

OPPOSE ROMAN CATHOLIC CLAIM FOR TAX SHARE

Board of Education Indorses Toronto Resolution Ten To One.

PUBLISH SALARY LIST

Grant Use of Outlying Schools For Political Meetings.

The board of education held a three-hour session Thursday which, although billed as an afternoon meeting, extended well into the evening. The first communication to come before the board was from the Toronto Board of Education in the form of a resolution regarding the efforts on behalf of the Roman Catholics of Ontario to secure an amendment to the assessment act whereby a portion of the school taxes on all corporations and public utilities in proportion to the Roman Catholic population of Ontario would be diverted to the support of Roman Catholic sectarian schools.

The Toronto board asked that emphasis be placed on the fact that the resolution was not a concession to the Roman Catholics but a concession to the Roman Catholics of Ontario to secure an amendment to the assessment act whereby a portion of the school taxes on all corporations and public utilities in proportion to the Roman Catholic population of Ontario would be diverted to the support of Roman Catholic sectarian schools.

"I think that the whole thing is a matter of law," stated Chairman Coleridge.

"I don't think that the matter should be passed over," was the comment of Trustee Rev. A. A. Bice.

"I happen to know that the Roman Catholics have sent out a petition in this matter to be signed by every one of them, and it will be sent to the Government," said Trustee Clark.

"They are trying to break the present law, and I move that we pass the resolution. Under the present law the Roman Catholics have more privileges here than in any other place in the world.

The resolution was passed by a vote of 19 to 1, one trustee not voting.

The request of Meadowbrook school for a collection in the public schools to be held shortly was referred to No. 1 committee and Inspector Greer with power. The farm is being bought by popular subscription for the use of semi-invalid soldiers and sailors and is situated in the Niagara district.

The report of Inspector Albert H. Leake of Toronto on household science in the public schools showed that Aberdeen, Chesley, Riverview, Lord Roberts and Ryerson schools were all graded No. 1 in every respect, while the ventilation, pantry, lighting and lavatories in Talbot and Alexandra schools were graded No. 2. This gave the trustees some concern and will be looked into. The equipment generally was in good condition.

Mr. Leake also reported on manual training and found that Ryerson and Riverview were the only schools that could be graded No. 1.

Grant Use of Schools.
S. P. Glass, Government candidate in East Middlesex in the federal election, in a letter to the board poured some hot-shot into No. 2 committee for refusing the use of outlying schools for election meetings.

Chairman Harry Hayman of No. 2 committee said that when the request came in the use of the hall was simply for organization purposes, and it was not deemed advisable by the committee to let them have it.

Trustee Rowe thought that the use of the schools, especially in the outlying sections, should be granted to all candidates for meetings. He put the matter in the form of a resolution, and it was carried; but not before there had been some adverse criticism on the part of Trustee Egge.

Trustee Rowe also moved that the monthly check for $21.60 be sent to Mrs. Hardin, who was a janitress at Grand Avenue School for eight or nine years. She is 91 years of age, and now unable to work. The money she receives from the board is her sole means of support. Her case will be investigated by the chairman of No. 1 and No. 2 committees.

No Towels Available.
The report of Dr. Dowdham, M.O.H., showed that there were facilities for washing hands in the public schools, but no towels. This will be remedied.

Mrs. Tanner and Chairman Coleridge had a short passage when the request of temporary teachers at the collegiate for more money was read. Mrs. Tanner thought they should get more money and that the salary committee should get busy.

"One thing to be considered is whether we desire so many female teachers," said the chairman, gazing at Mrs. Tanner.

"Where will you get them then?" shot back the lady trustee with much warmth.

"We can get all we want if we pay the salaries," replied the chairman.

"Some of them are married with husbands working," said another trustee in a stage whisper. The matter was finally referred to No. 3 and the salary committee.

To Welcome Minister.
Chairman Coleridge and the chairman of the standing committees were appointed to make arrangements in connection with the visit of the minister of education here on Nov. 17, when the medical school will be opened.

Trustee Mrs. Hunt wanted to know when a Mr. escape from Ealing would be moved to the West London school. She was told that the matter would be attended to at once.

The matter of holding the field days of the Collegiate and Technical School at the same time and place will be discussed by the two student bodies interested before the board will take any action as suggested by Mrs. Tanner.

The attendance report of the Technical School for October showed that the average attendance for the day classes was 241, for commercial day classes 274, and evening and special afternoon classes, 371.

The Collegiate report showed an average attendance of 321 for the day classes and 143 for the night classes.

The athletic budget of $350 for the boys and $150 for the girls will be considered.

CITY PREPARES TO MAKE WORK FOR WORKLESS

Will Start Pine Lawn Sewer System Within a Month.

SPENCER GIVES FIGURES

Says Practically All 400 Applicants At Bureau Are Londoners.

The unemployment committee of the city decided on Thursday afternoon that the labor situation in the city was such that relief work should be undertaken as soon as possible. Such a recommendation will be sent on to the city council at its next meeting. On Tuesday night the council designated the Pine Lawn sewer installation as work to be carried on for this purpose and it is likely that a start will be made within a month. The Provincial Government has indicated that it will assist the city in meeting the increased cost of any work of this nature undertaken.

J. C. Spencer of the Ontario Government Employment Bureau stated that the applications at his office for work number 400. The list was growing rapidly. The change this week when the snow appeared was most noticeable. It resulted in the cutting off of outside work. He expressed the opinion that the list would grow rapidly from now on. During the last month and a half the city had been particularly fortunate in having so much work going on, he said, but this week saw a reversal of this condition, and today the bureau was not placing any men. He pointed out that there was not a farm job on the list in the past few days, and he was able to place one or two on farms, but when the farm work passes, he thought they were getting near the end of their resources.

Engineer Clerk Baker asked how the situation compared with last year.

Mr. Spencer said about the same. Perhaps there was a little less unemployment. However, there was not the rush for jobs that there is today. The applicants for work this year haven't got much money. They have been working for only a grub stake during the summer and couldn't get much ahead.

Engineer Brazier stated that the work on the West London sewer would last until about the first of the year. He did not think the city was able to get the Pine Lawn sewer under way before a month's time. His department was also working on plans for storm water sewers and these were nearly ready. He said the city was in a need right now for work to care for the unemployed. He stated that if there were cases where there was actual need, he would be able to take care of a small number on the West London job.

Chairman J. C. Wilson said that there were a few of these cases and that those of life-long Londoners, who on their return from the war were unable to get houses in the city and went to live in Knollwood or Manor parks. They had a just claim upon the city.

Mr. Spencer expressed the opinion that there would be more hardship apparent later on. He said that Mr. Spencer had many of the 400 listed for work at his bureau were citizens.

The answer was: "Practically all." Mr. Spencer added that many of these cases were needing immediate assistance.

All To Get Chance.

Edward Lunge, secretary of the soldiers' aid commission, asked what would be done about men who could not undertake work on sewer construction.

Chairman Wilson said they would give them a chance anyway.

Rev. T. D. McCullough suggested that in case of war veterans in immediate need, the patriotic fund might assist. He understood that this was being done at Windsor. He also thought that there must be 200 or 300 people in the city who were proposing to undertake some work in the spring, and he felt that if the situation was put up to them as a patriotic duty, perhaps they would get busy.

Mr. Spencer said that the men in the building trade were not in bad condition, and had the injured optic handicapped. He then went back to the barn, and although in great pain, finished milking.

The pain finally became so great that Mr. Bartlett was rushed to Victoria Hospital, where Dr. Hunt removed the injured eye.

Mr. Bartlett's condition was reported as being favorable by the hospital authorities Friday.

WILL CLEAR SIDEWALK AROUND VICTORIA PARK

In the future it is the intention of the parks commission to pay more attention to the clearing of sidewalks on either side of Victoria park than the paths through the grounds itself.

While not too great a period is expended in plowing a way through the park, it is recognized that no matter what is done in that direction, the walking is never actually good, and it is thought better to insure that the sidewalks on either side are better cared for than they were on Friday morning, for instance.

WILLIAM FREDERICK, 553 South street, reported to the police that his bicycle was stolen from in front of his house on Thursday evening. The bicycle was a Branford Red Bird, No. 103875, and a 1921 model.

HENRY JACK WILLIAMS, who was caught at the Melbourne Bank robbery last summer with the Murrell brothers, and who has been ill with pneumonia at the county jail since last Saturday, continues to improve in health, according to jail officials Friday morning.

DR. ROOME LEAVES ESTATE VALUED AT $100,063.96

The late Dr. William F. Roome, who died in this city on Sept. 1, left an estate valued at $100,063.96, according to the will, which has been filed for probate at the court house. Stocks and bonds were valued at $96,063; real estate, $7,500, and insurance amounted to $4,000.

Dr. Roome's widow was left the residence at 300 Wolfe street as long as she lives, the property then passing on to his son William. Mrs. Roome also receives the household goods, valued at $1,500, a monthly allowance from the estate of $70, and $3,000 insurance.

A grandson, Norman Roome, received bank stock valued at $5,080. Mrs. Florence Roome, daughter-in-law, was willed $500, and Sarah C. Campbell of Dutton, a sister, the same amount.

The residue of the estate, subject to the payment of $70 a month to Mrs. (Dr.) Roome, was left to his son, William R. Roome, and amounted to $89,082.21. Mr. Roome also receives $1,000 insurance.

he gave credit for her present standing as a nation.

With a plea to the youth and men of the country he closed his address. He told of the conference in Washington which opens on Saturday, but he said: "The nations of the earth will not sweeten, better, husband and sons of Canadian and French women."

The decision to sell poppies for Armistice Day was in a substantial measure influenced by a desire to help the French women and children who have suffered so much deprivation to add to their incomes. In addition the G. W. V. A. purposes endowing a cot in the Sick Children's Hospital.

Between $700 and $800 has already been taken in, according to Mrs. Allen McLean and Mrs. J. B. McKillop, poppy day conveners. The sale of poppies is being continued both by taggers and in several of the stores, Gray's Limited, Colerick's, Boughner's, Wendell Holmes, Boomer's, Peters', Smallman & Ingram's and Kingsmill's.

Placing Crosses.

Over more than one memorial tablet erected to a lad who did not come back, loving friends have placed crosses and wreaths of poppies, and it is expected that many more will be used in this way before the end of the week.

Poppies, it is stated, will figure prominently in the decoration of churches for Armistice Day services postponed until Sunday, Nov. 13.

Uniforms May Be Worn.

Just as on Armistice Day, 1918, pent-up anxiety found relief in the spirit of carnival, so the joyful side of the memorial day will be emphasized in the Armistice night ball in the Winter Gardens, held under the joint auspices of the Princess Patricia and Campbell Becher chapters, I. O. O. E.

The patriotic note will be struck in the streamers of red, white and blue which float from the ceiling of the ballroom, the immense Union Jacks and the flags of the Allies everywhere in evidence.

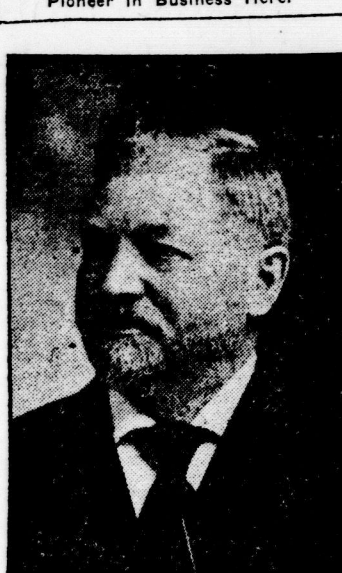

Special permission has been granted by Major-General H. A. Annet, O. C. M. D. No. 1, to men desiring to go to wear their military uniforms, and it is expected that these will be a striking note of contrast to the civilian dress which during the last three years has once more become the general wear.

Many visitors from out of town are coming in to share the festivities, parties from Detroit, Windsor, Hamilton, Toronto, Ingersoll and many other points.

A special party was given Thursday night for the patients at the Westminster Hospital as their share in the armistice celebration.

yet totally prevent war and stop preparations for war. It must still remain a fact that England is an island, that Japan is an island, and that France is a state which exists between Canada and the United States does not exist between all nations. The world is still unsettled.

Fears Emergencies.

"For this reason Canada must be prepared always for emergencies, which might arise at any time. The war proved how unexpectedly emergencies can arise."

"I do not plead for a large military force, but I do ask the young men of our youth each year to spend a certain number of days in military training."

"They must be ready and willing to maintain the splendid traditions of their grandfathers derived from the war of the past, from the war of 1812, the Fenian Raids, and the Northwest Rebellion, and to keep alive the records and fame of brothers and fathers on the fields of France."

To the Kiwanians, the speaker made a plea that they build the three words, "Adaptability, Application and Courage," into their daily lives, and thereby to help build on a sure foundation the future of this city and Canada.

Win Weekly Prizes.

The Kiwanians attended the luncheon in full force. In the drawing for the booster prizes the winners were: Kiwanians Joe Firth, Jack Tennant and Roy Williams.

It was announced by the secretary that a bylaw changing the executive force from the four officials and the chairman of the thirteen committees to a committee consisting of the president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, five directors and the chairman of the committees, was under consideration.

Each of the five directors will supervise two committees to insure their proper functioning. The bylaw will be voted on by the club in two weeks' time.

Help Peterboro Club.

Kiwanian H. B. Muir made a plea that members of the London club should give personal support to the Peterboro Kiwanis Club, which in the course of formation, under the guidance of Kingston Kiwanians.

Peterboro club, he said, was to celebrate its charter night on Wednesday next, and asked that several Londoners attend the gathering. The train leaving at noon for the east, it was announced, would make connections with a special train leaving Toronto shortly after 5 o'clock. Efforts are to be made to make up a party consisting of members from the clubs of the district.

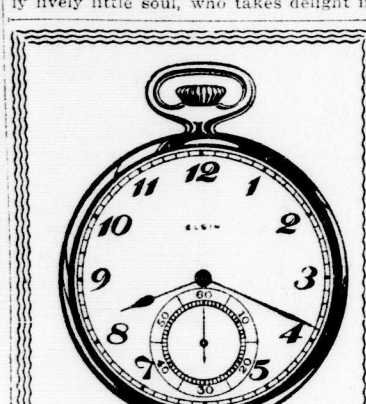

STAGE SET FOR VISIT OF HON. R. B. BENNETT

The stage is all set for the National Liberal and Conservative "pow-wow" in the Masonic Temple Saturday evening. London Conservatives are pinning great hope on Premier Meighen's new minister of justice, the Hon. R. B. Bennett, K.C., of Calgary, who is scheduled to "do all the talking." Seemingly, Mr. Bennett has enjoyed a certain distinction in the past as a member of the House of Commons, having been selected at certain intervals and for certain reasons to talk at some length.

CHILD STAR TO AMUSE ORPHANS

Dorothy Waters, the 7-year-old movie star, who is appearing in person at the Allen Theatre this week, paid a flying visit to The Advertiser office this morning. She announced her presence long before anyone saw her by her shrill little voice uttering protest at the "many stairs" she must climb to reach the editorial sanctum, and exclaiming: "Oh, Mary Picklefoot!" as her gaze lit upon the movie star's picture which, among many others, adorns the walls of the office.

travelling about with her mother and always insists on entertaining some of the shut-ins of the cities which she visits. The returned soldiers are favorites, and she loves to dance and sing for the children of the orphanages wherever she goes. This morning, she declared, with much glee, that she was going out today to call on the London long.

DARES PREMIER TO SHOW HAND

King Declares "Housecleaning" Essential To Lower Cost of Living.

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 10.—That during 1917, 1918 and 1919 the Riddon company had declared dividends of 10 per cent, and at the same time it had been allowed to pay its federal taxes in promissory notes was the further charge made during this evening's meeting in the armories here by Hon. William L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party, to an audience of almost three thousand persons.

Mr. King declared that the Government had been carrying the Riddon company in this way until the company had come almost to bankruptcy. The Liberal leader dealt also with Senate appointments and characterized the appointment of Brigadier-General MacDonnell in the place of Claude MacDonnell, as "a cold-blooded and heartless action." It had been made now, he said, because there was little likelihood of Hon. Claude MacDonnell recovering from his illness, and the Government wanted to fill all possible Senate seats with its supporters before it was too late.

Discusses Campaign.

Mr. King opened with a discussion of the issues in the campaign. The premier, he said, had no right to confine discussion to the issue of protection versus free trade. This was the act of an autocrat put forward to conceal the real issues. Transportation, re-establishment and other problems were more vital today. The Meighen Government, Mr. King declared, sought to shield its record behind the tariff cry.

The Liberal leader declared that usurpation of power was the real issue. Powerful influences "which dare not show their hands" had kept Mr. Meighen in power while by-elections swept away his majority.

Cost of living and cost of government were discussed by Mr. King, who declared that "a housecleaning" was necessary to reduce this latter cost. "A government who can only think in millions will never bring down the cost of government," Mr. King declared.

Raps Tax Payments.

The Liberal leader dealt with the Riddon tax payments. This company, he said, has paid dividends of ten per cent during 1917, 1918 and 1919, but during these years it had paid its taxes with promissory notes.

"The Government," said Mr. King, "carried these people until they came almost to bankruptcy. If these big companies can pay their taxes with promissory notes, why should not the people do the same?"

"We'll never get the income taxes that we should get until there is a thorough examination of these big companies and a proper collection of their taxes."

The country, said Mr. King, must have lost millions of dollars in this way during recent years, since the Riddon company was probably not the only one whose promissory notes were accepted.

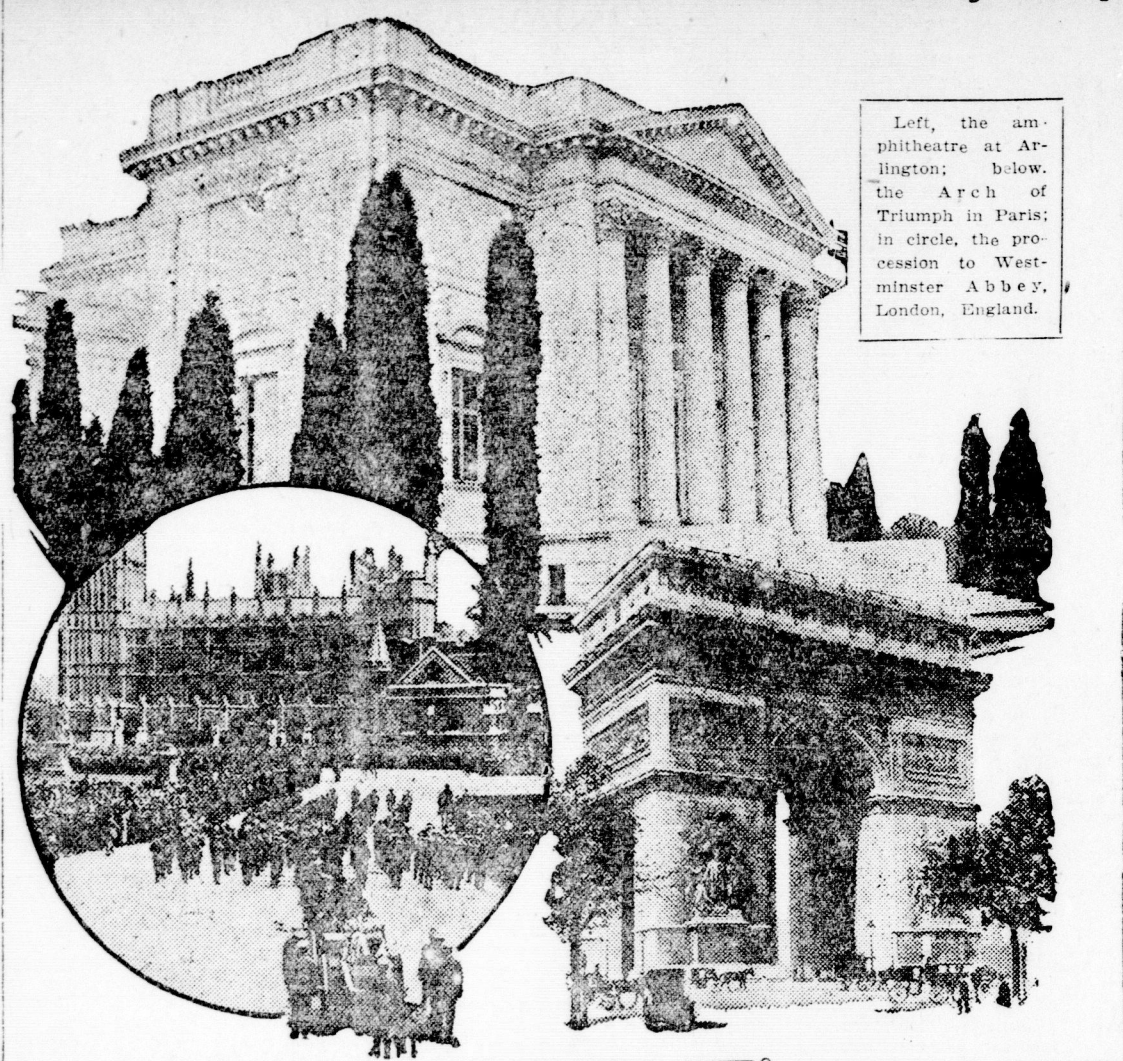

The Liberal leader dealt with the cent appointments of senators. There had "never been a more cold-blooded transaction than the appointment of Brig.-Gen. MacDonnell to succeed his brother, Hon. Claude MacDonnell," Mr. King declared. The Liberal leader declared he could not recall any more heartless act than this, which aimed at getting another supporter of Mr. Meighen into the Senate before it was too late.

Hon. Claude MacDonnell was ill and not expected to recover and it was desired to have another supporter fill his place to defeat any reform which the next Government might seek to put through Parliament.

Mr. King dealt also with the Grand Trunk acquisition and charged the Meighen Government with having been autocratic in the extreme in its method of taking over and operating the present Government railway system. The railwaymen should have a representative on the Canadian National Railway board, said Mr. King. "With a man like Mr. Murdoch on that board those huge deficits," he declared, "if the Liberal party were returned, railwaymen would be given representation on that board."

DENIES TALE THAT HE IS OUT OF RACE

Farmer-Labor Man Says Drury To Answer Critic.

STRATFORD, Nov. 10.—W. A. Amos, farmer-labor candidate in North Perth, this afternoon flatly denied that he had any intention of dropping out of the race. "It is the same old game," he commented.

Speaking of the public meeting next Saturday, at which Hon. T. A. Cregar, leader of the National Progressive party, will speak, Mr. Amos said efforts were being made to secure Hon. E. C. Drury, premier of Ontario, to speak also. Premier Drury, Mr. Amos said, would probably make some answer to the criticisms made by P. W. Hay, M. P. for North Perth, at the Mackenzie King meeting on November 1, regarding the appointment of Mr. Amos to the Hydro-Electric Commission of the Ontario Government. Robert Berry, U. P. O. candidate for South Perth, will also speak.

MAKE FRUITLESS SEARCH FOR BODY

River Men Drag Detroit When Wife Consents.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 10.—Dragging operations under supervision of Harbor Master William Burkheiser, Detroit, were unsuccessful in locating the body of W. Ross Ellison, school principal, who disappeared Tuesday night, leaving his overcoat on the Walkerville ferry.

Mrs. Ellison, still believing that her husband is alive and receiving treatment in a sanatorium, only gave her sanction to the dragging plan after brotherhood of the missing tutor insisted that this must be done.

The check found in a pocket of the abandoned overcoat is worthless, Walkerville bank officials held today. Holding that Principal Ellison is dead so far as Canadian banking laws are concerned, the bankers declined to cash the check for $650, when it was presented by representatives of Mrs. Ellison.

Handicapped by the fact that her husband always refused to make out a will, Mrs. Ellison will have to await a decision by the courts before her husband's money can be obtained from the bank.

HEARTBURN A SEVERE CASE

Many people are troubled with heartburn, who really do not realize just what it is.

In cases of this trouble there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by disturbed appetite. It is generally caused by great acidity of the stomach, and whenever too much food is taken, it is liable to ferment, and becomes extremely sour, causing heartburn. In such cases vomiting often occurs, and what is thrown up is sour and sometimes bitter.

The one way to get rid of heartburn is to keep your liver active by using

and you will have no heartburn or other liver troubles such as constipation, jaundice, water brash, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, foul breath, etc.

Miss Agnes Cutting, Shallow Lake, Ont., writes: "I have had heartburn for a long time. There were gnawing and burning pains in my stomach, and when I vomited there was a sour and bitter taste. I used two vials of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and they have cleared me of my heartburn. I don't think they can be beaten by any other medicine."

Be Suspicious of Tender Gums

Be suspicious of any tenderness or bleeding of the gums. This is usually the first stage of Pyorrhea—an insidious disease of the gums that destroys the teeth and undermines bodily health.

Gradually the gums become spongy. They inflame, then shrink, thus exposing the unnamed tooth-base to the ravages of decay. Tiny openings in the gums form gateways for disease germs to enter the system.

Medical science has traced many ills to these infecting germs in the gums weakened by Pyorrhea.

They are now known to be a frequent cause of indigestion, anaemia, rheumatism and other serious conditions.

So watch carefully for that first tenderness or bleeding of the gums. Try Forhan's immediately. It positively prevents Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease) if used in time and used consistently.

And in preventing Pyorrhea—it guards against other ills.

Forhan's (For the Gums) cleans teeth scientifically as well. Brush your teeth with it. It keeps them white and clean.

If gum shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment. 35c and 60c tubes in Canada and U.S. If your druggist cannot supply you, send price to us direct and we will mail tube postpaid.

"Cease Firing!"

Seven years ago he was in London, but it is not the London that he knows it to be today.

Seven years ago he was in Toronto, but it is not the Toronto that he knows it to be today.

Seven years ago he was in Guelph, in Brantford, Kitchener, or any centre in Canada, but they were not the centres he knows them to be today.

Seven years ago there was the call of a nation that was fighting with its back to the wall. The boy enlisted. Then the nation was behind him. Outside of drill hours life was a happy thing. Societies, churches, fraternal organizations were all vying each with the other to see what could be done to make the soldier happy. He was lauded in addresses on the platform; he was made the recipient of gifts from the people of his community; he was told that the Government would stand by him as he had stood by the country; he was told that his job would be waiting for him when he came back.

And so he left.
For years he went through the hell of war—through the hell of death, carnage, slaughter and destruction.

And he did it because we urged him to do it.

We told him it was his duty to do it.

We called him a slacker and a coward if he held back from doing it.

By the grace of God he lives until the signing of the armistice.

He hears the words, more welcome than daybreak, more wonderful than all else, "Cease Firing."

He has fulfilled his part of the contract. He has played the game to the hilt.

And today, November 11, 1921, he walks the streets of London. He walks the streets of Toronto, of Guelph, Kitchener or Brantford. He is not the man he was—war took the best of his strength, and he has only a small pension and no financial backing.

So today we ask him to remember reverently, silently and devoutly Armistice Day.

And then tomorrow he must start out again on that never-ending quest for work. In many cases he has to turn that little sainted soldier button in—out of sight—or he hasn't the chance of employment that the slacker has.

Today we honor the fallen. Our memory turns on the wings of time to only a few short years ago, and then looms the broken family circle, the picture of that only boy that hangs in the sacred spot, and the pictures of boys, sweethearts, fathers and husbands that hang in that most sacred of all spots, the walls of grief-touched memory and of lonely recollection.

Tomorrow we pass on. Is our honor of the dead to be only the wearing of a flower, only the momentary stopping from the mad hum-drum of a busy world?

Have we discharged our full duty to that returned boy who today tramps the street looking for work? We sent him out on an errand of life or death; we took from him the best years of his life; we turned him to a task that well nigh broke his spirit and wrecked his manhood. Then what?

Today he looks us square in the eye, and in thousands of cases we have not the manhood to meet the challenge in his eye.

We have not carried out our obligations as a nation to our returned men—we are not honoring the soldier button as we swore we would—we are not giving those men the chance we promised we would.

Today, November 11, 1921, as we honor and cherish the memory of our departed, let us seriously pledge ourselves, as a nation, and as individual members of that nation, to a full recognition of the honorable, sacred and binding covenant we made with the men who marched away in the hour of the nation's direst need.

The News Reaches the Elysian Fields.

THE FIGURES TALK

WHY is it that the Meighen party can do nothing to relieve the taxpayer? There never was a truer phrase put into circulation than that "the cost of government has much to do with the cost of living."

Never mind what either side has to say regarding extravagance. Simply turn back to figures.

Let us put them down side by side and see what there is in the claim that the money spent by the Government at Ottawa is making a direct levy on the pocketbook of the people of the Dominion.

Comparisons are fair, if they are based on fact. Take, then, the year when the Liberals had their last chance at Ottawa, viz., 1910-11. Against that put down what it is proposed to spend at Ottawa in 1921-22. Here are the figures:

Railways and Canals, Revenue	11,123,250	168,269,790	1600
Weights and Measures	105,865	487,070	363
Naval Service	2,256,709	3,726,980	62

These estimates were made, having in mind the fact that an election was only a short distance off. It is safe to assume, then, that it is the best performance the Meighen Government can give. Notice, also, that there is nothing in the above that has reference to the administration of war accounts.

The whole amount comes under the heading of controllable expenditure.

So we have the spectacle of an Ottawa government that is going to spend $367,965,251, against an expenditure in the last days of the Laurier regime for similar service of $79,411,747.

And this is the Ottawa crowd that today is plastering the country with bill boards and stickers, "Meighen Will Lead Us Through."

Paying the Shot.

The Canadian taxpayer is paying through the nose for the Canadian Merchant Marine.

He is receiving no benefit from its operations.

The Government at Ottawa knew long ago that ships building were coming into existence faster than ships being put out of commission.

In other words, replacements were more than equal to destructions.

No vessels were completed in time to transport men or food overseas.

There has been no export trade developed as a result of these lines.

Tory propagandists can dodge the issue, they can try to explain, if they dare, why good old Clyde ships were not good enough for the work, but face the figures.

The country committed to a bill of $60,000,000 in an unprofitable undertaking.

The minister of marine (Hansard) admitting that "more ships were available than were needed."

United States faces the same situation. Their zeal ran away with their brains, and they were going to be the great carrying nation of the world. Today some of the best thinkers in the republic are calling on the government to take scores of their boats and sink them, so they may no longer be a millstone on the taxpayers' neck.

Canadian taxpayers are paying today, and they will continue to pay for years to come, for the policy to which they were committed by an ORDER-IN-COUNCIL.

Why Not?

Sir Henry Drayton's answer to the charge that the Riordan interests have paid their excess profits tax in promissory notes will not satisfy the country. He replies that the whole thing is quite simple. The Riordan people were unable to pay in cash, so the Government took promissory paper.

Can the rest of the country claim the same right?

The man on a very limited income has no way of dodging the issue. It is put up to him to make out his own accounts, pay them, and if there is any falsehood he goes to the jail or is heavily fined.

Suppose the little businessmen all over the country put up a similar case. They would be sat on severely.

The Progressive candidate in Wright who brought this matter up has performed a good service to the whole country.

If we are supposed to have equal rights and no special privileges in this country, why not have it?

An Appreciation.

"Write me as one that loves his fellow-men."

That is the class to which the Liberal candidate in London belongs—a successful businessman, whose success was shared by many others. He has done as much good as he possibly could with the means at his disposal. He regarded the results of any prosperity that came to him as a sacred trust, and administered it accordingly.

The good he has already done through the Western University will increase with time, and go on down through the ages. The university is not built for today only, but belongs to that class of enterprise that increases with age. The late Dr. McCallum and Dr. C. R. Somerville, it is admitted by those who know, are entitled to first place among the men whose work and influence placed the university on an enduring basis.

The portrait of Dr. McCallum is to be unveiled at the opening of the new Medical School next week. It is a just and fitting tribute to his memory. A portrait of Dr. Somerville will follow as soon as suitable buildings are erected for the Arts Department on the new site for the university. His work has been appreciated.

LITTLE 'TISERS

Ah, yes, it's a proud moment in the house when it is found that the speckled pullet has laid her first egg.

A school house near Lindsay was burned following a political meeting.

No doubt youngsters the country over will now take a brand-new interest in politics.

The latest figures show that the King of Slam has 10,000 wives.

Surely out of this collection he ought to find one who would know how to mend his socks.

The Chatham Daily News is 21 years old. By that time that it is 21 years old. It celebrated in the way all papers should celebrate now and then, viz.: By dressing up and making itself even a better looking paper than it had been.

It is a wonderful thing to be a farmer when wheat sells for $2.50 a bushel and butter at 80 cents a pound, but with wheat hugging the $1 mark and city folks digging their thumb nails into the butter at 42 cents per pound, things look different.

Ottawa went to United States for a firm of experts to reorganize the civil service. They paid them hundreds of thousands of dollars, and then scrapped them. The reason is that the country needed the efficiency and the saving, but Ottawa needed the votes.

Every report that comes out today from the iron and steel world says the scrap market is in the dumps. It is a wonder the scrap market doesn't get up on its hind legs some day and kick. It has been called dormant, stagnant, dead, lifeless, featureless, and what not. To our way of thinking the scrap market is about the most thoroughly abused and maligned old boy in the industrial ring today.

NOAH'S POETRY

My Rheumatiz.

When the slush gets up about my shins, I tell you what, John Jones, there's somethin' jerkin' kind of queer around my old rheumatiz bones.

There's kinks in there what can't be cured by whiskey made from corn and yeast, especially when the wind sets in to blow a spell from out the east.

'Tis then I get the liniment, the ointment down from off the shelf, and try to reach my spinal tube to oil and lubricate myself.

And then I diet for a spell, and from a lowly menu eat, and cast from off my dinner plate great planks of wholesome pie and meat.

I starve until my northern rib is leanin' up against my lung, and I imagine sure as fate my little course is well nigh run.

And then I take some herbs and stuff, and brow them into catnip tea, there's sixteen kinds of doses, boy, what gets their entry into me.

In spite of all these things I feel most awful like a ten-horned beast, as long as slush lies on the ground and wind is blowin' from the east.

taught the old-established axiom that you divide the amount of money in circulation and you divide prices, double the amount of money in circulation and you double prices.

The Wall Street Journal said: "Keep the people wrangling over the tariff question, but for God's sake don't allow them to become posted on the money question."

Mr. Melghen, Mr. King and the capitalist owners of The Advertiser and Free Press are careful that the people of Canada shall not become posted on the money question.

They know that if the people understood the money question the banks would soon be shorn of the power to rob and plunder the masses.

The writer was born in the Township of Eglar, Middlesex County, on the 23rd day of June, 1850. He has read a lot, has traveled considerable and has learned something about world problems.

His grandfather was a Grit, his father was a Grit and he was affiliated with the Grit party, but this time he will cast his lot with the farmer-labor party, as he is fully convinced that the two old parties are under the control of the Canadian Bankers' Association, who are responsible for the deplorable condition the country is now in.

In 1914 the Bank of Montreal had $700,000 deposited with the minister of finance. The Dominion Government paid them three per cent annual interest on that amount.

That bank, the same year, had $17,231,002 of notes in circulation, the paper and printing of which cost the bank one-fourth of one per cent. The bank laws of the Dominion allowed the bank to loan that money to the people of Canada at seven per cent. That is class government.

TO THE EDITOR

PUBLISHING FACTS.

Editor Advertiser: Sir,—I have read your editorial in The Advertiser of Nov. 8, entitled "Insidious Poison."

In that editorial you said, "We have made this statement because we think it only right that the readers of daily papers should know the facts."

Now if you really think the readers of The Advertiser are entitled to the facts, why don't you tell the people what caused the business depression which has swept over Canada?

We are told by the capitalist papers that it is the after-effects of the war. But, sir, the world was at peace in 1913, yet a business depression swept over Canada and the United States, the mills and factories closed down and millions of men were forced into idleness. Prices fell and thousands of persons were caught in the slump and ruined financially.

Oats went down to 15 cents a bushel, corn, 15 cents; wheat, 67 cents; eggs, 7 cents, and the writer saw hogs of the four-legged kind sell for $2.50 a hundredweight.

What caused the ruinous business depression of 1913?

On the 12th day of March, 1913, the American Bankers' Association issued a circular which was sent to all national banks in the United States. That circular requested the banks to retire one-half of their circulation, to call in one-half of their loans, to be careful to make a money emergency felt.

Money is the lifeblood of commerce, and when the banks hoard it and refuse bank credits business must languish and die.

Every business depression that has ever brought ruin to Canada and the United States can be traced direct to the banks of the two countries.

To issue money is a prerogative which belongs to the Government and should never be delegated to banking corporations.

On May 7, 1920, Hon. Edward Brown, provincial treasurer of Manitoba, said: "Through the action of the Canadian and United States banks a financial crisis of the most serious character has been narrowly averted. The banks, by curtailing credits and forcing businessmen to face the business situation clearly had already caused a reduction in the price of goods."

Sir John Aird, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, in his address to the shareholders, said: "There is a decrease in our note circulation for the first time since the commencement of the war. This decrease is only $25,000, but if it is the first sign of a check to the inflation of prices it is not unwelcome."

Which is the best, high prices and prosperity, or low prices and closed factories, such as we have now?

Every farmer who has been ruined by the fall in the price of his produce and the depreciation in the value of his farm can charge it to the banking system of Canada.

When the writer was in the class in political economy he was taught that to inflate the currency inflates prices, to deflate the currency deflates prices.

McKinley was mates in the class in political economy, and that they were

EXERCISE

HERE is a good deal of charity and a make-believe science surrounding the subject of exercise and so-called physical culture. There is really no mystery about exercise requirements and the many "miraculous" systems owe such merit as they possess chiefly to the muscular movement that they require, the arousing of individual to activity, and often there is a psychic effect as in all cases where hope of benefit is held out to the seaker after health.

Exercises should be graduated according to age and physical condition as ascertained by a complete medical examination. Many people have ruined their circulatory apparatus by some one's "Physical Culture" carried on in ignorance of their real condition and needs. Such a warning cannot be too emphatic for those of middle age, nor is it to be totally disregarded by the young.

It is very often necessary that the exercise be limited to fresh air and a very carefully regulated program governed by the physician according to the effect on the patient.

Games, mountain climbing, hill climbing, walking, swimming, hockey, golf and tennis are for most people and exhilarating and for most people are the exercises that are needed most. Outdoor exercises should be sought in addition to formal systematic exercise.

1. Arm Stretching—Arms stretched to full length, upward and in front of body, clasping hands or fists clenched tightly. Bring arms back and sideways as far as possible. Repeat ten to twenty times.

2. Shoulder Straightening—From the standing position lean forward with back in each hand and arms extended, straighten the trunk and swing arms behind the hips.

3. Neck and Shoulder Stretching—Bring head and shoulders back as far as possible, attempt to bring them still further back with a quick movement. Repeat ten to twenty times.

4. Knee-Chest—Clasp both hands, fingers interlocking, over knee, arms at full length. Pull knee up to chest, resisting with leg. Repeat five to ten times with each leg.

5. Trunk Bending—Lie flat on back, and rise to sitting position.

6. Tree Swaying—While in the standing position, thrust the arms straight above the head, then swing from side to side, moving from the hips upward, the arms loosely waving like the branches of a tree.

7. Full Length—Stand arm's length from wall. Place both palms against wall, then lean forward until chest touches wall, push back to original position. Repeat ten to twenty times.

THREE YEARS AGO

THREE years ago tonight we were at the dawn of it.

We may be three years nearer to that dawn tonight than we seemed to be then.

Saturday there convenes in Washington a body of men who may really do what we sent our boys across the sea to do.

Or we may be a hundred years farther away from that event than we then seemed.

Let no man speak otherwise than reverently of what is to occur during the conference. Let us believe in it, and hope for it and pray for it. Let us pray for it more earnestly even than three years ago tonight we prayed for peace. Let us resolve "that these dead shall not have died in vain."

May God bless and guide the disarmament conference at Washington.

Real Duke To Show Movie Fans How An Aristocrat Acts

BY JAMES W. DEAN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The Duke of Manchester is really serious about his intentions of entering the movie world to show the world how a real aristocrat looks and acts.

This department's correspondent in London recently interviewed the Duke of Manchester on the subject.

"There is no mystery about my reasons for entering a photoplay career," said the duke. "There is no claim in England so affected by conditions since the war as the old nobility."

"It is no longer possible to live on our estates with the present burden of taxation and the only way for us to make ends meet is to go into the labor market and compete with others for what is going."

"I was not trained for the life that now seems necessary. Movie acting is the only thing I am able to turn to for the living necessary to my position in life."

"Nowhere in the photoplay is there more room for improvement than in the portrayal of the life of the aristocrat. The tendency is to make the average lord look like an imbecile."

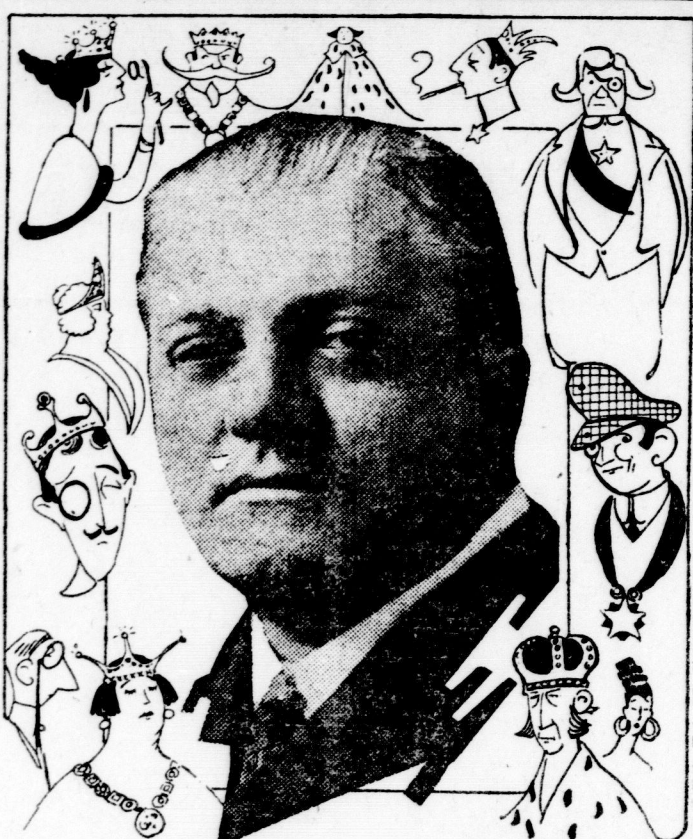

"There are none better qualified to show the aristocrats as they are than those who have been born in the purple themselves. I shall be glad to find a new career in the movie world if for no other reason than it will enable me to correct popular conceptions of how a duke behaves or how he looks."

The duke is negotiating with a leading American producer. He says he is asking a large salary to renounce his present life.

Cryptic remarks might be made about the duke choosing the movies as an easy field in which to turn up a fortune. Passing that, we consider his reaction on the movies.

It may be interesting to note that a real duke doesn't leave his spoon in his coffee cup, as film dukes often do.

A duke in the movies generally is tossed out with a sack across his waistcoat, a monocle, spats and a stove-pipe hat, even if he is taking an

The Duke of Manchester. He says he will show the movie public that nobles neither look or act like imbeciles, as the screen usually portrays them.

after-breakfast constitutional. Probably the Duke of Manchester will appear in golf togs or some such informal occasions. Real dukes do that, you know.

And he may not wear a drooping coffee-strainer or a misplaced eyebrow for a mustache.

Further, the duke may appear as hero of a movie, a character of noble purpose, of serious intent. The Duke of Manchester is right when he says the movies make aristocrats appear as imbeciles.

However, the most interesting thing will be a comparison of the manners and ethics of a real aristocrat with the etiquette of the average screen player. The latter is often conspicuous by its absence.

lently pictured scenes and scenery with the quaint, romantic flavor that is considered typical of New England. Careful attention to details add much to the charm of the picture. For instance, one could never imagine the signboard on the "Balden House" being anything but a genuine, weatherbeaten signboard which had seen long service over the years of an actually-existing dilapidated village inn somewhere in the actually-existing New England.

Of course, the plot of "Way Down East" is melodramatic, but not offensively so, as in most melodramas, and a melodrama of any kind if pictured by Griffith would be genuine art in any event.

Probably for a long time "Way Down East" will continue to appeal as it does appeal to all classes, including first of all the great "plain people," who see in it reflected their own hopes, tears, trials and foibles.

BROADHURST PLAY ATTRACTS CROWD

Grew Players Handle Difficult Comedy Drama With Success.

"Bought and Paid For," which is being offered at the Majestic Theatre this week attracted another large audience Thursday night. The famous comedy-drama by George Broadhurst is well presented by the Grew Players, especially the two stars of the company, Miss Virginia Mann and Robert Hyman.

Miss Mann as the wife of a millionaire, overly fond of champagne, has ample opportunity to display the ability as an actress that she undoubtedly possesses. The audience Thursday night showed their appreciation of the work of Miss Mann, giving her unstinted applause.

Robert Hyman, as the millionaire clubman, has some difficult lines and situations to handle, and makes the most of every one of them. He is particularly good in the second and third acts.

The work of Miss Gertrude Gustin should not be overlooked. She helps provide a lot of the comedy that has made "Bought and Paid For" so well and favorably known. Miss Gustin is becoming a great favorite with Majestic audiences.

Rickey Secret, who as James Gileay, a shipping clerk, looks after the part of a young man with an exaggerated idea of his own importance, and does it well. Mr. Secret shares the male honors of the evening with Mr. Hyman. Duncan Edwards, a great favorite with those who make a point of attending the Majestic Theatre each week, has little to do in this particular offering, but makes the most of a small part as does Miss Elizabeth Fox.

AT THE ALLEN. Of the many women in screenland who essay to become real movie producers there are but few who do not fail ignominiously. Constance Talmadge, starring in "Wedding Bells" at the Allen Theatre, the current half of this week is one of the few.

There is a style about Constance Talmadge that compels admiration from even the most hardened male cynic. In addition to this she is careful in that she does not commit the unpardonable error of over-doing things. "Wedding Bells" is particularly adapted for not only the star but for her principal support, Harrison Ford. It is one of those possible marriage and counter-marriage stories that keeps the distracted lover, Ford, real busy getting out of peculiar situations throughout the film.

The production, while free from obnoxious or suggestive scenes, is brimming over with good, clean comedy. Harold Lloyd, slapstick comedian extraordinaire, has long since been awarded his just due—a seat with the "Number Please" is just such a matter of Harold's twenty minutes of sheer nonsense that will convince one of the expediency of such action.

With Tom Santschi in "The Sagebrush Musketeer" the audience is treated to one of those gun-fighting, hard-riding tales of the west during the days that are no more. The film is well received.

Billed as the star event of the week at Allen's is little Dorothy Waters, who, although but nine years of age, has already earned the distinction of having been "shot" for the screen with such celebrities as Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford. Dorothy is a singer and dancer of considerable merit, and is winning due appreciation from good houses this week. On Friday evening she will meet the Allen patrons at the special armistice celebration dance to be staged in the lobby of the theatre directly the evening performance is concluded.

AT LOEW'S.

Betty Compton, who attained some prominence as a feature actress in the "Miracle Man," is starring the latter part of this week at Loew's in a Chinese drama entitled "At the End of the World." She is ably supported by the film favorite, Milton Sills.

The plot is laid in Shanghai, and the picture, which is well handled with regard to detail, shows excellent photography.

The film list includes Jimmy Aubrey in "The Nuisance," a Vitaphone comic, a Pathe Weekly and Foxes in Florida. N. D. Ippolito, a member of the orchestra, delighted with a saxophone solo "Serenade From the Millions of Atquins."

In the vaudeville Link and Phillips gave a good country dialog, indulging in witty patter.

Ferguson and Sunderland delighted the audience with funny songs and original dancing, the male member of the team being clever in his every-day impersonations.

Classical pieces were rendered by the De Maria Five, with a Venetian background, who gave vocal and instrumental selections of considerable merit.

AT THE PATRICIA.

Antonio Moreno plays the leading role in "The Secret of the Hills," which is the feature film showing at the Patricia Theatre Friday and Saturday. This offering is adapted from the novel of the same name, and while delving in mystery is not overdone. The scenes are laid in England, and action predominates throughout the entire plot.

As Fenton, a young member of London Society, Antonio Moreno accidentally runs into a mysterious murder, and incidentally meets a charming young lady. He resolves to determine the identity of the assassin and bring them to justice, not reckoning that he will win a bride while fulfilling his self-imposed task.

"The Secret of the Hills" loses none of its value by being filmed, and this is due to the excellent cast supporting Antonio Moreno with Lillian Hill in the leading feminine role. Adventure, love and mystery are combined in this vehicle to make a clever hour's entertainment.

A scenic film and a Century comedy complete the screen program.

Four young men present a vaudeville act which is liberal in quantity and fair in quality. This bill includes singing, dancing and instrumental numbers, with a female impersonation thrown in for good measure. The opening song is presented in an original manner, and the quartet was well received Thursday night.

O. C. PRESENTS GUNNERS WITH MEMORIAL POPPIES

The Second Brigade Machine Gunners held one of their extra parades last night and had a fair turnout only.

Lieut.-Col. Coles, O.C. of the brigade presented the members of the unit with poppies, the memorial flower for today, which is the third anniversary of the signing of the armistice.

The unit will hereafter parade on Tuesday and Friday nights. Members of the unit are urged to attend the drills next week, in view of the inspection by Sir Henry Burstall, inspector-general of the Canadian forces.

V. K. GREER NEW SCHOOL INSPECTOR

Was Unanimous Choice of the Board To Succeed Late C. B. Edwards.

V. K. Greer, for some time assistant inspector of the London Public Schools, was unanimously appointed senior inspector at Thursday's meeting of the board of education.

Mr. Greer, who succeeds the late C. B. Edwards, was nominated for the position by Trustee Edwin Smith who spoke of Mr. Greer's sterling qualities. The motion was seconded by Trustee Thomas Rowe, who also spoke highly of the work done by Mr. Greer.

"One inspector cannot do the work alone," said Mr. Rowe. "It will be necessary to get an assistant who will be suitable in every way, and we must pay strict heed to the man that Mr. Greer and the department recommends for this position."

Mr. Greer, who was absent from the board room during the discussion, was called in and made acquainted with the fact that he was the new inspector. He thanked the board for their action and promised as efficient service as he could possibly give.

Mr. Smith, in his original motion, recommended that Mr. Greer's salary be $4,000 per annum and should start on November 1. Mr. Rowe, however, did not agree that the salary should be included in the motion. He thought that it was a matter for No. 1 committee, and this important phase of the appointment will be attended to by that committee.

A Vapor Treatment in the Form of a Salve. Applied Over Throat and Chest, the Body Heat Releases the Ingredients in the Form of Vapors. Relieves Croup and Cold Troubles Without the Necessity of Internal "Dosing."

Local Druggists Are Each Giving Away 50 Free Packages, 6 of Which Are Full 50-Cent Jars.

Twenty-five years ago in a little North Carolina town, a druggist discovered a process of combining the old-fashioned remedies—Camphor, Turpentine and Menthol—with certain volatile oils, such as Eucalyptus, Thyme and Juniper, so that, when applied externally, the body heat would vaporize these ingredients. These vapors, inhaled all night long, carry the medication, with each breath, direct to the air passages and lungs.

Today this vapor treatment, Vicks VapoRub, is almost universally used throughout the south in preference to internal "dosing." It is quick in its action, and what is more important, particularly to mothers with small children, it is applied externally and hence does not disturb the most delicate stomach. Colds are easiest treated at the beginning and Vicks makes the ideal preventive for the entire family.

This preparation comes in salve form and its action is two-fold. Externally, it is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, taking out that tightness and soreness in the chest. Internally, the vapors inhaled loosen the phlegm and open the air passages. For croup or colds just rub a little over the throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. One application often prevents a night attack of croup.

For very severe chest colds, tonsillitis, bronchitis or incipient pneumonia, hot, wet towels should first be applied over the parts, to open the pores of the skin and then use Vicks. For head-colds, asthmatic or catarrhal troubles a little Vicks can be rubbed up the nostrils or melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled.

The manufacturers know that an actual trial is the best way to prove how valuable Vicks is in the home, and they have accordingly furnished each druggist in London with 50 free packages, to be given away on presentation of the coupon below.

"Way Down East" Back At Grand Wins Favor of "Plain People"

Musical Prologue and Singing of Rialto Quartet Add Much To Intrinsic Merit of Griffith Production.

"Way Down East," a simple story of plain people (to quote the explanatory subtitle), told for the stage by Lottie Blair Parker and pictured for the screen by Anthony Paul Kelly with the lavish excellence that usually characterizes a D. W. Griffith film, came back to the Grand Thursday for a three-day engagement.

It is the same picture that pleased thousands of theatregoers when it was shown at the Grand before, and Thursday many who returned to see it again were rewarded by the successful presentation of a beautiful prologue, scenically and musically first-class in all respects.

The singing of the Rialto Quartet, comprised by Wesley Roberts, Chris J. Pink, Percy King and Fred Downing, was greatly appreciated, and other special musical numbers were rendered by an augmented orchestra.

Richard Barthelmess and Lillian Gish are names that attract in themselves and the work of these principals is really above criticism. Among the supporting cast are Lowell Sherman, Burr McIntosh, Porter Strong, Kate Bruce, Mrs. Morgan Belmont, Creighton Hale, Edgar Nelson, George Neville and others who accomplish equally good impersonations of the many difficult character parts in the play.

"Way Down East," from the photographic standpoint is rich in excel-

WHY Is ORTH Selling Hundreds of OVERCOATS At Lower Prices? Figure This Out Yourself

You hear a lot about avoiding the Middleman's Profits and to buy direct from some store that is controlled by a "Chain System—or Unloading Manufacturers, Fad-Sellers and Miss-Fitters." Now be frank and read what others know to be facts:

"Expense" of doing anything adds to the cost, "doesn't it?" Now, can "Chain Stores" or "Unloading Manufacturers" rent a store, heat it, light it, employ sales people or buy cheaper advertising than any wide-awake individual business man," or can they buy better goods or at a lower price? No. Emphatically not. You'll find that well-known brands and genuine garments are sold as cheap to the smallest, as well as to the largest buyer. No good firm can have two prices. "Wholesaler or Retailer." Now you say probably they make their own goods. Yes, if they happen to do so they cannot make goods any cheaper than other manufacturers who have the very same overhead cost. Forget it, as it is getting old-stuff. Did Russia cut out the middleman? "LIVE AND LET LIVE" IS OUR MOTTO. Now then, folks here is how Orth wins. For genuine values in men's apparel, we buy from the largest collection of every good maker. The chain store salesman practically must buy and sell what his wholesale house sends to the store. He cannot choose the best values offered in the world collection of competition. "We can and we win." You know there are plums in every basket better than others."

CHINESE MEN COME, WIVES SHOULD ALSO

"No Home Ties" Blamed For Bad Habits.

Should the way be made easier for Chinese women to join their husbands in Canada? According to Mr. A. E. Welch, superintendent of the Chinese Christian Association in London, who has just returned home from Toronto after attending a conference of workers among the Chinese in Ontario, the convention was strongly of the opinion that the "shocking" exclusion law which keeps out Chinese wives and children drives the men to habits which Canadians condemn, but which Canadian men might be in danger of falling into if deprived of all home associations.

"The Chinese people are very domesticated," said Mr. Welch to the women's department of The Advertiser. "We have seen right in our own city what good husbands and fathers and citizens the Chinese men prove when they bring their wives and children here. Just imagine what might become of Canadian men if cut off entirely from their family ties, the influence of their women folk and the home atmosphere. Workers among the Chinese feel that if the men are allowed to come, conditions will be much better if it is not made so difficult for the women to enter. So far as the Chinese women are concerned, they are a factor for the women workers to handle. They are most responsive to the advances of Canadian women, and to sympathy and interest. If the children are brought up under Christian as well as Canadian influences, they will develop into good Canadian citizens. We have in London little Chinese boys who have been here practically all their lives, and who are growing up fine, manly chaps, an example to Canadian boys of British ancestry."

Students Coming.
"A problem discussed at the convention which must be dealt with promptly and effectively is that arising from the number of Chinese boys under the age of sixteen who are coming into Canada as students, and hence are not deterred from entering the country. Not long ago, it was reported, 125 of them arrived in Canada to be distributed to all parts of the Dominion. The manner in which we treat these boys will in large measure determine their future attitude towards Canada and Christianity."

"They will naturally be homesick and hungry for the kindness and sympathy of the Christian atmosphere. If we surround them with this, good and well."

"In past years, the Chinese coming here have been largely from the lower classes. Now, we are beginning to get the literate, the thinking, educated people. It has been demonstrated that Chinese make very sincere converts to Christianity and that they are, indeed, better 'stickers' than many white people."

"A story told which very much impressed the convention was that of a young man of the intellectual class in China who was interested in Christianity, but wanted to see how it worked out in a Christian country before embracing it for himself. He came to Canada, was educated and deceived, and about to return to the Orient bitter and disillusioned when he met, by what some people would call accident, a man who was a glorious Christian."

"Through this new acquaintance, the young Chinese got an entirely new conception of Christianity and Christian people, and returned to his own country to give to his people the gospel of Jesus Christ. That is an instance which illustrates the importance of giving to the Chinese newcomers, and especially the young students now coming in, a true conception of what Christianity and Canadianism at its best stand for."

"It is an unfortunate thing that so often the Chinese have been grossly misunderstood, treated as unknowable aliens, when, in reality, no people are more ready to smile back in response to friendship proffered to them."

"With the arrival of young Chinese lads as students in London, we will need a number more of consecrated women to undertake the task of teaching them."

Happy Season For Stout Women

BY MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—There is one consoling thought today for many women and it is that while many of our fashions are shown upon tantalizingly slender figures, most of the modes may be adapted to almost any avoirdupois. Naturally bouffant garments are the flapper's very own.

But the straight lines and flowing sleeves, the adaptation of the straight lines, belong to almost any age and figure.

An especially attractive model is the Louis Grauer gown of draped damour embroidered in steel beads. It is indeed a "perfect love" of a dress.

The long-waisted effect, with cording over the hips, and the long shoulders with full sleeves tend toward grace and figure.

The designs of head, embroidered in two rows on the sleeves and skirt and one around the neck, add that touch of gaiety which all the season's frocks demand.

What Women Are Accomplishing In London.

HOUSE COMMITTEE MEETS.
The "Lenmore" house committee, of which Mrs. S. L. Taylor is convener, met Thursday afternoon to discuss business in connection with the Y. W. C. A. residence at 187 King street.

HOLD FASHION SHOW.
A fashion show was given at Lenmore by Smallman & Ingram's at the request of the Blue Triangle Cabinet for the federation of the Y. W. C. A. industrial clubs, which met Thursday night. The study of the home to which the federation is giving attention, was taken up with relation to finances. Many suits were shown, chiefly tailored and in the dark shades. Miss Wrigley, superintendent of the girls at Smallman & Ingram's, pointed out the good quality of the exhibits, stating that they were not cheap, but were good buying. She also explained to the girls the different qualities of the materials, impressing upon them the great necessity of knowing wearing values. Various little afternoon and semi-evening dresses were shown in cotton crepes and serge, also simple evening dresses, the patterns of which could easily be copied and made up by the girls themselves. Bungalow dresses and house dresses were also exhibited in gingham and prints.

The federation held a supper before the fashion show, after which a short discussion followed, in which plans were formed for Christmas service.

WOMEN ORGANIZE TO BACK MR. WHITE

Mrs. Edwards, Convener, and Ward Conveners Appointed.

Women supporters of Mr. Frank White in the federal election campaign held a well-attended meeting on Thursday afternoon in the National Liberal and Conservative clubrooms, over the Majestic Theatre, to deal with business in connection with organization for work and other plans in connection with the campaign. Mrs. A. T. Edwards, convener of the women's organization, presided, and gave a most practical talk on organization and its importance in carrying any project or campaign to a successful issue. She also dealt with Mr. Meighen's platform, advancing reasons why it should receive the support of women. Other speakers of the afternoon were Messrs. E. R. Dennis, Childs and Fred Lawra-son.

Mrs. E. R. Seabrook and Mrs. A. B. Greer accepted the responsibilities of the convener of ward 1. Mrs. Guymer was elected convener for ward 2; Mrs. A. E. Tutt and Mrs. Harry Winnett joint conveners for ward 3, and Mrs. C. H. Zeigler, convener for ward 4. Mrs. Edwards announced a meeting to receive reports from ward conveners to be held on Friday afternoon, Nov. 18.

CRAWLY CRAB HELPS

[By Olive Roberts Barton.]

Crawly Crab was dddled into view.

When the silly old cotton-spinner (one of the Wiggledin people, you know) coughed out his tummy right through his mouth, and the pink pearl rolled out on the white sand at the bottom of the ocean, the Twins stared till their eyes nearly dropped out. But what could they do, when Mr. Cotton-Spinner had them done up like parcels in his white wrapping string?

"Oh, ho! Ha, ha! Hee, hee!" laughed the thief. "Isn't that a fine pocket-book to have, my dears? And think how safe it is! You'd never lose pennies down the boardwalk if you could swallow 'em and then cough them up when you wished to buy a folly-pop. That's the way it is with my pink pearl. I'll always keep it safe and sound."

With these words Mr. Cotton-Spinner pulled in his ridiculous paper-bag of a stomach, and swallowed the pink pearl again for safe keeping.

Suddenly a voice said: "What's this I

CHAPTER 18.—I CHAFE AT BEING CHAPERONED.

WILL it not for Rose Montillon, I'd miss most of the gossip about the company. After the strangely unpleasant affair of the dinner at her apartment, Mrs. Nundy was always with me at the studios.

Motherdear takes care of my correspondence. My fan mail arrives by the bushel. It takes up hours of each day to answer letters from admirers. And so Mrs. Nundy became my chaperone while I was doing "Love in Leash."

I am the only chaperoned girl in the company, and I can't see why I must be watched over by a married woman all of the time. Whenever I speak to Motherdear about it she says she can't see why a young girl doesn't need a chaperone in a studio as much as at a dance.

Moreover, Nundy, the publicity man, insists on the chaperone. It looks well—he says "twice"—for the company to take such good care of its members.

Often I've wondered what's going to happen when Dick Barnes meets Motherdear. It seems to me that Dick is taking great care that they shall not meet. Motherdear has invited him to tea with the rest of the crowd a dozen times. Of course, she hasn't the least idea that she ever met him. As I've said before, if Jimmy Alcott doesn't wish to rise from the dead, it's not my place to resurrect him.

Whether I need her or not, Mrs. Nundy continues to substitute for Motherdear. And she doesn't approve of Rose at all. But, of course, as the wife of the publicity man, she has to.

Fairy Slippers Grace the Ball

Black and Silver Grey Favorites With Chaperone and Dubutant.

Stimbe in hue though the slippers may be, which, worn by fairy feet, weave in and out of the mazes of the dance at the Armistice night ball in the winter garden, Friday evening, Prince Charming will be fair to go up and down the world hunting for the fair ower if he chances to find one of the graceful bits of footwear for which the London shoe shops have been raided during the past week.

Muris has said "Black," and, however lightsome, airy and radiantly hued the frock to be worn, the first choice of slippers, sub-deb, and chaperone alike has been the black evening slipper. Running a close second for popularity is a real confection in silver grey satin or in suede. Occasionally the choice has fallen upon bronze, so durable and so perfect with certain color combinations. Cloth of gold and of silver have still proved favorites and requests have been made for white satin and kid, and, in some instances, slippers to match the gown.

Very jaunty, indeed, were green suede slippers with dull silver buckles which were seen in a shop window, whispering about the ball, no doubt, to a pair of bronze slippers, also harking back in style to Colonial days, and made festive with oval buckles of dull gold knobs, ringed about with tiny steel beads, centred with puffs of bronze-brown satin ribbon.

Absolutely irresistible are the black satin slippers, some of them plain, with a touch of steel beading, applied in a simple fashion around the top of the vamp and over the single strap. Sometimes there is the gaiety of an elaborated beading of silver and jet on the toe; sometimes a simple little band of silver fabric inset around the top, a treatment also noted on the fairy queen silver grey satin slippers.

Does my lady find satin slippers uncomfortable or unbecoming? Then she has chosen kid with a trifle of beading, or perhaps patent leather. Whatever the material, it is a fairly safe wager that the heels are Louis instead of French and that she will be able to promenade as gracefully as she dances at the Armistice night ball.

For the matron and maid who value the luxury of comfort there is a slipper that has proved almost surprisingly popular, the vamp of patent leather and quarter, heel and strap of suede. With so many new slippers to make their debut at the ball, the chances seem fairly good for Prince Charming to find the clue which will lead to the beautiful princess.

WANTS ADDRESSES.

Dear Miss Grey,—No doubt you will be surprised to hear from me. How does this weather suit you? I would like to have a few addresses, Miss Grey. I asked for some before, but I guess you neglected to send them. I have had some very good correspondents through the Mail-Box and have had one of the girls visiting me. I wish someone would start the book discussion again, as I found it quite interesting. I would like some more crochet patterns, if I may have some. By the way can anyone let me know what became of Mills Frost. I think someone in the page will have his address, as his cousin sent it in during the war.

SUNBEAM.
If you will send a stamped addressed envelope repeating your requests, I will be pleased to send you addresses and some crochet patterns, and possibly by then we will have some news of Mills Frost.

WANTS ADDRESSES.
Dear Miss Grey.—The temptation is great to keep from writing real often when we see so many nice letters in the Mail-Box and when we get to know so many we look for their letters. Will you please find inclosed self-addressed and stamped envelope for a Lonesome Girl's address? Our sympathy goes out to the dear girl in this, her great sorrow, in the loss of her mother, and let us write her a "Home Kid" to our lovely old lady who always loves to read the letters and her birthday is on the 15th of December, 84 years old. We will call her Auntie Becca, and let all the Mail-Box writers remember her with just a little letter for that date. I will write Mother Pearl real soon. Mother of Three hasn't written for a long time and Fuzz Wuzz, hope you are all feeling brighter, have been looking for a letter from you. Please find inclosed a dime for the Children's Hospital fund, in close wishing you all a bright Thanksgiving.

TELLS GRAPHIC LIFE STORY OF LLOYD GEORGE

Rev. George Adam, Montreal, Addresses Audience in First Congregational Church

LOVES COUNTRY FIRST

His Native Land and People Dear to Heart of the British Premier.

On the eve of the Washington disarmament conference, at which David Lloyd George will undoubtedly play a skipper's part in guiding the battered ship of humanity into more sheltered waters, and at the time when the interest of Britain is testing the true greatness of the British premier, what could be more fitting than the history and a word-picture of the little Welshman? Such a lecture was given in the First Congregational Church of this city Thursday night by Rev. George Adam of the Emmanuel Church of Montreal. It was a vivid sketch of the life and accomplishments of Lloyd George that drew the attention of hundreds of intensely interested auditors. This address covered, in proper sequence, the events in three score years of a picturesque career, several decades of which were marked by heavy English history.

But always it was made humanly appealing by touches of pathos, of which the speaker seemed always a master, and by flashes of wit and humor which would tax the genius of a Bill Nye to properly report.

Father Was School Teacher. Turning back the pages of biography, Mr. Adam gave his audience a peep of a sick little babe restless in the throes of a high fever, at whose side a mother anxiously watched, and a doctor fought desperately with the spectre of death. Outside the squat, dingy red brick tenement house the wind swept gusts of rain down a mean street of Manchester. It was the first introduction to the man and his birthplace.

Little David's father was a school teacher, and poorly paid at that, and Mrs. George was left with two little boys and a little girl in her care, and little money. The next day after the funeral the landlord, accompanied by an auctioneer, arrived, and that night the widow found herself with only the sky as a covering.

She had previously written to a brother, Richard Lloyd, living at Llany-standwy, a village in the north of Wales, telling of her impending plight, and before the night had grown very old the long form of the Welsh cobbler hove out of the twilight. He took them to his humble cobbler-shop and home, where he had lived long alone.

Fondness for Discussion. Rev. Mr. Adam's description of the boyhood of Lloyd George would fit the youth of almost any real boy. The youth did have, however, a peculiar fondness to go to the blacksmith shop of the village, where the men of the town met to discuss and settle great national problems. The youngster often irritated the sages of the village by telling them that they were wrong, and by endeavoring to set them right.

It was first decided that the boy should be made a school teacher, but David refused to join the church, expressing a decided preference for the Campbellites. Eventually, on the advice of the village smithy, the boy was sent to study law. Failing to find any one in the village who would or could teach the boy the necessary Latin, the uncle, now well beyond middle age, studied the language at the end of long days of work, and in turn taught the boy.

The first two cases of the premier-to-be gave unmistakable evidence of the young attorney's sharp wit and dogged determination. The second case, involving the question of burial, led the young lawyer to the House of Lords, where he successfully fought for his clients on the floor.

Offered Candidacy. It was soon after this that Lloyd George was offered the Liberal candidacy for his home riding, which he accepted.

It was at this time also that he thought of marriage, bestowing his love on Margaret Owen, a beautiful farmer's daughter, near the village. In relating the story of the courtship Mr. Adam rose to the height of his humorous descriptive work.

David Lloyd George carried the election, defeating the Conservative candidate, who had represented the riding for 23 years, by 40 votes.

In rather a ludicrous attire of checkered trousers and a long-tailed morning coat, which would not meet in the front, the new member of Parliament arrived in London. On his first attempt to enter the House he was directed by the police on guard to the messengers' entrance, but he finally became properly established.

Almost immediately he picked on Joseph Chamberlain as the only member of the Government who was worthy of his steel, and although it took years of persistent work, permeated by many failures, he emerged triumphant from the contest with the proud English statesman.

Made Influence Felt. Eventually he was given a seat in Asquith's cabinet, as president of the board of trade, a body which had not functioned in more than a century. But the young statesman immediately perturbed the businessmen of the country by becoming the whole board himself, and by making his influence felt. Always he kept the spectre of the poor in front of him, and he sought measures continually to ameliorate their sufferings. To do this he sought to take money from those who had it.

He was given the chancellorship of the exchequer, and he immediately introduced new systems of taxation and financing. To his credit were such bills as the old age pensions act, mothers' pensions, national insurance, and land taxation.

Then, as a bolt from the blue into all his wonderful plans, came the war. The story of his wonderful work during the war years, first in consolidating the finances of the country, then in the roles of minister of munitions, minister of war, and finally as the premier, the speaker told with much power and detail.

To Lloyd George he gave the credit of forging the arms of steel which finally crushed the enemy.

Will Solve Problems. He touched briefly on the great problems which still confront the premier, but he expressed confidence that he would emerge splendidly triumphant.

Describing Lloyd George personally, Mr. Adam said: "He is a little fellow, with legs that are by no means straight. His personality is the really great thing; in fact, it is spellbinding. His voice is soft and never strident, even his most forceful and radical utterances are delivered in an almost purring and modulated voice.

"When speaking he usually stands resting with his legs crossed, and he invariably plays with his watch-chain, often using the glasses with which to point. His gestures are few. He is often interrupted during speeches, but his repartee is always equal to the occasion.

"He is a man that loves his country and people above all things," said Rev. Mr. Adam.

BANS DANCING ON CHURCH PROPERTY

Methodist District Conference Passes Resolution To This Effect.

Members of the London District Methodist Conference, in session all day on Thursday in the Wellington Street Church, placed a ban on card-playing and dancing on Methodist Church property, by unanimously passing a resolution to this effect.

The conference put itself on record in expressing belief that as the church property was to be used in the best interests of the community in which it was situated, and placing the stamp of approval on churches and schools being used to promote all activities aiming at the welfare of the community, but arguing that these two amusements would tend to degenerate the church rather than to advance it.

Not Teaching Dancing. Mrs. Henderson, representing the Y. W. C. A., called down a report that the institution was teaching dancing as absolutely untrue. True, she said, the physical department was teaching calisthenics and folk games in order to win young girls away from the dance halls.

It was decided to set aside those Sundays falling on Nov. 27 and Dec. 4 for presentation in all the charges of the work of missions, and Sunday, Dec. 15, for educational work.

C. E. German, outlining the responsibility of Sunday school superintendents in the matter of evangelism, defined "evangelism" as "the turning of man from sin to faith and loyalty to Jesus Christ." Eighty per cent of the church members came from the Sunday school, he stated, and the superintendent was largely responsible for evangelism in the school. He himself must be a Christian. He must order the school so that the spirit of reverence will pervade it. By personal contact he must put himself in a position of influence among the scholars.

Life Blood of Church. Rev. John Garbutt, speaking of the responsibility of the quarterly board in regard to evangelism, declared that the quarterly board of the Methodist Church was the very heart through which the life-blood of the church flowed, the very life of the church evangel. Methodism, he said, believes God in Christ is reconciling a world of estranged men unto himself.

John Elliott, B.A., in course of an address on "The Pastor His Own Evangelist," said that the business of the pastor is the basilest of leadership. He was to lead the congregation along lines of evangelistic effort. He urged every circuit to put evangelism to the fore, and to make special efforts during the winter months.

The next meeting of the conference will be held in February next.

Rev. John Agnew presided.

JAPANESE PEARLS A SOURCE OF WORRY TO OWNERS OF REAL ONES

CULTURED GEM MAY DECEIVE EVEN EXPERTS

Dr. Geo. F. Kunz, Authority On Jewels, Reticent On Made Baubles.

MARKET STILL NORMAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—"Are my pearls real?" This question was asked in accents of great excitement by a woman who drove up to a Fifth Avenue jeweler's early one morning recently in her mother's car and demanded to see a jewel expert. She had to wait a few minutes, and did so in evident perturbation; then when the expert put himself at her service she produced a heavy pearl necklace from a case, handed it to him and exclaimed:

"My pearls! Please examine them at once and let me know if they are genuine."

After a careful examination the expert returned them to her, saying: "As far as I can tell you, and I have had over thirty years' experience, the pearls are genuine. I tell me, where did you purchase them?"

The anxious one replied that she had owned the pearls before the war. And the expert smiled and said:

"Then you may be sure that my judgment may be relied on. The pearls are true pearls."

As soon as she had gone the expert was asked for the meaning of his question. He explained that in 1914 some remarkable pearls had been put on the market about which there was confusion and a variety of opinions even among the experts. These are the cultured pearls from Japan, which are produced by artificial stimulation, the formation of the layers of "shell," which by perfection or imperfection make pearls more or less valuable, was a process of nature. Between a cultured pearl and one from the depths of the Indian Ocean it was impossible at times to detect a difference.

"Nevertheless," said the expert, "the presence of these cultured pearls is a great menace to the market and owners of pearls naturally feel anxious to know to which class their gems belong."

Rush for Jewels After War.
Many persons are wearing pearls, diamonds and other precious stones as jewelry nowadays who didn't have such gewgaws before 1918. It is one of the effects of the great war which may outlast some of its effects which are further reaching.

A diamond merchant has figured out what he calls an explanation of this shining state of things. Said he:

"When all the world was shaking and even money seemed to have no stable value, people bought precious stones as an investment. The same thing has always been a practice with actors. After a successful season, when they were able to save a part of their salary and while they were going about looking for another engagement, they put their savings into a handsome ring of pendant, or some other form of jewelry combining precious stones."

"They would explain this action by saying that they were laying by for a rainy day. The actors know that they won't get back the full amount of the money they lay out in precious stones, but they can find a purchaser at a reduction and also they can get an advance on such things at pawnshops."

This merchant seemed to think that precisely the same idea—a foreboding one—had dictated the enormous sales of gems immediately after the armistice. The new rich have no confidence in the staying quality of their riches. They have had it ground into them that wealth has wings. By investing surplus funds this way these people hope to clip its wings.

Finds Business Is Normal.
Dr. George Frederick Kunz, one of the best known gem experts and who has had a gem called after him—the kunzite—admitted the existence of this so-called flurry in gem buying, but, in his opinion, it had not lasted very long. Sales of precious stones are back to normal, a statement that probably means a reference to the years before the war.

"Two or three years ago there was an unprecedented demand for diamonds," said Dr. Kunz, "and it is very well to be true that many people used this way of keeping their savings in a handy form. But this was but one of the reasons for the general desire to become possessors of specimens of this beautiful stone. The fact that previous to 1920 the demand was said to be unusual and the newer condition that it is no longer unprecedented, may account for what is being termed a 'stagnant market.'"

"One must remember that a great number of stones have been put up for sale by formerly rich families who no longer can afford to keep them. This, however, affected the European market rather than the American and, but if there was a slump in Europe in 1920-21 it wasn't of consequence enough to lower prevailing prices. This statement was brought out by a published report from England showing the sales of the Diamond Syndicate, which controls the output of the big producing companies and regulates the prices, had fallen considerably in volume. Notwithstanding the falling off in demand, the report went on to say that basic prices were further increased during the latter part of 1920, and although the "slump" has become more pronounced since then, it was reported that the Diamond Syndicate still maintained its prices. In the report was the following statement:

Market Stagnation Noted.
"Owing to the stagnation of the diamond market and the sales in Europe, Canada and America of diamonds stolen by the Bolsheviks, the syndicate found itself in some difficulty in replacing diamonds sold from stock."

Accordingly the syndicate asked the producers to grant relief, and an agreement was reached by which the syndicate is no longer required to replace to the extent of 100 per cent, but a lower percentage, and an agreement received Government approval.

Further evidence of the continuance of the diamond trade slump came from Cape Town in the news that the directors of the Consolidated Diamond Mines of South West Africa, which is the concern formed in 1920 to acquire the principal German interests, had decided that mining operations must be discontinued for the time being.

The suspension of mining is not likely, say dealers here, to have any pronounced effect on sales of diamonds except the general one of keeping the price normal. They do not anticipate an increase.

Certainly the frequently printed claims that diamonds can be manufactured, claims that are constantly appearing at length in the newspapers, have never had an influence on sales of genuine stones. Dr. Kunz was asked what progress "diamond manufacturers" were making. Said he: "I know of one man who is an enthusiast on the subject. He has been working on it for years. Now this is what he has accomplished so far. By an expenditure amounting to $10,000 and all his time, and what he might have earned in this time had he been legitimately employed, he finally succeeded in producing a diamond about the size of a pin point, or, to be exact, one six-hundredth of a carat. That's a great triumph, isn't it?"

Dr. Kunz listed what he already knew, an account of the "cultured" pearls from Japan. These gems are said to resemble the precious pearls so closely as to deceive experts. And this is all he would say about them.

"A good many years ago I made a rule never to talk about any but genuine stones. I have adhered to this rule ever since."

"But aren't these 'cultured' pearls the real thing?" is asked a reporter. "Indeed, they are not," Dr. Kunz replied emphatically.

Excitement in London.
The excitement caused among pearl dealers in the West End of London does not seem to have penetrated far enough west to have affected the great New York merchants. Most of these men have heard about the pearls that Kokichi Mikimoto is "cultivating" in Japan. He has recently established a propagation station in the Bay of Agui, with a view to cultivating the pearl oyster.

The method of producing these cultured pearls is said to be exactly the same as that which produces the natural article. An irritant is introduced under the liver of the oyster, which begins at once to cover the foreign substance with a layer of "shell," and after a time, when it is returned again to the sea, where it is allowed to remain for from three to four years. Pearls by this method can be grown to six or seven grains.

Mikimoto was more than 30 years at work perfecting his cultural pearls. For a long time his experiments were futile, but in 1890 he was able to exhibit the first products of a propagating station at the Third National Industrial Exhibition in Tokyo. Since that date the cultured pearl has been a recognized article in the jewelry trade.

At first Mikimoto only produced the cultured pearl attached to the shell of the oyster. This pearl had to be cut off from its mother base, and then it was finished off with a mother-of-pearl pack. It is called a "semi-pearl" and consists of two-thirds nature, or pearl secretion, and one-third mother-of-pearl.

The centre of Mikimoto's pearl culture enterprise is the island of Taitoku, which lies to the north of the Bay of Agui, twelve miles from the famous shrine of Ise. Before the industry started the tiny island was not inhabited; now it supports a flourishing colony of many families, all connected in some way with the pearl culture. Branches of the enterprise have been established recently in nearby islands.

The pearl oysters cultivated on these grounds are said to be the true pearl oyster, which is found in greater or less quantity in all the waters about Japan. These oysters bear a close resemblance to the Indian oysters which experts consider the best to be found.

Pearl Oyster Not Delicate.
The Japanese pearl oyster is rather small in size, usually ranging from 2½ to four inches in diameter, and is not so delicate as the Indian variety. The shell is very thin and the inner surface is lined with nacre of a silver white. The average depth at which these oysters are found is 45 feet and they are usually anchored to rocks.

New York—"The secret of beauty is the proper care of the skin," says Miss Nilsson, the popular Metro star. "It only requires a few moments' time and anyone is more than paid for the little effort it takes. In the first place the skin should be kept scrupulously clean. Use a good cleansing cream (Liska) and wash it with warm water. Then follow this by bathing the face with warm water then rinse with cold water and dry thoroughly with a coarse towel. After this process select a beautifier which in addition to being a beautifier has a healing effect on the skin. The very best I have found for this purpose is Derwillo, as it instantly beautifies the complexion and its continued use makes the results permanent. The very best place of face powder, as it stays on better and is wonderful for a shiny nose, oily, dark, sallow skin, freckles, wrinkles and other facial blemishes. Just make this test: Put derwillo on one side of your face, then look in your mirror and compare it with the other side—you will need no further argument to convince you that nothing beautifies like derwillo. It imparts a vestment, free of tax, which in ordinary circumstances is as good almost as ready money. They regard them in a different light now.

Experts claim that the difference between cultured and natural pearls could not be distinguished without damaging the gems. The Japanese cultured article had exactly the same waxiness when placed against the tongue as possessed by real gems. Cultured pearls also peel like natural pearls the difference being that after several layers (shells) have been removed the mother-of-pearl, or seed foundation, is revealed. On the other hand, they said it is impossible to peel some natural pearls, so that there are no tests which can be successfully applied without inflicting some damage to the gem.

Put on Market in 1914.
Cultured pearls were put on the market in 1914, and they were not sold here until last year, and then only in inconsiderable quantities. They have been sold here by agents of Mikimoto, who are said to have offered them for what they were, cultured pearls. The persons who bought their pearl peckles, pearl ropes, etc., before 1914 are almost the only collectors who can be absolutely certain of the value of their gems.

So perturbed have owners of a specimen of the Queen of Gems become in England that a series of experiments have been made with the X-ray. Three sets of pearls were submitted to this test. They were: 1. manufactured pearls; 2. natural pearls; 3. cultured pearls. They were all arranged separately on a tray. The X-ray apparatus was trained on them, and fifty photographs were taken at various degrees of intensity. The pictures disclosed that the manufactured pearls were opaque under the ray. But there was no apparent difference between cultured and natural pearls. Both showed the same density.

London pearl merchants asked for a report of the Diamond and Precious Stones Section of the London Chamber of Commerce on the Japanese cultured gems. Here it is:

"The matter has been considered by a special committee appointed by the trade, which is taking steps to insure that a definition of 'pearls' shall be generally accepted in order to protect the public against false description or misrepresentation."

Shot Five Times To Death On Niagara Falls Street

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 10.—Murder was committed here tonight at 7:30 on a much traveled street. George Timpany, 35 years old, going home from work over the river was met by another man on Clifton Hill, just above the Clifton Hotel, and was shot five times, four shots in the head and one in the heart. He died instantly. Two girls farther down the hill saw the shooting and saw the murderer running into Queen Victoria Park where all trace of him was lost. The murdered man some time ago was shot in his grocery store by men who stole all his receipts for that day. Some time ago he shot a local man who happened to stop near his home. He at that time said he was living in mortal terror of blackmailers.

He claimed then that he had left the organization and the rest of the band had threatened to "get" him. It is believed that the man who did the shooting today is in hiding and poses as searching the park minutely. All exits are being guarded.

HOSPITAL PATIENTS TOSEE "WAY DOWN EAST"

An Armistice Day treat for the patients of Westminster Hospital will be provided by John R. Minihick, manager of the Grand Theatre, where "Way Down East" is being presented the latter half of this week.

Friday morning the film, complete orchestra, prologue and Rialto quarter which assists in the prologue, will be transported to Westminster Hospital. While stage limitations may require the prologue to be slightly rearranged as to scenery, the presentation of the picture will be otherwise exactly the same program as shown at the Grand Theatre evening and remaining afternoons and evenings of the week.

GIVE KIWI CLUBGOOD TIME AT 'Y'*Kiwanians Gladden Hearts of*More Than Forty Boys At*Special Banquet.

More than 40 boy members of the Kiwi Club were present at a banquet in the Y. M. C. A. tendered to them by the members of the Kiwanis Club,
Thursday night.

The boys of the Kiwi Club are in many cases orphans. Some have parents, but as these are rare they are forced in many cases to take care of themselves. The Kiwanians have been acting as fathers to the boys and as a result a Kiwi Club was formed. During the summer the Kiwanis Club conducted a summer camp for them.

One of the boys read a letter of appreciation for what was done on their behalf by the Kiwanians. His statements were backed up by the boys in a body with three hearty cheers for their benefactors.

During the evening Rev. Walter Gaetz of St. Thomas, a guest at the banquet, delivered an address. He said that the London Kiwanian Club was setting an example for other nearby cities in what they were doing for the boys of the city. "The work which is being done now will show results in later years," he said.

Rev. Gaetz told many interesting experiences he has had with these young fellows. "In all my associations with boys I have never had one cheat or do me a bad turn. I do not think there are any bad boys," he stated.

H. B. Muir told the boys what their Kiwanian daddies expected from them in return for what they were doing for their interests. It was nothing more than to make a success and in ten or fifteen years be able to say that "I am glad that I was a member of the Kiwi Club and associated with the Kiwanians."

The evening concluded with group games and boxing matches.

mates of English prisons are women.
