

CHEAP "FAGS" PROVED DEAR FOR SISKIND

Seizure of 36,000 American Cigarettes Leads to Fine of $250 and Costs.

GOOD SMOKES LOST

Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon did not believe that Julius Siskind had purchased some 36,000 American cigarettes to smoke all by his lonesome, and consequently Mr. Siskind was fined $250 and costs in police court today for a breach of the inland revenue act. The cigarettes were confiscated, and will go "up in smoke" in the custom house furnace in the near future according to Cecil Webb, of the inland revenue department.

The cigarettes were seized by Mr. Webb, Inspector Lucas, Sergeant Middlemarch and Constable Leach, of the local police department, in a raid conducted yesterday morning on the home of Siskind on Talbot street.

"We pleaded guilty to a technical infringement of the act," stated counsel for Siskind, when the case was called. "Mr. Siskind states he got them from a man traveling with the fairs. He understood that the duty had been paid. The cigarettes were just his own private stock, and found in his own private house."

"How many were found?" asked the court.

"Just 36,000," replied Chief Birrell, with a smile.

"A Good, Long Smoke," observed the court.

"He might give some to his friends," admitted counsel. "I wouldn't take him long to get rid of them that way. He got them from a man traveling with the fairs who didn't want to take them back to the States."

"Why couldn't the man take them back?" demanded the court.

"He would have to pay expenses on them, and couldn't make any profit," said counsel.

"No information is that the tobacco trade here has been undermined by cheap American cigarettes," declared J. G. Gillanders, acting for the crown.

"On information received, the officers went to Siskind's house, and discovered the cigarettes. He told them that he got them from a man he didn't know, but later on he was willing to tell him, I submit that Mr. Siskind could not possibly use 36,000 cigarettes."

"If the duty had been paid on this number, I am told it would amount to $250.50. The fine is from $50 to $500."

"Mr. Webb states that Siskind promised to give the name of the man who sold him the cigarettes, provided he (Siskind) was given a light penalty."

"The man who sold the cigarettes to Siskind is the most important," declared the court.

"Asks Light Penalty. Counsel for defense contended that the duty would be only $125, but Gillanders stuck to his guns and gave counsel all the details."

"My client didn't go to the States for them. He bought them from a traveling showman. I don't know that he knows the name of the man," contended counsel.

"It adjourns to come a week if you think you can get the man here," said Mr. Graydon. "Otherwise I am prepared to deal with the case now."

"The man who sold the cigarettes to Siskind is the most important," declared Chief Birrell.

"After conferring with Siskind, counsel stated that the 'culprit' was a man named Shelby, who was at present traveling in the United States. He had a shooting booth at the Fair, and had been giving cigarettes as prizes."

"There was no shooting at the Fair this year. I wouldn't allow it," declared Chief Birrell.

"Without discussing the case further, the magistrate imposed a fine of $250 and costs or three months in jail."

MAKE GOOD PROGRESS ON NEW UNIVERSITY

Expect Completion of Exteriors Before Cold Weather

Sets In.

Remarkable progress is being made on the two new buildings for the University of Western Ontario, according to Col. Walter Brown, who stated this morning that the superstructures were rapidly nearing completion.

It is hoped that the exteriors will be finished before the advent of winter and that buildings will be closed by that time, leaving only the interior finishing to be done. The new building is nearer completion than the main building, but as this was started first, it is only natural.

"The work is progressing as fast as we could wish," stated Col. Brown. "In fact the contractors are making remarkable progress and the buildings will, in all probability, be completed well within the contract date."

WILL REMOVE HYDRO TOWER

General Manager E. V. Buchanan of the public utilities commission stated this morning that steps had already been instituted for the removal of the hydro tower at the corner of Horton and Ridout streets, in front of station No. 1. The work of laying the wires carried by this tower in conduits under the ground has been going on for some time and the tower will be taken down as soon as the wires are all transferred.

Canada's Biggest Need Is People

Canadian Press Despatch.

Calgary, Sept. 25. —Declaring that Canada's greatest need today is a greater population, Major J. E. Speranza, secretary of the Veterans' Association of London, England, who is in the city this week, told the Canadian Press that 500,000 of the best ex-service men of England might be secured for this country if an arrangement can be made to handle them properly after arrival.

Major Speranza is now on a tour of Canada investigating conditions, and after he has completed his trip he will stop off at Ottawa on his return and submit a concrete proposal to the immigration department.

WAR VETERANS WILL CONSIDER AMALGAMATION

DISCUSS QUARTERS

The first general meeting of the season of the G. W. V. A. will take place tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the rooms in the Duffell Block, over the City Gas Company's offices.

Among the subjects to be discussed will be the question of new quarters, the ever-present problem of pensions, and the possibility of amalgamation with the other soldier associations.

There will also be the election of officers for the coming year.

Amalgamation is perhaps the most insistent demand of the returned men in Canada today, and from coast to coast they are declaring themselves in favor of a general union of all the societies by which they hope to strengthen the returned man's case when he has to present it for one reason or another before the government.

"The G. W. V. A. alone has spent over $20,000 of its funds since the beginning of the year on behalf of amalgamation and at every step the members have expressed themselves as strongly favoring the suggestion."

From a local point of view the pressing question is: "When and where will the association get new rooms?" Ever since they were forced to leave their old rooms, this question in the Majestic Block, the various officers and members have hunted high and low for new quarters, without success.

Col. W. V. Cole, president of the G. W. V. A., states that there are plenty of suitable quarters in the city which would meet the requirements of the association, and every way, but that they are all too highly rented to be considered as prospective clubrooms.

"In Toronto," he said, "a few days ago, they raised more than $17,000 in a single day for the benefit of the returned men and women, and I am in hopes that the G. W. V. A. in London will find some means of raising money with which to buy out the present quarters."

"What we want is a fund that will take care of the club—some form of protection—an endowment fund, perhaps. Then the city might give us some exemption from taxes, and we would be able to keep the club open. You see, we are not in a condition to contribute money to the upkeep of the quarters, and without any support from either the citizens or the city, we simply cannot maintain a clubroom."

LONDON SEES HOW DETROIT CARS ARE RUN

Aldermen and Officials Impressed With Efficiency of Municipal System.

INSPECT PAVING

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Windsor, Sept. 25.—Is municipal ownership of street railways an advisable undertaking for the people of London? This is a question to be answered again in December, and this morning a deputation from London conducted a general survey of the Detroit transportation services now owned and operated by the ratepayers of that municipality. To The Advertiser they voiced evident satisfaction.

Returning to Windsor at noon they inspected five miles of Windsor's street railway and paving work, and under way at the direction of Sir Adam Beck's engineers.

F. V. Fairlie, who recently recommended several changes in the Richmond street job, is in charge of the party, which includes City Engineer P. F. New, Ald. L. H. Douglass, chairman of the board of works, and two members of the London transportation commission, Ald. P. J. Watt and Ald. John Greer. R. G. Ivey is also in attendance.

First-Hand Knowledge. Sir Adam Beck's engineers and City Engineer New differed in their opinion as to the Richmond street job, and today the London officials are getting first-hand knowledge of Sir Adam's views.

The members were particularly impressed with municipal ownership in vogue in Detroit, and the work of rehabilitating the road since its purchase by the people of that city.

City Engineer Brian, Roadmaster Ryan and Superintendent McGill of the Border Cities Railways are with the party.

Steel ties, as recommended by Sir Adam Beck's engineers, are not as well suited for street railway purposes, or they would have been used exclusively on the Richmond street line, declares one of the visitors here today, R. G. Ivey, vice-president of the London Street Railway.

Steel Ties Unsatisfactory. "Steel ties would have been cheaper for us than white oak ties, and we would have used them if the city council," said Mr. Ivey, "but we did not consider their use advisable. Steel ties are a failure, and it has been proven so to the satisfaction of the London Street Railway."

"In Cleveland steel ties are being replaced with white oak ties after a trial," said Mr. Ivey, "and we did not, and he sent engineers over there, who found that such was actually happening. Steel ties are absolutely right, and the continual pounding of the cars will eventually loosen them from the concrete. In time the ties will rust."

Find Mother and Four Children Living In Nova Scotia Jungle

Lunenburg County Officials Discover Family Far From Civilization—Children Can Barely Talk, But Can Imitate Wild Birds and Animals to Perfection.

Special to The Advertiser.

Halifax, Sept. 25.—Living in the thickest of the wooded district in Lunenburg County, miles from civilization, and clad only in the filthest and scantiest of rags a mother and three daughters, the latter ranging from five to fifteen years, were recently discovered by the county officials.

The family, named Parnell, have apparently been living for years in the miserable shack made of rotten boards and spruce branches, subsisting on roots and leaves and such wild game as they were able to trap or kill. So isolated was the habitation that even hunters have never penetrated to the place and it was only through an accident that the existence and condition of the family were discovered. The four put up a desperate resistance to the county police who sought to remove them when they fought with all the ferocity of the wild things, amongst which they made their home.

They were finally taken to Lunenburg, where the children saw for the first time, electric lights, automobiles, paved streets, buildings and street cars. They gave even more evidence of fear, terror and wonder and tried to flee.

A good meal was served them which they devoured eagerly. As there is no place in Lunenburg to look after such cases the family were brought to Halifax and taken to the Monastery of the Good Shepherd.

The illness of the youngest child necessitated the calling of a doctor and the family were taken to the hospital where the child was five years old she had never before tasted solid food.

Most of the county officers have been patrolling county roads incessantly of late, but to date a few scores of speeders have been the measure of their reward.

They expect, though, that constant patrol will not result.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS KILLING OF ANCASTER CHILD

DEATH OF CHILD AT ANCASTER IS REAL MYSTERY

Mother Declares Stranger Came to Door, Secured Gun and Killed Girl.

WOMAN IS HELD

Special to The Advertiser.

Dundas, Sept. 25.—Strange and mystifying circumstances surround the killing of Lena Lomontio, 20-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lomontio, whose lifeless body was found in the yard of the Lomontio home at Ancaster, near here, yesterday afternoon with her head blown off. Lomontio was working on an adjoining farm at a corn-husking bee. Mrs. Lomontio in her tomato garden picking tomatoes. Little Lena was left playing outside around the house while the other baby, James, 18 months old, was left sleeping inside the house.

Shortly after noon, Mrs. Lomontio returned to the farm house. There was a man at the door. He was an Englishman. "I want your husband's shotgun to shoot a ground hog over in a field," he is alleged to have said to Mrs. Lomontio, who asked: "What do you want a gun for?" The man insisted, adding her husband had sent him for the gun. She refused and the man brushed by her, ran through the living-room into the bedroom and seized the single-barrel shotgun. Mrs. Lomontio picked up her baby Lena and went out to watch the man, but he only walked a few yards to the rear of the house when he suddenly turned to Mrs. Lomontio and said: "I am going to kill you." Terrified, she put her child down on the ground and started away, leaving the shotgun lying at the foot of the stairs.

This is the story that Mrs. Lomontio told Chief of Police Lumsden of Dundas a few hours after the shooting. Mrs. Lomontio is now held in jail at the court house in Dundas without any charge against her, pending a preliminary police court trial this afternoon. A formal inquest was held this morning, after a coroner's jury viewed the farm, and adjourned till October 2.

The cries of the mother brought Arthur Lottinville and George Deasley, farm hands, who were helping at the husking bee on the adjoining farm, where Lomontio was working, too, 175 yards from the scene of the shooting. They ran over and found the child, but no trace of the stranger, while Mrs. Lomontio ran around crying hysterically. A few minutes later her husband came to the house, and she told him the same story.

Beyond telling her story of meeting the stranger at the house, Mrs. Lomontio declined to talk, and yesterday, following her arrest, assumed a stolid manner, when questioned by her husband in the jail she brightened up and cried.

Completes Pleasant Week-End in Mountains and Will Spend Few More Days With His Blooded Stock Before Starting Homeward Journey.

Banff, Alta., Sept. 25.—Lord Renfrew and his party, who have been staying at the Banff Springs Hotel since Friday afternoon, will return to the E. P. ranch this afternoon, where the royal rancher will continue his holiday.

Lady Loucheed, Miss Dorothy Loucheed and Miss Doris MacCarter were the guests of Lord Renfrew at dinner in his private dining-room on Monday evening. His traveling companions were also with them. Lord Renfrew and his party entered the ballroom shortly after the second dance. Miss Loucheed of Calgary had the first three dances with the royal visitor.

A better time could not have been chosen by the prince to come to these great hills of Canada. Yesterday was like a day in July, a summer day that vied with autumn, for only the colored leaves bespoke the approach of fall. The prince and his party spent the morning and afternoon on the golf links.

what at a loss among their new surroundings, although they will quickly become acclimated.

Mr. Buchanan stated this morning that the necessary equipment, which Mr. Curd will use in making his survey of the water district of London in his well-finding attempts was being put together now, and that men would be detailed to assist the engineer as soon as he arrived in the city.

Mr. Curd will in all probability be here about 30 days, in which time he will endeavor, by means of an hydraulic system of his own invention, to discover an adequate supply of water for the city, in such quantities that it will suffice for some years to come.

He stated that he felt sure that where water had been found in such quantities as is at present the case, there was bound to be more and that although he might not be successful in every case he had hopes of locating several wells.

It is more than likely that they will remain in Toronto tomorrow as well, when the hearing of the injunction restraining the Huron and Erie Mortgage Corporation from selling the Dominion Savings Building and Northern Life stock will be held. The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON.
Authors of "The Lightning Conductor."

Sheridan Receives An Amazing Telegram From the Captain of the Yacht

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:
Miles Sheridan is facilitating his wife's obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. He is taking a yacht trip, supposedly with Juliet Divine, a beautiful show-girl known as the Million Dollar Doll. In reality, however, he is not with the Doll, but

Teresa Desmond (Terry), Juliet's unbelievably innocent half-sister, whom the Doll sent to masquerade as herself. Ever since a kindness Miles did her in childhood, Terry has made him her Dream Prince. Betty Sheridan, Miles' wife in love with Paul di Salvo, a handsome Italian, Eustace Nazio, a wealthy Greek, meets Miles and Terry at Monte Carlo, and recognizes in the supposed Million Dollar Doll, Terry Desmond, whom he had met back in New York. In love with the girl himself, he is relieved to learn that Miles' conduct toward Terry has been most chivalrous.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, takes care of Terry on board the yacht. Miss Caroline Sheridan, meeting the couple at Monte Carlo, endeavors to dissuade Miles from his disgraceful project. She writes to Betty of Terry's beauty and charm. Miles, dining in Algeria with Terry, whom he does not recognize as the little girl he befriended so long ago, sees Paul di Salvo with a group of strangers.

On the way to Bousaada, Miles realizes that he loves "Juliet Divine." Miles asks the girl if she is capable of love. In Bousaada Miles tells Terry of his love for her.

CHAPTER LXIV.

An Amazing Message.
After a time there came the sound of a window being thrown open. Mrs. Harkness, having unpacked Miss Divine's luggage and her own, pushed back the green shutters of her French window at the other end of the balcony, and bustled out for a draught of fresh air after her work.

"Harky, come here," Sheridan commanded, his hand on Terry's shoulder, their two figures dark as if cleared out in black velvet against the sky sequined with stars.

"Harky was not like an ordinary servant. Miles loved and valued her. He knew that she would cheerfully give her life for him.

"I want to tell you," he said, as with startled reluctance, the old woman hesitated, "I want to tell you that here is my happiness. She's promised to help me 'knit up my ravaged skein' of life again, Harky."

"She's the only one who can do it. I've been finding that out, day by day. When the time comes that we can well begin a new existence together. Are you glad, Harky?"

"Oh, Mr. Miles!" stammered his old nurse. "If it makes you happy, I'm happy too, that's all I can say. I want so much as your happiness, sir, and I do think that Miss Divine is a young lady with a good heart. You can rest on that, Mr. Miles."

As Harky quavered on, she spoke more and more warmly, though her face showed trouble. But Terry was not satisfied. She did want Mrs. Harkness to be glad, really glad, if only that were possible.

Late that night, when the girl had parted from Miles after a walk in the moonlight bright as a day, though twice as wonderful, the old woman was waiting up to help undress her.

"Have I made you sad—or disappointed, Mrs. Harkness?" Terry whispered. "No, miss," Harky answered. "Tell me, the girl went on, 'Do you think divorce is wicked?'"

"Not I!" protested the old woman. "I'm North of Ireland, I'm no Catholic. Them frivolous divorces I con-tempt, that kind where their tempers don't compat with each other, as they call it. But when a woman has deceived her husband that trusted, even if he couldn't love her—which is the only thing to part two persons who have never could have been one, in God's holy ordinance."

"I'm sure my master has behaved like a martyr—if not a saint—and Mrs. Miles should be on her knees to him. If you can give him the happiness he's never truly had, 'Heaven forbid I should begrudge it—ah me, what's the good of wishing? We must take things as they come and be thankful.'"

"What could you wish in particular?" Is it something about me? Terry insisted.

"God forgive me if I hurt yer feelings, miss, but ye know quite well what I mean!" There, it's out, she said, and we'll bury it like it was a hatchet."

It seemed to Terry a very sharp hatchet, which cut at Julia as well as herself.

Mrs. Harkness," she said. "I can't tell Mr. Sheridan this that I'm going to tell you, because he'd only ask me questions which I can't answer—yet. But you won't ask questions. It's only this. It may have been very bad of me to come on this trip, yet it was meant to be good."

"I can't help believing I'm not as bad as you think, in other ways. I'm not worthy of Mr. Sheridan, of course, except that I worship him, and I've worshipped him for years and years. But I've been thinking, trying to remember every single thing I ever did, and truly I can't remember one which makes me too bad to marry a man that I love. I couldn't confess my sins at the convent because I wasn't a Catholic, but I used to tell the nuns and ask their advice."

"And what did the nuns do?" the old woman asked.

"Oh, they only patted my hand, and called me their dear child. I've never felt so tender over her, made you want her to have happiness at any price. The old woman felt guilty and glad at the same time."

Downstairs, at the telegram, he opened it, purported to be from the captain of "Silverwood," and it was an amazing telegram. Miles could hardly believe that there was not a mistake, or that someone had not played him a hateful, practical joke.

His thoughts traveled fast, and stopped at Eustace Nazio.

Nazio had appeared twice since their first meeting at Monte Carlo; at Genoa, and at Naples. His presence at these places might have been a coincidence of travel, but Sheridan had not taken it as such. He was sure that Nazio was deliberately following the trail of "Silverwood," just keeping out of the way in order not to be called to account for impertinence.

If he had come to Algeria, he had learned without much difficulty that Sheridan had hired a car and gone with Miss Divine to Bousaada.

This telegram might not follow from the captain, after all. It might be a trick to get him—Miles—out of the way, leaving the coast clear for Nazio to get Juliet here in the desert. Sheridan decided to write Captain Yale at once for confirmation of the message, asking if he had sent it himself, and if the news it gave was true. He wrote out the telegram, but

Brownie Has An Interesting Adventure With Farmer Brown's Boy

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Strange things were happening to Brownie the Thrasher. He was a prisoner in a big wire trap made like a pen with a wire cover. This was bad enough, for never in his whole life before had Brownie been a prisoner. Now Farmer Brown's Boy had come over to that pen and was looking down at him with every appearance of pleasure. Without being told, Brownie knew that Farmer Brown's Boy had set that trap for him. He knew that Farmer Brown's Boy had spread those good things to eat inside that trap just to tempt him in there.

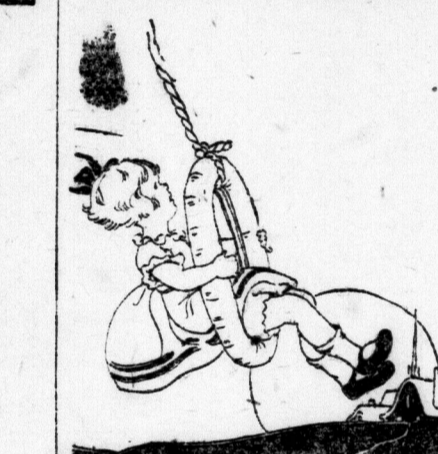

There was no chance to fly, so Brownie began to run about looking for a way out. Presently he found a little opening and ran through it. A little door closed behind him and Brownie found he was worse off than before. He was now in a small cage. Farmer Brown's Boy came around him and opened a little door in the top of that cage, a door just big enough to put his hand and arm inside. His hand closed around Brownie and he was lifted out. At first he tried to peck and struggle, but he was held in such a way that he couldn't. Then he wisely lay still.

What was going to happen to him? He didn't dare think. He was sure that it would be something dreadful. He was sure that he would never see his nest and Mrs. Brownie again. But nothing dreadful did happen. Farmer Brown's Boy held him very gently and comfortably. He stroked him softly and somehow with every stroke Brownie felt better. His heart stopped beating so fast. Little by little fear left him. He began to enjoy it. Yes, sir, he actually began to enjoy it. He didn't know why, but somehow he knew that Farmer Brown's Boy intended no harm.

Then Farmer Brown's Boy fastened a queer shiny thing around one of his legs. It was a little metal band with a number on it. Of course Brownie didn't know this. Farmer Brown's Boy fastened it very gently and very carefully. He took the greatest care that it should not be too loose, yet that it should not be too tight.

When that little metal band had been fixed to suit him Farmer Brown's Boy once more softly stroked Brownie. Then he opened his hand, and for a second or two Brownie lay without moving. Then it came to him that he was free. Yes, sir, he was free. He spread his wings and

THE DAILY SHORT STORY

OUT OF THE STORM.

The wind's demonic shrieking brought a swift pallor to Ellen's cheek. It was rawly chill, despite a sultry noon, a scorching afternoon. At sunset had come almost a cyclone, with thunder crashes, lightning like fire through premature blackness, and over all heavy, ice-cold rain filled with big, battering hail.

Hail had stopped falling, but through broken, unshuttered windows Ellen saw by lightning flares that storm wheat had made drifts and mounds of it, wherever the lawn sloped, no matter how gently. She had faced the powers of the air gallantly at their onset—now terror laid hold on her. Not for herself, but for the many folk caught unawares in its heart of fury.

She had watched, rather wistfully, the stream of cars, filled with laughter and shouting, headed for the point-to-point race, the climax of the hunt's meeting.

The point-to-point came last on the card—the star had been delayed—so much she knelt through neighborly use of her phone. Old Squire Willis, 90, yet still a sportsman, had kept his small grandson running back and forth to the overway and everything—the horses, the jockeys, scratches, added starters—and of course the odds.

The square had planned to be among those present, but his third helpmate, a giddy person of 60, had set her face against his risking the journey—and not unreasonably, seeing that both his pension and the fat annuity so manly envied or grudging him by the precarious thread of his life.

Ellen agreed heartily with Mrs. Willis—since she had sold herself to squall, wasn't she entitled to the price? Still, she had been sorry enough for the square, the piteous age-wreck of unscrupulous success. Hence, news of his not coming had been rather absorbing, since she herself had more than a drop of sporting blood. And the very last message from the track had been thrilling. It ran:

"Black Shirt wins—by a length. Keekle fell—broke—threw the coming storm had drowned all other sounds.

The heaviest, solidest vehicle would be but a toy for the power that had lifted the big barn, overturned it, and whisked it across the highway. Trees four feet through had been twisted off and for half a minute being right as though still rooted.

What man-made thing had any chance against such might? But the interrupted message? "Keekle fell—broke—threw the heavy on her consciousness. Keekle had been her comrade all through his yearling form—then after he was sold to the rich Audleys he had escaped their paddocks and homed straight for the humbler meadows of his birth. Otherwise—there even in the count of Helen paused, she could only let herself feel the rest—that she owed him touch with the man she so loved, young John Audley, his rider in the big race.

Telephones were dead—not a light showed along the mile of highway Thistledown House commanded. The name struck, from the careless days of Ellen's grandfather, who had revealed and rioted with Willises and Audleys, and at last come a cropper, vital and financial, at a five-barred gate.

Then his son-in-law had taken over the place and redeemed it by relentless griping. Slim Ellen, her mother's only child, was no favorite with him—he fancied her reach in his big, dark eyes, when truly there was only wistful appeal for love. The younger brood, loud, lusty, red-cheeked, red-haired like their mother, awoke in him paternal pride.

Therefore he had taken them upon a ten-day excursion—Ellen, invited grudgingly to go along, had known better than to accept. Utterly fearless, she relished the thought of having the house to herself.

Bill Jackson, head tenant, was within easy call, and his wife, a kind person, would come at any need. They had gone to the course, along with the bulk of the Thistledown workers.

Ellen knew it rested with her alone to help help were possible. The wind had broken to short savage gusts—she could stand against it, in the intervals. Methodically she equipped herself—waterproof, rubbers, flashlight, lantern, a long candle and flask of the peach-and-honey, distilled fifty years back by her grandfather. Her father had kept it for its age in spite of virulent teetotalism. Memory of it made Ellen smile. "Providential—maybe," she murmured half aloud, as she skittered toward the garage, here happily the car had escaped harm.

Roads were too perilous—in three minutes she was guiding the car along field-ways and across grass, boding the wheel hard as she bucked haildrifts or shot through storm-water half-hub deep. She ran parallel to the main road, knowing she would find nothing on it for the first five miles. After that—well, many might have tried to get away. She would find out and help if help were possible; if not she would run on into untouched country and tell it of what had happened.

It grew lighter. Reflected sun rays, joined to a rising moon, showed increasing wreckage. Presently she heard cries, groans, wild shrieks for help. Answering them, she saw all and worse than she had imagined—cars tossed and piled on one another, bodies crushed beneath, survivors piteously trying to hold heads above rushing roadside rain-torrents, striving more piteously to rescue the wounded. What succor she gave them was salvation often; competent counsel brought results the dazed and women might never have achieved, and not unreasonably, for better help was going on.

Until she had brought it, until ready hands were set to do whatever was needed she held herself rigidly away from the dreading eating her heart.

Around midnight, with a white moon riding in the heaven, she began to tremble. Every drop of peach-and-honey had long ago vanished. She realized that she was cold, wet, mud-grimed, blood-stained and alone, miles from home.

The car had carried loads of hurt folk to the town hospital. It would not come back before dawn, nobody knowing its owner's need of it. Staggering to a pile of muddy cushions, she sank down, put her head upon her knees, and let herself sob just twice.

For at the sound of distress somebody came from amid the few who had entered—somebody tall and masterful, with graying hair and one arm in a rude sling. The sound arm helped her to her feet, as a deep voice said: "Don't cry, young lady—after all your bravery. Instead, tell me what I can do for you?"

"Oh, tell me about Keekle. Was he hurt—or his rider?" The phone said he broke some of his ribs, but he came and stopped it. Ellen quavered.

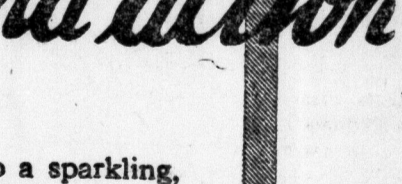

The tall man smiled tenderly, his voice not quite steady as he answered: "Luckily, only his ribs. You must have his rider escaped unhurt, though if the girl had held—but never mind the rest. I can only tell you a trap had been set for them. You must be Miss Lucy. My son John has told me how you loved the yearling we bought of your father's—Keekle's, a splendid thoroughbred, but, my dear, let an old fellow say he belongs henceforth and forever to a finer one."

All the world agreed to that when it heard the full story. Young John Audley especially, who never tired of telling it, of extolling his sweetheart—her rare and ready bravery, her presence of mind—must all herself.

Half the county was asked to the wedding, and all of two counties stopped long enough to send waves of sympathetic good-will. And the Audleys are living happy ever after, if one may trust their axes and gossip's tongues round about them.

Select London C. I. Track Team For Toronto Saturday

East London Has One, Central Four, and South Has Three on Team.

The London C. I. team, which will compete at the Provincial Intercollegiate track meet under S. F. A. auspices at Toronto on Saturday, was chosen, following the trials held at Queen's Park yesterday afternoon between teams representing the three city colleges. All the trials produced fast times and some keen competition. London South Collegiate brought forth three athletes for the team; East London has Bill Wanless as its representative. The team should make more than a creditable showing in the Queen City, though competition will be particularly strong with Hamilton C. I. there in full strength, and some other good teams, of which so much has not been heard. The team will leave Friday night for Toronto, and has been selected as follows:

East London C. I.
Bill Wanless, 100 yards and 220.
Central C. I.
Westman, 800 yards and pole vault.
Burns, Jr., 220.
Fright, high jump.
Hunter, 440, 880.
South London.
Haddfield, 100 and 220.
Chapman, 800 yards.
Sinclair, 1 mile.
Relay Team.
Hunter, Burns, Wanless and Haddfield.

PENNANT LIES BETWEEN GIANTS AND CINCINNATI

Reds Now Only Contenders For National League Flag.

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, Sept. 24.—Cincinnati advanced in the National League race yesterday by defeating Brooklyn 5 to 1, while the Giants and Pirates were idle. The Reds are now the only contenders for the league pennant, however, as the Pirates, even if they win all their games while the Giants lose all theirs, will still be a game behind. The Reds are now four to the lead. The Giants need four victories to insure the world series for New York.

Chicago defeated Philadelphia in the National League, 4 to 1, Osborne holding the Phillies to three hits. Bing allowed but five hits in 7 1/3 innings, while Head lost out one more in his one-third inning.

In the American League, Cleveland and Washington split a double-header.

Four pitchers climbed the mound for the Indians in the first conflict without effect, while in the second Edwards nipped a shutout, which was called in the sixth because of darkness.

ALERTS IN SHAPE FOR WOODSTOCK

Meet at Thames Park Tonight 5 p.m.—Beat W. O. R. in 6-4 Exhibition.

Last night's preliminary softball mix, a fast affair, between the Alerts, local champs, and W. O. R., met only providing a thrill for the hundreds of spectators who saw it, but gave Alerts an excellent workout under fire for the afternoon's return game in the first round Ontario championship play-offs, to be played at Thames Park, starting at 5 p.m. Alerts won the exhibition, 6-4, but not until the last W. O. R. threat in the seventh frame had been scored off.

On the form displayed last night, Alerts should be tougher going for the Woodstock softballers than the latter expect. Woodstock gave the Alerts a close run in the third, when Alerts were counting on evening the series with a home run. But, if Alerts hand out anything like last night's demonstration, they should cope the game and the series.

St. David tossed for the Alerts last night, and Ed Walker, also of the Alerts, should be a good deal of benefit from the Ontario Religious Education Council in this city assisting the local council in making up their share of the provincial budget. The O. R. E. C., along with other similar organizations, is being handicapped this year through lack of finances, and the present canvass is being made here to relieve this situation.

URGES EDUCATION FOR MISSIONARIES

Methodists Asked to Give Aid in Carrying Out Work.
GIVE ALLOTMENTS

The afternoon session of the Methodist district financial meeting yesterday was given over to a series of inspirational addresses, and Rev. John Garbutt and Lloyd Smith were the principal speakers.
The meeting was opened with the reading of the allotments for the different churches in the district. In giving this information, the minister who had introduced the matter, stated that although the missionary funds carried a sentimental appeal which usually brought a ready response to its needs, he hoped that the educational work and the training of the missionaries themselves would not be neglected through failure to support these educational allotments from each church, and that they would find the same ready response that is accorded to missionary campaigns.

A motion was passed to set aside Sunday, February 17, as a special day on which to press the claims of the educational department of the church.
The second matter to be considered was the proposed budget of the sustentation fund, which called for a total of approximately $5,500. It was pointed out by one member of the meeting, speaking on the question, that out of the whole amount, $2,500, or one half of the amount, was used in the support of eight weak charges. It was ruled by the chairman that this subject was one for the next conference to handle, but he added that in the event of church union, the needs, or the use to which the sustentation fund is now directed, would practically disappear.

Social Service.
Rev. John Garbutt then rose and gave a short address on the social service work of the church and the progress of evangelism. He stated that social service work is the outgrowth of a social consciousness on the part of church workers to the fact that real Christianity necessitates the realization of the fact that, in some measure at least, we are our brother's keeper. The movement started in this country in 1902, and it has grown steadily ever since. He stated that the fight against liquor was the first undertaking to be started, and the initial work commenced in 1902 found fruitage in the wave of prohibition which has swept over Canada in the last decade.

In the matter of evangelism, he stated that it is the first and finest mission of the Methodist Church, and something that should appeal to each and every member as a privilege rather than as a duty. In closing his remarks, Mr. Garbutt passed a resolution that the second Sunday of January be kept as a day on which social service work and the furtherance of evangelistic endeavor be brought home to the congregations.

Urges Support.
The next speaker to address the meeting was Lloyd Smith, a missionary worker, who spoke in support of the missions budget, and for an increased spirit of giving in the matter of missionary activities, at home and abroad. Speaking of the Japanese earthquake, he described the escape of the Methodist missionaries as miraculous. He stated that while the loss of life was prevented by the hand of God, the schools and mission buildings of the church had not been as fortunate as to escape, and that the mission is now faced with a total loss in real property of over $200,000, which must be made up in the near future.

To-day I saw

Everything I saw today reminded me that this is Sewing Week. May be there are busy housewives who feel that every week is sewing week, but even these energetic ladies will find useful suggestions in the special displays we are featuring this week.

The variety and convenience of the offerings will remind you that even the complexity of modern life has its compensations. Just think what sewing must have been before the comparatively recent advent of sewing machines, intelligible patterns and materials for every known need. And in medieval days when the embroidery of intricate tapestries was the most popular amusement, the high-born maiden must have regarded her needle as an instrument of torture.

Nowadays, with the women's magazines devoting so much attention to the vogue for home dressmaking, every page you turn shows something new and pretty which a clever needle may make. In the not too far distant past, a pattern was only a little less intricate than a problem in calculus. But those days are lost and gone forever, just like Cleopatra. The up-to-date pattern saves your material, and makes every pattern perfectly clear. Select a pattern and some new magazines on the Main Floor, as the first preliminary to Sewing Week.

Which will claim your attention first—a gay colored cushion or a new lampshade for your home? Or dainty lingerie in pretty pastel shades of our silky new material? Or soft, downy flannelette for warm garments, large and small? You will need them for these chilly nights, before the furnace is on active duty.

Economy is the price of life! Many a budget which works satisfactorily on paper presents difficulties in actual practice. If your budget is unruly, you can silence its protests by making prettiest and knickknacks and nightgowns, aprons and undersuits and camisoles, pyjamas and kimonos and costume slips. It is an ungrateful budget which will not yield to this treatment!

To appreciate the steady growth of the work in that country, he pointed to the fact that when the work started there 50 years ago it was undertaken by three Canadians, while today Japan boasts two splendid Methodist conferences and over 240 ordained native preachers.
He stated that unless more funds are forthcoming this year, it will be necessary to curtail the activities abroad he asked that the mission funds be upheld by subscriptions, which would make this work safer and easier for everyone concerned.

MOTOR ACCIDENT VICTIMS IMPROVING IN ST. JOSEPH'S

The condition of Conrad Genest, who was hurt in an automobile accident on Sunday last, and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, was reported by authorities at that institution to be much improved. Mr. Genest was driving his car along North Adelaide street, when the front wheel of the machine caught in a rut of the road and turned the car over, pinning him underneath.
Harry Attridge, Oxford street, florist, who was hit by a motor car at the corner of Mill and Talbot streets on Thursday evening, left St. Joseph's Hospital on Saturday. He had been suffering from severe cuts about the skull and arms.

CROWN SELECTS ATTORNEY IN SYDNEY MURRELL TRIAL

From Toronto came the information yesterday that T. J. Rigney, K.C., of Kingston, had been appointed by the attorney-general's department to officiate as the crown prosecutor in the case of the King versus Sidney Ernest Murrell, charged with murder.
Mr. Rigney was recently appointed as crown prosecutor of Frontenac county. He is recognized as one of the most brilliant criminal lawyers in the province, and has acted in cases which have attracted widespread attention. Since officiating in the role of crown attorney, Mr. Rigney has met with success equally as great as that which he scored when acting for the defence.

The Industrious Wife Who Bewails Too Much Leisure for Men—Why Are So Many Married Women More Flirtatious Than Girls?—Definition of Love.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I have been reading in the papers about Dr. Steinmetz, who says that the time is coming when we won't have to work but four hours a day. That means that MEN won't have to work but four hours a day, because there's never going to be any automatic baby pacifier that will tell whether it is howling because of a pin, or the colic, or sheer deviltry. Neither is there going to be any electrical device for keeping a family fed, and washed, and cleaned, so women will go on doing their usual fourteen-hour shift.

But do you notice that, in this demand for shorter working hours for men, you never hear the wives' voices swelling the chorus? There's a reason for it. I am the wife of a workman, and as long as my husband worked a full day we got along finely. He was occupied all day, and when he came home at night he was tired and hungry and glad to sit down and eat a good dinner and spend most of his evenings at home.

Now he doesn't work more than three-quarters of a day, and he has a lot of time he doesn't know what to do with. He either passes it sitting around the house nagging me about the way I do my work, or else he puts it in at the poolroom, or shooting craps. Both of which drive me crazy. Believe me, Miss Dix, if the time ever comes that men don't have to work but four hours a day, it will break up every home in the land.

No woman has got the patience to endure having a man underfoot all the time, and it will take all the money he earns to pay for his amusement. There will be nothing left to feed the family on.

Answer:

Here's an interesting sidelight on a much-discussed subject. It does not seem to have occurred to those who wish to abolish labor that the idle may become a pest to other people. Also that leisure is a very expensive affair, for if you are not earning money, you must be spending it. Any one of us can testify that our vacations cost us ten times over our usual daily living expenses.

Certainly it isn't going to make for domestic harmony for a husband to have a lot of extra time to sit around the house and watch his wife work, for if there is anything on earth that gets on a woman's nerves it is the ceaseless little suggestions that men make under such circumstances about how the dinner should be cooked, and the children spanked, and how more efficiently a man can manage, anyway, than a woman. Relations are always a little strained in those families in which the man comes home to lunch, and it is not a mere coincidence that divorce is much more common among the rich, where the men do not have to work, than it is among the poor where the man is busy and occupied all day.

Women know that work is a man's salvation, the one thing that keeps him happy, and well, and out of mischief, and therefore they are not in favor of any laborless days for their husbands. Moreover, the ideal husband is a man that goes to work at eight or nine, and doesn't come back until five, when everything is set for him.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I want to ask you three questions:

(a) Do you think a person who has been disappointed in love can make a true husband or wife? In other words, if a girl has been in love with a man who has jilted her for another girl, can she make a true wife for another man?

(b) Why are so many married women more flirtatious than girls? (c) Why so many women who come from the country to cities go mad about gayety and pleasure?

Answer:

(a) Of course there may be an occasional morbid-minded woman who will go through life cherishing a deathless affection for a faithless lover, but such women are as rare as blackbirds. Generally, the knowledge that a man has ceased to care for her kills the woman's love for him on the spot, and fills her with hatred for him. Because a woman has loved once is no reason for her not loving again. Indeed, very few people, men or women, ever marry their first loves. They have a dozen lesser loves, passing fancies, before they come to the grand passion.

If I were a man I should not care who a woman's first love had been, so that I was her last love. Having known a traitor's false vows, she is all the more apt to appreciate a good man's love.

(b) When a married woman is flirtatious, it is from one of three causes: Sometimes it is because her husband has quit making love to her, and she is heart hungry for sentiment. She wants some man to admire her, and tell her that she is beautiful and fascinating. And when her dumb, oyster-like husband won't do it, she listens to any man who will hand her soft talk.

Often a married woman is more flirtatious than a girl because she has more temptation. Men who don't want to marry have to walk warily around girls, but they can flirt all they like with a married woman. Also married women have money to spend on Time Oats, which girls have not. Many a man grafts half his food and all his amusements off flattered married women.

The third reason that some married women flirt is because they married too early. They didn't have any play time, any beau time, any girl time when they were girls, and so they are taking it when they are wives.

(c) The reason why the country woman goes mad about pleasure when she comes to the city is because it is a novelty to her. She has led a dull, monotonous life, so the bright lights go to her head, and she cannot get enough of cabarets, and theatres, and jazzing. She doesn't know the ropes and so she is often indiscreet. She doesn't know the price women have to pay for their follies, and so she tumbles into the primrose path far oftener than the wise city girl.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Will you please give us your definition of love?

Answer:

Unselfishness. The putting of another's happiness and well being before your own. Real love casts out all thought of self. It delights in personal service. It takes no count of sacrifice because its chief pleasure is in giving its all to its beloved.

The mother who keeps her children tied to her and away from opportunities because she cannot bear to be parted from them loves herself, not her children. The man who marries a woman, knowing that he is unfit to marry and has no way of supporting her, and who drags her down to poverty and misery, only loves himself. The wife who is too lazy to make her husband a comfortable home, and who poisons him by her bad cooking and works him to death to gratify her desires, does not love him, although she is miserable if she is parted from him an hour.

Words are the cheapest things on earth. Therefore take oaths of devotion at their true value, and when a man tells you that he loves, see how he proves it. If he rolls up his sleeves and goes to work for you, and if he considers your happiness and pleasure above all else, you may rest assured that his love is the real, genuine, blown-in-the-bottle variety. But if he is jealous and selfish, and just wants to monopolize you, then beware. It is not love. It is only a base imitation.

BLYTH'S GRAND OLD LADY. Mrs. Sarah McQuarrie of Blyth, one of the most popular pioneers of Western Ontario.

KNOWN AS GRAND OLD LADY OF BLYTH, ONT.

Mrs. Sarah McQuarrie Was One of the First Settlers of Blyth.

One of the most popular pioneers of Western Ontario is Mrs. Sarah McQuarrie of Blyth, known by those who are more closely associated with her as "Blyth's grand old lady." Mrs. McQuarrie, who came to Blyth with her husband, the late Hugh McQuarrie, in 1860 is loved by old and young alike. She is particularly interested in the young people and their activities, her special protégée, being little Miss Alice Hawkins.

When Mrs. McQuarrie, who is now eighty-five years of age, first came to Blyth it was sparsely inhabited. The congregation of St. Andrew's Church held its services where the old cemetery is situated on Dinsley street. Mrs. McQuarrie has always been a great worker in St. Andrew's Church, and still takes an active part in the interests of the church. Her husband was one of the elders for a great number of years, and they both saw the church grow from a small band of faithful workers, until now it has developed into a large and prosperous congregation.

The bride's sister, Miss Helen Moore, was bridesmaid, and was dressed in a beautiful costume of brown velvet with hat and hair to match, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Dr. M. Edgar of London, the groom's brother, was best man. Only immediate relatives and friends were present.

After the ceremony an excellent buffet luncheon for 24 was served at the bride's home. The drawing-room and dining-room were very prettily decorated with autumnal ferns and flowers. The happy couple left on the 5:40 train for points east. On their return they will reside in Paris.

HIGGS-GREATOREX.
One of the prettiest of the September weddings took place at the Seventh Line Methodist Church, East Nissouri, when Miss Martha Greatorex, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Greatorex of Dorchester, became the bride of Mr. Albert Higgs, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Higgs of Iderton, the Rev. Mr. Kilpatrick of Thamesford officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with asters.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a dress of white satin trimmed with pearls and a veil of silk tulle trimmed with pearls and caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

Miss Mildred Greatorex, sister of the bride, made a winsome bridesmaid in a white gown and carried a bouquet of white and pink roses. Miss Margaret Higgs, sister of the groom, was also a bridesmaid in a white gown and carried a bouquet of white and pink roses.

Mr. Fred Higgs was his brother's best man. The wedding music was played by Mr. Everett P. Howard of London, who played softly throughout the ceremony. During the signing of the register Miss Martha Payne, aunt of the bride, sang. Her dress was of black moire silk and she wore a corsage bouquet of dark red dahlias.

Mr. William Greatorex and Mr. Gordon Higgs acted as ushers.

The groom's gift to the bride was a leather avenue bag, to the bridesmaid and matron of honor bar-pouch, to the soloist, a gold brooch, to the best man a gold tie-pin, to the organist a gold tie-clip, and to the ushers tie-pins.

After the ceremony about 50 guests enjoyed a dainty wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Greatorex, receiving her guests in a deep purple silk dress.

Later the popular young couple left by motor for points east.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Higgs will reside at their home, 29 Argyle street west, London.

PUTS HEALTH AND VIM INTO WOMEN

So Says Mrs. MacPherson of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brantford, Ont.—"I was always tired and the least exertion would put me out for a day or two. I had a pressing pain on the top of my head, and pain in the nape of my neck, and when I stooped over I could not get up without help, because of pain in my back. I did not sleep well and was nervous at the least noise. I keep house, but I sweep the floor nor wash the dishes without lying down afterwards. A friend living near me told me what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for her so I began to take it. With the first bottle I felt brighter and got so I could wash dishes and sweep without having to lie down. I became regular again in my monthly terms. I have taken ten bottles all told and am now all better. I can truly say that your wonderful medicine cannot be beaten for putting health and vim into a woman."

Mrs. JAMES H. MACPHERSON, 309 Greenwich St., Brantford, Ont.

If you are suffering from a displacement, irregularities, backache, or any other form of female weakness write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women."

When Film makes teeth cloudy the lips are kept closed

End Film the prettier teeth lead to open smiles

This Offer

May bring you a delightful surprise

Do you realize how many prettier teeth you see nowadays? Millions of people now brush teeth in a new way. They combat the cloudy film. And these whiter, cleaner, safer teeth show that method means.

You and yours will use it when you once learn what it does. And this free test will show you.

Those dingy coats
Your teeth are coated with a film—that viscous film you feel. Much of it resists the tooth brush, clings and stays.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That is how teeth lose their beauty.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Some of these troubles come to nearly all. You should fight the film.

Two easy ways
Now dental science has discovered two easy ways to fight film.

Protect the Enamel
Pepsodent dissolves the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film comb that contains harsh grit.

Make in Canada
Pepsodent

The New Day Dentifrice
Now advised by leading dentists the world over.

10-DAY TUBE FREE
THE PEPSODENT COMPANY,
Dept. T, 191 George St., Toronto, Ont.
Mail 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent to

Only one tube to a family.

One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. The other removes it without harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent. Leading dentists the world over now advise it. Careful people of some 50 nations use it every day.

Natural—gentle
Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to better fight mouth acids. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva to better digest starch deposits. So every use gives manifold power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents.

Thus Pepsodent brings its amazing results in natural and gentle ways, without harsh grit.

Pepsodent results are quick and apparent. They will amaze and delight you.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the cloudy coats disappear.

This means much to you and yours. Cut out coupon now.

NO RESPONSE FOLLOWS GERMANY'S SURRENDER

Change in Ruhr Policy Fails To Enliven Wall Street Trade.

By STUART P. WEST.
Special to The Advertiser.
New York, Sept. 25.—The two main points made against the stock market today were, first, that it did not respond to the German surrender in the Ruhr and the consequent rise in the foreign exchanges, and second, that it was equally unimpressed by the first few of the August railway statements.

Much store had been set upon the market by a number of critics, who were looking for a sympathy rally to have an upward movement. Much disappointment accordingly was felt at the action of the stock market today. The big jump in New York Central earnings over August, 1922, had been noted, but it was upon the stock, Baltimore & Ohio, which had stood out so strongly for nearly a week, was home town by the Wall Street. The traders were getting out of the stock in the idea that the market was likely to be more about the middle of the year, and that it was a little run up in the start, but it was not likely to be more.

Beaucoup activities converged upon the market. The weakness in the stock, which sold at a new low for the week, had a sympathetic effect upon other motor shares, particularly Chrysler, which was in touch with the automobile industry. The weakness in the stock, which sold at a new low for the week, had a sympathetic effect upon other motor shares, particularly Chrysler, which was in touch with the automobile industry.

Further buying occurred at one time in the industrial alcohol and corn products, but these and other attempts to put them up. They even made a move to take them down, but they were not likely to be more.

But this movement, too, was short lived.

RAW SUGAR ADVANCES AND NEARS 1923 PEAK

Special to The Advertiser.
New York, Sept. 25.—Sugar prices are rising again, Cuban raw sugar being bought today at 5 1/2c, a new high on the current upward movement. The undercurrent of the market is strong, with new crops to be expected in 1924. Today's quotation brings the price of raw sugar to within 1/2c of the 1923 peak. Arubuck Bros. advanced the price of refined sugar 1/2c to 8 1/2c per lb. while C. & C. Co. quoted refined sugar firm at 9 1/2c.

"Is Your Husband Getting Bald?"

If your wife and friends have begun to notice the thin spots in your hair—get busy!

Premature baldness is no joke. It means that you lose the appearance of youth and vitality, it means that people unconsciously classify you as one of "the older men", it means that if your hair has started to slip, you should begin the use of Newbro's Herpicide.

Herpicide prevents hair loss by destroying the cause and it permits the hair to grow as nature intended. As a hair saver that gets results Herpicide has no equal.

For an interesting booklet upon "The Care of The Hair" and a small trial bottle of Newbro's Herpicide send ten cents in stamps or coin to The Herpicide Co., Dept. 40, Detroit, Mich.

B. S. C. CLASS.

The B. S. C. Class, of which Rev. F. W. K. Harris, director of religious education at St. Andrew's Church, is leader, held their opening meeting of the season last night. At the conclusion of a brief business meeting, the members went to the home of Miss Madeleine Grant, whose marriage takes place shortly, and surprised her with a number of useful gifts. Following this, Mrs. Grant entertained the girls for the evening most enjoyably. The new officers of the class assumed their positions last night for the first time. They are: Hostess, president, Rev. F. W. K. Harris, Mrs. J. W. Parkinson and Miss Ruth Stephenson; president, Miss Margaret Hutton; vice-president, Miss Marion Pettigrew; secretary-treasurer, Miss Connie Cuthbert; leaders of the three class groups, Miss Katherine McLennan, Miss Margaret Moulie and Miss Mabel Thomas.

By means of an autographed quilt, the members have raised the sum of $102, and this has been devoted to the purchase of a dressing carriage for the hospital. The officers who engineered this successful feat are the
