The Weekly Monitor.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 1884.

The Boston Post has for some time past been engaged in a commendable work. Believing there was a necessity for a thorough investigation of the coast line and channel near Boston harbor, from the many steamship accidents that have recently occurred, both on the United States and Nova Scotia coasts, a number of its staff were commissioned for the work. After several months of sounding, and general investigation, they report having discovered about two miles east-north-east from the Minot light, of Cohasset, a ledge in the main ship channel where the Government soundings on all charts show the lowest water to be fully fourteen fathoms, on which there are about only four fathoms of water at low tide, and on which the sea breaks during every heavy northeast gale. The Post says:—

"The reason why this ledge has not been discovered before and properly buoyed, is, perhaps, the difficulty of finding it. The rocky pinnacle is not probably over 20 feet square, and is over 24 feet beneath the surface, and the difficulty of locating such a small point in the waste of ocean is of no small magnitude. Even the government surveyors, who should have made a thorough survey of the harbor a few years ago, passed it by unnoticed. Why the fishermen who knew of the locality did not bring it to the attention of the surveyors, can only be explained from the fact that they had about the ledge choice fishing grounds which they did not wish to disclose.

During the days spent in the work on the ledge, hundreds of vessels, including not a few coastwise steamers bound to or from Boston passed by some outside the ledge and others in the narrow channel between the ledge and the fair-weather bank. A dense growth of hard and soft wood covers the sides of these mountains, and makes contrasts by the different shades of green, interrupted here and there by ledge of rugged granite, a winding road or small space of cleared land.

When the rays of the setting sun are thrown athwart these mountain ranges touching here and there a jutting point with a flood of royal light, on either side an interval of shadow, the scene is one not soon to be forgotten. Now is the time for summer tourists to see the Annapolis Valley at its best.

The frame of a Methodist Church was raised at Annapolis, on the 5th inst., by the Rev. G. F. Johnson, assisted by thirty-four persons into full membership in the Methodist Church, Lawrence town, on Sabbath evening, 5th inst.

Mr. James Beale, a man 71 years of age, clipped the wool from twenty sheep, for Cooper Beale, in one half day, estimated amount of wool hundred pounds.

Granville. — A wonderful cure is being effected in Lower Granville, through the agency of the celebrated Dr. Gullis, of Boston. Julia Dwyer, who has been confined to her bed for the past four and a half years, is now able to knit, sew, and walk out of doors. Her illness was the result of a severe attack of rheumatism, which was not properly treated, and which she had suffered from for many years.

The great American republic is now stirred to its centre, in its preparations for the forthcoming election for the Presidency. A republican convention, was held in Chicago, last week for the election of candidates supporting that platform. We make the following extract from a report in the Montreal Witness, in reference to the day on which the nominees were first presented:—

Chairman Henderson called the convention to order at 7 25, and announced the order of business as the presentation of candidates for the presidency. After the adoption of some preliminary resolutions the chairman announced that the secretary would call the roll of states, and when the name of a state having a candidate to present was called, the person selected to make the presentation would come forward and speak. Mr. Logan of Illinois, Arkansas, California, Colorado and Connecticut. When the name of the latter state was called, Mr. Brandtler took the stand, and said, in a pithy speech, in closing which he said:—

"Mr. President, the delegation of Connecticut is still in the grand council of the party, and we are glad to see you here, free to speak, free to hear, free to deliberate. They offer to you the name of their great leader and senator, as president. The Secretary then called the names of Delaware, Florida and Georgia, without meeting with any response. When Illinois was reached Senator Collman rose from his seat and about four thousand voices indicated in exclamations of 'A-ha! A-ha!' The Senator walked down the aisle toward the platform, quietly buttoning up his coat. As he ascended the platform he was received by a fresh volley of yells, which died out and were followed by cheers. Mr. Callon took the stand, and Mr. Logan's name was called and he never lost a battle or disobeyed an order. General Logan's nomination was seconded by Gen. Fremont, of Missouri. When Maine was called there was tremendous cheering, the whole house rising to its feet. For a long time the cheering continued, the audience getting upon the chairs and ladies waving handkerchiefs. Judge West took the floor to present Mr. Blaine, paying an eloquent tribute to the Maine senator, being frequently interrupted by cheers. He referred to President Arthur, which brought out fresh cheering, which was again reported when Mr. West mentioned Mr. Blaine's name the audience again rose to its feet, and tremendous cheering long continued. The audience pulled the banners down from the walls of the hall, waving them amidst deafening cheers. Mr. West then called Mr. Blaine's name, and with an exclamation of 'A-ha! A-ha!' the hall was again filled with cheering, which continued for some time after Mr. Blaine's name was called. Mr. Blaine's name was called, and the cheering was again reported. The Rev. Dr. Oves, rector of St. James' Church, in New York, died, in the 54th year of his age. The gentleman was held in great honor and esteem by his parishioners. He was a native of New York, and was educated at the University of the City of New York. He was a member of the New York State Bar, and was admitted to practice in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Legislature, and was elected to the office of Speaker of the Assembly in 1850. He was a member of the New York State Convention, and was elected to the office of President of the Convention in 1850. He was a member of the New York State Convention, and was elected to the office of President of the Convention in 1850.

On the 20th May, Mrs. Richard Jones, of 109th Street, celebrated her 84th birthday. Her sister, Mrs. 101 years of age, was also present. Both old ladies retain their faculties, and are able to do all their own work. Mrs. Jones is a native of New York, and was educated at the University of the City of New York. She was a member of the New York State Bar, and was admitted to practice in 1840. She was a member of the New York State Legislature, and was elected to the office of Speaker of the Assembly in 1850. Richmond Publishing Company of Rochester, N. Y., are about to publish a new book, entitled 'The History of the State of New York, from its first discovery to the present time.' The book is a comprehensive and accurate history of the State, and is a valuable work for all who are interested in the history of the State. The book is published by the Richmond Publishing Company, and is available for sale at all bookstores.

Annapolis to Bar Harbor.

The New England and Acadia S. S. Co., inaugurated the opening of their new line between Annapolis and Bar Harbor, by a very pleasant excursion, on Monday 2nd inst., which effectively convinced all who took part in it of the many advantages which this line possesses, not only as a pleasant route for tourists, but also as a business route. The weather on Monday and Tuesday, unfortunately, proved unpropitious, and thus many who had intended joining the excursion were discouraged and remained at home, but those who did go were amply rewarded for their perseverance. All those who had joined the excursion from the east stepped from the express on Monday, directly on board the Company's steamer 'Frances,' at Annapolis, and with little delay started for Digby, where we received an excursion to our numbers of parties from Digby and places to the west of it. They started on their excursion, cheered by the inspiring strains of the Annapolis Brass Band which accompanied the excursion throughout, and proved a source of gratification not only to those on board, but also to the crowds of people to the wharves of each place touched on the route. Finding a high wind and rough sea outside, most unusual at this season of the year, after proceeding some four miles, the Captain, Mr. Francis, deemed it advisable to put back to Digby, where we were to receive the excursion to our numbers of parties from Digby and places to the west of it. They started on their excursion, cheered by the inspiring strains of the Annapolis Brass Band which accompanied the excursion throughout, and proved a source of gratification not only to those on board, but also to the crowds of people to the wharves of each place touched on the route.

The Valley now presents its loveliest appearance. What can be more beautiful than this corner of the world! A broad valley, with hundreds of orchards and apple trees in full blossom, undulating fields, clothed in verdure, groups of elms and shade trees everywhere meeting the eye, while to the right and left hand stretching away as far as the eye can see, east and west, the two parallel ranges of the North and South Mountains stand like sentinels guarding the peace and beauty of the fair scene before them. A dense growth of hard and soft wood covers the sides of these mountains, and makes contrasts by the different shades of green, interrupted here and there by ledge of rugged granite, a winding road or small space of cleared land.
