British Government Doomed To Defeat Is General Opinion

GENERAL ELECTION DURING NOVEMBER IS NOW INEVITABLE

Several Ways Open to the Premier All Lead to This Conclusion.

LABOR OPTIMISTIC

Some Members Welcome Ballot, Look for Gain of Sixty Seats.

BY LLOYD ALLEN

(United Press Staff Cor.)

London, Oct. 3.—Outgoing trains from London today were crowded with members of Parliament, hurrying home to their constituencies to start oratorical fireworks in preparation for a general election.

The government is apparently resigned to defeat, when the Commons resumes its regular session, the last of this month, but its opponents will make a first onslaught next week.

Prime Minister MacDonald, facing the crisis of his career, is consulting with his colleagues as to the best method of lessening the blow, although government spokesmen profess to welcome a general election and claim Labor will gain 60 seats.

An attack will be launched at the special session which is to be resumed next Wednesday, the subject of a Conservative motion of censure being drawn by the Attorney General of the prosecution of a Communist editor for sedition.

If the government weathers this storm, and it will depend upon the success of the Communist editor's appeal, the Irish bill enters Lords at noon today for its first reading in the Upper House. It is expected to pass promptly through all its stages and be ready for commons when that body re-assembles, Wednesday.

Baldwin Non-Committee

(Canadian Press Cable)

London, Oct. 3.—It certainly looks as though a crisis might come at any moment, but then in politics you never can tell. It is the comment of ex-Premier Stanley Baldwin in referring to the position of the Labor Government in the face of the recent developments.

The great majority of the political writers in the press, however, adopt the view widely held in the lobbies of parliament and the party clubs, namely, that the present government's days are numbered and that it is bound to fall, if not on the Conservative motion of censure in the Communist matter, then on the opposition to the Anglo-Russian Treaty, headed by the Liberals.

The Communist case is based on the abandonment by the Attorney General of criminal proceedings which had been brought against the acting editor of The Workers Weekly, a Communist publication.

One favored view is that Premier MacDonald will resist the Liberal proposal to investigate the Communist case equally with the vote of censure and that, if defeated thereon, he will resign. Another is that he will accept the inquiry and await the result of the motion concerning the treaty.

Election In November?

Even if the latter results in defeat, as for the moment appears certain, the Premier, according to one forecast, will not resign but will advise the King to dissolve parliament. In either case an election would follow and it is figured this would probably be held on November 5 or 15. Still another view is that the Liberals, for tactical reasons may find some ground on compromise which will result in keeping the laborites in office.

It is not certain, however, that the latter wish to continue under the present conditions, and many believe they would welcome an appeal to the country.

Meanwhile, outside political circles, complaints are beginning to be heard as nobody wants another election. The country has been called to the polls on two successive autumns and the distraction and turmoil of another election, it is contended would be a setback to industry and trade.

In League Storm

SEVERAL ARE DEAD IN STRIKE CLASH

Troops Fire When Men Attempt to Prevent Loading of Ships.

Tampico, Texas, Oct. 3.—Several workmen have been killed in a clash between strikers and soldiers guarding the property of the Mexican Gulf Oil Company. The strike at this plant has been in progress for some time and general strike has been declared.

Nearly 500 strikers of the oil company attempted to prevent the loading of ships and were fired upon by the troops. In addition to those killed, 15 were wounded. The military say the strikers threatened them, while the strikers assert the soldiers attacked them without justification.

The strike leaders have been placed under arrest, charged with responsibility for the clash and various other matters.

GLOUCESTER FISH MEN TO CO-OPERATE

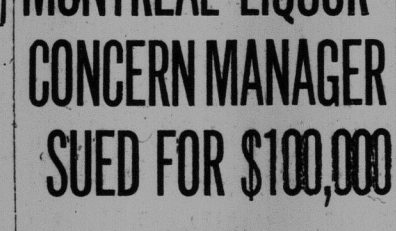

Central Selling Agency and Advertising Campaign Among Plans Made.

Boston, Oct. 3.—A co-operative organization among Boston and Gloucester fishermen has been launched to secure the men who sail to the banks a larger share of the profits from their catches. With more than 1,000 members already recruited, the leaders of the movement have set a goal of 1,800, a number which they assert will give control of 85 per cent. of the catch of both fleets.

The co-operative partnership will have a central selling agency under the direction of a corps of merchantmen, the organizers are Kenneth Ferguson, owner of the fleet through wider sections of the country will be undertaken. Aaron Sapirio of Chicago, who aided the California raisin growers and other agricultural groups to organize co-operative marketing societies, has been aiding the fishermen.

Among those in the fishing industry who have been active in the preliminary work are Kenneth Ferguson, owner of the schooner Columbia, a contender for the international fishermen's racing trophy, and Frederick Pigeon, one of the principal owners of the schooner Mayflower.

MONTREAL LIQUOR CONCERN MANAGER SUED FOR $100,000

Action Brought by Myer Rosenthal in Connection With Lutzen Case.

SAYS FALSE CHARGE

Defendant's Name Resembles That Mentioned in Case Against Phaff.

(By Canadian Press.)

New York, Oct. 3.—Alec Adilman, president of the Sunset Wine and Spirit Company of Montreal, has been sued for $100,000 damages in the Supreme Court here by Myer Rosenthal, formerly connected with the company, who says that Adilman and a brother, Norman, falsely charged him with the piracy of the schooner Lutzen, which the United States coast several months ago, it was learned today.

The Lutzen was looted of several thousand cases of liquor and the crew made prisoners. Information filed in a French court in Brest, France, where Max Jerome Phaff, an American, is under arrest as an alleged rum pirate, mentioned an alleged man named "Adelmann" who furnished funds in unlimited amounts for the smuggling of liquor into the United States from Canada. Federal officials have started an investigation into this phase of the case.

Phaff, arrested for the piracy of the French steamer Mulhouse, which was looted of 22,000 cases of whiskey off the Canadian coast last July, has refused to discuss the man named "Adelmann" mentioned in the affidavits filed in the French court.

Rosenthal, who is said to be a builder in Brooklyn, recently obtained an attachment of $10,000 against Adilman from a local bank. Adilman now is on his way to Montreal to attend the trial of Capt. Samuel C. Ford, former skipper of the Lutzen, who is directly charged with the piracy.

The session of the synod were expressed as possibly the most successful since the inauguration of the general synod some 30 years ago.

In the last moments of the session the synod took an important step in connection with its relation to the church in China, the "Chung Hwa Sheng Kung Fu" of which the diocese of Huron is an integral part, to the end of recognizing the church in China to be a duly organized church in communion with the church in England and in Canada. This step was taken in the form of a message from the upper house which was concurred in by the lower house and made official action of the synod.

(By Times-Star Staff Correspondent)

The evidence of Bert Lint will be read to the jury this afternoon. The defence has another witness to call. Whether the case will be finished this week or carried over until next is not yet known.

Hanson Resumes Stand.

Mr. Hanson resumed the stand, and was cross-examined by Dr. Taylor relative to his salary as city solicitor. He had not received any salary between May and October, 1923. That was still to be adjusted. While he was in Ottawa other solicitors were engaged.

(By Canadian Press.)

Washington, Oct. 3.—Baseball fandom, shocked and mystified by the disclosures of bribery involving the New York Giants on the eve of their world's championship struggle with the Washington Senators, awaited today developments that will determine whether the O'Connell deal to induce Heinie Sande, Philadelphia shortstop, to throw the pennant-deciding game for $500, is a closed incident, or whether it has ramifications that may rock the game's whole structure.

His Highness was conducted to a room in a house once frequented by King Henry IV. There two men in sailor's uniforms, locked the door, drew revolvers, and demanded the Prince's money.

Says They Cannot Remain Outside and Participate in Peace Settlement.

(By HENRY WOOD, United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, Oct. 3.—Aristide Briand, premier of France, whose ringing speech before the assembly touched off the enthusiasm that ended in unanimous endorsement of the League of Nations protocol of arbitration today urged in an interview that the U. S. should join the League.

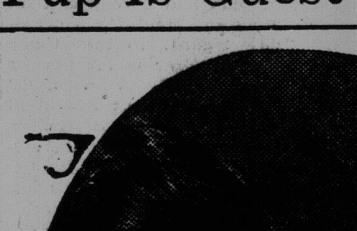

"With both Germany and the U. S. in the League, the latter's highest ideals certainly could be secured, and all risk of war definitely eliminated," Briand said.

"We recognize that the U. S. will never need join the League. Her geographical position, and material wealth, will enable her always to hold aloof. But if Americans wish to participate in the final settlement of world peace, they cannot remain outside the League."

"We cannot lose sight of the fact, either, that if war returns, it will affect not only several nations, but the entire world."

Says 300,000 Are Out of Work in N. Y.

New York, Oct. 3.—With 300,000 men and women out of employment in New York at the present time the city is facing a serious economic situation, according to John Sullivan, director of the New York City Bureau of Industrial Aid. And what makes the situation even more significant, said Mr. Sullivan, is the fact that about 60 per cent. of the unemployed are union members.

"Not since the fall of 1921, which preceded an unusually hard winter, has there been so much unemployment," he said. "In normal times our bureau places about 125 men daily. At present we are placing only about 60 or 65 men a day. These applications, it must be remembered, are mostly non-union men. The agencies maintained by the various unions also are being besieged by hundreds of seekers for work."

FEDERAL PROBE TO BE DEMANDED BY LEAGUE PRESIDENT

(By Canadian Press.)

Washington, Oct. 3.—Baseball fandom, shocked and mystified by the disclosures of bribery involving the New York Giants on the eve of their world's championship struggle with the Washington Senators, awaited today developments that will determine whether the O'Connell deal to induce Heinie Sande, Philadelphia shortstop, to throw the pennant-deciding game for $500, is a closed incident, or whether it has ramifications that may rock the game's whole structure.

Although a 24-hour succession of sensational charges and counter-charges failed, apparently, to change the situation as it stood when Commissioner Landis in New York Wednesday presented ruled O'Connell, young outfielder, and Dolan, coach, out of the game, speculation centered on the turn events may take with the prospect of a joint session today of major league club officials.

This meeting was originally slated for the annual routine process of drafting minor league talent.

Series Will Go On

The statement of Commissioner Landis that the series will go on with the opening spectacle scheduled tomorrow, and that "no cloud hangs over the Giants" as they now are organized for the fray, following unmitigated signs that a test of baseball governing authority is imminent.

Although he did not specifically refer to the assertions of Ban Johnson, president of the American League, and Barney Dreyfus, president of the Pittsburgh Nationals, that the revelations were sufficient to warrant calling off his dog, Commissioner Landis left no doubt that his answer to them was his statement:

"It seems to be time for those not clothed with responsibility to keep their shirts on."

Demands Federal Probe.

Landis, who also declared the intention to demand a sweeping Federal investigation to wipe out all alleged crookedness connected with the present scandal in particular and the national game in general, was expected here today.

The American League executive will complete the personnel of the advisory council, the other members of which are Commissioner Landis and John A. Heydler, president of the National League.

Landis, maintaining a somewhat unkind-like attitude throughout yesterday's turbulent developments has not indicated whether he will lay the case before the advisory council, the general meeting of club owners, or take further steps of any kind. On the other hand, he also refused to admit the case "closed" although Heydler had previously classified it as such.

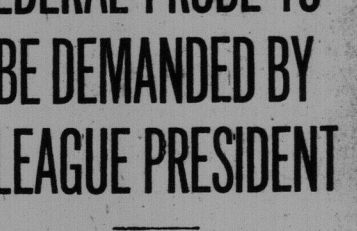

Who Is Responsible?

The big question which remained unsolved to the satisfaction of close observers and apparently to all baseball fandom at large, was the motivating influence in the alleged actions of Dolan and O'Connell. On all sides it is being asked whether the approach of Sande by O'Connell, who says he was prompted by Dolan, was a spontaneous scheme of the own creation, as Heydler and John McGraw manager of the Giants declare it to be, or was it a carefully conceived deal, prearranged and instigated by someone "behind the scenes" and not yet brought into the searching light of investigation.

In the opinion of many closely observant of the situation, it seems inconceivable that O'Connell and Dolan acted alone and without influence behind them. O'Connell, in his confession to Commissioner Landis and in his newspaper statements, has named other Giant stars—Frank Frisch, George Kelly and Rags Young—but the findings of Commissioner Landis concerning them. O'Connell, in more sweeping fashion declared his team mates "were all in it."

Regardless of the merits of these implications, an undercurrent of opinion has persisted that the final analysis may disclose a source unconnected with the playing field.

(Special to the British United Press) Geneva, Oct. 3.—By virtue of the arbitration which has been used for keeping peace on the boundary between the U. S. and Canada and the conviction that Canada, faithful to her past tradition and history, will accept the obligatory jurisdiction of the Hague tribunal as well as responsibility for the enforcement of all actions which may be imposed upon her, was the tenor of Senator Dandurand's speech, delivered before the League.

The Dominion delegate said that, as the result of arbitration and the conviction that Canada, faithful to her past tradition and history, will accept the obligatory jurisdiction of the Hague tribunal as well as responsibility for the enforcement of all actions which may be imposed upon her, was the tenor of Senator Dandurand's speech, delivered before the League.

The Senator promised that Canada would take her share of enforcing the sanctions to the measure she is able to do, adding that while Canada played her part in the great war, yet she was a signatory to the covenant of peace and would remain faithful thereto, "although at the time we signed we never for a moment dreamed that the United States would leave us to represent North America alone."

WASHINGTON IS
PUZZLED BY LIQUOR
IN PHILIPPINES

No Way Has Been Found to Enforce Ban Placed on Shipments.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Legal experts who have given close study to the law on the subject are convinced, it is understood here, that only direct action by Congress can prevent the proposed attempt to apply prohibition to the Philippine Islands from becoming a farce.

There have been long exchanges of views between State and War Department officials, and although it now appears that only Congress can modify the law, the authorities of the State Department do not feel that they can alter the instructions to American Consuls to refuse clearances to vessels destined to Philippine ports with liquor cargoes showing on their manifests.

As matters stand now, the captain of a vessel might apply to the American Consul at Hong Kong, for example, for clearance to proceed to Manila. He might present his manifest, showing that he carried a general cargo, with no liquor, and the Consul under normal procedure would issue the clearance.

Under the organic act of the Philippines, Aug. 29, 1916, the laws of the United States apply to the Philippines only when the organic act itself or the legislation in question specifically states.

At the present time only such parts of the Constitution apply to the Philippines as have been specifically extended to them. For example, trial by jury does not extend to the Philippine Islands, and the only reason the Eighteenth Amendment has been construed as applying to the islands is by its own language it is made applicable to all territory under the jurisdiction of the United States.

Under these circumstances the Department of Justice, when asked for an opinion by the State Department, held that the amendment was applicable, though the Volstead law was not, since that piece of legislation does not specifically state that it is to be applied to the Philippines.

Three possible courses are open to prevent prohibition from becoming a farce in the Philippines: The State Department might instruct Consuls to clear ships for island ports regardless of liquor cargoes, the Philippine Legislature might enact a Volstead law of its own to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment in the islands, or Congress might amend the Volstead law to make it specifically applicable to the Philippines.

The State Department is not inclined, in view of the opinion of the Attorney General, to direct its Consuls to comply with violation of the law. The Philippine Legislature in the past and the people of the Philippines in general have shown opposition to the whole institution of prohibition. Therefore, it would seem, according to legal authorities, that if the Philippines are to be made dry Congress must act to make the law applicable and make an adequate appropriation for providing enforcement machinery for the islands.

GIRL GUIDES TRAVEL 5,000 MILES

Twenty-six Canadian girl guides from all parts of the Dominion who have travelled 5,000 miles to camp for a week at New Forest, Hampshire, where they met girl guides from all nations, left Liverpool for home recently by the Canadian Pacific liner Montreal. Before sailing, hearty greetings were exchanged with Miss Rorden, one of the most prominent workers in the movement in the North of England. Several Liverpool girl guides were also present. The Canadian guides came from all parts of Canada.

Yachtsmen Leave Iceland in 44-Foot Cutter for America.

Reykjavik, Iceland, Sept. 12.—(By mail to United Press)—Somewhere in the sub-arctic seas between Iceland and Labrador, four adventurers, yachtsmen bound from Norway to New York in a tiny 44-foot auxiliary cutter, are sailing west toward the North American continent.

They are the crew of the small but sturdy "Ileve Ericsson," headed by William Washburn Nutting of New York, owner of "Motor-Boating," who are following the old Viking sea trail across the roof of the world.

Nutting has made many remarkable voyages for yachting in his hobby. With him is a New York magazine writer, a Seattle painter and a Norwegian yachtsman. All are making the daring trip for the love of adventure, but between times they are writing stories of their experiences, painting pictures of the northern seas lit by the glow of the Aurora Borealis and cranking movie cameras at the astonished natives of these distant lands.

The first Viking to discover these lands returned to Norway with a wonderful story of adventures. He told his friends how he had found two countries, one green and fertile, one icy and cold. With a load about the friends announced that they would go settle in the green country. The discoverer didn't like that. He wanted to keep the green country for himself. Then he had an idea.

"Sail west," he told them. "First you will come to an island—which is called Iceland. Keep away from it. Sail west again, and you will find Greenland—much more pleasant." The friends did as they were told, and the wily discoverer kept Iceland all to himself, having an ideal country, except in the forbidding name he had given it.

The yachtsmen in the "Ileve Ericsson" should have a comfortable voyage, for their tiny craft is broad of bow and stern, and most seaworthy. She has plenty of space below decks, comfortable bunks with warm blankets, a tiny galley where canned food is helped out by fish caught over the side, a collection of cameras, typewriters and artist's brushes on a flat-topped desk under a swinging oil lamp. About the bulkheads are tacked gay paintings made by the artist aboard, vivid sea scenes, sunsets, lonely ships, unnamed northern mountain peaks. It is a comfortable home, although probably a bit crowded when all hands are below of nights, except for the one man detailed the hold the awaying tiller and keep the stump nose of the craft on the course.

Nothing has been heard of the Ileve Ericsson since she left several weeks ago, bound for the east coast of Greenland. Half the town turned out to see the party off, and there was a storm of cheers as the popular Americans hoisted sail and tacked out of the harbor. Nutting stated that he would skirt the east coast of Greenland, which is hemmed in winter and summer by a barrier of dangerous pack ice, and then cross Cape Zarewell to the west coast, open at this time of year. The west coast of Norway to New York City, across David Strait, a 600 mile run, to Labrador. They will make their first contact with civilization at Bettie Bay bor, Labrador, and will then sail on down the Canadian coast to American waters.

DON MARQUIS DESPAIRS.
(Christian Science Monitor.)
In what might be called "The Confessions of a Humorist," Mr. Don Marquis, the dean of New York newspaper "columnists," has announced his determination to abandon the vocation of journalism. He challenges the good taste of those of his contemporaries who, denominated as "hybrid and half-literary" continue to indulge in their favorite pastime of making personal comparisons. These writers, some of whom he names, are, he says, "writing thousands and tens of thousands of words about themselves, their wives, their friends, their children, etc. You can't have these personal confessions without the bad taste of such candid and coy praise." Speaking somewhat more generally, Mr. Marquis continues: "Comedy is almost always cruel; we have felt it so when it has been directed against us, and we have felt it so when we have directed it against other people. It deals with imperfections, faults, crudities, incongruities, shortcomings; it strips away masks and pretensions; it affects a sympathetic understanding for the sake of betraying and exposing, and then mixes itself with sentimentality in order to hide its own cruelty; its basis is an exhibition of the favoring thing in juxtaposition to the ideal, the perfect; it takes sides with the irony of the universe; its criticism

A DESIRABLE CONSULTATION

Soon after Mr. Matthew Lodge was selected as New Brunswick's member of the Canadian National Railways' Directorate, the Board of Trade here had a letter from him extending his thanks for the board's congratulations upon the appointment and expressing his willingness and desire to co-operate in forwarding the legitimate interests of this city and port.

MEIGHEN AND IMPERIALISM

The British Empire, Hon. Mr. Meighen says with force and with truth, would not be strengthened but weakened by the introduction of an Imperial constitution in which would be written in black and white the relations existing between the self-governing units which it comprises.

NINETY PER CENT.

American automobile authorities recently made an analysis of 928 fatal motor car accidents reported during the first seven months of this year. Of all these only sixty-four were found due to defects in the cars themselves.

In many states where effective driving tests are not yet demanded there is an active campaign for legislation which would forbid the granting of driving licenses to any who do not demonstrate by actual tests before a competent board their fitness to operate cars.

It is contended that no license should be issued unless the driver of the car has an insurance policy which would enable any person he may injure to recover damages, or unless his financial standing is otherwise shown to be sufficient.

This analysis of some thousands of fatal accidents merely confirms former conclusions and again emphasizes the need for, both care and skill among those who drive motor cars. There is no getting away from the lesson to be found in the fact that ninety per cent. of more than 3,000 fatal accidents were due to either carelessness or incompetence on the part of drivers, or to the carelessness of pedestrians, and, while undoubtedly this latter is a considerable factor, the heaviest responsibility lies with the man behind the wheel.

The skillful and conscientious man who drives a car sets a valuable example, and today the safe drivers are more and more inclined to unite in effective fashion for the purpose of restraining and punishing the reckless and incompetent who create annually so long and so frightful a casualty list.

It is after all rather to be expected that a good many people should, at the first sight, be disatisfied with the photographs. Not in this manner, colorful, immobile, and consciously trying to look natural, are human beings looking to see themselves in their looking-glasses. A grave doubt, similar to that of the old lady in the nursery rhyme, who exclaimed, "If it be I, as I hope it be, I've a little dog at home and he'll bite my neck off."

A TARIFF ON MAGAZINES?

More than 12,000,000 copies of United States periodicals annually pour across the international boundary according to Mr. J. M. MacKenzie, editor of MacKenzie's Magazine. Against this overwhelming flood, he stated in an address to members of the local branch of the Authors' Association, "Canadian publishers had to struggle for their very existence. Besides having to compete with this huge volume on the newsstands in the ordinary way, it was also stated by a member of the National Canadian Newspaper and Periodicals Association that Canadian magazine publishers paid more for their printing and paper than the publishers' remedy is a tax on these incoming American periodicals, and the Government to enact such a tax.

Unquestionably Canadian periodical publishers struggle against handicaps. But again a doubt may be permitted both as to the wisdom and as to the desirability of a protective tariff to help build up a native literature. A literature cannot be built up by making into a commodity like washing machines and canned soup, and then imposing an import tax on it.

Although there is much written in Canada which already possesses such characteristics when compared with the "average" of popular literature in the United States, few will claim that it is the case on the higher plane of creative letters, or even in the case of standard publications in Britain, America and elsewhere.

PACIFISM, A LA CHINESE

China's semi-annual civil war has opened again. Just outside of Shanghai, Chinese pacifism is engaged in its annual demonstration of the futility of national defence and of central authority. There is 30 miles of fighting this time, complete with modern armaments. That includes modern artillery, poison gas and airplanes.

Press Comment

(Christian Science Monitor.) At a recent convention of photographers a "receptionist" was being the modern title of the expert in human nature who receives prospective subjects in the photographer's ante-chamber—told her experiences with those who come to be photographed. It is the task of a receptionist to induce a pleasant frame of mind in these customers, both before and during the sitting, and afterward, when the sitter examines the result. It is still with many of us a serious moment when we look, as pleasantly as possible under the circumstances, at the camera's cyclopean eye—and a disappointing one when we look at the photograph. Not thus, we feel, do we sincerely wish to be distributed among those who know us and seem able by those who don't. We are not vain, but we would be just—even to ourselves. We do not, we repeat, recognize, nor altogether like, this person whose photograph is now handed to us by the receptionist to be examined by the judges, by an acquaintance, not deep but deceptive, with the much older art of portrait painting, and with the physiognomies of distinguished personages. A good receptionist, for example, need not have read Pater; but must be able to point out in our photograph (if we happen to be a "simpler" personage, a "funny eye") a pleasing suggestion of Leonardo's "Mona Lisa." Or again (if we happen to be lean and masculine and a shade rugged) our pictured likeness will remind the skilled receptionist of Abraham Lincoln.

Since prehistoric days, no doubt, something akin to the receptionist's task has been needed to harmonize the sitter's idea of how he or she would like to look with the artist's report of how he or she actually did look. But one could at least feel that the person a human being with human limitations had made a mistake, however multiply he might refuse to correct it. The camera is not a human being; it is even held to be a mechanism incapable of selling that liberty to even a better bond than compulsion or the suggestion of obligations that must be lived up to. Mr. Meighen has a bone to pick with the extreme Imperialists on the one hand and with the separatists on the other; he favors a moderate Imperialism, a greater measure of co-operation on the part of the Dominions in the matter of defence, but nothing in the way of centralized control. Autonomy, complete autonomy, he deems desirable, but he objects to any development of Dominion power which looks toward independence or any weakening of the bonds of Empire.

With these views there will be general agreement. They rightly represent the bulk of Canadian opinion as it is today and as it will be to-morrow. With respect to the treaty-making power the Conservative leader's Winnipeg speech is not so clear. In speaking of foreign treaties he is quoted as suggesting that the Dominion should have control with representation on the British panel, leaving direct negotiations with the British authorities. Trade treaties have long negotiated for ourselves, without British objection, and that right we shall continue to exercise. Mr. Meighen probably meant that in the matter of foreign relations the Empire has not yet reached a stage of development at which it would be wise to erect an Imperial bureau, composed of representatives of Britain and the Dominions, to deal finally with foreign relations, subject only to the authority of the British Parliament. In any case that is true. If we are to be represented in London in the business of foreign relations it will still be wholly essential that treaties by which it is proposed that the Dominions are to be bound shall be subject to ratification by the Dominion Parliaments. A necessary improvement is that the people of the Dominions shall be made better acquainted with the nature and objects of Imperial foreign policies.

Canadians are reluctant, too reluctant, to discuss Imperial defence in time of peace; but Mr. Meighen is right in recognizing that the Dominions, in whatever fashion they share in the framing of foreign policy, are bound to share in some just proportion the work and the cost of defending the Empire, whether the burden diminishes with growing world co-operation for lasting peace, or grows again through the failure of the nations to cease from that preparation for war by land and sea which is still carried on in most of the great countries on the plea that in so armed world advance measures for defence are a necessary insurance, since in emergencies trained armies and efficient fleets cannot be improvised.

The outlook to-day for diminished armaments is better than it has been in many years, and twelve months hence the international sky should be all clear; yet in fair weather or in foul a reasonable patriotism and self-respect in the Dominions should not permit a continuation of the easy-going assumption that the man in Liverpool or Glasgow is somehow bound to pay four or five times as much for national defence as is paid by the man in St. John, Ottawa or Vancouver.

If you are interested in the world series—and who isn't?—come into Canterbury street tomorrow and hear the news, play by play. The Times-Star has arranged for a complete wire service which will give you every detail of the games, beginning with the first one, and continuing until the series is over.

ARGENTINA GREETES ITALIAN PRINCE

Crowds greeted Prince Humbert, of Italy, (left) when he rode with President Alvear, of Argentina, in the way to the Presidential palace Buenos Aires after the Prince had landed from the Italian warship, San Giorgio.

THE NEW LIFE ON THE OCEAN WAVE.

(B. K. Sandwell in The Listening Post.) It is announced that twenty of the most powerful torpedo boat destroyers of the United States navy, with other craft, have been organized into a prohibition enforcement fleet for the patrolling of that portion of the American coast known as Rum Row.

Sing ho, ye tars, ye sons of Mars. That guard the Yankee strand. And watch by day and ward by night From Casco Bay to Key West Light To keep the alcoholic blight From Prohibition's land.

From Halifax they come in swarms. The keen destroyers watch. From Pernambuco power-boats sweep; And strong men pale and women weep. As towards the sacred shores they creep. The dastard Devils of the Deep— The Runners of the Rum.

But through the fog, like faithful dogs, The keen destroyers watch. And naval men face fearful tasks To keep from these United States The cup that still tantalizes— The product of the Scotch.

The long, lean guns that 'gainst the Huns Were turned in battle's hour Have now to foil a grimmer foe: The deadly drink that's not below A half of one per cent, or so Of alcoholic power.

The shells they hurled once kept the From great disaster free: Now, six miles from the Atlantic's They cause uncounted casks to sink That no American need drink A stronger drink than tea.

With song and shout the ships sail out, To smother rum or dry it. And still their seamen sing the song That Yankee seamen sang so long (With one word changed, that sounded wrong) "Land of the brave and dry!"

Here's to ye, then, ye sailor men! Of credit and renown; Here's to your captains and your crews; Long may ye ply from Newport News, And when ye meet the foeman Boose, I hope you put him down!

LIGHTER VEIN. The Better Catch. An Adabo man was fishing in Lake Crescent recently. He caught a big northern pike, the biggest he had ever landed in his long and busy life. He was elated. He was craned with joy, and he telegraphed his wife: "I've got one; weighs seven pounds, and it is a beauty!"

The following was the answer he got: "So have it; weighs 10 pounds. Not a beauty—looks like you. Come home."—Idaho Yarn.

Tastes Differ. The Rev. Mr. Ham had preached a stirring sermon. An old negro who had heard him without getting his name, met him the next day and said: "Mr. who, who is a big preacher, but what you say 'er name is?"

"My name is the same as the best part of a hog," the preacher answered with a low bow, said: "Howdy do, Mr. Chittings!"

Champion All. A number of athletes were sitting near the fire in the clubroom. "Well," said one, "we are all here without arrangement. Here is Tom, the champion of polo players; Dick, the champion sculler; Tom, the daddy of lawn tennis; and little me, the unbeaten lightweight fighter. We are all champions in our own line of sport."

"Yes," agreed a little weighty person, with neglected hair, who stood close by. "Why, who are you, sir?" inquired one of the champions. "Who, me? Why, I am the man who won the first fight at the Bourke show for guessing the right number of peas in a bottle."

Disturbing News. An Irish servant girl asked leave of absence for an hour to consult a fortune teller. She returned waiting distantly. "Did she predict some great trouble?" asked her mistress sympathetically. "Och, ma'am, sich terrible news!" moaned the girl, wringing her hands. "Tell me what she said," asked the mistress, wishing to comfort the girl. "She told me that me father worse hard shovellin' coal an' t'indin' foires for a livin'!"

"But that's no disgrace," said the mistress, a trifle vexed at such affectation. "Och, ma'am, me poor father!" sobbed the girl. "What a hard time he must be havin'! He's been dead these nine years!"

NOTED CHESS MASTER DIES AT ADVANCED AGE

London, Sept. 16.—(Associated Press, by Mail).—J. H. Blackburn, an outstanding figure in British chess, who was accounted one of the finest tournament players that ever lived, died recently at the age of 88.

Blackburn received his early inspiration in chess from Paul Morphy, an American prodigy, whom he met in 1859. Then it was that he took up the study of chess with a self-confidence born of youth and genius. It is said that no player was ever more successful in exhibitions of blindfold and simultaneous play.

In 1862 Blackburn's success in an international tournament in London against ten strong amateurs most astonished his critics. On that occasion he won five games and drew two. He was the first to meet 12 and then 15 opponents without sight of board and men, and at Baden-Baden he was preparing to deal "blind-fold" with no fewer than 40 opponents when the Franco-German war broke out and scattered the gathering of players.

With a smile, recalling the incident in later years, Blackburn remarked: "Perhaps it was as well for me."

Twenty-five dinosaur eggs were found some time ago in the Desert of Gobi, Mongolia, and are valued at about $125,000.

STOCKHOLM'S BEAUTY.

The determination to perpetuate Stockholm as "the city beautiful" has been revealed among two important measures just taken in the Swedish capital. One is the decision of the Stockholm City Council to grant a pension for life to the architect of the new City Hall, and the other is a vigorous opposition on the part of the Academy of Arts to certain proposed traffic changes which would destroy the beauty of the historic old sections of the city.

Professor Ragnar Östberg, architect of the City Hall, which was recently dedicated, spent twenty-three years on his genius has called forth enthusiastic praise not only from the general public, but also from many foreign experts on municipal architecture who have visited Stockholm. The City Hall, which was built at a cost of about $4,000,000, is architecturally a combination of traditional Swedish style with motifs from abroad, and sets a standard of beauty for modern construction in the city.

The history of Stockholm goes back 700 years to the building of a fortified town on an island in the midst of the North Sea. This island today has the royal castle and a great many other beautiful and historic buildings which together constitute the "City Between the Bridges." Meanwhile, the city has spread out to include a dozen other islands, and beyond them northward and southward to the mainland.

The main traffic thoroughfare between the north and the south has always been across the "City Between the Bridges," but the proposal to build new railroad bridges on this route has brought the Academy of Arts to arms. "Increased railroad construction and traffic over this line would burst the city apart," says the Academy, "and would destroy its features of historic beauty."

WEIRS DAMAGED. The high wind on Tuesday night was the cause of considerable damage to weirs in exposed positions in the vicinity of Campbell, Grand Manan and Deer Islands, according to J. F. Gidley, fisheries inspector of Charlotte county, who was in the city last night. Places where the full force of the gale struck had suffered little, notably, he said, but the majorities of the weirs in more sheltered positions had been unharmed.

What's New In Clothes For Fall

Men who appreciate fine clothing and equally fine value will not fail to see the Fall Clothing Displays at this store. The season's styles have been correctly carried out in all M. R. A. Ltd. Clothes. The question for you is only which model looks best.

Come in tomorrow and let us show you.

The New Suits

The easy fitting suit is more acceptable than ever this fall. There are changes, of course, from last season. Trousers are longer and a trifle wider. The low, soft lapel is now universal—and there are other changes worthy of notice.

You can take your choice between the straight line coat and the coat with the suggestion of a shaped back. One is as good as the other, if they're correctly cut. You will be equally well dressed, whichever you prefer. New models in "Society Brand" embody every style feature considered correct this season.

Overcoats

Go where you will, you won't find such good looking Overcoats, or greater variety. Blues, greys, browns, stripes—we have them all. And we have them at prices you'll think extremely reasonable.

Here are the new easy fitting styles, the new fabrics, the new colors. A look through the various models will prove to you that the values are right. The man who knows the value of good appearance will appreciate this collection of Overcoats. Weights for now—or for the colder weather to follow.

Hats For Fall

The hats for fall are more pleasing in style than they have been for many seasons. Quite English in effect; a flat, well rolled brim, a sturdy shape, not too high. They go particularly well with the looser suit worn so much today.

If you really want the hat that suits you best, choose it from among the new Borralino or Brock models now awaiting your approval in our men's shop. Much of the effect of a man's clothes depends on a nice harmony of hat and suit. It's a good idea to consider this when purchasing.

Socks and Ties

Also Sweaters And Hosiery

There are some Ties so smart that one feels like giving them special mention. For instance the new "Radio spots" the novel and distinctive "Swiss Silk ties" and the latest creations in Knitted Neckwear. When you see these Ties you'll think them the smartest you've seen.

Among the new Fall Socks are some very smart cashmeres in checks, plaids, stripes and clocked effects. Fibre and Pure Silk Socks are also strongly featured—and our stock of Golf Socks will please the most particular. Among these are the newest heathers and tweed mixtures.

Gloves to be fashionable may be in mocha, suede, cape, or deerskin. The colors most in demand by well dressed men are beaver, greys, browns and tans. Some of the finest gloves are hand sewn. You'll have no trouble in making selections from our very fine assortments.

Sweaters with two, three or four pockets are among those most approved for fall and winter wear. Some of the newest ones are in striking jacquard patterns. Whether you wish a heavy, light or medium weight, you'll find it here.

The Colored Shirt

This season shows no lessening in the popularity of the colored shirt. We have it here in the fashionable English broad-cloth. Stripped Shirts are equally popular with many well dressed men and may be found here in newest printed, woven or mercerized patterns.

"Jaeger" Pure Wool Taffeta Shirts are another striking feature of our shirt department.

The patterns are particularly neat and the colors well chosen.

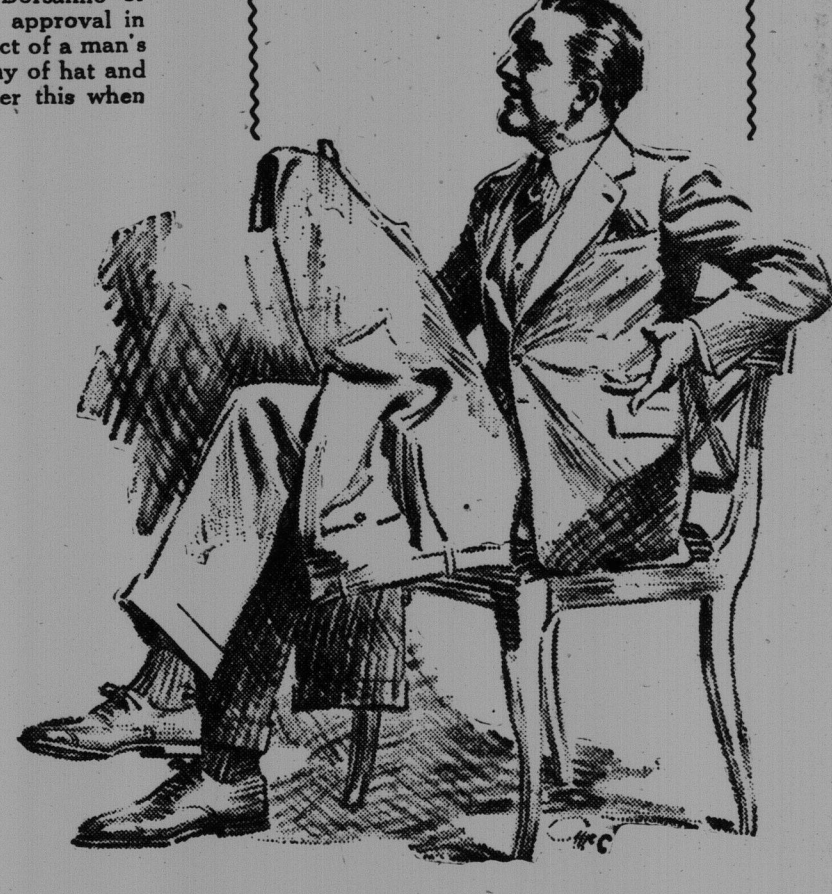

Clothes Are Important, socially and in business, for the effect they have on other people.

Everybody knows this. But more important still is the effect they have on the wearer. This is a point often overlooked. Good clothes, a frequent change of clothes, are an unfailing stimulus, an unfailing source of assurance; and this is the best attitude a man can possibly have toward his friends and the public. Knowing this, it is our job to offer the best clothes to be had. This we do.

Boys' Clothes Too

Complete Fall Outfits for boys are now ready here. Suits and Overcoats of the sturdiest kind, yet as good looking as it's possible to make them. The sort of clothes Mothers and boys both appreciate.

Shirts, Hose, Sweaters, Underwear, Neckwear—and all other accessories boys need for school or dressy wear are here and in well made varieties. M. R. A. Clothing will keep the boy dressed in a way that will do credit to you, and the good fabrics will keep him dressed well for a long time. (Men's Shops, 1st and 2nd Floors)

OCTOBER BRIDES

Boyle-Doherty.
 St. Margaret's church, Dorchester, Mass., was the scene of an interesting event on Monday, Sept. 29, when Rev. Joseph Churchward united in marriage Gertrude Augusta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Doherty, Sussex, and Walter F. Boyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Boyle, of Hampton, N. B. The bride was becomingly attired in a suit of brown serge with fur trimmings, a tulle blouse of rust-colored crepe de chene and hat of brown and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. Miss Gertrude McDonald, of Haverhill, Mass., who acted as bridesmaid, appeared attired in a gown of midnight blue satin with black picture hat and carried a bouquet of American beauty roses. Allen McPherson acted as groomsmen. After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Keohan, Dorchester avenue, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served. The groom's gift to the bride was a fox fur necktie, to the bridesmaid a silver mesh purse, and to the groomsmen a scarf. Many beautiful gifts testified to the popularity of both bride and groom, the bride being a popular member of the Hampton Consolidated school staff for the last five years. After a short honeymoon trip to Portland, Me., the happy pair will reside in Medford, Mass. DEATHS

Mrs. William Gould.
 Minto, Oct. 2.—Mrs. William Gould (nee Fulton), after a lingering illness, passed away on Friday last. He was educated in the St. John grammar school from which he graduated in 1877, carrying off the much coveted Parker medal for mathematics. After graduating from the Provincial Normal School he acted as principal of the Beconsfield school for 13 years and then entered the Civil Service, in which he continued for 27 years. On

ST. JOHN MAN IS DROWNED IN FLOOD

Windsor C. Brown, aged about 26, of Plaster Rock, a former Dominion Express messenger running out of this city was drowned and two others narrowly escaped a similar fate, when the dam at the Fraser Companies plant there broke Wednesday afternoon and they were caught in the fury of the released waters.

The late Mr. Brown was well known in St. John, this city having been his headquarters during the two years he was engaged as a messenger with the Dominion Express. He was very popular. He was a returned soldier and had lost the sight of one eye from a wound during the war.

As far as could be learned last night he is survived by his father, with whom he lived in Plaster Rock, and one brother.

WESTERN COAL STRIKE

(Winnipeg Tribune.)
 Is Winnipeg facing a coal shortage this fall? Reports coming in respecting the available supply are conflicting. Since April 1 some 6,000 miners have been out on strike in the unloading districts of Alberta and south eastern British Columbia and a settlement of the dispute is apparently as far off today as it was six months ago. But some of the coal operators claim that owing to the lack of orders during the summer months they have sufficient stocks of coal on hand left over from last season to take care of immediate orders.

The strike was called in protest against the refusal of the operators to renew the wage agreement which expired on March 31 last. These agreements for Western Canadian bituminous mines are invariably based on similar agreements in effect in the United States, bituminous coalfields. Last spring the United States miners' operators agreed to a renewal of existing agreement providing for 1924 wage scale for another three years, that is, until March 31, 1927. The C. I. O. operators, however, would sign a similar agreement. Instead proposed to renew the former agreement for one year only, except the wage scale should be reduced $1.17 per day, the amount of the cost of living bonus during the war which had been added to the wage scale in 1920.

Keep a sea weed, has been known to attain a length of 900 feet.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

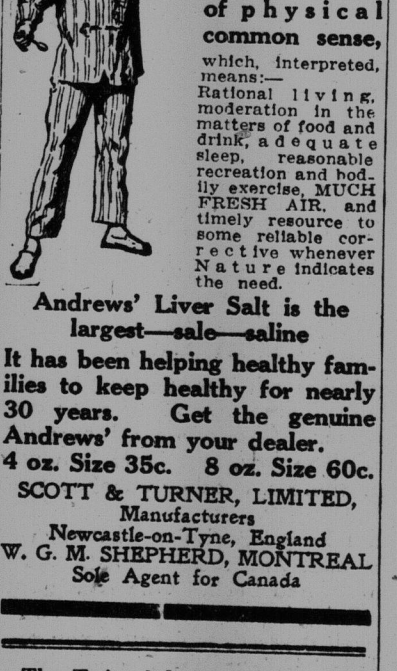

THE MAGIC SAND AND THE STUMP

"The magic sand's gone," said poor Nancy. "Now, what'll we do?" said the Sand Man. "I mean that the magicians, Ena Meena, bewitched the magic sand just now," said the Sand Man. "He cast a spell over it. Didn't you hear him? He turned it from sleepy sand into wide-awake sand. What the babies will do now I don't know."

Suddenly Nancy began to laugh. "Why, Mister Sand Man," she said, "I forgot to tell you that when Nick and I came back after putting the babies to sleep for their afternoon naps, we peeped inside the Sour Old Woman's house and saw Ena Meena there. We knew he would do some mischief. If he saw the sleepy sand so we emptied it out into an old stump and put it in the place."

"What?" cried the Sand Man. "The sleepy sand is as safe as ever," said the Sand Man. "You Twins have saved everything. Where is the real magic sand? I must get it right away."

FABLES ON HEALTH

War on Wrinkles

Wrinkles creep into the face of all us—and Mrs. Mann of Anytown was no exception. She found what is known as the "herin method" helpful in removing them.

This method starts with steaming the face. Narrow strips of courtplaster are applied to the wrinkled sections, but first these sections must be smoothed carefully with the fingers. To get results this treatment must be persisted in for some time, and applications should be made twice a week.

When furrows appear on the forehead, a compress may be applied made of eggs and mixed with alcohol.

Place it on the forehead upon going to bed and leave it through the night, unless it begins to smart. Then it is best to remove it or the skin will be reddened.

For general skin stimulation, baths in cold water, then rub briskly with a towel or with the hands and rub in some good cold cream.

Electric apparatus may now be secured which, when properly applied, helps in many cases.

Treasure Trove for Dickensians

Minutes of Literature Guild in Novelists' Writing, are Discovered.

The New York Times magazine of Sept. 28 published the following of interest to Dickens lovers:

One of the rarest "finds" in recent years of interest to admirers of Charles Dickens came to light a short time ago in the shape of the minutes and other documents of the Guild of Literature and Art, many of which are in the great novelist's handwriting.

The Guild of Literature and Art was formed in 1851 by Dickens and Edward Bulwer-Lytton for the purpose of establishing a provident fund and benefit society for unfortunate literary men and artists. Its members included some of the foremost English authors and artists, and attending its benefit theatrical performances were notably and leaders of the London world of fashion.

For years collectors have searched vainly for these papers. When John Forster undertook the biography of his friend Dickens, he sought high and low for the records of the guild. Until a careful search failed to reveal them there, it was thought that they were among the great collection of Dickens manuscripts in the Kensington Museum. Then it was generally believed that they were destroyed in a fire at Dickens' home. It seems, however, that Dickens entrusted these books and papers a short time before his death to a friend, and they turned up for sale about four months ago. They are now in the possession of Edward L. Dean of New York, by whose permission what is printed here is reproduced.

Getting Away From White Collar Jobs?

In the young man power of America turning away from the desks jobs back to constructive labor? That is the question that arose in Miss Rose C. Field's mind as she talked with the men on the night shift in the Duquesne steel mill. In trying to discover the result of the new eight-hour day on the steel workers, Miss Field, who is considered an expert on industrial relations, went on with the night shift at 11 o'clock, and in the long hours before dawn in the glare and heat of the giant furnaces talked intimately with the men about the new day.

In describing these talks in the October Century, the reaction of the workers to the eight-hour day, and what they are doing with their "leisure" Miss Field describes the youngster of 22 or 24, of good family and college education, who worked by day in the mill because he "loved it," and studied at night.

"I haven't thought about it," he replied after a moment's silence. "But it seems to me I ought to. I think we're getting away from the white-collar idea. There's something, a satisfaction in being a part of this that you don't get sitting behind a desk. Or so it seems to me. I think other fellows are getting this. The hours and the tales they heard about the work might have scared them off before. I think more will be willing to try it now. It's not so easy to start with, let me tell you, but once you get the swing of it, then you feel the sense of power. I like it."

"He expected to tap his head at the morning, he told me, and invited me to come and sit with him after that. He'd be through then until it was time to leave. What he said is food for thought. Men were getting away from the white-collar idea and turning to the satisfaction of accomplishment in constructive labor. Is that true? Or does the satisfaction lie primarily in the fact that a 22-year-old boy in an office draws a salary of about $25 a week, whereas the 22-year-old in the mill as this can get a pay envelope of $80 for two weeks' work?"

Says "Bob" May Cut Marriage Rate

(United Press)

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Bobbed hair in time is going to have a serious effect in cutting down the number of marriages, according to Charles Nestle, business specialist of New York, in an address here.

"That bobbed hair eventually will result in bared hair for women, is a prediction," said Nestle. "That it will rob women, in appearance at least, of womanly charm is a fact and that it is no doubt that this fact will reduce the marriage rate and may in time lead to a falling off of the world's population."

"Since the beginning of time, the glory of woman has been her hair. Shorn of her long tresses, she is shorn of much of her physical allurements. She appears mannish. Men do not care for mannish-looking women and will not marry them."

"Long hair enables a woman, by changing her colour, to add the charm of variety to her beauty. Bobbed hair deprives her of this varied attractiveness. She appears always the same, she attracts no more admiration than she might expect if she appeared every day in the same gown."

"As she grows mannish in appearance, she will grow mannish in nature. This will be an inevitable psychological consequence. Thus bobbed hair, with its tendency to subvert the womanlyness of women, may become a source of tragic conditions in the future."

NEW STUDENTS ARE ENTERTAINED

Mount Allison Students Indulge in "Stunts" to Open Term

Sackville, Oct. 2.—Thursday evening at Mount Allison the annual initiation of the new girls into the Alpha Beta Society was held. Although in number the new girls exceeded the old they took their initiation with a hearty good will and not one seemed lacking in real college spirit.

At 9 o'clock, Mrs. Liddy, the Dean, and the old girls of Allison Hall were at home to the Dr. and Mrs. Trueman and the professors' wives. The parade, which was held Friday morning, was one of the best seen for several years. The new students in their bonnets and banners presented a smarter appearance than is usual at such a time. The following is a list of the new girls: Muriel Winters, Nan Coleman, Agnes Matthews, Muriel Smith, Clair Fullond, Given LeGrow, Edith Hugh, Margaret Helen De Hines, Margaret Oldham, Evelyn Whitman, Jean McNutt, Marie Smith, Margaret Hilton, Edna McAnn, Grace Patten, Lucille Hodgson, Katherine Allen, Agnes Rasmussen, Kathleen Richardson, Tilley Copp, Thekla Spence, Olive Hill, Clyde Campbell, Isabel Motz, Pearl Weeks.

Many citizens watched with much interest the Freshmen parade, which was held on Thursday evening and again Friday morning. One could not but be struck by the large Freshmen class at Mount Allison University this year, as the fantastic array of about a hundred youths, wearing white bonnets and decorated with pink and green, marched through the centre of the town, under the direction of the "old students." The celebration this year appeared to be a little more elaborate than usual. A cart was drawn along, containing a wooden cage, on top of which was seated a freshman, playing a banjo and singing. The parade stopped at Allison Hall, where they were joined by the freshmen, A. S. and the freshmen were placed in line cages, on which the freshmen were seated. To the tune of "That's where my money goes," the parade resumed its journey to the Halls of Learning to sit at the feet of Gamaliel. After the play in the imperial theatre Friday night the freshmen class marched on the stage, and put on a few stunts, under the direction of their seniors.

The burning of women to death was carried out in Europe as late as 1790.

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even itchy, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist.

Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and discomfort. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

Spilling the Beans.

"Yes, it's really remarkable. Bobby seems to eat twice as much chicken when we have visitors," said the fond mother to her guests.

"Really? And why is that, Bobby?" Bobby's reply was disconcerting.

"Because," he said, "that's the only time we have it."—Youth's Companion.

Dear Sir:

Allow me to offer you my cordial thanks for your beautiful design and most valuable assistance. Mr. Wm. Ward is also designing a card. I propose to use yours and his alternately. I would propose that the writing be what I now set forth on the other side of the sheet. I can offer no suggestion as to the design, which appears to me to be simple, appropriate and beautiful.

Faithfully Yours,
CHARLES DICKENS.
Joseph I. Jenkins, Esquire.

The Guild of Literature and Art had a long and useful life. It was dissolved by act of Parliament in 1897, 46 years after its founding. Reasons for its dissolution were not only because the moving spirits of the organization were dead, but also because of the dissolution of the Bulwer-Lytton estate. Those who were receiving benefits from the Guild's funds were taken care of by the Royal Literary Fund and the Artists' General Benevolent Institution, so that the initial purpose of Dickens and Bulwer-Lytton may be said to have been continued, although the Guild itself no longer lives.

Had Dickens himself lived he might have inspired a further development of the Guild, for not long before he died he confided to his friend Charles Kent this ambition: "What do you think would be the realization of one of my most cherished day dreams? To settle down for the remainder of my life within easy distance of a great theatre, in the direction of which I should hold supreme authority. It should be a house, of course, having a skilled and noble company, and in every way magnificently appointed. The pieces should be dealt with according to my pleasure and touched up with judgment, and there in obedience to my word, the players as well as the plays being absolutely under my command. There, that's my day dream."

As it was, as the minutes and letters to artists show, Dickens had considerable direction of the affairs, theatre and otherwise, of the Guild of Literature and Art. Throughout his life he remained on sympathetic terms with artists and illustrators.

WOMEN ORGANIZE POLITICAL CLUB

Chatham, N. B., Oct. 2.—Liberal women of Northumberland county are rallying enthusiastically to the support of their standard bearer in the Federal by-election campaign, W. B. Snowball, and an efficient organization to this end has been effected in several centres within the last week.

Wednesday evening, following an address delivered by Miss Isabel C. Armstrong, director of the Women's Division, National Liberal Bureau, Ottawa, to a large gathering of the women of Douglastown, a Liberal women's committee was appointed to co-operate with the men's committee. Mrs. Elmer Wood was unanimously elected convener.

Redbank since Tuesday evening claims the distinction of being the first for the organization of a Women's Liberal Club on a permanent basis in the province of New Brunswick. In addition to forming an executive to act in the campaign, with president, secretary and full set of offices the Liberal women of Red Bank propose to continue as an organization for educational work.

This step was taken when Mrs. John Sullivan opened her home on Tuesday evening for a meeting of the women electors of Red Bank to meet Miss Armstrong. A short inspiring address was also given on this occasion by Mrs. H. B. Macdonald, of Chatham. Miss Annie E. J. Sutherland was

ORPHANAGE HAS $10,500 OVERDRAFT

Board of Directors Look With Some Concern on the Situation.

The finances of the New Brunswick Protestant Orphanage were considered with some concern at the meeting of the board of directors last night in the Board of Trade rooms when D. C. Clark, president, was in the chair. The maintenance fund has fallen behind to such an extent that there is now an overdraft of $10,500. In the building fund the July 1, 1924, payments have not all come in promptly and unless the tardy ones pay immediately it will be necessary for the committee to go to the bank for an overdraft to care for the construction work until the Jan. 1 payments come in. The need for the building is emphasized by the fact that there are now between 30 and 40 names on the waiting list for the institution.

The 80 children over four years of age are now housed in the building on the Manawagonish road, and the 70 children under four years are in the Brittain street building, both the Wright street and the West St. John buildings having been completely vacated by the end of September.

Miss Klinge is in charge of the Brittain street home, where 50 of the 70 children are under two years of age. Miss Frost is in charge of the Manawagonish road home where temporary school accommodation has been arranged. It is hoped to have part of the second wing of the new home ready for occupancy early in January when two rooms of the new school are also expected to be ready.

The annual collections for the maintenance of the orphanage will be taken in the Protestant churches throughout the province in November, and the directors were looking to this source to wipe out the $10,500 overdraft. The Anglicans and Presbyterians will give their collection on the first Sunday in November, the Methodists on the second Sunday and the Baptists on the third.

EXPROPRIATION OF VOCATIONAL SCHOOL SITE IS DEFERRED

Committee Will Ask Provincial Govt. for Assurance of Grant.

At a special meeting last night the St. John School Board decided by a vote of five to two to hold up action in the expropriation of the site for the vocational school until a delegation had waited upon the Provincial Government and assurance had been given that the 25 per cent Government grant for the building would be forthcoming. The original limit on this grant is June 30, 1925.

H. Colby Smith presided. Others present were Mrs. E. R. Taylor, Mrs. D. P. Chisholm, G. H. Green, Horace A. Porter, Allan A. McIntyre, Thomas Nagle, E. H. W. Ingraham, S. A. Worrell, acting superintendent of city schools, and A. Gordon Leavitt, secretary.

The board, having previously acceded to the request of the vocational committee that steps be taken to expropriate a vocational school site, and having delegated to a committee of two, Mr. Porter and S. W. Palmer, the duty of acting in the matter, Mr. Porter reported for that committee. He said the warrant to be handed to the sheriff must be signed by the chairman and secretary and he had asked that the meeting be called in order that the board might authorize signatures for the document. Hon. H. A. McKewen having tendered his resignation as chairman, had been unwilling to sign the warrant.

Question of Grant.

Mr. Nagle raised the objection that the board had no guarantee from the Government that the 25 per cent grant for the building would be forthcoming. Mr. McIntyre said that the federal director of technical education had said he would recommend for the grant a school erected on any of the three sites he had mentioned in his report. It was found last night that no written record of this statement was available. Mr. Nagle said he had learned from Fletcher Peacock, provincial director of vocational education, that the Provincial Government would have to receive the money from the Federal Government and, if the Federal Government held up the grant, it would not be forthcoming at all. He did not wish the board to proceed with expropriation and have the site left on the hands of the board without any prospect of a school being erected because there was no grant to be had.

Mr. Porter thought the discussion out of order as the board had previously ordered expropriation proceedings.

Mr. McIntyre said the chairman, Hon. H. A. McKewen, had expressed the opinion that if the worst happened the board could only lose the grant for that portion of the building not completed by June 30, 1925, when the present grants expired. The school board and vocational committee of St. John had acted in plenty of time in the first instance and delays had been caused by the Provincial Government which it was believed would be taken into consideration when the grant was applied for. The board was assured of 50 per cent of the cost of equipment and of 60 per cent of the teacher salaries, no time limit being placed for these grants. He held that since the Provincial Government had authorized "And in the meantime we will have got the land," said Mr. Nagle.

Mr. Ingraham raised the question of estimates made being exceeded.

Mr. Green told of what had been done in Fredericton where three sets of plans had been prepared in order to bring the expenditures down to the level of the estimates.

The amendment was carried by a vote of five to two.

Mr. Smith was asked to appoint the committee to wait upon the Government on Tuesday and he named the vocational committee and Mr. Porter.

"This is the end of vocational training for St. John," exclaimed Mr. Green.

Mr. Ingraham said it was an effort to give the citizens what they had passed upon.

Mr. Green then made the charge that the whole affair was a game of politics and Mr. Nagle replied: "If you think so we may have a show down. There has been altogether too much anxiety shown for this lot."

Mr. Green retorted that he had always wanted Port Howe as a site for the school and that site had been favored by Fletcher Peacock also.

Adjournment was made shortly after 9 o'clock.

CHARACTER STUDY CLUB IS FORMED

Members Plan Series of Lectures at First Business Meeting.

There were 59 of the 68 charter members of the St. John Character Analysis Club at the first business meeting of the club held last night in the Natural History Society rooms with H. A. Mence, president, in the chair. Much enthusiasm was displayed and all members undertook to bring in other members with the aim of extending the usefulness of the club as much as possible.

It was decided that the principals and teachers of the city schools should be specially invited to attend the next meeting next Thursday. While the charter members paid from $15 to $25, the members joining now will have only a comparatively small fee to pay and will be privileged to take up the full two years' course of study of physical characteristics laid out by Edward Lee Hawk before he left the city.

The aim of the club, apart from personal benefit to its members, is to do all that it can for the community along educational lines, and at each of its meetings one of its members will lecture on certain sections of the course. Gordon King Kelley will be the speaker at the next meeting, and he will touch on other subjects along the general lines of the course, giving the members the benefit of his experience in studies on similar topics.

The officers of the club are as follows: President, H. A. Mence; vice-president, Mrs. H. H. Richardson; secretary, Miss L. B. Mone; treasurer, G. F. McNulty; chairman of membership committee, Rupert Taylor; chairman of educational committee, Miss M. M. Shea.

THIRD FIRE IN NEWCASTLE HOUSE

Newcastle, Oct. 2.—The fire department was called out last night at 12.15 o'clock for a fire in a building in the upper section of the town owned by John O'Brien and occupied by a man named Breen as a boarding house. It is alleged that the fire was of incendiary origin, this being the third attempt to burn the building, the other two attempts being made in one night about a week ago. The fire was quickly extinguished on the arrival of the fire department and the damage done was slight.

Large Suit For Millions Threatens Court Record

DETHAM CASE IS ALREADY OVER 150 DAYS IN COURT
One Juror Breaks Down Under the Strain; Two are Married.
IS WEARY GRIND
Enormous Expense Piled Up—Contestants Establish Offices in Court.

Detham, Mass., Oct. 3.—Indications that the Willett-Herrick damage suit might be nearing the end of its trial after consuming more than 150 court days were seen in the trend of the case during the last few days. There is still a possibility, however, that it will break the record of what was known as the Tichenor case, which lasted for 187 days of actual court room sittings.

In the amount of money involved in the suit and in the costs to Norfolk county and the litigants the present trial is believed to be unprecedented in this part of Massachusetts if not in the whole of New England. Since the case came to trial on November 6, 1923, two jurors have been married and one has been forced by a nervous breakdown to leave the case, all parties agreeing to continuance of the evidence with only eleven days to go. The 1400 pages of testimony have been transcribed into 147 volumes and the cost to the county already has reached $30,000.

Shorn of the mass of technicalities that has encumbered it, the case concerns itself with a claim by George F. Willett, formerly of the Boston brokerage firm of Willett, Bent & Company, that he is entitled to $15,000,000 damages for an alleged conspiracy through which he lost the Boston branch of the American Felt Company and the Daniel Green Felt Shoe Company. The defendants are George F. Herrick, of the Boston banking firm of Alder, Peabody & Company, and several other Boston financiers. The Willett and Herrick are daily attendants at the trial.

The trial has become a part of the court house routine. For five hours a day the grind goes on. Long ago when Judge Callahan presided the trial probably lengthened his trial days for Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, thus leaving the jurymen a full week-end in which to attempt to order their personal affairs. Under a bill framed jointly by the jurymen and defendants and passed by the last legislature the salary of jurymen in this trial was set at the unprecedented sum of $9 a day. Previously they had received only $4 a day.

Both plaintiff and defendants have established regular offices and staff in the court house, occupying vacant court rooms. Each has about eight clerks, stenographers and dictaphone operators. Three stenographers record the testimony as witnesses give it. It is then read into a dictaphone and a copy of typists transforms it into written pages manifolded into fifteen copies. One set is immediately bound and constitutes the available record in the court room.

It took the plaintiff 185 days to present his side of the case, and the defence has been at its end of the legal bill for more than 150 days. It is expected that the remainder of the defence testimony will be completed within three weeks, but after all the arguments and testimony in rebuttal and sub-rebuttal.

The jury foreman is Rev. Charles R. Powers, a retired Baptist minister. With him on the jury are the proprietor of a Boston printing establishment, a two railroad employes and several clerks and artisans. Joseph I. Day of Midway, a clerk, was the twelfth juror until he recently suffered a nervous breakdown.

The hammer is artistically carved of ebony, and about 12 inches long. It was presented to the Court by the Senate of Leyden University in 1922. It has been missing since August 26, and information leading to its recovery is requested by The Hague chief of police.

CHINA WANTS POWER IN LEAGUE
Peking, Aug. 31.—(By mail).—China will have a right this year to regain her place on the council of the League of Nations, lost a year ago to Czechoslovakia, according to reports from diplomatic circles. It is argued that, being one of the largest nations and therefore contributing to pay a liberal proportion of the cost of maintaining the League, China is entitled to representation as one of the permanent members and her delegates have been instructed to prepare her case accordingly.

JOHN BULL GETS ON WITH AIR FLEET

London, (By mail to United Press)—Britannia's business of ruling the waves is gradually forcing her into the air. LAST SENTINEL WORRIES ABOUT WHO'LL TAKE UP HIS POST AFTER DEATH BECKONS Lieutenant Francis J. Wehner and the treasure he's guarded for 20 years—the first submarine torpedo boat.
New Orleans, Oct. 3.—The lone sentinel of one of the glories of the "Lost Cause" is sorely troubled. Death's shadow is hovering over him. But it is not death, in itself, old Lieutenant Francis J. Wehner, last of the "Sulphide Club" of the immortal 5th Louisiana Infantry, Confederate army, fears. He has faced that too often to mind it now.

2,000 PEOPLE AT SUSSEX EXHIBITION

No Games of Chance are in Evidence at the Fair This Year.

Sussex, Oct. 2.—A record attendance of more than 2,000 people for the first two days of the Sussex Amateur Athletic Club's fair, which opened last night, augurs well for the success of the annual venture. The opening night saw almost 1,000 people pass through the gates. This was an increase of 25 per cent. over the attendance on the opening day last year. An equal number, if not more, showed their interest in the Athletic Club of their home town by being present tonight. As the fair continues tomorrow in the afternoon and evening, and also on Saturday afternoon and evening, the management are confident that the attendance will at least reach a total of 5,000 people.

One feature of the fair which immediately strikes the visitor is the entire absence of any game which might suggest a little gambling. There are no chocolate wheels, or booths where all pay a dime and someone takes away a baby doll. Last year the fair had all of these features, but the executive of the association complying with the request of several of the ministers of the town have done away with the wheels for this year, as an experiment. Other games, all games of skill as contrasted with games of chance, have been substituted and are receiving patronage.

SEEKING HEIRS OF EDWARD HALL

Inquiries are being made as to the whereabouts of the heirs of Edward F. Hall, if any are living. A letter was received at the office of the sub-district Board of Health from Samuel A. Pease, of Brooklyn, N. Y., representing the executors of the will of Edward F. Hall, which contained particulars regarding the dead man. He is said to have come from St. John. His father and mother are known to be dead, and it is believed a niece and nephew are living. Hall was a colored man, aged 68 years, and the lawyer wants to know facts as to the death of his parents, the number and whereabouts of his heirs, and the date and place of his birth.

It is understood that as a boy Hall used to carry meals to certain lumbermen along the St. John River, and afterwards became a lumberman himself. It is also understood that he had been in the United States for more than 40 years. The lawyer writes that the amount of the estate is small but he is anxious to obtain the particulars he asks for as soon as possible in order to go forward with the probate of the will.

GIRLS SENT HOME FROM WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Oct. 2.—The last act in the famous automobile bandits' disastrous trip into New Brunswick was played this afternoon when immigration officers escorted Annie and Elizabeth Christian into United States territory.

Sheriff Foster yesterday received money from their relatives in Leominster, Mass., to pay their fares from Houlton, Maine, to their homes. They were happy girls when told they were to start on the trip today.

IT RUNS INTO MONEY.

U. N. B. LAW SCHOOL TO OPEN OCTOBER 14

Registration of students in the University of New Brunswick Law School here will take place on Tuesday, October 14, and lectures will in all probability begin on the following day. Dr. J. Roy Campbell, K. C., registrar, said that, although it was rather early yet, several applications for admittance had already been received. Asked concerning the appointment of a new dean, the position having been made vacant by the appointment of Hon. H. A. McKenna to the chairmanship of the Board of Railway Commissioners, Dr. Campbell said that nothing had been done in this direction as yet. Judge H. O. McIntyre, K. C., would continue in his capacity as professor of law during the next term. Dr. Campbell did not know of any new appointments to the faculty. He expected that there would be a meeting of the faculty next week at which definite plans for the year would be laid.

Mrs. Margaret Lawrence was elected the new president of the High School Alumnae at the annual meeting last night in the Y. W. C. A. residence with Miss Grace Campbell, first vice-president, in the chair in the absence of Miss Marjorie Manning. President.

Very satisfactory reports were presented, telling of a year of much success and membership totals showed 188 paid up. The sum of $50 was voted to the Victorian Order of Nurses.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Honorary president, Miss Jessie Lawson; president, Mrs. Margaret Lawrence; vice-presidents, first, Miss Grace Campbell; second, Miss Helen McMurray; third, Miss Dorothy Sinclair; secretary, Miss Moly Ling-

FAINTS WHEN IN PERIL.

A bloodless and bruiseless accident occurred at the corner of King and Charlotte streets last night when two women stepped off the curb in front of a slowly moving automobile, driven by Captain Hurley, of the tug Neptune. Sensing the danger, one of the women became weak and fainted. The car just brushed the other's clothing. The woman was picked up and carried to the Ross drug store. She was suffering from shock and was not as the least injured. Dr. C. M. Kelly had been summoned and his examination revealed that no harm had been done.

drew this remark, but added he had not spoken to the young man for a year.

Continuing the witness said Judge White's letter came in on the 30 of October. He said it was hard to read. Dr. Taylor submitted it for the jury's inspection.

Mr. Hanson said he was rushed with work and did not give the letter the attention he would otherwise have given. Witness said Dr. Taylor's request read the letter to the court. The first paragraph definitely refused his request for a change in the decree.

The afternoon, Dr. Taylor cross-examined Mr. Hanson this afternoon regarding the evidence given by Dr. Allen and Judge White when he went into the matter of great length.

Witness said he did not think he read all of Judge White's letter to him the first time. He did not read it all immediately on receipt, but did so later that day. He was quite sure of that. He read enough at first to show him that Judge White had refused to change the decree.

With regard to the C. N. R. and the playground, he had sent no bill to the Government. There was a bill for $25 in 1922 in connection with an appeal case. It had nothing to do with the playground. His books were here submitted, showing this entry, and others concerning which questions were asked by Dr. Taylor. On March 13, 1915, there was an entry on a bill to Merrill and retainer $5, with a corresponding ledger entry. Payment was credited. The day book entry was in his handwriting.

Dr. Gerow appeared at this juncture and said Bert Lint was not as well as he was last night. He could give evidence at his home, however, if desired. Judge and counsel conferred with the doctor and it was decided to have his evidence taken at 4.30 by the judge, counsel and stenographer.

He might have said to Mr. Hawkins at some time that his early recollection was that he did not see the decree until he returned from Montreal. He did not say he had the same feeling now as at the examination for discovery. If Mr. Hawkins said so he was mistaken. Witness did not see Mr. Dougherty bring the decree into the office but Mr. Dougherty told him he brought it. Witness did not sign the decree until he had read it. There was a difference between this letter and the petition prepared in the case. The word "not" or "will" had been deleted in the latter letter he dictated, because the first part of the letter conflicted with the latter part.

Dr. Allen, it should have read that he had never told Dr. Allen. Witness added that he was excited when he read the letter, for he then realized the seriousness of the situation. On Nov. 13 he met Dr. Allen and the latter was angry. Witness told Judge White he was not conscious of any wrongdoing. He might have said the same to Dr. Allen. He told Dr. Allen's justice about the letter and Dr. Allen's recollection of a telephone conversation, witness said he thought it had. He had spoken to Dr. Allen about the lack of system, and the latter had said he had often spoken to Mr. McKay but could not get him to do anything. He did not want to attack Dr. Allen, but to show that he was a greatly overworked man. Referring again to the telephone conversation he said he was not sure what day he sent Mr. Dougherty down to see Dr. Allen. Witness repeated the conversation in his mind. Dr. Allen said he did not say it was Mr. Hanson who telephoned him. Dr. Allen if it might not have been Mr. Dougherty.

He said to Dr. Allen he hoped the Gleason would not get hold of it. He had not talked with Dr. Allen after this case was started. No one from this office had any recollection of a telephone conversation with Dr. Allen. He asked Mr. Dougherty and other members of his staff. He was convinced there was no forgery in connection with the Nevers decree. Witness said Judge White's evidence in this trial. He was satisfied Judge White gave his recollection of the conversation of a year ago. The judge was against him in his request.

Dr. Allen must have got something else in his mind. There was conversation somewhere. He did not know of any similar case then being considered. He thought Judge White was wrong regarding the time and place of their conversation. He did not recall that Judge White said he should see the Chief Justice, or the three judges. The full court never was mentioned to witness by Judge White. The judge told him to go to the Chief Justice, but he had no recollection that Judge Grimmer was mentioned. Witness said he was quite excited at that time. He had three conversations with Judge White. In one he was sure Judge White said he thought the matter was closed.

There was a long discussion about the Nevers family agreement and the reason why Dr. Allen did not assent to the issue of a decree and witness was questioned at great length regarding conversations with Judge White, Dr. Allen and others.

Witness repeated he was never asked to go and see the court. Dr. Allen suggested that he see Judge White. The judge told him to go to the Chief Justice that he see the court. Dr. Taylor quoted from the evidence of Dr. Allen and Judge White in his trial and questioned the witness about it at great length. There was a recollection of much matter already submitted to the court.

Guard Your Mouth

Let WRIGLEY'S be the guardian of your mouth and throat.

It will combat trouble of various kinds. It helps to keep the teeth free from food particles that ferment and cause decay.

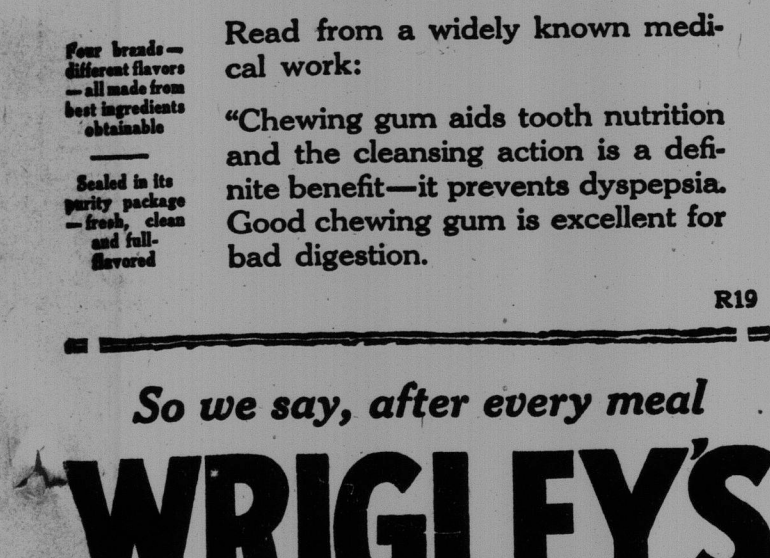

It has an antiseptic effect. It relieves acid mouth and thus not only prevents harm to the teeth, but serves to sweeten the stomach.

It stimulates digestion and helps to prevent the forming of gas that causes dyspepsia.

Read from a widely known medical work:

"Chewing gum aids tooth nutrition and the cleansing action is a definite benefit—it prevents dyspepsia. Good chewing gum is excellent for bad digestion.

EX-KAISER'S BROTHER STUDIES AIR "FLIVS"

German inventors are making rapid progress in developing aerial flivvers, equipped with a new type of small but highly efficient motor. The picture shows Prince Heinrich of Prussia, brother of the former Kaiser, inspecting an aerial flivver that took part in an air meet at Hamburg.

ONE FRIEND TELLS ANOTHER

The fame of a successful remedy is often spread far and wide by women telling one another of its merits, as is evidenced by a letter written by Mrs. Wm. Ridsdale of Mt. Forest, Ont. She writes: "I was weak, miserable and in pain. A friend told me what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for her. I tried it and am now well and strong. There is nothing equal to it for women's troubles."

The green in the north lights, according to scientists, is frozen nitrogen.

palace" and the "Palace of Amphiphris," but there are at least nine or ten more, I believe, of which indications have been found and that are waiting to be excavated. As the Roman gentlemen of the olden days had to have his summer house under the earth, instead of above it, if he did not want to be uncomfortably hot, he made his subterranean dwelling as comfortable and luxurious as he could. Not only did he gather around him his favorite pastimes, arranged so as to be always before his eyes in beautiful mosaic representations on the walls and floor of his dining-room, but exquisite mosaics in lovely patterns and pictures also covered the floors of the rooms and passages—even the courtyards being paved with mosaics and fine marble slabs. Gardens with trees and shrubs were actually planted in one portion of the courts, lighted from above by openings through which a less fierce and softer light filtered down than the brilliant fiery rays of the sun above the ground. Here and there small tanks were placed, lined at the bottom with mosaics, representing fish and men fishing, and to give a still further illusion of freshness and coolness, little fountains were placed near the living rooms and sleeping chambers, which threw up fine jets of water that descended in delicate sprays of multicolored drops of soft hues, the sunlight which caught them falling through the green of the leaves of the trees and being of subdued brilliance. These houses contained a very fine large banquet hall, various comfortable bedrooms and some little rooms of a vestibule—some of which latter, it is thought, were used by the slaves, while others served as bathrooms for the master and his family. There was also a large impluvium (where was also a large garden) and the triclinium (where celebrated drinking bouts were held, etc.). Bulla-Regia is situated on the road from Carthage, near Theveste, in the northwestern portion of Tunisia, close to Souk el Arba. It was once the home of the Numidian kings. By motor car from Tunis it takes one day; otherwise it can be done comfortably in two days. HES EXPENSIVE ANY WAY. It is said the upkeep of the Kaiser has cost Germany $8,000,000 since the war. But that is a great saving compared with his upkeep before—Houston Post-Dispatch. A Danish aviator recently flew over the Andes, being the first one to accomplish this feat.

ONE VERSION OF IT.

(Toronto Star)
The story being told of the man who wanted to see flying fishes at the zoo, and who accordingly asked where the bird cages were, is a reminder of that historic fish at Orillia which was gradually accustomed to live in the open air by the removal of a spoonful of water each day from the tank in which it was kept. But the man who used to hang it in a bird cage outside his door carelessly left a bucket of water on his front steps one day, and the poor creature, hopping out of its cage, was drowned.

CONDITIONS IN GERMANY ARE REVIEWED

(By Carl D. Groat, United Press.)

Berlin, Oct. 3.—New and serious political battles in Germany are expected in the next days as an aftermath of the Dawes struggle.

The Reichstag, scheduled to reconvene October 15, but perhaps summoned earlier by the Government, will witness a rattling skirmish over protective agrarian tariffs, with nationalists and junkers on one side, and socialists and communists on the other.

The socialists are demanding dissolution of the Reichstag. Their proclamation declares that the body is no longer representative of the nation. They insist that the populace should be asked directly to elect a new constituent assembly.

At the same time, the battle will bring up in all probability the great question of the eight-hour day in Germany. The socialists point out that the Dawes report expressly stated Germany's labor should not be put on a standard of life lower than that of other countries.

But the big industrialists have long since scrapped, in practice, the eight-hour day, and according to the socialists are preparing to pay reparations chiefly from the sweat of the laborer's brow.

The socialists maintain that this method of paying reparations will never do. Tariffs and hours—these two things furnish the groundwork for a pretty row, the outcome of which is thoroughly in doubt.

It is, however, possible that new elections will be the outgrowth of this internal strife. In this case, it is more than likely that the extreme right and left wings will suffer sharp losses.

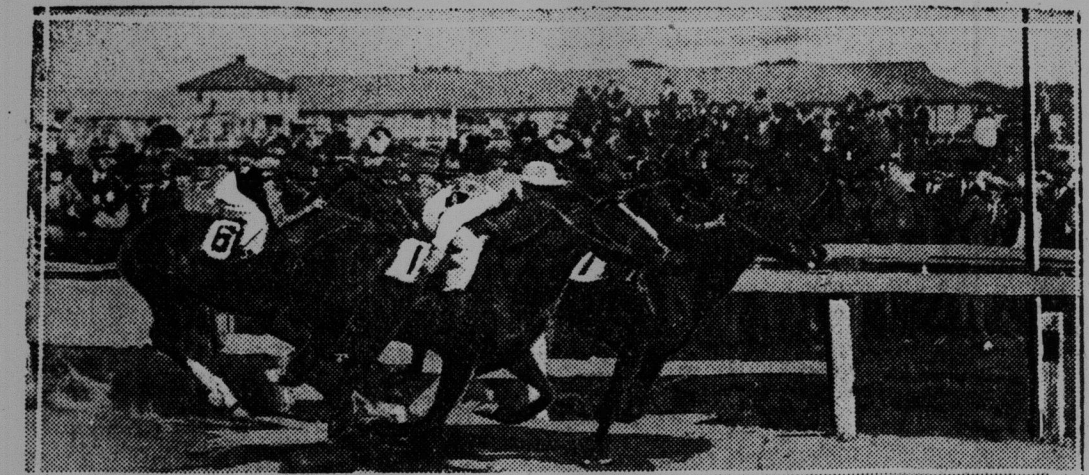

The nation as a whole is satisfied with the prospects for peace and order, offered by the Dawes report, and this means inroads in the extremist ranks.

The "Putsch" spirit has disappeared and it is safe to predict that Germany will now settle down to the ordered, barring quite unforeseen circumstances routine which marked its course before the war. It still has many internal political bickerings, but the danger of civil war and bloodshed has gone with the acceptance of the Dawes scheme.

Business is looking up. The first week after signature of the Dawes measures saw a sharp drop in unemployment in the Ruhr and elsewhere, and a general toning up of business. This was due to the substitution of certainty for uncertainty—and was born of the conviction that Germany is now a chance to wipe out her obligations and again get on her feet.

OSTRICH RACING PROVES A FIZZLE

Fans Were Promised Something Sensational But Enjoyed Farce.

Berlin, Oct. 3.—The "first ostrich races" in Europe have been much advertised as the sensation of a Berlin race meeting. The result has been the complete failure of these birds to do what was expected of them. The arrival of these "trained" ostriches from Hamburg—the trainer is an Italian—and the preparations at the racetrack where Berlin Derbys are contested, led the public to take the affair seriously.

Bets were made upon the competitors each harnessed to a small car driven by a man of jockey size and weight, who had to pull the ostrich tail feathers hard before the birds could be induced to start. The surprising gallop which ended after half a minute in a smart upset of the little car and the intense settling down of the ostrich for repose upon the course, was the cause of much hilarity as the birds, on the side of the course, but certainly not upon it. The others never started at all.

The importance of this failure to animal lovers cannot be too highly estimated; public opinion is not so strong on the Continent as in England as regards cruelty to animals.

TEN THOUSAND MISSING. New York Herald-Tribune. Here are four black lines from the latest of the thousands and one night's tale of Baghdad-on-the-Hudson: An official of the Missing Persons Bureau said late yesterday, "We have had 10,017 cases of missing persons reported to us since January 1. Franklin Roosevelt is just one of them."

One may fancy them on a pilgrimage. This Lost Legion, slipping almost hourly through the gates of reality into the shadowy land of surmise. Most of them carry some burden of trouble. A few, by an inner light of hope, uplifted children, bent upon some wonderful adventure; old folk wandering, they know not where, confused, unhappy girls, and men who travel only by night. But 10,000 of them in nine months! It is an army. Such a figure paralyses the imagination.

Fortunately, most of them reconsider their pet maladjustment and reluctantly return to the old routine and a steady diet. Others reveal themselves years later, perhaps half-way around the globe. But the police say there is a tragic 2 per cent which just become "statisticians." These are the grim remainder of the problem.

What is the strange, destructive element back of it all? Cities could be populated with these missing souls. The continent was claimed with less. Small towns suffer no such losses. Is it the lure of the mainland, the disintegration at the brink of the abyss? Is it the centrifugal force of such a vast agglomeration of human molecules as cohere in New York?

Probably there are 10,017 answers to this year's losses alone, each, if we could know the details, a full formed romance. And as the tide goes out, very memory of it is erased in the eager, larger oncoming tide of the city's newcomers.

WOULD FORM A NEW ORGANIZATION

Suggest That School Boy Athletics Have Own Governing Body.

Plans which may lead to the formation of a new athletic organization for the promotion and governing of athletics among the schools of the Maritime Provinces are being discussed by several of the leaders in this line of sport in New Brunswick. It was learned that arrangements are being made to interest all the schools of the three provinces in such a scheme.

The idea expressed by some of those making the suggestion is that at present the M. P. B. A. U. of Canada has all it can handle in the senior field and that the taking over of school sports by that body might cause more confusion than necessary. It is felt by several people that those closely in touch with school affairs would be much better qualified to deal with matters pertaining to the boys' sports than would those further removed.

In several cases recently when disputes arose, decisions have been made which were not pleasing to either side concerned. It is said that boy problems need special attention and often cannot be solved by senior methods.

There is no question of revolting against the amateur rules but there is a feeling that a new organization as suggested would do much to promote interest in school athletics throughout the three provinces and give the boys a chance to work out their own problems and eventually, when older, be qualified to take their proper position in the senior ranks.

U. N. B. TEAM IS NAMED FOR GAME

Fredericton, Oct. 2.—At the conclusion of this afternoon's practice at Goliath Field the University of New Brunswick Rugby Fifteen, which will open the local senior season here Saturday against the St. John Trojans, was announced. It is as follows: Forwards—Long, Woods, Divil, W. G. Jones (captain), Scovell, Macaulay, MacPhail, halves, Sterling, Keene, Fraser; three-quarters, Seeley, Currie, Donohoe, McCaffrey; fullback, J. B. Jones. Reserves are: Forwards, Wightman, Miller; three-quarters, Chalmers, McCordick, fullback, Fowler. Eleven of the players figured on last year's team.

CENTENARY CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

The Centenary Badminton Club held its annual meeting last evening and elected the officers for the ensuing year. J. Benson Mahoney, past president, was in the chair. Consideration of the formation of a league with St. John's, St. James and St. David's clubs was discussed but not decided upon. The meeting was agreed that league membership strengthened the fraternal spirit of the clubs and also improved their playing. The officers elected were: President, Vivian Fowler; secretary, Roy Willet; and treasurer, Arnold Fowler. Here, Robert G. Fulton, pastor of the church, was made honorary president. The members began their playing and spent a very enjoyable evening.

Canadian Pacific Man Gets Relief From Nervous Indigestion.

"The best of health and a gain of 38 lbs. in weight is what the Tanlac treatment has brought me and of course I am strong for it" is the remarkable statement of Henri Brunelle, a well known painter for the Canadian Pacific railway, who lives at 808 Carier St., Montreal, P. Q. "Nervous indigestion and loss of appetite had pulled me down from 180 to 142 lbs., and my energy and strength went down in proportion. After eating I suffered from gas and cramping spells, couldn't sleep nights, was easily tired out and felt all in. "Other medicines did me no good, but Tanlac was different and has me my every need. I have a wonderful appetite, eat what I want, sleep well and feel fine. I can tell the world, Tanlac is great!"

BIG BICYCLE RACE

Halifax, Oct. 2.—Leo and Hughie Minello, New Waterford riders who finished second and third last year in the Windsor and Halifax bicycle race, have arrived in Halifax to complete their training for the 1924 race. Both appeared disappointed when they were informed that George Walker would not be a starter. The Italian riders, better than last year, Harmon O'Brien, Monaghan rider, and Frank Cox, Charlottetown star, are both favored to win high positions. Eddie Spriggs, and Guy Dibbon appear to be Halifax's best bets in the long grind.

Amherst, N. S., Oct. 2.—William Roxborough Stuart, of Amherst, better known as "Red" Stuart, spectacular defence player of the St. Patrick's N. H. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy Christie, and the groom was supported by Vernon Forbes, Toronto. Following a wedding reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart left on a wedding trip to New York.

GIANTS-SENATORS EVEN IN BETTING

Fear of Johnson, However, May Make the Senators Favorites.

Indications along Broadway and at the Aqueduct race track yesterday were that the bulk of the betting on the approaching world's series will be at even money. If either team is made favorite the Giants are inclined to hold back until the uncertainty as to whether Captain Frank Frisch and Heinie Groh will be in condition to participate. Supporters of the Giants are inclined to hold back until definite announcement is made as to whether these two stars will be able to take part.

The betting so far is only in a tentative stage and both camps are asking odds ranging from 7 to 5 to 6 to 5, although it was freely predicted that if Frisch returned to the New York lineup, as now seems probable, even money would be the prevailing quotation by game time Saturday.

The largest actual bet reported was made by John Doyle, a commission of $8,000 against $5,500 with the Senators the favorite. The Washington money was placed through Ben Snow, a race track commissioneer. W. L. Darnell & Co., a Broad Street brokerage concern, reported a bet of $5,000 at even money. This company also announced that it had another $3,000 bet on the Giants at the same price.

G. B. deChandenesse & Co. announced that it had received $20,000 to bet at even money on Washington, and another $10,000 to bet against $14,000 that the Giants will win the first game. These odds were demanded because it is confidently expected that Walter Johnson will pitch the first game for the Senators and that this, coupled with the fact that they will be playing at home, will make the American League team a strong favorite to capture this contest.

At Doyle's and at Fred Schumann's in Brooklyn the odds on the first game were quoted at 11 to 10 with the Giants on the short end, and it was said at both places that they would probably lengthen to 7 to 5 if a definite assurance that Johnson was to pitch was forthcoming.

TRADE BALANCE BETTER. A favorable trade balance of $128,209 in the month of August for Canada is reported by the Commercial Intelligence Journal and for the twelve months ending August 31, the balance is $238,893,976, on the right side.

FOOTBALL SEASON BEGINS SATURDAY

McGill University Team to Meet Dartmouth at Hanover.

New York, Oct. 3.—(United Press).—Eight interesting intercollegiate football games and one international battle will spice up the programme, which will open officially the football season tomorrow afternoon. The season got under way last week with a scattering of games that served merely as the overture.

Three southern teams will journey eastward. One western team will leave its home territory. Two Missouri Valley teams and two Ohio conference teams will stir around in the Western Conference and middle west, and a Canadian team will cross the border. North Carolina visits Yale at New Haven.

Virginia invades Cambridge to play Harvard. North Carolina State plays Penn State at State College. St. Louis climbs the cliffs at West Point to play the Army.

Nebraska, one of the powers of the Missouri Valley conference, plays Illinois at Lincoln, while her conference rival, Missouri, goes to Chicago to take a first look at the University of Chicago.

Miami, a leader of the Ohio conference, goes to Ann Arbor to play Michigan and Ohio Wesleyan, another conference team, journeys to the lake regions to play the University of Detroit.

McGill University crosses the Canadian boundary lines and climbs the mountains to Hanover to play international game with Dartmouth. The heaviest and most important game of the day will be played at Pittsburgh, between Lafayette and Pittsburgh. While most of the other major teams are getting under way against easier opponents, Lafayette and Pittsburgh will be meeting the strongest teams on their schedule. Pittsburgh has developed a habit of starting the season with main bouts instead of preliminary games.

The start of the "Big Three" season will be one of the features of the day on the east, while the Western conference debut will get the "Big Ten" going with a number of important games. While Yale and Harvard are playing southern teams, Princeton will entertain the President's Alma Mater in a game against Amherst in the Princeton jugaloo.

Other eastern teams have easy games. Pennsylvania plays her second game against Franklin and Marshall at Philadelphia. Washington and Jefferson leaves home to play Bethany at Wheeling. Cornell meets her second setup in Niagara at Ithaca. Syracuse plays Mercer at Syracuse. The Navy plays Williams at Annapolis. The opening games of the midshipmen's schedule.

Ohio State and Purdue will furnish the important event of the Western conference schedule at Columbus. Iowa state opens with Wisconsin. Minnesota plays North Dakota. Iowa has a breather with Durant. Notre Dame opens the season against Lombard at South Bend in one of the only two easy games the "Micks" have scheduled for this season.

Minor games prevail among the leaders in the south. Georgia Tech plays Virginia Military Institute at Atlanta. The Cadets may prove a surprise, however, as they did with Pennsylvania not so long ago. Vanderbilt meets Birmingham Southern at Nashville. Alabama plays Eirnam at Greenville. Centre opens her season against Valparaiso at Danville.

Ordinary games also prevail among the big Pacific Coast teams. Southern California plays Pomona at Los Angeles. Stanford opens with Occidental at Palo Alto and California plays her second game of the season against St. Mary's at Berkeley.

Tsao Kun, president of China, was at one time a cloth merchant's apprentice. One third of the students at Yale college are self supporting.

"Heathen" Now Portrayed in Movies as "Gentleman"

(By Jack Jungmeyer.)
Hollywood, October 3.—Something very daring has recently been promulgated in motion pictures with a frequency indicating a definite trend. Something made all the more significant in that it has roused no public clamor, no controversy, no critical comment.

It is the presentation of the "heathen" as a hero.

The "heathen," the Mohammedan, the pagan, in direct contrast to the Christian, is portrayed as tolerable, human, respectable, admirable.

Now this was once the great heresy. The outlander of a different faith not so long ago existed merely as a brand to be saved from the burning, a demerit to be won to the crucial fold by ten thousand missionaries.

Today he comes smiling into a thousand theatres as an engaging figure of photodrama, a lover of Christian ladies; an absorbing erotic mystery; glamorous son of the Sahara and the South Seas; a man to be judged by his personal virtues and conduct rather than his religious persuasion.

Observe his suave intrusion and popular tolerance as "the Dragon" in Rex Ingram's filming of "The Arab." A fascinating creature he is, whimsical, humorous, likable in Ramon Novarro's characterization. No whit discounted in comparison with those who in the picture would convert him from the Crescent.

Recall him, in the same person of Novarro, as the pagan Samson in "Where the Pavement Ends," strum-

RAMON NOVARRO AS "THE ARAB" AND MILTON SILLS IN "THE SEA HAWK."

Mark him again, this "heathen," as the patriarchal Saracen avenger in Frank Lloyd's treatment of "The Sea Hawk," who, with the English victim of a Christian nation's slave galley (Milton Sills), makes practical war upon the blood-sweating craft of Christendom of that day.

How this must stir the posthumous wrath of Martel, iron scourge of the infidel, and all his later disciples of faith by force or insistent suggestion.

This composite alien, only a little less conspicuously presented in other film plays, is a symbol of the shifting conventions and folk convictions for which the motion picture is an excellent mirror.

If he could be disengaged from the photo-dramatic illusion he helps create he might yet be intolerable. Thus immense, however, and thus subtly influential, he is whittling down the most ancient feuds toward a core of benevolence and tolerance, toward idealistic peace on earth and good will.

That is to say, his dramatic sponsors may be viewed in that light, for the "heathen" is actually an occidental actor actuated by occidental directors in the film studios of Christendom, even though he may go to foreign shores, to Allah's domain, for locale, as in the case of "The Arab."

East is not quite so east, nor west so west, as once they were on this rapidly populated planet. And it may well be that in an historical vista the motion picture shall not be considered least of the instruments by which the sharp borders of race and prejudice may be obliterated.

In that light the "heathen" as the hero of love story and shadowy adventure is a portent of the power of drama.

J. P. MORGAN'S ADVICE

An interesting incident in the career of John Moody, well-known investment authority, whose advice on investments is sought by multi-millionaires, heads of great financial institutions, trustees of huge estates and others, is told by B. C. Forbes, in Forbes Magazine, (N. Y.).

This was in 1890. While little John Moody stood at one of the windows in the Drexel-Morgan banking room waiting for the check for securities he had delivered, he noticed a veritable giant wandering from desk to desk and that every clerk seemed to shiver with fear when the big man approached.

The clerk not having returned, the giant, who had very piercing eyes, looked through the window where the messenger stood and asked, "What are you waiting for, sonny?"

"What bonds?" snapped Mr. Morgan. The giant's eyes seemed to bore holes right through him. He could neither think nor speak. Just then the clerk returned with the check.

Seizing it, Morgan turned to the messenger and asked, "Now, boy, tell me the amount of the check you are to receive."

"I don't know, I forgot," the little fellow was instantly seized by the same fear and trembling. "A-a-check, for, for some bonds."

Seizing it, Morgan turned to the messenger and asked, "Now, boy, tell me the amount of the check you are to receive."

"I don't know, I forgot," the little fellow was instantly seized by the same fear and trembling. "A-a-check, for, for some bonds."

"What bonds?" snapped Mr. Morgan. The giant's eyes seemed to bore holes right through him. He could neither think nor speak. Just then the clerk returned with the check.

WHEN TWAIN MET KIPLING.

(Los Angeles Times)
In the summer of 1899 Mark Twain and Rudyard Kipling met for the first time. Kipling, who had just begun to make his name known was touring the world. He went to Elmira especially to see Mark Twain. The account of the visit and interview is described by Mark Twain as follows:

"Kipling spent a couple of hours with me, and at the end of that time I had surprised him as much as he had surprised me—and the honors were even. I believe that he knew more than any person I had ever met before, and I knew that he knew that I knew less than any person he had met before —though he did not say it, and I was not expecting that he would—he is a most remarkable man—and I am the other one. Between us we cover all knowledge; he knows all that can be known and I know the rest."

SUNFLOWER IN TREE FORK.

Fitchburg, Oct. 1.—Residents of Pleasant street are marveling at an odd freak of nature. In a fork of a maple tree, about 20 feet from the ground, a large yellow sunflower is growing. Doubtless the erosion of the bark of the tree caused a layer of dirt to accumulate in the fork. It is believed that the sunflower seed was picked up during

THOMAS MEIGHAN in JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD "THE ALASKAN"

THE BIGGEST, REDDEST-BLOODED HEROIC STORY OF OUR CANADIAN WEST ever converted into motion pictures. This is not a fake wild-west show, but a powerful depiction of life in the lawless days when the women folks had to be protected with shooting irons and downright heroism. A charming romance, a tender love story, yet fraught with excitement and tribal warfare that sets one's blood a-tingle. Possibly the most arrestingly beautiful scenic story of the year, done in the heart of our Canadian Rockies and in Alaska. PROSPECTORS, COWBOYS, INDIANS, RAIDERS, ANIMALS

Hal Roach Grooms Glenn Tryon For Star Comedian

(By A. H. Frederick.)
Hollywood, Oct. 3.—The man who "found" Harold Lloyd, Hal E. Roach, now has one in process of grooming who he hopes will equal—not imitate—the great Harold.

Glenn Tryon, 23, and inclining toward suave huskiness, is the name of this potential luminary. He has just completed "The Battling Orioles," feature comedy, for Roach, which gives us first intimation of the correctness of the prediction.

The story, written by Roach himself, for release through Pathé, utilizes some entirely new elements for comedy, much to its advantage. Longest remembered of these will be a baseball game of long ago, guaranteed to draw mirth even from those surfeited with the counter-worn situations too often handed us under the name of "new comedy."

After which preface there is a decided lag in the story while the characters are reintroduced to its modern life. The hero, Tryon, is first shown to us in his barber shop shaving a man, with customary by-play surrounding this process—all more suitable to privacy than exhibition on the screen.

Then the story moves along in regular order, amusing situations following in rapid-fire sequence, semblance of a love story interwoven, until climax comes with a slight too long drawn out, but unique in handling and participants, half of the latter being men all past the allotted threescore years and ten.

Blanche McWhorter, late of the Follies, plays opposite Tryon pictorially, daintily, and artistically, but chief interest naturally centres about him of the Hal Roach predictions. First and foremost, Tryon is of pleasing screen personality, equally convincing in breezy offhandedness and in pathos, a little of which—mere "feeler" perhaps—Roach allows him. But there is much more to be done before Tryon achieves the depth of Lloyd, Chaplin or other comedy kings. Too much mingling yet of superfluous reaction to situation, too little under-the-skin feeling in his part. Also there is a superfluity of stagginess and self-consciousness in Tryon's mannerisms, both of which may be counted upon to disappear when he is "established."

With this in mind, with knowledge that Tryon is good-looking (he plays without facial adornment of any kind) and of pleasing personality, considering that he is naturally endowed with comedy genius, and remembering that Roach, discoverer of Lloyd, Bebe Daniels, Mildred Davis, and others, is his sponsor, it is not a rash guess to predict that a new star is breaking into Filmland's firmament.

"IF I WERE TWENTY-ONE AGAIN" (Toronto Globe).

Taking as his subject, "If I Were Twenty-one Again," Mayor Hiltz, before a large gathering of young men at a banquet in the Central Y. M. C. A. last night, forgot municipal problems for a while, and, allowing himself freedom of review, gave an address on what he considered the essentials that go to make up successful manhood.

"If I could go back thirty years of my life and commence again where many of you young men are starting," said His Worship, "I would, with the knowledge 31 years have brought to me, begin my career with some very definite resolutions. At 21 every man should know what business, profession or trade he is going to pursue through life. Having decided that, I would go forward with singleness of aim, setting my whole heart on attainment. I believe the average boy, if he has stamina and ambition, can get to the top regardless of how humble his start may be."

Touching further upon what he considered foundation stones in the lives of all persons who achieve a measure of success, His Worship strongly advised young men and women not to live beyond their means.

"It is no discredit to be poor," he declared, "and none to live in humble circumstances, but it is a reflection on character for people to spend more than they have a moral right to spend, and then envy their fellows who get along by thrift, self-denial and hard work. Civic experience teaches that too often those who seek municipal relief have dissipated their earnings when they should have conserved them. Frugality and sane living are included among the lessons we have to learn as Canadians, and the sooner we learn the sooner we'll get our affairs on a sounder basis."

Good habits and companions, usefulness for your fellowmen, and high ideals were other virtues he would advise. Quoting from Julius Caesar, he emphasized that "ourselves and not our stars" were responsible for successes and failures.

MEETS DEATH IN ACCIDENT

Mrs. V. E. Northrup is Fatally Hurt in Colorado.

Many friends in this vicinity will be shocked to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. V. E. Northrup through a street car accident in Grand Junction, Colorado, yesterday. News of the fatal accident was received by her sister, Mrs. G. A. Henderson, of Rothesay, in a telegram yesterday. No details of the accident were sent.

Mrs. Northrup was formerly Miss Little Lyons, of Hampton, and after her marriage about 20 years ago, went with her husband to Colorado where they had since made their home. Her husband is also a native of this province. Mrs. Northrup last visited her old home about 14 years ago.

Besides her husband she is survived by one son and one daughter in Grand Junction; two brothers, Rev. C. W. Lyon, of Salem, Mass., and Edward of Vancouver, and two sisters, Mrs. Henderson, and Mrs. Herman Scriber, of Hampton. The sympathy of many friends will be extended to the bereaved relatives.

CAN'T YET DECIDE CONFERENCE DATE

Visit of C. N. R. Officials Here to be Decided Next Week.

It will not be known until next week when the conference with the Canadian National Railway officials on the matter of more business for the port of St. John will be held as the representatives are unable to set a date before that time.

At the last meeting of the port committee it was decided to ask C. J. Smith, assistant to Sir Henry Thornton, to name a date when he and some of the other officials could come here to discuss the question with the committee, and a telegram was sent to Mr. Smith.

Last evening a reply came from Mr. Smith, stating that J. E. Dalrymple, vice president, and the foreign manager were both in New York and would not be home until the end of the week. It is as yet undecided whether a date would be set when they could come to St. John and meet the committee.

RUNAWAY MAKES STIR IN AVENUE

Wood Man's Wagon Smashed But No One Injured.

Considerable excitement was occasioned in Douglas avenue, near the corner of Main street, at noon today when a horse attached to a wood delivery wagon took fright and ran away. An eye witness of the event told the following story to The Times-Star: "A boy was in a wood dealer's team in Douglas avenue when he struck the horse. The animal gave a quick jump and as he did a bolt holding the shafts broke and they fell. The horse took fright and ran. As it dashed around the corner of Douglas avenue one of the wheels struck a wagon owned by H. G. Harrison and the latter's horse was thrown off its feet and a wheel of the wood wagon was snapped off.

The horse proceeded down Main street and about opposite St. Luke's church the wagon came in contact with a telegraph pole and was demolished. The shock evidently took the running out of the horse, for it stopped. The boy who was driving the team managed to drop off before the collision and was uninjured.

Fortunately at the time of the runaway there were no persons crossing the street at the intersection of Douglas avenue and Main street and the only team passing at the time was that owned by Mr. Harrison. As a general rule traffic conditions are much congested at noon hour.

He explained that he had been an automobile salesman for 10 years and had never been required to secure a license. He said he understood W. H. Magistrate Henderson said that in view of the fact that he may have been under that impression he would consider the case as having extenuating circumstances, but instructed Mr. Quinn to go to Mr. McQuade and take the matter up with him and to return tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.
