CHAPTER XXXVI. CONSPIRATORS.

"Which he can unmake!" said Percy Levant.

"I think not," murmured Spenser Churchill, blandly. "There have been later wills, I think, but—ahem!—I have taken charge of them—"

"You are a clever fellow, Churchill!"

"Yes, I think I am. I honestly and modestly think I am. I ought to have been a great statesman or a general, my dear Percy."

"You ought, indeed!" said Percy Levant. "But—pardon me—although I believe every word you say most implicitly, I am afraid the world—including the marquises—will want some proofs. It is all very well to say that Miss Marlowe—that is, my wife," he put in hurriedly—"is Lord Stoyles's daughter; but proof, proof, my dear fellow!"

"You're no fool, either, Percy," said Spenser Churchill. "Of course we want proofs, and here they are!" And he took some papers from his pockets. "Here is the certificate of marriage of Lucy—Miss Marlowe's mother—to the marquise; the certificate of Miss Marlowe's birth; a full and an exhaustive statement of Lady Stoyles on her deathbed, duly attested; and a statement of Jeffrey Flint. Pretty complete, I think."

"Complete indeed. And how did you get them, Churchill? Upon my word, you are a clever man even than I thought you."

"How did I get them?" he repeated, lowering his voice; "I got them from Jeffrey Flint."

"He gave them to you?"

"Not exactly. My dear Percy, I took them. What use are papers to a dead man?" He stopped and turned pale as he saw the scene of Jeffrey's death rose before him. "But don't let us talk of it; it was a most unpleasant affair, I assure you, my dear Percy. But you will, with your quick intelligence, soon understand how, once having those papers in my possession, I saw my way to making, with your assistance and Lady Grace's, a grand coup!"

"Lady Grace's, eh?" said Percy. Spenser Churchill laughed softly.

"My dear Percy, never despise women. They may be fools—I fear they generally are—but they are, oh, they are so useful! Without Lady Grace I could have done little or nothing; but she was really invaluable. Cecil—dear Cecil—was always suspicious of me; but, of course, he trusted Lady Grace, and she and I between us caught him. 'Caught him' is the only expression applicable. To this day he considers himself under an obligation to her which only marriage can repay. He laughed. "Poor Cecil! I can't help pitying him; for, between you and me, my dear Percy, I'd rather marry a tigress than beautiful Lady Grace! But don't let us talk of him or her. Let us talk of ourselves. The whole thing has gone splendidly, though I say it. Providence, my dear Percy," and he turned up his eyes, "has been on our side. The dear marquise—how surprised he would be if he knew this true story I have revealed to you!—is lying in a senseless and utterly incapable condition in London; Cecil and Lady Grace are going to be, if they are not already, married; and you—you, my dear Percy, are the happy husband of Lady Mary, the daughter of the Marquis of Stoyles. Think of it! Realise it, and oh, my dear Percy, make it twenty (instead of the ten thousand you agreed upon! Here are the papers. They are at your service; indeed, I consider that they belong to you—"

He pushed the papers across the table, smiling with oily triumph and satisfaction, and Percy Levant leaned forward to take them, when a thin, wasted hand clutched them clawlike, and a harsh, strained voice said:

"No! They are mine!"

Percy Levant sank back into his chair and wiped the perspiration from his brow; but Spenser Churchill sprang from his seat, and grabbed at the papers mechanically. Then, as he encountered the piercing eyes fixed upon him, he, too, sank back, and, in a terrified voice, gasped:

"The marquise!"

CHAPTER XXXVII. FOILED.

"The marquise!" gasped Spenser Churchill, and he sank back, still staring at the haggard and wasted face, from which the piercing eyes glared down at him like ardent coals, with a fearful, horrified gaze.

Then he half-rose, and, with a grotesque attempt at a smile, wagged his head at Percy Levant, who stood erect and alert.

"This—this—is a very pretty little plot, my dear Percy," he said; "but you don't imagine that the dear marquise will take your word against mine? Marquis"—and he managed to raise his eyes to the fierce face with a ghastly attempt at a smile—"I am sorry that you should have been deceived by what was palpably an attempt on my part to lure this gentleman into a trap. He is—you don't know him, but I do, and I must introduce him. This man is an adventurer, a scamp who would sell his soul for a ten-pound note. You won't let his word weigh against mine—against Spenser Churchill's!"

"It is quite true, my lord," said Percy Levant. "As this man says, I am an adventurer. I have been willing to sell my soul for a ten-pound note; I am utterly unworthy of belief—his voice grew hoarse and broken—and it is only the influence of a woman's pure and spotless nature that has, at the eleventh hour, induced me to stop short in the villainous work to which this man tempted me. I am as bad as he—up to this point. I ask for no mercy, no indulgence, no credit; for his own lips you shall judge him, and from the papers you have in your hand."

The marquise just glanced at him—no more—then turned his fierce eyes upon Spenser Churchill again.

For Her Sake;

OR,

The Murder in Furness Wood.

CHAPTER I.

This rare rose garden had been planned by Diana Cameron, and she was proud of its loveliness. It was protected from cold winds by dense masses of hollies and chestnut-trees. A white marble fountain and a few graceful statues gleamed from amongst the roses. For those who loved the queen of flowers the place was a paradise. Every kind of rose found a home there; but Diana loved the old-fashioned ones best—the damask-rose with its dark loveliness, the cabbage-rose with its luscious perfume, the maiden's blush with its dainty color, the moss-rose with its mystical veil, the white rose, rarest emblem of innocence, the Gloire de Dijon with its rich yellow hues. There were countless varieties, from the humblest rose that grew to the latest product of high cultivation.

WITH FINGERS!

CORNS LIFT OFF

Freezone is magic! Corns and calluses lift right off— Doesn't hurt a bit

A few cents buys a tiny bottle of the magic Freezone at any drug store. Apply a few drops of Freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly that troublesome corn or callus stops hurting, then shortly you lift it out, root and all, without any pain, soreness or irritation. These little bottles of Freezone contain just enough to rid the feet of every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes and the calluses on bottom of feet. So easy! So simple. Why wait? No humbugs!

Strangers were seldom, if ever, taken thither. The little group with Miss Cameron now were her most intimate friends—Lady Colwyn of Colwyn Hall, who loved her with a warm, motherly affection; Sir Royal West, a man past his first youth, owner of the neighboring estate of Westwater; and Richard Marche, called by courtesy her cousin, although he was related to her only in the third or fourth degree. These three composed the heiress' court, and one or other was almost invariably with her.

It was with something like a sigh, after a few minutes' silence, that she held out her little jeweled watch to them.

"It is time to go indoors," she said. "You are staying to dine, Lady Colwyn? I am so glad!"

If the desire of Lady Colwyn's heart could have been granted, she would have stayed at Furness altogether.

"It is my turn, Diana, to escort you," said Richard Marche. "I am growing jealous of Sir Royal."

"Dear Sir Royal!" cried the heiress; and she turned to him a face full of bright kindly regard—eyes shining with kindness, lips sweet with smiles. Next to her father, Diana Cameron esteemed Sir Royal more highly than any one on earth; but it was not, and never would be, as a lover. She laid her hand on Richard Marche's arm, and smiled on him with utter unconsciousness of inflicting pain. "You take care of Lady Colwyn, Rich," she said; and her cousin obediently followed her sweetly imperious command.

They wended their way amongst the roses, laughing and talking carelessly, brightly, and happily.

"I wonder," said Diana, as they drew near the house, "whether papa has returned?"

"Where did you say he had gone?" asked Sir Royal.

"To Sir Granley Tresham's," replied Miss Cameron. "He went yesterday morning."

"How is it that you did not go with him?" asked Sir Royal.

"They were very anxious for me to do so; but I was there on Tuesday, and I did not much care for some of the people staying in the house. I did not like Lady Scarsdale and her daughters."

"Why not?" inquired Richard Marche.

"They are not my style. They are proud and arrogant; and I did not like Lady Scarsdale's manner either to my father or myself."

She did not see the look, half of wonder, half of dismay, exchanged between Lady Colwyn and Sir Royal.

"I thought the daughters were nice girls," said Sir Royal carelessly; yet under the veil of those light words there was no little suppressed anxiety.

"Good-bye to the sunshine and the roses!" cried the beautiful young heiress, as she entered the house.

As she looked round, she was all unconscious that the brightest day of her life would close with the setting of the sun. The following day was to bring her news of a dinner-party—one that would prove the beginning of her troubles.

DANNUNZIO IN CONTROL OF FIUME.

PARIS, Sept. 16. The Jugo Slav Peace Delegation here has issued the following statement regarding the situation at Fiume: "An armed conflict occurred at Fiume on the nights of September 12th and 13th, when one thousand Italian soldiers arrived from the occupied territory of Istria and Slavonia. The battleship Dante Alighieri was unable to sail, her engines having been damaged purposely. Troops landed from the ship and joined the Danes and the Italian military authorities and commanders of Allied troops were powerless to restore order, preparations for the rebellion having been carefully made. The rebels drove away the English patrol stationed in the Governor's palace. Demonstrations against America, Great Britain, France and Jugo Slavia occurred. Dannunzio addressed the soldiers and crowds and then the Italians drove the Jugo Slavs and soldiers from Fiume and Susak. The French, American and British have left Fiume on board ships. It is feared that the regulars of the Italian Army, who were sent against the rebels, will make common cause with them."

ONLY CARRIED AWAY.

ROME, Sept. 16. The Republican Party has passed the following resolution relative to the Dannunzio coup at Fiume: "The temporary liberators of Fiume were carried away by noble impulse rather than political calculation. They thus deserve the sympathy of the nation, although it is an illusion to consider as an accomplished fact the occupation of Fiume as final."

UNIONISTS AND LABORERS.

LONDON, Sept. 16. Informal discussions are afoot as to the possibility of a working agreement between the younger members of the Unionist Party, headed by Lord Robert Cecil, and the Parliamentary Labor Party, according to the political correspondent of the Central News.

WITHDRAWING FROM BUDAPEST.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 16. The Rumanian Army has begun to withdraw from Budapest, a steady movement of trains being in progress. It is believed that retirement will be completed within a fortnight.

THE SYRIAN OCCUPATION.

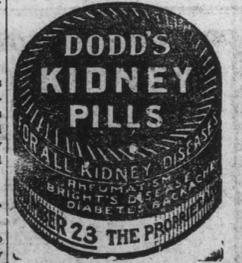

PARIS, Sept. 16. An agreement reached by Premier Clemenceau and Field Marshal Allenby of the British Army concerning the occupation of Syria, provided for the evacuation of all Area north of the frontier between Palestine and Syria on or before November 1st by British troops, according to morning newspapers. The British will be relieved by French forces with the exception of the districts of Damascus, Homs, Palah and Aleppo, which will be left out of the area of occupation, but will pass under French influence, it is said.

MUST HAVE LEGAL RESIDENCE.

VIENNA, Sept. 16. In an effort to cope with the food and fuel conditions, the Austrian Government has just issued a decree expelling from the country all persons who do not claim legal residence here.

WILSON'S INTERPRETATION.

On Board Wilson's Special, Sept. 16. —Setting forth publicly for the first time his interpretation of the League of Nations Covenant as it affects Ireland, President Wilson said in a statement to-day that the League would constitute a forum, before which could be brought all claims for self-determination, which are likely to affect the peace of the world. The Covenant would not bind the United States to assist in putting down rebellion in

THE HURRICANE'S WORK.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Sept. 17. To-day more than seventy hours after the tropical hurricane and tidal waves that tore huge rents in this coast city and environs, it was still impossible to estimate with any degree of accuracy the loss of life or damage to property. Each report from the searchers, however, revealed the increasing magnitude of the disaster. It was believed that it might be a week or more before the true extent is known. Officials generally were agreed the death list will be in excess of a hundred, and some official estimates placed it as between two and three hundred with hundreds of persons injured or suffering from exposure. Estimates of property loss varied from ten to fifteen millions.

STEEL WORKERS MAY STRIKE.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 17. John Fitzpatrick, chairman of the National Committee for organizing iron and steel workers, who arrived here to-day from Cleveland, told newspaper men that unless at the last minute a telegram was received from Elbert Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation Board, a strike of iron and steel workers would go into effect on Sept. 22nd.

ILLINOIS STRIKERS PUNISHED.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 16. A convention of the United Mine Workers of America yesterday disposed of the Illinois strike problem, refusing seats to the contesting delegates by a vote of almost eight to one, and thereby sustaining the action of the International and State Mine officials in depriving twenty-five Illinois legions of their charter for indulging in an unauthorized strike. The vote was taken after two days' debate.

Fads and Fashions.

The new hats sometimes use quills as effective ornaments. Navy blue and black is a favorite color combination for suits. Fancy rolls can be made up charmingly in the draped surplice. Short sleeves, to be worn with long gloves, appear on some street costumes. The full skirt is the newest line, but the straight-line silhouette is as good as ever. Brocade is being used more than any other material for wraps and elaborate gowns. Some suit coats are not only embroidered, but have heavy cord girdles around the waist. The skirt with extended sides has so much prettiness that Fashion is loath to give it up. It is said that the dangling and elaborate neck chains will go out all at once, like all over-done fashions.

"I Really Believe It Has Saved My Life," She States

Winnipeg Woman's Recovery By Taking Tanlac Surprised All Her Friends.

"My wonderful recovery has been a surprise to all who knew my dreadful condition," said Mrs. Amata Hooley, of 863 Fleet Avenue, Port Rouge, Winnipeg, Canada, recently, in one of the most interesting and remarkable statements yet published in connection with Tanlac. "My system has been badly run down for several years," continued Mrs. Hooley, "and although everything was done for me that could be done for a person I got worse instead of better. I had begun to think Tanlac was going to fail me, too, as I could not see much improvement, if any, until I started on my third bottle. At that time I thought of giving it up, but it had it would have been the mistake of my life for, really and truly, it has made a new person of me. My stomach was in the worst kind of shape and my appetite almost entirely gone. Nothing tasted good and even the most delicate and tempting foods did not appeal to me. What little I did eat passed on my stomach and the gas from it would bloat me and make me miserable. Then I contracted rheumatism in my left leg, which finally attacked my whole side, and it was as much as I could do to get around. In fact, I was right down in bed for six weeks, hardly able to move. This leg would pain me so, especially at night, that I couldn't lie still. There was also a terrible pain that started in my right shoulder and went up the back of my neck clean to the top of my head. This pain was so severe at times I thought I would go distracted, and I have used mustard and the strongest kind of liniments until I actually burned the skin off trying to get relief. I would lie awake night after night just waiting for my whole side to get a wink of sleep. I would get up mornings feeling like a wreck, unable to sew or do my housework, and would get so weak I would almost faint and feel like I was dying. I would have dizzy spells when I could hardly stand up, and these left me so weak and faint that I feared my heart was going to stop beating. "Last year all arrangements were made to put my children in a convent, as I had been given up to die. My nerves were in such a shattered condition that I couldn't stand the slightest noise. Even the children playing around would almost make me frantic. I had fallen off in weight until I was scarcely more than a frame of skin and bones. At the time I began taking Tanlac I only weighed ninety-three pounds and my condition was really alarming. My husband advised me to stick to Tanlac until I had given it a fair trial and while I was taking my third bottle I commenced to get relief. I have used five bottles now and my improvement has been nothing less than wonderful. A few days ago I went to visit a friend and she had so much to say about how well I looked that I asked her if I had really been very sick and faint that I never had any idea I would live. I have not only gotten relief from all my suffering, but I have actually gained twelve pounds in weight besides, and I am just so happy and grateful over my recovery that I want to tell everybody about Tanlac." St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac Representative. —adv.

An Obstinate Animal.

Yesterday afternoon an ox being driven over Market House Hill by two drovers, created amusement for a crowd of onlookers. In spite of the efforts of the men in control it would persist in walking up the steps, and getting under the railing, would come down again. After several such performances and a few bites of the grass which adorns the place, the animal went peacefully to its destination.

ROME, Sept. 17. GENERAL DIAZ RECALLED.

PARIS, Sept. 17. General Armando Diaz, commander in chief of the Italian army, has been recalled to Rome from Naples, where he had been on a vacation, according to a Havas despatch, dated Sunday, received from the Italian capital. Upon his arrival it was stated he entered upon a lengthy conference with King Emmanuel and the Italian Premier.

POWER'S NEW POLICY FOR CHINA.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 17. Discussing at length the Shantung provision of the Peace Treaty, President Wilson said in an address here to-day, that he had been assured by the Great Powers that under the League of Nations there would be a new international policy for the protection of Chinese integrity. The Powers, said Mr. Wilson, had Japan's promise to return Shantung to China, and intended to see that it was fulfilled under the League. He said he had asked colleagues at Versailles, specifically, whether they meant under the League to inaugurate a new policy toward China, and they told him they did. Far from being detrimental to China's interests, declared Mr. Wilson, the Treaty really was the first in the world's history to do something for China's benefit. In all previous instances of Chinese territory, he said, the United States had not even protested.

ALL PAST AND GONE.

OTTAWA, Sept. 17. Whatever semblance of a "love feast" there may have been against the National Industrial Conference, in the first days proceedings, it is all past and gone. The recommendations of the Royal Commission on industrial relations for bettering labor conditions in Canada, which has been supplied by the labor group, has been somewhat roughly handled at times by their opponents, and the resolution on shortening the hours of labor, went to the committee at noon to-day with both sides apparently unmoved.

The total for last year was twelve.

BERLIN, Sept. 17. Hon. Mr. Millie, Minister of Mines, declared that the diamond output of South West Africa would be compulsorily handed over to the Union Government for disposal. The Govt. would be guided in this matter by an advisory board on which the diamond producers would be represented.

A MEMORY

OF MISS DOROTHY BARTER

"O pure in heart! from thy sweet dust shall grow
Lilies, upon whose petals will be written
'Ave Maria' in characters of gold!" —Longfellow.

A flower beside the wayside crushed,
When all its petals spread most fair,
When rich in loveliness it blushed
Gracefully there.

Upon life's threshold, full of youth,
She looked into the future years,
Saw all things bright with love and truth,
And knew no fears.

She saw no hint of hopes that fail—
Of sorrows that becloud the way—
Nor broken hearts, that mark the trail
Of every day.

From life that knew no breath of blight
Into eternal life she's gone
Bright angels claimed her spirit bright
And bore her home.

Be comforted, ye hearts bereft
Of one so dear,
Deep is the wound, indeed, that left
Ye weeping here.
To ye who mourn a daughter's loss,
God, in Thy love Divine,
Send patient strength to bear this cross,
To bear and not repine.

Hundreds of people on Water Street East, between half-past twelve and one o'clock to-day, witnessed a unique sight. The bearer of the burden was staggering under the weight of his human load but courageously kept at it until finally he landed it safely in the haven where it would be.

Overpraise is disservice to the thing or person praised. Everyone knows that. Had everyone the experience of having a story or a tale or a pretty girl so highly praised beforehand, the actuality of a disappointing and making one feel defrauded and even resentful. I am sure one would disagree with me so far.

But outraged sentimentality is going to give a cry of dissent when venture to step farther. For I dare think that it is even possible for mothers to over-praise their children. One would distrust The Mother Wasn't Proud.

For a mother to be proud of her child is a perfectly natural thing. One would distrust the mother who wasn't. And, to a certain extent, one is only tenderly amused by a mother who has an over-exalted notion of her son's or daughter's value. There is a little incident related about the mother of the distinguished divine, Theodore Cuyler, which arose in this sort of feeling. When he was in England he wrote his mother a letter in which he described his presentation to Queen Victoria. She was tremendously excited about the event and rushed to communicate the news to her neighbours. "I've just got a letter from England," she announced, "and what do you think happened—the Queen has seen Theodore."

Of course, one only smiles at the particular incident, but I do think there are times when mothers are a less lenient feeling by over-doing the eulogy of their children.

Perhaps The Neighbours Were L Amused.

Specially when the overdose is frequently repeated. It amuses us to hear that the Queen has seen Theodore, but how about the neighbour who had doubtless been fed up with Theodore for years?

ARE EVEN MOTHERS EXCUSABLE

RUTH CAMERON

Overpraise is a disservice to the thing or person praised. Everyone knows that. Theodore has had the experience of having a story or a trip or a pretty girl so highly praised beforehand that the actuality is disappointing and makes one feel defrauded and even resentful. I am sure no one would disagree with me so far. But outraged sentimentality is going to give a cry of dissent when I venture to step farther. For I dare to think that it is even possible for mothers to over-praise their children. One Would Distrust The Mother Who Wasn't Proud.

For a mother to be proud of her child is a perfectly natural thing. One would distrust the mother who wasn't. And, to a certain extent, one is only tenderly amused by the mother who has an over-exalted notion of her son's or daughter's value. There is a little incident related about the mother of the distinguished statesman, Theodore Cuyler, which arouses this sort of feeling. When he was in England he wrote his mother a letter in which he described his presentation to Queen Victoria. She was tremendously excited about the great event and rushed to communicate the news to her neighbours. "I've just got a letter from England," she announced, "and what do you think has happened—the Queen has seen Theodore."

Of course, one only smiles at this particular incident, but I do think there are times when mothers arouse a less lenient feeling by over-doing the eulogy of their children. Perhaps The Neighbours Were Less Amused.

Specially when the overdose is frequently repeated. It amuses us to hear that the Queen has seen Theodore, but how about the neighbours who had doubtless been fed up with Theodore for years? I know a mother who is laughed at by a whole town because she is ro-fatuously garrulous about her son's and her daughter's remarkable qualities. (They are perhaps a little above the average—but no more, if that.)

And just the other day a little friend of mine came to see me boiling with indignation. "I've just had to listen to Mrs. R. raving over what a good, unselfish daughter Mary is because once 'na while when she's home on her summer vacation she gets the supper. And you know how she lets her mother slave, sewing and washing for her. It just makes me hate Mary to have to listen to that stuff."

Is Good Taste To Be Wholly Ignored? There is another point besides the disservice such praise does its object. Of course, mothers have a special dispensation, but is the question of good taste to be wholly ignored? The children are the mother's own flesh and blood, they love them and see them in such rosy hues for that reason. In praising them they are in a way, praising themselves. It is natural and beautiful that mothers should be tender to faults and very proud of virtues, but would it hurt the quality of their motherhood if some of them used a little more taste and self-restraint in their expression of these very natural states of mind?

If a rounded teaspoonful of lard is added to pancake flour, the pan need not be greased. A cretonne-covered sugar barrel with a covered top is a handy receptacle for soiled clothes.

What France Lost.

Can you imagine the United States without the grape country of California, the textile mills of New England, the steel of Pennsylvania, the coal of West Virginia, and the iron of Minnesota? If you add to this list the chemical works of Delaware and the farm lands of Wisconsin, you have some idea of what the devastated areas meant to France, says World Outlook.

In square miles, of course, the ruined land cannot compare with all these states. As a matter of fact, it is a district just about the size of Maryland, but France is a compact land, where cities crowd upon each other and industry is congested. The devastated region, six per cent. of all France, furnished ninety-four per cent. of the total wool output of the nation, ninety per cent. of the flax, ninety per cent. of the iron ore, eighty-three per cent. of the pig iron, seventy per cent. of the steel, seventy per cent. of the sugar and fifty per cent. of the coal.

During the years of invasion 26,000 factories were stripped of their machinery, 12,000,000 head of cattle seized, and nearly a million farm implements destroyed.—Ex.

Helping Nature.

As a rule, Nature can and does take good care of herself, but she can be helped, as agriculture shows.

Left to themselves, the thousands of varieties of pigeon will all go back to the common blue kind, all apples to the crab; all plums to the sloe, and so on. She can also be helped to good effect by importation. The apple is a stranger in Tasmania, yet there it flourishes best; the fuchsia is a stranger in the British Isles, yet in Manxland they make hedges of it. But these things need to be done with care. Occasionally Nature hits back hard, as in the case of the rabbit plague in Australia, which has cost the Island Continent millions just to keep it in limits; or, as in the case of the sparrow in America, which has ousted, by its pugnacity, many birds far more desirable.

But perhaps the funniest case of this kind occurred in Bermuda. The island was free from reptiles of all kinds, but its insects were, and still are, many and various and ferocious. Some kindly individual, having heard that the toad was a champion insect-destroyer, introduced toads on his estate.

The climate suited Mister Toad to perfection, and he speedily spread everywhere, until he became a nuisance and plague like unto a plague of Egypt! Then the islanders brought themselves of the importer, and presented him with a testimonial for his zeal, in the form of a pie. When opened, this "dainty dish" was not full of blackbirds, but chock full of toads!

Minard's Liniment Co. Limited. Gentlemen—I was badly kicked by my horse last May, and after using several preparations on my leg nothing would do. My leg was black as jet. I was laid up in bed for a fortnight and could not walk. After using three bottles of your MINARD'S LINIMENT I was perfectly cured, so that I could start on the road.

Household Notes.

Precision is the first requisite toward success in the kitchen. Plaster Paris molds are easily made and are very decorative.

Constance pudding made with chocolate is an agreeable change. Burnt toast is one of the small items of waste that nobody thinks of. When cooking cabbage do not cover it. There will be no unpleasant odors.

OCTOBER.
I like October weather with its touch of early frost
And the trees aglow with jewels which some dead old king has lost.
And I like the distant hill tops looming far away from town
In their garb of gold and purple and that glorious autumn brow.

I like the mist that rises with the coming of the sun
To betray some bit of beauty that has just been newly done;
Oh, there's nothing that's too lowly on the breast of Mother Earth
To receive a touch of color as a symbol of its worth.

I like October's manner for its generous will Every leaf is splashed with splendor
ere it must fall;
And it passes from its labors to its everlasting rest
Not as one that's worn and weary, but as one that's at its best.

Oh, it never comes October but the thought returns to me
That I'd like to end my toiling as a leaf upon the tree—
I should like to flutter eastward, touched with scarlet and with gold,
And pass onward robed in splendor
for the Master to behold.

Youth Found Murdered

PROVES TO BE THE BOY WHO DISAPPEARED WITH $178,000 WORTH OF BONDS.

New York, Sept. 9.—A photograph of a youth found murdered in Milford, Conn., several weeks ago, was identified to-day at New York police headquarters as that of Benjamin M. Binkowitz, a Wall street messenger boy, who, according to the police, disappeared on August 12th with $178,000 worth of Liberty bonds entrusted to him for delivery by his employers, Whitney & Co., bankers and brokers. A nation-wide search was begun for the boy after his disappearance. Shortly afterwards, the Milford murder occurred. Working on the theory that the stranger had been slain for the bonds he is alleged to have had in his possession, Detective Frank Virell, of the Connecticut State police, came here to-day to establish identification. The boy's mother, when shown the photograph, declared it was that of her son.

Up To Mr Brownrigg.

In his speech at the Squires endorsement meeting at the Casino Theatre a few nights ago, Mr. Henry Brownrigg made "Opposition to the Reid Company's operation of the Railway," his chief topic, and demanded reform. It is fair, therefore, to ask whether he bases his expectation of reform upon the political past of Mr. Squires or Mr. Coaker or both combined. He has read the charges so definitely made on many occasions, about the receipt of monies by Mr. Squires from the Reids. He has read that Coaker stultified himself in 1918 by agreeing to increased passenger and freight rates. He has read that Mr. Coaker was a suppliant to the Messrs. Reid to endorse his note of hand.

Reading all these unadmitted and undeniable charges, what guarantee has been offered to satisfy Mr. Brownrigg that reform will spring from such a tainted source? Squires, Campbell and Brownrigg are announced as the Liberal (?) Reform ticket for St. John's West, but most interest will be felt in the latter, his two colleagues having been in the public eye for some time. Mr. Brownrigg is a citizen of good reputation and a Municipal Councillor whose services have been satisfactory, and he is also of the type of man whom people like to have take an active part in public life. He has hitherto been a Liberal by political affiliation.

Now that Mr. Brownrigg has consented to serve under a banner, inscribed Liberal (?) Reform, it is quite proper to ask him what is the reform element of the party, what is the part of the policy he will support, and what guarantees of reform that party offers the country. What is the understanding—the plan of campaign—as Mr. Brownrigg knows it, between the Squires-Coaker faction, in opposition to the Government?

A few days ago Mr. Squires and Dr. Campbell attended a meeting at the Advocate Office for a political conference, and the day before yesterday following the advent of Mr. Coaker to the city the same persons held another conference in the same office. All these men named have been bitter opponents of each other, and nothing but political necessity brings them together now. The persistently hostile attitude of Mr. Squires' papers, Star and Post, towards Coaker: the absolute silence or secret favor of the Advocate towards Squires, with the incidental agreement of these organs of Opposition about all and everything that they can say about the Government—all these things spring from a secret agreement. And that being so we ask Mr. Brownrigg pointedly, and request an answer: Is he a Squires man, a Coaker man, or a Squires-Coaker man, and in either case how can he longer expect to be classed as a Liberal?

A Distinction and Difference.

In the speeches made at the Labor meeting last night, as reported by the Post this morning, a fundamental error was made. Mr. Bennett, for instance, is reported to have "referred to the lack of interest by the Government in the Labor problems." Of Mr. Whitmarsh it is said "his denunciation of the Government was right to the point." Mr. Charles Foley is represented as having "scored the Government for their criminal neglect of the people's interests." It is said of Mr. Willar that he "referred to the manner in which the Government have neglected the people. They had absolutely given no consideration to the needs of the masses during the past four years." And Mr. Whitty is represented as "scoring the Government unmercifully for over 15 minutes."

Now allowing for the exaggeration and misrepresentation which the Post would naturally indulge in, it may be concluded that no distinction was made by the various speakers between the Government of to-day and the Governments of the past few years, beginning, say, with that of Sir Edward Morris from 1909 to 1918 and including that of Sir William Lloyd from the commencement of 1918 until May last. The Government of to-day is not the Government of the past few years. It is not responsible for the conduct of Governments of the past few years. It has no responsibility whatever for any acts of commission or omission prior to the day in May last when it came into being. Three members of the present Government were never before May last, in any Government. One member has not been in a cabinet since 1900. One was not a member of the cabinet during 1918, or until May of this year. The present Premier, though a member of the Government for several years, is now for the first time occupying the dominant position.

Speaking of "the Government," then, as meaning the Government of to-day, under the Premiership of Sir Michael Cashin, it is not correct to say that "it has shown lack of interest in the labor problems which have beset the country in the past few years." The Government of to-day is not responsible for any lack of interest in labor matters prior to May last, and has not shown any lack of interest since that date. It is not fair, to say, as one speaker is represented to have said, that "the Government is now promising everything at the eleventh hour in the face of past criminal neglect," because this Government has not shown any criminal neglect, is not at its eleventh hour, but in the very early hours of its being, and is not promising everything, but simply indicating a desire to do whatever is possible for the betterment of the laboring classes, as well as of all other classes of the community.

Lamp Explodes.

WOMAN AND CHILD BADLY BURNED.
Through the explosion of a lamp a woman named Bramm and her infant baby, were badly burned at their home, Walsh's Lane, yesterday. It appears the woman was asleep with her infant when the accident occurred, their screams attracted the attention of two boarders in the house who went to her assistance. When a doctor was called it was found that the woman and child needed hospital treatment.

Inmates' Entertainment.

Yesterday the Gower Street and Wesley Epworth Leagues gave the inmates of the Poor Asylum a treat which they will not soon forget. Early in the afternoon this practical band of charity workers met at the Asylum, and at 6 o'clock had the inmates delighted at the abundance of the good things provided. Tea being over an appropriate programme of music was furnished by the S. A. Band, No. 1. It would be well if some other none-too-busy christians would follow the example of the Epworth League.

Writes From Russia.

Rev. (Captain) George Hewitt, now in North Russia, Writes Friends in The City.
From a letter received in the city from Rev. (Captain) George Hewitt, of H.M.S. Cyclops, Archangel, North Russia, we are permitted to use some extracts. He says, "I had quite a nice experience up at the front, living most of the time on board a gun-boat. Occasionally we used to strafe the Bolsheviks a bit, until, one day, we managed to hit a small mine, which did a little damage to our hull, but caused no casualties. I was on the bridge at the time, but my things were all in the ward-room and were destroyed, and for a while I had only the clothes I stood up in. The Captain's cabin was wrecked, too, and so, as there was no accommodation, I went to live on another ship, the Hyderabad."
Referring to the big naval battle that was fought, he says that "it was one of the greatest battles that was ever fought in Russia. It started at 11.30 a.m. on August 19th, and ended at 1 a.m. on the next day. Our objective was reached and we captured 2,000 prisoners and 19 field guns. According to opinion in England this is the end of our offensive here and at present we are at comparative peace as the Bolsheviks have no strong force this side of Kotlas. I expect to be in England before the winter, but how long I shall stay before proceeding further I do not know."

McMurdo's Store News.

THURSDAY, Sept. 18.
With the coming of colder weather, it will be necessary to take measures to protect your complexion from the cutting effects of the harsh winds of autumn and winter. For this purpose, some people prefer cold creams, some rather favor vanishing cream. Both are good and useful in their way, and in McMurdo's Vanishing Cold Cream you have a toilet luxury which combines the advantages of both kinds, the softening and soothing effects of the Cold Cream with the cleanliness and invisibility of the Vanishing Cream. On the whole this cream, skillfully combined of the purest and most reliable materials, nicely perfumed, not messy or greasy, and pleasant in every way in use, will be likely to please you more than anything of the kind you have yet used. Good sized pots, 50 cents.

TWO OPINIONS.

Mr. Coaker's Opinion of Squires in 1918: "Squires acted a traitor to the National Government at the last minute. The black rascal SQUIRES, YOU MUST NEVER TRUST. If I should die tomorrow never allow Squires to represent a district where you have any voice. Squires has been intriguing for leadership all the summer. He tried to make a row between Mr. Stone and myself three months ago, by playing nice to each of our faces. He promised Dr. Lloyd he would support him up to Wednesday. SQUIRES IS NO LOSS. HE HAS NO RIGHT IN THE GOVERNMENT AS HE IS A DEFATED CANDIDATE. All that the devil could suggest was done by W. D. REID, SQUIRES AND ALL THE ANTI-UNION CLIQUE to down and out Lloyd and myself."

Mr. Coaker's Opinion of Messrs. Cashin and Crosbie, at the Same Time: "Crosbie and Cashin stood by us to the last breath. They were coaxed and all sorts of influences used to get them, but THEY STOOD AS FIRM AS SIGNAL HILL. They proved to be our devoted supporters in the darkest hour of our trial. They held the key, but refused to use it but for OUR SUPPORT."

St. John's Public Does Not Have To Pay Exorbitant Prices

The situation for British Goods is now serious. We knew this for many months. We saw the impending high prices. Our British Buyer left for market early in May and bought goods which we now offer in immense quantities at prices much below the possibilities of any other store. We urge the public in justice to themselves to buy their Fall and Winter requirements NOW.

All Women Agree That for thirty-five years we have had the reputation of always giving the best value in St. John's in undermentioned goods. We feel sure that when you see our present stocks you will agree that we have smashed all records.

Good Men Wanted.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I would again endeavor through the columns of the Evening Telegram to draw the attention of the public to the subject of wheat raising in Newfoundland.

No doubt many people are still under the impression that wheat cannot be successfully grown in this country, but if such persons were to visit the little village of Milton, Trinity Bay they would there see a small field of golden wheat waving in the breeze.

This wheat is owned by Mr. Simeon Adams who has successfully grown it on his farm for the past three years.

The first year he sowed a pint and reaped six or seven gallons. The next he sowed six gallons and reaped nearly a barrel. The first week in May of this year he sowed sixteen gallons and he has now a fine lot of wheat, three and a half feet in height, ready to be reaped.

But Mr. S. Adams is not the only one interested in wheat raising. On the farm of J. Adams and sons can be seen both wheat and barley ripening in the sun.

It has been proved without doubt that wheat can be grown in our own land just as well as potatoes and turnips. Still much of our soil is lying fallow and we are importing our flour from America and Canada at such an enormous cost.

Perhaps some time in the future we may have a Government interested in the welfare of our land and doing its best to encourage home industries and production. Let us hope that there will come forward men, not sham, but real men, with souls and consciences, who will represent the honest, industrious people of Newfoundland and who will regard the cause of the poor as well as that of the rich. Men who will make laws of righteousness and equity.

Such a time will come only when the voters of our country put self and selfish interests aside and vote for the men who have the interest and welfare of our country at heart.

The voters are mainly responsible for the existing state of affairs today in politics.

No doubt when the prospective members of Parliament come around to the outports again this fall our people will be captivated by their flattering speeches and false promises. Surely there are some men left in old Newfoundland who has not bowed the knee to Baal. Honorable men whose words are as good as their oaths.

Let them come out as our representatives and let the voters discern between the false and the true and vote so that Newfoundland politics may no longer be a disgrace to our Colony.

Yours truly,
—E.A.

STANDING ENQUIRY.—The S. S. Fern enquiry was continued yesterday at the magistrate's court. Capt. Linderup was further examined re ice conditions at the time of standing, at 5 p.m. the court adjourned and met again this afternoon at 2.30.

Mr. Squires' Soliloquy.

"I needs must think," the new-made Leader said.
"Things move so swiftly yet so slow
That I am quite confused.
I had not thought that running a remnant party were so hard.

It seemed to me, in days when dreams were pleasant
And Ambition leaped and leaped
And left me spent and quite exhausted for the while,
That it were quite an easy matter then and now
To run a party and myself.

With papers at my bidding, Post and Star,
And Advocate to help me if I chose,
That, with their help, to lead the way were child's play.
I was mistaken. But now that it's too late I can't turn back.

Had I but known! Had I but known!
Those candidates,—why do they stay? Cannot they see

That, with me as their leader, they could be
The lords and masters of this land?
I spoke and let my powers flow.
Oratory poured forth from my lips,
To force, if needs be, candidates to run.

What do I lack? There must be something
That they do not like. I cannot see
What it can be.
Blind fools, to hesitate!
'Twill be too late

In a few weeks.
'Strike!' said the poet, and strike they should.
There's graft and boodle for the picking. Why hesitate?
With Squires at their head what can they fear?
I'll even give them back their beer!
The people cry aloud for me—at least the Star has said they do.

Why wouldn't Bond consent to follow me?
(He'd be of help to put me in the seat
Now filled by that arch-scoundrel, Sir M. P.!)
'Tis hard! 'Tis doubly hard! A Leader without men or followers!

I cannot fight the knaves myself.
Of course I have the doctor—two, in fact. Both are trusty men and true.

'Tis true I'd rather see them better taken.
The voters seem to think it very funny
When they speak and write and dwell upon
The graft and boodle of the Cashin-men.
What can it mean? Are voters fools?
Can they not see that I am fit and only I
To lead the country through the troublous times
(The times the Star and Post aptly describe, tho' what they are I do not know)

That faces it.
'Tis hard that I, who feel so much that graft should go (to me and mine)
Am left thus all alone—alone, all, all, alone, Alone on a wide, wide sea!
(And as I think of all the graft and boodle that awaits the plucking
And see, in my mind's eye, how I would pluck!
How CAN I stop? How CAN I remain cool?)
I can't. It cannot be.

Until the grafters all are on the run.
Out they must go
That much I know,
To make room for me.
There is not graft for all
And I want a haul
I'm thirsty and I'm dry
But I won't be by and bye
When I'm Premier of this old coun-tree!
So heigh-o my lads,
And heigh-o my boys,
Vote for the L. R. P.
And mark your X for me!"

—PUCK.

Popular Wedding at Grand Falls.

MR. MATTHEW GRACE AND MISS FLORENCE FORAN.

On Sunday the 24th August, there was solemnized at the Church at Grand Falls the marriage of a couple very popular in the community. The groom who is a son of Martha and the late Michael Grace of Placentia has been an employee of the engineering staff of the mill here practically since the start. The bride who is a daughter of the late Wm. and Mrs. Foran is a lady very active in everything that pertains to the charitable and social well-being of the town. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. Finn, P. P. and was witnessed by a large congregation of well wishers. The groom was supported by Mr. Martin Foran and Mr. Anthony Grace, while the bridesmaids were Miss Gladys Fulton and Miss Rita Foran. The bride's dress consisted of a creation of Georgette Crepe and crepe-de-chene surmounted by a large picture hat. After the ceremony the large assembly of guests repaired with the party to the house of the bride's mother where all were happily entertained till the arrival of No. 2 express, when a great many escorted the happy pair to the station, to take the train for Placentia where the honeymoon is being spent. The young couple were the recipients of a large number of valuable and useful presents. We trust that the sunshine of their bridal day is but a forerunner of a long and happy voyage on the steam of life.—Com.

A Pioneer of Peaceful Penetration.

On Sept. 18, 1714, George I. landed at Greenwich, and the rule of the Hanoverian House began over Great Britain. It did not open with the most promising auspices. For one thing George's consort was missing, and never came to England, her connection with the handsome Spanish adventurer, Konigsmarck having caused her confinement at Ahlden, where she spent the remainder of her life. Again, although George's eldest son was with him, the two notoriously were on bad terms, and throughout the reign their quarrels were a fruitful source of scandal and weakness. But worse still in the opinion of the people was the invasion of foreign favourites. Among the men, Bernstorff, Bothmar, and Robethon engrossed all influence and were more than suspected of selling it. Then there were the two mistresses: Schulenberg, afterwards Duchess of Kendal and Munster, and Kielmansegg, made Countess of Darlington, both of them noted for their rapacity. "Goot beebles!" exclaimed Schulenberg once, when the object of a dangerously hostile demonstration on the part of disgusted Londoners: "we has come over here for all your goods!" "yes, &— you!" retorted a voice; "and for all our chattels, too!" The remark was just; it was an early example of "peaceful penetration," carried on with characteristic German effrontery. Thus, even at the outset, was originated that discontent with the Hanoverian tie of which the Opposition, particularly the elder Pitt, made much effective use in the years to come. George I. no doubt, had some merits. He was sufficiently honest and had fought with courage. But he was obstinate, without the slightest tincture of literature and science, and as ignorant of English manners, as of the English tongue. Nor had he any personal graces to recommend him; in short, only the incapacity of the Stuarts enabled the Whigs to establish the throne of the Guelphs.

The Political Simmering.

The political pot is beginning to simmer merrily, and like many a simmering pot the scum is coming to the surface.
There are apparently no policies to be offered for the people's judgment—nothing, but personalities and a general muck-raking.
The Cashinites are largely depending on their influence as fish buyers to control votes by paying high price for fish.
The Squires element seems to have but a small measure of success, and does not appear to have got very far on the road towards a solid party structure.
Mr. Coaker has been diligently digging in the "back tyre" area, and has succeeded in unearthing a putrid bone, the "Poor Relief Act" passed during the Winter-Morine Guel, and is successfully misquoting and adapting it to his own uses as a weapon wherewith to slay Mr. Morine politically.
The average man who stops to think must, however, wonder how it was Mr. Coaker did not discover what a vile creature A. B. Morine was until he left the Coaker party. He was the same man then, the same "sponsor of the meal and molasses act" (to quote Mr. Coaker) that he is now. If his hands are stained now they were not less clean when Mr. Coaker so eagerly grasped them. Mr. Coaker will have difficulty in explaining to people how he came to hope to touch pitch and not be defiled.
For the Cashinites they go merrily on their way, and it seems that they left the Coaker party. He was the same man then, the same "sponsor of the meal and molasses act" (to quote Mr. Coaker) that he is now. If his hands are stained now they were not less clean when Mr. Coaker so eagerly grasped them. Mr. Coaker will have difficulty in explaining to people how he came to hope to touch pitch and not be defiled.
In our opinion we look for the return of the Cashin party to power. St. Barbe, Bonavista, and Fortines are dead certainties for the Coaker party. Twillingate, although still strong in every of Capelin has gone back to a large extent, and especially is this Hardly Fair Argument.

(Twillingate Sun.)
A good deal of hard talk is aimed at Mr. Morine these days. A lot of it is no doubt justifiable. There is just one point, however, where we do not think his opponents are quite fair, and that is in decrying him because he is a Nova Scotian. It should be remembered that Dr. Campbell, one of the leaders with the opposition party is also a Canadian, and it should further be remembered that Mr. Duff, of Carleton Place, Newfoundland, was a candidate (if not a representative) for the Nova Scotian Provincial Parliament.
We do not think that the question as to where a man comes from is therefore a fair or legitimate part of propaganda.

THE DAILY NOPE

BY THE CUB-EDITOR

LIMEHOUSE WHARF.

O have you been to Limehouse Wharf? Where many sailors go? The bowsprits of the ships stick out Over the wharf in row: And some ships come from China (It's a long, long way from China!), Hong Kong and Valparaiso And Cork and Calicut!

Do you know Jim the Limper's house Down by the waterside? The bowsprit of a ship one day That came up with the tide— A ship that came from China (It's a long, long way from China!) Made a hole right through the window Ever so round and wide.

O ship that came from China, I wonder why you came, Did you bring tea, I wonder, Or spice, or rice, or grain? Or did you come from China (It's a long, long way from China!) Only to make that big round hole In our Jim's windowpane?

THE JUDGE LOST.

An idea of how strategy wins in court is seen from the following incident which occurred in a small Kentucky town.

A young man accused for house-breaking was up for trial. After undergoing a stiff questioning, he was made to understand that his offense carried a heavy punishment. His clever lawyer was, however, equal to the test.

"Your honor," he said, "I submit that my client did not break into the house at all. He found the parlor window open, inserted his right arm and removed a few trifling articles of minor value. Now my client's arm is not himself, and I fail to see how you can punish him for an offense committed only by one of his limbs."

"That argument," said the judge, "is very well put. Following it logically, I sentence the defendant's arm to one year's imprisonment. He can accompany it or not, just as he chooses."

For a fleeting moment, this decision caused a brief lull within the courtroom. But it soon changed to a seething storm when the prisoner calmly unscrewed his cork arm and leaving it in the dock, walked out.

HIS SECRET OF SUCCESS.

Gent: "Well, my little man, and how do you manage to catch big fish like that?"

Little Man: "Well, guv'nor, yer gits into the water, crawls quietly under a stone, and makes a noise like a worm, and there yer are!"

FEMINE COURAGE.—We walked down Water Street the other afternoon and never again will we doubt woman's courage. The costumes some of them wore testified to their bravery.

I believe it is by persons themselves in the right that nine-tenths of the tyranny of this world has been perpetrated.—Thackeray.

HERE'S ONE FOR YOU.

Why was the Shah of Persia, during his visit to England, the best card played in world? Because the swells gave up their clubs, workmen threw up their spades, and the ladies were within an ace of losing their hearts when he came to show his diamonds.

A DIFFERENT MATTER.

"He's the most obnoxious pestiferous little pup on the earth, sir," belittled the angry neighbour, "and I tell you you've got to keep him in your own garden. The next time he comes over into my garden and tramples down my flowers, I'll take a stick to him and—"

"You dare to so much as shake a finger at my dog and I'll knock your ugly head off your shoulders!" shouted the other man.

"Who said anything about your dog? It's your beastly youngest boy I'm talking about," snorted the first speaker.

"Oh, that's quite a different matter then," remarked the father. "I'll give the little begger a sound thrashing at once. Awfully sorry he's annoyed you in any way. It shan't occur again if I can help it."

Master: "What is a zebra?" Pupil: "A horse in a football jersey."

THEIR YOUTHFUL AMBITIONS.

Mark Twain says that he has been much struck by the way in which the friends of his youth have given up the high ambitions of their boyhood. Colonel John Hay, for instance, aspired in the pride of his young ambition to be a steamboat mate; and "in fancy saw himself dominating a forecassie some day on the Mississippi, and dictating terms to roustabouts in high and sounding tones."

But he sank lower and lower: "down—down—ever down," until, after being Ambassador to Great Britain, he became Secretary of State. Mr. Cable, the famous novelist, wanted in his boyhood (according to Mark Twain) to be a ringmaster in the circus. "And Uncle Remus—what do you think his young dream was?" asks the genial humorist. "To be a buccaneer! Look at him now!"

THE HORSE IS DECEIVED.

A horse sees everything about twenty-two per cent. larger than does a man. So that a six-foot man looms up a little short of seven feet six inches high. The fact has, of course, never been proved, but a favorite explanation of the larger image in a horse's eye is that if a horse knew man's exact size he would realize his power and pass beyond his control.

ISN'T THIS SO?

When a youth is eighteen he is in love with a girl of thirty-six. When he's thirty-six his eyes are on the girl of eighteen.

HE TOOK THE HINT.

For two long years the shy young man had been paying court to the young damsel and had never even dared to squeeze her hand.

At last, one evening, emboldened by the shadow of the trees, he said timidly:

"Rosabel, would you—er—mind—er—if I placed a reverent kiss on your fair hair to-night before I leave you?" Rosabel thought he needed a little encouragement, so she dropped her head coyly on his shoulder and lifting her face temptingly upwards, replied: "Well, I should think—"

ANXIOUS.

Teacher: "What made you late this morning, Johnnie?" Johnnie: "Please, mum, a burglar has been caught in the East End, and mother sent me to the police station to see if it was father."

SOMETHING FOR THE STAR.
 You can get along mighty well with a fellow who hates the same man that you hate.

A FRUITARIAN.—Leonardo da Vinci was immoderately fond of oranges. With this fruit and bread, he would at any time make a meal.

SURE!

How bitter a thing it is to look into happiness through another man's eyes!—Shakespeare.

[For example: When a rival sees his girl in another man's arms!—C. E.]

MAYBE, PERHAPS!

Patience—Some wedding, was it? Patrice—It was certainly. You see Peggy had six men for ushers and she had been engaged to every one of them at some time or another.

Patience—Odd, wasn't it? Patrice—Yes, and she wouldn't let the organist play Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

Patience—No? Patrice—No, no. She had him play "Hall, Hall, the Gang's All Here!"

JUST SO.—Right: "Don't you wish you could live your life all over again?"

Digby: "No, I don't. I've got a twenty-year endowment policy maturing next month."

NOT IN NELD.—About 2,240 pounds of apples are required to make 150 gallons of cider.

[Yes, but what's the use of knowing this when we haven't got the apples.—C. E.]

THE RESOURCEFUL BARBER.
 "Why do you insist upon telling me these horrible stories of ghosts and robbers while you are cutting my hair?" said a long suffering customer to a talkative hairdresser.

"I'm sorry, sir," replied the barber "but, you see, when I tell stories like that to my customers their hair stands on end and it makes it ever so much easier to cut."

Meet us again to-morrow.—The Cub-Editor.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.
 Women with gray hair should never use curling irons; it turns the hair yellow.

It should never be forgotten that keeping a home up to a high mark is a high art.

A handful of raisins is an excellent addition to a child's or grown person's lunch.

Cut cardboard boxes in convenient sizes to use as sink brushes. After using them, burn.

Add a pinch of flour to the grease before trying eggs. This prevents the grease spattering.

The Port of London.
 (From the London Daily Mail.)
 London is one of the largest ports in the world. Millions of tons of shipping enter her river and docks yearly. Yet probably not one Londoner in ten ever sees an ocean-going ship in the course of the year, unless he goes to some other port or to the coast. This is not necessarily due to indifference. There are many probably who would like to see the shipping of London but find it difficult to do so. The docks are not easy of access, and the banks of the river are very hard to come at below London Bridge. There may be a few by-ways to the waterside, known to those who live near by, but the average Londoner, unless he is something of an explorer, probably does not know where to get a view of the river between the Tower and Greenwich. And he cannot, as of old, take a boat below the bridge, for it is some years since any ran. So, unless business takes him over London or the Tower Bridge, he sees nothing of the Port of London—and even then only what may be called the tail-end of it. He may perhaps get a glimpse of tall ships in the distance if he came up by rail from a southeastern suburb, and the tramway car that goes by Rotherhithe takes him within a few yards of these same ships. But it remains that the layman—that is, the man who has no connection with ships or shipping—has little chance of getting down to the wharves and quays of London and so misses much of the interest of the city in which he lives. It is not so in all ports. Seemingly it is only in London that city and port are divorced.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

WALTON MASON

When comes, with soothing sighs, I grow so tired of swatting flies, which light upon my roof! Through all the weary months since spring I've swatted flies upon the wing, and also on the hoof. When Spring arrives, all fresh and young, and first the call to arms is sprung, I swat the flies with glee; I think it goodly exercise to chase and execute the flies, but now it wears me. Throughout the balmy days of May I take my swatting stick and slay, with fierce and ardent hand; and when the roses bloom in June my Berserk song I weirdly croon, and swat to beat the band. And in the heat of mid-July, I'm on the spur of every fly that still remains unslain; and August finds me, stern and grim, still rending buzzers limb from limb, though bent beneath the strain. But when the mild September comes, the pesky fly and all his chums may roost on wall and floor; though I have slain ten billion flies, the ghastly truth I recognize—there are ten billions more. You've heard about that fabled gun who rolled a stone that weighed a ton up hill forevermore; no useful purpose he achieved, and that's why he was pained and peeved, and why his head was sore. No man enjoys his work on earth unless he gets his labor's worth in one or other guise; to roll a boulder up a hill until one's feet get tired and chill, is much like swatting flies.

Working Men Will Enter Six Candidates.

COMMITTEE OF FIFTY TO APPOINT CANDIDATES SELECTED.

Will Meet To-night to Make Selection.

A large audience of working men attended the preliminary meeting in the Casino last evening, held for the purpose of selecting a committee of fifty that will appoint six candidates to represent labor in the forthcoming general election. Three will be placed in each of the West and East Ends of St. John's District.

Mr. Jas. McGrath, President of the L.S.P.U., occupied the chair, while on the platform were Messrs. Whitty, Foley, Bennett, Tucker, Willar, Caldwell, Whitmarsh and others. Mr. McGrath was the first speaker, referring, mainly, to the need of labor entering candidates in the field, as the time for having direct representation in the House of Assembly had at last arrived. It was for justice and fair play only that the workman looked, he said, and no employer need have any fear of what labor intends to do. The opportunity was then at hand, and if not grasped now may never again be available.

Mr. P. Bennett, representing the N. I.W.A., denied that the move of labor was being engineered by the Government, as stated by certain papers of the city. The time has come, said he, when labor must be represented on the floors of the Assembly. All classes, doctors, lawyers and commercial men, have been represented, but never yet has the workmen been directly represented from a man or men from among its ranks.

Mr. Whitmarsh, representing the Shipwrights, compared the country to a ship. He stated that the old ship was in a bad state and needed good men to repair and look after her. For over a century the workman had been asleep and it was now high time for him to awaken and become active.

Mr. Foley, for the Clerks, felt that the time for active work had arrived. He wanted to have labor represented in the legislature, and he wanted men who were honest, trusted, and capable. He wanted men who knew the conditions under which the workman labors and lives and for that reason must directly from the working class should be sent to the H. of A.

Mr. Willar delivered the star address of the evening. His remarks were sound, sensible and excellently delivered. The applause that greeted them was eloquent of the consideration he received from all present. For every four years past, he said, the Governments had given a rich bunch of promises, but forgot them promptly just as soon as the election was over. Labor has never had any say in the nomination of candidates. If the workmen would simply decide to put representatives in the Government nothing could stop them, as they constitute fully 90 per cent. of the population. Mr. E. J. Whitty then moved the resolution.

"That a committee be appointed to select candidates to contest the districts of St. John's East and West."

"That when a selection of candidates was made, that requisitions be prepared and signatures obtained thereto, requesting the candidates to be placed in nomination."

"That the candidates be known as the Workingmen's Party."

The resolution was seconded by Mr. Woolridge and carried.

Mr. Whitty then delivered a few remarks, touching chiefly on the wrongs of the present period. Certain things, like the minimum wage, child labor, and others, had been neglected by the Government and it would be part of the duty of the labor representatives to rectify such conditions.

Old laws have been made but nowadays new ones are needed. This is the first chance labor has had of nominating its own candidates and putting them in the House of Assembly. This opportunity should not be discarded.

Mr. Fred Gough, of the Carpenters, spoke from the hall. And after some others had also spoken from the body, the selection of men for the committee was begun. The names of those would not be given by the chairman of the meeting, when asked for by the Press representatives. Fifty were appointed, however, being comprised of twenty five from each district, East and West. The committee meets to-night at 8.30 in the N.I.W.A. Club Rooms, over the Plaiddealer Building, Springdale Street. The candidates will then be nominated and elected.

1. Thou shalt heed the call of Plain quiet wall papers and white woodwork wherever such is possible.

3. Thou shalt see that thy walls and thine own personality are not to forward, but modestly retiring.
4. Thou shalt use no large-patterned wall papers against which to hang thy pictures. The one will kill the other.
5. Thou shalt have no centerpiece or cornerpieces upon thy ceiling, but only a very nearly plain expanse of light color.
6. Thou shalt have thy fill of bright tints, and delicate designs for bedrooms and boudoirs, but for drawing-rooms, dining-rooms, libraries and halls, thou shalt be compelled to use less frivolous papers.
7. Thou shalt, when the ceiling is not too high, run the paper of the side wall up to the ceiling, putting the border just below the angle.
8. Thou shalt not panel the walls of a small room, except it be above a mantelpiece, a sideboard or a bookcase, where a bit of tapestry, a mirror or a picture may be held in place by strips of moulding.
9. Thou shalt use attention-compelling cut out borders, or conventionally designed strips for divisions between walls and ceiling.
10. Thou shalt remember at all times that thy wall paper is but a background against which to show thy pictures, thy furniture, and thy friends.
