Interesting Meeting

The Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire

The Regular meeting of the Sir Robert Borden Chapter I. O. D. E., was postponed from Tuesday, Jan. 3rd, to the following week, owing to other important events intervening. On Tuesday, Jan. 10th, the meeting was largely attended, and much important business was transacted. Correspondence included a letter to the Regent from Dr. A. F. Miller, Medical Superintendent of the N. S. Provincial Sanatorium, presenting the thanks of that institution to the Chapter for Christmas parcels to the patients, who greatly appreciated these remembrances. Also a letter from Mrs. W. H. Barker, "National Echoes" Secretary, urging all members of I. O. D. E. to subscribe for this valuable magazine.

The Regent introduced Mrs. Sutherland Matron of the Children's Aid Detention Home, who addressed the Chapter in behalf of the Children of the Home. Hearts would indeed be hard if no sympathetic response be made to the appeal for these unfortunate "little ones". Mrs. Sutherland thanked the ladies of the Chapter who had assisted her in her work during the past year.

Mrs. H. W. Davison, Chairman of Educational Committee, and of the School Prize Contest Committee, presented the following report, which was adopted: Your committee met with Principal Silver who was much pleased with the interest shown by the I. O. D. E. in the school.

Instead of essays this year, it is recommended that prizes be given for excellence in the work of the first three quarters, in grade 11 a first and second prize of three and two dollars for the two highest marks in English; in grade 10 two prizes of two and a half dollars each, one for the highest mark in English and the other for the greatest improvement in English; grade 9 to be given similar prizes, while it is suggested that grade 8 have the same amount given for the best marks in English and Arithmetic.

For athletics, a silver cup, value ten dollars, to be competed for by the three High School classes in either hockey or football.

Miss Haley is already making a beginning towards the piano fund by a concert to be given before Christmas in the Opera House by her little folk.

On motion the Chapter voted Twenty Dollars additional to the former vote of Thirty Dollars to be offered in prizes for the grades from grade 7 to grade 2 inclusive. Arrangements to be with the Committee in charge of Mrs. Davison.

Mrs. A. B. Belcom, Chairman for "Kindergarten Piano" committee reported. Your Committee interviewed Mr. Finney who was interested in this scheme and offered an excellent piano at especially good figures, viz. a piano valued at $400.00 for $200.00. This meant some personal sacrifice for the benefit of the school. Mrs. Belcom reported $61.00 on hand per Entertainment given by Miss Haley and Kindergarten pupils. This would leave a balance of $139.00. After brief discussion the Chapter voted this sum to complete the purchase, by an overwhelming majority.

Miss Tufts reported for V. O. N., stating that arrangements were in course for a full canvas of the town, for this outstanding cause; which arrangement she hoped would be completed in one day, Monday next. This report was unanimously adopted.

A nominating Committee was appointed and nominations were received and tabulated, for the staff of Officers for 1922-23.

The Annual Meeting of the Chapter was announced for Wednesday, Feb. 1st, when the election of officers will take place. A motion to adjourn carried and the Social Committee, (Mrs. A. J. Woodman, Convenor) took charge of proceedings. Tea was served by a number of hostesses in charge of Mrs. Leslie Eaton. The excellence of the good things provided was only surpassed by the courtesy of the ladies dispensing hospitality. Proceeds of Tea, $11.65.

GIFT TO WOLFVILLE KINDERGARTEN.

The above notes were just about to be passed in to the press, when such action was intercepted by a very important communication from Mrs. W. H. Chase, a valued Councillor of the I. O. D. E.

This message in effect is that Mr. Chase, who desires to promote a greater interest in and love of music in the young children of the schools, has very generously offered to present, in full, the piano above referred to, to the kindergarten.

This most praiseworthy action on the part of Mr. Chase is all the more appreciated, because wholly unexpected. The Sir Robert Borden Chapter I. O. D. E., as well as the teacher, pupils and friends of the Kindergarten, are indeed deeply indebted for this valuable gift:

Important Town Asset

Some Observations Regarding Wolfville's Water Shed Land

That those responsible for the management of the Wolfville water system did wisely and well when they acquired the area which now constitutes our water shed lands, would be even more generally recognized if citizens were better acquainted with the conditions. This area comprises about six hundred acres and includes what was once the "Hovey Farm" as well as parts of other properties. It covers all the drainage area of our splendid system and is a most valuable holding and if properly looked after will continue to increase in value year by year, as it has done since taken over by the town. It is said that a man who well understands the value of such property, recently made the remark that he would be willing to take over this land and in payment assume the whole indebtedness of the town.

The object of those early commissioners in acquiring the tract was to assure the supply of water by preserving and increasing the growth of wood and also to prevent any possible pollution of the water supply. It is a well known fact that by depleting the forest the brooks and springs are made ineffective. Today the water-shed land is heavily wooded and in consequence of this protection we need have no anxiety as to the falling off of our excellent supply of pure water.

Valuable as the property is, however, we cannot afford to allow it to be neglected. This is the opinion of our townsmen, Mr. John A. Coldwell, who is an experienced woodsman, thoroughly qualified to judge of such matters. Mr. Coldwell thinks that much of the heavy timber should be removed as the short, thick underbrush serves the purpose of conservation much better by allowing the snow-fall to accumulate on the ground rather than rest on the tree tops and evaporate.

Mr. Coldwell also sees in this property the possibility of a considerable revenue for the town. The timber is valuable and if carefully removed might be made a matter of profit without in any way impairing the water-supply.

Some years ago, with the permission of the Council, Mr. Coldwell carried out a small operation covering about two acres. The trees to be removed were carefully selected and all the brush and waste material burned to prevent the possibility of forest-fires, which would do immense damage if once allowed to get under way. The result of Mr. Coldwell's work was the lands were improved, a considerable amount was added to the town's finances and Mr. Coldwell made a satisfactory profit from the undertaking.

During the past year the town has secured timber for street and bridge work and poles for the Electric system from this source and effected a considerable saving thereby. Mr. Coldwell thinks, however, that there is a possibility that the work has not been so well done as it might have been. He recommends that in future all such work should be done under very careful superintendence and that above all things, the brush should be burned at once and not allowed to accumulate.

THE ACADIAN believes that this is a matter which should engage the careful consideration of citizens in the immediate future, so as not to permit the possible endangering of this valuable asset of the town. We believe that if the services of such a man as Mr. Coldwell could be secured to act in the capacity of warden of this property that our water-shed lands would be better safeguarded and made to be not merely of value in protecting and preserving our water-supply, important as that is, but at the same time, the source of a considerable revenue.

CLINIC ITEMS.

Pre-natal and Infant Welfare at Clinic Rooms, Kentville, Friday, Jan. 13, commencing 7 p. m.

"The father's share in taking care of the baby is very important. The future of the family and nation depends on his health, industry and wisdom in making a good home and on his kindness to his wife and family."

"Daddy, are you on the job?" From Dr. Helen MacLachlan, in Little Blue Books, Home series, Department of Health, Ottawa.

Tuberculosis Clinic, Friday, Jan. 20, commencing 2 p. m.

"Our campaign must be planned with two objects in view—Prevention and Cure. We speak first of prevention, for in this book the sick and the well have their part. If every human being in the community were enlisted in this war, tuberculosis could be entirely wiped out!"

Enjoyable Banquet

Given by Cricket Club Last Evening—Presentation of Bat and Ball.

The Wolfville Cricket Club held a very enjoyable banquet last evening at the Royal Hotel. There were about twenty-five present including representatives from the Bridgetown and Kentville Clubs. It was to be regretted that there was no representative from Windsor.

The bountiful repast prepared by "mine host" Sanford was done ample justice by all. Rev. R. F. Dixon, president of the Valley Cricket League, then presented the bat donated by Mr. J. E. Smith for the player in the league making the best batting average, and the ball donated by Mr. A. J. Mason for the best bowling average. The bat went to Mr. Timothy, of the Windsor Club, who was unfortunately unable to be present at the banquet. The bat was therefore handed to Mr. Mason who was asked to forward it to Mr. Timothy. The ball was presented to Mr. Walker, of the Kentville Club, who acknowledged it with a few appropriate words.

Rev. Mr. Dixon then gave a short address after which he proposed a toast to the King, responded to by the singing of the National Anthem. Mr. Mason captain of the Wolfville team, proposed a toast to the visitors, which was replied to by Mr. Bothamley, of Bridgetown. A toast to the "grand old game" was proposed by Mr. J. E. Smith. Short and witty speeches were also given by Messrs. N. Evans, S. A. Robinson, A. C. Cox, A. G. Guest, M. J. Tamplin and G. S. Bauld. Mr. Mason proposed a toast to Rev. Mr. Dixon and all joined in singing "For he's a jolly good fellow". This brought to a close one of the pleasantest social functions of the season.

Wolfville Boys Win

Surprise Fans by Defeating Windsor in First Game.

After being outplayed in the first two periods the local hockey team made a splendid rally in the final period and defeated the Windsor team at Evangeline Road last Friday evening. This was the first time the locals had played this season and they put up a splendid game considering the little practice they have had. Although starting the season with practically a new team it looks now as though Wolfville might again lead the league this year.

Waldron Kennedy was easily the best player on the Wolfville team and his brother Gordon played a fine game at centre, this being his first game in that position. Woodman and Christie also did effective work on the forward line. The veteran W. Spicer guarded the net with his old time skill and he was ably assisted by Harvey and Eagles. S. Mac Donald was the pick of the Windsor team, playing brilliantly throughout.

In the first period the visitors took the offensive and for a time had things pretty well their own way but the local boys soon settled down to business and played a fine defensive game. Windsor scored two goals in this period to Wolfville's nil. Wolfville scored twice in the second period but the visitors increased their lead and at the end of the period the score was 5 to 2, and Wolfville's chances looked slim. The local boys, however, came back strong in the last period and outplayed their opponents. W. Kennedy scored twice and G. Kennedy, Harvey and Woodman one each. Windsor got one tally in this period, making the final score 7 to 6 in favor of Wolfville. The teams were as follows:

Windsor—Smith, McCann, S. McDonald, Poole, W. Singer, J. McDonald, Spares, Mosher, Clark and Hughes.
Wolfville—Spicer, Eagles, Harvey, Woodman, G. Kennedy, W. Kennedy, Spares, Thompson, Christie and King.

WOLFVILLE DEFEATS CANNING

The Wolfville hockey team journeyed to Canning on Monday evening for their first game of the season, and again came out victorious. The game which was witnessed by over six hundred people, was keenly contested throughout. The ice, however, was heavy, which prevented fast hockey.

Canning scored the first two goals but the Wolfville boys then settled down to work and tied the score at the end of the first period. Wolfville scored again in the second period, making the score 3 to 2. Each team scored a goal in the last period making the final score 4 to 3 in favor of Wolfville. Canning claimed another goal which was not allowed by the goal judge. The line-up was as follows:

| Wolfville | Canning |
|-------------|---------------|
| Goal | L. Lyons |
| Point | Earl Dickie |
| Cover Point | S. Jodrie |
| Centre | H. Lyons |

THIEF AT THE POST OFFICE

To the Editor of THE ACADIAN:
Dear Sir:—Some days ago when in the vestibule of the Post Office, I put down my walking stick to attend to business at a window, when my attention was called off. When I turned around to get the stick it was gone—some thief having slipped out with it. I have heard of others making losses by trusting to the honesty of all the frequenters of the Post Office. The clerks are very sharp sighted to rescue derelict belongings in the vestibule and take care of them, but much necessarily escapes their vigilance.

St. Andrews Church

Holds Annual Business Meeting—$5,000 Raised by Congregation During Past Year.

The Presbyterian Congregation of Wolfville and Grand Pre held its annual business meeting on Wednesday evening at St. Andrews Church. Notwithstanding the absence of a number of the members of the congregation there was a good attendance and a most successful and interesting session was held. The meeting opened with a short prayer service, led by the minister after which Prof. Sutherland was called to the chair and Major MacPherson was elected secretary. The report of the board of Managers was read and the financial statement for the year, showing that the affairs of the congregation are in a very satisfactory condition. During the year $2750 was raised for strictly congregational purposes and the total contribution including the Forward Movement fund amounted to about $5000. The mortgage on the church edifice was reduced by $900 and a determined effort will be made during the coming year to complete the payment of the debt. Very satisfactory reports were presented by the Session, Sunday School, Missionary Society and other organizations of the congregation. The loss which the church has sustained by the death of the late D. B. Shaw was fittingly referred to and the following resolution was passed:

"The congregation of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church assembled in annual meeting, would record its deep sense of loss in the death of the late David Brainard Shaw, who passed his age reward on January 9th, 1922, at the age of seventy three years.

Mr. Shaw was one of the oldest members of this church and had been a member of session for 37 years, having been ordained to the Eldership on February 5th, 1885, during the ministry of the late Rev. R. D. Ross. He served not only at the Lord's Table but on the Board of Managers, as Sunday School Superintendent and wherever his work was most needed.

He lived a quiet, peaceable and godly life. He walked humbly with his God. We extend our sympathy to the widow and children and commend them to the God of all Comfort and all Grace."

A vote appreciative of the faithful service of the minister, Rev. G. W. Miller, was passed and it was decided to grant the stipend from $1500 to $1600 for the coming year.

The following were elected on the Board of Management for the ensuing year: J. Elliott Smith, H. P. Davidson, Herman Baird, Major MacPherson, Dr. Thompson, Geo. A. Chase and Mrs. A. D. Elderkin.

Other officers elected were:
Auditors: Dr. Grant and B. O. Davidson.

Ushers—G. S. Bauld, J. C. Mitchell, Dr. Thompson and Prof. Sutherland.
Plate Collectors—J. C. Mitchell, Dr. Grant, James Northover and Reginald Smith.

Music Committee—Mrs. (Dr.) Thompson, Mrs. C. M. Murray, Mrs. Herbert Smith, Mrs. Alex. Sutherland.

A vote of appreciation and thanks for service rendered during the past two years as Superintendent of the Sunday School was passed and ordered to be sent to Dr. Allan, who is retiring, Prof. Sutherland having been appointed in his place.

A vote of thanks was also given the retiring Secretary-treasurer, Mr. H. P. Davidson, for excellent service rendered.

MASONS CELEBRATE.

The members of St. George's Lodge, A. F. & A. M., celebrated St. John's Day by attending divine service at St. Andrew's Church, on Sunday evening, Jan. 1st. There was a good attendance of the brethren and the whole affair reflected credit upon those who had the arrangements in charge. Good music was furnished by the choir and a very pleasing vocal solo was well rendered by Miss Doris Chambers.

Rev. G. W. Miller was the preacher. The text was Rev. 21st chapter "Behold I make all things new", and the sermon was in part as follows:

Our ancient brethren worked chiefly as operative masons in wood and stone, and in so far as their work was confined to material things their work has perished, only the spiritual survives. We are called to labour only as speculative masons; to work in life, in spirit and character. As such we are to be co-workers together with Jesus Christ in making all things new. We make all things new by giving to all things a new spirit and a new character.

We have a part in making a new world nationally by creating a new national spirit. The old spirit has been one of warfare, nation against nation, with alliances only for warfare. The strong exploited the weak. All were industrious in making implements of war until the war equipment itself became a real burden. And when at last it was put to the logical use, it strewed the earth with suffering and death. We sow the seeds of war when we harbour hatred in our hearts toward the people of another nation or speak of them with enmity.

We must catch a view and a near view, of the new world of nations at peace, a family of nations co-operating, where the strong lead the way, help the backward and support the weak. We do a part in the creation of such a world by thinking kindly and speaking in a brotherly way of the people of other nations.

We are called also to create a new Social world where the rule of life is mutual service. The old social spirit was selfish, we outran when we could and greedily snatched all we were able to. We measured life by money and worshipped mammon until not only fists, but hearts also, became hard. How much better will be that new social world where love rules and where the greatest is servant of all! It is our task to make that visionary, social world a reality.

By making Jesus Christ our Lord and master, by obeying his commands and carrying his spirit into national and social as well as into home and private life, we are rearing that spiritual structure for which Christ lived and for which He died.

"It was sweet to live in the quiet days, When the purling streams leaped down, And the mill-wheel groaned and the shady ways merged into the dreamy town. But it's glorious to live in the days of strife

When the new spade cuts the sod, To rear with toil and the passion of life, The walls of the City of God."

THE BUSINESS BEATITUDES.

(Richard A. Foley, in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

Blessed are the sincere in spirit; for theirs is the Kingdom of Progress. Blessed are the patient; for they shall conquer themselves.

Blessed are they that love their work; for their work shall requite them. Blessed are the faithful in little things; for they shall inherit the great.

Blessed are the considerate; for they shall obtain consideration. Blessed are the clean in business; for posterity shall honor and emulate them.

Blessed are the pacemakers; for the spirit of success shall serve them. Blessed are they that labor in righteousness; for every day shall bring them happiness.

GREENWICH NOTES.

Our school reopened on Monday. Miss Fisher, our teacher, who had been spending the holidays at her home in Musquodoboit, returned on Saturday evening. Our High School pupils also resumed their studies this week in Wolfville and at Kentville Academy.

Messrs. Philip and Maurice Bishop again took up their studies at Acadia College on Wednesday, Jan. 4.

Miss Rena Cox visited last week in Canning at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Rufus Eaton.

Miss Leah Forsythe, of St. John, left on the morning of Jan. 4, to resume her duties, after a ten days' visit here at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Forsythe.

Miss Esther Pearson accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Merry, spent one day last week in Kentville.

Mr. A. Burpee, of Burton, N. B., is visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. A. K. Forsythe.

It was with regret news of the serious accident that befell Mr. Vernon Griffin, of Port Williams, was received here. In falling from a load of hay, about two weeks ago, he broke his hip. He is an old man of 84 years. Mr. Griffin was an old-time resident of Greenwich, having owned a farm here.

Mrs. Branton L. Merry is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Pearson. Mr. Merry is now relieving at the D. A. R. Station at Annapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Eaton, of Brockton, Mass., who arrived in Kentville the last day of the old year, with the body of the latter's father, Mr. Allen Bishop, a former resident of New Minas, visited on New Years with Mrs. Eaton's cousins, Messrs. Leclie and George Bishop and Mrs. J. Robertson, returning to their home on Tuesday morning, Jan. 3rd. Mr. Bishop was laid to rest in the family lot at The Oaks.

The news of the death of Mr. D. B. Shaw, Wolfville, on Monday morning, was sorrowfully received here. Greenwich was Mr. Shaw's home for a good many years, he having owned and conducted a large tannery business in "The Hollow", his family being raised in the house now owned by Mr. Harold Cleveland. Mr. Shaw also built the nice house across the hollow on his farm, where he resided for a few years before selling and moving to Wolfville. The latter place is now owned by Mr. Edward Hennigar. Mr. Shaw was highly respected as a neighbour and friend, and much sympathy is extended to the widow and family.

A number of our boys and girls enjoyed tea and the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burpee Bishop, on Monday, the party being given by Mrs. Andrew for her sons, John and Aleck. "A great time," was the verdict of all.

A SECOND-HAND ONE.

I've fussed at it and worked at it; I've grabbed the crank and jerked at it; I've backed it up and jacked it up; I've often well nigh lacked it up; I've bullied it and worried it; And humored it and curried it; Day after day in vain I've worked; I cannot find a blasted thing That's wrong with that dodgasted thing. It seems to have no fault but one— No power on earth 'can make it run. I've sounded it and pounded it; These many weeks I've hounded it; I've probed its inward mystery; I've sought and learned its history— A worthy one, as told to me, Until the thing was sold to me, Then viciously and arrantly It up and died, apparently; Though sometimes there's a flickering Of life, which sounds like snickering. 'Tis plain it doesn't need repairs. The thing that flivver needs is prayers! —Walter G. Doty.

LORD BYNG TURNED OFF FIRST OF NRW NICKELS

His Excellency the Governor General, accompanied by Lady Byng, the Ladies Mary and Elizabeth Byng and members of his Excellency's staff, paid a visit to the Canadian branch of the Royal Mint last week on the occasion of the minting of the first of the new Canadian "nickels". The Vice Regal party was received by Mr. A. H. W. Cleave, Deputy Master of the Mint, and shown the different processes of making coinage, Lord Byng finally operating the press which made the first two of the new nickels or five cent pieces which were afterwards presented to His Excellency and Lady Byng in plush cases as a souvenir of the occasion.

Lord Byng and party seemed intensely interested in the whole process. Casually lying on a truck for their inspection when they entered were thirty-one bricks of pure gold, weighing about forty pounds each, and representing a total value of about $310,000. After admiring and testing the weight of these, they saw the smelting, stamping of the blanks, making and testing of the coins, and automatic weighing machines, in which they were greatly interested.

After inspecting the mint His Excellency reviewed the veterans in the plant, who were drawn up to receive him, and he and Lady Byng chatted a while with each, showing evident interest in several with a distinguished record. The mint sent 32 out of 70 employees to the war, (including one who was at Zeebrugge), three being killed.

The new coinage is made of pure Canadian nickel and while it is the same general dimensions as the United States nickel, the latter contains only 25 per cent nickel, the balance being copper. It is .835 inch in diameter, seventy grains in weight, having on the obverse His Majesty's crowned effigy, consisting of head and bust wearing the royal robes and looking to the left with the inscription "Georgius V. Dei Gra, Rex Et Ind, Im", and on the reverse in centre the figure 5 with the word "Five" on the left and "cents" on the right and bearing the word "Canada" above and two Maple Leaves over the date of issue below.

ADVERTISEMENTS AND NEWS MATTER

All newspaper publishers experience the same trouble as a Western editor so deftly handles in the following editorial:

Our rural correspondents are constantly being asked to insert notices of an advertising nature in their news notes, and for various reasons they have found it difficult to refuse, with the result that their matter usually contains advertisements which, if handled as separately as the Courier office, would be charged for. We have decided that this must come to an end, and in future any such notices will be published in the "Announcements" column only, at 15 cents per line.

Many people seem quite unable to distinguish between news matter and advertisements, and they seem to consider that an announcement of a coming event is news; it is not, it is an advertisement pure and simple. On the other hand, a report of an event that has taken place is news.

Others labour under the belief that the fact of being subscribers gives them privileges of free advertising, but they probably do not realize that the subscriptions barely pay for the paper and ink and that if it were not for the advertisements there would be no Courier.

Our correspondents have been placed under certain responsibility in the past as to the acceptance of notices but we are advising them that we are now relieving them of such and that only strictly news matter will be published in their notes in future.

READING THE BIBLE.

At Harvard the Bible and Shakespeare have been made the subjects of compulsory study, the faculty having recognized that in these times there exists a tremendous popular ignorance of the Good Book. In spite of its constantly increasing sale, in spite of the good work of the Gideons, the Pocket New Testament League, and kindred organizations, the average man has only a vicarious knowledge of the contents of the Bible, which he mistakenly associates with the repressive gloom of the Puritan Sabbath. Too few realize that it is the finest book in the world to read, as well as the one Book to revere.

Familiarity with the text is of inestimable help to all who are called upon to display occasionally their ability in the use of language, whether in spoken or written form. In it will be found a text for every sermon, an adornment for every tale, a striking sentence for every speech, a point for every argument. It is an inexhaustible mine for every public man; Lloyd George seldom makes an important address without some apt Biblical allusion, which is more or less familiar to his hearers—a distinct advantage over a quotation from the classics, which always smacks of pedantry, and is quite likely to be over the heads of the audience.

In these days our public men might do worse than delve in the literary treasure of the Great Work. They will find much to help them impress the multitude and, if their minds are not too set on worldly things, who knows? They may also find inspiration to higher ideals in the service of the state. —Vancouver World.

AS WE FORGIVE.

By Evelyn Orchard.

Roxford slid rebelliously to his knees. His lips moved, repeating after the Rector the familiar sentences of the Lord's Prayer. But in the middle he came to a dead stop. Millie noticed it, though she was devoutly kneeling and repeating herself. He murmured "Forgive us our trespasses," but the next words seemed to block the rest of the petition—"as we forgive them that trespass against us."

Millie knew exactly what was in his mind. She wanted desperately to slide her hand along and grip his fingers encouragingly. But somehow she dared not. Only she slipped in between her own petitions another one which winged its way right up through the stars, growing rather dim, but still cheerful in a morning sky.

They did not often come to early Communion together, these two and it was a rare letter day in Millie's life, because it was the first time Will had offered to come since his quarrel with Anthony Blake.

It was rather a silly quarrel, arising in the first instance, as so many upheavals do, out of the merest trifle.

Most quarrels, traced to their source, are of this order, and any court of sane, well-balanced men would pause to marvel before judgment over the mysterious littleness mingled with the greatness of human nature. What the Judge of all the earth must think of the creatures He has endowed with heroic qualities fills one with a strange wonder.

The Roxfords and the Blakes were near neighbours, and had once been intimate. The men had travelled by the same train from Buckingham, by way of High Wycombe, every morning for years. They were in the same line of business, but not in the same firm. The quarrel arose because Blake had made use of a bit of private information which Roxford in an unguarded moment had suffered to pass his lips. According to Roxford, he had made illegitimate use of it to bring about what is called a business coup, involving large profits, and when successful, filling less astute, far-seeing men with envy and regret. The bit of information was regarding a firm known to them both which was on the eve of dissolution, and which had stocks and liabilities which, properly handled, would bring much grieve to the mill of their successors.

Blake had said the time was not yet, and that great caution had to be exercised, and Blake had gone straight away and created the time for which Roxford's firm was waiting.

It was not playing the game, of course, and there had been a stormy scene, nearly amounting to blows, between the two men, then a complete break between the families. It was very awkward, because they had built houses on the edge of the same common to be near one another, and the women had no quarrel. Millie, like the good dutiful wife she was, had obeyed Roxford's order that she was to cease acquaintance with Mrs. Blake forthwith. But the children provided a little alleyway for commerce of a remote but not unkindly sort. Even Roxford admitted that they could not poison the minds of the young generation with their quarrel, though he announced his intention of telling both his sons the story as soon as they were of an age to understand it.

That had happened two years ago. It did not appease Roxford's wrath though undoubtedly it gave him a severe satisfaction, to hear that the coup Blake had brought off behind his back had turned out rather less successfully than had been anticipated, and that, further, it had involved them in a lawsuit which ate up most of the profits.

But still he never spoke to Blake. They passed one another at High Wycombe platform every morning as if they had been utter strangers. Men who knew it forbore to put them in circumstances where they had to meet, and on the whole the sympathy was with Roxford.

What enraged Roxford most was that Blake held office in the pretty little church on the Common which had served as an additional bond between them. He became much slacker in his attendance after the quarrel, because Blake made no difference in his. This was the first time he had offered to accompany Millie to early Communion, and by the way he hesitated on the prayer, she understood that his heart was in a queer medley. She respected his sincerity, and she loved him beyond everything. When they came out the dawn was just breaking. It was the first Sunday in Advent, and the waiting world was getting ready to enthroned once more the Christ Child that had saved mankind.

"Oh Billie," she said, with a little strangled breath that was almost a sob. "You can't think how I loved being there to-day with you! Do you know it is nine months since we were there together."

"Is it though?" said Roxford. "Well, I can't pretend, Millie; I may be on the wrong tack in some directions, but I'm sincere anyway, which is more than some are. Smug hypocrites I call them, nothing else."

Millie's fingers usually like thistle-down tightened on his arm.

"Don't Billie, it hurts this morning somehow. Won't you—won't you get rid of what Rose-red calls the camelous hump to-day, and be like you were?"

"There isn't anything the matter with me, dear. Try your counsel and reproof on the right people."

"Oh but, oh but, though you say that,

Will, you don't feel it—at least not every bit of it. I couldn't help seeing, or rather hearing, when you stopped at 'As we forgive.' You know it isn't any use praying all the rest if we leave that out."

"Then I shan't go again. I'm only religious according to my lights. If it happens to be a farthing dip at the moment you know who put out the candle—not me!"

"Will, I felt so queer this morning there in the half light. It seemed as if Little Son had come down from where he is, and was standing there right by the altar rails, holding out his hands and saying, 'Daddy come!'"

The Roxfords had lost their eldest son, a brilliant and promising boy, and Roxford's shoulders heaved.

"It's taking an unfair advantage, Millie—I can't talk about it, and I won't. There was something in his voice which forbade further speech on her part. Her little effort had failed, as so many other efforts had failed. But she would still hold on, hoping and praying and waiting, as the faithful women do all over the world buttressing its crazy posts and heading them for the stars.

Roxford did not go any more to church that day. He left Millie to take the children, and after they were off, set out accompanied by Rags, a mongrel of sorts, as precious to the Roxford household as any of its human units. Rags "belonged", and was proud and glad to belong. As to his joy at being taken for a walk by his adored master on a lovely winter morning when the hoar frost was glittering on the gorse bushes, that, as the novelists say, beggars description.

Millie's words had sunk deep, and he was turning them over and over in his mind, making a kind of examination of himself as it were, when suddenly climbing out of a rather steep gully in the Common, he came face to face with Blake on the further plateau.

His face flushed angrily, he stared a full minute stonily, without the slightest sign of recognition and turned in a slanting direction. But he was pursued, not by Blake, who had loathed the encounter quite as much as he did, but by a vision at the altar rails of his dear lad with the face of the morning, his beseeching grey eyes so like his mother's bidding him come. Come whither? Why to the foot of the Cross! Where else? There is no other resting place at the long last for the souls to whom the Lord God has given the gift of immortality.

Rags was amazed to see his master turn suddenly, and begin to walk back very rapidly. His ears drooped a little, lest this should mean that the promised ramble was to be curtailed. For they were not yet long out from the pretty house on the Common's edge, where Rags had a home in which his heart found complete happiness.

He stood slightly wistful a moment, and watched; then, when his master did not take the homeward path, but another which properly pursued would take them farther afield, and bounded forward. Roxford took no notice. His attention was fixed on a lanky figure slightly stooped at the shoulders pursuing the same path several hundred yards ahead. Roxford, veering towards middle age, was acquiring to his own disgust and Millie's amused resignation, the waist line of middle age. So when he put on a spurt, he was slightly breathless by the time he came up with Blake, who turned in evident astonishment, not in the least knowing what to do.

Two Englishmen in an impasse like that present a singular picture of resignation mingled with despair. They loathe so much the display of any kind of feeling, excepting anger, which bubbles like froth to the surface, and frequently means nothing. Obviously Roxford had to take the initiative, and he received no assistance from Blake.

"Look here, Blake," he said, in short staccato accents. "This sort of thing can't go on. It's beastly silly, and—and—well I can't stick it any longer. I'm sorry I've kept it up so long, and we'll, we'll, hang it all, let's wipe the slate and shake hands."

Blake looked profoundly surprised, his shoulders began to heave, he could not speak. And that made the situation worse, in fact it became just intolerable.

Their hands met, however, and certain kinds of handgrips can convey a good deal.

"If you're going Yardley way, and my cur is heading for it, we may as well go together. Haven't you a dog now? What's become of the spaniel?"

"Died of distemper last year. Got the blight—I expect she is the same as the rest of us. Fact is, Roxford, nothing's gone right with us since it happened. It was a bad deal for me and mine. You got the best of it, after all. But I'm sorry, I wanted to write, and Enid has never left off urging me, but well, you know how hard that sort of thing is on a chap. I think it's jolly decent of you to do this, but I rather wish I'd done it myself, you see it only makes my debt the deeper."

"Oh, stow it, this had nothing to do with me. It was Millie did it, she and no other. It was Millie's hand you shook a minute ago. Women are the very dickens, they never let off a chap. How are they all at your house? Tell me everything that has happened in the interval."

The y did not talk any business, they talked only of the precious things of life, the things of which draw men and women together, and provide the meeting ground for the true commerce, which brings all men sooner or later to the Home in which no evil thing, nor all the massed forces of darkness, can come.

Returning from church with her little brood behind her, Millie saw the two men in the distance, walking together. The children wondered why she gave a little gasp, and stood still. Then she hurried into the house. She had not finished removing her things in her own room when Roxford came lumbering up the stairs.

He put a somewhat shamed face round the door.

"I've seen Blake, Millie, and he and Enid are coming round to-night after supper. We've cleared it up, so now you'll not have to go on, world without end."

He would have run off with that, but she caught him and drew him into the room. Then she put her arms round him and held him close, and her tears were on his cheek. There might have been some of his there too. Nobody could be sure.

"Oh darling," whispered her crooning voice. "I'm so happy, I can't hear myself hardly. And Alan will be here to-night looking on, and just think next Sunday you'll be able to say 'As we forgive.' Doesn't it make you happier, Will?"

"I suppose so," he said, then added handsomely. "Why, of course, I've played a fool's game, and I just wonder you've put up with it so long."

Millie kissed and parted him, and went down to dinner with a face so sunshiny that the children looked at her in secret wonder. Her soul had winged its way to the better country, where there was rejoicing because another wanderer had come home.

SCIENTIFIC PROOF.

LEAD PENCILS

Where do all the lead pencils come from and where do they go? Although almost everybody has one, many folks never buy one, but even so more than 750,000,000 are manufactured for use in the United States every year, requiring many thousands of cords of wood.

But woods suitable for lead pencils are becoming scarcer and many manufacturers are turning to paper. Red cedar and red juniper, according to the American Forestry Association, are the woods chiefly used in making lead pencils.

A hunt is on for other kinds of wood that will take the place of these. In East Africa a kind of cedar has been found with which experiments are being made.

The production in the United States is about 80,000 cases of pencil slats per year. For each case 100 gross of pencils is made. This results in about 1,000,000,000 pencil slats per year. From each case 100 gross of pencils is made. This results in about 1,000,000,000 pencils of American grown cedar.

Since one fourth of this number is sent to foreign countries that leaves 750,000,000 pencils for the home market, which means an average of seven pencils per person, figuring on the last census.

As far back as history goes man has tried to make things to mark with and to set down his thoughts. The Arctics and the Pharaohs had crude marking devices. As early as 1750 Kalm, a Swedish naturalist, made experiments with American cedar.

In 1812 William Munro made 500 pencils at Concord and sold them in Boston, but the war stopped his plans. In 1861 Eberhard Faber began making pencils on a large scale in the United States.

The graphite which makes the mark is, of course, the important part in the manufacture of the pencil. Ceylon has furnished much of the graphite used in America. Graphite is also found in Madagascar and in Mexico.

Czechoslovakia contains deposits of both the amorphous and crystalline graphite. In the United States the chief deposits are in Alabama, New York and Pennsylvania.

One-half the trouble in every community, comes from the fact that so many people have not the capacity to keep their mouths shut. We have two ears but only one tongue which is suggestive of the fact that we should hear more than we tell. By the power of a secret divulged families, churches, neighbourhoods and even nations fly apart. By the power of a secret kept, great charities, reformatory movements and Christian enterprises may be advanced.

Editorial Notes

THE ACADIAN is very glad to be able to present to its readers this week an interesting and comprehensive article on the Irish situation from the pen of our esteemed townsman, Rev. A. Cohoon, D. D. The article will be found well worthy of attention dealing as it does with the whole question from its origin. No other subject is of such wide interest at the present day and Dr. Cohoon has done THE ACADIAN a great favor in enabling it to place such a complete history before its readers.

In the old days during a winter such as this there might be seen streams of teams laden with "marsh-mud" wending their way from the creek-bottoms to the farms and orchards of the vicinity. Much of the present fertility of these lands is doubtless due to the treatment of those by-gone days. Would it not be worth while, in these latter times, when our land in common with the wide world needs to conserve every resource and be prepared to do its best, to consider the result that might come from a return to this practice of other days?

Citizens on receiving their water bills for the first half of 1922 are naturally somewhat surprised to find an unexpected increase in the rate. While the increase is not very great—amounting in the case of an ordinary residence one dollar for the full year—it naturally causes some comment since in the opinion of many citizens the rates were already higher than was really necessary. It is said that the increase is explained as the action of the Commission on Public Utilities which has ordered that such an advance should be made. The arbitrary findings of this organization are generally difficult to account for and the present instance is no exception to the rule. If the people who paid for the water system and are responsible for its maintenance might be allowed to have some voice as to the regulations governing it, we would suggest that the whole matter of rates might be very profitably taken up and discussed at a public meeting called for the purpose.

Your attention is called to the change in the advertisements in this issue and also to the new ones. The merchants of our community appreciate your trade and take this means of telling you of any bargains they may have to offer and also to announce the arrival of new goods which are placed at your disposal and inspection. By closely watching the columns of this paper you will learn the names of our business men who invite you to deal with them and you can rest assured that they will treat you right. A merchant who does not care enough for your trade to ask you to visit his store and who does not inform you of the many bargains he may have to offer is hardly worth your patronage. The progressive merchant will always let his customers know of the arrival of new goods at once, and the way for our merchants to do this is through the columns of this paper which goes into almost every home in the district.

THE VICTORIAN ORDER OF NURSES FOR CANADA, WOLFVILLE BRANCH.

We do not need to point out to the intelligent townspeople of Wolfville, the advantages of having a nurse of the Victorian Order in our midst. The fact that from the day of her arrival on Nov. 11, to Dec. 31, Miss Harry had 21 nursing cases, of which 11 were medical and 7 surgical cases, and that she assisted at 5 operations, made 31 child-welfare visits, 39 social-service visits and 17 school visits, is proof enough that Wolfville has taken a long step forward in the direction of public health and human welfare, in securing her services.

The support of the nurse rests upon the town. It is estimated that about $1500.00 will be needed for the purpose. Of this amount, about $300.00 will come in from nurse's fees. The sum of $220.00 has already been donated by the I. O. D. E. and four individual contributors.

A house-to-house canvas of the town for funds, as announced from the pulpits recently, will be made on Monday, January 16, when we look for a generous response from the people. The splendid spirit in which the women have responded to the call to do the collecting—a most distasteful task—gives us faith in the successful issue of the campaign.

If every household gives a fair amount, a dollar or two, and more if possible, no further call for money will be necessary in 1922 for the nurse.

Mr. Hugh Calkin has kindly offered his store as a central place for receiving and storing supplies that are contributed for the Lending Cupboard of the V. O. N. so instead of leaving things at Mrs. Prescott's, as stated in the last ACADIAN, kindly leave them at the lower drug store.

Sec'y-treasurer.

A NOVA SCOTIA POET

The Editor of THE ACADIAN,

Sir:—Yesterday two ladies came to my office with the news that we might soon expect a visit from Robert Norwood, that we might see him and hear him read his own inimitable poems. It was suggested that I write this letter so that the people of our town might have their thoughts directed towards this noble poet, and thus be prepared to do him honor when he comes. A few days before, President Cutten had brought to my desk one of Dr. J. D. Logan's rich donations, and among these books, pamphlets and manuscripts was an author's copy of "Bill Boram." Do the people of Wolfville know Robert Norwood and do they know "Bill Boram"? Robert Norwood is an Anglican clergyman, now resident in Philadelphia, who was born and educated in Nova Scotia. He confesses to a youth of hardship and meagre opportunity; to me his luxury of thought and imagination invests it with a regal charm. At Kings College he imbibed a scholarly ideal all too rare among a people who are ready to lower the status of a university degree sometimes because so many clamor for it as a quick road to social and financial success. I could not read Mr. Norwood's poetry without recognizing "him" as a classicist, and yet I could easily call him the avatar of all that is human in our various social castes. In "Bill Boram" he brings home to me what an able writer has aptly termed "the Nova Scotianess of Nova Scotia". Bill was a blasphemous, drinking, unclean, great-hearted old captain of the fishing schooner "Lottie S." bringing home every year from the Grand Banks of Newfoundland his splendid catch. Mr. Norwood has named that home "The Cove", and it might be any one of the various fishing villages along our coast. Sordid enough the life there would seem to the casual visitor, but the poet brings us the picture grand with an epic strength. I always fear lest I be too easily pleased with Canadian poetry, and especially with Nova Scotian poetry, and thus stultify my literary standards in the interests of my patriotism, but as I read "Bill Boram" my fear is that I fail adequately to praise the free, ringing, Homeric lines.

Acadia Library contains several other volumes of verse by Mr. Norwood, notably two dramas, and many items of personal interest concerning the poet. We propose to show every book we have of his, with everything concerning his work that we can gather, critical and otherwise, next Sunday afternoon, Jan. 15, at four o'clock. We cordially invite the public to the Reading Room of the Library.

MARY KINLEY INGRAM,
Librarian.

WOLFVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOL

During the month of Dec. 1921 Miss Haydon County Nurse assisted by Miss Harry, V. O. N., examined children from Grades 1-8.

Out of 304 children seen 100 were found with enlarged tonsils of varying degrees. 50 of these children were requiring immediate treatment. The other 50 received notices of an advisory nature requiring supervision only.

54 children were found suffering from eye defects, eye strain, astigmatism, far sight, etc., enough to warrant the attention of an optician.

Parents who received notices that their children were suffering from greatly enlarged tonsils should at once seek medical advice. Wolfville has the co-operation of the medical and dental staffs of the town. What is more important is the whole-hearted support and co-operation of the parents, to help us in our work of making the best of the little ones, to help them in later life.

TELEPHONE SERVICE APPRECIATED

To the Editor of THE ACADIAN,
Dear Sir:—In your last issue of THE ACADIAN I was somewhat surprised to note an unfavorable criticism in regard to our local telephone service. This seems to me quite uncalled for and to be out of keeping with the spirit of goodwill and tolerance which I find expressed so freely elsewhere in the issue.

Probably few persons in town have occasion to use the telephone, particularly the long distance service more than myself, and as we all know it is this latter phase of the service that calls for the most attention, patience and intelligence on the part of the operator. In justice to the local staff permit me to say that I never fail to receive most efficient and courteous service from them at all hours of the day and night. It is my experience that our service here compares most favorably with that of any other town in the Maritime Provinces.

There is to be a meeting in the Town Hall on Friday evening of this week at eight o'clock to discuss the starting of a night school. The recent community survey showed that a good number of young people were interested in the project. It is hoped that all those who would like to attend such a school will be present on Friday evening. If the attendance at the meeting warrants the making of plans for the immediate future the subjects to be taught and the nights on which the school should be open will be decided upon. No age limits have been suggested but it is expected that students would probably be between the ages of fifteen and thirty. The teachers would be Seniors from the University.

"S. O. S."

To our fellow citizens: On July 15th of last year we went 'over the top' for the alteration of the Memorial Monument, calling upon the citizens of Wolfville to 'stand to' in 'support', which they have loyally done, we started out into 'No Man's Land' in the rush towards our 'objective'. Our advance was supported by a great majority of our fellow citizens but we have met various obstacles, snipers, legality mines, council-sanction entanglements and various other impediments to progress. We even encountered a certain amount of gas, wholly unexpected, at the outset but which very noticeably lessened after December 6th.

With an objective of 2100 yards we have reduced the distance by some 2000 and have therefore about 100 yards yet to go. If we could press on for an extra 100 yards our position might be considerably strengthened.

We have now reached the line of most resistance, have successfully passed the pill-boxes, Dominion Election and Christmas, and are now held up by concrete trenches or indifference, dissipation of public interest and even, at some points, of boredom.

At this point we are sending up our S. O. S. and calling on our 'reserves' in the 'support trenches' for a final burst of enthusiastic backing. If the 'shock troops' fail and are forced to retreat the situation will be desperate!

We are now within a very short distance of success, it is almost within our grasp, and we feel that it would be deplorable to allow all our efforts to end in defeat at this advanced stage.

We are ready and anxious to do our utmost—we are doing it—will you give us your full support in this, we hope, final attack.

Yours Very Sincerely, R. B. BLAUVELDT

For G. W. V. A. Memorial Monument Committee.

What Income Tax Inspector Edwards of Halifax has to say on an interesting farm problem:

"I have carefully examined the SIMPLEX FARM RECORD which you were good enough to show me, and have no hesitation in stating that it is an excellent work, and calculated to be of the greatest service, both to the farming community and to those who have to examine and check agricultural Income Tax Returns.

Facilities for the necessary information to correctly complete the latter are apparently ample and can be easily filled in. Definite figures can thus be furnished to the Government and the farmers obligations, if any, under the Income Tax Act, can therefore be quickly and accurately ascertained.

LIBERALS WILL NOT OPPOSE MR. MEIGHEN.

PRESCOTT, Ont., January 10—at a meeting of the Liberal executive for Grenville County, it was decided not to place a candidate in the field to oppose Hon. Arthur Meighen at the coming Dominion by-election. It is said to be likely, however, that the U. F. O. will select a candidate to oppose the Opposition leader.

Death's Harvest

DAVID BRAINARD SHAW

Wolfville lost one of its best known and most highly esteemed citizens on Monday of this week, when the death of David Brainard Shaw took place after an illness of some weeks.

Mr. Shaw came to Wolfville fifty-four years ago when a boy of 19, to work in the old shoe factory and has since been a continual resident in this vicinity. His sterling qualities and genial manner won him many friends and his passing is deeply mourned.

Early in life Mr. Shaw carried on a successful shoe-making business here but many years ago he purchased the old Johnson Tannery and removed to Greenwich where he carried on a successful business. A few years ago he undertook farming, in which he was also successful until failing health compelled him to discontinue and, selling his farm, he came back to town and purchased a property on Locust Avenue where he has since resided.

For years back his health has been far from good and during the past summer, while on a visit to his daughter, at Dartmouth, he was taken seriously ill. While he has since been able to be about at times, his health has continued to fail until the end came on Monday morning.

Mr. Shaw was a good citizen, a consistent Christian gentleman and a loyal friend. He was one of the earliest members of the little Presbyterian church, which he has ever given a generous and faithful support.

He is survived by a devoted wife, three sons and four daughters. The sons are John and William, of Norwood, Mass., and Claude, of Calgary, and the daughters are Jessie (Mrs. Champlin, of Southbridge, Mass.), Ethel (Mrs. Vaughan, of Calgary, Margaret (Mrs. Green) of Dartmouth, and Gladys (Mrs. MacKenzie) at home. Two sons, Ernest, the eldest, and Ross, named for the first minister of the church he held so dear, died in early life.

The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon from St. Andrew's church, of which the deceased was an active member and many years Elder. There was a large attendance of neighbours and friends come to pay their last tribute of respect to one held in high regard. The service was conducted by Rev. G. W. Miller, who paid a fitting eulogy to the life and service of the departed and gave a brief but fitting address from Ps. 21:3, "Thou preventest him with the blessings of goodness; thou settest a crown of pure gold on his head."

The music included a vocal quartette "Saved by grace", sung by Messrs. Mason, Rand, Angus and Murphy, and a solo "The Christmas Goodnight," by Mr. A. J. Mason.

The members of Orpheus Lodge, I. O. O. F., of which society the deceased was a Charter member, attended in a body and conducted the service at the grave. The interment was in Willow Bank.

To the sorrowing friends and family THE ACADIAN tenders sincere sympathy.

MRS. E. C. JOHNSON.

A peculiarly sad event was the death of Mrs. E. C. Johnson, which took place at 10 o'clock last Saturday morning, at her late home, Main Street, after a week's illness, of pneumonia.

The deceased was before her marriage, Miss May Elder, only daughter of the late James Elder, of this place. She was married to Mr. Johnson thirty-five years ago, and has spent all her life in Wolfville where she was held in high esteem.

Besides the sorrowing husband, she is survived by a family of five sons and five daughters, all of whom, with the exception of the eldest son, were with her at the end. The daughters are: Evelyn (Mrs. Everett), Ada, Margaret, Bernice and Clair, and the sons Harold, in Montreal, William, Walter, Donald and Reginald.

The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon from the Methodist church, and was very largely attended.

Rev. Douglas Hemmson, the pastor, conducted the service, which was beautiful in its simplicity and included the singing of the hymns "Peace, perfect peace," and "Abide with me", reading of appropriate passages of Scripture and a sympathetic prayer and benediction.

The interment was in Willow Bank cemetery, four sons of the deceased acting as pallbearers.

THE ACADIAN tenders sincere sympathy to the bereaved family called upon to suffer such an irreplaceable loss.

What is the Simplex Farm Record?

Just the simplest easiest and most correct means ever devised (and that by a farmer, who knew what was wanted) of keeping a correct account of all farm transactions to help the farmer make success of his business. It answers every question on his Income Tax Report, saving him much anxiety and expense. With his Simplex Farm Record he makes out his Government Tax report easily himself. He can refer to it continually for information he could never carry in his head and know just when he is making money or losing it.

NOT KEEPING PROPER RECORDS FREQUENTLY SPELLS FAILURE. The record will eventually contain all reliable information from the highest authorities on every farm question, that otherwise would cost dollars to obtain.

The Simplex Farm Record is endorsed and recommended by all Agricultural authorities on account of its simplicity, accuracy and necessity and over one hundred thousand have been placed on order in a few months time.

Every farmer should have one, the cost is so small he cannot afford to be without it. He will save it a hundred times over. 557 Yonge St., Toronto, Ont., is the Eastern Head Office of the Simplex Company.

Mr. F. E. Peck, of Wolfville has been selected as manager for the Western half of Nova Scotia on account of his experience as county agricultural agent in the United States and his knowledge of farmers problems and need of adequate system of accounting.

HOME BUILDING.

A Few Practical and Helpful Suggestions for Prospective Builders.

Ancient buildings, enduring monuments to the genius of civilizations long past, have evoked the veneration and admiration of thinking men of all races and countries. Much as we admire and might wish to emulate, the day is gone in which cheap labour could be lavishly employed to interpret the dreams of the great architects. In our newer countries the necessary conditions have never prevailed. The longing for homes pleasing to the eye, inherent in our race, for something more than a mere box with a lid on, survives the rough and tumble of early pioneering days. Many are watching with sympathy and interest, the efforts of our architects and artisans to combine beauty with utility, durability with economy, in the building of our homes.

The timber shingles, one of the main features of our Canadian homes and used to produce pleasing architectural effects on many historic buildings in older countries, have exacted their toll of human life in many a disastrous fire. Timber, easily wrought and easily procured from Nature's seemingly boundless store, has been man's friend and hand maid, but the tendency to congregate in towns has made the lavish use of timber in building construction a menace to the whole community. Various causes have combined in recent years to produce great changes, both in the design and in the materials of which our homes are built.

City Fathers throughout our country, have been impelled to make enactments, which seemingly costly and onerous, are fully justified in the interests of all, the effects of these restrictions being reflected in a very practical way, when we contemplate our greater security and comfort and the lessened charges for our fire risks.

Science, engineering skill, man's ingenious inventions, have provided us with many substitutes, or shall we say improvements, in the materials of which our homes may be constructed. Ply wood, giving strength with lightness; asbestos combined with cements to give us slabs and shingles, and thermo insulating materials; wood pulp, converted into boards and paneling for interior decoration; expanded metals as a base for our plasters and cements; steel ceilings of intricate and artistic design; bitumen from our oilfields, converted into semi fireproof materials for our roofs, and in its more plastic state, to provide the many forms of waterproofing materials. These and many other innovations are at the disposal of the modern home builder.

Probably one of the greatest strides made in modern construction methods has been in the application of concrete. Concrete with concealed steel skeletons, and known variously as Ferro-concrete, armoured concrete, reinforced concrete, is of the greatest importance to engineers and builders. Aqueducts of large size, columns, beams, dams, bridges, piers, lofty and spreading structures of all kinds, are quickly and cheaply constructed of this enduring material. The brains of many of our leading scientists and engineers, have been concentrated upon the problems involved and many ingenious contrivances have been granted the protection of our patent laws.

Among the many successes in this field of engineering, perhaps the most interesting to the home maker, is the application of concrete construction in modern houses. The demand for homes, unfilled during the late world upheaval, and the subsequent economic stress, gave impetus to the search for building methods at once durable and cheap. Invention, the child of necessity, has provided us with the method. The prosperity vouchsafed our province, with its abundant harvests, has provided us with the means of constructing homes of a substantial and enduring character.

Endowed by nature with a profusion of sites for ideal homes; with a healthful, invigorating climate; with a growing civic spirit; our educational facilities and our convenient geographical position; should combine to place Wolfville first on the map of Nova Scotia as a centre for tourists and the most charming and prosperous residential township.

WINTER EGGS—HOW TO GET THEM.

New laid eggs may be as scarce this winter as usual, and if extra attention is not paid to getting the laying stock into condition and housed early, the supply of eggs may be even less.

Though it is now too late to begin to prepare for early winter eggs, it is high time to make the best of what we may have. The beginning was made last spring when the pullets were hatched, for only the early pullets can be depended on to give eggs during November and December. The hens and the late pullets as a rule, will not lay many eggs until the end of January and February. It is, therefore, from the well-matured pullets that the early high-priced eggs may be expected. There are a few things that, if not already attended to, should be done without delay. These may be summed up as follows:

1. Keep no stock that will be non-producing.—Kill off the old hens that will not lay until late spring. Market the immature pullets and all surplus cockerels. Give the rest of the pullets every opportunity to develop and to get in laying condition before winter sets in.

2. Have the winter quarters comfortable, and give plenty of fresh air without draughts.—The pullets should have gone into their winter houses before November 1, and if they did not, get them in as soon as possible. The unnecessary handling or changing of pullets from one place to another, just when they are about to lay, is disastrous, and in some cases will retard laying for several weeks. Have the houses clean, disinfected and white-washed. See that the glass is free from dirt and cobwebs, and the cotton free from dust, and mended, and if too far gone, replace it.

3. Do not feed sparingly, but judiciously, it does not pay to stint the layers.—Feed them grain in a litter on the floor and, as the weather gets colder increase the quantity of litter. In addition to the grain, see that they have either a hopper, with dry mash constantly before them, or, if preferred, give it in the shape of a moist mash once a day.

Be sure the stock is right; give good wholesome feed in sufficient quantities; provide bright and well ventilated houses, and see that everything is kept clean and sanitary. By this means, with the addition of up-to-date selling methods, wastage will be reduced to a minimum, and winter egg production should leave a good margin of profit.

CANADA'S POPULATION.

Total for six Provinces 4,545,275—Nova Scotia will lose Three Members Next Parliament.

Ottawa, Jan. 9.—Census total for six of the nine provinces have been compiled, leaving totals for British Columbia, Ontario, Saskatchewan and the Yukon and Northwest Territories still to come. For the six provinces already totalled, the population reaches 4,545,275. Assuming that the remaining provinces will total in the neighborhood of four millions—in the last census their combined population was rather less than 3,400,000—last year's census will give a population for the Dominion of about eight and a half millions. The total population as shown in the 1911 census was 7,206,357.

Today's figures for Quebec are of particular importance as indicating the unit of representation in the next (15th) Parliament. This unit is represented by dividing Quebec's total population by 65, the fixed number of members which Quebec is entitled to send to the House of Commons. Each of the other provinces is assigned such a number of members as is equal to the result reached when its population has been divided by the unit of representation. To this rule there is one exception. By an amendment to the B. N. A. Act passed in 1915, it was provided that a province should always be entitled to a number of members in the House of Commons not less than the number of senators representing such province. As a consequence the representation of Prince Edward Island has remained at four members.

Following the last census, the unit of representation was 32,000. Today's Quebec figures, with their increase in Quebec population bring the unit of representation to 36,000. On that basis the Maritime Provinces will, following the next redistribution, lose three members. Manitoba will gain one; Alberta will gain four. The representation of the six provinces will be: Quebec, 65 (no change); Nova Scotia, 14, a decrease of two; New Brunswick, 10, a decrease of one; Prince Edward Island, four (no change); Manitoba, 16, an increase of one; Alberta, 16, an increase of four.

As the totals of the remaining provinces have not yet been computed, their representation in the next parliament cannot be accurately calculated.

A NICKEL FOR THE LORD

Yesterday he wore a rose on the lapel of his coat, and when the plate was passed he gave a nickel to the Lord. He had several bills in his pocket, and sundry change, perhaps a dollar's worth, but he hunted about, and finding this poor little nickel, he laid it on the plate to aid the church militant in its fight against the world, the flesh, and the devil. His silk hat was beneath the seat, and his gloves and cane were beside it, and the nickel was on the plate—a whole nickel.

On Saturday afternoon he had a gin rummy at the Queen's and his friend had had a fancy drink, while the cash register stamped twenty-five cents on the slip the boy presented him. Peeling off a bill he handed it to the lad and gave him a nickel tip when he brought back the change.

A nickel for the Lord and a nickel for the waiter! And the man had his shoes polished on Saturday afternoon, and handed out a dime without a murmur. He had a shave, and paid fifteen cents with equal alacrity. He took a box of candies home to his wife, and paid forty cents for them, and the box was tied with a dainty ribbon. Yes, and he also gave a nickel to the Lord.

Who is the Lord? Why, the man worships him as Creator of the universe, the one put the stars in order, and by whose immutable decree the heavens stand. Yes, he does, and he dropped a nickel in to support the church militant!

And what is the church militant? The church militant is the church that represents upon earth the church triumph of the Great God the man gave the nickel to.

And the man knew he was but an atom in space, and he knew that the Almighty was without limitations, and knowing this he put his hand in his pocket and picked out a nickel and gave it to the Lord.

And the Lord, being gracious and slow to anger, and knowing our frame, did not slay the man for the meanness of his offering, but gives him this day his daily bread.

But the nickel was ashamed if the man wasn't. The nickel hid beneath a quarter that was given by a woman who washes for a living.—Charles F. Raymond, in Toronto Star.

The Pleasant Game of Golf

Golf is now universally recognized as an ideal game for men who lead sedentary lives. It encourages walking, the most health-giving of all exercises; it provides a fascinating recreation, it employs muscles that would otherwise be rarely exercised, and it is played under conditions that conduce to the highest possible enjoyment. The extraordinary hold this old Scottish pastime has taken on this continent is phenomenal, and it has happened within the present century. Only half a century ago it was mostly confined to Scotland, where it had been played for centuries. Then the unexpected happened. From being deemed as an amusement for elderly people, it rapidly jumped into a commanding place as its qualities and possibilities became better and more widely known and appreciated. Today links are numbered by the thousand and are a source of interest and enthusiasm. Golf is enjoyable anywhere, but there is an added charm to the enjoyment when the game is played at St. Andrew's by the Sea, New Brunswick. The golf links are beautifully situated overlooking the sea, and partly enclosed by woods of tall pine trees. But from any part of the links the sea is always in view. There are two courses, one of 9 holes and one of 18 holes. Both are fit for the play of the greatest exponents of the game, and they are kept in the best possible condition. The links are adjacent to the magnificent Algonquin Hotel. A sufficient recommendation for links and golf is to say that both are owned and conducted by the Canadian Pacific Railway. The St. Andrew's course was selected this year for the Annual Tournament of the Canadian Senior Golf Association, and including an international match between the United States Senior and the Canadian Senior for the Bells of Bevanish Trophy. In addition to golf there are excellent facilities for bathing, fishing, tennis and motoring at St. Andrew's. There are many beautiful summer houses also there. Several of the most noted people in Canada spend vacations in this spot. The summer population of St. Andrew's is happily free from the bothersome element so common at seaside resorts near large and populous cities. It is not, however, a purely aristocratic gathering, though society is well represented. Shining lights in all professions are there, though it is not exclusively an intellectual throng. It is a selection of people who have found in St. Andrew's the spot where the highest degree of daily pleasure may be had with the least effort.

A BRIEF OUTLINE OF IRELAND'S HISTORY DURING HER CONNECTION WITH ENGLAND

By Rev. A. Cohoon, D. D.
Ireland was annexed to the English Crown by Henry II in 1171-1172. The population at this time consisted mainly of descendants of the Celtic and other races which inhabited Britain at the time of the Roman Invasion. The country was but partially conquered, but the English remained, "like a spear-point embedded in a living body", inflaming all around it. (Lecky's England) The condition of the island continued to be deplorable. First the chiefs of the native tribes fought constantly among themselves; next the English forced the Protestant Religion upon a people who detested it, and the greed and misgovernment of the rulers put a climax to their miseries. Sir Walter Raleigh said of it—"The country was a Commonwealth of common woe".

In 1595 a terrible rebellion broke out. This rebellion was subdued in such a way that Queen Elizabeth declared that if the work of destruction went on much longer, "she would have nothing left but ashes and corpses to rule over".

The greater portion of Ulster, which was the scene of the rebellion, was seized by the Crown. King James I granted these lands to settlers from Scotland and England. By these means, Ulster, from being the most wild and disorderly province, became the best cultivated and most civilized, and the element that is now increasing the difficulties of the Irish settlement was introduced.

In the reign of Charles I, 1641 another rebellion broke out. The purpose seemed to be the expulsion of the English. According to Hume the number that perished by the horrible cruelties practised was variously estimated from 40,000 to 200,000.

After the English Parliament had put to death Charles I, the Royalist Party in Ireland proclaimed Prince Charles, his son, King. Parliament sent Cromwell against them. His campaign of fire and slaughter was so terrible that to this day the direst imprecation a southern Irishman can utter is, "The curse of Cromwell on ye". It was to Cromwell Mr. Lloyd George referred in his recent speech when he said, "The most ruthless repression of an Irish insurrection was effected by the greatest English rebel in history, leading an army of rebels in behalf of a rebel government to crush men who had rallied to their legitimate sovereign".

In 1653-1654 Cromwell resolved to remove thousands of the people to a very large section of Southern Ireland by driving out the Roman inhabitants and giving their English and Scotch Protestants. By an act of Parliament, he removed thousands of the people to the barren Province of Connaught, and hundreds of families who refused to go were shipped to the West Indies and sold as slaves.

When the Revolution of 1688 drove James II from England and placed William and Mary on the throne, Ireland invited him to come over from France and regain his throne. He accepted the invitation but after a short stay, fled back to France, his forces having been utterly defeated at the Battle of the Boyne. The struggle of the Irish ended by the Treaty of Limerick at which time about ten thousand Irish soldiers who had fought for James were permitted to go to France. "When the wild cry of the women who stood watching their departure was hushed, the silence of death settled down upon Ireland. For a hundred years the country remained at peace, but the peace was that of despair." (Green Short history of the English People)

The iron hand of English despotism had crushed the spirit out of the inhabitants and they suffered in silence. In the first part of the eighteenth century in bitter mockery of the Government's neglect, Dean Swift published what he called his "Modest Proposal", which was that the misery of the half-starved peasants might be relieved by allowing them to eat their own children or sell them to the butchers.

In 1782 an attempt was made to improve the political condition of the country. Henry Grattan, the eminent Protestant Irish Orator, advocated the repeal of the Poynning's Act passed in 1494 which forbade the Irish Parliament from passing any law which did not have the sanction of the English Council. Aided by the powerful influence of Fox, in the House of Commons, his efforts were successful and the obnoxious act was repealed and a so called independent Irish Parliament met in Dublin to which Grattan was elected. But though more than three fourths of the Irish People were Catholics, no person of that faith was permitted to sit in the new Parliament or even to vote for the election of a member. This prohibition elicited angry feelings and an association called the "Society of United Irishmen" was formed for the purpose of obtaining full and fair representation of both Catholics and Protestants in Parliament. Failing to accomplish this the society became a revolutionary organization with the declared purpose of establishing an independent republic. In 1798 another frightful rebellion broke out accompanied by frightful cruelties on both sides. This was put down by the aid of a large force of Orangemen who did their work with remorseless cruelty.

In view of what is now transpiring it seems strange to find it stated that the warmest opponents of the Union were the Orangemen of the North of Ireland. Nearly thirty years passed away before a single Catholic was admitted to Parliament.

Two years after the first imperial parliament met, Robert Emmet, an Irish patriot, sought to free his country. He described the union as "The Union of the shark with its prey".

Daniel O'Connell, an Irish gentleman of distinguished ability, became a member of the House of Commons in 1829. He devoted all his energies to repealing the Act of Union and the re-establishment of an Irish Parliament, but in vain.

In 1845-46 in consequence of the total destruction of the potato crop, which was then an almost universal food, Ireland suffered from a terrible famine. Notwithstanding the large sums contributed by the government and by private individuals, it is said that as a consequence of this famine Ireland lost two millions or nearly one fourth of her population.

In 1869 Mr. Gladstone succeeded in direct establishing the Protestant Episcopal Church, and thus all religious denominations in Ireland were left to the voluntary support of those who belonged to them.

In 1870 he put through the first Land Act and in 1881 the second Land Act. The object of these acts was to give relief to the peasants from oppression of the Landlords whose lands they tilled.

Another agitation for Home Rule was started by Isaac Butt in 1871. A few years later Charles Stewart Parnell, a Protestant gentleman of good family, became leader of the Irish Party and continued to agitate for Home Rule. In 1886 Mr. Gladstone brought in his first Home Rule bill. This was defeated because of the split on the Liberal Party caused chiefly by Joseph Chamberlain, father of Austin Chamberlain, who was the second man to sign the agreement recently made for the settlement of the Irish Question.

In 1892 the Liberals were returned to power and in 1893 Gladstone succeeded in passing a Home Rule bill through the House of Commons but the Lords threw it out.

In 1898 Lord Salisbury passed a bill giving to Ireland local self-government on the same popular foundation as in England. But the agitation for separation continued.

Just before the great war Mr. Asquith introduced another Home Rule Bill but in consequence of the war no attempt was made to put it in operation. After the war another Home Rule Bill was passed giving two parliaments to Ireland, but this was not acceptable to the people of the South of Ireland, who were now fighting for a Republic.

And now, after many weary weeks of conference between delegates of the British Government and the Irish Parliament, a settlement seems to have been reached and henceforth Ireland is to be known as 'The Irish Free State'. Macaulay in his History of England looking forward to the settlement that is now taking place, calls it, "the late triumph of reason and humanity" and expresses the hope that a future historian may be able to relate "that wisdom, justice and time gradually did in Ireland what they had done in Scotland, and that all the races which inhabit the British Isles were at length indissolubly blended into one people."

REMOVING PENCIL MARKS.

Indelible pencil marks may be removed by soaking for a few minutes in alcohol and then washing in the regular way. The alcohol is just as effective after the material thus stained has been washed and ironed.

THANKS FROM THE SANATORIUM

The following letter has been received from the Superintendent of the Sanatorium at Kentville, thanking the people of Wolfville for Christmas contributions. Mrs. Laura Haliburton Moore, Wolfville, N. S.

Dear Mrs. Moore:—The "Christmas Cheer" which the Wolfville I. O. D. E. and Red Cross sent to the sanatorium was duly received, and will you please thank the members of these organizations for the interest they took in our Christmas work and for their kindness in remembering our patients. Your contribution went a long way towards making the patients happy. We spared no effort to give them a good Christmas, and many of them have expressed themselves as having had a very happy time.

Yours sincerely,
A. F. Miller,
Medical Superintendent.

HUMUS

1. Humus is the dark-colored, gelatinous material derived from the decay of organic matter in the soil.

2. Humus contributes in many ways—physical, chemical, and biological—to the productivity of the soil.

3. Humus is the chief material in the soil that contains nitrogen. The percentage of nitrogen ranges from 2 per cent to more than 15 per cent. Deficiency in humus, therefore, is an indication of a deficiency of available nitrogen in the soil.

4. The loss of humus is usually the most potent fact in the exhaustion of soils.

5. The supply of humus is dependent on the stock of organic materials, both vegetable and animal, which find their way into the soil.

HOMEY PHILOSOPHY FOR 1922.

Anti-religionists seize on the evidences of the beginnings of animal life, as found in solid rocks that must be untold millions of years old, to refute the Bible story of the creation by God. They forget that Genesis was written in an age that thought fancifully and by men who spoke in representative terms. The truth is that there is nothing in the highest or the deepest modern science to disprove that God created the original substance which became animal bone and muscle and brain, and gave it life, and in His own good time invested it—the human section of His creature creation—with a deathless soul. It doesn't matter in the slightest how many millions of years ago these events took place.

REDMAC

Redmac has become a household name—you cannot go out to spend the evening without hearing the name Redmac. People of society and those of humble life are to-day placed on the same plane, they are both human, both subject to the ills of life, Redmac heals them alike, and at the same price. No man or woman is too poor or too wealthy for Redmac.

COUNTY LEGISLATORS

tract to be 15). Carried.

County appointments were made as follows:

Auditors—R. S. Kinsman, M. K. Ellis. Health Officer—P. N. Balcom, M. D. Trustees School Land Cornwallis—A. H. Dickie, Fred Burgess, C. H. Beardsley.

Horton—J. A. Vaughan, Vernon Gaul, Frank Trenholm.

Overseers Poor—Arch Foster, Wm. Anderson, Oxley Steele, F. M. Patterson. Board of Revision and Appeal—J. D. Martin, Murray Power, W. W. Pineo. J. Howe Cox was appointed Supervisor of Public Grounds, vice John N. Chute for Cornwallis.

On motion Councillor John Gertridge was appointed to all standing committees held by Councillor Anderson.

Wednesday morning's session was devoted to appointments. Mr. Herbert Stairs, agent for the Children's Aid Society, was voted the same salary as last year. The matter of reappointing the County Nurse brought forth a lively discussion. A number of the Councillors thought that the same work might be more cheaply done by local physicians, but after considerable discussion the present Health Nurse continues.

After the noon adjournment the matter of the location of the new Poor Farm for the County was taken up and discussed. The overseers had brought in a report recommending the farm of W. W. Pineo at Waterville, located north of the railway and within a few minutes walk of the station. They also had an option in twelve acres of hayland adjoining the Pineo farm, which would make a total acreage of 130 acres.

When the vote was called for to adopt the report of the overseers, there were seven for and seven against, the Warden casting the deciding vote to adopt the report. The location is an ideal one, central and on high ground, ensuring ample drainage.

NOTES ON BOY'S WORK

The reorganization of the Wolfville Troop of Boy Scouts to effect closer cooperation with the Sunday Schools, is now being tried out. This has been in contemplation for some years but has not been thought feasible until this year.

Under this scheme we have two Boy Scout Troops in Wolfville, consisting of boys of 15 years and under, and two Tuxis squares of boys over that age.

The First Troop consists of four patrols of 9 or 10 boys each; three of these patrols being from the Baptist Church and one from the Tabernacle.

The Second Troop consists of five patrols, two from the Anglican and Roman Catholic, one each from the Presbyterian and Methodists and one from Grand Pre and Hortonville.

The First Troop meets every Tuesday evening after B. Y. P. U., the Second on Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

Interesting leagues in Hockey and Basketball are now in progress. Through the splendid cooperation of the College authorities the boys have the College rink on Saturday mornings and once during the week. Last Saturday Nos. 1 and 2 Patrols of the First Troop, played off, the former winning.

In Basketball No. 2 Patrol of the First Troop beat No. 1 Patrol of the same troop, and No. 4 Patrol ("Live Wires") beat No. 3 Patrol. In the Second Troop, No. 1 Patrol beat No. 2.

As in previous years there is a competition on between all these patrols (except Grand Pre). Points are awarded for attendance at church, Sunday School and weekly meeting and also for Badges, Good reports, Games, etc. The citizens are asked to help along by noting any special good turns done by the boys and reporting to the Scoutmaster.

The two Squares of Tuxis Boys are now meeting every Sunday afternoon. A basketball game between the "Triangles" and the High School in the College gym., was won by the latter. A hockey game between the same teams will be played at an early date. Our Tuxis Boys are showing up very well in hockey and will have a very strong team. Games are being arranged with outside teams.

WILLOW BANK CEMETERY

The annual meeting of the Willow Bank Cemetery Corporation will be held in the Council Chamber of the Town Hall, Wolfville, on Monday, January 23rd, at three o'clock in the afternoon. All lot holders are urgently requested to be present.
