PRAYER MEETING.—The usual monthly Union Prayer Meeting will be held in the Congregational Church, Quebec-st., this (Monday) evening, at 7.30 o'clock.

ARTS' EXHIBITION.—The Directors of the Mechanics' Institute will meet this evening in the Town Hall, at 7.30, to make the final arrangements for the forthcoming exhibition.

CHURCH DEDICATION.—Knox Church, in connection with the Church of Scotland, in Caledon, was opened for Divine service on Sunday week. The opening sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. W. E. McKay, and the sermon in the evening by the Rev. D. Strachan of Hillsburg.

A week ago last Sabbath a man, named Edward Boyd, of Elma, was preparing to take his family to church in a wagon. While the horses were standing attached to it, five of the smaller children got in; the horses took fright and ran off, the wagon was upset, the children thrown out, four of them were uninjured, but one little boy had his leg badly torn by a hook so that two of the main arteries were severed and the knee joint laid open.

MILITARY REVIEW AND CONCERT.—The Orangeville Sun has an account of the opening of the new Drill Shed, which took place at that village on Tuesday, the 21st inst. The Orangeville, Erin, Mono Mills and Whittington Companies were reviewed in the afternoon, and in the evening a Concert was given by the officers of the Orangeville company, the Band of the Tenth Royals and a number of amateurs taking part in the performance.

COURT OF CHANCERY. This Court met here on Friday last—His Lordship the Hon. Chancellor Vanhook presiding. The following cases have been heard: Biggar vs. Allan and Eby.—This was a suit to try the ownership of a piece of land lying to the west of the Commercial Hotel, in the village of Elora, and to restrain the defendants from erecting a building upon it. A number of witnesses were called on both sides, after which His Lordship gave judgment in favour of defendants, Charles Allan and Eby, dismissing the Bill with costs, as against them, and in favour of defendant Grace Allan, on the questions of ownership and right of way, and reserved his decision as to the right to build. Mr Drew for plaintiff; Mr McGregor and Mr Guthrie for defendants.

THE RED MILL. In the early part of the season Mr. Geo. Balkwill purchased the building on the Waterloo Road known as the "Red Mill" together with the land and water privilege belonging to it. He immediately set to work to strengthen and make such alterations as were necessary on the old building, and to put in the machinery for a grist mill. The mill has now been running for over two weeks. The iron and millwright work was done by Messrs. Mills & Melvin, under the superintendence of Mr. John Watt, than whom there is not a better millwright in the country. There are two run of stones, one for chopping and one for gristing. The bolt is what is called a country one, and may be used either for gristing or in making bag flour. The mill is admirably planned so as to do the largest amount of work with the least possible manual labor. Mr. Balkwill has procured a patent grain separator, which is attached to the hopper, and through which the wheat passes before it is ground. What dirt or refuse is left in the grain after passing through the smut machine is here removed. The whole machinery is driven by an overshot water wheel, twenty feet in diameter, and five feet broad. Provision is made for adding another run of stones at any time. Mr. Balkwill has shown great energy and perseverance in getting everything in rights about the mill, and we doubt not he will be amply rewarded by a large and profitable business.

FERGUSON'S MILL. This mill, erected by Mr. Alex. Ferguson on one of the branches of the Speed, near Wolfe's Bridge, has been running

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN GUELPH IN 1867.

DAVIDSON'S WOOLLEN FACTORY. Although the Guelph Woollen Factory has been some five years in operation, yet as it has been enlarged this season, and as Messrs. Davidson have lately made large additions to the machinery, and made some changes in their business, a short notice of it will not be out of place. Until this summer Messrs. Davidson confined their attention mainly to customer wool carding and weaving of flannel and cloth. They have, however, been gradually getting on this kind of business, and are now engaged almost exclusively in manufacturing blankets and yarn for the wholesale market. They have recently procured and fitted up the necessary machinery for this purpose, and are now in a fair way of doing a large, and we hope profitable, business.

The factory being close to the Speed it is supplied with power from that river.—The building is large and commodious, but all the available room is required for the proper working of the machinery. In the upper part are two large spinning jacks of 200 spindles each. On this floor also are two large blanket looms and a small one, besides spooling machines, warping mills, reeling machines, &c.—These warping mills are a great improvement on the old method of preparing the warp for the looms. The threads when being wound off the cylinder on to the roller are kept separate, and being again wound round the beam of the loom all the twisting and sticking together is avoided. On the ground floor are a couple of power looms, which, when in operation, will turn out a large amount of work.—Here also we have another spinning jack with 180 spindles, besides two sets of broad manufacturing machines consisting of what is termed the first and second breakers and the condensers. The mode of working these is of course similar to what we described in the story. The mode of Messrs. Armstrong, McCrae & Co's. Factory. On the basement floor we have quite a miscellaneous collection of machines. Here is the picker for cleaning the wool, a broad gig armed with teazels—a plant which grows in France and South America, and contains at the head of the stalk a lot of sharp burr-like spirals—for raising the wool on the surface, and giving to the blanket that soft, downy-like coating of wool which we so admire in the blankets sold in the stores. These teazels are fixed on a large drum, which revolving comes in contact with the blanket, and with their prickly points seize every loose flake of wool and brings it to the surface. Here also are two scouring machines—one for yarn and wool, and another for cloth and blankets—and a fulling mill.

Hitherto Messrs. Davidson have been at a great disadvantage in not having sufficient accommodation, nor the proper apparatus, for dyeing. But an addition has been built to the factory this summer, which is to serve the purpose of a dye house, and which will give them greater facilities for doing better work and in much shorter time. In this building a boiler, made by Messrs. Adam Robertson & Sons, has been put in for supplying steam for the dyeing vats. Having procured the services of a first-class dyer, they are now in a position not only to dye their own yarn and cloth, but also to do all kinds of customer dyeing, whether in silk, cotton or any other fabric, scarlet, black, brown or any fancy colors. The want of a good dyer has hitherto been a great drawback in Guelph, and now that they have secured one, we hope he will be well patronized. Adjoining the dye house is an apartment which is to be fitted up with pipes for drying the yarn, wool or fabrics which have been dyed by steam.

When in full operation the factory will employ about thirty hands, who will be able to turn out about twenty pairs of blankets a day, besides yarns, plain and fancy. The blankets and yarns which the Messrs. Davidson have already manufactured are excellent in quality and finish and bear a high character in the market. We hope that their enterprise which prompted the large outlay of money required to stock such a factory with valuable and costly machinery will be amply rewarded by a large, profitable and yearly increasing business.

MURRAY'S FACTORY. Close to Davidson's Factory, in a part of Gow's old tannery, has been fitted up a place for two sets of custom carding machines, spinning jacks, power looms, &c., owned and worked by Mr. Geo. Murray, who has succeeded to the custom business formerly done by Messrs. Davidson.—Farmers as before can therefore have all their carding and weaving done in town, for Mr. Murray is prepared to do roll carding, and weave all kinds of flannel, linsey, fulled cloth, &c., on short notice, and on reasonable terms.

THE GOVERNMENT AND THE BANKS. The Globe of to-day says:—On Saturday evening we received the following despatch:— OTTAWA, Oct. 26. "The Government will continue to receive notes of all chartered banks, except the Commercial Bank of Kingston, and the Bank of Upper Canada. "JOHN A. MACDONALD."

Important Cabinet Meeting. The Globe's correspondent sent the following telegram last night:—(Messrs. Galt and Cartier arrived here by special train, this morning, from Montreal, and a meeting of Council has taken place this afternoon (Sunday). This sudden activity has caused quite an excitement in town, many imagining that a Fenian raid had taken place. The tone of the public press on the question of the currency and the chartered banks is beginning to alarm the Government, who find they have no supporters of their scheme to establish a national bank. It is believed now that their intended policy will have to be abandoned. Messrs. Galt and Cartier, it is said, leave to-night by special train for Montreal."

THE GOVERNMENT AND THE BANK OF MONTREAL AT LOGSBURGH.—The Bank of Montreal has used the Commercial Bank as a depository for postal monies where they had no agencies—the manager at these agencies remitting to the Receiver-General by draft on the Montreal Bank at Ottawa. By instructions from Mr. King, payment of a large number of these drafts has been refused at the agency here. The Government has protested these drafts in order to hold the Bank of Montreal responsible, and will enter suit at once, it is said.

THE TITLE OF MALORY.—This is the title of a new novel, which we have received from the wholesale house of Tunig & Co., Clifton. It is published by Harper Bros., and the author is Le Fanu, who is already known to the readers of fiction as the writer of several interesting romances. The scene opens in Wales, and the easy, pleasing flow of the diction, and the deep interest we are made to take in the characters, will keep the attention of the reader unflinching to the end. For sale at Day's bookstore.

since last winter, and has been found of great convenience to farmers requiring gristing or chopping. Mr. Ferguson is now putting in another water wheel and otherwise improving the mill, by which means he will be in a still better position to do the work of his customers.

POWER LOOM WEAVING. We were agreeably surprised on paying a visit to the Red Mill to find in the building across the road from it, formerly used as a turning shop, a power and hand loom owned and worked by Mr. James Mitchell. The power loom is worked by a small water wheel, which is driven by the water which leaves the Red Mill. Mr. Mitchell was engaged at the time of our visit in weaving some check flannel of a very nice pattern. He is prepared to do all kinds of custom weaving, and seeing he has been at so much expense in putting up a power loom, he ought to be well patronized by our farmers and others who require custom weaving.

Police Court. Before T. W. Saunders Esq., Police Magistrate.

Stabbing Affray. MONDAY, 28th.—Wm. Waugh was charged with having stabbed Henry Marriott on Saturday night last. The prisoner is a bright, intelligent looking little boy; he is nearly thirteen years of age, but looks fully two years younger. He bears the character of being quiet and inoffensive. Marriott is much bigger and older than he, and is said to be turbulent and mischievous. On Saturday night about 8 o'clock Waugh was standing on the sidewalk on Wyndham street in company with another boy some place near Poitree's drug store, when Marriott came along and began, provoked, to use bullying and offensive language towards him, ordering him to leave. This the little boy refused to do, and Marriott for some time desisted from his abuse. Some person came along and gave Waugh an apple, and he took out his knife to pare it. Marriott again violently renewed his attack, this time kicking him, when the latter told him "he would stick him with the knife." Marriott struck him in the face, when the other fulfilled his threat, and stabbed his assailant in the left side about the lower rib. This put an end to the quarrel. Marriott was rather badly wounded, and the blood flowed profusely from the cut. The wound was dressed at Higinbotham's drug store, he was afterwards taken to Dr. Howitt's and finally carried home. He is not considered to be in a dangerous condition. The little boy was arrested and had to stay in goal over Sunday; this morning the case was postponed until Wednesday, and he was released on bail.

Nancy Dolan was charged as usual with vagrancy. Nancy requested to be sent to goal for the winter, but the magistrate only complied with her wishes so far as to send her up for 20 days.

Guelph Evening Mercury

MONDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 28.

PITY, KIND GENTLEMEN!

The Advertiser on Saturday had a violent attack of Mercury fever, which showed itself in various little, ugly blotches breaking out all over its pages. After a careful and minute examination of the unfortunate patient, our medical adviser, whom we sent specially to examine into the case, pronounced the fever to be intermittent in its nature, and of a very aggravated and chronic character. So violent has been the attack, and so strangely does the patient act, that it is feared mental aberration has ensued, which if not soon removed may result in confirmed insanity.

It seems the remorse for having stolen a large quantity of local news from the Mercury is the primary cause of the attack. The malady began to show itself on the day after he was accused of the theft, but it was hoped that by timely treatment, low diet, and constant applications of ice to his head it would be removed before the symptoms became more violent. Unfortunately, however, he became so far lost to all sense of honour as to repeat the dishonest act on Thursday last, by copying from the Mercury, word for word its report of the County and Erasmosa Ploughing Matches. Immediately after this second theft, the upbraidings of the "silent monitor" became incessant and unanswerable. The patient could get no rest day or night. Even the well worn excuse that he had been daily in the habit of copying without acknowledgment did not in this case afford consolation or relief because he had been detected and exposed in the act. At last the disease began to manifest itself in a dangerous form. The medical attendant had serious thoughts at one time of putting the patient in a straight jacket, fearing he might do harm to some one. It is said, but we cannot vouch for the accuracy of the statement, that he was seen more than once parading the streets at night, brandishing a formidable "shooting iron" which during the excitement of the late election he was in the habit of carrying in order to frighten belligerent Clear Grits. Knowing his penchant for strong writing it was thought if he could be induced to indite a flaming article or two against the Mercury, his mind would be somewhat relieved, and the attack worked off in this fashion. Accordingly he was induced in a calm moment between the paroxysms to sit down, and all the appliances being laid before him, he dashed off the paragraphs in Saturday's paper, and as was anticipated, felt considerably relieved after the operation. As may be seen by the paragraphs in question, however, his nervous system is still very much deranged, and symptoms of monomania are still apparent. For instance, he displays a most unhealthy affection and prurient taste for low slang terms, such as "slimy beast," "unblushing villainy," "hopeless idiom," "petrified antideluvianism," and other strange and before unheard of expressions. One clear proof that he is not exactly in his right mind is that he steadily hugs the belief that he ought to enjoy a heaven-granted right to the monopoly of publishing a daily paper in Guelph, and that all other competitors are miserable upstarts who ought to be crushed at once by public opinion. As public opinion seems to be in no hurry to do this crushing business, his disappointment and wrath are extreme, and threaten to be more fatal to himself than to any else. Another indication of his weakness is that though he patches since the election for the South Riding, he still imagines, or at least tries to make the public believe, that he gets them daily like the Mercury. Having within the last week become quite flush of money, he throws around the dollar bills in the most reckless style, and dares us to bet our "little pile" and cover his hundred dollars. We would, of course, be sure of losing our money if we bet with one who pays such a large sum for telegrams. And not being in the confidence of the Government, it would not be fair for us if he included the despatches which he daily receives from John A. at Ottawa. It is well known in political circles that since the Advertiser turned Conservative and supported the Coalition, the Government policy even on the most insignificant question is submitted to its erudite editor by John A. for his approval before being sanctioned by the Privy Council. The cost of telegraphic communication between those two distinguished personages is therefore enormous, and sufficient of itself to break down an establishment like the Mercury. But the Mercury does get the daily telegraphic news despatches, which the Advertiser does not, nor has it done so since the beginning of September, and on this point we don't care though we risk our $100, although we can't afford to sport our money in this reckless fashion like the Wyndham street millionaire.

We shall narrowly watch the development of this disease which has recently, but not for the first time, afflicted our contemporary, and if any remedial means at our command will be of the slightest use to him either in allaying the fever, or in getting it completely out of his system, we shall have much pleasure in helping him. We fear, however, that so long as he meddles with the Mercury no improvement will take place. It is an ugly customer, and though he has been pounding away at it for more than five years, until he has lost nearly all the sense and reason he ever possessed; it shows no marks of punishment, but is to-day as vigorous and healthy as ever. Mercury is a valuable but potent medicine, and if our cotemporary continues to swallow in a surreptitious manner such wholesale doses as he has recently done, we fear his health, reason and all won't be worth a day's purchase.

The Suspension of the Commercial Bank.

The following from the Montreal Trade Review gives a correct account of what happened at the meeting of bank managers in that city, held for the purpose of agreeing on some plan for assistance of the Commercial Bank, and also the selfish part that Mr. King, the manager of the Montreal Bank played in the transaction:

On last Monday (the 21st), a meeting of the representatives of a number of Canadian Banks was held at the Bank of British North America in this city, for the purpose of consulting together concerning the advisability of rendering assistance to the Commercial, and the way in which it could best be done. The necessity of such aid being given was generally understood, and it was equally understood what the alternative must be should such aid be withheld. The entire amount needed at the time was only $750,000, or about 8 per cent. on the capital stock of the Banks jointly, and it was proposed that they should each make advances in proportion to their respective capitals. All the banks represented were agreed to this except the Bank of Montreal; Mr. King, on his part, proposed in effect to lend money to the other banks, to lend to the Commercial Bank on the securities offered by that Bank, thereby acknowledging the ability of the Bank of Montreal to do its share towards preventing the impending catastrophe. Mr. King's proposal was, of course, refused by the others, who stated to him that they could see no reason why the Bank of Montreal should claim their guarantee for any moneys he might advance for the Commercial Bank, nor why he should look for exemption from the liabilities the other banks were willing to undertake. Mr. King reminded them that his bank had already advanced $300,000 to the Commercial Bank, but the reply to this was that for that advance he held special securities; that if he would let these securities go along with those offered by the Commercial Bank, the other banks would not ask the Bank of Montreal to advance another dollar until they had made advances respectively in a similar proportion, according to the amounts of their capitals. This Mr. King refused to do, nor would he agree to retain his securities for the special loan of $300,000, and then join the other banks in advancing on the principle laid down. We learn, too, that he would not even advance the $300,000, which would have made up his proportion, but positively refused a shilling to the Commercial Bank, and would only lend to the other Banks, who thus became guarantees of the amount. This he stated was his ultimatum, and prepared to withdraw, but on request, remained for further consultation with the Hon. Mr. Gait, who was sent for. That gentleman, we understand, pressed Mr. King very strongly not to refuse to do his part, but without effect; and when Mr. Cartwright, the President of the Commercial Bank, pointed out the calamitous effect which would be produced should the Bank of Montreal withhold its aid, and that it would be his duty to telegraph to all his offices to close their doors, Mr. King's answer was that he, too, could make use of the telegraph. Before leaving, Mr. Cartwright obtained Mr. King's promise that he would do nothing unfriendly to the Commercial Bank, or calculated to embarrass it, until the meeting had finally closed. It seems, however, that he immediately sent and demanded under protest his balance of over $300,000, against the Commercial Bank here, which had to be paid at once. The deliberations of the bank representatives were continued after the withdrawal of Mr. King and had the securities bonds of the British and Milwaukee Railroad at the rate of 50c. on the dollar, which the Commercial Bank offered, been of a more exceptional character, have been made. The securities, however, were objected to, and nothing was done.

Concerning the Bank of Montreal, we have a few words to say in conclusion. Its conduct on this occasion appears to have corresponded exactly with that which it has practiced for years back. It is pretty well known that had the desire existed, the bank of Upper Canada could have been carried over its difficulties; and many people, too, are aware of the very discreditable (to use a mild word) attempt on the part of the Bank of Montreal to break down or greatly embarrass the Merchants' Bank, some years ago, when that institution had but a small part of its capital called in, and consequently was limited in its means for carrying on its current business. There have been other instances where the Government Bank has used the power it possesses, and it would positively seem that nothing but the ability is wanting to break down all the banks of these provinces, and for the Bank of Montreal to become the one huge monetary centre—the Bank of England on a Colonial scale. Whether Mr. King acts with or without the advice of his Directors, we do not know, but we imagine he is permitted to judge for himself and he is responsible for all faults of omission or commission. The public, however, will not be likely to separate him from the corporation he manages, and his course may raise up for the Bank a host of ill-wishers when and where it might be much more desirable to have warm friends.

LOOK! THE DAILY LONDON ADVERTISER

ADVERTISER is published every evening, and sent by mail at $4 per annum, payable in advance. It contains all the local and general news, the latest telegrams and market reports. As its daily circulation is the largest in Upper Canada outside of the Toronto press, advertisers who wish to reach the ear of the West should take advantage of its columns. The GLOBE says of the ADVERTISER:—"This excellent newspaper now appears in new type, and is one of the neatest papers in the country. The ADVERTISER is well conducted, and though not an old paper has for its daily and weekly editions a very large circulation—larger than any other journal published in its neighbourhood." It is therefore, a first-rate advertising medium.

NORAH CUSHALEEN OR THE HAUNTED CASTLE.

The defile now became less rugged as they advanced, and in little more than an hour they came to a bridge which spanned it.

'Praise be blessed, here's a road at last,' cried Andrew.

'Faix but the road isn't for us,' returned Terry. 'Captain Jack doesn't ride in his carriage, and hasn't got an avenue leading to his ill-gotten mansion. The road above us must be the highway from Ballybrogan to Waterford, and we'll soon leave it; and now that we are coming to where there is a chance of meeting our people, we had better be after acting our parts. You are now Master M'Spurtle, and I am Jim Malone at yer honour's service.'

'Very well, Jim,' responded Andrew; 'I suppose that's the road up.'

'Not another there seems to be,' said Terry, 'but we've got over worse this blessed day.'

The path which wound up towards the high road was extremely steep, but short bushes grew in profusion upon both sides, and by catching hold of these they easily managed to gain the top, and a few yards more brought them upon the unhegged highway.

It was literally a highway, winding as it did round the side of the mountain at a very considerable altitude. At the point at which our travellers came upon it, it presented a long curve or sweep, and one side could be seen winding like a serpent up the slope.

Just at the bridge it passed through a hollow, and was overhung by thick bushes, under whose covert the prowling fox or other mountain animals might find shelter. To the right the towering peak of Skerryvoe came again into view, and more rocks and ravines stretched up towards it.

The pair stood silently surveying the scene, happy to be again in the upper world, surrounded by the gladsome sunshine, and breathing the air under the blue sky, when suddenly there was a crackling among the bushes behind, and several wild-looking men, clad in skins, leapt down upon the road and surrounded them.

'Hilloo, sirs,' said Andrew, in no way discomposed. 'We wurra jist lookin' for company the noo. This is a braw day.'

'Who are you at all, at all?' asked one, who seemed to be the leader of the party.

'Och murder,' cried Terry. 'Don't be after spakin' uncivil to a stranger, who is travellin' the country for pleasure and is mightily taken wid its beauty.—Sure he's a gentleman, and a rich Scotch Squireen.'

'Rich is he,' returned the spokesman of the party. 'Faix thin, it's meself and those bould boys that are happy to hear it. Sure now, Squire, you that's a rich man won't grudge to value yer body at a mighty big sum.'

'My body sir,' returned Andrew. 'My body is the thing that's o' maist value to me; and I'm glad tae say that it's in rale fine condition the noo. This grand mountain air grees wi' my constitution extraordina.'

'Delighted to hear it, my boy. I am a particular friend of one Captain Jack, who resides in this region, and I have the honour to invite you to spend a few days at his hospitable mansion.'

'Och, murder, Mister M'Spurtle, sur,' exclaimed Terry, in pretended terror. 'We have got into the hands of Captain Jack's gang. Ochone, ochone, if we're not ransomed, we will be murdered in cold blood, and what would they murder us for? I am sure we ha'nd done them a preen's worth o' harm.'

'It's their law,' returned Terry, who feigned fright most admirably. 'They make it their profession to seize travellers, and carry them to their cave; and if they're not ransomed within a certain time, bedad sur, it's all up wid them.—Their law is to hang them, or to kill them in some other unchristian way.'

'Weel, that's a gay hard law,' said Andrew; 'but I kee something o' the kind o' gentry. We ance had gangs o' the same kind in oor ain Scottish Heilants—Rob Roy and thers; but that's a' dune noo, and I think this Captain Jack nich't tak up a mair honest trade.'

'Aisy there, sur, if you please,' observed the leader, with a frown. 'Captain Jack and his bould boys won't have their profession run down, and if you are wise enough to take a saine man's advice, you'll not spake an uncivil word about them.'

'Preserve us a'! I was only gie'n my opinion,' remarked Andrew.

'Then perhaps you'll oblige yourself by hidin' yer opinions within yer own teeth. A waggin' tongue has stretched the neck afore now.'

Here a shrill whistle came clear and full from a distance down the slope, and the leader bending a clean eye on the windings of the road, exclaimed—

'By the powers, yonder comes the chaise at last! Let every boy about, go back to cover, and you two, who are now our prisoners, must come wid us; and it ye show yerselves, or make the laste bit o' noise, ye'll find a knife in yer throat the next moment.'

'That wad be a very unpleasant consequence,' said Andrew; 'and as we bawth ha'e muckle respect for our throats, we shall e'en keep a calm sough.'

'Quick!' cried the leader, impatiently. 'We have no time to babble. They may see us.'

He gave a sign to two of the men, who drew each a knife from his girdle, and laid hold the one of Andrew and the other of Terry, and half dragged them among the bushes, where the rest were busy unroasting themselves.

They did not of course make any resistance. Had they been inclined to do so it would have been useless, but as it was, this was the very fate they expected and wished to befall them.

The fellow who had Andrew in charge ordered him to crouch down beneath a his head-or-even move, on pain of instant death; and as the savage-looking fellow grinned horribly, and looked as if by the means what he said, Andrew took care to abide faithfully by his instructions.—

It chanced, however, that a small opening in the bushes, just where his head was, enabled him to see along the road and he observed a chaise coming slowly up, with a postillion riding on one of the horses. It was an open veichele, and in it sat an old gentleman and a young lady. On the box sat a big brawny fellow, who had a blunderbuss in his hand, and conspicuously displayed the same.

Nearer and nearer they came to the spot where the robbers lay in wait for them. All was silent as death among the bushes. There was no rustle, no motion—nothing whatever to indicate that a dozen ambushed men were concealed under the foliage.

What the Fenians Want.
 A correspondent, who signs himself "A Fenian," writes to the Pall Mall Gazette as follows:—We want not concessions from the British Government; we want Ireland for the Irish, wholly and absolutely; and that we shall have. It is not our game to commit outrage, except in self-defence, and in retaliation for any indignities put upon any of our men by our enemy. But we watch, wait, arm, and prepare for the opportunity that will enable us to destroy the British empire effectually, and to avenge centuries of cruel oppression. If England chooses to precipitate matters by bounding on the masses of her ignorant lower classes against our people, then it will be war to the knife; let her look to her volunteers' depots, her magazines, her manufactures, her docks, her stores, and above all, certain of her governing classes. Just take this simply as our position: We mean to fight, and, if necessary for the freedom of Ireland, destroy England. We wait our opportunity, and meanwhile will take care to avenge the slightest injustice done to any of our people by English law, armed police, and infuriated masses notwithstanding.

The Chatham Banner says:—"As the Commercial was the only Banking Institution doing business here, the failure will bear very heavily upon the trade of the neighbourhood, but more particularly on such of our business men whose balances in the Bank were of a considerable amount. We hear of several individuals and firms whose deposits range from $2,000 to $18,000, the total amount, on deposit at this agency being something over $200,000. The loss of this amount, even for a time, will prove very disastrous to the entire trade of the country."

Business Education!

THE importance of a thorough Business Education is pressing itself upon the attention of commercial circles more and more every day, and its advantages are perhaps more emphatically shown by nothing more than by the vanishing ground on which it places the fully trained clerk above the imperfectly trained one, when looking for a situation.

THE BRITISH AMERICAN COMMERCIAL COLLEGE has in full operation such a course of instruction as to give it practical fitness to do the work proposed. An important characteristic of this Institution is its maturely organized actual business system, whereby the College is made a type or model not only of an extensive business house, but even of a large trading community. Another distinctive feature of this College is that it attempts no extraneous teaching. Its work is one, and to the accomplishment of that work every effort is directed. Just as the University and Grammar Schools must be separate institutions, so the Commercial College and the Elementary School must be distinct. Common sense and experience alike show that such a combination is not compatible with efficiency.

The time required to complete the full course varies considerably, according to the attendance, attention and ability of each student. Young men however are earnestly cautioned against the injurious practice of hurrying through the course from the mistaken idea that they will thus be gainers by the saving of money in the term of board. Infinitely more advantageous would it be to the student, since his full course of tuition is already paid for, to incur the comparatively small additional expense of a few weeks board in order to make himself completely master of the course; and thus, by a small present outlay, qualify himself for some lucrative situation. The courses that such haste entails is highly detrimental, not only to the student himself, but also to the College where he graduates; and, besides, it brings opprobrium on Commercial Colleges generally. The common practice, therefore, of holding out this crowding system as an inducement to students is most deceptive and highly reprehensible.

We were again awarded the First Prize at the late Provincial Exhibition, Kingston, for the best specimen of Business Penmanship, and an Extra Prize for our system of Writing.
