EVENSONG.

The embers of the day are red
Beyond the murky hill.
The kitchen smokes; the bed
In the darkling house is spread;
The great sky darkens overhead,
And the great woods are shrill.
So far have I been led,
Lord, by Thy will;
So far I have followed, Lord, and wondered still.
The breeze from the embalmed land
Blows sudden toward the shore,
And claps my cottage door. Blows sudden toward the short.

And claps my cottage door.

I hear the signal, Lord—I understand.

The night at Thy command Comes. I will eat and sleep and will not question more.

ONE of the most critical periods of a woman's life comes between 45 and 30. Most women dread the approach of middle age because they know, only too well, the depressing ailments it brings.

This natural change in a woman's life should be passed in a normal manner, without fear or suffering from such distressing symptoms as hot flashes, smothering spells, fainting spells, headaches, backache or nervous troubles. When such symptoms are experienced, there usually exists some weakness or disturbance of the feminine system that can be overcome by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than fifty years the Vegetable Compound has been carrying women safely through this trying period. Such letters as the following prove our claim:-After Long Suffering South Omaha, Nebraska.—"After fifteen years of terrible suffering each month with sick headaches when passing through Change of Life I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have felt my health steadily improving. After taking your medicine for almost a year and a half, I believe I can say the headaches have left me. I also was troubled with nervousness and with pains in my left side. Many times the doctor told me to have an operation performed. I am feeling fine now and do all times the doctor told me to have an operation performed. I am feeling fine now and do all my work myself. I am the mother of six, and manage an eight-room house without anybody to help. I feel that I am entirely well. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to any one who complains to me about female troubles."—Mrs. ADDLPH BRATKE, 4316 South 13th St. South Omeba, Nebreska

I thought I would never be right again as no doctor's medicine seemed to help me. They said my trouble would have to take its course. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books you give away and began to take the medicine. After the first few bottles I began to feel stronger and could eat better and had fewer headaches. I am a well woman today and feel like a different person. You may use this letter for every word is true. DEBTS; NOW RICH

NEW YORK, March 5—Patrolman Thomas Culhane, of the East, Thirty-fifth street station, has been arrested and suspended from the police department on charges of felonious assault made by Sergeant William F. O'Connell, of the same precinct, who charged that Culhane had attempted to shoot him at Fifth Avenue and Thirtieth street. Culhane was held in $3,000 bail for the grand jury.

Dr. Timothy D. Lehane, a police surgeon, who examined Culhane at the station house, pronounced him unfit for duty and said that was about all. But rheumatism and a large family did not prevent him from saving $300 of the money he earned by performing odd jobs. With this $300 he went into the grocery business, and lost it all. But he paid his debts, says "The Detroit News."

It was this debt-paying precedent he established that stood him in good stead when he appeared before Edward Hine, cashier of the Mount Clemens Saving Bank.

While Women Spend All Their Time Improving Themselves, Men are Vain Enough to Think They Need No Change- They Expect Their Wives to Love Them Romantically Even Though They are Fat, Bald, Unkempt and Boring.

A CORRESPONDENT asks: "Which is the vainer sex?"

I think that men, taken by and large, are vainer than women. Of course, men will arise and shout in unison that this is not true, and that the vanity of the feminine sex far surpasses that of the male. In proof whereof they will cite:

First. That most of the business of the world is devoted to ministering to the vanities of women, and providing them with fine raiment and jewels and cosmetics and perfumes and beautiful backgrounds against which to strut like gorgeous peacocks.

SECOND. That about three-fourths of a woman's time and thought, and nearly all of her money, goes into dolling herself up.

Third. That women cheerfully undergo martyrdom for the sake of their looks, that they suffer themselves to be parboiled and skinned alive trying to attain that schoolgirl complexion, and undergo all the agonies of slow starvation to keep a boyish figure.

FOURTH. That they risk death by wearing knee-length skirts and gossamer stockings and thin-soled satin slippers in zero weather, in order to be fashionably dressed. Fifth. That they are so enamored of their own looks that they carry about with them pocket mirrors in order that they may refresh themselves by gazing at their own reflections every half hour or so.

Sixth. That there is nothing else in the world equal to the expression of complacency on a woman's face after she has drawn out, her vanity case and powdered her nose and touched up her mouth with her lipstick. It simply megaphones to the beholder that she regards the result as absolute perfection.

NONE of these things is to be denied, and it sounds as if man made a strong case against woman when he indicted her for vanity. But not so. Men interpret wrongly the signs and portents, and what they take as an indication of vanity is, in reality, only an expression of humility.

The reason why women spend so much time and money on cothes, and undergo such sufferings in order to enhance their looks, is not because they think they are so beautiful, but because they are distrustful of their appearance and are willing to do any-

THIS shows that they are far less vain than men of their personal appearance, for the average man is, apparently, perfectly satisfied with his own looks. He may be fat and bay-windowed, yet you rarely hear of his counting his calories and denying himself the rich dishes he loves in order to reduce and attain a lissome figure. No woman would affront her neighbor's gaze with the spectacle of a shiny bald head, but it is only the occasional man who considers that he would be easier on the eyes if he

And it is not modesty, but superhuman vanity, that makes a man careless about his dress. In his soul he is filled with the conviction that he cannot fail to be attractive to his fellow creatures, no matter how unshaven and unshorn he is, no matter what mislit clothes he has on, no matter how he looks as if he needed to be sent bodily to the laundry and the presser.

IT IS not vanity that sends middle-aged women to the beauty parlors and that causes them to bob their hair and kalsomine their faces, and make an abortive attempt to look 16 instead of 46. It is because they live in dread of losing their husbands' love when they lose their figures and

But no such terrors assail the middle-aged man. His vanity is such that he never dreams that his wife could possibly cease worthiping him, no matter how tubby or angular he gets, or how he changes from the young godling she married. You never hear of a middle-aged man trying to reduce his waistline in order to hold

THE valuest woman knows that no man wants to hear her talk about herself, or is really interested in her hopes and plans, unless they have something to do with him. Experience has taught her that, the minute she begins to monologue about herself to a man, he will find that he has a pressing engagement calling him elsewhere.

But the great majority of men believe themselves to be such topics of absorbing interest to every woman they meet that they are giving her the treat of her life when they discourse to her about their achievements, or tell her the story of their lives. Seemingly it never accurs to them that she may not be a bit more eager to hear at set what the boss said to them, and they said to the boss, or how many miles their car made, than they are to hear the details of her conversation with her dressmaker, or her views on the length of skirts.

IT IS women's lack of vanity that makes them distrustful in love. No matter how pretty and attractive they are, or how superior to the young men about them, they are always afraid that no man will fall in love with them, and that they will be old maids. And when they are married they are forever asking their husbands: "Do you still love me?" and they live in dread of their husbands falling in love with some one younger, fresher and prettier.

A man's vanity saves him from all of this. It never occurs to him that any woman could resist him, and so he goes out and takes his pick of the most attractive girls he knows.

And after he is married he never bothers to inquire into the state of his wife's affections. He is absolutely certain that they stay at the boiling point, and that nothing that he does could ever cool them off by the fraction of a degree.

It never even dawns on the millionaire of 70-odd that a girl of 20 is not marrying him for himself alone. The ratio of rich old men who marry young girls, and rich old women who marry boys, is the ratio of vanity between the sexes.

MEN are much more easily flattered than women. Both sexes gobble it up, of course, but when you flatter a woman you have to use far more skill and subtlety and discrimination in offering her tidbits of compliments than you do to a man. All he wants is quantity. Make it strong enough, and he will gulp it down whole.

The one and only way in which women display superior vanity to men is in their belief that they can reform men, that they can marry a drunkard and cure his thirst for liquor, or a philanderer and blind him to every other petticoat, or that they can inspire a neer-do-well to become a hustler. Very few men are conceited enough to believe themselves miracle workers who can alter the nature of women.

BUT any discussion of vanity between the sexes is the pot reproaching the kettle for its blackness. "Vanity of vanities," saith the preacher, "all is vanity."

Plans To Conquer Mt. Everest By Air

PARIS, March 5 .- By the simple process of flying over Mt. Everest tallest mountain in the world M. Callizo daring French flier, hopes to accomplish what climbers have failed many times to do. Numerous expeditions have fought their way through the lower recesses of the Himalayas only to be compelled to turn back when they were within strikturn back when they were within strik-ing distance of the top. The last such expedition ended tragically. Everest is still unconquered—the world's last rebel. Callizo holds the world's altitue record of 39,586, the mark Lt. MacReady of the U. S. army, recently endeavored to better in a test at Dayton, O. Everett is 10,000 feet lower than this, being 29,-140 feet above sea level. However, exploring the summit by air is not merely a master of achieving altitude. That would be simple enough. It is the fierce winds, eddles and squalls which sweep around the mountain that will give Callizo his greatest trouble. He hopes to overcome them by ascending to a height which will enable him to avoid them. But the exedition will be for naught unless he is able to get near enough to take some pictures, thus enabling scientists to answer some questions about the mountain top that always have been a mys-

"We shall have to climb this hill," said the Truffle Hunter, "and I warn you that it is very wobbly. I don't know whether you can stick on or not." "Sure we can," declared Nick. "We have magic shoes that the Fairy Queen gave us, and they will take us anywhere."

"Except," said Jupe, "where the magic is stronger than the Fairy 'Queen's magic. You know how hard it was to get into Blue Whiskers' castle and out again."

"All you can do is to try," adviser the Truffle Hunter, throwing his long nose over his shoulder and starting up the path. "Follow me."

So Jupe and the Twins started after. It was like trying to stand up on a rocking chair—climbing Cherry Bounce Hill: At every step the hill shook like a mould of gelatine turned out on a plate.

The higher they got the worse it.

He tried to reach it, but lost his bal-ance and dropped head over heels right down on the Truffle Hunter's long nose.

"Oh! Ouch! Murder!" shouted that gentleman with all his might, giving his nose a shake that landed poor Paddy-foot down at the foot of the hill again. The little mouse tried his best to squeal out that the blue cherry was right over their heads and for them to climb up and get it. But his voice was so little and the hill was so high, and the birds were chattering loudly, so it was useless to try to make them hear.

A flock of birds had settled in the cherry trees and were gobbling up the cherries as fast as they could. Robins and blackbirds and one great big blue-jay.

The big bluejay had come along from the north very swiftly and very quietly. Tree and watched Jupe and the Twins climb up.

He kept humming a little song as he searched:

"Here at truffie, there a truffie, Everywhere a truffie, truffie!"

"Say," said Jupe suddenly. "Are we searching for truffies or cherries. It seems to me that it would be better if you'd drop your nose up in the air for a spell, sir, instead of down on the ground."

He had seen Paddyfoot, the mouse, climb out of Jupe's pocket and scramble up toward the blue cherry. And he it was who gave the branch a shake and caused Paddyfoot to fall down on poor Truffie's nose.

He was a very queer bird, this big bluejay.

Suddenly he grabbed the blue cherry in his bill and flew away.

At that minute Paddyfoot came hurrying up the hill again. "You're too late!" he squealed. "That was old Blue Whiskers, the wizard, himself. He has stolen the blue cherry right from under your very noses!"

THE success which has attended the operations of the Sussex Cheese & Butter Company of Sussex, N. At the annual meeting of the Sussex Cheese and Butter Company, held recently, the encouraging announcement was made that from the earnings of the company it was found possible to not only to pay the producers a profitable return for their cream, but there remained undistributed earnings of $10,000, for which checks were handed to the factory's patrons. The company, in addition to this, paid its shareholders on a small capitalization a dividend of eight per cent. for the year and remembered its employes as well by giving them substantial bonuses.

These men, with one exception, are all-well known farmers. The manager of the concern, Mr. S. C. McCully, has been connected with the concern for a number of years, and under his administration the business has been placed on a sound financial footing as revealed by the results of last year's business. The company has not only won recognition as a producer of excellent butter, but it has developed a ready market for its ice cream output which has increased very rapidly in the last few years.

MISS WHITE'S GOOD WORK.

ACTION IS ENCOURAGING

It is encouraging in this province to see a practical farmer like Mr. Whalen calling attention to the need of modern methods in conducting our dairy operations. Not only does he advocate the grading of cream and the elimination of the production of inferior grades of butter, but he exhorts his fellow farmers to improve their dairy stock and to raise more food in this province for the upkeep of their cows. He believes that barley and good clover hay can be produced in larger quantities and to advantage in New Brunswick and he is urging his fellow farmers to get busy along these lines. Mr. Whalen also believes that the scientific rotation of crops should also occupy a prominent place in the operations of the milk producer, and he urges that more attention should be given to the scientific feeding of cattle.

MODERN METHODS.

LOOKS FOR MORE BUTTER

Mr. Whalen is looking forward to the time when the Kennebecasis Valley will produce more butter than it is producing today. He has struck a note which should attract province-wide attention. That he and his fellow crop-growers have made progress is best illustrated by the rapid growth of the business in the factory to which they bring their output. Such men are entitled to every encouragement and every assistance. The history of the Sussex Cheese & Butter Company simply shows how much can be done if more attention is given to the quality of the but-

An interesting feature of the progress of the Sussex Cheese and Butter Company is found in its modern methods of manufacturing butter. Some time ago it was decreed that cream grading would be enforced in dealing with the patrons of the factory. The mixing of sweet and sour creams was found to be an unprofitable and undesirable method in connection with the purchase of the company insisted that quality as well as quantity would count in connection with its buying department there were at first many objections, but the cream producers were gradually brought to see the desirability of handling nothing but the best cream available. It did not take long for the farmer to realize that the improvement in the quality of his supply to the factory meant more money in his pocket. It was also brought home to him, if he were a constant producer of high grade cream, that he was the victim of a viciaus system when his earnings were adversely affected by the farmer who brought in earnings were adversely affected by the farmer who brought in earnings were adversely affected by the farmer who brought in earnings were adversely affected by the farmer who brought in earnings were adversely affected by the farmer who brought in earnings were adversely affected by the farmer who brought in earnings were adversely affected by the farmer who brought in earnings were adversely affected by the farmer who brought in earnings were adversely affected by the farmer who brought in earnings were adversely affected by the farmer who brought in earning the farmer who have the farmer who have the farmer who brought in earning the farmer who have the far

HIGH GRADE CREAM FLOW.

But the company has passed that stage in its history and today enjoys a flow of cream which is of high standard and which has resulted in increased carnings through the advantages offered by a market which is appreciative of the improvements made in the production of Sussex butter.

New Brushwer can do much to advance its own interests by encouraging progressive men such as Mr. Whalen and his associate patrons of the Sussex Cheese & Butter Company and the producers of other dairy concerns for a still further increase in cream production.

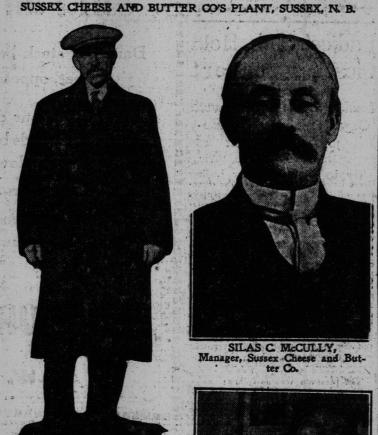

In this the farmers of this province. By paying out a quarter of a million dollars last year the Sussex Cheese & Butter Company put into circulation money which must have had a marked influence on business conditions in Sussex and in other parts of the province. Saskatche-FAVORS GRADING LAW

The Vice-President of the Company, Mr. George T. Whalen, is so impressed with the importance of good quality cream in connection with the production of butter that he is a strong advocate of a provincial law which will make it computation of Dolores Del Rio, Rita Carewe, Mary Loris and Manitoba are giving particular attention to increased dairy production. Surely with the advantages we enjoy in New Brunswick we should be equally alive to our opportunities and should profit by the exhortations of Mr. Whalen to improve conditions in connection with our dairy output.

Dolores Del Rio, Rita Carewe, Mary this session of the Legislature such legislation will be passed. It realises, as other dairy producing countries realized in some instances years assigned parts in "Heir's Apparent," a First National film,

Gorman, Malcolm And Maynes Likely To Make Team

Association of Canada are quietly laying plans now for the Olympic games in Amsterdam in 1928, and have already secured the consent of the Governor-General and the Lieutenant-Governors of all the provinces to act as honorary presidents of the Olympic committee. Six of the nine provincial Premiers have also signified their willingness to serve on the committee as honorary vice-presidents and no difficulty is anticipated in securing all of the Premiers for this body. The report of the 1924 committee, which was headed by P. J. Mulqueen, of Toronto, has come to hand and gives an exhaustive and detailed description of the team. OFFICIALS of the Amateur Athletic Four New Brunswick athletes were on this team, Charlie Gorman, Hilton Belyea and "Billy" Maynes, all of Saint John, and "Zan" Miller, of Sussex, who was vice-captain of the track and field team. One of the most promising athletes in all Canada who seems certain of catching on in 1928 is "Beef" Maly colm, the husky Trojan shot-putter. Malcolm missed the last team by inches, but with the improvement he has made and what can be expected, the local boy should have little difficulty in qualifying.

Maynes, who has been selected as thodes Scholar, will leave for Oxford University this fall for a three-year ourse, and as he intends to keep up his rack work, he, too, should make the 928 team. Gorman appears to be a urety already for the skaters. Both lelyea and Miller dropped out of active ompetition last year. Hilton has ropped a hint that he may compete at the Canadian Henley this year. It is probable that the same plan at was followed in 1924 will he can that was followed in 1924 will be carried along in 1928. Track and field meets will be held in the various provinces, with a final try-out at a central point. The best will then be sent to a camp in Montreal. Profiting by experience, it is probable, the Canadian contingent will get on the ground much earlier than in previous years to avoid inconveniences. Gorman did not have a single trial spin before the Olympic speed-skating events and such occurrences should be avoided.

Along The Sport Trail AT A RECENT meeting of the New Brunswick Amateur Skating

Association, the hope was expressed that there would be closer co-operation between the provincial body and the Canadian Amateur Skating Association and through them with other clubs in Canada. It is a good idea but when you talk of Canadian co-operation, glance over a few of the facts in connection with skating this winter. At the world's meet here, Eddie Stephenson, Miss Leila Brooks, and Eddie Gloster competed at the expense of the local association. Their railway and hotel bills were footed while Ross Robinson and Roy Pendril had their hotel bills paid while here. All these boys are from Toronto the Good. Pretty decent treatment, you say. Now what happens. Toronto the Just holds the Canadian championship speed-skating meet a few weeks later. One would naturally expect some kind of co-operation and reciprocity in this matter BUT NOT ONE SAINT JOHN BOY WAS EVEN INVITED TO COMPETE. The world's champion, Charlie Gorman, Canadian born and bred, had an idea he might like to compete and a wire was sent asking for expenses. THE WIRE NEVER WAS ANSWERED. Yet, Toronto the Good can pay Charlie Jewtraw's expenses for EXHIBITIONS (something Mr. Fitzgerald and other International Skating Union officials nearly fainted over when Gorman wanted to give an exhibition at Detroit) and pay Eddie Meyers' expenses, yet a Canadian boy, the best of the lot, was never even asked to compete for the national title of his country. This is the kind of co-operation that existed between Germany and the Allies during the war. If this is the kind of team-play that is going to be sprung on Saint John every year, we are certainly a bunch of dubs to allow them to put it over. It so happens that here in Saint John, we hold the key to the development of this great game. No other city on this continent has ever been able to do what we have done in this regard. Columns of gush in this regard has been thrown at us by officials of the I. S. U. for the last several years and we have boosted the game here as it has never been done before but how much longer are we to stand for this kind of treatment for our skaters. If the outsiders are good enough to bring here and dine them and let them compete, our own boys should be good for a return trip. If not, let's take a leaf out of Toronto's book and see that all the Canadian titles are won by our own boys down here. You will notice that all the Canadian titles are held by Torontonians. Who would expect otherwise?

THE MILLIGAN bubble blew up suddenly the other night when George Levine beat him easily. Tommy, apparently, has not got the championship calibre.

JUST WHAT constitutes proper athletics for women is arousing quite a storm of controversy in England these days and several war and football and other gentle pastimes. The prowess of British women at the Olympic games and at numerous meets with the fair and long jumping, hammer throwing and shot putting has made a wide appeal to certain sections of the feminine athletic world. Several big restaurant and manufacturing concerns also have women soccer teams which have played against French and other continental aggregations, often with marked success. The intention of two damsels to fight six rounds to a knockout in a well known pugilistic arena in London has served to focus attention on the form of sport the Amazons are usurping. There was such a clamor over the threatened feminine melee that the promoters have now abandoned the idea of staging such a bout. Warnings that big feet and athletic hearts may follow from such strenuous forms of sport as males indulge in has had no effect on them.

ON MONDAY night of next week, Moncton Atlantics and Sunny Brae Rovers, Moncton's senior hockey teams, will clash for the city title. That rushing sound you hear comes from the boys lining up for their seats at this battle.

The music tax bill, as proposed, gives power to authors, composers, their successors, assigns, heirs and agents generally to collect a scale of rates from every user of copy righted melodies under pain of injunction, fine or arrest.

such a law already exists in England, it is said, to the universal protest of the general public, and the Canadian movement of the same order emanates from Toronto. Strong opposition is developing against the measure which, it is claimed, has secured a formidable lobby. One of the chief arms of defence on behalf of people connected with the music trade, in its various subdivisions, is the Retail Merchants' Association.

In this city the branch of the R. M. A. is interviewing people at whom the proposed legislation would strike a blow and it is apparent Saint John will put up a strong fight.

Music dealers condemn the proposed measure as one that would be like

A number of theatrical bodies in Upper Canada have organized in opposition to the measure, but the 1,200 to 1,500 theatres of all kinds in the Dominion are not linked up by a national constitution and regulations and therefore find themselves at a disadvantage in this particular case. However, it was stated yesterday, rapid organization is now in progress through the Motion Picture Boards of Trade with headquarter in Toronto. Also through the medium of the Retail Merchants' Association, do they intend to give battle to the proposed measure.

Inspector Wm. McGrath said he and Inspector Hughes went into the beer shop. He noticed the accused and another man behind the counter.
