A heavy thunder storm passed over Watford Sunday afternoon accompanied by heavy rain and hail. Thunder and lightning this early in the year is unusual, in fact it is stated that it is over 40 years since a February storm of this nature was experienced. Soon after three o'clock it became very dark with thunder, lightning, rain and hail, lasting some twenty minutes. On Tuesday night between 11 and 12 another electric storm with a downpour of rain pass-ed over this section, which did considerable damage to power lines east of here.

While Hydro connections are being made for supplying power to Alvin-ston, and changes made in the transformers, irregularities in the current may be expected. The local hydro commission wish to notify consumers that there will be no interruptions in the light service in the evenings through these changes. On Tuesday the power was off all day, and there may be another half day or so in the near future when users will be without power, and probably one or two hours in the afternoon when it will be necessary to shut down in order father's mill. to make minor changes,but these will be made with as little inconvenience

The break in the hydro service this week, caused by storms, was the most serious that has occurred this winter, and on Wednesday business was carried on only under a great handicap. The day was dull and the lack of artificial illumination was much felt. The current flickered off and on at intervals during the whole day and continuous service was not restored until evening. Power users were unable to prosecute their work with any degree of steadiness.

NO HYDRO-NO GUIDE

The Guide-Advocate has the Guide-Advocate has been hit hard all this week like every one else in town on account of no hydro since Sunday. Monday morning found linemen working on Main street circuit, which left this office at a rest. Tuesday was the day chosen by the hydro officials to over-haul the local substation before connecting up the new Alvinston line, and Wednesday and Thursday were the days chosen by the weatherman to tie up the whole pro-vince with an ice storm and blizzard. Ordinarily the type is set for our paper on Mon-day, Tuesday and Wednesday and printed on Thursday this week, however, found us on Thursday noon without any type set whatever. We regret being late a day with our issue, but feel confident that when our good subscribers of Alvinston and vicinty get to depend on hydro for everything, they will realize once in a long while what a dreary world it can be when the power's off!

Should be an Important Feature in Farm Buildings,

Have It Centrally Located-How to Make Cement Posts for Foundation-Not Only Have Implements Under Clean Cover, But Keep Them Ready.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The storage of tools and machinery in a general barn is not always economical. Frequently the barn has to be cleared out during haying or harvest storage, necessitating the removal of the implements for a long period of exposure. A building designed and constructed for implement storage is to be desired on every farm. The size of an implement shed can be determined by measuring the implements and then determining the space required by each. Wide buildings are not usually satisfactory, since such will incline toward a storage system that requires the removal of several implements in order to get the one wanted. Narrow buildings just wide enough to protect the largest implements and wagons are to be preferred. should Be Centrally Located.

The implement shed should be located as a central feature in the farmstead group of buildings at a point midway between the house and barn, in such a position as to be convenient to teamsters going to and from fields and roads. Concrete floors are highly satisfactory, but not always necessary; gravel and dry earth floors are generally satisfactory. The walls need only to protect from wind and sun, while the roof, if it will keep out the rain and dust, is satisfactory. This means a cheap structure, made up of 2 x 4 to 2 x 6 inch boards and prepared roof-ing paper. The wall framework can be constructed of 3 x 4 or four-inch poles set on 24-inch centers. Sheds planned to be 16 feet or more in width should have 2 x 6 rafters if the roof is of one slope. Rough board sheating and battens well nall-ed will make a desirable and strong wall, quite good enough to shelter the farm machines and tools. How to Make a Good Foundation.

The foundation should be firm, and can be easily made by setting half barrels in line and level, and then filling up with cement concrete. Such make excellent foundations. An inset of 2 x 4 in the cement to spike the sills to is very essential in windly localities. Implement houses may be built with one side open, or one side may be made up of doors, half of which are hung on an inside track and half on an outside track. This double track arrangement for door hanging permits the opening

A Question That the Prudent Farmer Will Keep In Mind.

With tillage and harvesting machinery in idleness dueing the winter period and with farm men not as busy as they are during the spring season, it is good management to see that all implements and tools are put into the best condition possible. Odd hours of the day during the winter on many farms are always available for such repair work. Such space periods can be very profitably spare periods can be very profitably used in going over all machines and making good any wear and tear, tightening bolts and rivets, putting in new parts where needed; painting to protect against rust and weathering, have done much to prolong the hours and many dollars are lost each year through tools and implements year throngs tools and implements being neglected. Ploughs, binders, mowers and rakes left in the fields or in the farm yard or along the fence row or in the orchard have worn out or rusted out years before their time. Fifty per cent. efficiency is too low for any implement acts. is too low for any implement or tool in which we have invested capital. One hundred per cent. efficiency from farm implements and tools comes farm implements and tools comes only to those who take care of their implements. Provide protection from weather when not in use and keep them clean, sharp and tight. The rush of spring work is seriously hindered by the ploughs being rusty, loose or out of adjustment, by the harrows being dull, by the grain drill and the roller being out of repair when such should be in the field and in use A little attention to the and in use. A little attention to the implements during February and March will save hours and dollars in April and May.—L. Stevenson, Secretary Dept. of Agriculture, Toronto.

Keeping Celery.

Keeping Celery.

At a constant temperature of 32 degrees Fahr., celery can be kept for several months, and placed on the market as fresh looking as the day it was cut. Recent experiments at the Ontario Government Cold Storage Station at Brighton, bear out this statement, which knowledge will prove of immense value to growers.

To obtair the best results from cold storage, celery should be well grown, partially bleached, cut with part roos on, with a little roughage left for protection; and finally, cut, hauled and placed in cold storage the same day.

WHAT DOES YOUR MIRROR REVEAL

Does It Tell You That Your

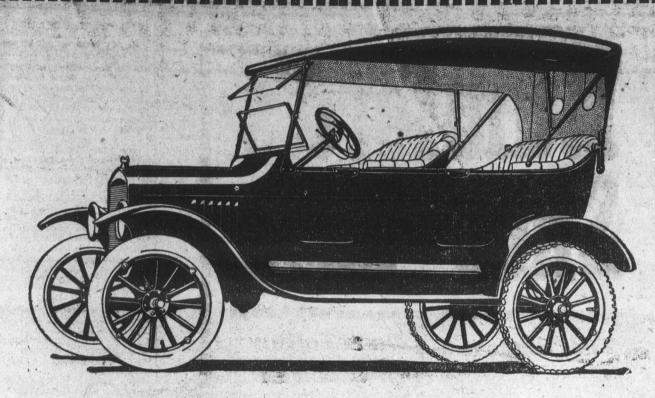

Blood is Thin and Watery? When a growing girl becomes pale omplains of exhaustion, dizzy spells headache and stomach trouble, she should know that these things are evidences of anaemia or bloodlessness A glance in the mirror will tell the story. There is immediate need for a tonic, a system builder that will completely restore the missing qualities to the blood that every part of the body will share in the benefit.

A good example of the result of wise treatment in cases of this kind is given by Mrs. George R. Smith, of Queensport, N.S., who says: "I can not praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly for what they have done for my three daughters. My eldest daughter, Edna, at the age of 14, became run down, and I got her three boxes of the pills, and by the time she had taken them she was in good health, and is now a healthy married woman. My second daughter, Martha, at the age of 16, was awfully run down and pale. In fact she had always been a delicate child, but gradually became worse. At last she could not go up-stairs without having to sit down and fatigued. Finally I got her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking them we found they did her more good, than all the other medicine she had taken, and she is now in the state of the s good, than all the other medicine she had taken, and she is now in perfect health. Then my younger daughter, Greta, now 15, became so run down that she had to stop going to school. But after taking eight boxes of the pills she is now a big, healthy girl. I feel that after what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done in my home there can be no doubt of their value, and I hope someone else will benefit from our experience."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or my mail post

OLD LEGEND OF MANDALAY

Fanciful Story Which Accounts for the Dogfish Being Held Sacred in that Country.

Dogfish are held sacred in Mandalay or a very picturesque and romantic reason, which goes back a long way in history. The legend of the sacred fish is that once upon a time a king of Pagan wed a Shan princess, who had an earring in which was relic of Buddha. All went well with heir romance for a while. Finally the king tired of her, and seeing that the relic was shining unnaturally, and being superstitious, he labeled his wife a witch and cast her out,

Returning to her home, she made up her mind to dispose of the relic. which she blamed for her misfortune. When near Shwezayan she decided to bury it, and erected a pagoda over it, thus converting the place into a shrine

Some years later the king was notified that large fish congregated near this spot, on the Myitynge river, at certains seasons of the year. The fish, it was found, would come up to be fed by hand. He caused his minister to put gold leaf on the fishes' heads. Once, after doing this, the minister had to go to Bhamo, and to his syrprise he saw some of the same fish.

Mount Demayand in Persia. Mount Demayend, the highest peak in southwestern Asia, is an extinct volcano about 50 miles northeast of Teheran. It has an altitude of 18,500 feet, and is the loftiest peak of the Elburz mountain range, which extends 500 miles along the southern shores of the Caspian sea and into Khorasan. Mount Demayend towers high above the surrounding mountains, which average about 12,000 feet in height, and may be likened to a guidepost of the series of ridges which separate the semi-tropical region in the Caspian basin 81 feet below sea level and the arid plateau 4,000 feet in altitude. From its summit the ships of the sea are viewed on one side and the Persian desert on the other. Although there is no record of the eruption in historic times, its summit is conical and the crater is still intact. Numerous hot springs at its base are active and the internal heat is sufficient to melt the snow about the summit and uncover a large deposit of sulphur, which is brought down to the plains in bags as an article of commerce.

After other medicines had failed a friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she said it was excellent for anyone in the family way.
