DO YOU

Work With Your Hands

OR

With Your Head?

The man who works with his hands is always "the man behind"—the one who never forges ahead—the one who is subject to another man's control—the one who cannot rise above a fixed wage limit. But there is nothing on earth that can stop the man that works with his HEAD, provided he is properly trained and has sufficient brain matter to cope with the problems of his daily work. Step out of the ranks of the incompetents—be a somebody—and if you want success no greater assistance can be offered than a thorough course in the Charlottetown Business College. This college has enabled thousands of young men and women to qualify for prominent and lucrative positions. Over 20 per cent. of the population of this city are employed graduates of the C. B. C. ROME LETTER

(From our own Correspondent.)

Rome, Jan. 13th, 1912

Just at the moment that the struggle between the Holy See and France had reached its climax a few years ago the Sovereign Pontiff promised victory to the Church in France if the people rallied round the priests, the priests with the Bishops, and these again round the Pope. The exhortation of the Holy Father was followed, and today the Church of France is regaining its old vigor and strength. The example of France is being followed by Portugal. Just as the Patriarch of Lisbon was about to sign his period of two years as the head of his diocese, as a result of the visit of the Holy Father to the parish priests of the Portuguese Capital, was read to His Beatitude, every word of which rings true.

"The Clergy of Lisbon," says the address, "come before your Excellency to present to you a testimony of its profound respect, respect that consecrates the orders received from your Excellency, and its admiration for the grand courage manifested in this grave situation.

"Seeing its Pastor so unjustly treated by the civil power, it proclaims the attitude of your Excellency to have been always admirable, and that your priests consider it an honor to rally around you during the difficult crisis through which you are passing.

Your Excellency will permit us to value in a few words the decree that exiles you from the locality of Lisbon. In your circular you simply condemned the Cult Associations of the Law of Separation, which is almost a faithful but ominous copy of the Law of Separation in France. And it is because your Excellency understood your duty that you condemned the Cult Associations. What a contrast for a Government that calls itself liberal, democratic, in the sense which is given to these words in republican France.

"Finally, most excellent Lord, your duty is clearly defined for us. We shall follow your example, and we declare ourselves solid with you. Therefore we declare to be schismatical all the Cult Associations as well as those who promote or accept them. May God be with you in exile."

Is there any fear of the Church in Portugal with fidelity and steadfastness such as this?

If the exiled Patriarch of Lisbon is the Cardinal reserved in picture by the Holy Father at the recent Consistory, we have the repetition of an incident that occurred many years ago, apropos of the Kulturkampf in Germany. When the great Bishop Ledochowicz, one of the bravest of Polish prelates, who suffered persecution at the hands of Bismarck, lay in prison for conscience sake, he little thought he was to be elevated to the Cardinalate on his release, and that he should rule the missionary countries of the United States, Canada, Australia, Africa, England, Ireland, Scotland and other lands as Prefect of the Propaganda. And when the Patriarch of Lisbon has concluded his two years exile, let us hope he will return as Cardinal to the historic See to witness the discomfiture of petty tyrants.

Though little interest for the Catholic world is involved in the latest issue of the Acta Apostolicae Sedis the official bulletin of the Vatican, the next number will, I am informed on authority, contain the decree of an important reform of the diocese of Rome. The diocese of Rome, which is divided into fifty-six parishes, the majority of which are confined to the regular clergy, will likely remain as it is, as far as this point is concerned. At this distance the only forecast that can be given of the reform is the division of the Eternal City into four zones, each of which will be ruled by a Vicar-General, subject to Cardinal Respighi, the actual Vicar. It is expected all four will be raised to the rank of Bishop.

In Roman circles it is unknown yet what was the next mission the Pope had destined for Archbishop Agius, Delegate Apostolic of the Philippines, who received a summons to come to Rome shortly before death cut short that brilliant career. However, a letter from a clergyman of the Philippines to a Roman priest says preparations were being made there to give Mgr. Agius a cordial send-off for Washington. The nomination as Apostolic Delegate to Mexico of Bishop Boggiano of Rovigo is another example of the Pope's preference of rulers of dioceses for posts such as Mexico, which, though of a character strictly ecclesiastical, partake also of a diplomatic character. Along with Washington, which may be fitted any week at all by Mgr. Aversa, Delegate Apostolic of Brazil, who has come to Rome and has been received by the Pope, or Mgr. Sagni of Canada, one other post will fall vacant shortly, viz. the Apostolic Nunciature of Madrid, which Cardinal Vico will leave to commence his work as Cardinal of the Roman Court, taking into account the gravity of the situation existing between the Holy See and Spain, and that no amicable arrangement of the same is expected at the Vatican while Signor Canalejas remains in power, extreme care will be exercised in the choice of a successor. Very probably he would be found in the person of the Archbishop of Bologna, Mgr. Della Chiesa, who after years passed in the diplomatic service of the Holy See was sent to rule this great diocese.

Though every week brings to the foot of the Papal throne prelates princes and lesser personages from every part of the world, few weeks have seen such interesting persons received in audience by Pius X. as the one just passed. First came Don Jaime, the pretender to the Spanish throne, who, as son of Don Carlos, an old friend of Pius X. when the latter resided at Venice, received a kindly welcome from His Holiness. Don Jaime, like his father, is fully aware that he can hope for no aid from the Holy See in furtherance of his aspirations for the crown of Spain. Another reception of interest was that of Right Rev. Mgr. Shahan, Rector of the Catholic University of Washington, who came to bid good bye to the Holy Father. After a long conversation in Italian, a tongue Mgr. Shahan speaks fluently, the Pope blessed the American prelate and the great institution which has progressed so rapidly under his care. As Cardinal Bourne leaves Rome for London tomorrow, his farewell audience with the Pope took place on Thursday. On the same day the Pope received Father Warwick, Rector of the English College at Lisbon, who had come to Rome to declare his college wished to remain subject to the authority under which it has hitherto been, and that it is not desired that it should pass under other jurisdiction. This request of the Rector has been granted. The proposal also to split up the diocese of South-west and attach it to Westminster has been rejected, and no change whatever of the various ones proposed for England will take place.

The news of the demise of two Archbishops who have served their Divine Master long and faithfully in their exalted rank, has just been announced at the Vatican, viz. that of the Most Reverend Mgr. Bonne, Archbishop of Tokio, and of the Most Reverend Natta-Gentili, formerly Archbishop of Perugia. Since the erection of the Capital of Japan into a Metropolitan See by Leo XIII. in 1873, only two Archbishops have ruled there; the prelate whose loss is now deplored, having reigned there only since September, 1910. It is with a feeling of sadness one recalls the death of Mgr. Natta-Gentili, who ruled the Archdiocese of Perugia, the old See of Leo XIII. until Modernism was found to have made its way into the diocesan seminary. Perhaps never has the Holy See shown itself so favorable in stamping out an abuse. The students of the seminary so cherished by Leo XIII. were sent back to their parents, the superiors and professors, without a single exception, were dismissed, and not one of either category was permitted to return on the reopening, a few months ago, to the institution. New superiors, new professors and fresh students now fill the seminary under the direction of an Archbishop chosen by Pius X. It was far from being the fault of Natta-Gentili that Modernism had crept into the training-ground of the Levites of Perugia. Old age and infirmities had come upon him, and when he resigned his obituary was returned to the place of his birth at Pennilli, he brought into conclusion, the good will and gratitude of the Holy See for his years of service passed in three dioceses.

GONE TO REST.

JONAS J. MORRISON, ONCE WELL KNOWN IN SAN FRANCISCO, PASSED AWAY.

(The San Francisco Monitor of January 13th contains the following account of Mr. Jonas J. Morrison, a native of St. George's, in this Province.)

Hundreds of Catholics in San Francisco and vicinity will learn with regret of the death of Jonas J. Morrison, in Chihuahua, Mexico. The deceased was on his way from five o'clock mass on a Thursday morning when he succumbed to heart failure and died an hour later at the residence of his son-in-law, Dennis Minihan.

To the younger generation in California the name of Mr. Morrison is

THE POOR DYSPEPTIC

Suffers Untold Agony After Every Meal.

Nearly everything that enters a weak, dyspeptic stomach acts as an irritant; hence the difficulty of selecting a cure. Burdock Blood Bitters will relieve all the distressing symptoms of dyspepsia and in a short time effect a cure.

Mrs. F. C. Gross, Berlin, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with my stomach for the last seven years and tried all kinds of medicine for it, but none of them ever cured me, for as soon as I would quit using any of them, the same old trouble would come back. Last fall I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters, which I did, and used four bottles, and now feel so strong I can do all my house work nicely and can eat almost anything without it affecting me in any way."

"Our boy is also using it; he always complained of pain in his stomach and all over, like rheumatism, and sometimes he had to stay home from school. He had quite used two bottles, and is feeling good, can attend school regularly, and eats heartily."

The Land of Fire.

Four expeditions have started in search of the South Pole, and it is quite possible, as Explorer Shackleton recently remarked, the members of at least one of them may have eaten their Christmas dinner at that much sought-after spot. It is not at all improbable that some of the expeditions may have touched at Torres del Fuaga, that desolate land of 27,000 square miles of territory which look so insignificant on the map. It is now twenty-five years since the Siberian expedition, determined to carry the knowledge of the existence of the land, degraded natives of what Fernando Magellan named the Land of Fire. November 21, 1886, was the date of their disembarking in their new and unpromising field of labor, and the leadership of Bishop Joseph Fagnano. Besides the archipelago and the southern portion of the mainland, the Falkland Islands were placed under his jurisdiction. Within two years he had made a careful examination of the whole district, had seen the possibilities of the land, the sites for prospective missions and the nature of the natives whom he had come to evangelize. These he found to be of three distinct tribes. The Tehuelches, invaded the mainland, had horses and lived by hunting. They were large, well formed men and had obtained some notions of civilization from contact with the whites. The Alacalufes hovered around the strait, a stunted and poverty-stricken, with all the outward signs of their speedy disappearance from the face of the earth. Hidden in the unexplored fastness of the principal island the remnants of the Onas, a tribe of evil reputation, which seemed to be due rather to the excesses of certain explorers and gold seekers than to any traits of natives. The island, which is about half as large as the state of New York, affords abundant pasturage for cattle, and can produce fine crops of oats and barley. The city of Punta Arenas, was selected as the most promising site, and there the Silenians erected a parish church, the first brick building to be built in five towns. A day school, a boarding school, a class of music, both vocal and instrumental, an observatory and museum soon followed, nor must mention be omitted of the "ladies' oratory," that feature inseparable from Don Bosco's work,

Mrs. W. R. Hodge, Fielding, Sask., writes:—"A few lines highly recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For this last year I have been troubled with a weak aching back, which caused me much misery for I could not work, and had no ambition for anything. My kidneys were very badly out of order, and kept me from sleeping at night. I tried many kinds of pills and medicines, but it seemed almost in vain. I began to give up in despair of ever being well and strong again, when a kind neighbor advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and am thankful for the relief I obtained from them, for now I am never troubled with a sore back or sick headache."

Hon. John A. Mathieson, Leader of the Government, accompanied by Mrs. Mathieson, left here Friday afternoon for Ottawa, via Georgetown. He will be joined in a few days by Hon. John McLean, and Hon. A. E. Arsenault, who, with the Premier, constitute the delegation from the Provincial Government to lay our claims before the Federal authorities. This Province has large and well founded claims against the Dominion, and Premier Mathieson and his fellow delegates may be depended upon to ably present these claims and vigorously press them. No time could be more opportune for a satisfactory adjustment of our just claims. Premier Borden and his new Government are desirous of dealing out justice to all parts of the Dominion. More than that, the Premier of Canada is well acquainted with the disabilities under which we labor, and is in sympathy with the new Mathieson Government. In view of all these facts, there is every reason to hope that the presentation of our claims by the Island delegation will result in largely augmenting our Provincial finances. Success to the delegation.

A Grain Growers Delegation is at Ottawa and has been in conference with the Government with reference to a proposal that the Government erect an elevator at Vancouver, private interests not having moved in that direction. Were the port equipped for handling grain it would be in a position to avail itself of such opportunities as the opening of the Panama Canal will bring, also such developments as the recent reduction of the duties on wheat by Mexico in consequence of a scarcity there. Thus the new outlets for Canadian wheat might develop. The proposal is that the Government erect an elevator of 250,000 bushels capacity so built as to be capable of addition as the need arises.

The Morning Post of London, Eng., has the following appreciation of Hon. Geo. E. Foster for his negotiations with Australia and New Zealand: "The treaty he has arranged is broad, and takes lines that should not present difficulties. If the links between Canada and the antipodes and between Australia and New Zealand are formed, then only the United Kingdom would remain outside the system of mutual preference. We have good hopes now that this step also will be taken in the near future."

"Canada can no longer travel on a child's ticket," is one of the brightest things ever uttered in the Dominion. It is worth months of argument in focusing the issues at stake. Official Investigation.

The Borden government will turn the searchlight on the whole of the long series of transactions involved in the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway. Pending an official announcement it is not possible to state definitely the terms upon which the investigation is to be conducted, but that the probing will be deep and the examination thorough and far-reaching there is no doubt. The Standard understands that the work will be placed in the hands of two men likely to be selected being F. P. Gutelius, of Montreal, now general superintendent of the C. P. R., and George Lynch Staunton K. C., of Hamilton one of the best known members of the Ontario bar. Mr. Staunton already has a reputation as an investigator, and Mr. Gutelius occupies a leading place in the railway world of Canada, having served the C. P. R. efficiently for many years in all parts of the Dominion. The appointment of these two men will mark the second important step taken in connection with the Transcontinental Railway under the administration of Hon. Frank Cochrane. The investigators will be given powers wide enough to enable them to go as far as need be in search of the truth about the Transcontinental and the work of the Parent commission. Mr. Cochrane has been at pains to obtain for this work the services of men whose ability is undoubted and whose report when it is presented, will be of real value. Where the Hodgins charges, the Lumsden resignation and the complaints of the Grand Trunk Pacific officers failed to result in settling the doubt in the public mind as to the honesty in the methods employed in the construction of the railway, the Gutelius Staunton inquiry is expected to succeed. The investigation will necessarily occupy considerable time.

On January 27th communication by wireless telegraphy was opened between Canada and Spain the stations being Marconi Towers at Glace Bay, Cape Breton and Aranjuez in Spain. The first messages on the 26th, westward were from Right Hon. R. L. Borden, and Hon. J. D. Hazen, in whose department of the naval service the wireless service falls. The texts of these messages were as follows:

Ottawa, Ont. Jan. 26th, 1912 "Canelejas, Madrid, Premier Spain. "Via Marconi Towers, Glace Bay, C. B. "I am glad to have the privilege of extending to the Spanish government and people the heartiest congratulations and good wishes of my government and of the people of this Dominion on the occasion of the opening of your first long distance wireless telegraph station.

Extensive Territory Desired

The Province of Quebec through the government of Sir Lomer Gouin, has entered the field as an applicant for wider boundaries. The request of the Quebec government is practically identical with the one made to the Laurier government when a general readjustment of boundaries was under consideration some years ago. It was determined at the time by resolution of the House that any territorial addition to the Province of Quebec should not affect the unit of parliamentary representation as determined under the British North American Act. What Quebec asked for, and apparently is still anxious to obtain, is an extension to include practically the whole of the northeastern peninsula of Canada. The proposal is that the entire district of Ungava, comprising all that territory lying between Hudson Bay and Hudson Strait, together with the strip of eastern coastline now being longed in Newfoundland should be included. The only conditions suggested by the province are that the claims of the Indian inhabitants be adjusted by the province and that the extension be without effect upon the unit of representation.

Local Government Appointments.

At meetings of the Executive Council, held on Wednesday and Thursday of last week the following appointments were made: To be Coroner for King's County, John D. McIntyre, M. D. Montague Bridge. To be additional Coroner for Prince County, Edwin Tanton, M. D. Summerside. To be Inspector of Schools for Queen's County, James H. Devereaux, Vice Hammond Johnson who resigned to become Principal of West Kent School.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE Queen's County—A. Roy Jones Hazelbrook, Lot 48, William O'Brien, Monaghan, Lot 36; Geo. McDonald, Cornwall, Lot 32. King's County—Gavin Mardock, Murray River, Lot 63, William Aiyward, Bristol, Lot 39; Peter Byrne, Byrnes Road, Lot 39.

COMMISSIONERS OF DEEDS. King's County—Gavin Mardock, Murray River, Lot 63; William Aiyward, Bristol, Lot 39; Andrew Lewis, St. Peter's Bay. BOARD OF HEALTH, LOT 15. To be additional member—John J. Gallant, Mt. Carmel, Edlebert Poirier, Abrams Village, Stanislaus O. Gallant, St. Christosom.

To be member and Chairman of the Board of Health, Alberton, vice Joseph L. Dyer, deceased.—James E. Birch, Alberton. Mr. J. E. Wyatt, M. L. A., has been promoted to the dignity of King's Counsel.

Federal Parliament.

The question of reciprocity within the Empire received some attention in the House of Commons some days ago. The matter was brought up by Mr. Pugsley who asked some questions regarding trade matters. R. B. Ames followed with an exceedingly careful review of trade positions between Canada and Australia. He advised against a simple exchange of minimum tariffs and urged that members of the two governments get together and agree on lists of articles in which a real exchange could be effected. Mr. Foster agreed that there was promise in the attempt to establish closer trade relations with Australia. He also agreed that it would be better to sit down and frame a list of really serviceable exchanges between the two countries, leaving in what would be eventually advantageous. He went on to say that a few weeks ago D. H. Ross, trade commissioner in Australia, reported that it might be possible for the Australian government to put upon its statute book at the session just past a preference in favor of Canada.

be better instead of tying ourselves up to an exchange of preference for preference, to try to come to an arrangement which would be less expensive in the matter of actual results. The proposition which I have made in writing to the Minister of Trade and Customs of Australia, is one which I hope will result in a conference, if possible, between members of the two governments, and at least between special commissioners who shall be empowered by the two governments to act in that line. A moment later he added: "It is not my part to indicate what I think will be the best way to proceed. If it so happens that I should be one of the negotiators, it would probably be better that I should not have gone too extensively into the matter prior to my meeting our friends from the other side."

Turning to the West Indies, he expressed a willingness to pay a larger amount to secure a better service and went on to make the announcement already noted. Sir Wilfrid Laurier discussed the subject more lightly than the earlier speakers, introducing one or two references to reciprocity. He agreed that the instability of Australian politics had been a difficulty, and expressed an apprehension that this may recur. He also was disposed to think that the opportunities for exchange are small. Discussing methods he committed a slip of the tongue which roused a laugh. "The best way," he said, "would be to send commissioners to Washington," also he feared that it would be hard for Canadian protectionists and Australian protectionists to agree. Mr. Middlebrooke mentioned a factory in Owen Sound, which makes chains only. Under existing conditions it sold last year to Australia $171,000 worth. These went he thought, through Atlantic Canadian ports. The trade should be doubled. F. B. McCurdy, of Queen Shelburne, advocated intercolonial steamers to the West Indies. If that railway does not take some such step, another will, he said. He observed that in establishing a service it will be necessary to choose between two methods: 1st, Having a central depot in the West Indies, and transshipping at it to small vessels, which will ply to the individual islands. 2nd, Going to the individual islands, and so having smaller, slower ships with less cargo capacity.

An arraignment of the immigration policy of the late government and the several railway companies in past years for neglecting the Maritime Provinces in order to develop the West and a request to the Borden government to speedily inaugurate a policy of publicity and immigration to promote the more rapid development of the provinces were the main points in a resolution proposed by E. N. Rhodes, Conservative M. P., for Cumberland, N. S., Monday afternoon Jan. 29, and which occupied the attention of the House at both sessions. It was a field day for the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Rogers, Minister of Interior, in endorsing the resolution, made the important statement that satisfactory arrangements had already been made with the provincial governments of British Columbia, Ontario and New Brunswick. He expressed himself as much encouraged by the progressive policy of Premier Fleming and stated that the terms on which the Dominion government would assist immigration to New Brunswick would be announced by Mr. Fleming at an early date.

Mr. Rhodes made a most effective speech full of striking statistics which conclusively showed that in the past the Maritime Provinces have been denied a square deal. He favored a more equitable distribution of the money devoted to immigration and an active campaign in the old country. The discussion was continued by several Maritime Province members. Among those taking part on the Government side were A. B. Foster, King, N. S., O. S. Crockett, York, N. B., and A. A. McLean, Queen's, P. E. I.

Mr. Rhodes' resolution was as follows: "That inasmuch as the immigration policy of the government and the several railway companies has for many years been almost entirely confined to the development of western Canada, and largely in consequence of this policy the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island have not grown in equal degree with the rest of the Dominion, in the opinion of this House, in order to promote uniform progress and prosperity throughout Canada, the government should speedily inaugurate and carry out a policy of publicity and immigration designed to promote more rapid development of the said provinces."

Reviewing the resources of the provinces Mr. Rhodes went on to refer to the hay crop, the possibilities for wheat raising, fruit growing, root growing, the timber resources, the mineral wealth, the petroleum wells, natural gas and heavy the fisheries. The extent of these resources should induce a large flow of immigration. The provinces occupied a strategic position. They had two magnificent harbors at St. John and Halifax, a full day's sail nearer Great Britain than other Atlantic ports, yet despite the inflow through those ports there had been 5 per cent. increase in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia in ten years, and P. E. I. had gone back. Mr. Rhodes contrasted the increase in the prairie provinces in ten years: Alberta had increased 500 per cent., Saskatchewan 500 per cent., Manitoba 200 per cent. why he asked, with our resources our intelligent people and our geographical advantages have we remained stationary?

For one thing the provinces were perhaps too richly endowed. Prosperity in other countries came in adverse proportion of natural advantages. For another the merits of the provinces were not known to the Mother Country. Quoting statistics from the Department of the Interior, Mr. Rhodes showed that out of $116,705 spent in distributing literature in ten years, only $13,767 was devoted to descriptions of the Maritime Provinces. "Out of 38 successful farmers sent as a delegation last year to England only one went from the provinces. He also drew attention to the railway corporations who ignored the East in order to sell their lands in the prairie provinces. Mr. Rhodes advocated a propaganda of advertising assisted by the government. The revenues of the provinces were too small to do much by themselves. He was glad to note that Premier Fleming's suggestion for a home reunion movement had been taken up by New Brunswick. The Maritime Provinces, he maintained, should have one-eighth of the total money expended on immigration, or at least $250,000 a year. How that money was to be spent he was not concerned, but each province should have an immigration commissioner in England. R. Bikerdike, of Montreal, brought up his previous complaint that immigrants should be examined on the other side and expressed his strong disapproval of existing legislation by declaring that he would "turn the immigration act."

A. Dewitt Foster of Kings, N. S. made an effective reply and twitted Mr. Carrol with favoring protection for the coal industry. He gave an interesting review of the resources of Nova Scotia. The question of distribution of immigration, he said, was the whole argument. O. S. Crockett followed at the evening session in a short but effective speech. There was a general feeling that in the government's advertising propaganda for the past ten or twelve years the Maritime Provinces had been ignored. There was no objection to the west being advertised, but it should not be exclusive as in the past.

Mr. A. A. McLean, (Queen's, P. E. I.) spoke as follows: "In the Maritime Provinces our farmers are not able to carry on the farming operations as they should be carried on for want of help. Our young men and women are leaving the farms, and the result is that the older men have to work very hard and are almost discouraged. It is not true as has been said by the hon. member for Westmorland, (Mr. Zenger, son) that there is no incentive to engage in the farming industry in the Maritime Provinces. On the contrary, there is every incentive. We have the best home market in the world. We get the best prices for our products than can be obtained anywhere. We have good soil, especially in the Province of Prince Edward Island, in which all the land fit for agriculture is under cultivation. In order to show the hon. member for Westmorland that he is wrong, I would point out that in 1901 the total products of the farm and live stock in Prince Edward Island was only $7,415,990, whereas in 1910 that had increased to $11,753,000, or an increase of $4,338,000 in nine years. I think, therefore, there is every incentive in the Maritime Provinces to engage in agriculture. We are rapidly progressing, we are going ahead by leaps and bounds, all we want today and all we ask the Government for, is a supply of farm laborers of both sexes. But we only require hundreds, not thousands. It is true that there are many farms in the Maritime Provinces for sale. The old farmers have large tracts which they are holding for their sons, and these sons who have gone to the west, are coming back to settle again on their old home steads. In fact the sons of the west will soon be a thing of the past, and our young men in the future will probably stay at home where they can prosper as well as anywhere else. We have great hopes in the east if the government will give us a share of the money we should have to obtain the necessary help for our farmers. Another thing which the farmers of the maritime provinces require is transportation. In the west transportation has been rapidly pushed forward and is still being pushed rapidly on today, but in the east, now that we have a progressive government in office, look forward to a new era in which every attention will be given to the development of transportation facilities in eastern Canada and not devote them entirely to the west. Let us only have proper transportation facilities, and we shall have no lack of immigrants. We require men from Denmark to teach us something about butter making and hog raising. We raise a great number of hogs in the maritime provinces, but we would benefit by the labour of men from these older countries, who have made this business a great success. We want fishermen from Scotland and men from England who understand farming. Mr. McLean went on to show how little had been done in the past, and to express the hope that the Minister of the Interior would give this matter of immigration to the Maritime Provinces, his most favorable consideration."

Mr. Rhodes' resolution was as follows: "That inasmuch as the immigration policy of the government and the several railway companies has for many years been almost entirely confined to the development of western Canada, and largely in consequence of this policy the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island have not grown in equal degree with the rest of the Dominion, in the opinion of this House, in order to promote uniform progress and prosperity throughout Canada, the government should speedily inaugurate and carry out a policy of publicity and immigration designed to promote more rapid development of the said provinces."

A cable received at Montreal Monday by President Reid, of the Newfoundland Co., at present in that city, city stated that the company's fine new steamer "Bruce" sailed from the Clyde for St. John's on that date and would at once take her place on the route between Sydney and Port aux Basques.

Motorman James Anderson, aged 27, married was instantly crushed to death and a half dozen of passengers more or less severely hurt, in a collision in Vancouver, B. C., during the fog of last Saturday night. Three cars were proceeding eastward on Hastings Street, all running on the right, when the front car had its trolley knocked off and the second car was forced to stop suddenly. The third car kept on and smashed into the rear of the second.

Mr. N. W. White, former Conservative member of the commons for Shelburne, N.S., has been appointed to the Senate, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Hon. Thomas McKay. Mr. White was defeated in the election of 1896, and was nominated to the Senate by Sir Charles Tupper; but his appointment among others, was vetoed by Lord Aberdeen. Francis Reichel, aged thirty three, a ladie's tailed, was riding in a parachute which he had invented failed to work as he jumped from the stage of Eiffel Tower, Paris, on the 5th, 200 feet from the ground. Reichel had been working two years on his invention which he intended for the use of aviators when their aeroplanes began to tumble because of accidents. It was his idea that the affair, which was of the order of the parachute, would be a sort of life-boat for the aviators whose machines were wrecked.

Nellie Kelly, a young woman in the employ of the Bell Telephone Co., was crushed to death between a trolley sleigh owned by Madam E. E. Carter, and the stone steps of Jennie's Church on Henry St. Montreal last Sunday afternoon. The rear step of a car speeding down Henry Street, struck the trolley and threw it on to the sidewalk, striking Miss Kelly and crushing her to death against the steps.

After an absence of three months, during which they had been crowned Emperor and Empress of India, and had received the homage of many of their princely vassals in the vast Eastern Empire, they were welcomed back to London in a most hearty manner. The present stay in the British Isles will be only a short one, as they are due to pay a round of state visits to European courts during the spring and summer.

The beautiful Catholic Church at St. Agne De Restigouche, opposite Campbellton was totally destroyed by fire Monday. An attempt was made to take a fire engine over from Campbellton but was found impossible. A good view of the blaze could be had from the Campbellton side, and it was with feelings of sadness the citizens watched the magnificent edifice reduced to a shapeless mass of smoldering ruins. The destruction of their Church is a hard blow to the Father who labored among the Indians on the Reserve. The loss is estimated at $30,000, partly covered insurance. The fire is supposed to have started from an overheated furnace.

The Roses Of Santa Maria

(By Patricia Meeley, in Ave Maria)

(Concluded)

'She is the Dona Rosita de Arturo, sole heiress of the wealthiest woman in Santa Maria, and the niece of the Padre Antonio at that quaint little church over yonder; and I found her quite by accident as I sat in the piazza this morning. Then she related her adventure.

'Don't build your hopes too high, warned Maurice wisely. You have no idea how conservative those patriotic Spanish families are,—how they shrink from publicity and cling to their homes and kindred. I will be surprised if you gain the girl's consent to your proposition, and still more so if her family allows her to leave home under the care of a stranger.'

'I'll have her if I have to resort to kidnapping!' laughed Mildred, as she rose from the table. 'and now for the fray! I am going forth to board the Inness in her den. And I shall leave you here, for I fancy I shall be more successful in my mission without your aid.'

'Thank's for the compliment,' laughed Maurice, as he lit a cigar and longed back in his chair, watching the graceful figure of his wife as she passed down the street bent on conquest. Surely, he thought, if any one could persuade the lovely Rosita to try her fortune in the world outside her little valley, that person was Mildred Trevanion.

His doubts, however proved to be well-founded; the girl shrank from publicity, had no desire for fame, and was devotedly attached to her home and family. Nothing daunted, Mildred renewed the attack day after day, urging her not to hide her talents,—to give to the world what God wishes the world, through her instrumentality, should have. But all her arguments proved futile until one day she remarked:

'Do you know, Dona Rosita, that it was your 'Virgin's roses, as you call them, that led me to Santa Maria? Do not seem that I was guided here to be the means of giving you to the world? For no woman to whom great talents have been given belongs to herself.'

The girl sighed regretfully as she answered: 'What you say may be true, Senora; but you must give us time to decide. I shall consult my uncle and my mother, and if they think that it is God's will, I shall go.'

Mildred was as sure of victory at that moment as she was when on the following morning the Senora de Arturo announced that they had decided to part with Rosita on condition that she sign no contract, and in no way bind herself to remain should she wish to return.

'We are loath to part with the child,' she said. 'The world is hard and cruel; but if we withheld our consent, the time might come when we should doubt the wisdom of our choice. Her home awaits her should she wish to return; and if the world claims her, we must let her go. But you will guard her; will you not, Senora? Long ago one whom we loved went forth from our valley to die of a broken heart, and so we are reluctant to see our child depart.'

'I promise you, Senora,' said Mildred, clasping both the older woman's hands between her own, 'that we will guard her as we would a dear sister.'

With a heavy heart Rosita bade farewell to home and kindred, and set forth with her new-found friends on her first journey into the unknown world. Jose's jaunty air deserted him, and he drove slowly, bent upon missing the train, and thus delaying the parting with the girl whom he had served and adored since her babyhood. At the station Mildred bade herself adieu to the little stage, apprehensive lest one of her numerous parcels be overlooked.

'Have a care with that package, Jose!' she warned. 'It contains one of your famous roses which is destined to grow in my garden. When you come to San Francisco to hear the Dona Rosita sing, the blossoms will remind you of home.'

Jose shook his head as he replied: 'Only in our valley will they grow, Senora; only there of all the world. You can't transplant the roses of Santa Maria.'

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

'I suffered dreadfully from rheumatism, but have been completely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I am deeply grateful.' Miss Frances S. S. Prescott, Ont.

'I had an attack of the grip which left me weak and helpless, but suffering from rheumatism. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and this medicine has entirely cured me. I have no hesitation in saying it saved my life.' M. J. McDonald, Trenton, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Removes the cause of rheumatism—no outward application can. Take it.

and it seemed that the people could never hear enough of her wonderful voice. She was the idol of the hour. They loaded her with jewels, with invitations to social functions which her soul abhorred and they banked the stage with costly flowers, that only fed the longing in her heart for the roses of her childhood. Despite all their attentions, or perhaps because of them,—because of the contrast between their homage and the tender, protecting love of her own people,—she felt herself an alien among them. Like all who have attained to fame, she knew her position to be insecure—know that in a few short years, when she had dimmed her beauty and robbed her voice of its sweetness, their adulation would be changed to pity and she would be forgotten.

Suddenly a year had passed since she came among them, and now she stood on the threshold of her greatest triumph. She was to sing tonight before a most critical audience composed of the elite of the city and visiting members of the foreign diplomatic corps, together with a number of musicians of note. Dismissing the maid at the stage door, Mildred insisted on dressing the girl with her own hands. Ignoring all protests, she arrayed her in robes and jewels of regal splendor. Heavy ivory-tinted silk fell in classic folds about her slender figure, and in her throat and breast and on her dusky hair gleamed strands of priceless diamonds. Mildred stood back and eyed her handiwork in approval.

'You are adorable, my dear! was her only comment; and the cheers with which the audience greeted the singer gave proof that it concurred in her judgment.

'Maurice,' called Mildred, softly, 'you may bring in the box now, I feared to let her see it before her appearance, lest it might answer her.'

Maurice appeared from the shadows with a huge cardboard box, which he carefully deposited on Rosita's dressing-table. But—alas! for their plans!—they had forgotten an important mission before the last song, during which a celebrated harpist was to play.

As Rosita entered the dressing-room, flushed with her conquest, a familiar fragrance smote her senses. With a glad little cry she tore open the box, and there on a bed of velvet mosses lay scores of long-stemmed Santa Maria roses, and in the midst of them a note from her mother.

'We rejoice in your triumph, she wrote in her romantic Spanish way; 'but by day and by night we miss you. You were eyes to the blind queridas, and the little sick babies loved the touch of your hand. My home and my heart are desolate without you. There are none to sing the Virgin's praises, and the God in the Tabernacle is lonely for the sound of your voice.'

With trembling fingers, Rosita tore the jewels from her throat and breast and hair, and in their place she fastened the crimson roses. Just as her cue was given, she caught up an armful of the long-stemmed blossoms and pressed them to her heart as she crossed the stage, with no thought save of their resonance and beauty. The audience with the quick intuition of San Francisco audiences, scented a romance, by a single gesture, she silenced the orchestra which was playing the opening bars of the 'Jewel Song,' and accompanied sang 'The Song that Reached My Heart.' Not a sound broke the stillness of the vast auditorium save the exquisite voice of the singer; and if her eyes were wet, the listeners could scarce distinguish it for the tears that filled their own as she sang.

The song of home, sweet home,—the song that reached my heart. For a brief moment, at its conclusion, the house was hushed; and then storm after storm of applause shook it to its foundations. But all in vain. The stately figure in its regal robes had vanished and back in the wings a homesick girl was sobbing out her heart over a sheaf of crimson roses.

following morning, the Trevanions found Rosita's place vacant, but a note beside Mildred's plate explained her absence. It ran thus:

MY DEAR SENORA—I thank you a thousand times for your great kindness to me, and I bid you adieu. Forgive me that I do not say my farewell in person. You would but urge me to remain, and it would grieve me to refuse one who has shown me such kindness,—one to whom I have grown so fondly attached. I know what you would say, Senora; that I am wasting my talents. Why should I seek for fame and the applause of multitudes when my voice can be raised in the service of my Creator? There are hundreds here to sing for the amusement of the people, but in Santa Maria there is none to sing the praises of God save myself. You would tell me that the people love me. Believe me, Senora, it is the love of a child for a new toy. Today they love, tomorrow they will have forgotten; but down in Santa Maria there are hearts that never forget. The roses have brought me their message of love and longing for my return, and I go to my home, to my own dear people, whose blood flows in my veins, whose ways are my ways, whose joys and sorrows find an echo in my soul.

Why, dear Senora, should I remain in your dreary gray city, where the mists have chilled my heart when in Santa Maria the sun is shining, the roses are blooming, the blue waves are singing on the shining sands, and the fishing boats are dancing on the bright waters? The Virgin's roses are leading me as they led my people of old, and I shall arise and follow; for Our Lady was a mother, and she knows the sorrow in my mother's heart at the thought of her child star, from home and kindred. I know not if you have a mother, Senora—I have never heard you mention her name,—but if you have, you will not ask me to remain and break my mother's heart. Again I thank you for your care and kindness, and I pray the Holy Virgin to protect and keep you.

Farewell! ROSITA.

Mildred Trevanion's voice trembled with emotion as she read the pathetic little letters and her eyes were wet as she said: 'I never knew my mother, Maurice. She died when I was a baby. But, if she were living, not all the wealth and applause of the world could keep me from her.'

Maurice stroked her soft hair in silence for a moment, then he smiled tenderly down into the tear wet eyes as he quoted Jose's words: 'Only in our valley will they grow, Senora; only there of all the world. You can't transplant the roses of Santa Maria.'

It was dusk on the second day of Rosita's journey when the train pulled into Palmerston, pausing long enough for the exchange of a few passengers. Jose had gone hours ago; so hailed a cabman, Rosita bade him drive her into the valley of Santa Maria. At the foot of the hill she dismissed him and made her way along the familiar highway by the waning light of a crescent moon float in the western sky. Now, and again she heard the sound of voices raised in song or the tinkling notes of a guitar; but as night advanced the lights died out from the wayside houses, and no sound broke the silence save here and there a dog's sharp bark, that changed to a joyful whine of welcome as its owner recognized the wayfarer.

The town lay wrapped in slumber as she approached her home. She decided not to arouse the household, so she quietly passed up the broad stairway, and gained her own room unnoted. It was just as she had left it; and even in the darkness she could find all the little personal belongings which had stamped it as her own. The salt air blowing in through the open windows carried her face, and the fragrance of the roses thrilled her like the clasp of friendly hands.

Morning dawned, flooding the valley with golden light, waking to new life and beauty the bright waters and the shining strand. Here and there about the town, spirals of blue smoke curled thitherly upward, adding their pungent fragrance to the clear, sweet air. Down on the beach fishermen passed to and fro in wait of preparation; then one or two launched their slender, brown-sailed boats into the deep.

Slowly the old padre climbed the worn steps of the church to ring the Angelus bell. It was a task he loved; and yet, since Rosita left them, it awakened sad memories and sadder forebodings in his heart. Would the voice which had answered the bell in the past be turned from the service of the Virgin for the sake of the stranger's gold? Would the robes and applause of a great city wean the child's heart from those who loved her, and make her careless of her Faith, as wealth and fame had made many another who set forth with ideals and aspirations as high as hers? He put these thoughts from him as a distraction, and bowed his head in prayer as he rang the Angelus. And then his heart stood still for joy.

From the balcony of the great house across the piazza a golden voice flung forth its challenge to the birds,—rang out rich and clear and exquisitely sweet in the Magnificat.

BRONCHITIS Prince Edward Island Railway

Was So Choked Up She Could Hardly Breathe.

Bronchitis is an acute inflammation of the mucus membrane lining the air tubes of the lungs, and should never be neglected, for if it is very often the disease becomes chronic, and then it is only a short step to consumption.

On the first sign of bronchitis Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup should be taken, and thus prevent it becoming chronic.

Mr. John D. MacDonald, College Grant, N.S., writes:—"My little girl, seven years old, caught a bad cold which developed into bronchitis. She was so choked up she could hardly breathe. Reading about your wonderful medicine, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I decided to try a bottle, and with such good results that I got another which completely cured her. I cannot say too much in its praise, and would not be without it in the house."

that pean of exultation learned from the lips of the Queen of Heaven. The vale of Santa Maria lay hushed and expectant until the last note of that glorious voice died into silence; then from hill and valley, from bay and town, rose a mighty cry of welcome that thrilled the depths of the singer's soul. Turning, she vanished through the long window behind her, and fled along the corridor and down the stairway into her mother's arms. It was worth the dreary months of exile to see the happiness in that face as Rosita whispered that for her earth held no spot so fair as home. Together they turned to greet the neighbors who flocked in from every side, their faces radiant with welcome. Rosita knelt for the blessing of her uncle, the Padre, and kissed his hand in the old familiar way; then, arising, with smiling lips and tear-wet eyes, she greeted her own dear people. No oration she had received in the great city of her triumph had ever touched her heart as did the devotion of these simple folk who flicked about her, not because her voice pleased them, or her beauty charmed them, but because they loved her now as they had done in her babyhood.

Mary Ovington, Jasper, Ont. writes:—"My mother had a badly sprained arm. Nothing we used did her any good. Then father got Hagyard's Yellow Oil and it cured mother's arm in a few days. Price 25 cents."

W. H. Wilkinson, Stratford, Ont. says:—"It affords me much pleasure to say that I experienced great relief from Muscular Rheumatism by using two boxes of Milburn's Rheumatic Pills. Price a box 50c."

SEVERAL DOCTORS COULD DO HER NO GOOD. THREE BOXES OF MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS COMPLETELY CURED HER.

Miss Mary Lebeau, Edison, Sask., writes:—"I was troubled with heart disease and nervousness for over two years, and was so bad at times I had to sit up at night being unable to breathe, and every little noise would make me shake and shiver. I tried several doctors, but they were unable to do me any good. A neighbor then advised me to try a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. As soon as I began to take them I began to feel much better, and by the time I had used the third box I was completely cured. I would advise anybody suffering from heart disease and nervousness to try these pills. They will save quite a bill in doctor's fees."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cure all heart and nerve troubles by their restorative influence on every organ and tissue of the body. Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
