THE VOICE OF A HUNDRED YEARS A WARNING TO CANADIANS.

Hon. David Wark in the Montreal Witness.

In February last I completed the hundredth year of my age. During my first fifteen years was subject to George the Third and remember the battle of Waterloo, which was the last of the wars of Napoleon. I then lived through the short reign of George the Fourth, and through the still longer reign of William the Fourth, then the long reign of Victoria of glorious memory, and now am a subject of her son and successor, who promises to be a faithful follower of the best of his ancestors.

I believe that eminent thinker, Canada with the idea that colonies have always parted from the country which they were born of. North America will not prove an exception, but to show that this need not be an inevitable rule we have pointed to the careful manner in which our colonies have been nurtured and fostered.

People in history like King's men so far to have taken little notice of what is becoming a live question in the mind of the people. Born and bred in the Empire, I have always lived under a hereditary monarchy, and I have never seen a large population growing up outside, the value of our institutions, and not to learn their history, that would enable them to learn their history, that would enable them to learn their history.

That is a real superiority over us. I can tell you that I have learned the narratives of the great conquerors are honest in business, keep their word, and are not common in Europe. Philosophers, such as Condorcet and Bentham, are not common in Europe. If the yellow race is a cruel, unfeeling, and unscrupulous race, the so-called civilized world is advancing.

Where Gold Backs Are Made

Story of Discovery of Eva Mine and Subsequent Founding of a Town as Result of Joke Perpetrated on Two Tenderfeet—By Percy F. Goderath

Nestling at the base of Lexington mountain, where the tumbling waters of Pool creek empty into Fish river, some six miles up from its mouth, is an embryo city set in the heart of one of the richest free milling camps in the Laurentian. Surrounding the sides of sphinx-like mountains tower above, holding in their bowels great stores of precious metals that are today being mined for the benefit of mankind.

It requires two days of strenuous climbing to reach the gold-bearing one of these frowning sentinels, but the reward more than compensates for the time and labor expended. From the top of Lexington a clear summer day the view is unobscured in the enormous extent of area that lies before the eye. The silence is profound, the sun is high, and the air is clear. The silence is profound, the sun is high, and the air is clear.

Up and down the sides of the rugged mountain, through heavy dark undergrowth, across steep and rocky ledges, and through the tangled mass of spruce, fir, and hemlock, the prospect is a most interesting one. The prospect is a most interesting one. The prospect is a most interesting one.

MURDERER CONFESSES.

Assisted by Victim's Wife Killed a Man at Kansas City. Walls, Wash., July 7.—Frank Holman, who was arrested here for the murder of Clarence Myers at Kansas City, has confessed. Holman said that he had been in a rooming house with his friends. She loved me and I loved her, and we wanted to get married. We planned the murder three weeks or more before the crime. The night of the 10th of May I went to the Myers house at 10 o'clock. I met Mrs. Myers in the hall and the two of us went to Myers' bedroom. He was apparently asleep, but he was not. He was sitting up in bed. He said, "Well, you're here again." He said, "I've been waiting for you."

After the crime, I went to my room and after sleeping a while, went to the street and met Mrs. Myers again. She said, "What do you mean?" I said, "I've done it. I've killed your husband." She said, "What do you mean?" I said, "I've done it. I've killed your husband." She said, "What do you mean?" I said, "I've done it. I've killed your husband."
