the doings of the squadron, but it will be remembered that just prior to the last sortie of the Russian curiesrs from Vladivostok this correspondent wired the statement that ern army from Ta Tche Kiao to Hai Cheng, fails to give details of the conprior to the last sortie of the Russian cruisers from Vladivostok this correspondent wired the statement that they would be detained for a long time for repairs, which was palpably a blind to cover the real-movements of the cruisers. Some similar reason may be back of the present statement as to the whereabouts of the squadron.

FREAKS OF PARTISANSHIP.

There is a good deal to be said for the Government on the constitutional side of the Dundonald case. But that was not enough for the thorogoing partisan. As soon as it was discovered that Lord Dundonald and the Government had disagreed beyond hope of reconciliation, party allegiance demanded that Lord Dundonald should be discredited. He was represented as proposing the erection of fortresses along the Canadian frontier, and as being restrained only by the good sense of his political chief. Then it was contended that his services in the South African war had been grossly exaggerated, and were hardly worth mentioning.

Finally, his ancestors are lugged into the dispute. It appears that the famous seaman who bore the name early in the century was not amenable to discipline, and that the present Lord Dundonald has inherited these rebellious instincts. There is something very strange and even ludicrous, in the champion of a Liberal Government going back a cen tury and taking sides with the Tory reactionaries who persecuted and oppressed the reformer of abuses, the Radical member of Parliament. strange bedfellows are made by politics as well as by poverty.

A party whose leaders are in office soon develops an attitude of reverence toward officeholders. In a farewell demonstration to Lord Dundonald, the Ottawa Free Press detects treason and rebellion against the powers that be, and talks of its promoters as ringleaders, while the general is a "disgraced official." Flunkeyism in this country is not likely to take the form of worship of a titled mobility, the object of worship being seldom with us. But it is quite likely to take the form of servility to ward a wealthy class or a political chief, and of this there are already indications .- Toronto World.

AN AMERICAN VIEW.

Those who dream of a coming era of universal peace, when nations shall settle all their differences by friendly imterchanges or by arbitration, will not receive much encouragement from the history of the Malacca affair. which now appears to be happily end ed without blows. That war did not result between Russia and England, with the awful complications that twould follow, is not the feature in it most calculated to attract the atention of the thoughtful. What must be most terrifying to all friends of human peace is that so trifling an afflair, a matter of a few dollars at worst, could have been used by a civilized and Christian nation as a pretext for war, which might have cost hundreds of thousands of human lives. And yet, for a whole week, the British press seemed intent on lashing public opinion into a frenzy, and to be determined to push the government to exteremes regardless of the frightful consequences that were probable. Happily for the world, sane and sober men were in charge of the affairs of both nations, and Lord Lansdowne and Count Lamsdorff arranged the matter satisfactorily without losing tempers, as some of the papers would have us believe they did.

What the world has real reason to be alarmed about is the illustration the incident affords of the facility with which irresponsible newspapers can bring great nations to the very brink of war over a matter that is mot worth to either of them the cos of a single life. The Fashoda affair was something of the same nature. There was no great interest involved on either side, and the respective for eign offices of France and England were perfectly competent to settle the affair amicably and pleasantly, but their task was made almost impossi ble by the clamor of the paper both im Paris and London. In the present case, the cry for blood was all British, the Russian press being very quiet under the hand of the censor, but had the same incident occurred at a time when Russia's army was no fully occupied, war would certainly have followed .- Detroit News.

CLEVER CRICKET.

Marvellous Play by Mr. D. C. Boles, Nephew of Capt. Boles of this City.

Mr. D. C. Boles, son of Mr. F. J. C. Boles, of Boliam House, Twerton, is making a name in the cricket world. In the Eton vs. Harrow match on friday he went in when things looked bad for Eton and made 183 in first rate form. This not only decided the issue of the match, but established an absolute record in this annual match. This young man, who is only 19, is a nephew of Captain Boles, of this city.

The following appreciation of Mr. Boles appeared in the Daily Mail:
Everything else in the day's cricket was dwarfed by a wonderful performance on the part of the Eton batsman, D. C. Boles, who had the satisfaction of making the highest score ever obtained in the long series of matches between the two schools. The previous record, which had remained unbeaten for over sixty years, was 152 by Emilius Bailey. This fam.

The previous record, which appears, mained unbeaten for over sixty years, was 152 by Emilius Bailey. This fam-The previous record, which had remained unbeaten for over sixty years, was 152 by Emilius Bailey. This famous score Boles surpassed by 31. Going in first at half-past one—after Harrow had been got rid of for 109—he was out fifth wicket down at 358. His innings lasted four hours and a half, and included twenty-seven 4's, seven 3's, and ten 2's. A more remarkable display has rarely been given by a school-cricketer. At first he played with such extreme caution and restraint that any one unacquainted with his powers might have thought he was a purely defensive batsman. He was actually at the wickets an hour and three-quarters for his first 20 runs, and it took him nearly another hour to reach his 50. After that, however, having fairly taken the measure of the bodyling, he changed his methods and hit with astonishing vigor, his driving being tremendous. Just before he was out he scored 35 runs from two successive overs. When at last his innings ended he had a great reception, everyone in the pavilion rising at him.

Other writers were not one whit less enthusiastic in describing Mr.

reception, everyone in the pavilion rising at him.

Other writers were not one whit less enthusiastic in describing Mr. Boles' play. The special correspondent of the Sportsman wrote:

There were curious contrasts in Boles' cricket. He occupied an hour in making eight, and an hour and a half in getting fourteen. Then, inspired by the ease with which Tod punished the bowling, he completely altered his game. After passing his fifty he drove and hit to square-leg with such brilliancy that he scored his second fifty in an hour, whereas his first fifty had taken him two hours and three-quarters to put together. Boles has the makings of a fine, all-round cricketer. He is tall and sfrongly built, bowls with his head, and is a smart field, while his display stamped him as a batsman of merit.

In the Eton vs. Winchester match Mr. Boles scored 49, and was also successful as a bowler.

A Devon County paper makes the following remarks: "Mr. D. C. Boles will perpetuate the name in the county cricket, his grandfather, father, and all his uncles have played in their county team at some time or other, and all of them for their Public school teams."

A Detroit citizen who recently made run down the Canadian shore below Amherstburg, reports that the road between that town and Bar Point is, in places, in an exceedingly dangerous

"I took a walk along the road for about three miles and found that, in some claes, the shore has been washed out for a distance of twenty to fifty feet. In one place, toward the lower end, the waves have eaten the lower end, the waves have eaten away the sands, and, also the natural cliff, some fifteen or twenty feet in high; and have cut deep into the roadway itself. A post has been sunk in the middle of the wagon track, and a lantern is hung thereon each night as a warning to travellers. "In other places wire fenoing has been put up, so that passersby may not fall into the water. In still other places, brush has been thrown over places, brush has been thrown over STRIPPING OLD QUEBEO. Antique Househeld Utensils Are Fast Dis-appearing From the Province.

Antiquity is fast becoming one of the chief gods of the ancient city of Quebec, but it is a sad thing to observe that reverence for the remnants of bygone days usually settles on how much an article will represent in gold. An old copper kettle, in which the hammer-beats and the brazing of the early blacksmith can be readily detected is esteemed, not so much as a sample of a changing art and oftentimes marvellous skill, but as something worth more in the curiosity shop than in the junk shop. Happily, however, there is something to induce a preservation of these things, even if eventually the rarest specimens find a way into foreign museums or the homes of wealthy tourists. Old brass, old copper, old pewter, old earthenware—these are the things that are being gathered in, and it is safe to say that within a very few years the Dominion will be stripped of the unappreciated homely relics that Canadians should brize heat. almost to their retirement into the caradians should brize heat. be stripped of the unappreciated homely relics that Canadians should prize hext, almost, to their nationality. The day of the grease dip, the candle pan, the old brass snuffers, the huge brass knockers, the log fire-place, the iron crane, the swinging kettle, is gone, but from musty garrets and century-old kitchens the evidences of an earlier civilization. dences of an earlier civilization are dences of an earlier civilization are being brought to light. Now the beaten metal that decorated the living room a hundred years ago finds an honored place in the best parlors. The big search for curiosities in the Province of Quebec began three er four years ago, encouraged purely as a commercial undertaking by wealthy tourists passing through the ancient capital. Huse hand-made cauldons tourists passing through the ancient capital. Huge hand-made cauldrons of brass or copper, that had been regarded as so much scrap, splendidly modelled brass demijohns and kettles of all sizes and shapes, slipped through the fingers of the original and unappreciative owners and passed over to those who really should prize them least. An old metal kettle, dented and covered with verdigris and smut, is a very different gris and smut, is a very different thing from the old metal kettle, burn-ished and sparkling, showing the marks of a rude yet artful craft, and giving evidence of its years in the apparent methods of its production. So articles picked up by the gatherers for 25 cents are cleaned, placed in a shop window and marked three or five or ten dollars, as the case may be. Very rare specimens, of or five or ten dollars, as the case may be. Very rare specimens, of course, sell for more or less, according to the knowledge of the persons who handle them.

Being of itself an attraction for tourists, the city of Quebec has become a distributing point for curiosities. Numerous shops have been established for the purpose, and during the summer season places for the ing the summer season places for the sale of this ware appear with little more accommodation than the ordinary candy stand. Every shop of any consequence maintains a staff of collectors, who scour the countryside for their stock-in-trade. It is becoming more and more difficult all the time to get the goods, because the owners are awakening to the fact that they hold something to which a ing the summer season places for the time to get the goods, because the owners are awakening to the fact that they hold something to which a sentimental value is attached. The quest for brass and copper has given way in a measure to a search for the products of old English or 'habitant' potteries long out of existence. Old delft is in good demand, and a dealer will ask ten dollars for a willow-patterned plate with the same grace as the baker asks five cents for a small loaf. A connoisseur may pay five or fifty dollars for a rare piece, according to his taste and means, and oftentimes according to the impression he makes on the seller. The dealers in antiquities here estimate the style of their patrons with great skill, and their prices fluctuate accordingly. As a rule the stuff does not cost them much, so the price depends on the customer. price depends on the customer. Grandfather clocks and spinning wheels are by no means neglected, and it is the boast of one dealer that and it is the boast of one dealer that clocks having no claims of antiquity or uniqueness, and fit only for kinding wood, sell readily to American visitors for five dollars each.

The observation "Distant hills look green" seems to apply in this connection, for while the collectors have state that the evil is emphasized by the constantly recurring swells from the large steamers, especially the sidewheelers, and by the operations of the steam sand-suckers which gather their cargo at a short distance from the shore, making hollows in the river bottom that are naturally filled up by the force of the current. The observation "Distant hills look green" seems to apply in this connection, for while the collectors have scoured the outlying districts they apparently have neglected the opportunities that lie within sight. A recent visitor to Quebec before going a mils from the city procured from a habitant on the verge of the century mark twenty-three pieces of long-used-delit for what had been asked for one piece of a similar kind in the city. The regrettable part of this city. The regrettable part of this trade is that most of the best specimens are leaving the country. After a while, when it is too late. Canadians will awaken to their lost opportunities.

Stages of the Dandelion. The violet is fragrant,
And beautiful the rose;
But close to human nature
The dandellon grows.

In youth its clustered ringlets,
With golden brilliants burn,
And then, despite all hair dye
To scanty silver turn.

The three-score-ten of flowers Comes with relentless fate, Then sadly it exhibits A bald and shining pate.

intact, the land owners are suffering from loss of property. Sixteen trees were washed away from the front of ope farm within twelve months. Boat houses, which were once high and dry, are tumbling into the water, and old land marks are disappearing.

"The farmers say that the Government has been talking of putting up a sea wall, but has done nothing. It is said that one man offered to build a cement wall for a dollar a foot, but the only work done, so far, is the piling up of rocks in some isolated spots and the throwing of brush out as a breakwater. This usually has a beneficial effect. Last year, piles were put in in some places, but during the winter the ice washed them all away. It seems to me that a breakwater of boulders is about the only present remedy that would be effective and comparatively cheap. There is considerable danger that some bad accident may occur before anything is done to remedy the evil."

Death of the Sun.

Among the Ojibway Indians, who once occupied the lands about the great lakes in Canada, the sun, moon and stars were all objects of worship, for the red man was in his own way a decidedly religious person. At dawn the old chief and warriors chanted the praises of the sun, at at inghtfall they thanked him for the light and heat with which he had supplied them during the day. An eclipse of the sun fightfall they thanked him for the light and heat with which he had supplied them during the day. That event was looked on as his death, and they were then very anxious about his safety. They used te fasten bits of live coal to the points of their arrows and shoot them into the air in order that the expiring sun might be relighted. As for the moon, it was equally precious. They reckoned their months by it. Their children were forbidden to point at it with their finger lest it should be bitten off.

SCHOOL BOARD

A special meeting of the Public School Board was held last evening in Harrison Hall. There were present, Chairman McCorvie and Trustees Bray, Paxton, McKeough, Cornish, Morley, Clements and Bensen, the lat-ter acting as secretary.

ter acting as secretary.

The meeting was called for the purpose of dealing with the question of the heating of the Central school. After considerable discussion it was deter considerable discussion it was de-cided to lay the matter over until the new year. The heating, such as should be put in, will cost consider able money, and it is not thought that the city should be called upon to stand the expense in the face of the present high rate of taxation. The expens-es of the city are now high and the School Board feels that it is their out to economize as much as possi-

FIERCE FIRE

Swift's Big Lard Refinery Burned today—300 Men escape—Damage over $100,000.

Special to The Planet. Chicago, July 27. - Fire broke out among the packing houses in the stockyands to-day in the lard refinery of Swift & Co., and soon gained such headway that every available fire engine in the stockyards district was called out. Rumors of incendiarism were rife. Examination, however, apparently showed the cause of the blaze to have been an overheated dynamo. The building is 150x250 feet and three stories high, and was filled with tierces of lard, many of which exploded, spreading the burning grease in every direction. Louis F. Swift was on the ground and directed the firemen in their attempts to reach the blaze.

The firemen were hampered in going into action by numbers of cattle and sheep which were being driven along Exchange avenue, the main thoroughfare of the stockyards.

The fire threatened a number of such headway that every available

"Ain't ye up a little arly?" said that worthy. "I hope ye slep' well. I gin-erally roust out by daylight an' put out the light an' then start a fire, but thar was no need of you gittin' out so soon."

"I think the waves woke me," replied Albert, "and the morning is so beau-tiful I couldn't waste it in bed."

to talk, and Albert sat on an overturn-ed dory and watched him puttering away over a lobster trap. His hat had fallen off, and the sea winds blew his scant fringe of gray hair over his bald head. His brown shirt was open at the throat, disclosing a bony neck, and his well worn garments showed the outlines of a somewhat wasted form.

What impressed Albert more than all this was the dejected manner of Uncle

Terry. When he finished fixing the trap he pulled a dory in that was moored out in the cove and carefully bailed and wiped it clean. When this was done he said almost wistfully: "I've worried a good deal 'bout what ye told me last night, an' I'd like to have a good talk with ye. I s'pose ye're anxious to see yer f'ends an' let 'em know ye're all safe, an' I'll take ye up the island the fust thing an' then go pathetically. "I'll get Telly to show ye her picturs, an' mebbe ye can give her some p'ints as 'll help her."

"I shall be more than glad to do so," replied Albert, "but if that shipwreck scene is hers, she needs no advice from Uncle Terry looked pleased, but made no answer. On the way back to the house he said, "I'd ruther ye'd make no mention to the wimmin of our hev-in' any talk."

At the breakfast table he seemed in better spirits and more like himself.
"I think ye told me last night," he re marked, addressing Albert, "that ye painted picturs yerself some." And then, turning to Telly, he added, "Mr. Page is comin' back here bimeby jest to look round, an' mebbe he'd like to look at some of yourn."

Telly's face flushed slightly. "I shall be delighted," added Albert, "if Miss Terry will favor me. Will you?" he added in a persuasive tone.

"I do not feel that my pictures are good enough to show to strangers," she answered in a low voice. "I have never had any lessons or any one to

"From what I've noticed in your sitting room," responded Albert quickly, "you need not be ashamed to show them to an artist. I am not one. I only sketch a little, just as a remem-brance of places I visit, but I love pictures even better than music."

"I will gladly show you what I have done," replied Telly simply, and there the conversation ended. When the meal was over Albert observed, "With your permission, Mrs. Terry, I would like to make a sketch of your home and the lighthouse, and after Mr. Terry has helped me to find my friends I am coming back." Then, turning to Telly, he added, "I can then feel easy in my mind and shall enjoy looking over your

"I will, thank you," replied Albert.

"This point, and in fact this village, was such a surprise to me and is so charming I am going to devote all my day to it." Then, bidding the ladies good morning, he followed Uncle Terry

"I am goin' to beg yer pardon, Mr. Page," he said at last, "fer speakin' resting on rocks that barely showed beneath, and in her rigging, heavily the way I did regardin' lawyers in gin-eral. My 'sperence with 'em has been bad, an' naterally I don't trust 'em much. I've had some dealin's with covered with ice, were five men. All around was the sea, tossed into giant waves, curling and breaking about the stranded vessel. He noted the lifelike this 'ere Faye' bout a matter I don't want to tell 'bout, an' the way things is workin' ain't as they should be. I b'lieve I'm robbed right along, an' if ye're willin' to help me I shall be most chading of the green and white billows, the ice that covered every shroud and rope and spar, and peering out of a cabin door was a woman holding a babe in her arms. In a way it was tarnally grateful an' will give ye my word I'll never let on to anybody what ghastly picture and one that held his attention from all the rest. ye say—an' Silas Terry never yit broke his promise." It was framed in a broad, flat molding covered with shells. He was still

Albert silently offered his hand to Uncle Terry, who grasped it cordially.
"I will tell you, Mr. Terry," he said after the handshake, "all I know about Mr. Frye and what my opinion is of him. What your business with him is, matters not. I am certain you will keep your word. I recently worked for Mr. Frye six months and left him to open an office for myself. In that six months I became satisfied Nicholas Frye was the most unprincipled villain ever masked under the name of lawyer. If all those you have had business with were like him, I don't wonder at your remark today."

Uncle Terry leaned forward, with elbows on his knees, resting his face in the palms of his hands, and ejaculated: "I knew it! I knew it! I'm a blamed old fool an' ought to hev a keeper put over me!" Then turning to Albert he added, "I've paid that thief over $400 this year an' hain't got a scrap of paper to show fer 't, an' nothin's been done so fer as I kin see 'bout the business.' He meditated a few moments and then turning around suddenly added: "My wife an' Telly don't know nothin' 'bout this, an' I don't want they should. Thar's a sucker born every minit an'two to ketch him, an' I b'lieve it! I've been ketched an' skinned fer dead sure. I want to sleep on't, an' mebbe in the mornin' I'll'tell ye the hull story an' how I've been made a fool of. I'm be ginnin' to think I kin trust ye."

"I thank you for your good opinion," answered Albert, "and if I can help you in any way I will."

When the two returned to the house,

Albert was shown to a room that re minded him of his boyhood home, the old fashioned bed, spotless counter pane and muslin curtains all seemed so sweet and wholesome. A faint odor of lavender carried him back to the time when his mother's bed linen exhaled the same sweet fragrance. He dow where the crisp salt sea air came in, and tried to fathom what manner of business Uncle Terry could have with Frye. And into this meditation also crept the face and form of the girl he had first seen watching the sunset.

CHAPTER XXI. HEN Albert arose the next morning the sun was just appearing round and red out of the ocean and a crisp breeze 3000 blowing into the open windows. He heard the stir of some one below and, dressing quickly, descended to the sitting room. No one was there, and he stood for a moment looking at the curiously framed paintings that almost covered

Frank was so overjoyed he hugged him and then gave vent to a war whoop that might have been heard the entire length of South-"We guessed what had happened to you," he said, "when we picked up your boat. It was almost dark when one of the crew saw an empty boat floating up the bay. We were all down in the cabin at that time and had not noticed how late it was, when he called us. Two of the crew lowered the other boat and when they get back with yours we nearly had a fit.

The missing cushions and loop on the painter gave us a clew and we half ex-pected you would find your way back to the Gypsy by land."
"I guess you're not much acquainted with the interior of Southport island,' put in Albert, and then going forward he brought back Uncle Terry and in troduced him to the crowd. By this time the Gypsy was almost down to the Cape and, under one bell and the direction of Uncle Terry, she slowly steamed in. That worthy man had been looking over her and his admiration was evident.

"A purty slick craft, boys," he said to the party as the Gypsy's anchor ceased rattling out of the hawsehole— "a purty slick craft, an' must 'a' cost a heap o' money."

Then as he pulled his own weather

HAPPY MOTHER'S TOUCHING STORY

Of Baby's Dreadful Suffering from Eczema.

CURED BY CUTICURA.

Now His Skin Is as White

"A terrible rash broke out on Charlie's poor little face and spread to his neck, chest and back. I had never seen anything quite like it before," writes Mrs. Helena Rath of 821 10th Ave., N. Y. City. "The skin rose in little lumps, and matter came out. My baby's skin back throbbed with pain. But the worst pain of all was to see my poor little boy burning with those nasty sores At last I was persuaded by a friend across the street to try the Cuticura Remedies. She gave me some Cuticura Ointment — I think the box was about half full — and a piece of Cuticura Soap. I followed the directions, bathing Charlie and putting that nice Ointment on the sores. Little by little, but so surely, Charlie and I both got more peace by day and more sleep by night. The sores sort of dried up and went away, and now Charlie is cured completely."

"Yes, that fat little boy by the window is Charlie, and his skin is as white as a snow flake, thanks to the Cuticura Remedies. I think everybody should know about the Soap and Ointment, and if it is going to help other mothers with sick bables, go ahead and publish what I have told you."

A SIMPLE GUN.

You Can Make It With a Spool and Two Strong Rubber Bands, Any boy who wants a good gun can have it, and he can make it himself in a few minutes.

Get two rubber bands and a good sized spool from which the thread has been taken. Fasten one rubber upon the spool, as shown in the illustration, by binding it tightly with the other. The arrow is any thin stick that will slide easily through the spool. The best arrows are made of dowels, which are three feet long and one-fourth inch thick. These may be purchased at any hardware store at a cost of one cent each. Sharpen one end of the arrow and cut a niche in the other.

To use, place the arrow in the spool, put the rubber in the niche and pull both rubber and arrow out as far as possible. If the spool is held in the left hand and the rubber is strong enough it will shoot the arrow fully fifty feet away. Make your arrow long. enough to carry well.

CAUSES STARVATION

Chileago, July 28.—That hunger is being left among some of the families of the structure laborers, and is driv-ing them to deeds of desperation, was illustrated to-day, when a throng of women and children descended on a pedier's wagon. The sight of the wagon piled high with water mellous, peaches, and other fruit, seemingly maddened the crowd, which swarmed peaches, and other fruit, seemingly maddened the crowd, which swarmed over the wagon, seizing every thing within reach, despite the blows which the pedier indicated winh his whip. Finding his stock fading away he fired a revolver to scare off the invaders. At the sound of the shoots a crowd of men charged on the pedier. Fleeing for his life before the emraged crowd, the pedier escaped by jumping on a passing car. When the police reached the scene the wagon was found stroped. Even the sear and movable boards had been carried away for fire wood.

That a sirke of packing house team-steffs will occur to-morrow was admitted to-day as inevitable, by Geo. F. Golden, the president of the union.
