Immense Crowds Welcome the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York---Tribute to the Colonies.

Portsmouth, England, Nov. 1 .- To-; of the heir to the throne has imposed day's naval pageant in honor of the return of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York was almost a reproduction of the ceremonial attending their departure. The town and harbor were astir early, immense crowds assembled along the sea-front, and rounds of cheers, mingled with the National Anthem, and salutes from the harbor ships and land batteries, as the royal yacht Victoria and Albert started to meet the Ophir. On board the royal yacht, the King, in the undress uniform of an admiral, stood on the afterbridge at the salute, while the Queen and the children of the duke and duchess paraded the hurricane deck. STRIKING SPECTACLE. The roads presented a striking spect acle owing to the great gathering of warships dressed from stern to stern with their bunting and their sides lined with their crews. Nelson's old flagship, the Victor, started the salute to their majesties, and each ship in turn took it us as the Victoria and Albert moved down the Solent, accompanied by a flotilla of older royal vachts. Commenting upon the arrangement in connection with the arrival of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, the London correspondent of the Tribune says:

EXPLANATION. The explanation is that Admiral Maigret, commander of the Mediterranean fleet, returned to Toulon at 7 o'clock yesterday evening with all his vessels, except those belonging to Admiral Caillard's division. The correspondent of the news agency referred to miscounted the vessels, owing to the darkness. A corrected list of Admiral Caillard's ships is now published. THE DEATH RECORD.

Unexpected Demise of John McMillan, Ex-M. P. tor South Haron

Seaforth, Nov. 1 .- John McMillan, x-M.P. for South Huron, died at his residence, in the township of Hullett, this morning. The announcement of Mr. McMillan's death was a sore shock to the community. It had been known for a few days that he was ailing, but no one outside his immediate circle supposed his case was serious. An affection of the stomach was the immediate cause of death. John McMillan was 77 years of age. He came to Canada from Scotland in 1843, settling on a farm in the township of Hullett, in the same neighborhood where he has ever since resided. When he came to Huron there was little cleared land, and he settled in the bush and did his full share towards converting the dense forests into fruitful farms. For several years he has been one of the most extensive farmers and stock raisers in this part of Canada. From his first settlement he took a leading position among his fellow-men, and filled many positions of trust, municipally and otherwise. He was reeve of Hullett township for fifteen years, and resigned that position to become a member of the Dominion Parliament, in the Liberal in-terest. He first represented Center Huron, and after the reconstruction of the constituency he sat for South Huron from 1887 until the general election of 1900. He was a man of general ability, and being industrious and ambitious, he not only accumulated competency, but stored his mind with much useful general knowledge, so that, notwithstanding he had few educational advantages in his youth, he was a remarkably well educated man. His power and gifts as an eloquent and fluent platform speaker brought him into prominence, and there are few constituencies in the province that his voice has not been heard in, on the political platform or at farmers' institute meetings. He leaves a widow, two sons and one daughter.

OTTER DEATHS. Wm. Kilgour, aged 57, one of Morisburg's most prominent and influential citizens, died suddenly at noon yesterday. Heart trouble was the cause of death. Mr. Kilgour had been in the furniture business there a num-

Evidence All In-Address of Counsel to the Jury-A Question of Credibility.

Toronto, Oct. 31.-The Rice trial was continued this morning in the assize Three witnesses were offered by the crown in rebuttal of Rice's evi-Constable Stewart swore that Rice's account of the affray was false, and in particular denied Rice's story that Boyd had a revolver. The late Constable Boyd's two daughters swore that on the day of the murder they saw their father's revolver at home, thus contradicting Rice's assertion that he had been

Mr. Robinette began his address to terrupted by the adjournment at 12:45 p.m. He gave a masterly review of the evidence, and in particular maintained that the fact that Rutledge had, after leaving the hack, been ahead of Stewart all the time, and that Rout-ledge had Stewart's revolver when overpowered, substantiated Rice's story that Stewart had been disarmed in the hack. From a review of the evidence, he passed to a powerful and moving plea for sympathy with the prisoner and his relatives. At the afternoon session of the Rice trial, Mr. Robinette, for the defense, finished his address to the jury, and Mr. Guthrie, crown prosecutor, de-livered his. Chief Justice Falconlivered his. bridge then adjourned the court. He will deliver his charge tomorrow morn-

Mr. Robinette, in concluding his address, held that medical evidence showed that Jones was shot inside the hack, and that Stewart's evidence was wrong. He held that the crown had produced no evidence to show the exstence of a plot, and suggested that it was the killing of Boyd which caused Routledge to commit suicide. He closed with a pathetic reference to the family of the prisoner.

Mr. Guthrie delivered an able summing up of the case. He countered on Mr. Robinette's reference to the home that would be blighted were found guilty by recalling the fact that Boyd's home had already been deso-lated. He reviewed the evidence, holding that Stewart had been quite candid. He drew attention to the fact with regard to the man's aspect of the story—it was the word of Stewart against Rice, and a question as to which of the two was most credible.

IN A LAND OF GOLD

Five Hundred Men Left Penniless and Without Means of Making a Living.

Port Townsend, Wash., Oct. 30.—The steamers Queen and Valencia arrived today from Nome. Each brought 800 passengers. On the Queen were 190 stowaways, who succeeded in boarding the vessel by climbing up the anchor chain while the vessel was at anchor in the roadway at Nome. Passengers report that 500 men were left at Nome, all of whom were penniless, and with no means of making a living during the winter, and a reign of terror is predicted. During the entire voyage of the Queen petty thefts were of daily occurrence.

roronto, Oct. 31.—The funeral of the late W. E. H. Massey began at 1:30 this afternoon. Through the morning the casket was placed in the hallway of the family residence at 550 Jarvis street, and many friends of the deceased availed themselves of the opportunity of having a last look at his features. The floral offerings were extremely numerous and a last look at his features. The floral offerings were extremely numerous and magnificent, among them being a pillow of 1,000 Calla lilies, the gift of the Massey-Harris Company. At 1:30 p.m. a brief private service was held at the house; it was conducted by Rev. W. H. Hincks, LL.B., and Rev. G. J. Bishop. The Sherlock Male Quartet sang "Abide With Me." The funeral then proceeded to Central private service was held at the house; it was conducted by Rev. W. H. Hincks, LL.B., and Rev. G. J. Bishop. The Sherlock Male Quartet sang "Abide With Me." The funeral then proceeded to Central Methodist Church, where a large audience was gathered. Included in it were upwards of 1,000 employes of the Massey-Harris Company, who had met at the factory and journeyed to the church by street cars provided by the company. The service was conducted by Rev. J. A. Rankin, pastor of the church: Rev. G. J. Bishop, of London, and Rev. W. H. Hincks. The honorary pall-bearers were Hon. George A. Cox, Hon. L. M. Jones, J. K. week or two. Dr. Catler insists that the contagion is only a very mild type of smallpox, and that the public have no serious cause for alarm; but nevertheless, he advises every persor to be vaccinated as soon as possible.

Toronto, Oct. 31.—Dr. P. H. Bryce, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, states that some of the lumber manufacturers in Northern Ontario are not complying with the regulations regarding the precautions to be taken against the smallpox. Those who are living up to the law find themselves seriously handicapped by the negligent ones. The laborers, who are scarce at the present time, prefer to make for where there are fewer restrictions upon them.

LADIES WHO DISCARD THE SIDE SADDLE!

Leaders of Society in Tuxedo Introduce the Style of Riding Astride.

Goshen, N.Y., Nov. 1.—The side-saddle has had its day in Tuxedo. Mrs. Paul Tuckerman has introduced a new style of riding among the many fair and the had a significant to the side of the side. of riding among the many lair and charming horsewomen. She has discarded the side-saddle and donned a new costume of divided skirts and trousers, which permits her to ride astride, and is very smart and stylish. Every day she very smart and stylish. Every day she may be seen flying over the graveled driveways riding man-fashion, with all the skill and grace of an accomplished equestrienne. The innovation has been equestrienne. The innovation has been very popularly received, and next season it is confidently expected that it will be generally adopted by every horsewoman in the Tuxedo colony. Mrs. Tuckerman's stable of saddlers is small, but it contains only the most spirited and best-bred horses. She is not altogether alone in the matter of riding astride, for Mrs. Hitchcock has ridden man-fashion at Meadow Brook this season, as have also the Misses Smith at Saratoga.

Romantic Escapade of Old Man and Blush ing Spinster at Louisville, Kv.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 1 .- J. M. Kidwell, a grandfather, from Oldham county, led Miss Lucy Wilson, a blushing maid of 40, up to the front of a bob-tailed country street car and they were married by a hastily picked up preacher whom the accommodating driver had provided.

Charles Ashcraft, driver of the car from Louisville, to Highland Park, 8 miles, was just starting on his one o'clock run when an old man with a woman hailed him. The first question after getting aboard the car was for

'They're following us close; whip up," begged the man. The little mules never made the eight miles so quickly before. As the car stopped at Highland Park the driver spied Rev. A. Staul, a minister. In five minutes the runaways man and wife. As the preacher said, "I declare you man and wife," a foam-covered horse brought up a mud-covered buggy on the gallop. Two stalwart sons of the groom piled out. When told they were too late they drove off without offering congratu-

Sour Stomach

Is Often the Real Cause of Sour Temper.

That the condition of the digestive organs has a marked effect upon the character or disposition is a truism as old as the hills. Old Ben Jonson wisely said, "the pleasure of living depends upon the liver," and it is a fact which none may dispute that a sunny disposition more often results from a healthy digestion than from any other cause.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called comfort and irritation.

Such half digested food is indeed poor nourishment for the body, brain and nerves and the result is shown in irritable tempers, unaccountable headaches and that depressing con-already irritated stomach and bowels and have no effect upon actual digestion of food. The sensible course to follow is to make use of simple natural digestives like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after meals until the stomach has a chance The natural digestives which every healthy stomach contains are pep-tones, diastase, and hydrochloric and lactic acids, and when any of them are lacking the trouble begins. The reason Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are so valuable and successful in curing stomach troubles is because they contain, in a pleasant, concentrated tablet form, all these absolutely necessary essentials for perfect digestion and assimilation of food. Henry Kirkpatrick, of Lawrence, Mass., says: "Men and women whose occupations preclude an active outdoor life should make it a daily practice to use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after meals. I have done so myself graduated from school with broken health from overwork, until I was 34, I scarcely knew what it was to be free from stomach weakness. I had "I had acidity and heartburn nearly every day and sometimes was alarmed by irregularity and palpitation of the heart, but all this gradually disappeared after I began using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and I can eat my meals with relish and satisfaction which I had not known since I was a growing boy."

THE POLITE DIME NOVEL

It Has Gotten Into Polite Society After a Struggle.

Tis Still the Dime Novel, However, Unthinking, Unreasonable, Un-

[New York Times.]

The dime novel, after years of struggle, has at last gotten into good society. Slowly he has worked his way up from the slums, through the intermediate grades, and now rejoices in handsome clothes, good manners, a home up-town, and frequent summer excursions to the mountains of the seashore. A generation ago his home was the Bowery, and his friends the unregenerate, cigar - stump - smoking street boy and the grocery clerk. He wore cheap clothes of yellow and scarlet paper and fine print, and his language was shocking. Manners he had none. Slowly he has learned to use good English, to be less loud in dress, and to seek friends among the less ignorant classes. He was diligent and regardless of snubs.

And now he is polite to the extreme, with a wide range of conversation, irreproachably dressed, in large, clear print, good paper, and tasteful covers of buckram! His English is the best, and he disports himself in a Pullman car, and lounges carelessly on the piazzas of best summer hotels and in the boudoirs of elegant villas. He patronizes the best steamer lines when he goes abroad, and the days of his bourgeiose past he apparently has forgot-

Shall we discuss those rough days when the stage coaches were held up by his pals and when he captured. single-handed, the fierce redskin in the midst of his warriors? We may, but we will not. Those vulgar exploits are best forgotten, together with the sleuths and ranchmen and cowboys and buckskin-clad heroines of his cruder years.
The dime novel of today is nothing

if not elegant. He is still breathlessly entertaining of speech and full of swing and dash, but he talks of colonial gentlemen wooing white-kerchief-ed maids in the face of angry Loyalist fathers and arrogant British officers. He discusses French cavaliers in velvets and ruffles, fighting irregular campaigns under the cardinal or roystering Spanish pirates, who loot and plunder with all the savagery of the greaser and the train-robber, but with

He has been accepted by the uptown publishers and introduced by them into society which would scorn him under any less euphonious name than the historical or the colonial novel. He has worked hard and won his way step by step, and now that he is at last 'polite," well dressed and wealthy, he thinks that bygones should be bygones And, in this democratic country, why should they not be awarded praise for his energy and push, even if those who have accepted him and taken him so unreservedly into their hearts cannot

Recently an offer of $2,000 was made by a cinematograph owner to the authorities at Auburn prison for the opportunity of obtaining a picture of President McKinley's murderer on his way to the electric chair. Not long since, a man with a phonograph was providing a disgusting intertainment in the shape of a reproduction of the heart-rending moans of a negro being burned at the stake. Does it not seem to indicate a state of degeneracy in a crowd to take enjoyment or satisfaction out of such spectacles? The authorities should mete out their most unqualified censure and punishment on such exhibitions. In this respect at least the law should contravene to act as a custodian of

The Ministers and State Functions.

The Ottawa Ministerial Association has taken up the question of ecclesiastical precedence at state functions in this country, and are reported as leaning to the view that a fair solution of the difficulty, which has repeatedly cropped up since Confederation, would be to take precedence on the relative strength of the denominations.

What would be the practical outcome of the change?

Should Canada Send Another Contingent to South Africa.

We observe a disposition on the part of a number of our contemporaries to indorse the view of Dr. Parkin, Toronto, who, at a recent public gathering, reflected on Canada for what he was pleased to call her apathy with regard to the war in South Africa. Dr. Parkin stated that the position of affairs in that part of the British Empire is a cause of concern, yet Canadians remained cool and critical. He accused Canadians of criticising the British in the field and yet staying out of the army themselves, while the and he asked why were not 5,000 of them in South Africa now? It is easy for anyone like Dr. Parkin to criticise Canada's conduct in the present juncture, but there ought to dissents most emphatically. The only be a limit to this berating of the Dominion for not doing more than she has done. In the matter of showing her desire to be one with the empire of which she is a part, Canada, in this war, took a great step forward. tion she had hitherto taken with regard to the defense of the empire. Dr. Parkin was not around these parts when the empire was threatened by Russia, twenty years ago, or when the gravest complications were likely to arise at any moment from the struggle in Egypt, or he could see for himself how great was the advance Canada took when she sent contingents of her best sons to stand shoulder to shoulder with the flower of the British army in the defense of the empire, and spent millions of dollars in equipping and sending them forward. There was a time in her history when the most that Canada was ready to concede in a similar struggle was the liberty to British army officers to enroll Canadian recruits for the British regiments. But on this occasion, regularly organized Canadian regiments went to the African veldt by the thousand at the instance of the Government, and their blood mingled with that of their fellow-upholders of British law and British institutions

Imperial Federation.

This phrase reminds one of the say ing, "If you do not ask me, I know." There are many of us who know what imperial federation means, if we are not asked to give a clear, concise definition or to outline a complete scheme. This idea of the drawing together of the colonies and the mother country into a confederation of free nations, that will stand close together in mutual defense and work for peace and civilization, this is, we say, a great idea. It has taken hold of Britishers throughout the world, and it is destined to have a powerful influence in the realm of politics and commerce. But it is difficult to formulate any embodied fact. There is a large argument that it is well to go slowly in the attempt to bring this thought into the sphere of practical politics. There are so many interests to be safeguarded, and so many traditions and customs to be considered, that the attempt to go too fast may injure the cause that the enthusiastic mnerialist has at heart. Indeed, it

It is not well to make a single proproposal that a general defense fund someone else. Anarchism.

This subject has been forced upor our attention of late, and naturally it has given rise to a great variety of opinions. Sir Wemyss Reid, a representative English Liberal, says: "How to deal with anarchism and the anarchists is one of the grave problems of the day throughout the civilized world, and the crime at Buffalo has necessarily impressed the public afresh with a sense of its imperative urgency." He answers the statement that society has itself to blame for the existence of the noxious foes of the human race, because society has tolerated the evil conditions that breed anarchism, and that therefore should show tenderness the professor of the deadly creed of public assassination. Sir Wemyss Reid regards this as "a preposterous inversion of reason and justice." His reply is that no man living can be held responsible for the causes specified, causes which have been working from generation to generation for centuries. "We may accept the anarchists, if we please, as offering us a warning of the rottenness of much in our economic system, but we can no more afford to treat and makes him aware of the fact that ment of the empire by building up a liberty, license must be suppressed, It does not seem an unreasonable United Canada. This we can do, and and the man who murders in the name thing that a remedy should be provid- be ready to give our best aid when a of liberty must be severely dealt with. ed for this anomaly, the objection to real crisis comes. a free, self-governing country such violence is in the highest degree a crime against liberty.

National Hoggishness Will Not Do.

Hoggishness is not necessarily lucrative in the long run. This is illustrated by the present keen desire of United States business men for reciprocity of trade with other countries. In its trade relations with other countries, the United States has been the most sublime illustration of selfishness on record. Take the trade relation between Great Britain and the United States. The latter put up a tariff wall of immense height against the former; while resenting anything in the way of the suggestion of high tariffs against the United States on the part of Britain. But the business people of the big republic are beginning to see that onesided selfishness will not do, and a demand for some consideration for other nations and other people is beginning to awaken echoes from ocean to ocean.

ENGLISH PRONUNCIATION

How Some Words Sound When Spoken b. Edward's Subjects.

[London Standard.] During the last few days we have a number of letters complaining of prevalent errors in the treating the later; but of the two pronunciation of English. Our correspondents point out that consonants ant face." "I know. But she is one and vowels are constantly so clipped who has any and slurred over-not always by uneducated persons-that their speech is either unintelligible or very disagreeable to listen to. These sins against the richest and, on the whole, the most descriptive, if not the most muear, and are in an entirely different category from mere provincialisms, which are often historically and philologically interesting, even when they are harsh or uncouth. Local pronunciations are, indeed, always with us. There was a Cockney dialect, as readers of "Picwick" will remember, threequarters of a century ago, though it differed considerably from that now in vogue. "Put it down a we, my slurred sentences. lord," has ceased to be appropriate.
The elusive letter which is "whispered in heaven and muttered in hell, is perhaps less generally overlooked than once it was, but if the modern Cockney manages to avoid Sam Weller's troubles with certain sounds, he falls quite as constantly into others which are distinctly more offensive. It is imposible to save one's ears from such words as "lydy" and "Benk." The trouble, however, goes deeper than this. Not only are vowels pronounced wrongly, but consonants are dropped, and whole words slurred over. Some correspondents blame the teachers in the schools, but, after all, their pronunciation, though on the much better than that the children, can bare-be perfect, and, in any case they have to struggle in a few hours of class time against the permanent Influence of home. As the parents speak, so do the children, ex cept that they contract additional faults from the lower educational platform of the street. Children are born mimics, and unfortunately, are more prone to imitate the wrong than the right. Even in the most refined households it is difficult to prevent them copying the faulty pronunciation of the servants. So subtle is the influence of the ear that even adults do not find it easy to keep quite free from local intonation. Even bishops and highly educated taries sometimes retain traces of the accent of their native county; while that of Scotland and Ireland is yet more persistent. The modern method of pronouncing English, even by the best standards, no doubt lays careless speakers peculiarly liable to sole-Our pronunciation has uncisms. questionably undergone serious changes during the last two or three questionably centuries; and, whatever may once tave been the case, Erglish is spoken upon a system entirely different from that of the continental

Most of the European languages give the proper value to every syl-lable, almost to every letter. Where so much of a word is correctly silent, ignorance and carelessness are certo extend the liberty. English is by no means unmusical, when it is lacks, it is true, the melodious sweetness of Russian, or what Charles V. is reputed to have considered the lovemaking qualities of Italian; but, on the other hand, it certainly is not a language in which to "swear at horses." As one of our correspondents justly remarks, our consonants no more get their due than vowels. People have long acquiesced in malconsonants are the more important for distinctness in speaking, as anyone familiarity with modern languages derived from Latin will admit. To elide as much of a word as posible is not merely to speak indistinctly and ungracefully, but to help that clipping process which, is likely enough, was at one time almost unknown in English pronunciation. Some correspondents blame the clergy for defective speech, and not without prejudice to a great extent. But it is often more difficult to understand the words used "in choirs and places where they sing" than those which come from the pulpit or the lectern. The truth is that all classes of society sin in this respect, chiefly, no doubt, from sheer carelessness and inability to appreciate the difference between graceful speech and

Since the publication of the story of Frank Colleaux, of Oak Lake, much attention has been directed to some similar cases in this neighborhood. One of the most striking of these is that of William Lloyd, who for months past has had Diabetes. All the dangerous symptoms were present. He ost over 30 pounds in weight in less than three months. He heard of the good work Dodd's Kidney Pills were doing and started to use them. Very soon he began to recover. His thirst left him, he gained in weight, and one by one the unpleasant symptoms were forgotten till now he is well

PRESS CLUB OPENS ITS NEW ROOMS

Takes Possession of Quarters in Grand Opera House.

Jolly Time Spent at an All Hal- other cities. His voice is a bass, rich,

A Noteworthy Occasion Made Merry With Songs, Speeches, Instrumental Music and a Good Supper.

The Press Club of London, which opened its new rooms in the Grand Opera House building last night, showed that while young in age and experience, it has the qualities so often associated with youth-vigor and enthusiasm. The Hallowe'en supper that brought the members and their friends together for the first time in the new quarters will not soon be forgotten by those whose pleasure it was to be present. In more happy ways than one it was a noteworthy occasion. Jollity and good comradeship have ever been known to result from an evening given over to a good supper, a good song, a ed, doubtless, by reports concerning good speech, and the newspapermen had all three. To the founders of the Press Club, an institution that for obvious reasons it is oft-times difficult to organize, the evening was particularly auspicious, since at the club's birth, its early dissolution was predict- Mr. C. E. A. Webbe. ed. Instead, it has thrived and grown strong, in a manner that has exceeded the hopes of the promoters. For these reasons, last night's affair was a memorable one; but there is one greater than these, in which the public, as well as the men of the fourth estate, are interested. As one speaker said during the evening, the day is not so far distant as to be beyond the memory of all, when it would have been wholly impossible, even as it is still impossible London, a day of constrained attitudes not restricted to public utterances, but extended to the editorial and business staffs, and now, though the fight is being waged keener than ever before, it is being carried on more merrily. This is the spirit that is being fostered by the Press Club, to the betterment, it is hoped, of all three papers.

The success of the supper, which was entire and unalloyed, was attained only by the aid of a number of good friends of the press. By their assistance the rooms were made to look exceedingly attractive, and to resound to capital song and music; and dining in jolly company, pleasant as it is, is still more enjoyable when the eye and ear, as well as the palate, are gratified. Some of Colerick's beautiful pictures were kindly loaned to adorn the walls, and an aburdance of flowering and foliage plants from Gammage's were used effectively in the decorations. Mr. John Friend supplied the supper—sufficient indication that it was excellent. Mr. Friend is known as a competent newspaper men last night were happy to believe that he had surpassed his self in preparation, in spreading his tables, and in his service. The club was most fortunate, possibly, in its musical programme, and, indeed, the members thought that in this one feature their banquet was in a class that has not been reached by any banquet that has been held in London for years.

While the supper was in progress, and after, Mr. F. L. Evans' splendid or-chestra played delightfully, and in an intermission between toasts, the company had the very great pleasure of hearing two violin solos by Mr. Maurice Poure. Mr. Newton Large, Mr. E. C. Cunningham, Mr. George Zwicker, and Mr. Arthur Certhrage the Leviller and Mr. Arthur Garthwaite, the Lon don Male Quartet, sang admirably, and pleased the company more than applause and encores could signify. Mr. Large can receive no new praise for his singing, and Messrs. Zwicker and Cunningham are each well known as accomplished soloists, the latter, too, as a planist of much ability, and Mr. Garthwaite, who, of the quartet, is the least known as yet, has sung here often enough to win commendation as high and sincere as he has received in sonorous and well-controlled, and assures him a prominent place amor vocalists. Each member of the quartet sang solos that were greatly preciated and encored. and same was true also solo by Mr. Will Spence. One of the most entertaining portions of the programme was provided by Messrs. Shuby and Gaffey, of Mr. Geo. Fenberg's excellent company, playing at the London Opera House. Both gentlemen are among the best musicians who have come to London with any organization. During the evening Mr. George Phelps, the brilliant young organist of St. James' Church, South London, favored the company with two instrumental solos. The honorary president of the club. Mr. T. H. Purdom, K. C., presided, the president, Mr. Walter Blackburn, being unavoidably absent, and to his ready wit and happy gift of speech, much of the evening's pleasure was The company drank right royally to "His Majesty the King," and sang the national prayer for his good health and happiness more earnestly than usual, it seemed-an earnestness that was causan illness that happily have been proved untrue Mr. Edward Clissold the esteemed veteran of local newspaperdom, made

In introducing this toast, the chairman made a eulogistic reference to the late Mr. Archie Bremner, whose greatest attachment, outside of his newspaper work, had been the drama, and all joined with him in regretting the vacancy caused by the death of that all-round newspaper man and allround good fellow, to whom such a club as the Press Club would have been so great a delight. "The Modest Members" had three brave enough champions, in Mr. Frank Adams, Mr. J. Alex. McNeil and Mr. J. H. Dempster, and to the toast "Our Juniors," Mr. Wallace Laut and Will Clissold replied. Votes of thanks to the chairman and the musicians who had helped in the entertainment were adopted with applause, and the National Anthem concluded the evening. The invited guests of the evening, together with the club members, included Messrs. C. S. Hyman, M.P.; Thos. Coffey, Col. NAVIGATION NOTES

Why Ailen Liners Have Not Met With

Accidents in the Gulf. London, Nov. 1 .- Chick Bombay, an official of the Allan Steamsnip Line, has been interviewed by the Daily Express in regard to the St. Lawrence route. He states that the Allan Line had to adopt a masthead compass on entering the St. Lawrence. A man climbs up to the in-strument and signals the course with a strument and signals the course with a whistle. It was James A. Allan who has insisted on the adoption of the wooden mizzenmast and elevated compass, and since its adoption not a single accident has occurred to any of the Allan boats navigating ti	he Gulf of St. L	awrence.

Who Carries the Risk?

There are many married men uninsured who say, when approached for an application for life insurance that they are perfectly able to carry their own risk. Others put the agent off for a while, saying they are able to invest their money to better advantage, and are willing to run the risk of dying uninsured. But do they run any risk? Not a bit of it. The risk is carried by their he having removed to that city. wives and children, who will perhaps not have sufficient to buy even the necessities of life in the event of their protector's death. In their selfishness these men think only of themselves and their present existence-not of their families and the future.

The annual investment of a small percentage of your income in a continuous installment policy as issued by the Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada, Toronto, transfers the risk to the company's shoulders, and in the event of your death will make the future of your family bright and happy. It will secure to them a definite annual income for at least 20 years, and for so long after that time as your wife survives you. You will thus be relieved of all worry in regard to their future welfare, and be able to attend to your business duties with an easy mind. The Imperial's continuous installment policy is an ideal contract, embracing, as it does, all the liberal provisions that have made the company's policies so popular with the nsuring public. Fuller information may be obtained from any agent of the company or from the London office, 442 Richmond street. Geo. R. Hamilton, manager Western Ontario.

AT CLOSE QUARTERS

Mexican Troogers and Yaqui Indians Have a Hot Fight-Red Men Lose 15 Braves.

Tucson, Arizona, Nov. 1 .- A desperate battle took place on Wednesdan between Yaquis and Mexican cavalry. Fifteen Yaquis were killed or wounded and a number of troopers were wounded. The charge was led by Lieut.-Col. Quintro, with 300 men, all mounted. They left Guaymas, after receiving repeated dispatches announcing raids made by Indians. The Indians were camped in Latuna Canon when the troops came upon them. A fight at close range began and lasted 20 minutes. The troops rode upon the Indians, killing them with their six-shooters. The Indians fell back, and securing their horses made for the mountains. The troopers are in pursuit and more fighting is expected. Lieut.-Col. Quintro is highly commended for his bravery by the people of Guaymas.

IMPERIAL FUNCTION

Attendant on the Return of the Royal Tourists.

Colonists Will Be at the Fore—Arrival of the Ophir and Escort at Portsmouth.

London, Nov. 1 .- The army and the London holiday crowds will unite in the welcome tomorrow, but to the colonies will be accorded the distinction of emphasizing the imperial nature of the function. Their official representatives, headed by Mr. J. G. Colmer, C.M.G., as Lord Strathcona's deputy Colmer for Canada, will be at the Victoria station to present addresses of con-gratulation and welcome and receive a reply. They will be introduced by Mr. Chamberlain to the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall. The colonies will in this way place the final seal upon the imperial mission, and the King will not defer many days the investure of his son with the title of Prince of

AT PORTSMOUTH. Portsmouth, England, Nov. 1.-Off

Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, the Victoria and Albert and the Ophir met and exhanged signals of greeting.

At about 2 o'clock the booming of distant guns announced the approach royal vessels, and the procession soon hove in sight. As the Victoria and Albert, the Ophir and two ironclads, steaming in file, one after the other, passed down the line of the fleet, guns, bands and cheers comingled with the welcome to the royal travelers.

A THRILLING SCENE. Portsmouth, Eng., Nov. 1,-As the Victoria and Albert neared the harbor the troops ashore presented arms and the garrison battery fired a final The bands everywhere struck up "God Save the King," and thou-sands of bluejackets on board the ships in the harbor repeatedly cheered the royal party.

The demonstrations were renewed as the Ophir entered, her band playing "Home Sweet Home." The Duke and the Duchess of Cornwall and York occupied a conspicuous position on the upper deck of the yacht, bowing in response to the demonstrations of the thousands of people lining the har-

FINE ART IN THE MAKING OF CANDY

Company's New Store.

Something About the Olympia Candy Work

Lovers of dainty things in confections will hail with delight the advent of the Olympia Candy Works Company, whose magnificent new store at 186 Dundas street, will be formally opened tomorrow. Mr. Karkampass, the manager of the new concern-who, by the way, is a native of Sparta, that province of Greece which produced Leonidas, the hero of Thermopylaeis himself an expert candy-maker, and such an array of toothsome sweets as the public will be permitted to feast their eyes upon tomorrow was never before seen in London. The large store, at 186 Dundas street has been, at great expense, furnished with costly fittings, and is in every respect one of the most complete candy establishments in Ontario. The Olympia Company intends to demonstrate that the making of bon-bons is an art. Every one of their delicious chocolate and sugar plums is fashioned with as much care as the modeler devotes to his

The store will be richly decorated with flowers tomorrow, and every visitor will receive a floral souvenir.

Friends of the Retired Commander Are Not Cast Down.

War Office Appealed To To Make an Official Statement of Facts Regarding the Now Noted Message to Gen. White.

New York, Nov. 1 .- According to the Tribune, Gen. Buller's friends are not cast down by the National Review's publication of the alleged Colenso heliograph message. They assert that the truth will now be forced out, and that the complete text will show that the passage quoted has been more or less garbled. Gen. Buller's friends assert that he learned in advance that the National Review would have the articles which have caused so much commotion and decided to forestall them. The editor of the magazine is a son of the late Admiral Maxso, and his sister is the wife of Lord Edward Cecil, the prime minister's son, who was with Baden-Powell at Mafeking. There is a general appeal to the war office to make an official statement in regard to the heliographic messages from Gen. Buller to Sir George White. Gen. Buller, it is stated, has been advised by his friends to take legal proceeds against the National Review.

A NEW BOULANGER. Gen. Buller threatens to blossom into a British Boulanger. He does not appear to court privacy or to discoun tenance demonstrations. He attended a theater in London last evening, and when he was recognized and cheered, he arose to his feet and bowed his acknowledgments. Outside the building Gen. Buller was mobbed by cheering crowds.

There is no doubt that a large sec tion of the troops is indignant at the general's dismissal. The Highland Light Infantry expressed their feeling by removing from the walls of its mess room the portrait of a distinguished field marshal, which was kicked around the barracks, while a portrait of Gen. Buller was carried around the mess in triumph. Soldiers en route, when marching past Gen. Buller's house, frequently break out with cheers. Welsh soldiers in Cardiff adopted a resolution, demanding the resignation of Brodrick, the war secretary, for his harsh treatment of Buller. RHODES REPUDIATES PRINCESS BILLS. Cape Town, Nov. 1.-The affidavits of Cecil Rhodes, repudiating bills aggregating £23,000, drawn in favor of the Princess Radziwill (of the German branch of the Radziwill family), and purposting to have been signed by Mr. Rhodes, have arrived here. The supreme court has issued a writ of impriconment against the princess on account of a minor debt for £113. RUSSIAN BATTLESHIP ASHORE.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST THE BUBONIC PLAGUE.

Instructions Issued by the Dominion Director-General of Public Health-500,-000 Bushels of Oats Wanted.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 1 .- On account of the bubonic plague at Glasgow, Dr. Montigambert director-general of public health, has issued a circular letter to all steamship companies, requiring all medical officers of vessels to prepare and hand to the quarantine office on arrival at Canadian ports, a statement of the temperature of every person on board, taken within 24 of arrival. This will draw the attention of the inspecting officers to cases of disease, indicated by a rising temperature, and will-insure that the ship surgeon is brought in contact with everyone on board. In addition, instructions have been issued to all quarantine officers to resume with regard to Liverpool and Glasgow the special instructions issued last year, when there was bubonic at Glasgow. as much as the present reports of isolated cases in Glasgow seem to justify the department in doing.

CANADIAN OATS WANTED. Prof. Robertson, of the department of agriculture, has placed a war office or der for oats in Alberta, N. W. T. The order is for over half a million bushels.

THE RICE MURDER CASE. Toronto, Nov. 1 .- After the judge's charge today, in the Rice murder case the wait for the verdict began, the court rising at 1:15 until 1:45 p,m.

ELSIE.

"Elsie, you will be sorry if you listen to gossip, and if you let gossip separate you from me you will be sorry," he went you from me you will be sorry," he went on, speaking more softly, "because you have a loving heart and a tender conscience, and you hate injustice; and when you find that you have been unjust towards me you will be overwhelmed with vain regrets. I shall be over the seas in another land—perhaps I shall be dead." His voice shook a little as he spoke, Elsie wanted to burst into tears, but she put a desperate control on her feelings. "Tell those tales to Miss Bracegirdle," she said.

"Tell those tales to Miss Bracegirdle," she said.

"Miss Bracegirdle may go to Halifax!" he cried, petulantly. "Everyone must knew that she is only like a picture or a book to me, not a girl whom I care for. I only care for you Elsle, in all this wide world; and I have acted like a ruffian. Rosa Stanly has found me out. I was going to marry her at one time for her money; she knows it all now, and she despises me. It is all over between us, Elsle; if I don't have you I will never marry at all, but if you would promise to be my wife—"

"When Lord Hammond told you yes-"When Lord Hammond told you yes-terday, Mr. Owen Hammond, that he had found you kneeling at a lady's feet, and teling her she had your heart—when he told you that why did you not deny it?" "Because the facts were, so far, true. He would not have listened to my ex-planations. Miss Bracegirdle has ridden over to Raby Hall several times lately."
"So I have heard," said Elsie, scorn-fully.

She has taken an interest in my "Your studies!" cried Elsie, contemptu-"She has given me a few sittings, draped as Lady Jane Grey."

"What do you mean?" asked Elsie.
"I mean that I have some kind of faculty for portrait-painting, and lately I have worked hard at it. I have no profession, and I mean to make one for myself. Lord Hammond rode over to Raby one morning to see my father on kirt. self. Lord Hammond rode over to Raby one morning to see my father on business. He came suddenly into a room where Miss Bracegirdle sat in her riding habit, having taken off her hat. I had asked her to sit in that position that I might make a pencil sketch for future studies. You must remember, Elsie, that at that moment I believed you were married, and lost to me forever."

"Miss Bracegirdle told you that, Owen?"

"Miss Bracegirdle told you that, Owen?"
The name escaped her unawares. A smile flashed into Owen's eyes; he saw that Elsie was softening.
"She told me that, and I did not tell her that I should never be happy again because I had lost you. I told her that my heart was set on my art! I said, in his hearing, 'You know my heart!' and I was kneeling in such a position that I was kneeling in such a position that I might catch the expression of her eyes that the better for my sketch. "I wish I dared to believe you!" she said, giving way now to her tears.

He caught both her hands and held them as in a vice.

"If I could trust you!" he said. "Oh, Elsie, something something fearful has hannered!"

If I could trust you!" she echoed, "If A nameless horror seemed all at once to overshadow both Elste and Owen, as they stood there between the lights and shadows of the trees in the early spring morning. Both were glad at heart; each trusted in the other's love from that day forth and for every but they were forth and for ever; but there was, a secret in Owen's eyes that Elsie had never seen ere before-something she could not fathom and dared not guess at.

Elsie, by sorrow, oppression, and dread to do anything wrong, believe that that person was out of his senses at the time, driven by poverty, and the scorn of the world, and the fear of those rich, overbearing, detestable titled Hammonds. Oh! you don't know the bitterness of being the poor relations, the branch which bring dishonor to the family tree; to be highly connected and in debt to your wine merchant and your tailor, to feel low and base; to know that coarse, rich people mock and scorn you; to feel all this while your lineage is noble and your crest has the royal arms of the Tudors mingled with its quarterings; to know that you have knightly blood in your veins, and to feel that the knightly splrit is crushed within, and you by the weight of sordid cares! If you had ever come to Raby you would have seen moth-eaten curtains and old faded carpets; and if curtains and old faded carpets; and if you had visited us you would have found that the house-linen was in rags, the tablecloths and table-napkins. What did he mean? what did it all mean? what was he pleading for? Whom was he pleading for? Whom was he pleading for? Not alone was he asking for Elsie's love; he seemed to be assured of that, as indeed he might have been when he watched the lights in her blue-gray eyes, which changed their color to that odd, beautiful gray greenness while the looked at him, and a flush came and went on her smooth and a flush came and went on her smooth cheeks. She asked him no more questions about his flirtations with other girs; sne believed nothing now, nothing at all against him. She saw what had driven him to think of marrying an heiress; sne quite believed that what had prompted him to release himself while there was yet time was his love for herself. She would never doubt him again—never, not if Pauline Bracegirdle herself came to her, and told her that Owen had tried to and told her that Owen had tried to shoot himself for her sake; not if the gossips of the neighborhood told her that the squire's son had fallen in love with the peerless Lady Mary, in regard to whose superb charms the society papers were already descanting.

Elsie spoke very few words. Owen held her hands and looked into her eyes, where he read all that he wanted to read -love, unchanging love, faith, and con-stancy; through evil report and good re-

Afterwards she looked back to it and wondered if it really had happened as it seemed to have happened! The scent of the pine trees in the shrubbery, of the violets in the grass, the caroling of the larks overhead, the floating of the fleecy white clouds in the blue sky, all made up the poetry of the idyll.

Afterwards came the hum-drum of prose: the commonplace of every day:

TURF. THE AQUEDUCT RACES.

New York, Nov. 1.—The starting was bad at Aqueduct yesterday, and the racegoers entered many complaints. There was not one fair start in the six races, and many horses were beaten before they had gone a sixteenth of a mile, to say nothing of those which were actually left at the post. One favorite was successful—Saddugee, in the first; but thereafter the first choices went down in startling succession. Josepha won the Babylon handicap at 5½ furlongs, with Bon Mot, the favorite, second, and Major Dangerfield third. Roxane was the favorite for the Edgemere handicap. Only five horses faced the starter, but the send-off could hardly have been worse. Lombre was off in front, but Roxane raced past him in the first quarter and showed the way to the last furlong pole, when Ethics caught and passed him and won easily. THE LOUISVILLE SCANDAL. Lexington, Ky., Nov. 1.-The investigation by committee appointed at the mass meeting of the Kentucky thoroughbred horse breeders on Tuesday to gather and report facts concerning the moving of the three-eighths pole at the Kentucky Association race track last Thursday, thereby shortening the distance to the wire 44 feet 3 inches, was in session on Wednesday. It was expected that the evidence of Trainer Dan O'Brien, who had in charge the Wagner colt, which covered the short three-eighths in :36¼, and on which Clarence Mackay was given an option at $8,000, as a result of the fast work, would be heard yesterday, but O'Brien notified the committee that a relative had a lin Mayville and that he would be absent from the city work. would be absent from the city until Saturday. "I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as one of the best medicines for women," writes Mrs. Mary Murdock, Murdock, of 1045 Woodard Ave. Topeka, Kan. "I sider it the best medicine made. I know it has no equal. I am the mother of ten children and no equal. I am the mother of ten children and only one living—the tenth one. She is one year old and is as well and hearty as can be. She is a beauty. Of my other babies, one lived to be one year old, but she was always feeble. I tried different doctors, but none of them could tell me what my trouble was. They said I was well and strong. I was examined by surgeons but they found nothing wrong, and they were puzzled to know what my trouble was. I did not know what to do, so I thought this time I would try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took it the entire nine months and now have a fine baby girl, and I cannot praise your medicine enough for the good it did me."

How the King of England Shadowed by Detectives.

The Great Melville of Scotland Yard and How He Takes Care of Edward Rex.

[Correspondence of the Springfield Republican.]

Melville, special guardian of royalty, special Nemesis of anarchists and all sorts of plotters against the state, has had a lively time of it since President McKinley was shot. Melville was in Homburg with the King of England when Czolgosz's fatal bullet was fired, and went soon afterward with his majesty to Denmark, and that was a good place for him to be, for the extraordinary collection of royalty gathered at the palace of the king's aged father-in-law at that time was badly frightened by the news, and Melville was the man to reassure them. He did it so well, in fact, that King Christian decorated him with the order of the Danebrog. The detective had a lot to do at home, but when the king decided to go to the continent, he particularly insisted that Melville in person should go with him, and so "the special and political department of the criminal investigation department at Scotland Yard" had to get along as plate of 300 sovereigns; Ard Patrick (Maher) finished second, and Snowberry (Clem Jenkins) third. Besinvolture (Maher) won a 2-year-old selling plate of 103 sovereigns. King's Courier (Maher) won the Jockey Club cup of 500 sovereigns, added to a sweepstakes of 20 sovereigns, each, for 3-year-olds; Santol was second, and Wm. C. Whitney's Elkhorn (J. Reiff) finished third. Sorciere (J. Reiff) won the Ditch mile welter handicap of 200 sovereigns; Emperador (J. H. Martin) ran second, and Goosander third. best it could without its famous chief. That department with the long name is used to the chief's absence, however, for the king rarely makes any important journey without taking his special protector along, usually in the same compartment of his train or in the adjoining stateroom of his steamer. The detective was an ordinary policeman not long ago, and never had much schooling, but he is good-looking, quick-witted, fits the clothes that one of the most fashionable of London EMBRO CLUB OFFICERS

The chief's position in the detective service is rather peculiar, as the place that he now holds was especially created for him. The detective department, under the supreme control of Sir Edward Bradford, now consists of two branches. One, under Superintendent Donald Swanson, looks after burported on the campaign against cigar- glars and pickpockets and the ordinary run of criminals. The special and political department, of which Melville was lately made superintendent, has the more gilded and picturesque end of the business, dealing with state affairs. It is an odd fact that nearly every man in this department is, like Melville, an Irishman and a Roman Catholic. About five years ago the proportion of Irishmen became so large that recruits from the Emerald were barred. When the King is in London he can scarcely stir out of the house without a detective at his heels. He takes good naturedly enough, often chats his keeper, and on occasion has been known to pluck from his waistcoat pocket and pass over to the detective one of those, huge black dol-lar cigars he always smokes when the circumstances permit. He may not even step round the corner to his club, the Marlborough, without having one of his equerries instruct a detective to stand at the club door and watch out for suspicious characters. If he attends a private dinner party one of Melville's men is in the hallway or lurking around the place. If he takes a run on his automobile the route is kept secret and usually covered in advance by an emissary from Scotland Yard. Another detective either travels with the King or follows him and keeps him in sight. Furthermore, Chief Melville has the right of entree at any time without invitation at Marlborough House or wherever the King may be at any hour of the day or night. When the King is to go on board a yacht the vessel is inspected from stem to stern by officers from Seatherly Williams by officers from Scotland Yard in search of explosives or any other signs that the vessel has been tampered with. When he goes out riding his horse is carefully overhauled by a veterinary surgeon to make sure that no one has interfered with the animal. When possible, information is given before-hand as to what horses his majesty will require, and that night some trusted employe of the stable is lodged in room directly over them.

Next to a public procession, a railway journey is the most trying business of all for Melville and his men. Photographs of anarchists get a wide circulation at such times, and local detectives at each station through which ly for their capacity to remember faces. Noted visitors are permitted to pass without scrutiny, but let anyone who is not known attempt to drive through the barricade, and he will find himself held up and cross-examined at the outer barrier and kept under observation thereafter by detectives inside. Although the King submits to all this fuss because he has to, he does it under protest. He is said to have observed that so much precaution only makes the general public uneasy and just that panicky feeling which the anarchists delight to create. But nothing could suit Queen Alexandra better than this increased vigilance. She is timid almost to the point of being superstitious, and I am told that her terror in the recent continental trip was almost pitiful. She was noticeably Wallaceburg News: The presence of His Lordship Bishop McEvay in Wallaceburg and Dresden last Sunday, to confer the sacrament of confirmation on our children and delight and instruct all classes by his magnificent lecture in the evening, was an event of deep interest to the whole community. That much misapprehension and indeed dense ignorance, prevails among many in all of the Christian churches with reference to the beliefs and practices of other churches is undoubted, and it is in the interest of all that a fuller knowledge of one another should prevail. The existence of religious prejudices is always to Two Orphans," by special request. be deplored and especially in a mixed community, such as we have in Canada. For this reason, as well as for the opportunity that it gave all classes in Wallaceburg of listening to a cultured and distinguished divine, the people of Wallaceburg were pleased and delighted in having His Lordship Bishop McExay in their midst. The people of this country would be vastly improved, both socially and religiously, by more men in the pulpit of his lordship's attainments.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

THE FENBERG STOCK COMPANY.

The jolly students took possession of the upper regions at the London Opera House last night and interspersed the excellent production given by the Fenberg Stock Company with their songs, calls and other varieties of fun-making. The play given was "The Bowery Boy," and every member of the audience evidenced signs of satisfaction. When the Fenberg Stock Company last visited London, it was pronounced the best of its class ever seen here, but the present company stands still higher in the scale of merit, and are deserving of the patronage of the most critical and refined. Tonight the company will present for the first time at popular prices the Russian religious drama, "The Crucifix," one of the strongest plays in their repertoire. Special scenery and costumes are carried by the company for this production, and those who witness this evening's performance will be well repaid. A special matinee will be put on tomorrow, at 2:30, and Saturday night the company close

'AT CRIPPLE CREEK" TONIGHT. Hal Reid's masterpiece, "At Cripple Creek," will appear at the new Grand Opera House tonight. play deals with life in the Colorado Mountains, and the characters include miners, Indians, half-breeds and hardy westerners, with a little leaven in the way of a girl from the New England States. Several types new to the stage are introduced, and clever character drawing is said to contribute one of the most commendable features of the play. The first act takes place in the saloon of Martin Mason, called the "Temple of David." Act second shows Joe Mayfield's cabin at Rift Canyon. In the third the scene discloses the interior of the mine known as the "Last Dollar" claim. Here occurs one of the most novel and effective scenes that has been put into a recent play. The fourth and last act is laid in Joe's new home at Cripple Creek, upon the occasion of his mar-"At Cripple Creek" is virile, riage. climatically built and full of tender heart interest, balanced by flashes of brilliant humor and quaint comedy.

"A GENTLEMAN OF FRANCE." "A Gentleman of France," with Mr. Kyrle Bellew in the title-role, appears at the New Grand on Saturday night, and the production is likely to prove one of the notable features of the dramatic season. The play received its initial production on Wednesday evening last at Ottawa, and the Globe deemed it worthy of a half-column telegraphed criticism, from which the following is extracted:

"Harriet Ford's dramatization Stanley Weyman's romance, "A Gentleman of France," was produced for the first time at the Russell Theater here tonight (Wednesday) by Kyrle Bellew and a strong company. There was a bumper house, which included the Earl and Countess of Minto and their ONLY THOSE who have had experience can tell the torture corns cause. Pain with your boots on, pain with them out pain night and day; but relief is sure to those who use Holloway's Corn Cure.

ROUNDA NOVERTHEER, FRIDAY WONENDER

plaudits from the audience compelled the raising of the curtain several times. Mr. Bellew came in for the share of the applause, and established himself as a favorite from the first. In response to loud calls the fair authoress herself was led forward by Mr. Bellew, and for some seconds both were kept bowing in response to a storm of applause that swept over the house. Most people are so familiar with Weyman's fascinating romance that an explanation of the plot is superfluous. In the dramatization the authoress has reproduced in a felicitous manner the stirring and dramatic incidents which rivet attention in the story, and the interest of the audience is well sustained throughout the progress of the play. A succession of exciting scenes, spirited action, rich costumes and splendid stage setting combine to transport the spectator to the stirring times of Henry III. of France, and his successor, Henry of Navarre. Mr. Bellew's impersonation of Gaston de Marsac was a fine piece of acting. He was the very embodiment of the chivalrous but impoverished nobleman, whose proud boast it was to call himself a gentleman of France. Miss Eleanor Robson's interpretation of the role of Mile. de la Vire was a sweet and womanly one, and the audience speedily succumbed to the charm of her sympathetic and graceful acting. The company gave splendid support. The scenery was very fine, notably that representing the garden at Mendon, where Henry of Navarre received the news of his predecessor's death. The rich and varied tints of autumn foliage, with the leaves slowly dropping over the king and his court as they stood among the trees, offered a spectacle that appealed strongly to the artistic instincts of the audience."

"THE FAST MAIL." In speaking of "The Fast Mail" the Daily News of Toledo, Ohio, of Aug. 13. says: "Yesterday afternoon saw the regular opening of Burt's Theater with a melodrama by Lincoln J. Carter, "The Fast Mail," which has for years been one of the most successful productions. The piece abounds with startling surprises. The particular feature of this piece is a scene showing a moving freight train of fourteen cars, which goes across the stage with lightning rapidity. In fact, the entire production is one grand scenic display. among the features being a picture of Niagara Falls at night. The east, which is a large one, is particularly com-petent. The audience was large and enthusiastic, and so well was the play put on that the house was filled afternoon and night, and doubtlessly will continue so the balance of the engage-ment." The "Fast Mail" will pull up at the New Grand next Monday even
