PREFACE.

THE public acts of the province having been revised, consolidated, and reduced into system upon the principles set forth in the subjoined reports, are now published under the authority of the legislature.

It will be observed that some extensive changes have been introduced in the course of this revision.

The new chapters prepared by the commissioners entrusted with the undertaking, and indicated in their final report, materially alter the law affecting corporations, officers and others in possession of personal property the title to which is in dispute between third parties, and the partition of lands held jointly or in common.

The abolition of estates tail, of joint tenancy, and of the principle of tacking mortgages,—the necessity for recording leases of land in certain cases,—the more extensive operation of the statute of limitation,—the amendment and simplification of the law for recovering amounts due by absconding debtors,—the further protection to public officers in the discharge of their duties, and the facilities afforded to magistrates in the exercise of their criminal jurisdiction, are among the important changes introduced.

In a supplement will be found certain public acts which passed subsequently to the revised statutes, but during the same session.

A second volume in course of publication contains all the local and private acts in force.

Halifax, Nova Scotia, 1st September, 1851.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY LIEUTENANT GENERAL SIR JOHN HARVEY, K. C. B.,
Lieutenant-governor of the province of Nova-Scotia, &c. &c. &c.

The report of the undersigned commissioners appointed by your excellency to consolidate and simplify the laws of the province :

May it please your excellency :

The following preamble and resolutions having been passed by the house of assembly and concurred in by the legislative council at the last session, to wit :

“ Whereas it has become indispensable in order to avoid litigation and simplify the administration of the law, that the statutes of this province should be amended and improved so as to render the same more intelligible :

“ 1st. Resolved unanimously, That the said statutes be consolidated, simplified in their language, and republished in one uniform code.

“ 2nd. Resolved unanimously, That his excellency the lieutenant governor be respectfully requested forthwith to employ a sufficient number of competent persons, not to exceed five, for the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing resolution without delay, so as to have the said code prepared and submitted to the executive government at least one month before the next session of the legislature, in order that the same may be submitted at the opening thereof, this house undertaking to provide for the necessary expense ; such expense, however, before payment, to be previously submitted to the house.

“ 3rd. Resolved unanimously, That his excellency the lieutenant governor be also respectfully requested to convene the next session of the legislature not less than fourteen days earlier than the accustomed time, in order that such period should be exclusively devoted to the consideration and passage of such revised code ” :

And your excellency having done us the honor of entrusting to our care this responsible and important duty, we held several meetings shortly after receiving the commission in order to consider and settle the general principles on which it was most advisable to proceed.

The statutes of the province having undergone no systematic revision since the origin of the legislature nearly a century ago ; having been published successively in four volumes reaching to the year 1834-5, and the subsequent enactments affording ample materials for a fifth ; and a great variety of minds having been engaged from time to time in framing these enactments, it is not to be wondered at that every trace of simplicity and uniformity of system has long since disappeared, and that on many subjects it is next to impossible to find out the law as it is, or when it is found, to understand it. So many of the earlier statutes have been repealed or modified, that of the first volume, extending from 1758 to 1804, not more than one-fifth part is in force, and large proportions of the other volumes that were subsequently published under the authority of the legislature, have in like manner ceased to be law. Every variety of style too, is to be found in the statutes that remain in force, from the terseness and vigour which distinguish some few of the enactments, to the verbiage and interminable periods, which render it a hopeless task to find out the meaning of too many of the others.

With the knowledge of these evils, which are almost universally admitted, and of the unanimous desire of the legislature that they should no longer disfigure our provincial statutes, we had to consider how far it was possible for us to undertake and accomplish a task of no ordinary difficulty—and involving great labor and still greater responsibility. We might have contented ourselves with going over the whole of the existing laws, and having ascertained all that are actually in force, we might have pruned some excrescences—arranged them in chronological order, and presented them to the legislature. This of itself would have been an improvement, but it would have fallen far short of what the legislature obviously contemplated and we ourselves desired. It was incompatible with the order and system which ought at least to be attempted, and though it is all that has been hitherto effected in some of our sister colonies, we rejected it as wholly inadequate to our wants.

The second plan that occurred to us was to preserve the frame-work of the present laws, to expunge some of the more useless expletives and phrases, and to methodize and arrange them as much as possible without aiming at any material change; but in reducing this idea to practice, we found that it would be impossible to make even the approach to a philosophical and comprehensive arrangement, or to weed out the innumerable errors and inconsistencies which run through our provincial acts.

After full enquiry therefore, and a discussion of the whole subject-matter at several meetings, we decided on a bolder and more ambitious attempt, which we have succeeded in partly accomplishing—but are far from thinking that the acts we have prepared are not still susceptible of amendments and improvement. It will be for the wisdom of the legislature to deal with them as they shall think fit; it is our duty respectfully to present to your excellency the outlines of the plan for their information and revisal.

In the year 1836 the revised statutes of the State of Massachusetts were published in one portable and convenient volume, founded on the model which had been furnished by the State of New York in 1828, and which has been still further improved in two subsequent editions, the last published in 1846. The revision in Massachusetts set out with the repeal of an immense number of statutes, passed between the years 1790 and 1835, the titles of which occupy twenty-two closely printed pages—and arranged the whole of the state law into parts, titles and chapters,—these last being one hundred and forty-six in all, sub-divided into numerous sections. The language throughout is plain and intelligible,—expressions of a doubtful meaning and of a technical character, not familiar to the whole people, are avoided,—and the result is, a body of law which any man of ordinary good sense can easily understand. This, as it appeared to us, was what we should aim at: and although in the details and drafting of the several chapters, the laws of New York and Massachusetts have afforded us little or no assistance, we have adhered as much as possible to the general principles, of which we approved.

A material difficulty was to be disposed of at the outset. There are a large number of what may be termed private acts in our statute book, which could not be touched without interfering with vested rights,—such as the various acts for incorporating banks, insurance and manufacturing companies, and others of the like kind. To apply any new system of phraseology or arrangement to these statutes would lead to endless questions and complaints, and therefore we have not touched them at all, presuming that the legislature, without passing them anew, would direct them to be printed as they are in a separate volume.

Taking then, the laws of general application, we arranged them into four parts, viz: "Part 1st. Of the internal administration of the government." "Part 2nd. Of the acquisition, transmission, and enjoyment of property, real and personal. The domestic relations and other matters connected with private rights." "Part 3rd. Of courts and judicial officers, and proceedings in civil cases." "Part 4th. Of the criminal law and the administration of criminal justice."

Part 1st comprehends twenty-three titles and one hundred and five chapters; part 2nd, six titles and eighteen chapters; part 3rd, six titles and twenty-three chapters; part 4th, two titles and fourteen chapters—making one hundred and sixty chapters in all, numbered from one to one hundred and sixty for the facility of reference, and each chapter sub-divided into sections. The accompanying analysis of the whole will shew the subject matter of each chapter, and distinguish such as are ready for the action of the legislature from such as are incomplete or have been not yet undertaken.

Title first, chapter first, of the promulgation and construction of statutes, is the ground-work of the whole. We have there defined a multitude of terms, in order to avoid repetition, and with the same view have incorporated a great variety of general rules, such as the collection and appropriation of penalties, and the principles of construction applicable to the whole code. In the subsequent chapters we have made it the rule to strike out every word that was not essential to the meaning, and every direction that could be conveniently transferred to the chapter of general construction. That the laws will be greatly abbreviated and simplified by this method, will be seen at a glance. In some cases, indeed, whole pages have been compressed into a few lines, and we believe that the meaning has been, notwithstanding, conveyed. It will be incumbent on the legislature, however, to exercise a watchful care over our labors, lest their intentions should have been occasionally misapprehended or unintentionally defeated.

Some difference of opinion arose among the commissioners as to the extent of their authority. Although the preamble of the resolutions contemplates the amendment and improvement of the statutes, the four commissioners who unite in this report were satisfied that the legislature did not intend to entrust them with the power of introducing any material changes, but on the contrary expected that the new code should present the law, in all essential particulars, as it was.—Many alterations, however, and modifications of the existing statutes became unavoidable in the progress of the work, but all of these have been carefully noted in the margin of the original drafts, and will be brought under the notice of the council and assembly by the commissioners who are members.

The commissioners regret that they found it totally impossible, with their other avocations, to finish the work in one year. It will require the continued labor of themselves or their successors for another year—which will be amply sufficient, however, to complete it. By far the greater part is done, as far as the commissioners can do it, or drafted, in order that it may be taken up either by ourselves or by suitable committees.

Of the titles and chapters that the commissioners report as done, and to the consideration of which the legislature may proceed immediately, if they deem it expedient, the following may be enumerated:

The whole of the criminal law, in the preparation of which the commissioners have been aided by the code adopted in New Brunswick at the last session of their legislature; the whole of the election law, with the law of controverted elections; the laws touching the appointment and salaries of public officers; the whole of the law touching counties and county officers, including sheriffs and coroners; the laws for the support of public worship; the laws of shipping and seamen, of partnership, of interest and currency and of bills of exchange; the law of wrecks; the laws touching the supreme court, its officers, pleadings and practice; the laws regulating the proceedings against absent or absconding debtors—of suits against joint debtors—the limitation and commencement of actions and arbitrations.

Of the titles and chapters which are drafted, but have not undergone our revision, may be enumerated:

The laws for the collection and preservation of the public revenue, including the casual and territorial revenue, and light house and excise duties; the laws of public highways, landings and ferries; the laws of sewers, commons, and common fields; the laws of pilotage, of harbors and harbor masters, of factors and agents, of mills and millers, of the inspection of provisions, of weights and measures; the laws for the support of the poor; the laws of fires and firewards, of lumber, of hawkers and pedlars, of stray cattle—and others, forming a general title, under the head of "municipal regulations:" the law of wills; the laws regulating the descent of real and personal property, and the settlement of the estates of deceased persons; the laws regulating the court of chancery, of escheat, marriage and divorce, and probate—of the jurisdiction of justices of the peace in civil actions, witnesses and evidence, juries and insolvent debtors, forcible entry and detainer, and the partition of lands.

Of the titles and chapters which have not yet been touched, the most prominent are as follows:

Public health—including the laws of quarantine, nuisances, and infectious diseases; immigrants and passengers; public instruction—which the commissioners have refrained from touching, as it is to occupy the attention of the legislature in the ensuing session; the law of corporations; the registry of deeds; the sale of lands for debt and the foreclosure of mortgages; the statute of frauds and perjuries; the domestic relations—including the law of marriage, of guardians and wards, masters, apprentices and servants; trespasses on real estate.

Some of the minor titles have been omitted in these enumerations, but they afford a general view of what has been accomplished, in whole or in part, and what is yet to be done.

Under these circumstances it will be for your excellency and the other two branches of the legislature to decide what it is expedient to do in the ensuing session with that portion which may be now accounted, or easily made ready for legislative action. Some plan will probably be suggested by which the labor of considering and passing the new laws may be materially lightened, and the whole of the code published in one volume in the course of the year 1851.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM YOUNG,
J. McCULLY,
J. W. RITCHIE,
JOS. WHIDDEN.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY LIEUTENANT GENERAL SIR JOHN HARVEY, K. C. B.,
Lieutenant-governor of the province of Nova-Scotia, &c. &c. &c.

The final report of the commissioners appointed by your excellency to consolidate and simplify the laws of the province :

May it please your excellency :

In our previous report we entered at some length into the reasons which had determined us to aim at a more extensive and thorough revision of our provincial statutes than was at first intended.

It was not without some hesitation that we adopted this course, foreseeing, as we did, the increased responsibility and labor it would impose ; and we were gratified at the favorable reception with which our report, and the portions of the plan then completed, were honored by the assembly.

Of the one hundred and sixty chapters which constituted the new code, and which are now increased to one hundred and seventy, upwards of sixty were passed by the legislative council and house of assembly in the last session, and will require to pass again only pro forma.

About one third of the whole work has been thus far perfected by the two branches of the legislature, and the remaining chapters are now ready for legislative action.

Having found it necessary to break up the whole of the public acts, in order to simplify their language and mould them into a systematic arrangement, we have been obliged to compose every section of the revised statutes anew. By adhering to certain general rules, in order to avoid the uncertainties and confusion of the old system, and by discarding all repetition and verbiage, we have been able to compress the work within the limits of one ordinary sized octavo volume.

In our former report we stated that we were not entrusted with the power of materially changing the law, but were expected only to methodize and simplify it. To this principle we have adhered as much as possible, but we have found it necessary in certain cases to exercise a pretty large discretion : for example—we have framed a new chapter containing all the provisions that have been usually applied to corporations, and which will extend wholly or in part to every new body seeking to be invested with corporate privileges. The numerous acts for the settlement and support of the poor, and those for the regulation of public landings, and of fires and firewards, we have formed into single chapters, presuming that the different enactments which have heretofore obtained in certain townships and localities will no longer be sanctioned. The law of factor and agent has been the subject of two imperial acts, the first of which was adopted by our legislature in the year 1836 ; the second imperial enactment largely extended and modified the provisions of the first. After due consideration we have framed one chapter containing, as we think, the substance of both. Two or three chapters are introduced now for the first time : one of them is designed to protect parties in possession of personal property not claiming title thereto, and officers acting under civil process, from litigation in which they are not personally interested, and to transfer the responsibility to the real claimant. The partition of lands, by an economical and effective process, forms also a new chapter. Several of the provisions in the chapter for the protection of justices of the peace and others, and in that for the registry of deeds, and in some other chapters, are greatly modified or altogether new; and we therefore invite the attention of your excellency and the executive government to these statements, that a watchful supervision may be exercised while the different chapters are passing, in order that the responsibility may be transferred from us, and rest, where it ought, upon the legislature. The modifications and changes suggested having been noted in the margin of our drafts will be submitted by the commissioners who are members of the upper and lower branches of the legislature, and be subject to approval or correction.

It is proper, however, to mention that in many instances while we conceived it to be our duty, as regards form, to assimilate the law to the new system, we have reported no alteration or amendment whatever in matters of substance, but have left the provisions of the law precisely as they were. Acts for establishing religious worship, for the settlement of the civil list, for securing salaries and pensions, and for establishing fees of all kinds, are examples.

In the repealing chapter, comprehending upwards of seven hundred and fifty acts of the legislature passed at various periods, we have included all the public statutes of general operation that are now in force; acts which are private or local, including those creating or affecting corporations, we have left unrepealed, to be collected together and re-printed in a separate volume. Besides these, there will still remain upon the statute books a very limited number of acts of a purely private character, or touching titles of public lands, which we leave unrepealed and unnoticed. The acts relating to government properties are examples of the latter kind. Acts touching naturalization, marriage and divorce of parties particularly named, are examples of the former class. Acts extending the provisions of acts expressly repealed, are repealed by a general clause applicable to that particular class of cases. Acts executed, and acts expired, are, for obvious reasons, not referred to in the repealing chapter.

Of the local acts, the most numerous are those which apply to the city of Halifax. In pursuance of a suggestion made through our chairman to his worship the mayor, we were officially informed that the city authorities had authorized their recorder forthwith to revise and consolidate these acts into one or more chapters.

In enacting the revised statutes we take the liberty of suggesting that the legislation of the ensuing session should be framed on the same model, and incorporated with the new code, so as to constitute an uniform and consistent whole, and that previously to their being published a copious index and table of contents should be prepared and added.

In the execution of the important and onerous trust committed to our charge, although we have been compelled to bestow an amount of labor and a degree of attention which none of us in the first instance anticipated, there may be some imperfections or defects to be hereafter remedied. The main advantage to be derived from the work will be that the laws which regulate social life, protect and transmit property, determine political rights, and define the punishment of offences, have been reduced to system, and clothed in simple and perspicuous language, so as to be intelligible to all who may have occasion to consult or who may choose to study them. And as the present is the first attempt of the kind in a British colony we must bespeak the indulgence of your excellency and of the public for the imperfections it may contain, and which are, perhaps, inseparable from so extensive an undertaking.

The increased labor consequent upon the execution of the commission in a more comprehensive manner than was originally contemplated, it was soon discovered would require additional assistance; and in closing this report we deem it an act of justice to acknowledge our obligation for the valuable services rendered by James Thompson, esquire, barrister, at our request, during the progress of the work.

If the elector shall not promptly answer the questions his vote shall be expunged, and he shall not be allowed to poll again.

What a valid entry.

15. The importer shall at the time of entry of any goods either pay down the duties thereon, or, having entered the same for warehouse, enter into the bonds in that respect prescribed by law, or otherwise a permit shall not be granted for the landing thereof; and the collector or other officer shall secure the same and cause them to be sold at public auction within twenty days thereafter, at such time and place as such officer shall by at least four days' public notice appoint for that purpose, and the proceeds shall be applied, first, in payment of the freight and of the charges occasioned by the securing and sale of the goods, secondly, in payment of the duties thereon, and the surplus, if any, shall be paid to the importer or other person authorised to receive the same.

If any package shall have been landed from a vessel, and goods shall be found concealed therein packed to deceive the revenue officers, the package with all its contents shall be forfeited.

Goods abandoned
disposed of.

21. Whole packages of goods may be abandoned for the duties thereon payable, and shall in such case be described in a written notice of abandonment to be given to the collector, and thereupon the same shall be sold as directed by the board, and after payment of charges the duties shall be paid out of the proceeds and the balance be paid into the treasury.

Abatement of du-
damaged goods.

22. If goods not charged with duty according to the number, weight, gauge, or measure thereof, shall receive damage during the voyage, an abatement of duties shall be allowed proportioned to the damage, provided satisfactory proof be adduced to the board, or officer acting therein under their directions, that the damage was received after the goods were shipped in the importing ship and before they were landed, and provided claim be made on the first examination of the goods. The officers of the revenue shall examine such goods, and may make an abatement of duties proportioned to the damage which, in their opinion, they shall have received, but if the officers be incompetent to estimate the damage, or if the importer be not satisfied with the abatement by them made, the collector shall appoint two experienced and disinterested merchants, who shall, at the expense of the importer, examine the same and subscribe a declaration on oath before the collector of what, in their opinion, the damage is, and the collector may make an abatement of duties in accordance therewith.

Invoices on entry
under oath.

23. Where duties are charged according to the value of the goods, the importer, or his agent, shall declare on oath what is the invoice price thereof at the place whence they were imported, and that he believes such invoice price is the current value thereof, and shall at the same time exhibit to the collector the original invoices, and certify on oath that they are the original invoices, and that they contain all the dutiable goods imported by, or belonging, or consigned to him in the vessel specified in the entry, to the best of his belief, or if he has not and cannot procure the original invoices he shall make oath thereof, and account for his want of the same, and shall also state on oath what he believes to be the current value of the goods at the place whence they were imported, as near as can be ascertained. All such oaths shall be signed by the party attesting, and be taken by the collector, or, in case of his absence, by his chief clerk or authorized substitute.

24. If it shall appear to the collector, or other proper officer, that goods liable to duty according to their value, have been valued below their real value under the last preceding section, he shall appoint two persons to examine the same, and such persons shall declare on oath before the collector or other proper officer, at what, in their opinion, the same should have been valued, and the same shall be deemed the real value upon which duties are chargeable. The appraisers shall receive ten shillings each for their valuation, to be paid by the collector, or other proper officer, and charged in his accounts.

Proceedings where goods are undervalued.

25. The value of goods not chargeable with duties according to the number, measure, gauge, or weight thereof, brought into the province under the denomination of prize goods, or which shall be sold by order of the court of vice admiralty, or which shall become forfeited, shall, if the value thereof cannot be ascertained by the means hereinbefore prescribed, be ascertained by the gross price which the same shall bring at public auction. And all such goods whether chargeable to pay duties according to value or to number, weight, gauge or measure, shall be sold at public auction within two years after importation, reasonable notice of the sale being given by the person charged therewith to the collector, and the purchasers shall be considered the importers and pay the duties thereon.

Prize goods, duties on how and from whom secured.

26. The surplus stores of vessels arriving in this province from parts beyond the seas, shall be subject to the same duties and regulations as if imported as merchandize, but if it shall appear to the collector that such stores are not excessive or unsuitable under the circumstances of the voyage, he may permit them to be entered for the private use of the master or owner, or of any passenger to whom the same may belong, on payment of the proper duties, or to be warehoused for the future use of the vessel.

Surplus stores liable to duty.

27. Where goods are manufactured or composed of different materials, they shall be charged with the highest duty to which any of the component parts are liable.

28. No goods shall be imported as from the United Kingdom or from any British possession, if any advantage attach to such distinction, unless they shall appear upon the cockets or proper documents to be duly cleared outwards at the port of exportation in the United Kingdom or such British possession, nor unless the grounds upon which such advantage is claimed be stated in the cocket or document.

Goods from Britain or British possessions must have been cleared outwards.

29. Goods which might be imported by sea may be brought by land or inland navigation into the province from any adjacent British colony, and they shall be subject to the same duties, regulations, penalties and forfeitures, as the like goods if imported would be subject to, so far as the same are applicable; and if any goods shall be brought into the province contrary to this provision, or if they shall be removed from the place appointed for the examination thereof by the revenue officers before the duties thereon shall have been paid, such goods, together with the vessel or carriage and cattle which shall have brought the same, shall be forfeited.

30. Vessels entering the gut of Annapolis may be reported and entered, and the duties on goods therein imported paid, either at the ports of Digby or Annapolis.

Provisions in case of goods landed to repair vessel.

31. If any vessel bound to this province having received damage shall put into another port than that to which she shall be bound, having dutiable goods on board which it may be necessary to land for the purpose of repairing the vessel in order to enable her to proceed on her voyage, the collector upon application of the master or agent, may permit such goods to be unladen and deposited in a warehouse in the custody of the collector; and the collector shall cause to be taken an exact account of the packages and contents, and entry of the goods shall then be made by the master or agent as hereinbefore directed, and they shall remain in the custody of the collector until the vessel is ready for sea, when, upon payment of storage and the reasonable charges of unloading and storing, the collector shall deliver up the same to the master or agent to be exported from the province under the same security and regulations as if such goods had been imported in the usual manner, and such goods shall not be subject to duty. No person shall be entitled to the benefit of this section who shall have sold any of such goods except such as it may have been necessary to sell to defray the expenses of repairs and charges of the vessel, or as may have been authorized by the board. If goods are sold for payment of repairs and charges they shall be subject to duty, and shall be warehoused or the duties thereon paid by the purchaser.

Goods sold for salvage may be exempted from duty.

32. The owner or salvor of dutiable goods saved from the sea, in respect of which any salvage shall have been lawfully awarded or paid or agreed to be paid to the salvors, may sell so much thereof as will pay the salvage, and upon production of the award, or satisfactory proof to the board of such payment or agreement therefor, the board shall allow the sale of goods free of duty, to the amount of the salvage, or to such other amount as to them shall appear proper.

Wrecked goods liable to duty

33. Goods derelict, flotsam jetsam, or wreck, or landed or saved from any vessel wrecked, stranded, or lost, brought or coming into the province, shall be subject to the same duties as goods of the like kind imported are subject unto; if of such sort as are entitled to allowance for damage, such allowance shall be made under the direction of the board. If any person shall have in his possession, in port or on land, any such goods, the same being dutiable, and shall not give notice thereof to the nearest revenue officer without unnecessary delay, or shall not, on demand, pay the duties thereon, or deliver the same to the proper officer, he shall forfeit fifty pounds. And if any person shall remove or alter, in quantity or quality, any such goods, or shall unnecessarily open or alter any package thereof, or shall abet any such act before the goods are deposited in a warehouse under the custody of the revenue officers, he shall forfeit fifty pounds; and if the duties on such goods are not paid within eighteen months from the time when the same were so deposited, the same may be sold in like manner and for the same purposes as goods imported may in such default be sold. If they cannot be sold for enough to pay the duty they shall be delivered over to the person entitled to receive them, and shall be deemed unenumerated goods, and charged with the lower duty accordingly; but any person having lawful claim to such goods, or being in possession thereof, shall be at liberty to retain the same in his own custody, on giving bond, with two sureties approved by the collector, in double the value of the goods for the payment of the duties thereon at the expiration of a year, or to deliver such goods to the proper officer in the same condition as they were at the time of taking possession. Nothing in this section contained shall extend to goods in the custody or under the management of any commissioner for the Isle of Sable.

34. No goods, except those allowed to be landed without permit, shall be unladen from any vessel arriving from parts beyond the seas, or arriving coastwise with dutiable goods, on Sundays or holidays, and such goods shall be unladen only in the day time, and between such hours as the board shall appoint, and such goods shall be unladen only in the presence or with the authority of the proper officer, and at the place expressed in the permit; and no such goods after being unladen shall be transhipped, or after having been put into any boat to be landed shall be removed into any other boat or craft previously to their being landed, without the permission of the proper officer.

2. The board may by order establish other warehouses at any warehousing port, and may declare what goods may be warehoused therein, and may also annul any order establishing such warehouses, but all such orders shall be forthwith transmitted to the governor in council and published.

3. The importer of any dutiable goods, and the manufacturer of any spirituous liquors, may warehouse the same without payment of duty on the first entry thereof on entering into a bond to the collector, with two sureties by him to be approved, in double the amount of duties, which bond shall be in the form now in use, and shall be otherwise made and executed as the board may direct. And if any of such goods shall be thereafter entered for home use, the duties thereon shall be paid at the time of such entry, and at the same rate as if then imported and entered for the first time. If within two years from the date of the first entry, the goods, or any part thereof, shall be sold, the collector may admit fresh security by bond with sureties from the purchaser, and cancel the original bond, or exonerate the parties thereto to the extent of the new security, but such new security shall not be given for a less sum than one-fifth part of the duties mentioned in the condition of the original bond.

4. If goods entered for warehouse shall not be deposited therein within the time and in the manner directed by the proper officer, or shall afterwards be taken out of warehouse without entry therefor, they shall be forfeited.

Whenever the whole of the goods warehoused under any entry shall be cleared from warehouse or whenever further time shall be granted for any such goods to remain warehoused, an account shall be made out of the quantity upon which the duties have been paid and of the quantity exported, and of the quantity, to be then ascertained, of the goods still remaining in the warehouse, deducting from the whole the quantity contained in any whole package which may have been abandoned for duties; and if there shall be any deficiency of the original quantity, the duty, except as hereinafter provided, payable upon the deficiency, shall then be paid.

6. Goods warehoused shall, by or at the charge of the owner, be stowed in such manner as that easy access may be had thereto, under penalty on such owner of five pounds for every omission; and they shall be stowed in such parts or divisions of the warehouse and in such manner as the collector shall direct, and the warehouse shall be secured in such manner, and visited only at such times, and in the presence of such officers, and under such regulations, as the collector, under the authority of the board, shall direct.

How goods in warehouse may be transferred.

11. When goods in warehouse are sold, the seller shall give the buyer a transfer note containing the particulars of the goods and the date of sale, and the purchaser shall lodge the same with the warehouse keeper, who shall make a minute of the transfer in a book to be kept for the purpose, and which shall be produced on application. 1. Whenever it shall be thought expedient by the government to open and work any mines of coal within the lands of any person for the purpose of raising and taking away coal discovered within the same, the justices, in general or special sessions, on application in writing by the party authorised to open and work any such mines, shall cause the clerk of the peace, in their presence, to draw the names of twenty-four jurors out of the petty jury list then returned to the supreme court of the county, who shall be persons residing at least five miles from, and having no interest in, such lands, and not being of kin to the parties interested therein, or to the persons applying for the opening and working of such mines; and the justices shall direct the clerk to issue a precept in writing to the sheriff of the county, with a list of the jurors so drawn annexed; by which precept the sheriff shall be commanded to summon the persons named in such list to appear at some convenient place upon or near the said lands upon a certain day, to be at least fourteen days after the issuing of the precept, which shall be made returnable to the court of general sessions for such county, to be held next after the day appointed for the meeting of the jurors, and the clerk shall make out and sign notices in writing of the issuing of such precept, of the time and place of meeting of the jurors, and for what purpose, and upon whose application it issued; six of such notices to be posted up in the most public places in such county, and if the owner of the lands do not reside within such county a notice shall be inserted in two of the Halifax newspapers.

2. Upon the day appointed for the appearance of the jurors, the sheriff shall call over the list, and of those in attendance the twelve who shall first answer to their names shall be sworn as a jury to the faithful discharge of the duties hereby required of them, and such jury shall proceed to the place intended to be opened, and there lay out so much of the lands as will be sufficient to sink a proper shaft or pit to reach the veins of coal, and also so much as will be sufficient for lodging and depositing whatever may be raised from such mines, and whatever may be necessary to bring to such mines, for the purpose of opening and working the same; and the jury shall at the same time lay out and mark so much of such lands adjoining such shaft or pit as will be necessary to pass through for making a drain to carry off the water from such mines, and also so much of such lands as may be necessary to make a road or a way from such mines to the nearest navigable sea water or public highway. And such jury shall assess reasonable damages to the owners and tenants of such lands, according to the several interests therein, and as such owners or tenants ought to receive for being deprived of the use of the lands so laid off, and for injury done thereto, and for expenses imposed upon them for making fences or ditches for the purpose of separating the lands laid off from other parts of their lands, and shall fix a reasonable annual rent for the use of the lands so laid off.

Lands laid off,
how to be used.

4. No person shall use any part of the lands so set off for any other purpose whatsoever, except such as shall be necessary for making roads, opening drains, erecting necessary works, and all other purposes connected with opening and working such mines to the most advantage; and the persons so authorised, and all persons employed about such mines, shall use the lands in such manner as will be least injurious to the owners and occupants of such lands or any other lands contiguous thereto.

Railways may be
buildings erected.

5. Persons to whom possession of any lands shall be hereby given, may make and repair the roads to and from such mines, and erect thereon railways or any other conveniences to facilitate transportation of the articles necessary to be carried to and from the same, and may erect on the ground set off for the use of the shaft, houses and buildings to shelter the workmen and to contain any articles necessary to be used in and about the premises.

Possession to revert to owner in certain cases of neglect.

6. Persons erecting any engines or machines, houses or buildings on the lands so set off to them, may, during their occupancy, take down the same and remove the materials thereof notwithstanding such buildings and erections may be considered in law as attached to the freehold. And the owners of all the lands set off under the authority of this chapter for the use and accommodation of the workers of such mines, shall be entitled to take possession of all lands so set off in case the working of the mines shall have ceased for six months next before the taking possession unless the working thereof shall have received any temporary interruption from some unforeseen accident; and such owners shall hold the lands so taken possession of as of their first estate, but before such possession be taken reasonable notice must be given to the persons interested in the mines to remove their effects and materials off the premises.

Provisions for re-commencing works, or altering the quantity of lands set off.

7. If it be found expedient to re-commence working any mine after the lands set off for the use thereof shall be taken possession of by the owners, or if it be necessary to alter the quantity of land set off for the use of mines, the same proceedings shall be adopted as hereinbefore stated.

New bonds provided for in certain cases.

8. If any change take place of the persons authorised to work any mine, or their sureties die, remove from the province or become insolvent, the justices in session, on application of either party, may order new bonds to be entered into; and if such new bonds be not given within a time to be limited therefor, the justices may order possession to be restored to the original owner of such lands, who may thereupon assume the possession thereof, and recover whatever compensation may be due for the time that possession of any such land may be held after such bonds ought to be given.

9. All costs incurred in carrying out these provisions shall be paid by the party authorised to open such mines.

Costs of proceedings to be paid by applicant.

1. The governor in council may appoint three or more persons in each county to be a land board therefor, who shall collect all information within their counties relating to the ungranted land therein, the quality, description, and value of the buildings and improvements on the occupied portions thereof ; they shall receive all applications for grants and shall ascertain what ought to be the price of each lot applied for, when the same has not been occupied or improved as hereinafter mentioned. And when the same has been occupied and improved, then they shall ascertain and determine, to the best of their judgment, what ought to be the price or purchase money thereof, with reference to its original value, independently of the improvements. And the boards shall from time to time transmit to the governor all such information, applications, and reports, accompanied by such remarks as the circumstances of each case may seem to require.

Land boards, how constituted ; their duties.

2. The governor in council may settle, from time to time, the price to be paid for ungranted lands, not being less than one shilling and nine pence sterling per acre, and the manner of making the application therefor. Any of her majesty's subjects may, upon due application, become the purchaser at the regulated prices, of such lands as the governor in council shall from time to time see fit to sell, and he shall immediately pay the price and be entitled to possession, if practicable, and to a grant in fee simple, subject to such reservations and conditions as may be deemed necessary, but no grant shall pass until the land shall have been first surveyed and a plan of the survey returned to the surveyor general's office, with a report under the hand of the surveyor, setting forth the quality, situation, and value of the land, and whether at the

Reservations when they may be made and how disposed of.

3. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the governor from reserving from sale at the fixed price from time to time any portion of the lands which may appear fit to be reserved; and the lands so reserved the governor may sell or lease at such price, or for such tenure, time, or use, either as regards the land or timber thereof, or quarries or mines thereon, or other benefit derived therefrom, as he may deem expedient.

Improved lands; price how fixed; how granted.

4. The governor may determine the price of all lots of ungranted lands which have been or may be actually and in good faith occupied and improved by subjects of her majesty; but nothing herein shall make it obligatory on the governor to grant or otherwise dispose of any land to persons in possession of or who have improved the same, if the circumstances of the case shall not give such person equitable claim thereto, but such land may be disposed of as the governor shall think just and equitable after report of the land board and full investigation of the facts.

Indian reserves and free grants.

5. The governor may reserve for the use of the Indians of this province such portions of the lands as may be deemed advisable; and make a free grant thereof for the purposes for which they were so reserved.

The master of any vessel registered in and belonging to this province, trading to parts out of the province, shall not carry to sea, as one of his crew, any person, apprentices excepted, without entering into an agreement in writing with such person, specifying what wages he is to receive, the capacity in which he is to act, and the nature of the voyage intended. The agreement shall contain the date when made, and shall be signed by the master, in the first instance, and by each person shipped, at his port of shipment :— it shall be in the form, and shall contain, as far as possible, the particulars in the schedule hereto annexed ; and a copy, attested by the signature of the master, shall, on reporting the arrival of the vessel, be deposited in the customs there. A clause may be inserted therein providing for the sale of the vessel during the voyage intended, and for the discharge of the crew in the event of such sale ; but such clause must state the amount of wages to be paid to the seamen upon such sale.

Fines for shipping seamen contrary to the first section, and for non-compliance with its provisions.

2. The master of any such vessel carrying to sea any such person, apprentices excepted, without having entered into the agreement hereby required, shall forfeit five pounds for every such person ; and the master not depositing, as hereby required, a true copy of the agreement, shall forfeit five pounds.

Articles not to lessen seaman's lien for wages.

3. The entering into the agreement shall not deprive any seaman of his lien on the vessel, or of any legal remedy for the recovery of his wages : no agreement made contrary to the above provisions, and no clause depriving seamen of their right to wages in the case of freight earned, by a vessel subsequently lost, shall be binding on the seaman. No seaman shall be obliged to produce the agreement, or a copy of it, to support his claim for wages.

Proceedings where seamen refuse to join ship after articles signed.

4. If a seaman, having signed the agreement hereby required, shall not join his vessel, or shall refuse to proceed to sea in her, or shall absent himself therefrom without leave, any justice of the peace near the place shall, upon complaint made upon oath by the master, mate or owner, by his warrant, cause such seaman to be apprehended and brought before him; and if such seaman shall not satisfy the justice as to such neglect, refusal or absence, the justice shall, upon due proof, commit such seaman to jail, there to be kept at hard labor, for a period not exceeding thirty days; but if such seaman shall consent to join his vessel and proceed on the voyage, the justice, if requested by the master, shall, instead of committing such seaman, cause him to be conveyed on board the vessel, or delivered to the master, and shall award to the master the costs incurred in such apprehension, not exceeding the sum of two pounds, exclusive of jail fees, which shall be deducted from the wages to grow due to such seaman.

5. If any seaman having received an advance on his shipping, and signing the agreement, and for whom any person shall have become surety, and as such subscribed the agreement, shall not proceed on the voyage, such surety shall repay such advance; and if the master or owner shall be compelled to procure another seaman, and thereby incur additional expense, the surety shall also repay the same—provided it do not exceed half the sum originally advanced.

Sureties liable for advance and expenses where seamen refuse to proceed on the voyage.

6. The party becoming surety shall subscribe his name to the agreement in the proper column thereof, opposite to the name of the seaman for whom he becomes surety, and such signature shall render him liable to the extent above declared; and the amount shall be sued for as debts of the like amount by law are; and on production of the agreement, and proof of the execution thereof by the seaman and by the surety, and of the refusal of the seaman to proceed to sea, judgment shall be given against the surety for the advance paid to the seaman, and for the additional expense, to the extent above named, together with costs, as allowed by law in cases of debts of the like amount.

7. If any seaman after having signed the agreement, and during the period for which he has agreed to serve, shall, without leave, absent himself from the ship, or from his duty, he shall, in cases not of absolute desertion, or not treated as such by the master, forfeit out of his wages, to the master or owner, the amount of two days' pay for every twenty-four hours' absence, and in like proportion for a less period of time, or, at the option of the master, the expenses incurred in hiring a substitute to perform his work;—and any seaman, without sufficient cause, neglecting to perform the duty required by the person in command, shall be subject to a like forfeiture for every such offence, and for every twenty-four hours' continuance thereof;—and if any seaman, after having signed the agreement, or after the ship's arrival at her port of delivery, and before the discharge of her cargo, shall quit the ship without a discharge or leave from the master, he shall forfeit to the master or owner one month's pay out of his wages. No such forfeitures shall be incurred unless the fact of the seaman's absence or neglect, and the time and duration thereof, be entered in the log book: this entry the owner or master shall, in cases of dispute, be obliged to substantiate by evidence of the mate, or other credible witness.

Forfeitures incurred by seamen for absence and other offences; mode of proof.

Mode of computing forfeiture where agreement is by the year.

8. Where the seaman has contracted by the voyage or by the run, the amount of forfeitures shall be ascertained thus :— If the duration of the voyage shall exceed one month, the forfeiture of one month's pay shall be considered a forfeiture of a sum bearing the same proportion to the whole wages as a month bears to the whole time spent in the voyage; a forfeiture of two days' pay, or less, shall be considered a forfeiture of the sum bearing the same proportion to the whole wages as that period bears to the time spent in the voyage; if the whole time does not exceed one month the forfeiture of one month's pay shall be considered a forfeiture of the whole wages; if such time does not exceed two days, the forfeiture of two days' pay shall be considered a forfeiture of the whole wages. The master shall deduct all forfeitures from the wages of the seaman incurring the same.

Forfeiture in case of desertion.

9. A seaman deserting his vessel shall forfeit to the owner or master all his effects remaining on board, and the wages due to him; provided the circumstances of the desertion be at the time entered in the log-book, certified by the signature of the master and mate, or other credible witness. The absence of a seaman within twenty-four hours immediately preceding the vessel's sailing, without leave of the master, or at any time under circumstances shewing an intention not to return, shall be considered an absolute desertion; and if such desertion shall take place out of this province, and the master shall be obliged to engage a substitute for the deserter at an increased rate of wages, he shall recover from such deserter the excess of wages paid to such substitute as wages are hereby made recoverable.

Harboring or secreting seamen, how punished; seamen's debts, how and when recoverable.

10. Any person harboring or secreting a seaman who shall have signed the agreement hereby required and absented himself from his vessel without leave, knowing or having reason to suspect him to be so absent, shall forfeit twenty shillings. No debt over five shillings incurred by a seaman after signing the agreement shall be recoverable until the conclusion of the voyage. The keeper of a public house shall not detain any effects of a seaman for any debt contracted by him. In case of such detention, any justice shall, on complaint on oath by or on behalf of such seaman, inquire into the matter, and he may, by warrant, cause such effects to be delivered to such seaman.

Seamen's wages when and how recoverable.

11. The master or owner shall pay every seaman his wages, if demanded, within three days after the delivery of the cargo, or ten days after the seaman's discharge, whichever shall first happen. The seaman, on his discharge, shall be entitled to receive one-fourth of the estimated balance due to him; and in default thereof the master or owner shall forfeit to the seaman two days' pay for each day, not exceeding ten days, that such payment without sufficient cause is withheld. This forfeiture shall be recoverable in the same manner as seamen's wages; but this provision shall not apply to cases where the seaman by the agreement is paid by a share in the profits of the adventure.

12. The payment of wages to a seaman shall be valid notwithstanding any bill of sale or assignment thereof, or any attachment or incumbrance thereon. No assignment or sale of wages made prior to the earning thereof, and no power of attorney to receive wages expressed to be irrevocable, shall be valid or binding on the party making it.

Payment to seamen valid notwithstanding previous assignments.

13. A seaman shall on his discharge, be entitled to a certificate, signed by the master, of his period of service, and the time and place of his discharge; and a master refusing such certificate, without reasonable cause, shall forfeit five pounds.

Seamen entitled to certificate; fine for refusing.

14. If a seaman, having been three days discharged, and desiring to proceed again to sea, shall require immediate payment of his wages,—any justice, on his application, and proof that delay would hinder him of employment, shall summon the master or owner of the vessel to shew cause why immediate payment should not be made, and if cause be not shewn, he shall order payment forthwith; and in default of such payment the master or owner shall forfeit five pounds.

Proceedings for wages where seaman about to proceed on a voyage.

15. When the wages due to a seaman do not exceed twenty pounds, any justice in the neighborhood, on complaint upon oath, by or on behalf of such seaman, shall summon the master or owner to appear and answer such complaint; and on his appearance, or in default thereof, on proof of his having been summoned, the justice shall, on the oath of the parties and their witnesses, examine into the complaint, and order payment of the amount due; and if such order be not obeyed within two days, he shall issue his warrant to levy the amount awarded, by distress and sale of the effects of the party on whom such order was made, rendering to him the overplus, if any, after deducting the expenses attending the complaint, and the distress and levy; and if sufficient distress be not found, he shall cause such wages and expenses to be levied on the vessel; and if she be not within his jurisdiction, he shall cause the party on whom the order was made to be committed to jail, there to remain until payment of the amount awarded, and all costs and expenses. The award of such justice shall be final and conclusive.

Wages how collected when under twenty pounds.

16. If a suit for the recovery of a seaman's wages be brought in the court of vice admiralty, or any court of record of this province, and it shall appear to the judge that the plaintiff might have had as effectual a remedy by complaint to a justice, as above directed, he shall certify to that effect, and no costs of suit shall be awarded the plaintiff.

Costs to be disallowed in the vice admiralty where wages might be recovered before a justice.

17. The master of every such vessel shall constantly keep on board a sufficient supply of medicines, suitable to accidents and diseases arising on sea voyages; and in default thereof, or in case a seaman shall sustain injury in the service of the vessel, the expense of the surgical and medical advice, and attendance and medicines he shall require, until he is cured or returns, shall be borne by the owner or master of the vessel, without any deduction on account of wages.

18. No such master shall discharge any of his crew at any British port out of this province without the sanction, in writing, of the officer appointed in that behalf, or of the principal officer of the customs, or of two respectable merchants resident there; nor at any foreign port without the sanction, in writing, of the British minister, consul, or vice consul there, or of two respectable resident merchants; any of whom may make examination on oath, and grant or refuse a certificate of such sanction, according to their discretion.

Crews not to be left abroad unless for good cause duly certified.

19. No such master shall leave at any place abroad, either on shore or at sea, any of his crew as unfit to proceed on the voyage, or having deserted or disappeared, without having obtained a certificate, as in the foregoing section, approving thereof, if there be any such persons to apply to for that purpose; and such persons may make examination on oath, and grant or refuse such certificate according to their discretion.

In case of action the burden of proof as to certificates to be upon the master.

20. In any action brought for violation of this or the preceding sections, it shall be incumbent on the master to prove his having obtained the certificate thereby required, or prove the impracticability of obtaining such certificate.

Entering the naval service shall not be held desertion.

21. Nothing herein shall prevent the entry of any person belonging to any merchant ship into her majesty's naval service,—such entry shall not be a desertion, and shall not incur any forfeiture whatever. No clause creating a penalty or a forfeiture for such entry shall be inserted in any ship's articles.

Seaman's right to wages and effects when entering the naval service.

22. A seaman received into such service from a merchant vessel, not having committed an act of total desertion, treated as such by the master, shall, on such entry, receive all his effects from such vessel, and if she shall have earned freight, the proportionate amount of his wages from the master up to such entry, in money or a bill on the owner. For failure to deliver such effects and money, or bill, the master shall forfeit twenty-five pounds. If no freight has been then earned, the master shall give to the seaman a bill on the owner for his wages then due, payable on the ship's arrival at her destined port. If he be unable to ascertain the amount, he shall give to the seaman a certificate of his period of service, and the rate of his wages, and shall produce to the officer commanding such ship of war, the shipping agreement. On such delivery of the seaman's effects and settlement of his wages, the officer commanding shall, on request of the master, give him a certificate under his hand endorsed on the agreement of the entry of the seaman into such ship of war.

Court's power to reduce penalties; limitation of actions.

23. The court or justices before whom proceedings are brought for recovery of penalties hereby imposed, may make such reduction therein, not exceeding one half of the original amount, as they think fit. All such proceedings shall be commenced within two years after the offence; or if committed without the province within six months after the return thereto of the offender.

2. If twenty or more of the rate payers within any township established for the support of poor, shall, by petition, apply to the court of sessions, stating their desire that such township should be divided into two or more districts, and setting forth the proposed boundaries thereof, the court may, if they think fit, pass an order calling upon the parties interested to shew cause at the next sessions why such division should not be made. Information of woman pregnant with a bastard child; how taken, and justices warrant thereon.

1. If any woman shall become pregnant with a bastard child likely to become chargeable to any township, she shall make oath in writing before a justice for the county where she resides that she is so pregnant and who is the father of the child, and such justice shall forthwith issue his warrant to apprehend the reputed father and cause him to be brought before him or some other justice of the county.

Reputed father to enter into bonds until after the birth.

2. The reputed father when brought before a justice shall be required to enter into a bond with a surety to indemnify such township until after the birth of the child and until an order of filiation shall be made thereon, or till the reputed father be discharged on examination and hearing preparatory to the passing such order, and in default shall be committed to jail to remain until such examination and hearing can be had or such bond given.

Hearing after the birth, and order of filiation.

3. As soon as convenient after the birth of the child two justices, on application of an overseer of the poor or some substantial householder of such township, shall issue a warrant to bring the mother and reputed father before them at a time and place therein mentioned, and shall hear the evidence of the mother and of any other person, except the reputed father, who may be produced by the mother or reputed father, under oath to corroborate or invalidate the testimony of the mother, as the case may be, and shall either discharge the reputed father or make an order of filiation to indemnify the township for the expenses connected with the lying in and maintenance of the mother and the birth and maintenance of the child to the date of the order, and that the reputed father pay such sum weekly as they shall consider right, respect being had to his ability, towards the support of the bastard child while chargeable to such township.

Reputed father shall give a bond to fulfil the order, or pay twenty pounds, or suffer six months imprisonment.

4. The reputed father shall then enter into a bond with one surety to fulfil the order of filiation, or shall pay to the overseers of the poor twenty pounds for the support of each such child, or other town uses, and, in default, shall be forthwith committed to jail for a time not to exceed six months, or until he shall have entered into such bond or paid the twenty pounds.

If the mother of a bastard child shall not previously to its birth have made oath in writing before a justice disclosing the reputed father, any justice may at any time within three months after the birth, on application of an overseer of the poor of the township where the child has been, or is likely to become chargeable, take the oath of the mother in writing, declaring who is the father of such child, and, thereupon, two justices shall issue a warrant to bring the reputed father and the mother before them at a time and place therein named, and such proceedings shall be had thereon as directed in cases where the mother has disclosed the name of the father, before the birth.

6. If any reputed father shall conceal himself or so avoid service of a warrant that he cannot be brought before the justices as therein directed for hearing and examination, then they may make up their order of filiation in his absence and issue their warrant to bring him before them, at a subsequent day and place therein mentioned, to shew cause why he should not obey the order and enter into a bond to indemnify the township from the charge of such child.

When the reputed father cannot be served, the order of filiation may be made in his absence; proceedings thereon.

7. At the time and place appointed the justices shall proceed to confirm, reverse, modify, or make a new order of filiation, as may seem right, and thereupon the reputed father shall immediately enter into a bond with one surety to perform the order so confirmed, modified or made anew, or shall pay twenty pounds for the support of the child, or other town uses; and in default shall be liable to the penalties and imprisonment before prescribed for non-performance of an order of filiation.

Such order may be subsequently confirmed or reversed; proceedings thereon.

8. If a reputed father think himself aggrieved by an order of filiation, he may appeal to the next supreme court to be held in the county, except in Halifax where the appeal shall be to the next general sessions, where the whole matter may be heard and tried by a jury and the order of filiation confirmed or quashed; and the decision of such court shall be final; but before such appeal shall be granted the reputed father shall enter into a bond with one surety approved by the justices making the order, to perform the order of filiation, if confirmed, and in such case to pay the costs incurred by the overseers in consequence of the appeal.

Appeal from order of filiation.

9. Upon the examination and hearing preparatory to making an order of filiation, the justices may direct that the mother shall bear a part or the whole of the expense of the maintenance of such child, either by nursing the child or as otherwise directed in the order of filiation, or make any other order in relation thereto.

Power of justices to control the expenses in making an order of filiation, and to make further orders.

10. The overseers for any township may sue in their own names upon any bond entered into under this chapter, whether made to them or their predecessors in office; and such suit shall not abate by the death or removal from office of such overseers of poor or any of them.

9. The personal estate of any person who shall die without having bequeathed the same shall be distributed as follows:

Rules for distributing the personal estate of intestates.

The widow shall be allowed all her paraphernalia articles of apparel or ornament, according to the degree and estate of her husband, the apparel of the minor children, and also such provisions and other articles as shall be necessary for the reasonable sustenance of herself and the family under her care for the period of ninety days after the death of her husband, and such allowance shall be made, as well when the widow waives the provision made for her in the will of her husband as when he dies intestate.

The wearing apparel of the deceased, not exceeding ten pounds in value, shall be distributed at the discretion of the executor or administrator among the family of the deceased.

The remaining personal estate, after payment of the debts of the deceased, the charges of his funeral, and the necessary medical and other attendance upon him in his last illness, and the expenses attendant upon the settlement of the estate, shall be distributed, one third to the widow, if any, and the residue among the persons who would be entitled to the real estate, and if there be no widow, then the whole among such persons.

Posthumous children how provided for where testator has made no provision.

10. Any child born after the death of the father, there being no provision made in his will for such child, shall have the like interest in the real and personal estate of his father as if he had died intestate, and all the devisees and legatees in the will shall abate proportionably their respective devises and bequests, the share of the posthumous child to be set out and assigned by the court of probate so as to affect as little as possible the disposition of the property made by the testator.

Advancement how treated on division and distribution.

11. Any real or personal estate given by the intestate as an advancement to any child or grandchild, shall be considered as a portion of the estate of the intestate, so far as regards the division and distribution of the estate of the deceased, and shall be taken by such child or grand child towards his share of the intestate's estate.

Same subject.

12. If such advancement shall exceed the share of the child or grandchild, so advanced, he shall be excluded from any further portion in the division and distribution of the estate, but he shall not be required to refund any of such advancement, and if the amount so received shall be less than his share, he shall be entitled to as much more as will give him his full share of the estate of the deceased.

Advancement in real estate how to be considered and regulated.

13. If the advancement be in real estate, the value thereof shall, for the purposes of the preceding section, be considered as part of the real estate to be divided; and if in either case it shall exceed the share of real or of personal estate respectively that would have come to the child or grandchild, so advanced, he shall not refund any part of it, but shall receive so much less out of the other part of the estate as will make his whole share equal to those of the other heirs who are in the same degree with him.

What gifts or grants shall be held advancements.

14. All gifts and grants shall be deemed to have been made in advancement if expressed in the gift or grant to be so made, or if charged in writing by the intestate as an advancement, or acknowledged in writing, or upon examination before the judge of probate, on oath, as such, by the child or grandchild, and not otherwise.

Value if stated by testator to be conclusive.

15. If the value of the estate so advanced shall be expressed in the conveyance, or in the charge or valuation thereof made by the intestate, it shall be considered as of that value in the division and distribution of the estate, otherwise it shall be estimated according to its value when given.

Advancement as among grandchildren.

16. If any child or grandchild so advanced shall die before the intestate leaving issue, the advancement shall be taken into consideration in the division and distribution of the estate, and the amount thereof shall be allowed accordingly by the representatives of the child or grandchild so advanced as so much received towards their share of the estate, in like manner as if the advancement had been made directly to them.

17. Nothing in this chapter contained shall affect the title of a husband as tenant by the curtesy nor that of a widow as tenant in dower.

Tenancy by the curtesy and in dower not affected hereby.

18. Lands held as dower by the widow shall, after her decease, be divided as hereinbefore directed. Lands set off as dower prior to the act of 5th Victoria, chapter 22, shall, after the decease of the widow, be divided as before the passing of that act.

Partition may be as at common law or under this chapter.

2. Any one or more of the persons so holding lands, may apply, by petition to the supreme court for the county where the lands lie, for a partition of the same, and such court may cause partition to be made accordingly; and the shares of the petitioners shall be set off and assigned to them, and the residue of the premises shall remain for the persons entitled thereto, subject to a future partition among them if there is more than one person so entitled.

Proceedings to be commenced by petition to supreme court.

3. Such petition may be maintained by any person who has an estate in possession, but not by one who is entitled only to a remainder or reversion.

Petition, by whom maintained.

4. No tenant for any term of years, unless twenty years thereof at the least remain unexpired, shall maintain such a petition against any tenant of the freehold; but when two or more persons hold jointly or in common, as tenants for any term of years, either of them may have his share set off and divided from the others in the same manner as if they had all been tenants of the freehold.

Same subject.

5. Such partition between two or more tenants for years shall continue in force only so long as their estates endure, and shall not affect the premises when they revert to the respective landlords or reversioners.

Duration of partition as between tenants for years.

6. Every petition for a partition shall set forth the rights and titles, so far as known to the petitioner, of all persons interested in the premises who would be bound by the petition, whether they have an estate of inheritance, or for life, or years, and whether it be an estate in possession or in remainder or reversion, and whether vested or contingent; and if the petitioner holds an estate for life or years, the person entitled to the remainder or reversion after his estate shall be considered as one of the persons so interested, and shall be entitled to notice accordingly: such petition or any subsequent proceeding had thereon may be amended at any time upon such terms as the court or a judge may impose.

Contents of petition; amendments to be allowed at any stage.

7. The petition shall be filed in the same manner as a declaration, and a summons to appear and answer thereto shall be signed by the prothonotary, and a copy thereof with a copy of such petition, accompanied by a rule to plead and the usual notices, shall be served on each of the parties named in the petition as interested in the premises if they shall be found within the province, the like number of days before the sitting of the court as is required in declaration suits.

Petition to be filed, a summons to issue and be served with a copy of petition; rule to plead, &c., &c., as if it were a declaration.

Proceedings where some parties are absent, &c.

8. If any of the persons so named as interested are absent from the province, or if there are persons interested in the premises and who would be bound by the partition whose names are unknown to the petitioner, the court or a judge thereof shall order notice to be given to the persons interested who are so absent or unknown, by a publication of the petition or of the substance thereof, with the order of the court or a judge thereon, in one or more newspapers to be designated in the order, or by delivering to such absent party an attested copy of the petition and order, or in such other manner as such court or judge shall consider to be most proper and effectual.

Where a party fails to appear the court may order further notice.

9. If any person entitled to notice shall fail to appear, and if the service of the summons or other notice to him shall appear to the court to have been insufficient, the court or a judge may order such further notice as shall be thought proper.

Proceedings where it appears that a party out of the province has not had an opportunity of appearing.

10. If in any stage of the proceedings it shall appear to the court that any person interested, whether named in the petition or not, is out of the province, and has not opportunity to appear and answer to the suit, it shall be continued from term to term, until sufficient time has been allowed to enable him to appear and answer thereto.

Guardians may be appointed.

11. The court or a judge may assign a guardian for the suit for any infant or insane person who is interested in the premises, in the same manner as a guardian is admitted for an infant plaintiff or defendant at common law.

Defendants may appear jointly or separately, and pleadings, &c. may be had as in other cases.

12. Any person interested in the premises of which partition is prayed for, may appear and answer to the partition, and may plead either separately or jointly with any other defendants, any matter tending to show that the petitioner ought not to have partition as prayed for, either in whole or in part; and the replication and further pleadings shall be conducted as in other actions until issue is joined, which shall be tried and determined as in other cases—all such pleadings to be filed and served in the same way, as the pleadings in declaration suits, and notices of trial to be given in like manner.

Replication where a party's right to appear and defend is contested.

13. If any person who is not named in the petition shall appear and plead as a defendant the petitioner may reply that such person has no estate or interest in the lands described in the petition, and may pray judgment if he shall be admitted to object to the petition; and the petitioner may in the same replication plead over in answer to such plea any other matter in like manner as he might have done if he had not disputed the defendant's right to appear.

Proceedings thereon.

14. If upon such a replication it shall appear that the defendant has no estate or interest in the lands, the matter of his plea or objection shall be no further inquired of.

Costs of trial, how regulated.

15. If upon the trial of any issue of law or of fact it shall appear that the petitioner is entitled to have partition as prayed for, he shall recover his costs of such trial against the party who objected thereto, and shall have execution therefor in the usual form; but if such issue is found or decided against him, in whole or in part, the adverse party shall recover against him the costs of the trial and shall have execution accordingly, and judgment may notwithstanding be entered for the petitioner to have partition and to have assigned to him such part of the premises, if any, as he shall be entitled to.

16. If the defendant shall make default, or if upon such trial it shall appear that the petitioner is entitled to have partition, whether for the share or proportion claimed in his petition or for a less share, a rule that partition shall be made shall pass, but the court shall have the same power of setting aside defaults and in granting new trials as in other cases.

17. When such rule shall have passed the court shall appoint three disinterested persons as commissioners, to make partition and to set off to the petitioners the shares belonging to them, which shall be expressed in the rule in that behalf.

18. If there are several petitioners they may have their shares set off together, or the share of each one may be set off in severalty at their election.

19. The commissioners, before proceeding to the execution of their duties shall be sworn before any justice, faithfully and impartially to perform the same, a certificate of which oath shall be made on the warrant by the person who administered it.

20. The commissioners shall give sufficient notice of the time and place appointed for making the partition to all persons interested therein, who are known and within the province, that they may be present if they see fit.

21. The three commissioners shall meet for the performance of any of their duties, but the acts of any two of them shall be valid.

22. When the premises of which partition is demanded, are such as cannot be divided without damage to the owners, or when any specific part of the estate is of greater value than either party's share, and cannot be divided without damage to the owners, the whole estate, or the part thereof so incapable of division, may be set off to any one of the parties who will accept it, he paying or securing to any one or more of the others, such sums of money as the commissioners shall award, to make the partition just and equal. But the partition in such case shall not be established by the court until all the sums so awarded shall be paid to the parties entitled thereto or secured to their satisfaction.

23. In the case mentioned in the preceding section, the commissioners instead of setting off the premises, or a part thereof, in the manner therein provided, may assign the exclusive occupancy and enjoyment of the whole or the part, as the case may be, to each of the parties alternately, for certain specified times, in proportion to their respective interests therein.

signed in the manner provided in the preceding section, the person entitled for the time being to the exclusive occupancy, shall be liable to his co-tenants for any injury to the premises occasioned by his misconduct, in like manner and to the like extent as a tenant for years under a common lease without express covenants would be to his landlord, and the other tenants in common may have their remedy therefor against him by an action on the case, either jointly or severally at their election.

Liabilities in case of sole occupancy by one tenant in common.

25. Whilst any estate is in the exclusive occupancy of any tenant under such an assignment as before mentioned, he shall be entitled to the same remedy against any person who shall trespass upon or otherwise injure the premises as if he held the same under a lease for the same term for which they were so assigned to him, and he and all the other tenants in common shall also be entitled to recover against the wrong doer such other and further damages as they shall have sustained by the same trespass or injury, in like manner as if the premises had been leased by them for such term; and all joint damages recovered by any such tenants in common, by force of this or of the preceding section, shall be apportioned and divided among them according to their respective rights by the court in which the judgment is recovered.

Commissioners' returns to be made for confirmation by the court; when confirmed to be filed and registered.

26. The commissioners shall make a return of their proceedings under their hands, together with their warrant, to the court, and if their proceedings are confirmed by the court judgment shall be thereupon rendered that the partition so made be final, and the return shall then be filed and a certified copy thereof be recorded in the registry of deeds in the county where the lands lie.

Return may be set aside and new proceedings had.

27. The court for any sufficient reason shewn may set aside the return and commit the case anew to the same or to other commissioners to be appointed, whereupon the same proceedings shall be had as above directed.

Final judgment, upon whom conclusive.

28. The final judgment confirming and establishing the partition shall be conclusive as to all rights, both of property and possession, of all parties and privies to the judgment, including all persons who might by law have appeared and answered to the petition, except as is hereafter provided.

Part owners absent from the province, for whom a share was left, may apply within three years for a new partition.

29. If any person who was a part owner with the petitioners, and for whom a share is left upon the partition, should be out of the province when the summons or notice to him is served, and should not return in time to appear and answer to the suit, he may at any time within three years after the final judgment apply to the court for a new partition of the premises.

Court may, if justice require it, order a new partition.

30. If upon such an application, and after hearing of all parties interested therein, it shall appear to the court that the share left for the applicant was less than he was entitled to, or that the part left for him was not at the time of the partition equal in value to his share of the premises, the court may order a new partition thereof, which shall be made in the manner before provided.

Commissioners

31. In such new partition the commissioners shall not be required to make a new division of the whole premises, but they may take from any one share or shares and add to any other or others so much as shall in their judgment be necessary to make the partition just and equal, estimating the whole as in the state in which it was when first divided; or if an equal partition of the lands cannot be made without inconvenience to the owners the commissioners may award money to be paid by one party to another as before provided, to equalize the shares.

duty on such new partition.

32. If after the first partition any improvement shall have been made on any part of the premises which, by the new partition, shall be taken from the share of the party who made the improvements, he shall be entitled to compensation therefor, to be estimated and awarded by the commissioners, and to be paid by the party to whom such part of the premises shall be assigned on the new partition, and the court may order execution therefor in the usual form.

Improvements to be considered in new partition, and proceedings in such case.

33. If any person who has not appeared and answered to the petition for partition, shall claim to hold in severalty the premises therein mentioned, or any part thereof, he shall not be concluded by the judgment for partition, but may bring his action for the land claimed by him against any or all of the petitioners or defendants, or of the persons holding under them as the case may require, within the same time in which he might have brought it if no such judgment for partition had been rendered.

Persons not parties to the partition claiming to hold the premises in severalty, not bound by the judgment, but may take proceedings as in other cases.

34. When any person who has not appeared and answered to the petition shall claim the share that was assigned to, or left for any of the supposed part owners in the judgment for partition, he shall be concluded by the judgment so far as it respects the partition and the assignment of the shares in like manner as if he had been a party to that suit, but he shall not be prevented thereby from bringing his action for the share claimed by him against the person to whom it was assigned, or for whom it was left.

A person not appearing but claiming a share assigned to a part owner shall be bound by the partition, but may have an action for the share.

35. The action in such case shall be brought against the tenant in possession, in like manner as if the plaintiff had originally claimed the specific piece of land demanded, instead of an undivided part of the whole land, and it may be brought within the same time in which it might have been brought if no such judgment for partition had been rendered.

Action in such case, how and against whom brought.

36. If two or more persons appear as defendants claiming the same share of the premises to be divided, it shall not be necessary to decide upon their respective claims except only for the purpose of determining which of them shall be admitted to appear and plead in the suit; and if partition is made, the share so claimed shall be left for which ever of the parties shall prove to be entitled to it, in a suit to be thereafter brought between themselves.

Proceedings where two persons claim the same share before division.

37. If in such a case it shall be decided in the original suit for partition upon the replication of the petitioners or otherwise, that either of the defendants is not entitled to the share that he claims, he shall be concluded by the judgment so far as it respects the partition and the assignment of the shares, but he shall not be prevented thereby from bringing his action for the share claimed by him against the other claimant thereof in the manner provided in the three preceding sections.

Rights of a party not appearing where the share was not known or allowed, how far affected by the partition judgment.

38. If any person who has not appeared and answered as above shall claim any part of the premises mentioned in the petition as a part owner with those who were parties to that suit, or any of them, and if the part or share so claimed was not known or not allowed and left for him in the process for partition, he shall be concluded by the judgment so far as it respects the partition, but he shall not be prevented thereby from bringing an action for the share or proportion claimed by him against each of the persons who shall hold any part of the premises under the judgment for partition.

Redress in such case, how and against whom obtained.

39. If the plaintiff shall prevail in the case last mentioned, he shall not be entitled to demand a new partition of the whole premises, but he shall recover against each of the persons holding under the judgment for partition the same proportion or share of the part held by him that the plaintiff was entitled to out of the whole premises before the partition thereof.

Rights of heir or devisee where, after partition, it shall appear that the ancestor or testator died before partition, how affected.

40. If after making of partition it shall appear that any person for whom a share was left or to whom a share was assigned, had died before such partition was made, the heir or devisee of such deceased person shall not by reason of such heir or devisee having been a party to the suit, either as a petitioner or as a defendant, be barred from claiming the share that belonged to the deceased person, but the heir or devisee in such case shall have the same rights and the same remedies in all respects as if such heir or devisee had not been a party to the suit and had not notice of the pendency thereof.

Remedy where a party is evicted by a person having a paramount title.

41. If any person to, or for whom any share shall have been assigned or left upon any judgment for partition, shall be evicted thereof, by any person who, at the time of the partition, had a title thereto paramount to the title of those who were parties to the suit for partition, the person so evicted shall be entitled to a new partition of the residue, in like manner as if the former partition had not been made.

Lien by mortgage or attachment, how affected by the judgment.

42. Any person having a mortgage, attachment, or other lien upon the share of any part owner, shall be concluded by the judgment, so far as it respects the partition and the assignment of the shares; but his lien shall remain in full force upon the part that shall be assigned or left for such part owner.

Suit not to abate for the death of a party named on a partition.

43. In case of the death of any party in a petition for partition, the suit need not abate, but may be conducted and prosecuted to final judgment, under such rules and orders for bringing in the heirs or representatives of the deceased party, as the court or judge may think proper; for making them parties to the suit and regulating the proceedings accordingly.

Expenses of commissioners to be allowed and costs to be taxed, as in other cases.

44. The expenses and charge of the commissioners shall be ascertained and allowed by the court, and all the other costs of the proceedings shall be taxed in the usual manner; and the whole shall be paid by the parties in proportion to their respective shares or interests in the premises, except only the costs of a trial of any issue joined in the case as to which a different provision is before made.

45. Every person holding any lands under a partition made by virtue of this chapter shall be considered as holding them under an apparently good title, so that in case of eviction he shall be entitled to compensation for any improvements made thereon.

46. Every order made in pursuance of this chapter by a single judge, not sitting in open court, shall be liable to be rescinded or altered by the court in like manner as other orders.

Titles under a judgment of partition, how considered.

Orders of a single judge liable to be rescinded or altered.

52. In case such treasurer shall not have any money in his hands to pay the sum so ordered for conveying poor prisoners to jail, or for the attendance of witnesses, the same shall be paid out of the public treasury of the province.

53. Whenever, in the absence of the attorney general and solicitor general, it shall appear to the court expedient and necessary to appoint any one counsel, to conduct and manage on behalf of her majesty, the proceedings and trial of any criminal prosecutions depending before the court, it shall be lawful for the court to direct any queen's counsel present therein, or, in his absence, to appoint from among the barristers attending thereat, some one competent person to conduct and manage such proceedings, and to tax and allow to him for his services such reasonable fees as he would have been entitled to for the like services as the attorney of any party in a civil action, together with such reasonable counsel fees, not exceeding for any one prosecution the sum of five pounds, as the court shall deem adequate to the services performed on such prosecution. But the costs to be taxed shall in no case exceed seven pounds and ten shillings for all writings and papers and for all counsel fees therein: and on the allowance and taxation the court shall not allow for any but necessary services and expenses, and notice of the time of taxation shall be given to the clerk of the crown or his deputy.

Costs taxed, how paid.

54. Upon the production of a certificate under the seal of the court of the amount so taxed and allowed, it shall be lawful for the governor to grant his warrant therefor upon the receiver general who shall pay the amount.

Party convicted, if of ability, may be adjudged to pay the expense of prosecution.

55. In all cases where the party prosecuted shall be convicted and be found by the court of ability to pay the expenses of prosecution, to be taxed under this chapter, the court shall adjudge such defendant to pay the expenses of prosecution, and shall issue execution accordingly, and the amount shall be paid to the receiver general.

1. In all cases where a charge or complaint (A.) shall be made before a justice that a person has committed or is suspected of having committed any indictable offence within the limits of the jurisdiction of such justice, or that a person has committed or is suspected to have committed an indictable offence out of the jurisdiction of such justice and is residing or is suspected to be within the limits of the jurisdiction of such justice, if the person so charged or complained against shall not then be in custody, such justice shall issue his warrant (B.) to apprehend such person, to be dealt with as therein and thereby directed; but instead of a warrant in the first instance, the justice, if he think fit, may issue his summons (C.) requiring such person to appear at a certain time and place therein mentioned to answer to the charge preferred. If after being served with such summons in manner hereinafter prescribed, such person shall fail to appear in obedience thereto, such justice, or any other justice of the county, may issue his warrant (D.) to apprehend such person to be dealt with as in such last mentioned warrant directed. But nothing in this section contained shall prevent a justice from issuing the warrant hereinbefore first mentioned at any time before or after the time mentioned in the summons for the appearance of the accused party.

Persons guilty or suspected of an indictable offence, how apprehended.

2. In all cases of indictable offences committed on the high seas, or in any creek, harbor, haven or other place in which the admiralty of England have or claim to have jurisdiction, and in all cases of offences committed on land beyond the seas for which an indictment may be preferred within this province, a justice for any county in which any person charged with having committed or being suspected to have committed any such offence shall be or be suspected to be, may issue his warrant (E.) to apprehend such person, to be dealt with as therein and thereby directed.

When an indictment is found and the party hath not appeared, manner of proceeding.

3. Where an indictment shall be found by the grand jury against a person then at large, whether such person shall have been bound by recognizance to appear to answer the same or not, the person acting as clerk of the court where the indictment shall be found shall at any time afterwards after the end of the same term or sittings, upon application of the prosecutor or any person on his behalf, and on payment of one shilling, if such person shall not have already appeared and pleaded to such indictment, grant unto such prosecutor or person a certificate (F.), which being produced to a justice of the county where the offence shall in such indictment be alleged to have been committed or in which the person indicted shall be suspected to be, such justice shall issue his warrant (G.) to apprehend the party so indicted; upon the party being apprehended and being proved to be on oath the same person charged in the indictment, the justice before whom he is brought shall without further inquiry or examination, by warrant (H.) commit him for trial or admit him to bail as hereinafter mentioned. If the person indicted shall then be confined in jail for any other offence, then the justice, upon it being proved before him upon oath that the person indicted and the person so confined are the same person, shall issue his warrant (I.) directed to the keeper of such jail, commanding him to detain such person in custody until discharged therefrom by due course of law.

Warrants may issue on a Sunday.

4. A justice of the peace may grant or issue any such warrant or any search warrant on a Sunday as well as on any other day.

When a warrant shall issue for an indictable offence information must be in writing under oath; otherwise when a summons shall issue; variances unobjectionable.

5. Whenever a charge or complaint for any indictable offence shall be made before a justice, if it be intended to issue a warrant in the first instance against the party charged, an information and complaint thereof (A.) in writing on the oath of the informant or of some witness in that behalf shall be laid before the justice; but where it is intended to issue a summons in the first instance, the information and complaint need not be in writing, nor upon oath, but may be by parol, and no objection shall be taken or allowed to any such information or complaint for any alleged defect therein in substance or in form, or for any variance between it and the evidence adduced on the part of the prosecution before the justice who shall take the examination of the witnesses in that behalf.

Proceedings by summons and warrant; variances may be cause for adjournment.

6. Upon such information and complaint being so laid, the justice receiving the same may, if he shall think fit, issue his summons or warrant respectively, as hereinbefore directed, to cause the party charged to appear as therein and thereby directed; and every such summons (C.) shall be directed to the party so charged in and by such information, and shall shortly state the matter of such information and shall require the party to whom directed, to appear at a certain time and place therein mentioned, to answer to such charge ; and such summons shall be served by a constable or other peace officer upon the person to whom directed by delivering the same to the party personally, or if he cannot conveniently be met with, then by leaving the same with some person for him at his last or usual place of abode ; and the person who shall have served the same, shall attend at the time and place and before the justice in the summons mentioned, if necessary, to verify such service upon oath ; and if the party summoned shall not appear as required, the justice shall issue his warrant (D.) to compel his attendance as therein and thereby prescribed. If any variance or alleged defect in substance or in form between the summons or warrant, and the evidence adduced in support thereof shall appear to the justice to be such that the party charged has been deceived or misled thereby, such justice, at the request of the party charged, may adjourn the hearing of the case to a future day, and remand such party or admit him to bail as hereinafter mentioned.

7. It shall not be necessary to make a warrant (B.) returnable at any particular time, but it may remain in force until it shall be executed. It may be executed by apprehending the offender at any place within which the justice issuing it hath jurisdiction, or in case of fresh pursuit at any place in the next adjoining county or place and within seven miles of the border of such first mentioned county, without having such warrant backed as hereinafter mentioned. No objection shall be taken or allowed to any such warrant for any defect therein in substance or in form, or for any variance between it and the evidence adduced on the part of the prosecution before the justice who shall take the examination of the witnesses in that behalf as hereinafter mentioned ; but if it appear to the justice that the party charged has been deceived or misled by any such variance, at his request the justice may adjourn the hearing of the case to a future day, and in the meantime remand the party charged or admit him to bail as hereinafter mentioned.

Warrant need not be returnable at any particular time, how and where executed on fresh pursuit ; of variances.

8. If the person against whom any such warrant shall be issued shall not be found within the jurisdiction of the justice issuing the same, or if he shall be or be suspected to be in any place within this province, a justice of the county or place where such person shall be or be suspected to be, upon proof made upon oath of the handwriting of the justice issuing the warrant, may make an endorsement (K.) upon such warrant, signed with his name, authorizing the execution thereof as thereon endorsed, and the carrying of the person therein named, when apprehended, before the justice who first issued the warrant or some other justice of that county or place where the offence mentioned in the warrant appears therein to have been committed ; but if the prosecutor or any of the witnesses for the prosecution shall then be in the county or place where the person shall have been so apprehended, the party apprehending him, if so directed by the justice backing the war-

Warrants how endorsed ; proceedings thereon when the prosecutor or any of the witnesses shall reside in the county where the prisoner is apprehended.

rant, shall convey him before such last mentioned justice or some other justice of the same county or place, and thereupon such justice may take the examination of such prosecutor or witnesses, and proceed in every respect in manner hereinafter directed with respect to persons charged before a justice with an offence alleged to have been committed in another county or place than that in which such person has been apprehended.

Evidence for the prosecution, how secured.

9. If it shall be made to appear to any justice by oath that any person within his jurisdiction is likely to give material evidence for the prosecution and will not voluntarily appear for the purpose of being examined, such justice shall issue his summons (L. 1) to such person, requiring him to appear at the time and place therein mentioned to testify as therein directed. If without sufficient excuse he neglect to appear at such time and place after proof upon oath of such summons having been served upon such person either personally or by leaving the same with some person for him at his last or usual place of abode, the justice before whom such person should have appeared may issue a warrant, (L. 2,) which warrant, if necessary, may be backed as other warrants. If such justice shall be satisfied by evidence upon oath that it is probable that such person will not attend to give evidence unless compelled, then, instead of a summons, he may issue a warrant (L. 3,) in the first instance which, if necessary, may be backed as above. If on the appearance of such person, either in obedience to the summons or under the warrant, he shall refuse to be examined upon oath concerning the premises, or shall refuse to take such oath, or having taken such oath shall refuse to answer questions concerning the premises without just excuse for such refusal, the justice by warrant (L. 4) may commit such party so refusing to jail, for any time not exceeding seven days, unless he shall in the meantime consent to be examined and to answer.

Proceedings before a justice where a party is charged with an indictable offence, depositions how taken and when to be used on trial.

10. Whenever any person shall appear or be brought before a justice charged with an indictable offence, whether committed within the province or upon the high seas, or on land beyond the sea, whether such person appear voluntarily or be in custody for the same or another offence, the justice, before he commit the accused person for trial or admit him to bail, shall in the presence of the accused person, who shall be at liberty to put questions to any witness produced against him, take the statement (M.) on oath of those who shall know the facts and circumstances of the case, and shall put the same into writing, and such depositions shall be read over to and signed respectively by the witnesses so examined, and shall also be signed by the justices taking the same. Before any such witness shall be examined the justice shall administer the usual oath, and if upon the trial of the person accused it shall be proved upon oath that any person whose deposition shall have been so taken is dead, or so ill as to be unable to travel, and also that such deposition was taken in the presence of the person accused, and that he, or his counsel or attorney, had full opportunity of cross examining the witness, then if such deposition purport to be signed by the justice by or before whom the same purports to have been taken, it may be read in evidence on such prosecution without further proof, unless it shall be proved that such deposition was not in fact signed by the justice purporting to sign the same.

11. After the examination of all the witnesses on the part of the prosecution shall have been completed, the justice shall, without requiring the attendance of the witnesses, read or cause to be read to the accused the depositions taken against him, and shall say to him these words, or to the like effect :

Depositions to be read ; party to be cautioned and questioned ; his answers, if any to be reduced to writing, and may be used on trial.

“ Having heard the evidence, do you wish to say anything in answer to the charge ? You are not obliged to say anything unless you desire to do so, but whatever you say will be taken down in writing and may be given in evidence against you upon your trial.”

And whatever the prisoner shall then say in answer thereto shall be taken down in writing (N.) and read over to him, and shall be signed by the justice and kept with the depositions of the witnesses, and shall be transmitted with them as hereinafter mentioned, and upon the trial of the accused party the same may if necessary be given in evidence against him without further proof thereof, unless it shall be proved that the justice purporting to sign the same did not in fact sign the same ; but before such accused person shall make any statement the justice shall state to him and give him clearly to understand that he has nothing to hope from any promise of favor and nothing to fear from any threat which may have been holden out to him to induce him to make any admission or confession of his guilt, but that whatever he shall then say may be given in evidence against him upon his trial. The prosecutor may, however, give in evidence any admission or confession or other statement of the person accused or charged, made at any time which by law would be admissible evidence against such person.

12. The room or building in which the justice shall take such examinations or statements as above shall not be deemed an open court for that purpose, and the justice at his discretion may order that no person shall have access to, or be or remain in such room or building without the consent of such justice, if it appear to him that the ends of justice will be best answered by so doing.

Room where examinations are taken not necessarily an open court.

13. The justice before whom any witness shall be examined may bind by recognizance (O. 1) the prosecutor and every such witness to appear at the next term or sitting of the court in which the accused is to be tried, then and there to prosecute, or to prosecute and give evidence, or to give evidence as the case may be against the party accused, which recognizance shall specify the profession, mystery, art, or trade of every such person recognized, together with his christian and surname and the place of his residence ; and being duly acknowledged it shall be subscribed by the justice before whom taken, and a notice (O. 2) thereof shall at the same time be given to the person bound thereby ; and the several recognizances so taken, together with the written information, if any, the depositions, the statement of the accused, and the recognizance of bail, if any in such case, shall be delivered by the justice to the proper officer of the court in which the trial is to be had, before or at the opening of the court on the first day of term, or at such other time as the presiding judge thereof shall order. If such witness shall refuse to enter into such recognizance the justice by his warrant (P. 1) may commit him to jail in the county where the trial is to be had until after the trial of the accused party, unless in the meantime he shall enter into such recognizance before some justice of the county where such jail is situate. If afterwards for want of sufficient evidence in that behalf, or other cause, the justice before whom such accused party shall have been brought shall not commit him or hold him to bail for the offence with which he shall have been charged, the same or any other justice of the county by his order (P. 2) may direct the keeper of such jail to discharge him from further custody, and such keeper shall forthwith discharge him accordingly.

Party may be remanded for further examinations; orders therefor; recognizance for his appearance, and how forfeited.

14. If from the absence of witnesses, or for any other reasonable cause, it shall become necessary or advisable to defer the examination or further examination of any witnesses for any time, the justice before whom the accused party shall appear or be brought may by his warrant (Q. 1) from time to time remand the party accused for such time as to him shall seem reasonable, not to exceed eight clear days, to jail or other place of security in the county. If the remand be for a period not exceeding three clear days the order therefor may be made verbally to a constable or person to be named by the justice in that behalf, with directions to bring up the accused party again at a time and place appointed for continuing the examination. But any justice may order the accused party to be brought before him or any other justice for the same county or place before the expiration of the time for which the accused shall be so remanded, and the jailer or officer in charge shall obey such order, and any justice before whom the accused shall so appear or be brought may discharge him upon his entering into a recognizance (Q. 2, 3) with or without a security or securities, at the discretion of the justice, conditioned for his appearance at the time and place appointed for the continuance of such examination. If he shall not appear, then such justice or any other justice present, upon certifying (Q. 4) upon the back of the recognizance, may transmit such recognizance to the prothonotary of the court of the county within which such recognizance shall have been taken, to be proceeded upon as other recognizances, and such certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the non-appearance of such accused party.

Proceedings when the offence charged has been committed in a county where the justice has not jurisdiction.

15. Whenever a person shall appear or be brought before a justice charged with an offence alleged to have been committed within a county or place wherein such justice shall not have jurisdiction, he shall examine such witnesses and receive such proof of the charge as shall be brought before him, and if in the opinion of such justice the evidence adduced shall be sufficient proof of the charge made against the accused party the justice shall thereupon commit him to jail, or shall admit him to bail as hereinafter mentioned, and shall bind over the prosecutor if he have appeared before him, and the witnesses by recognizance accordingly as hereinbefore mentioned. But if the evidence shall not in the opinion of such justice be sufficient to put the accused party upon his trial for the offence with which he is charged the justice shall bind over such witnesses as he shall have examined by recognizance to give evidence as hereinbefore mentioned, and he shall issue his warrant (R. 1) in that behalf, and at the same time deliver the information and complaint, and the depositions and recognizances so taken by him, to the constable having the execution of the last named warrant, to be by him delivered to the justice before whom he shall take the accused, and the depositions and recognizances shall have the same validity and effect as if taken before such last mentioned justice; and they, with such depositions and recognizances as the last mentioned justice shall take in the matter, shall be transmitted to the court where the accused party is to be tried, if he shall be committed for trial or admitted to bail.

16. If the accused party shall be taken before the justice last mentioned by virtue of such last named warrant, the person so conveying him shall be entitled to be paid his costs and expenses for that service, and upon his producing the accused party before such justice, and delivering him into custody as such justice shall direct, and delivering his warrant, the information, if any, depositions and recognizances, and proving by oath the hand-writing of the justice subscribing the same, such justice to whom the accused party is produced shall forthwith ascertain the sum which ought to be paid for such service, and for his reasonable costs and expenses of returning, and shall thereupon make an order (R. 2) in favor of such person upon the county treasurer for payment thereof, and the treasurer upon production of the order shall pay the same in the usual course. If the justice last named shall not think the evidence against such accused party sufficient to put him upon trial he shall discharge him without bail, and the recognizances taken by such first named justice shall be void.

17. Where a person shall appear or be brought before a justice charged with any offence other than treason, or a felony punishable with death, he may in his discretion admit such person to bail upon such surety or sureties as he shall think sufficient to ensure the appearance of the person accused at the time and place for the trial of such offence, and he shall take the recognizance (S. 1), and notice thereof (S. 2) shall be given.

18. In all cases where a person charged with an indictable offence shall be committed for trial the justice who shall have signed the warrant for his commitment may at any time before trial, at his discretion, admit such accused party to bail as above if he shall be of opinion that such accused party ought to be admitted to bail, he shall in such case certify (S. 3) on the back of Proceedings before the justice having jurisdiction in the place where the offence was committed; expenses of officer, how taxed and defrayed.

Justices may take bail for all offences, treason and felony punishable with death excepted.

the warrant of commitment his consent to such party being bailed, stating the amount of bail which ought to be required, and thereupon any justice attending, or being at the jail where such accused party shall be in custody, on production of such certificate shall admit him to bail in manner above mentioned, or if it shall be inconvenient for the surety or sureties in such case to attend at such jail to join with the accused person in the recognizance the committing justice may make a duplicate of such certificate (S. 4), and upon the same being produced to any justice for the same county or place he may take the recognizance of the surety or sureties in conformity therewith.

Same subject.

19. Upon such recognizance being transmitted to the keeper of such jail, and produced, together with the certificate on the warrant of commitment, to a justice attending or being at the jail, he may thereupon take the recognizance of the accused party and order him to be discharged out of custody as to that commitment as hereinafter mentioned.

Recognizance how transmitted to the proper officer; treason and felonies punishable with death bailable only by the supreme court or a judge.

20. In all cases where an accused party in custody shall be admitted to bail by a justice other than the committing justice, such justice so admitting him to bail shall forthwith transmit the recognizance of bail to the proper officer or to the committing justice, to be transmitted by him, with the examinations, to such officer. But no justice of the peace shall admit any person to bail for treason, or a felony punishable with death, nor shall such person be admitted to bail except by the supreme court or by one of the justices thereof.

Warrants of deliverance to issue where a party bailed from prison.

21. In all cases where a justice shall admit to bail a person who shall then be in prison charged with the offence for which he shall be so admitted to bail, such justice shall send to or cause to be lodged with the jailer a warrant of deliverance (S. 5), and thereupon such jailer shall obey the same.

If the evidence is insufficient the party shall be discharged, otherwise he shall be committed or admitted to bail.

22. When all the evidence offered upon the part of the prosecution shall have been heard, if the justice shall be of opinion that it is insufficient to put the accused party upon his trial for any indictable offence, he shall forthwith order such accused party, if in custody, to be discharged as to the information then under inquiry: but if he shall think the evidence sufficient to put the accused party upon his trial for an indictable offence, or if the evidence given raise a strong or probable presumption of the guilt of the accused party then the justice shall by his warrant (T. 1) commit him to jail until he shall be delivered by due course of law, or admit him to bail as hereinbefore mentioned.

Jailer to give the constable a receipt for the prisoner, setting forth his state and condition.

23. The constable or person to whom the warrant of commitment shall be directed shall convey the person accused to jail as therein directed, and there deliver him together with such warrant to the jailer, who shall thereupon give a receipt (T. 2) for such prisoner, setting forth the state and condition in which such prisoner was when he was so delivered into custody.
