WHAT THE BOOM ARE DOING

St. John Being Pushed To The Front

MANY IDEAS USED

They're Live in the Board of Trade and Good Results From Their Work are Coming—A Look Back at What Has Been Done

Probably few people realize the amount of work the kind of work that is being done in a quiet way to advance the interests of St. John and to make the city better known as a place to do business and to live in.

For some time the board has been sending out weekly news letters to more than 100 newspapers in Canada and the United States and the publication of these letters cannot fail to attract attention to St. John.

In order to get the children of the public schools benefited by the development of St. John, members of the board contributed $40 in cash prizes for the best essays on the subject by the school children.

To try to secure the goodwill of the commercial travelers, a lot of guest cards were printed and these were distributed in the hotels weekly, bidding the traveler welcome to the city and inviting him to visit the board of trade rooms and look over the papers of his home town.

Members of the board have personally interviewed 13 manufacturers in St. John, urging them to make a display at the approaching Dominion Fair, and as a result many manufacturers who would otherwise have paid no attention to the matter, have indicated to secure space.

In its efforts to formulate some concrete propositions to induce new industries to establish here, the board has made certain recommendations to the common council for its adoption. The city authorities have also been asked to have an up-to-date map of the city prepared, showing the water and sewerage connection and possible manufacturing sites with rail and steamship connections.

In order to arrive at some conclusion as to what line of manufacturing St. John might be especially adapted to, or what goods might, in the opinion of the merchants, be profitably manufactured here, letters were sent to the business men of the city asking for their opinions and suggestions.

The secretary of the board is in correspondence with a large number of English and United States manufacturers who are contemplating a change from their present location or are considering the advisability of establishing a Canadian branch.

Some of The Channels Used Specially prepared illustrated articles regarding St. John and New Brunswick have been supplied to papers such as the Toronto Globe, New York Herald and Lewiston Journal, and an article relating to camping in New Brunswick, with illustrations, was furnished to a newspaper in Ireland.

Five thousand card hangers have been distributed among the merchants from time to time and their messages have done much to stimulate civic pride in St. John. Seven different cards have been issued. The first lot was sent to 300 citizens and the subsequent six cards have had a circulation of 250 each. The board has undertaken to supply material on the growth

20,000 TONS B. C. SALMON TO LONDON

Canadian Company Create Revolution in Fish Trade—More British Clergymen to Labor in the West—Today's News From England

London, May 28.—The large amount of 20,000 tons of British Columbia Spring salmon is now in London. It is thought the present enterprise is engineered by the Fishing Syndicate of British Columbia, limited, and will create a revolution in the salmon trade.

The firm of Price, Jones & Canada, Limited, has been formed with £10,000 capital to open business in Calgary and 70,000 6 per cent. preference shares are offered at par.

Passenger statistics show that 113,318 persons went to Canada in 1909, an increase of 17,890 over 1908.

Lady Stähler, appealing on behalf of the Barnado homes, said the boys and girls sent to Canada did excellent work. The lives were one of privation in some cases, but above all it was a healthy life.

At a meeting of the society for the propagation of the gospel yesterday, the secretary said the problem of western Canada seemed to grow greater. Rev. Douglas Ellison is about to proceed to the southern parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta, to prepare for the advent of a second band of clergymen and laymen under the archbishop's fund.

Resolutions were passed at meetings of the prior lien and income bondholders of the Quebec, Lake St. John railway yesterday the effect whereof will be to allow the raising of $80,000 in priority on these securities. The money is required to complete the railway, continue the receivership and deal with pressing debts.

Bacon has shown increasing firmness in consequence of short supplies. The price has been again officially raised two to three shillings for Irish and two shillings for Danish. Canadian ranges from 72s. to 75s. Canadian longhams are 84s. to 86s. Canadian hams are 92s. to 94s. in better request. Colored is slow, fine to first white, 58s. to 62; special lot one to two shillings more; colored 56s. to 60s., new colored 54s. to 58s; white 53s. to 56s.

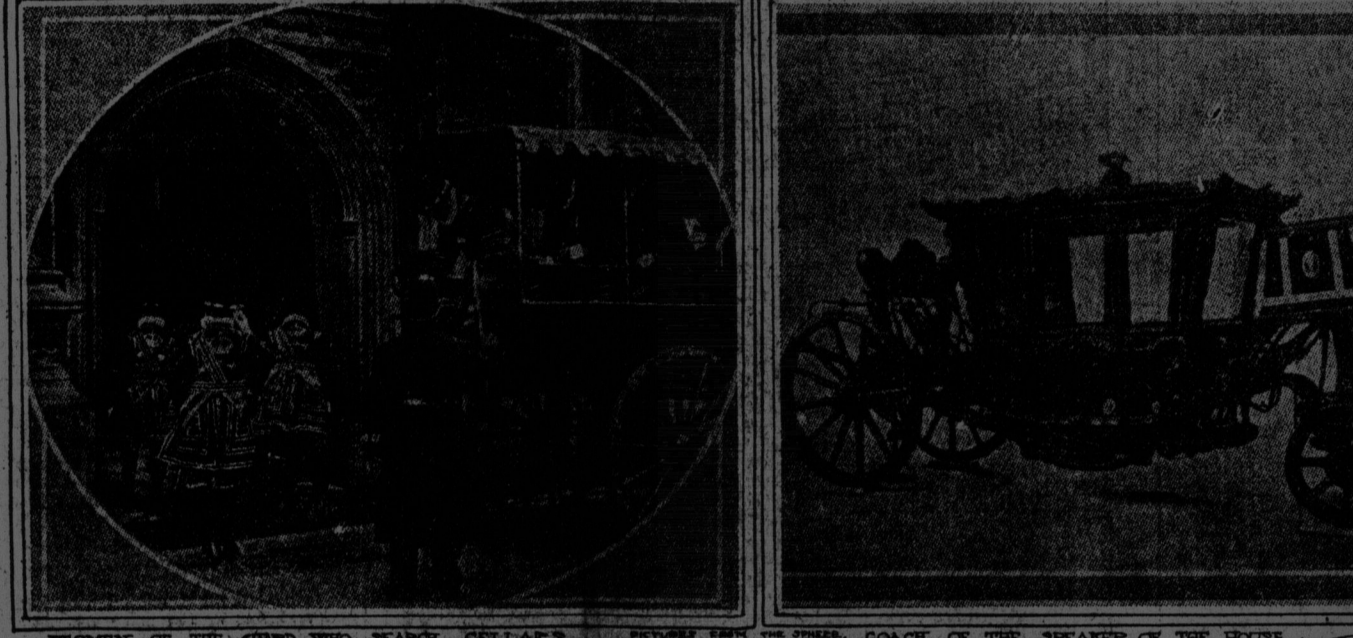

John Rogers & Co.'s Liverpool cable to-day state that all cattle on the Birkenhead market, consisting of Canadians and fed ranchers, made very good prices. The tone of the market was firm and every indication points to prices going higher in the immediate future. Prices today ruled as follows:—Canadians, from 12 1/4 to 14 1/4 cents a pound and fed ranchers from 14 to 14 1/2 cents.

London, May 27.—Sir Hugh Allan states his company has received a contract for the Liverpool-Canada express service of 22 knots speed, 700 feet long and 22,000 tonnage, accommodating 8200 passengers. Mr. Allan said the number of steamers to be ordered depends upon the conditions of the 1912 mail contract and possibilities of St. John for the "Busy East" magazine, which is soon to make its appearance. Exhibition envelopes being used by citizens are carrying an advertisement for St. John on their back prepared by the board.

The board has from time to time conferred with representatives from manufacturing concerns, advertising agencies and publishing houses and much information of valuable character has been elicited for the carrying on of the work. An idea now receiving attention is to have a merchant's excursion from upper Canada during the present summer to make the city and province better known.

A great many other matters have been discussed in the regular committee meetings and the sessions are always profitable to the members and it is hoped that the work will be profitable to the city. This far the express have been and by public subscription, the members securing the support of a limited number of the business men and raising some $400. This money has now been exhausted and means of raising a further sum to carry on the work are being considered.

FERNHILL EVEN MORE BEAUTIFUL

Supt. Clayton's Plans for Work This Season—New Methods Employed—Nearly 600 Burial Places Under Perpetual Care

Again this year, as in years past, there will be a great deal of work done to make Fernhill "The City of Sleep," even more beautiful and to keep it up to the high standard set by Superintendent Clayton.

More new areas are being opened, thousands of plants and shrubs are being set, and the fifty odd miles of paths and avenues are being cleaned and graded. The work done last year made a marked improvement and the plans for this season will still further enhance its beauty.

The approach to the cemetery grounds by way of the Old Westmorland road will again be beautiful with flowering plants and ornamental beds of flowers and the improvements begun last year of the Marsh road entrance will be continued this year so as to give a neat appearance both from the Marsh road and from the Intercolonial Railway, over which so many visitors pass.

As in former years thousands of flowering plants and shrubs will be in evidence. Resolutions were passed at meetings of the prior lien and income bondholders of the Quebec, Lake St. John railway yesterday the effect whereof will be to allow the raising of $80,000 in priority on these securities.

GEORGE LOUNSBURY OF FREDERICTON DROWNED IN RIVER NEAR DROMOCTO

Member of House Boat Party Returning to Capital Fell Overboard While Talking to two Young Women Near the Rail—Was Clerk With W. E. Farrell

Fredericton, N. B., May 28.—(Special)—The St. John river claimed another victim last night, when George Lounsbury, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lounsbury, of this city, was drowned near Dromocto.

Several of the young women on board became hysterical and it was a sudden party that reached the city at 2 o'clock this morning. Rev. J. H. McDonald was called to break the terrible news to Lounsbury's family.

The young man was aged eighteen and was employed as a salesman by W. E. Farrell. He was a bright youth and had many friends, who are greatly shocked at the news of his death. The family resided in the city from Queen's two years ago. The late G. A. Lounsbury of Newcastle was a uncle of the deceased. The tug returned to Dromocto this morning to renew search for the body.

New York, May 28.—Word comes from Atlanta, Ga., that Charles W. Morse, the banker, is ill and has been removed to the hospital of the Federal prison. He is said to be suffering from a serious form of kidney trouble. When Mrs. Morse was seen at her office, she said:—

"It is true that Mr. Morse is ill. He looked very ill when I saw him last week and was under the care of a physician. If he is in the hospital I have received no word about him as yet, but this morning no doubt to the fact that he can communicate with me only once in two weeks, and the two weeks are not up until next Monday."

FATHER QUELETTE VERY ILL

Condition of Former St. John Priest Reported Critical—Moncton Doctors Leave for Convention

Moncton, N. B., May 28.—(Special)—Father Quelette, parish priest of St. Mary's, Kent County, for years in St. John, was taken suddenly ill last Sunday after mass and last night his condition was reported very critical. Dr. Bellevue of Shediac, and Drs. Ferguson and Bourgeois of Moncton, held a consultation in regard to the case yesterday.

The city baseball league will open this afternoon with a hand in attendance. Mayor Reilly will pitch the first ball. The game will be between the Y. M. C. A.'s last year's champions, and the Y. M. C. A.

At the preparatory service in St. John's Presbyterian church last night eleven members were received into the church. Before Judge F. W. Emerson, yesterday, Jay C. A. Stevens was appointed guardian of the infant children of Leonard Black, the I. C. R. brakeman killed a few weeks ago, while shunting in the Moncton yards.

SOUGHT NINE YEARS FOR MURDER; HE BUMPS INTO A DETECTIVE

Whiteway, Lured Back by Attractions of Old New York Haunts, is Captured

New York, May 28.—Homelessness besetting him for nine years, during which time he roamed through the west a free and unsuspected man, finally dove William Whiteway, thirty-six, wanted as one of three men who murdered Theodore Johnson here in 1901—back like a homing pigeon to New York, to fall into the clutches of the police, who for nine years have been on the lookout for him.

He came back, disguised by beard, moustache and the changes wrought by years. Feeling thoroughly secure from detection he slipped from the freight train which brought him here "broke," but lay by for hours he tracked the familiar streets for love of which he had risked his liberty. Then exhausted and starving he accosted a man on One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street.

"These give me some money, I must," he pleaded. "The man looked straight into his eyes. 'Hello, Whiteway,' he said. 'It was Detective Hart, who nine years ago looked high and low for the man. A few minutes later Whiteway was a prisoner in the Harlem detective bureau. At first he resolute denied his identity. Later he broke down and admitted it."

BALL PLAYERS ARE IN TROUBLE

Many of Those Who Took Part in Tuesday's Games Had No Registration Tickets

(Halifax Chronicle) D. M. P. A. A. has a new law requiring all amateur athletes to hold registration cards, which cost 25 cents each. The cards are required of players on teams as well as individual competitors in sports, and it was supposed the ball tossers on the three ball teams which played Tuesday had been handed out cards registering them as Simon Pure. But now it turns out that many of them played without cards and hence are liable to suspension, and the secretary of the M. P. A. A. has written local officials of the association regarding the matter. There was a movement on foot to have affidavits put up to all the players, a number of whom are undoubtedly clean amateurs, so as to get at the non-players, and the card question will hasten the affidavit stage of the game, though there are influences at work to stave it off.

The Furnace of Gold

By PHILIP MIGHELS Author of "The Pillars of Eden," etc.

(CHAPTER IX—Continued.) "That's very kind, I'm sure," she said. "I'm afraid we're a great deal of trouble." "That's what women were made for," he answered her frankly, a bright, dancing light in his eyes. "They couldn't help it if the world, and I guess they wouldn't if they could."

"Be back by and by," he added, and off he went, through the kitchen, leaving Beth by the table speechless, burning and confused, with a hundred wild emotions in her heart.

He continued out at the rear of the place, very late Mrs. Dick was valiantly tugging at two large buckets of water. He relieved her of the burden.

"Precious!" he drawled, "if a smoke-faced Easterner comes around here while I'm gone, looking for you—Miss Kent, remember he can't have a room in your house if he offers a million and walks on his hands and prays in thirteen languages."

Little Mrs. Dick glanced up at him absently. "Have you got it as bad as that? Snakes alive! All right, I guess I'll remember."

"Be good," said Van, and off he went to the assayer's shop for which he had started before.

The assayer glanced up briefly. He was busy at a bucking-board, where, with energetic application of a very heavy weight, the end of a bar was being grinding up a lot of dusty ore.

"Greeting, Van," said he. "Come in." "Yes, thank you," said Van, and he stepped into the assayer's shop for which he had started before.

"Nothing doing," echoed Van incredulously, staring at the assay records which showed to merchant blindness that six different samples of reputed ore had proved to be absolutely worthless.

"What's that got to do with this?" inquired the master of acids and fire. "You don't mean to say—"

"Quitting a shabby straggling full of chert, former assayer, and turned it inside out."

"Once in a while I've heard of a cute one like this," said the assayer, "but I've never seen one like this before."

"Van took the sack in his hand, examined it closely, then glanced at before at his papers."

"Satisfied by that lump of Briggs'?" he asked, curving in a mischievous smile. "I guess I've got it in the neck all right. These last samples tell the real story."

"Briggs'?" said Van, "that's the name of the man who sold me the sack, isn't it?"

"Yes, that's right," said the assayer, "but I don't know who he is. He's a good fellow, but I don't know who he is."

"I'll let you know whatever I hear about your brother, if there is any more to hear. Meantime you'll have to remain here and wait."

"You took my suitcase away from me, didn't you?" said Van, "and left it in the street?"

"It will be here today," he answered. "I'll let you know whatever I hear about your brother, if there is any more to hear. Meantime you'll have to remain here and wait."

"You don't know who he is," said the assayer, "but I don't know who he is."

far over the Malagany range, near the Indian reservation. He determined to go. Perhaps the shack and the shaft-house on the claim, with the windlass and tools included by Briggs in the bill of sale, might fetch a few odd dollars, a claim at the front of a neat canvas dwelling. The man had three large barrels on a wagon, each full of muddy, brackish water. A large piece of hose was thrust into one, its other end dangling out behind. From the tent emerged a woman with her buckets. The water man placed the hose-end to his mouth, applied a lusty suction, and the water came gushing forth. He filled both receptacles, collected the price, and then drove on to the next.

Sardonically Van reflected that even the fine little stream of water on his claim, in a land where water was so terribly scarce, was absolutely worthless as so common a commodity. He had seen a small stream of water in the forests of Maine. During the utter hopelessness of his present situation, his spirits were not depressed. Gettysburg, he reflected, was a genius for bumping into queer old prospectors—wolves of the days of forty-nine, still eagerly pursuing their ignis fatuus of gold—and among them some deserted wanderer he would doubtless soon pick up a claim. There was nothing like putting Gettysburg upon the spot.

Eucharistic Congress to Furnish Grand Occasion in Montreal—Choir of 1,000 to 2,000 Voices With Band Accompaniment

Montreal, May 28—Already arrangements are being made for the open-air mass which will be celebrated in the city square with the Eucharistic Congress next September. It promises to be one of the most important of the kind and there will be thousands to take place. An altar of handsome proportions will be erected at the foot of the mountain near Park avenue, and the masses of the faithful and there will be the choirs of all the Catholic churches of Montreal, under the leadership of Prof. Couture, will accompany the chanting of Dumont's Mass.

Just how many voices will be heard has not been calculated. The number will be a thousand anyway, and, perhaps, twenty thousand well trained military band will supply the accompaniment. Stands will be erected for the accommodation of the public and there will be plenty of standing room for the crowds as well. It is expected there will be over 200,000 present.

The most grand ever witnessed in this city of churches and church celebrations. The open-air mass will be on Friday, September 9. No procession will precede it, that part of the congress being reserved for the Sunday following.

JEFFRIES IN PUBLIC BOUTS MAKES A FINE IMPRESSION
 San Francisco, May 28—Giving his second public boxing exhibition since he began training and making what he said probably would be his last public appearance before an enormous audience, James J. Jeffries surprised more than 3,000 enthusiasts by his apparently excellent condition and speed. He looked like a man in the prime of his life, and his rounds with his brother, Jack, and once to C. B. Fidgeon, corner man and bridge streets.

CHINESE HELD AFTER GIRL'S STORY IS TOLD
 Pawtucket, R. I., May 28—A little American girl he claims as his wife talked the stand against him, Charlie Chin, a Reverend, Chinese bandwagon man, with his enthralling fifteen-year-old Edith Lambert of Central Falls, away from her home, has been bound over for the grand jury in $1500 bonds in the police court.

It appeared from the girl's testimony that she had tricked and watched Chin for some time, and that she had misled her parents and that no marriage ceremony had ever been performed. The girl testified that she had known Chin for two years when, on April 24 last, he called at her house and made an appointment with her for a meeting at the Pawtucket depot for the following Monday.

The trust was kept by the girl and she and Chin walked about the city for a while and then he unfolded his plan to her. This was to get married. The girl said she would, and at Chin's direction wrote a letter to her mother saying that she was going to New York to be married.

The rains of the past few days, however, had hindered seeding considerably, but had been of material help to the pasture, on which cattle had been grazing since early in May, three weeks before their elders.

BEGIN WITH THE BOYS

In the midst of the change and activity which marks the progress of the city the beach-boarders on the squares and the loafers in other sections remain a comparatively fixed quantity from year to year. Therein lies a problem. In this progressive city, in a progressive new country of boundless opportunity, there are to be found a certain number of persons—far too large a number—who are without ambition and take no pains to improve their condition.

No reference is here made to the man who is temporarily out of work, or is recovering from illness, or has come as a stranger to the city. There are always some such men, and sometimes quite a large number of them. They are not idle from choice, and do not long remain idle. But there are too many able-bodied men who prefer not to work. If one of them takes a job and it proves a hard job, he throws it up. Hard work does not agree with him. Many of these men are addicted to drink. Some have police court records because of drunkenness. Others are moving steadily in the same direction. These idlers from choice are a burden upon somebody. It may be a wife or mother or sister who keeps up the home, if there is no father or brother to depend upon. If the loafer does a certain amount of work he gets a certain amount for the most part to the saloons. The citizen who goes about the streets with his eyes open may easily distinguish the type.

How may this condition of affairs be improved? The question ought to be approached seriously, since it affects the whole community to greater or less extent. It ought to be made so unpopular to be a loafer that the tribe would decrease to the vanishing point. Yet we provide comfortable benches for the grown-up loafers and let the boys run wild until they arrive at the police court. They are the recruiting ground from which the loafers and petty criminals of later years come.

Why not begin by trying to do something with and for the boys?

BENEFITING THE CITY

The article on another page of this issue telling something about the recent activity of the board of trade advertising committee shows that this committee has been doing conscientious and effective work both at home and abroad for the good of St. John. People in St. John are talking with greater confidence about the future because their attention has been pointed to the facts concerning recent growth and development. People elsewhere are talking and thinking more about St. John because striking facts concerning its growth have been brought to their attention in a striking way. It pays to advertise, both at home and abroad. The merchant who advertises his wares knows that he is not always able to trace a business transaction directly to an advertisement, but he knows that the cumulative effect of well-conducted publicity is increased trade. The people become familiar with his name and his business, and presently he finds that his trade is growing. There is no doubt that the activity of the advertising committee of the board of trade has been of great benefit, first by creating a more general spirit of local confidence and enterprise, and second by making better known abroad the fact that the Canadian winter port is also a good field for manufacturing enterprise. The committee should be provided with funds to continue and enlarge its work.

NATIONAL IDEAL

Addressing the Canadian Club last evening Rev. H. E. Knowles emphasized the fact that mere material prosperity is not the only consideration. The message is not new, and the most hopeful fact in the national life of Canada is that so many men of influence give it voice. Mr. Knowles sees hopeful signs on every side, but sees also those tendencies which weaken the fibre of a nation. He would have the people keep ever in view the higher ideals. It must be recognized that the development of the individual means the highest progress of the nation. The citizen is the best and most important asset of the country. In Canada liberty breeds, and needed, and where the house flies cease in July and August there will be those from troubling and mosquitoes are at rest. The Gaelic schooner man whose vessel passed through the comet's tail must be the same who saw the phantom ship in Bay Chaleur.

Moncton is said to be cheaper, light, heat and power, and a Greater Moncton Club is to be organized. Other communities will be stimulated by the hopefulness and enterprise of Moncton.

The Acadia University athletes won handsily in yesterday's college sports at St. Stephen. The New Brunswick institutions must wake up.

The railway terminal facilities at St. John will be improved by the erection of new and up-to-date cattle sheds for the futuricolonial.

The Champlain monument fulfills expectations. It has a commanding location on Queen Square, and is an ornament to a city which has too few such memorials.

The comet and its tail were visible last evening, but a dance of fireflies on a meadow would be much more interesting from the spectacular point of view.

Prairie and brush fires are among the facts the new settler in Saskatchewan has to reckon with. The despatches tell of heavy losses from this cause in that province this week.

The Standard is still unfavorably affected by any evidence that Hon. Dr. Pugsley is a popular and efficient minister of public works. The Standard's affliction has become chronic.

Into the barn at the close of day? The milk-eyed cattle come, one by one; Soberly into the stalls they stray Munching their oats, at the set of sun.

Bees and Daisy stand close beside Switching their tails in a friendly way; Molly and Susan with quiet pride Into their stanchions at random stray.

Maud and Nancy in awkward haste Stumble in turn through the wide barn door; Wandering Gipsy is homeward chased, The last to blunder across the floor.

Swish, swish, swish, into waiting pails, In rhythmic motion, hands well skilled, Splashes the milk, while the nervous tail Flap and flop till the pails are filled.

Then quiet feigns and the cattle rest; Through the dark the barn rat roams snarled; All undisturbed in its midnight quest— By Boss or Helen or mid-eyed Maud.

LITTLE FABLE OF THE RISING YOUNG MAN
 THE CHAP WHO DRIEDED AND THE CHAP WHO SWAM.

There were once two rising young men, who had different ideas on how to get on in the world. Each of them were capable workmen in their line and they were both of them to be the same—but they saw their work from absolutely different standpoints.

Chap No. 1 was a Drifter. He had worked at many different jobs since he first started out to earn his salt. In his native language, he'd sung a little, sung a little, barytone, also sung a little. He'd always gotten positions easily, and he'd tried of them as quickly as he could to get on his feet. He was like a bulldog to a tramp's trousers was not his idea of getting all that was coming to him. Instead, he believed in the theory that though a rolling stone gathers no moss, it does gather an awfully good job.

When he first started out in the battle of life, he'd had no idea of what he wanted to be. Consequently, he'd been a dozen and one different things—but not a master of any one vocation. He'd always given satisfaction in every job he'd held—that, at least, to his credit—but his work was merely a job to him. His idea of yomping home with the coin was to drift and change about until he finally hit something worth having. And that was the trouble. He was always waiting to be engaged—and always intending to stick to something sometime.

Chap No. 2 had just the opposite view of getting under the wire a winner. He wasn't waiting to be engaged, because he wasn't a drifter. He swam—for himself.

WILL PROSECUTE PAPERS
 Toronto, May 27.—(Special)—Staff reporter Kennedy today stated his intention of having three morning newspapers of Toronto summoned for publishing untrue news of armistice.

The Evening Chit-Chat
 By RUTH CAMERON

I WENT to town with a very original young friend of mine the other day, and had the pleasure of seeing one of her very original ideas put into practice. She is one of those fortunate people who are pretty enough to be able to be original without being called a freak.

When a young man opposite us rose to give an elderly woman a seat, I was astonished to see my young friend smile at him benignly with a beautiful display of her very enchanting dimple.

"Some one you know?" I queried, somewhat surprised as he didn't seem to be lifting his hat.

"Oh, no," she responded, calmly. "You see, I think that when a man does a kind thing like that, every woman ought to be able to show her approval by smiling at him, so I always do."

Original and quaint, yes; but absurd! absurd! Well, I certainly don't think so.

"If you don't get the reading habit fixed, you miss one of the most unending sources of happiness in married life."

That is the dictum of a very happy middle-aged couple, whom I know, who in the course of their twenty-five years married life have read aloud to each other over four hundred books of great selection.

"Of course you don't get along quite so fast as if you read to yourself," they told me, "but it's so nice to meet all those book people together."

"Henry is away all day," supplemented his wife, "meeting people that I don't know, and when he comes home I don't want him to go off and meet more people without me, even if it's only in book land."

"And you know I wouldn't want to," added Henry gallantly. "So we go together." They finished in union.

Reading about—not necessarily classics or instructive things, but any good novel—certainly is one of the best habits any pair of newlyweds can acquire.

Not every evening or even every other evening, of course, but two or three a week can be pleasantly employed in this way.

If you haven't read the older works, try some of the most interesting, such as Vanity Fair, Peverell's, Les Miserables, or some of the best of Scott or Dickens.

Your journeys together into book lands, your meeting and discussion of the people there, will be one more bond of interest between you.

And in those days when one marriage in ten ends in divorce, you surely can't afford to neglect any bond of interest that will help to make yours one of the nine.

Want to know how to become a fairy prince or princess for a few minutes? Then always keep your pockets well supplied with pennies, and occasionally when you see a youngster hanging on a gate, or sitting on the curb, or trotting along the street, who looks as if he would spend a penny, offer him one.

Thereupon to the owner of the moist little palm that closes over your gift, you straightway become the fairy prince or princess dropped straight from fairyland to preside that ennobling hour.

As you pass on, look back and you shall see the youngster gazing at you with awed and ecstatic orbs that reflect you in truly heroic size.

Great sensation.

If you don't believe me, try it and see.

REV. MR. KNOWLES ON BADLY CRIPPLED WITH LAME BACK
SIGNS OF THE TIMES
Could Not Walk Straight

Very few diseases can cause you as much pain as a lame back. Sitting down is torture—getting up pretty nearly kills you—walking is agony. Even when you lie in bed, that nagging pain keeps up its ache, ache, and when you roll over or try to get up again, well it brings tears to your eyes.

Mr. Mackenzie, an old resident of Ellendale, Nova Scotia, knows what it is to have a lame back—and he knows, too, what to take to cure it, and he is free of pain and suffering.

He was badly crippled up with pains across the small of his back. I could not walk straight or sit down comfortably, in any position that I could assume. I had been in this condition for some time, and I was recommended to buy Gil Pills, which I did, and I received immediate relief. I was able to get up and walk again, and I have since had no more of the trouble.

Mr. Mackenzie's cure is a simple one, and it is a great relief to those who are afflicted with this trouble. It is a simple cure for the kidneys, and it is a great relief to those who are afflicted with this trouble. It is a simple cure for the kidneys, and it is a great relief to those who are afflicted with this trouble.

MILLION LOSS IN FOREST FIRES IN WEST

Missinistiquia, Sask., May 27.—Without a moment's warning and while a train crew and men were making almost superhuman efforts to save the McKendrick & Mann lumber mill yesterday and the camp west of Missinistiquia, fire swept down on the Cowan Construction Company's camp about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and in less than thirty minutes the fire had swept across the track and completely destroyed the saw mill, seventeen Canadian Northern Railway box cars, camps, stables, stores and other buildings and a considerable quantity of lumber. The mill and the lumber is insured.

The mill will likely be rebuilt, as there is a summer's cut of logs left in the pond untouched by the fire.

With the amount of timber destroyed in the bush and fire burned along the track, the losses will be exceedingly heavy and may exceed $1,000,000.

Trains were unable to go through the fire for the last eighteen hours and the telegraph lines are burned down in many places and the fire is spreading and running east today before the northwest wind, and no sign of rain.

There seems to be nothing that will prevent the fire reaching Shaw Box, but it must be many miles.

Conditions along the railway line today were considerably improved, and the fire evidently has spent itself along the track.

A woman never feels fat when she can call it embonpoint.

"Why allow a razor that has shaved a hundred others to be used on your face—would you use another man's tooth brush?"

"I bought this 'GILLETTE' for you because an article in the paper set me thinking."

"The gist of the argument was—if it is uncleanly to use a hair brush that a hundred other people have used, it is certainly uncleanly to be shaved with a razor that goes over a hundred other men's faces."

"You know that you would not use a tooth brush that one other person used, no matter how well it had been washed and sterilized. Yet you allow yourself to be shaved with razors that are used on every one."

"Here is a razor that is antiseptically clean—and it is your own property as much as your hair brush and tooth brush. Now, please use it and shave yourself—you will find it far more satisfactory."

MUNICIPAL LIGHTING SCHEME CARRIED

A Large Vote in Favor of it—Y. M. C. A. Has a Good Year

Moncton, May 27.—By a decisive vote, which was almost unanimous, the citizens today endorsed the agreement prepared by the city council with the Street Railway, Electric & Gas Company for the lease of the city lighting plant for a period of thirty years.

The vote in favor of the proposition was over twelve to one. The vote was large considering there were no rival factions to get out the vote. In the last civic election 576 votes were polled, compared with 528 cast today.

Following the endorsement of the agreement with the street railway company a large number of enthusiastic citizens met in No. 3 fire station this evening for the purpose of forming a greater Moncton club. The discussion was favorable to the proposal and a committee was appointed to look into the matter and report to an adjourned meeting.

Moncton, May 27.—(Special)—The annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held tonight. The report showed the membership at present is 225, an increase of 125 from the year before. The treasurer's report showed the total receipts for the year, $2,804 and an expenditure of $2,828.

A PHONOGRAPHIC MUSEUM

Faints at Dead Singer's Voice

The French Anthropological Society, continuing its campaign in favor of the establishment of a phonographic museum is gradually accumulating the interesting collection of nearly 500 cylinders offered to it by Dr. Anzola. These include records of the languages and idioms spoken all over the globe; "phonograms" of conversations in the language of the Laplanders, the Eskimos, the Chinese and Japanese of the Soudan and Dahomey, improvisations by Russian and Polish choruses, and many other curious and interesting specimens of the spoken word.

The phonographic cylinders deposited in the vaults of the opera are a valuable addition to the collection of the Anthropological Society, and among the most recent additions to the records of those already in the collection of the Anthropological Society, and among the most recent additions to the records of those already in the collection of the Anthropological Society.

OBITUARY

Miss Lucy Val Pickett

A great many people in this city and province will be shocked this morning to learn of the sudden death of Miss Lucy Val Pickett, which occurred at Greenfield yesterday. Miss Pickett was the eldest daughter of Rev. D. W. Pickett, M. A., D. D., who was for many years pastor of the Baptist Church in Greenfield. She died last June. Deceased was for a long time superintendent of the staff of nurses in the hospital in Newport (R. I.). She had given up her position there to attend her father during his declining years and after his death had volunteered as a diocesan nurse among the clergy of the diocese. The synod readily accepted her services and the David Wetmore Pickett memorial was instituted by Bishop Richardson and, assisted by the diocesan women's auxiliary, had contributed good work among the families of the clergy. Miss Pickett had been spending some days in Kingston and returned to her home on Wednesday apparently in good health. Yesterday she was seized with a stroke of apoplexy and died within an hour without having recovered consciousness. The funeral will take place at Greenfield at 11 a. m. Monday on the arrival of the boats from St. John and up river, point to the parish church nearby. Those who attend will have an opportunity of returning by the afternoon boats to the city.

The thief's name was William Bell, and the magistrate sent him to jail for four months.

A BAPTIST WREATH FOR THE GRAVE OF ENGLAND'S MONARCH

Rev. Mr. Townsend's Eloquent Sermon on the Death of King Edward—An Empire Review of Interest and Value, in Address in Main Street Church

"Because the Lord hath loved His people, He hath made them King over them." II. Chron. 2: 11.

As other religious bodies are today holding memorial services, it seems fitting that we, as Baptists, should have our distinct share in the general mourning. It is true that we have had few, if any, representatives at court; it is true that we have never sought to see ourselves in royal glances; it is true that we have never been given to flattery of the great ones of earth. But it is no less true that we have been among the most law-abiding subjects of the throne; it is no less true that we have been second to none in staunch and steadfast loyalty; it is no less true that we have never been slow to appreciate those blessings of a beneficent rule under which we have lived. We are devoutly grateful for the benefits of peace, of order, and of liberty which have so much promoted our progress as a Christian community.

Rev. C. W. Townsend

Moreover, when death has invaded the royal household there have always been those among us ready suitably to voice the sentiment of sorrow, and the sense of loss. One of the greatest sermons Robert Hall ever preached was on the death of Princess Charlotte—a sermon which takes rank among the classic masterpieces of British oratory.

In Other Bereavements

When the father of our late beloved King died, Charles Hudson Spurgeon, in the Metropolitan Tabernacle, spoke words concerning his character as beautiful as they were appropriate, and expressed in terms tender and delicate sympathy with the queen-in-lace crushing bereavement. And when that queen herself passed away our pulpits brought tributes as sincere, and many of them as eloquent, as any that were laid in her tomb.

We sincerely mourn the unexpected removal of our gracious king, and we desire to pay a mark of profound respect to his memory.

We shall consider him in five relations, and briefly upon each.

1.—In relation to that stage of national development which had been reached when he ascended the throne. The kings in by-gone generations had ruled over a little island kingdom. Only gradually were overseas colonies added, and they had not a very close connection with the seat of power at home. Not only is there a contrast with a distant past, but one still nearer. How different was the empire to which Edward VII succeeded from that nation over which his mother in 1837 was called to sway the sceptre. This is not the occasion to attempt any review of the Victorian era, which was so well done by many who the great queen died. We need only refer to the wonderful expansion of that period to show that her successor opened into a much greater and more glorious heritage than that which fell, as a young queen, to her portion. Within her long reign the advancement was altogether phenomenal. There was development commercial, territorial and imperial. And yet with this expansion a growing cohesion—so that all the scattered dependencies were welded into one vast empire. Conquest here the flag into new climates. Peace had her victories no less renowned than war. Exploration opened hitherto unknown lands. Commerce linked Great Britain with the uttermost parts of the world. Emigration carried the children of the old country into distant parts of the earth.

England's colonial domain became vastly extended. And those colonies grew into self-governing nations, standing as queenly daughters around the motherland. We think of India, which from being the half-barbarous scene of a trading company's operations, became the most wonderful and populous dependency of the British crown. We think of the growth and consolidation of Australia, which from being little more than a penal settlement became a greater and brighter Britain. We think of South Africa where British possessions increased from that of a seacoast town until they embraced a vast and varied region. We think of ancient Egypt—with all her sturdy spires—and other strange races coming under the protection of the British flag. We think of numerous islands of the sea—separated by watery leagues, yet united by a double bond of sentiment to the power which defends them. We think of this country in which our lot is cast, which from being a loose association of provinces with their little rivalries, attained to the position of a mighty dominion, whose progress has been simply marvellous, and where the threatened disruption has given place to local and imperial union. Thus was Edward called to rule over an Empire unequalled in extent, in power and in population. Very different, too, was the England over which he reigned from England as it appeared when his noble mother first grasped the sceptre. It was transformed during her reign from an almost pastoral country to the greatest manufacturing centre in the world. There was a marvelous growth of industrial power, wealth and population. This led to the springing up of new cities, alive with all the enterprise, energy, and independence which characterize such communities. Happily, too, for with this material advancement there was a gradual amelioration of the conditions of the people. Many abuses were swept away, many reforms effected—reforms material, mental, social and political. Knowledge grew from more to more; education spread. Liberty widened. There were splendid achievements in science, art, literature, philanthropy, and religion. King Edward grew up amid these changing conditions. He was both a witness and a partaker of them. During their progress he visited many of the scenes of such advancements. He presided at the opening of many useful institutions. He was present at the inauguration of many public works. He laid the foundation stones of many noble buildings. He also travelled extensively in new parts of the Empire. Thus he was fitted for the position of ruler over such a far-reaching dominion, and over such a progressive people. He may be said to have been the heir of all previous ages, and he proved himself worthy of his splendid heritage. He brought to it a mingling of dignity and bonhomie. He had a bluff heartiness of appearance, combined with a great courtliness of manner. He was equal to the most splendid of the court, and the simplicity of rural life. He was at once a great king and an unaffected country gentleman.

His mental endowments were good. He had not the highest powers of imagination or speculation; but what is far better and safer for a king, he was gifted with strong servicable intellect of the practical sort, which is typical of our race, and which has made it so prevailing and predominant. He had a marvelous memory, a keen faculty of observation, a shrewd judgment, and a ready adaptability. He seemed to do the right thing in the right way, at the right time. He had a kindly heart. He felt for and with his people. We do not think of him as some heroic figure far above ordinary mortals; but, what is more desirable, as one of his subjects: sharing in their joys and sorrows, and ever ready to aid them in their hours of need. We cannot forget his love of peace. Of the great powers that he engaged in, he was known as "Edward the Peacemaker." Probably such a designation will pass into history. His love of peace did arise from timidity or pusillanimity; for he had all the dogged courage of his house and race. But the horrors of war and the dead and devastating strife with them. It is worthy of note that while, when he ascended the throne, the war clouds rolled blackly and heavily above the empire, when he laid down the sceptre the sky was clear, serene and beautiful, and on the far stretching horizon appeared no shape of terror or dread.

It is well here to remember his spirit of tolerance. While of necessity a member of the state church, he was tolerant of the opinions of his subjects outside the pale of the communion. He was even broader and more liberal than many of his predecessors. He can never forget that when our great Spurgeon lay sick with his fatal illness, he sent a message of sympathy to his sick kind enquiries after the famous preacher. And when he passed away, he sent a message of sympathy to his widow. Later when Princess (afterwards Queen) Alexandra was at Mentone she said that when her son, the Duke of Clarence, lay on his death bed he often spoke of Mr. Spurgeon. Early in his reign King Edward recognized the Salvation Army, gave an audience to its founder and contributed to its funds.

One of the last creations of his reign was the elevation to knighthood of the gifted and redoubtable non-conformist journalist, Robertson Nicol. Last—but not least—among his qualifications we place the wife he made so many years ago of a choice that spoke well both for his eye and heart—a choice that was ratified by his people, who rapturously received the beautiful Danish princess as an object of admiration and affection. The place she won in their hearts she never lost. She is more strongly entrenched there than ever in this hour of her great grief. How near she comes to us as she faces by the dying bed, with tear-stained face, and eyes hungry for a last look of love. And how near the great king comes to us, crossing himself from the stupor of approaching dissolution, he gazes once more, and but for a moment, at that fair

3.—Let us consider his personal qualifications for the high office he occupied. We have already hinted at them. First, we name his excellent parentage. He had a noble father, and the best of mothers. Such a boy is generally likely to come right at last, whatever be the mistakes of his early years. So while our king in his youthful days may sometimes have been unamiable of parental counsel, in the end he proved worthy of it. We think of the ripe experience he brought to the throne. He had to wait long years before he reached that seat of imperial power; but they were years of preparation, years of apprenticeship, years of discipline. While he waited he was learning. He had to perform many state functions. He had to represent the crown on many important occasions. He became an adept in all that pertained to the ceremony of royalty and also gained an insight into the heavier responsibilities. When, therefore, he ascended his great position, he entered upon it easily, naturally, and as one to the manner born. He possessed a personality that was very attractive to the British people. It was one in which there was a rare combination of elements. There was in it a mingling of dignity and bonhomie. He had a bluff heartiness of appearance, combined with a great courtliness of manner. He was equal to the most splendid of the court, and the simplicity of rural life. He was at once a great king and an unaffected country gentleman.

His mental endowments were good. He had not the highest powers of imagination or speculation; but what is far better and safer for a king, he was gifted with strong servicable intellect of the practical sort, which is typical of our race, and which has made it so prevailing and predominant. He had a marvelous memory, a keen faculty of observation, a shrewd judgment, and a ready adaptability. He seemed to do the right thing in the right way, at the right time. He had a kindly heart. He felt for and with his people. We do not think of him as some heroic figure far above ordinary mortals; but, what is more desirable, as one of his subjects: sharing in their joys and sorrows, and ever ready to aid them in their hours of need. Only a few days now and "Free Soap Week" will be here. Never before in the history of soap-making has such an offer been made as we are going to make you. It is going to cost us thousands of dollars to do it, but we know that once you try Taylor's Borax Soap—the famous laundry soap—and Infants' Delight Soap, all other soaps will be discarded from your home.

by whom kings rule and princes decree justice. Both Victoria and Edward were gifts from God. He must be blind, indeed, who cannot see the hand of God in their reigns. Because the Lord loved His people—not only the British people, but His loving people. He made Edward king over them. We see the providence of God in preserving him so long in rearing him to him be the glory and dominion forever and ever. "The God of Abraham praise, Who rears enthroned above, Ancient of everlasting days, And God of love Jehovah, great I am! By earth and heaven confessed, We low and bless the sacred name, Forever bleed." Finally, we say that the best tribute we can pay our late beloved king is to avow our whole-hearted allegiance to his son and successor. We are thankful that our present king has arrived at a full maturity of years; that he brings a blameless character to the throne and that he seems to have much of fitness for his august position. It is true that he bears a name which is not the most highly respected in the annals of British kings. But we hope and believe that he will redeem it from all untoward associations; that he will im-part to it fresh lustre; that he will give it with glory. We welcome with joyous acclaim his consort, our new queen. We know that she will follow in the beautiful footsteps of her immediate predecessors. She will bring to the court the influence of a strong, pure, sweet and domestic personality. Not only will she have an ennobling effect upon those in high circles, where she moves, she will also set a lofty example to the womanhood of the empire. Honour to our king and queen. May their reign be long and prosperous; may they flourish gloriously; may heaven's richest benediction abide upon them. "Long live the King! God save the King!" "Send him victorious, Happy and glorious, Long to reign over us, God save the King!"

THE MAN IN THE PULPIT
... BY ...
The Man With the Fountain Pen
THE REV. M. E. FLETCHER.

The church at Charlotte street, west St. John, formerly belonged to the Free Will Baptists, and is now one of the ten churches of the United Baptist body in this city. It has for many years been one of the most flourishing centres of religious life in New Brunswick, and was associated with the long and faithful ministry of G. A. Harley, whose name is still held in honor veneration and memory, as yet fragrant. The red-brick building with its square tower, near the foot of Charlotte street, attracts large congregations, and is the scene of much earnest effort. Its present pastor is a worthy successor of those who have preceded him. He has good wearing qualities, and during his several years pastorate has done a thorough and enduring work. For some time he was troubled with a throat affection, and early last winter had to undergo a most severe operation, which occasioned his friends much solicitude. Happily, it proved successful, and he made a good recovery, and after a few weeks' absence was welcomed back to the pulpit with great thankfulness and rejoicing.

Mr. Fletcher is a man in early middle life, of medium height, with well-knit figure. He is massive both in mind and body.

He adopts clerical garb, which in his case is quite becoming and seems in keeping with his person. Some competent judges place him in the front rank of our preachers. They have good reason for such an estimate. Intelligent people who go to hear him do not suffer any disappointment, and those who regularly attend his ministry are well repaid. He is weighty alike in matter and manner, and approaches solemn things with serious intent and presents them with dignified earnestness. Yet he has a sense of humor, which occasionally shows in his public speech. His sermons are built up in the style of one skilled in the science of homiletics, and are constructed of solid material. His utterance is clear, grave and deliberate. Some hearers might prefer more demonstrativeness of style and delivery; but those who value well-ordered thought, careful exposition, and spiritual nutriment, highly appreciate his ministry. We cannot enter upon his qualifications here by stopping the words of an inspired apostle:—He studies to show himself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth.

EVANGELIST KNIGHT ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR MAY 29

The Multitude Fed. Matt. 14:13-21; 15:29-39

Jesus came nigh to the sea of Galilee and went up into a mountain and sat down. He who said "Let there be light and there was light." "Let there be firmament." "Let the waters be gathered together and let the dry land appear." He who said: "Let the earth bring forth grass and herb and tree yielding fruit, crever hollows seas and country side with His own manifested presence."

The Lord, "His thoughts of beauty taking form to gladden human eyes, the fig tree, were full, full of meaning to Him. The beauty and harmony of His own creation out in the open had a strong attraction for Him just as it has for every true and loyal follower of His."

Heaven above is softer green. Earth around is sweeter green. Something lives in every leaf. Christless eyes have never seen.

The dearest sounds of our life are left behind. The sepulchre of him who had just laid down his life rather than compromise with sin has no place here. The murmurings of the "critics" and hubbub in the "wind that bloweth where it listeth."

Though seaside and mountain-top were full of rest and inspiration for Him He never lost sight of the needs of the multitude. The multitudes thronged Him "with their lame, blind, dumb and maimed." They would that since He fed a hungry crowd of his disciples had not gone over to the ranks of the critics, the scribers and the pharisees. Wherever a remnant is found relying upon His inflexible word and power to save them, will be found modern miracles.

The lame

WHO CANNOT FOR THE LIFE OF THEM

Walk with God will be raised up into a newness of life and will rejoice and praise the Lord. The blind who cannot see, the lame who cannot see, the dumb who cannot speak, the deaf who cannot hear, the maimed who cannot do anything for themselves nor any one else will receive power and glory that the Holy Ghost is come upon them, and will be witnesses for Him of what God can do.

How the world would be made a better place if only every household had a package of Asepto with your other necessities. It is also a soap powder—as good as the best soap on the market.

MAN HAS EVER BEEN A HUNGRY ANIMAL

His trine nature—body—mind—soul, must have food. He shows as a rule a fair amount of good judgment in the food he chooses for the body and feeds it with great regularity. He shows less discretion in the mental food he assimilates, but still sees in his soul food and in the regularity of his meals.

David said "Tears have been my meat night and day."

He fed upon discouragement. Who has not at times?

We read in Isa. 42:20 of him who makes a graven image that "He feedeth upon ashes." Ashes are the residue that is left after the fire has gone out of a thing. Who has not fed upon the reminiscences of past experiences? The word, communion, the recent revival meetings, a searching sermon, how we sometimes feel upon them long after the fire has gone out of them!

FEEDING UPON ASHES—THINK OF IT!

In Hosea we read that "Ephraim feedeth on wind." He is not the only one who has indulged in the same strange food. There are some more feeding upon the wind of their own making.

ON OVERDOING IT

"The tendency of the age," says a modern philosopher, "is to overdo everything."

The same thought has occurred to the writer many scores of times, when, after having had a very moderate allowance of some sauce, he has been left with a palate apparently given over to an endless stinging and burning sensation, calculated to make a man forewear the use of any sauce whatever.

Have you ever been served that way? Ever suffered that way? Ever vowed eternal abstinence from sauces? Forget the suffering, break the vow, and try it. P. Sauce, a truly delightful composition. Neither too thick nor too thin, too hot nor too cold, to sweet nor too sour. The sauce, which has been christened "H. P." in honor of the House of Parliament, is to be procured of all grocers, and is in every respect a revelation of a perfect perfect sauce should be.

We have it from the manufacturer, the Midland Vinegar Company of England, the largest "sauce" brewers in the world, that this most truly wholesome addition to our tables is compounded from the choicest Oriental fruits and is blended with pure malt vinegar by "a secret process."

We gladly accord the Midland Vinegar Company enthusiastic praise of their sauce, blended that no one flavor predominates aggressively over the others, and so skillfully combined that it never separates, there is no sediment, and therefore requires no shaking.

It is imperative, when buying, to look for the letters H. P. and a picture of the British Houses of Parliament on the label for a sauce as good as this will often be limited, though never in the opinion of the writer, equalled.

A MIRACLE IN MANITOBA

CAPTAIN BANISTER STRICKEN WHILE IN CAMP

HAD TO BE CARRIED TO TRAIN. HELPLESS IN BED FOR SIX WEEKS

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" COMPLETELY CURED HIM AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Captain Banister's letter reads like a page from the History of Miracles. It is one of the strongest endorsements ever given to any medicine in the world.

Captain Nelson Banister of Oak Lake is known from one end of Manitoba to the other—in fact, throughout Western Canada. Naturally, the letter of such a prominent citizen is bound to carry considerable weight with all thinking people.

"Fully appreciating the great benefits that I have derived from using your wonderful remedy, I feel it my duty to write you a little history of my case and ask you to publish it, for the good of some suffering brother that may be today suffering from the complaint that I am happy to say, 'Fruit-a-tives' completely cured me of."

About two years ago, while in Camp at Brandon with "A" Squadron, 12th, Manitoba Dragoons, I was stricken with Sciatica and Neuralgia of the muscles in Camp at Brandon with "A" Squadron, 12th, Manitoba Dragoons. I was stricken with Sciatica and Neuralgia of the muscles in Camp at Brandon with "A" Squadron, 12th, Manitoba Dragoons. I was stricken with Sciatica and Neuralgia of the muscles in Camp at Brandon with "A" Squadron, 12th, Manitoba Dragoons.

After being again carried from the train to my bed on arrival at Oak Lake, I was found to be helpless as when confined to bed. A sample of "Fruit-a-tives" came to our house about that time, and I tried them. Before me—that from the first dose I experienced great relief and continued taking them until I was as well as usual and strong as ever. This satisfactory change and restoration to health, I attribute to "Fruit-a-tives" and I ever have pleasure to recommend them to my friends and neighbors.

Previous to taking "Fruit-a-tives" my case was examined by doctors and found to be so weak that it was considered unsafe for me to take chloroform, or any anesthetic, but still thinking "Fruit-a-tives" the best, I was so strong that I took chloroform for an operation on one of my hands. I was so strong that I took chloroform for an operation on one of my hands. I was so strong that I took chloroform for an operation on one of my hands.

Truly, the days of the miracle have passed away. What physicians and all their skill, cannot do it does seem almost miraculous. "Fruit-a-tives" cures the Bowels, Kidney and Skin. "Fruit-a-tives" makes these three great eliminators work well and strong. "Fruit-a-tives" makes these three great eliminators work well and strong. "Fruit-a-tives" makes these three great eliminators work well and strong.

Sciatica, Rheumatism and Neuralgia in any form are caused by poisoned blood. It is the diet of the Bowels, Kidneys and Skin to rid the system of waste matter, urea. If any of these organs are weak, the waste matter stays in the system and is converted into uric acid.

It is uric acid which poisons the blood and causes the delicate nerves, membranes and muscles, resulting in the general feeling in Ireland was that he was a frank, manly and friendly sovereign.

REDMOND PRAISES KING EDWARD AS MAN

John Redmond, leader of the Irish parliamentary party, has broken his silence regarding the death of King Edward, which has been so adversely criticized. Addressing a meeting in Cork last night he deplored the check that would be placed on political movements by the king's death.

That event, he said, must be regarded by Irishmen in two aspects, personal and constitutional. He thought everybody in Ireland was sorry King Edward was dead from a personal point of view. He said: "He never showed any hostility to Ireland, an unusual thing in a British sovereign, and you are not king."

STMR. IRISBROOK REACHED AT PARRSBORO ROADS

Parrsboro, N. S., May 27.—(Special)—Steamer Irisbrook leaked so badly after returning to Parrsboro roads that she had to be beached. A survey was held this morning by Capt. The surveyors recommended the discharging of the deckload and cargo in the forward hold so that the extent of the damage might be ascertained and repairs made.

JURY GIVES $7,500 FOR LOSS OF ARMS

Montreal, May 27.—A mixed jury, presided over by Mr. Justice Arsenault, awarded a verdict of $7,500 to Alphonse Maréchal, who had entered a joint action for $25,000 against the Grand Trunk Railway Company and the Canadian Northern Railway Company.

The plaintiff had one of his arms torn off in a collision that occurred between a passenger coach and had received instructions that the line was clear and to go ahead. At about 1:50 from the station at Hanborough, the locomotive pulling the snow plough collided with another locomotive of the Canadian Northern Railway, Mr. Maréchal claimed that the Grand Trunk was responsible for the accident, as he had been instructed that the track was clear, and he also claimed that the Canadian Northern was also responsible for its failure to act in conformity of the Railway Act, which stipulates that in such cases a watchman should be left at the junction of two roads.

It was stated after the verdict that the case will be appealed.

"I had dropsy, and was told by my family physician that there was no chance for me. My limbs and body were swollen one-third larger than natural, water collected behind my heart and I had to be propped up in bed to keep from smothering. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy until I was entirely cured. This was in 1902 and I am now able to do any and every work of my family. My cure was certainly marvelous."

HIGH COURT DATE NOT YET FIXED

Foresters Will Likely Decide in Few Days--Supreme Orator Here Wednesday Next

No definite date has yet been fixed for the annual meeting of the High Court, I. O. F., of New Brunswick, but it is understood that it will be held early in August in Chatham. The sessions will occupy about two days, and will be attended by thirty or forty delegates from this city besides those from other places. The exact time of meeting is left with the high standing committee to decide upon and it is thought that in a week or ten days, they will announce their decision in the matter.

LUCK IN BUSINESS

Yes, Says One St. John Man--How He Cleared up Big Profit Recently on One Deal

A local business man who recently cleared up a nest-egg in consequence of having a heavy stock on hand when California oranges advanced in price, is inclined to think that luck enters largely into business success these days. In talking to a Times-Star man, he said he had been very much surprised to find, on taking stock not long ago, that he had 100 boxes of California oranges on hand or ordered. He had been buying along from time to time and did not realize that he was getting anywhere near that number.

"Just when he had about decided that he was in for a loss the quotations advanced 81 a box, and he cleared out the lot at a handsome profit. Some people might call that foresightfulness," he remarked, "but it was just blind luck, and I believe that many of the so-called shrewd business men very often have the same experience."

BOWLERS HANG UP BIG SCORES

Standing of the High Men in the May Contest on Victoria Alleys--J. Wilson is in the Lead

The end of the May competition on the alleys of the Victoria Bowling Academy is rapidly nearing, and considerable interest is attached to the contest as there will be cash prizes for the best ten stringings of the month. Although only six of the competitors have hung up ten stringings, several very good scores have been made, and before May 31, when the contest will come to a close, it is expected that a number of other bowlers will put on the board some enviable scores to their credit.

The standing at present is as follows: J. Wilson, 1,115; H. Crocker, 1,074; V. Kelsey, 1,053; E. Sage, 1,049; F. Tait, 1,048; and Smith, 1,031. These are the only bowlers who have put in ten stringings, but others who have strung three or four are: Tapley, O'Neil, and McBeath. Wilson's highest string is his first one, which he made 28. His record is 117, and his third 111. Crocker has such scores as 123, 116, and 114, opposite his name, while Sage has 120 and 114. All of the others have three figured scores. A close finish is looked for in the contest.

Each award of $50 has been offered by R. J. Armstrong, proprietor of the alleys, and this sum will be divided into first, second and third prizes, according to the scores registered. It is not likely that the contest will be continued in just the same manner next month, but probably along a somewhat similar line.

A BARREL ORGAN INVASION OF CITY

Three Teams of Artists Strike Town--A Clash of Talent in Union Street

"That 'music hath charms' is generally accepted without discussion, but there are exceptions. A number of the music lovers of St. John are averse to the fact that they are being liberally treated to popular, classical and modern music, but few will believe that the quality of the music is such as to charm them.

It is not common occurrence for the people to entertain in their streets one Italian organ grinder and a performing monkey one time, but when connected to having three such teams of artists descend upon us at the same time--well in the language of Rex Beach it is "going some."

The first of the musicians, with his little animal friend arrived in town on Wednesday, but said to relate another couple "mama and 'monk"--playing on the maritime front struck town at the same time, evidently through the carelessness of an advance agent, who had not given the warning that a similar act had already been billed. The two parties met in Union street, but after each had ground out a few melodiously hoarse, and stopped outside a few stores--they apparently decided that the street, though long, could not accommodate both at the same time, so one of them took his departure towards Sidney street.

The climax was reached yesterday, however, when the Italian who plays an animal engagement here, generally coming in the month of May, arrived in the city and immediately began to entrance street audiences with the "Merry Widow," which Mr. Monk merrily manipulated the loose tin. The extent of the business done by the three artists and Messrs. Monk's rather a hard proposition to determine but it is thought that the city does not afford scope enough for their collective efforts, and one or more will leave to play a different route.

GATHOLICS BEST COMPLY WITH LAW SAYS REGISTRAR

Mr. Jones Again Draws Attention to Fact That Births of Children in City Not Always Recorded

Registrations came in pretty thickly this week at the office of Mr. Jones, registrar of vital statistics, as is shown by the fact that eight marriages were recorded, and thirty-four births, twenty girls and fourteen boys. A number of these are delayed registrations, however, owing to the neglect of physicians and parents.

When asked regarding the matter of births being recorded, the registrar said that they were not coming in any better than formerly, which should certainly not be the case. Today he received a letter from Wellington, New Zealand, from Commissioner Blagden, asking for information regarding the birth of Richard George Stewart, son of George Stewart, whose mother's maiden name was Jane Hamilton. This he mentioned as an instance showing the importance of having proper registration made.

The Roman Catholics, said Registrar Jones, were perhaps the only ones who complied fully with the law in the registration of births. The individual relied on the church to make the records with him, and as a result births were always recorded promptly. This was not the case with others, who depended on their physicians and nurses too much, and Mr. Jones said he feared that in a great many cases births of Protestant children were not registered.

There is no fee attached to the registration and blanks for the purpose may be had at drug stores and at the stamp window in the post office.

MIXTURE IN BOYS' POCKET EXPLODES; THREE PEOPLE HURT

Toronto, May 28--(Special)--An explosion of a mixture of chloric of potash and sulphur in the pocket of Frank Borotie, aged fourteen, in McCaul street last night caused serious injury to him and to Stewart Platt, aged 11, and Miss Maud Barnett, aged twenty-one who were passing. Borotie's left arm had to be amputated and he may not recover. Miss Barnett had a hole torn in the abdomen and sustained severe burns, as did Platt. Borotie had been experimenting with chemicals. Friction caused by walking and the heat of the body probably caused the explosion.
