First of all—

you buy a tidy red tin of Prince Albert tobacco that's all pleasing and fragrant and fresh. Then you start your jimmy pipe or rolling cigarettes like you were on the trail of the best deal you ever put across.

Don't put off P. A. pipe or cigarette joy till tomorrow. You just can't afford delay, because every day you pass up P. A. the longer your regret will be. Because you nor any other man ever smoked tobacco so lusciously good as the inter-national joy smoke

It can't burn your tongue—can't parch your throat! Just mellow and cheerful. You see, P. A. is made by a patented process that cuts out bite and parch. You get just the bully flavor and freshness and aroma that has made P. A. sell more to pipe users than all other tobaccos combined!

And you'll never know the joys of a jimmy pipe until you jam in some P. A. It shoots a new idea into your system, it's so downright bully delicious. Life's too short to fust with ordinary tobaccos. Be game. Buy a tidy red tin of P. A. and get your smoke-bearings!

Prince Albert is the largest seller in the United States. It is now being imported into Newfoundland and is sold by all of the leading dealers in one-eighth-pound tidy red tins.

dom, all day. She was almost glad that Talbot Denby was coming, for though she did not like him—much, his was an interesting personality, and he would keep her from this foolish and almost insane thinking of Ralph Farrington.

While she was dressing—and she told her maid to choose one of her best frocks—she heard the carriage which had been sent to meet Talbot drive up to the great entrance, and when she went down to the drawing-room she found him standing with his back to the fire—for he inherited the earl's chilliness and was always more or less cold. He was staring at the carpet when she entered, and he started slightly and his lids rose with faint surprise as she swept into the room; for since his last visit at the Court, Veronica's girlish prettiness had developed into a loveliness that, though still full of the charm of girlhood, suggested the imperial splendour of the woman. Hitherto he had regarded her as just a dependente, a kind of companion and housekeeper, though a relative; to-night he recognized that this superbly dressed, this graceful and exquisitely beautiful young creature was a woman to be reckoned with.

His lips took the curve which was meant for a smile, and his black eyes flashed under their white lids as he came forward and bowed over her hand. He noticed the diamonds glittering on her taper fingers and at her wrist, the costly string of pearls encircling the white and slender neck; jewels the earl had given her and more, bidden her wear; and his old tone of affable condescension was exchanged for one of friendly admiration, not unmingled with respect.

"My dear Veronica, how—if I may say so—you have grown!"

He still held her warm hand in his cold, thin one, and as she withdrew it, she said, with a laugh.

"I have finished growing a long time ago, Mr. Denby."

"At any rate, you have grown more beautiful," he said. "I can accept no contradiction of that fact."

She did not blush as she would have done some months before, but swept him a low courtesy, so full of grace and esprit that Talbot Denby's eyes flashed with an admiration which, however, did not stir his heart.

"Thank you very much! If the compliment were as true as it is candid—"

"I never pay compliments," he said, with a slight frown; for he was not prepared for a retort from this girl who, after all, he told himself, was but a kind of upper servant. "I spoke the literal truth—as I mostly do."

"How difficult you must find it, and in what difficulties must so inconvenient a habit land you!" she retorted, with a smile, as she bent her beautiful head to fasten a bracelet which had come undone.

"Permit me!" he said; and he expected to stammer a negative, as she would have done six months ago; but she held out her white arm coolly and with perfect self-possession.

As he was fastening the bracelet a footman opened the door, and the earl entered, leaning upon the arm of Welford his valet. His lordship paused a moment in the doorway and looked at the couple with a cynical, calculating smile.

"Ah, Talbot," he said, nodding, and holding out his hand with the gold-headed stick in it. Mr. Talbot Denby managed to shake one finger of it. "So you have come down. Does the House close to-night, or is your presence spared by the whips?"

"Oh, I am not so indispensable, sir," said Talbot.

CHAPTER V.

"I found the work easy enough, but the surroundings, the atmosphere, the squalor— Ah, well, I longed for the open air, the country. One day I took the train at haphazard and reached Halsery. The rest I think you know. That's why I haven't proper testimonials. Had it not been for you, for the fox terrier and her pup, I should still have been wandering about the world. As it is, I have settled down here in one of the loveliest places. God ever created, and I am happy; thanks to you."

Veronica drew a long breath. She had been lost in the man's story; her vivid imagination had easily filled in all the blanks. But yet there was a mystery, something unexplained, something puzzling. According to his own account, he was nothing better than an ordinary workman, a pariah, one of those who gain their livelihood by the work of their hands, a human being immeasurably beneath her. And yet he spoke and moved with the grace and ease which she had always thought belonged to the higher class, to her equals. She looked before her with her brows bent thoughtfully, pondering over the puzzle. Was it because there was more equality in the land from which he had come, was it because— Her interest in him and his story made her angry and impatient with herself.

"Oh, well," she said, with affected indifference, "you are all right now. Your situation is secure. You may stay here until—"

"Until I grow restless," he said, with a smile.

Veronica rose proudly, coldly. "Good-morning," she said.

He raised his cap. "Will you not come down and try the fish again, Miss Gresham?" he said. "You will throw the fly very well if you stuck to it for a little while. Burchett says that I am to send some trout up to the house every day. Won't you come down sometimes, say to-morrow, about this time? The weather is changing. We shall have it cloudy to-morrow, and you shall catch as many trout as you like."

Veronica stood, with her face turned away from him. She wanted to say "No," and to say it indifferently, coldly, with the mistress's air and tone. But she could not. In spite of herself, of her pride of birth and station, she said:

"I will come to-morrow. At this time. Be here, please."

He raised his cap again. "I will be here," he said, gravely.

CHAPTER VI.

Veronica, as she went back to the Court, felt displeased with herself. Now that she was away from the—well, yes, almost mesmeric—influence of Ralph Farrington, she was able to appreciate his strange tone and manner of equality; only once or twice had he addressed her by her name. And though she had noticed his omission of the usual mark of respect at the time and had tried to feel offended, she had not succeeded. When she had recovered from her excitement over the fishing she had put on all the hauteur of which she was capable—and it was not a little—but she remembered with a mixture of irritation and amusement it did not appear to have had much effect upon him; indeed, once she had caught the shadow of a smile in his eyes, as if he had found something humorous in the pride expressed by voice and manner.

She thought of his story, of the simplicity and restraint with which he had spoken of his mother; and as she recalled his downcast face her heart softened towards him.

As a matter of fact, Miss Veronica of Lynne Court found her experiences of the morning cropping up in her mind in a rather inconvenient fashion throughout the day.

In the afternoon she made a call on the Sainsburys at the Grange. Young Lord Vincent, the eldest son and heir of the house, and one of her most ardent admirers, happened to be at home. He was a good-looking young fellow, with a fair, almost girlish face, and he spoke with a decided lisp added to his Oxford drawl.

Salvia Will Grow Hair.

SALVIA, the Great Hair Tonic and Dressing, will positively create a new growth of hair.

SALVIA prevents baldness by fastening the hair to the roots.

Hitherto he and his devotion had only amused Veronica, but this afternoon as he hovered about his mother's tea-table, uttering rapid commonplaces, with his eyeglass screwed up in his eye, she felt impatient with him. She would have been startled, not to say horrified, if she had been conscious that she was comparing him with Ralph Farrington, the gamekeeper; but she was so comparing him, and to Lord Vincent's disadvantage.

That night, as she played ecarte with the earl, she made so many mistakes that the old man eyed her with a cold surprise.

"I'm afraid the game bores you, Veronica," he said. "Shall we stop—at any rate until you have done thinking of something else?"

His cynical speeches and comments did not usually affect her, but to-night the colour mounted to her face, and she said, hastily—she who generally spoke so slowly and serenely:

"No, no! We will play another game, Lord Lynborough!"

She was half ashamed, half angry, at the mulish way in which her mind would wander to the man and the simple incidents of the morning, and she went to bed and to sleep in anything but a good temper. But, to her annoyance, when she woke in the morning, the fact that she had promised to meet Ralph Farrington was the first thing to spring upon her.

"I will not go," she said. But she looked out of the window wistfully; for, as Ralph had said, the sky was cloudy, and it was, no doubt, a perfect day for fishing. "All the same, I will not go!" she said. "The man is too—too familiar. No, no! That is not far; he would have been offensive if he had been familiar, and there was nothing, absolutely nothing one could resent. That is the worst of it. No, I won't go. It's fine sport; I don't know when I have been so interested—I am so often bored!—so—so amused. But I won't go!" she wound up firmly, but reluctantly.

She kept to her resolution; and felt like a martyr to the tyrant, Bore-

Translating Money.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A man who was about to start on a journey across the continent was taking leave of his 10 u r-year-old daughter. He told her he was to be gone a long, long time. She asked him if he would be back before dinner, and he said no. Before supper? No. She looked grave and fishing thoughtfully in her apron pocket brought out a penny. "Take this," she said, "and buy yourself something to eat. And," she added a moment later, "if there's anything left you may buy me a doll."

The recipient of the gift wore the penny on his watchfob through his journey. I suspect from what he says that there will be enough left to buy a very handsome doll.

Such is a child's idea of the value of money!
Of course, one would not expect or want any more of an adorable baby like that, but it seems to me that many older children have just as vague notions on the subject.

Nor do I mean children in wealthy families, alone. It is surprising to see how much money children of the middle class and even poor families have to spend on incidentals.

The best way to teach a child to appreciate the value of money is to let him earn his spending money. But,
of course, that is not always practicable. Besides, what is the use, we grownups think, of earning money if we cannot spend it on those whom we love best and make their paths a little easier than our own were.

Another way to impress upon a child the value of money is to teach him to translate it into terms of pleasure or possession. For instance, ten cents or a dollar may mean little to a child who has never earned money (and indeed to many older people who have). But translate these sums into a visit to a moving picture show and a new toy and they have more meaning.

Get your children into the habit of visualizing money in this way and you will give them a much better sense of its value.

When I reached the age when I was always begging for "just a penny" my mother one day answered me, "Don't say 'just a penny.' Two of them will buy the yeastcake that makes our bread, or the postage stamp that carries your letter across the country to grandmother." This realization of its power gave me a new respect for
"just a penny."

Men, I think are more careless about the spending of little moneys than women. A young man of this sort read one day that it took a dollar a year to earn the nickel which he so negligently squandered to save walking a few blocks. It was a new point of view to him, and I think he has been more careful about money since then.

"It isn't the money, it is what it will buy that I care for," is a common saying. How silly! As if anybody cared for the money itself, except a miser. The only reason such a remark is possible is that we do not associate the two closely enough. Get the habit of visualizing money, of translating it into terms of what it will buy, and you will use money with more respect and intelligence.

The Extra Edition.

By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "An Good Old St. John's."

The extra edition is published by a newspaper whenever it can find a headline that is important enough to sell by itself.

If America produced a billion bushels of wheat in a year, an extra announcing the fact wouldn't sell as fast as pianos in Timbuctoo. But when the American fleet meets an enemy and reduces it to junk and obliterates, a newspaper can make a scaresheet out of adult type in red ink and sell it for ten cents a copy.

Some newspapers sell extras and some sell their readers. This is why the extra has gone slightly out of fashion. It now takes a national catastrophe to jar an extra out of most newspapers. But there was a day when a New York newspaper would issue an extra announcing that a man had fallen off the Singer building, another saying that he was on his way down and a third to the effect that the man's hat had reached the ground, but that he himself had not yet started and might come down by elevator.

Many newspapers are wonderfully equipped with machinery and can get out an extra edition in five minutes that cannot be read in less than ten seconds.

Extra editions are issued whenever a public official is shot at or a great steamship sinks or a city burns down or the United States and some other nation begin making faces at each other. But ordinary occurrences, such as another gun fight on Broadway, a victory over Yale by Harvard, the discovery of graft in St. Louis or the nomination of Bryan for the presidency, do not make good extras and are held for the regular editions.

Sometimes a newspaper man gets sad and sore thinking of the magnificent material for extras which will not jar loose. If the Republican party should carry Texas or King George should sign with the New York Giants or the Standard Oil Company should decide to pay its $29,000,000

The Colonel's River.

The Colonel,
afar in Brazil,
has found a new
river, they say;
it's deep, and it
travels up hill,
and broadens out into a bay. Its borders are ruggedly bluff; it
has some preposterous falls; the colonel will soon
have it stuffed, and brought to Smithsonian halls. It has a most wonderful bend, this river the colonel has found; and sometimes it stands upon end, then burrows down into the ground. Its waters are yellow and pink, it's covered with glittering foam; they say it's lot better to drink than any old grape juice at home.
And sirens recline on its shore, their music is heard through the mist, and down on its beautiful floor the mermaids are playing bridge whist. We've always felt sure in our mind the colonel would do things in style, and any old stream he might find would beat other streams by a mile. Good bye to the old Mississippi! Its fame and its glories will flee! The Amazon henceforth may slip unscathed to its grave in the sea! The Rhine and the Danube, I fear, must down to oblivion flit; the colonel has captived their peer, and broke it to saddle and bit! Good by to famed stream-lets and burns, the Afton, the Avon, the Po! Just wait till the colonel returns, and mark how such rivers sing low!

Fads and Fashions.

Simple hand-made batiste dresses
have a sort of trouser cuff at the bottom of their skirts.

The best golf skirt has a gathered back and three pleats starting from the bend of the knee.

The fashionable coats all hang as straight from the shoulders as if they were on a coat hanger.

The Roman-striped collars and tunics are among the prettiest features of the new clothes.

One of the very best tailor-made models just now is the tunic skirt, cut with broad box pleats.

Nothing so delightful as the Roman-striped silks for trimmings has happened for a long while.

Shoulder shawls are being crocheted of silk and wool to look like scarfs. Tassels finish the ends.

A very small sunshade with a very long handle is one of the most graceful parasols of the season.

Green, purple, yellow, dark blue,
brown and red are all seen combined with white in the form of checks.

Soft beaver duvetyne and felt hats for sporting wear are made in much prefer shapes than formerly.

Some women wear carved ivory balls, strung on a Japanese cord with tassels, as a finish to their costumes.

Evening frocks, though they don't look any fuller, really have a great deal more material in their make-up.

Supt. Blackall's Report

We have before us the last annual report of Mr. Blackall of Church of England Schools. He points out that by the small additional grant and the use of a motor boat, he is now able to visit many settlements which profit by inspection of schools.

Two new features of the publication are reports from Mr. Barnes and Mr. Whiteway.

Mr. Barnes spent six months studying educational work in Germany, England, Scotland and Switzerland. A very short synopsis of this somewhat lengthy report is as follows:—

Do not divorce intellectual and manual labour. Let there be no conflict between cultural and vocational subjects. "Perhaps in no phase of our present day civilization is there more direct waste and extravagance than in educational systems, in which more than eighty per cent of their output falls short of completion." "The more closely the question of industrial education is studied, the more firmly grows the conviction that it should begin in the elementary school; and until it is honestly faced from this point and linked up with the instruction given there, the expenditure of money on those schools will be to a large extent wasted, the results achieved disappointing, and the practical effect incapacity."

Mr. Barnes gives close attention to the continuation school, which is mainly attended at night, though in many places there are day continuation classes.

He gives a study at some length of the Continuation Schools of Germany. In Germany before the pupil leaves the elementary school, he has had three years of training in drawing, cardboard and woodwork, for the purpose of giving him a bent in the direction. Experience shows that those who have received this training do not readily fall into the unskilled classes. Towards the close of the lad's elementary school course, the parents are sent a pamphlet showing the various trades, and the prospects in each, and are invited to a conference with the authorities and teachers, for the purpose of explaining the labor bureau to them. If the lad should enter a store as a clerk, he at once joins the commercial class; if an artisan or a craftsman he must join the practical and theoretical trade class. Classes are formed for printers, tailors, shoemakers, bakers, masons, coopers, barbers, hairdressers, carpenters, bookbinders, plumbers, sheet-iron workers, etc.

Mr. Barnes also gives a study of the London, Manchester, Scotch and Swiss schemes.

Mr. S. P. Whiteway's contribution takes the form of a "Note on the Tour of Teachers to the British Isles in 1913."

As to the training of teachers, which occupies a prominent position in Mr. Barnes's study of school schemes in the countries he visited, Mr. Blackall says: "I am of opinion that the Normal Training School, might with great profit to the State, be conducted as an inter-denominational institution. The pupil-teachers would receive their general training in their denominational institutions and their professional training in the inter-denominational Normal Training School proceeding after it to their denominational practicing schools." We have long since arrived at much the same conclusion.

TRADE REPORT. Bread Cake AND Pastry JOHN B. AYRE.

West End Cemetery.

Editor Evening Telegram.

The Report of His Majesty's Trade Commission to the Dominions of Canada and Newfoundland for the year 1913 has just been published. The Report contains a survey of the following Trades:—

Dry Goods, Chemicals and Drugs, Groceries, India Rubber, Leather, Jewellery, Metals, (Material, Machinery and Hardware), Earthenware, China and Glass, Building Materials, Paint and Varnishes, Paper and Stationery, Miscellaneous, as well as statistical tables dealing with the various Trades showing the value of the importation under the Trade heading of the articles which are component parts of that particular Trade. The Report should be of considerable value to those dealing with British Manufacturers and Merchants as well as Agents having or contemplating connection with United Kingdom Manufacturers by reason of the comparison made in dollars of Great Britain's Trade with the Dominion in comparison with the trade of other countries. Useful information is also given regarding the appointment of Agents and the handling of products of British Manufacture. The Edition is limited and application for copies, which will be supplied at the nominal fee of $1 each postage paid, should be made immediately to His Majesty's Trade Commissioner, 3 Beaver Hall Square, Montreal, Quebec.

Why Was Prosecution Delayed?

On June 10th, William Collier, of Codroy, was convicted, before Magistrate McDonnell, of St. George's of having assaulted a man named Brightway, who, the defendant claimed, had trespassed on his property in September last. Collier was sentenced to three months' imprisonment which term he is now serving. The circumstances of this man, who is 72 years old, have excited the sympathy of many persons who are conversant with his condition. He has an invalid wife, and is not very robust himself, besides this he had just sown some potatoes, when he was called upon to appear in court, which must needs be neglected while he is serving his sentence. He also has several heard of cattle which will also be neglected.

Big Crowd at Rossley's

Considering the delightful weather and other attractions, Rossley's had a fine house, Dan Cusack put his act over in great style, singing and dancing to the great delight of all, for the applause lasted until the picture was well on. Speaking of pictures, they are very good indeed, Rossley certainly made a change for the best when he bought his pictures outright because they are now the finest pictures seen anywhere. There is a fine showing at the present time every one a feature, two Vitaphones, one Labin, one Gaumont and Biscan. There is our fat friend, John Bunny, Maurice Costello, Lillian Walker, Leah Baird, Taft Johnston, Florence Turner, Mary Charleson and other special favorites.

WEST END CEMETERY.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I am glad to see by your paper of to-day, notice taken of the deplorable state of the General Protestant Cemetery. The place is more like a wilderness than God's Acre, and it is a wonder that the Trustees allow such a state of affairs; some of them, I think all, have their nearest and dearest buried there. I think the suggestion of "One Interested," is capital, viz., that the Churches should follow the example of our Roman Catholic friends and give a day for special collection for the Cemetery and each year this should continue so as the place would be kept as it should be and not a Common for cattle and dogs to roam in which is the case at present.

Yours,
GENERAL PROTESTANT.

Latest Fishery and Weather Report.

Bells Isle—Loose heavy ice everywhere.

LaScie—Some loose ice in the offing; some herring at Brent's Cove; no sign cod or salmon.

Twilligate—Ice little more loose in bay; no codfish or salmon yet caught.

Tilt Cove—Plenty herring; sign of codfish.

Bonavista—Salmon plentiful; no codfish with trap or jigger; herring fairly plentiful; ground tried yesterday with caplin from Trinity Bay but no codfish; prospects cannot be worse.

St. Lawrence—Traps from 15 to 20 quintals; nothing with hook; weather fine.

Cape Report.

Special to Evening Telegram.

CAPE RACE, To-day. Wind East, light, weather dull preceded by fog all night; two ocean liners passed East at daylight. Bar, 29.52; ther, 40.

There is no doubt the place is a disgrace to us. If the present caretaker would give his whole time to his work instead of taking contracts to build concrete walls, etc., and building them during the time he is being paid to do his general work, he could keep the grounds in order.

At present he is doing work of this sort. I contend, sir, that his whole time during working hours should be devoted to the walks, trimming trees, etc., and if he wishes to take contracts to build walls and keeping private lots clean he should do it in his own time or employ help to be paid for himself.

I do not know who is responsible for this state of affairs, but whoever it is they should be brought to task, and if the present caretaker will not do the right thing surely there are others who will.

If any place on earth should be kept clean it is where our loved ones rest.

Yours sincerely,
LOT HOLDER.

The Welsh Singers.

These are proud days for the Welshmen in St. John's when their brothers from Home are here singing their own songs and giving us all a taste of such delightful part singing. Last night the Royal Gwent Welsh Singers at the College Hall, before a large audience, gave a programme that was manifestly greatly enjoyed. The gentle Walton used to wonder what music was prepared for the Saints in Heaven when we of the earth, earthy can hear such harmony, and surely the blending of voices in sweet singing is one of the most satisfying forms of that Art which is almost the greatest gift that the Creator has given us.

The Welsh Singers show that they have been touched with the inevitable regard of the general audience for a mixed and modern programme. There are some of us here who have heard so little part singing that we have not yet had too much of the old music, but we are thankful for small mercies and the programme was all too short. The most finished performances we thought were the two part songs, "O Peaceful Night" and "In Absence." They were quiet, and consequently the voices were heard to much better advantage; and there was a fineness in attack and expression that was noticeably good. "Old Black Joe" was also well done, the change for one verse to the minor key, being very effective. "The Danube," "The Soldiers Chorus," the Sextette from "Lucia," and the "Hallelujah Chorus" with many encores formed a selection to please every taste. Mr. George France Davies, the Conductor, though quiet in his seat, had the unanimous support of his Choir and anyone who knows anything about chorus work will appreciate how much that means. Every eye was fixed on him continually and this accounted for the crispness of attack and the clear-cut phrasing and ending which are such a delight, even if they do not constitute the essential work of a choir. The leading tenor voices (which can convert themselves into male altos when required), have a great deal of "go" in their singing, and it is good to hear such precision in all the parts, and the effect of these fourteen voices (the conductor also sings) shows what volume can be obtained from a few voices that sing.

The solos, duet and trio were not the least enjoyable and all showed themselves quite at home in solo work, "Melisande" and "The Rosary," "I Hear You Calling Me," "Absent" being familiar songs.

Mr. Hesser seems to do a little better each venture, and we have no doubt at all but full houses will reward him this week. It is an opportunity and a comparatively cheap one for all who like music to gratify their desire to hear a choir from a country of which we have always heard much regarding their singing. Of course it is a difficult job to surprise a Newfoundland and while we think of it, we would suggest to Mr. Hesser to cut down some of the advance notices so much in evidence. If we were to believe all they say, the Concert Parties are just a little lower than the angels, and Gabriel is only a consequence. The advance notice is altogether overdone and has lost its influence, because of its impossibility in most cases, of fulfillment. However, this does not apply much to the Welsh Singers, who are really worth hearing and hearing more than once.

There is a second concert to-night, and a matinee on Wednesday, and a Final Concert on Wednesday night.

The same holds good if the commission, of which the majority of members are Carranza adherents, is selected to rule.

Starvation stares the Hindus on the Komagata Maru, in the face. Only liberal subscriptions from their fellow countrymen in this city, or an order to return to their own country will be their salvation. The last report is that they are fishing, day and night, to replenish their larder. Applications are being made to the local Hindus to come to their rescue with funds or food supplies, but the response is not generous. Provided the charter money is not paid within a few days, the order will be given for the ship to return to Japan.

Last night, Grand Master C. E. Cruickshanks, of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, in the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland, who arrived by last Saturday's express, was officially received at Atlantic Lodge, No. 1. Marian Begins to be Advertised Marian picked up the newspapers excitedly on the morning after her theatrical debut. One paper devoted five inches to a review of the play, and the other seven. Wiltree's work and his leading woman's was praised lavishly. The first review called Marian's work amateurish. The other called it capable and distinctly promising. Marian consoled herself with the reflection that the paper containing the latter reference to her work was by far the foremost newspaper in the city. She snipped out the two notices with her scissors, and read and re-read the latter with surge after surge of satisfaction.

Roaming idly through the rest of the paper, her attention was suddenly riveted abruptly to one of the columns. Her own picture stared at her from unfamiliar surroundings—flanked on one side by a murder story and on the other by the tale of an army scandal. Her amazed eyes ran down the story beneath her picture. In substance it embodied the self-same string of fabrications she had forbidden Ratgenhauer to print, on the day of her scene with him in his office. She was furious.

At the close of that morning's rehearsal for the following week's play, a play with a small cast in which no part had been assigned to Marian, she located Ratgenhauer in his office at the theatre. He greeted her with bland warmth, and hoped that she liked the flowers he had sent. In her wrath about the newspaper story, Marian had forgotten all about the floral gift.

"They were beautiful, thank you," she said, disconcerted for a moment. "You shouldn't have gone to all that bother."

"Sweetest to the sweet," he smiled. "What did you think of my work last night?" she asked.

Nothing is prettier among the children's hats than the little shady affairs tied with ribbons under the chin.

Star and B.I.S. Play to a Draw.

A FAST EXHIBITION.

With the weather all that could be desired, a large attendance, and a good exhibition of the many game it is no wonder that last night's match between the Stars and B. I. S. aroused the old enthusiasm in football, that appeared to have lain dormant for some time past.

The game was a hard fought one and resulted in a draw, with no goals scored.

At 7 p.m. the players were summoned to their places by Referee Higgins, and lined up as follows, with the Stars defending the western goal:

STARS—Phealan, goal; J. Hart, J. Walsh, backs; Kavanagh, W. Hart, Thompson, halves; Brien, Christie, Phealan, Caul, Morgan, forwards.

B. I. S.—Clare, goal; Kavanagh, T. Duggan, backs; Brown, W. Duggan, Burke, halves; Shortall, R. Jackman, Brophy, Kelly, E. Brophy, forwards.

From the start both teams settled down to hard work, and kept the ball flying from one end of the field to the other. A couple of corners were awarded the Stars, which though well placed were just as well saved by the B. I. S.

All during the first half play was well balanced, and enthusiasm ran high amongst the fans when the ball reached the danger territory of either goal.

The half time whistle came as a welcome relief to the majority of the players, who, during the last ten minutes of play, had put on an extra spin in an effort to score, but without result.

After a breathing spell the ball was again centered, and a repetition of the game played in the first half was witnessed. The ball was at many times within shooting territory, but misdirected shots, and well directed and effective defence were responsible for no scoring being done.

About ten minutes before the final whistle sounded W. Hart, of the Stars, collided with an opponent and injured his leg, and was obliged to discontinue play and had to be taken to the dressing room where first aid was rendered by Mr. Reeves.

Upon resuming play both teams worked hard to score but to no purpose, and when the final whistle sounded the ball was in the B. I. S. danger zone but no score had been made.

Referee—W. J. Higgins.
Linesmen—M. Rolfs, R. Callahan.

BATTLE OF DETTINGEN 1743. On this date, during the war of the Spanish Succession, the English Army entirely defeated a French army at Dettingen in Bavaria. George II. was in command of the English forces and the event may well be remembered as being the last battle in which an English King was actually present.

BATTLE OF QUATRE BRAS 1815. Fought two days before the Battle of Waterloo and resulted in the defeat of Ney's army by the British and their allies.

SUSPECTS ON TRIAL.

The six lads accused of holding up, assaulting and robbing an outport man named Garland, and who were on remand since Saturday last, came up for trial to-day. The case attracted considerable interest and was listened to by a thronged court room.

A marked feature was the guarding of every door by policemen for fear of the accused lads attempting to escape. During the forenoon testimony was taken from the complainant, Garland and Detective Byrne, who were also cross-examined by Messrs. R. T. McGrath and L. E. Emerson, counsels for two of the lads. As the case went on some cross-firing between Judge Knight, the lawyers and Inspector General Sullivan took place, and most of the time His Honor was kept busy recording objections that were raised to certain evidence brought in by the prosecution. At 1 p.m. adjournment was taken until 3 p.m.

Workman Injured.

Yesterday afternoon, a truckman, named Stevenson, employed with Mr. C. Lester, met with a serious accident near the Gas House to which he was carting coal. While unloading his car he became jammed between the wheel and the building and received a bad crushing injury below the hips.

At first he did not think his injuries serious, but on reaching his employer's stables he collapsed and a doctor had to be summoned. Upon examination the injuries were found to be of a serious nature and Stevenson was ordered to the hospital whither he was conveyed in the ambulance. The unfortunate man passed a restless night at the institution, but to-day shows signs of improvement.

HERRING AT HOLYROOD

Yesterday afternoon herring in large quantities were hauled at Holyrood, C.B. on the main wharf Kennedy securing 75 barrels. Not for many years past have herring been so plentiful at that place as they were yesterday, and though caplin have struck in, there are no quantities of these being hauled.

Capt. Walker Kennedy of the schr. Gertrude, who recently put into Holyrood for a caplin baiting, is now taking a supply of herring and will sail for the Grand Banks, returning later in the season for caplin. The appearance of herring in such large quantities at this season has caused some surprise amongst the oldest inhabitants of Holyrood, and various conjectures are being made by the sages as to the fishery outlook as gleaned from this remarkable occurrence.

Feature Pictures

AT THE HOUSE OF FEATURES.

The Crescent Picture Palace was greeted with large audiences last night and a splendid opening bill of this week was presented. The big feature Andrew Lang's famous fairy tale, "Beauty and the Beast" in three reels, is a remarkable production. The comedy picture is "The Midnight Alarm" with the famous comedy man Max Aster. Miss Louise Arkandy, the talented songstress and violinist, will render one of her best, and also will be heard in the latest musical hits. "Booked to arrive in a few days is the celebrated Southern story that was the principal cause of the civil war: "Uncle Tom's Cabin," in three reels, a splendid production by some of the world's best picture performers. See the Big Holiday Bill to-morrow.

Best Liniment of All Destroys Every Pain Put Never Burns.

"How thankful we are to get hold of such a wonderful household remedy as Nerviline," writes Mrs. E. P. Lamontagne from her home near Westkavrin, Alberta. "In this far-away section, far away from a doctor or druggist, every family needs a good supply of liniment. Nerviline is the best of all. It destroys every pain, but never burns. We use Nerviline in a score of ways. If it's rheumatism, aching back, pain in the side, sciatica or stiff neck,—you can laugh at them if you have lots of Nerviline handy. For earache, toothache or cramps I don't think anything could act more quickly. For a general all-round pain remedy I can think of nothing more valuable and speedy to cure than Nerviline."

The above letter is convincing—it tells how reliable and trusty this old-time remedy is. Nerviline for forty years has been a household word in Canada. Scarcely a home in Canada you can find without Nerviline. Every community has its living examples of the wonderful curative properties of Nerviline which will cure pains and aches anywhere in the joints or muscles. It's penetrating, soothing, warming and safe for young and old to use. Get the large 50c. family size bottle: It's the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at any dealer's anywhere.

Cricket Memories.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Notwithstanding the fact that we have had many new games introduced during the last ten years, it must be acknowledged by all that Cricket is still popular with us and only needs a little effort on the part of some of the enthusiasts to make it as popular as in days of yore. I must admit that the Cricket notes appearing in the press during the last few days have been very interesting indeed, for it makes us live again at it were in the happy days of long ago.

One of the greatest feats of cricketers was that of "carrying out your bat" but few of our batters ever had that proud distinction to boast of. To those who may not be familiar with the game, "carrying out your bat" may be a puzzler as to what is meant by the phrase. Well to enlighten them, permit me to say that this distinction was gained by the batter who went to the wicket first for his team and "held on" during the entire innings without being "put out."

The only man that I know to have that record, is Aleck Burke, he performing the feat in a match played on the Barrens about the year '76. Perhaps our Cricket Historian James Murphy has a record of that match in his log, if he has we would all feel indebted to him if he would give us notes on it in his next article.

One of the writers in the News, makes reference to Michael Galway bowling three and catching one in an "over," and contends that it is a unique record, but I think if I remember correctly that Michael Lawlor, of H. M. Customs, holds the belt for better work than that, he having bowled three, caught two, and stumped one.

This game was played on Hennesbury's grounds on a Saturday about twenty-five years ago. Maurice Devine, Editor of the Trade Review, was a bowler in this match and it is likely he will remember Mr. Lawlor's feat.

Yours etc.,
LONG STOP.

We know who he will buy it for? But who will he buy it from? Hundreds of Engagements and Weddings are sealed yearly in Newfoundland with Trappell's Solid Gold Rings.

Trappell's Solid Gold Rings are made of the finest quality of gold and silver, and are set upon their quality, finish and variety of design and beauty of design. Rings to men, women, baby and miss for ever occasion. Gem Rings, Chased Rings, Signet Rings, Birthday Rings. Should you have a desire to get a ring of such design as you may create your self, or that you have seen somebody else wear, just take your design to Trappell; there is nothing impossible along these lines for his talented workmen. A splendid assortment of unset stones can be seen if your design calls for a Gem Ring. Ask to be shown the new White Sapphires. They are hard and brilliant like diamonds, so much so that they puzzle experts.—ap20,14

Prospects Are Poor; No Bait.

The latest account of the fishery between Great Basin and Port aux Bras is—

"The total catch is 4,963 qts. and for last week 1,025. Fifteen boats are fishing, and two have arrived with 50 and 45 qts. of codfish, respectively. Five bankers have returned with fares of 300, 250, 180, 150, 60, or a total of 940 qts. Prospects at present are poor, and there is no bait. The lobster fishery is the worst on record. No dories or skiffs are fishing owing to want of bait."

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for persons who escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you the desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?

LATEST FROM KYLE.—Capt. Parsons, of the S.S. Kyle, sent the following wireless to the R.-N. Co. yesterday afternoon: "At Spotted Islands; strong gale N. by E. wind, with thick snow since yesterday; ice tight on land; no prospects of getting north yet."

QUICK RUN.—The Furness Liner Digby reached Halifax yesterday afternoon after an excellent run of 41 hours from this port.

STEPHANO'S RECORD RUN.—The Red Cross Liner Stephano, Capt. Clarke, has made a record run between this port and Halifax. She left here at 3.30 p.m. Saturday and reached the Nova Scotia port at 5 a.m. yesterday, finishing the course in 37½ hours or an hour and a half quicker than her best previous performance. The quickest time ever the trip was made between the ports mentioned by a ship engaged on the Newfoundland route was by the Allan Liner Pretorian four years ago.

English make! We've just received a new lot of Chased and other Pretty Rings from England. If your thoughts are running in that direction be sure, and see them. R. H. TRAPNELL.—June 14 Enthusiastic Meeting of Regatta Committee.

REGATTA WILL BE HELD WEDNESDAY, AUGUST FIFTH.

The initial meeting of the Regatta Committee was held last evening in the Armoury of the T. A. Hall, first to finalize the business of last year and secondly to decide on the holding of a regatta this season.

President A. Hiscock presided over a large attendance. Secretary J. I. Noonan submitted his reports, which were adopted, after which Treasurer C. J. Ellis presented a statement of the accounts of last year, which were audited by Messrs. C. E. Hunt and R. W. Jeans and which were endorsed.

The officers for 1913 then vacated their seats and the meeting thrown open to the public. Councillor C. W. Ryan being moved to the chair. It was proposed by Mr. T. J. Foran and seconded by Mr. N. Andrews to hold a Regatta this year during the first week of August, the first Wednesday as is customary. This motion was carried without a dissenting voice. On motion of Mr. A. Hiscock a committee of twenty members were nominated with power to add to their numbers. The public meeting then closed and following a vote of thanks to Councillor Ryan for acting as chairman, the following committee and executive were appointed:—

Poor Whaling Voyage.

Owing to the stormy weather of late whaling operations have been considerably hampered, with the result that the catch to date is less than last year's which was less than average one. The Cabot operating from Balena has only one whale against four at this time last year. The Puma and Lynx which operate from Rosarue have only four to-date, and the Caehalot, which is now at Hawke's Harbor, has not yet begun operations the delay being caused by ice conditions.

Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your works and I found 20.5 per cent of NITROGEN, Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manure.
Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

Russell Ford.

Red McGhee says: If your home team is goin' bad or smethin' else has made you sad, or grouchy, ho, or bored, forget percentages a while and join me in a little smile about this guy, Russell Ford. Ya know the sour grape yarn of old? O' course ya'll's been told a million times or more. Well, Russell plays the role of grape since he jumped 'cross the Fed league tape an' made the Yankees sore.

In nineteen 'leven, twelve, thirteen, Russ shone out lonely an' serene, the Yankees' brightest star. The big right-handed spit ball gent was all the noise in Farrell's tent—outranked his mates by far. Last fall the Naps set out to buy this classy, record-breakin' guy; asked Farrell what he'd take. He asked 10,000 beans an' then, to boot, a half a dozen men to make an even shake.

That stormy winter rolled around. — In Spring our Mister Ford was found on Buffalo's Fed league team. Then Farrell sang "good riddin's" bunk, said Ford's right arm was so much junk, said Russ had lost his steam. "We would-a sold him off last year, but Somers said five bones was dear," we hear Frank Farrell tell. But Fed league fans are strong for Russ an' he don't mind poor Frankie's fuss—he's goin' party well.

The Turkish Government has not yet replied to the Greek note, demanding a cessation of the persecution of Greeks in Turkey and reparation for injury caused them and their interests. It is expected that Turkey will ignore the demand or refuse to comply with it. The tension between the two countries is high. According to general feeling expressed in Athens war with Turkey is inevitable. It is not considered likely that the failure of the States to permit the sale of battleships to foreign nations would have any influence on the situation.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
Waving his hand toward the American flag, President Wilson told a great crowd to celebrate the flag day. This banner for the future was meant to stand for the just use of undisputed national power. I sometimes wonder why men take this flag and flaunt it, said the President. If I am respected, I do not have to demand respect. If I am feared, I do not have to ask for fear. If my power is known, I do not have to proclaim it. I do not understand temper, neither does this nation understand the temper of men who use this flag boastfully. This flag for the future is meant to stand for the just use of undisputed national power. No nation is ever going to doubt our power to assert its rights, and we should lay it to heart that no nation shall ever henceforth doubt our purpose, to put it to the highest use, to which a great emblem of justice and Government can be put. It is henceforth meant to stand for self-possession of the right of one nation to serve the other nations of the world, an emblem that will not condescend to be used for purposes of aggression and self-aggrandisement, that is too great to be debased, its right to be honored by all nations of the world and feared by none who do righteousness.

The St. John's Rifle Club.

The St. John's Rifle Club will hold their annual meeting on Wednesday, the 17th inst., at the Club House on the range, at 2.30 p.m. After the meeting there will be a handicap shoot at 200, 500 and 600 yards. Last season the club more than upheld the reputation of the members for good shooting, by defeating crack teams from H. M. Ships Cornwall and Sirius. These matches proved most interesting and advantageous. This season a series of matches will probably be arranged with the Calypso Rifle Club, which has recently been formed. The Calypso Club has some excellent shots, amongst them being Mr. P. W. Norman, an exceptionally good marksman, who was formerly a member of the St. John's Rifle Club. A most interesting season is anticipated. In view of the cost of long range ammunition the club has under consideration the fitting up of a miniature range, for the benefit of many who may prefer it. This should appeal to members of the Boys' Brigades. Special prizes will probably be offered for miniature shooting.

Specialist Coming

Dr. John Dresser Adams, consulting orthopaedic surgeon, of Boston, Mass., is going to render special services at the Hospital at St. Anthony, for the month of July. The great advances made in the treatment of tuberculosis of the bones and his well-known skill for the treatment of crooked feet and joints gives the assurance that many who have been unable to get hospital help will be glad to know that almost every deformity which prevents walking and standing upright can now be treated, and they should get a chance to see a man of this wide reputation while he is in the country. A great many unnecessary deformities are seen on the streets. Dr. Adams expects to arrive at the Seamen's Institute in St. John's on July 2nd, and will be glad to see any cases while at the Institute before he sails for the north, if people would like to bring their children to him.

Presentation to Rev. J. W. Bartlett.

A social given by the George St. Epworth League last filled the young men's room to its utmost capacity. The excellent programme prepared was conducted by the President, Mr. W. Whiteaway. Solos were very pleasingly rendered by Misses G. Christen, A. White, M. Parsons, F. Whiteaway and Mrs. Cornick. Duets were given by Mrs. Cockerham and Mrs. Clairage, also Mrs. Mew and Clairage. Recitations were ably rendered by Misses S. Pike and Fynn. Readings were given by Misses C. Parsons and S. Batten, after which the most important event of the evening took place, which testified to the high esteem in which the Pastor and his wife are held by the League. Mr. S. J. Tucker read the address and made the presentation which was an excellent panoramic view of the city recently taken, and in a few well chosen remarks referred to the noble work engaged in by the Pastor and his wife and their readiness at all times to assist the League and assured them of the expressions of continued success and prosperity. Mr. Bartlett who was entirely taken by surprise, could not find words whereby to express his thanks to the League for their remembrance and references to himself and wife and in his usual commanding style gave the League encouragement in their work and thanked them for their hearty co-operation with him which greatly helped him in his work among the young people. After the presentation and reply the social committee got busy with their part of the programme: the young ladies of George Street again retained their distinction won at social gatherings which needless to say was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present.—Com.

A Genuine Reduction of from 10 to 25 p.c. in Men's and Boys' Readymades.

SALE TO CONTINUE UNTIL JULY 1st.

Last week we opened a $5,000 shipment of Men's and Boys' high grade clothing. This shipment should have arrived over one month ago, and is therefore too late for our regular trade.

With a view of turning this into cash, we offer a Cash Discount of Ten per cent. on all regular lines of Men's and Boys' Readymades.

We also offer Twenty-five per cent. on special clearing lines of Bexhill and other styles suitable for small boys.

We have a large selection of Youths' Rugby, well tailored, neat patterns, and we specially invite the young lads to see these fashionable lines before buying ordinary slop readymades, mere "hand me downs."

In addition to the Thousands of Boys' and Youths' suits subject to the 10 per cent. discount we have over One Hundred Men's Suits, specially made by our Tailors during the slack season. These are cut in the latest American styles. They range in price from $16.00 to $20.00, less 10 per cent.

Terms: Cash. No approval.

Mail order cash patrons will get the discount as if they were at our counters. Please give the boy's age, and state if he is above or below the average in size.

SAFETY FIRST
Grips like the sole of an athlete's shoe

The cross bars on a football player's shoes give him a firm footing—he is able to run, jump, make sharp, quick turns with more assurance and safety.

The specially toughened Safety Bars on Goodrich Tires cut through the film and obtain a firm grip on the road surface—thus preventing the skid from starting.

And there's another reason why you should equip with Goodrich Safety Treads—the extra thickness at the point of contact insures extra wear.
