Champions Lost the Second Game of Series With Baltimore in a Fine Contest.

Writhe of the Baltimore team was invincible in yesterday's contest, and the champions were forced to accept a defeat, and that a whitewash, to the tune of 4 to 0. Mills pitched an excellent game. The night for first place is becoming decidedly interesting, and Manager Stalling has given a shock yesterday, when Rochester...

Baltimore 4, Toronto 0. Toronto batsmen were unable to solve in the least Mills' delivery at the Diamond Park and St. Lawrence. The result of the deceptive curves delivered with a scintillating frequency, the Orioles shut out the champions by a score of 4 to 0. The Toronto batsmen could do absolutely nothing with his chosen ones, the best they could do being to register to their credit a solitary hit. Mills was on the rubber for the first three innings, and he pitched but was not backed up by any rocky hits. Two three batters were responsible for Baltimore runs and in each case the batsmen were unable to get off a single one that cut the plate.

Baltimore scored the first runs of the game in the second inning. After Miller made a fast play of Jones' infield grounder, Mills allowed McAleese to walk, and then a double by Miller, and a single by McAleese, which landed to good effect on closer ones that cut the plate.

SHAMROCK AND RELIANCE TO ENGAGE IN THE THIRD MARINE BATTLE FOR AMERICA'S CUP

New York, Aug. 26.—Tomorrow the big yachts Shamrock III and Reliance, challenger and defender, respectively, of the America Cup, will engage in the great marine battle in the third race.

The course will be to windward or leeward and return, 30 nautical miles, with a time limit of 5 1/2 hours. The past performance of the two boats warrant the prediction that to-morrow's race will be exciting and none the less interesting. While the Shamrock III did not win the second race, over the triangular course, but missed the British boats of luck which made her probable defeat into a victory, still, the ship is not the cup and the gaff. The gallant struggle of the Shamrock III, under the command of a great sailor, against the British challenger, is a story of the sea. Considering the magnificent exhibition she had yesterday, it is not surprising that she should have been chosen to defend the cup against the new challenger, the Reliance, which is a new and improved version of the Shamrock III. FOOTRACING FAKIRS REAP RICH HARVEST

Spurred On Race on the Square Under a Threat of Sudden Death.

Kansas City, Aug. 26.—I have just returned from "Bob City," said the Old Sport recently, "and the people down there are still talking about the Wright gang of footracing fakirs. I was told that in less than a year's time the gang cleaned up over $300,000 on fixed races. That appears to be a large sum in that part of Missouri, but from my point of view it is a small amount—too small, in fact, to brag about.

Twenty years ago the Pacific States and Territories were golden fields for the footrace men. Both a few of the races were on the square, but every one was a bank deposit for the men who promoted them.

At that time Harry Bethune was the acknowledged champion of the country. He could sprint 100 yards in less than ten seconds at any time, in condition or out three times as much as Gibbons and Ryan, other fast cinder path men, were also much in the public eye.

Harry Downey of Tombstone was another fast 'un.

Then there was Pete Musgrove, a Carson City bartender, who was the champion of the sagebrush country for several years.

I never could get the proper edge on Bethune. He was talked for never displayed any signs of it in public. He traveled from the British Columbia line to the Mexican border for several years. His winnings amounted to more than $500,000. His backers probably made three times as much as Gibbons and Ryan were also ready money makers, but like Bethune, they were fast spenders.

When I last heard of the bunch I was on their uppers and doing the Michigan act.

Spent term prevalent.

It was in Tombstone, Ariz., that I first saw Gibbons and Ryan race," continued the Old Sport. "Gibbons looked like a young colt, fresh from college, and Ryan would have passed for a divinity student anywhere. Money was plentiful in the great chert camp in those days, and the sport germ was in everybody's blood.

Two weeks after Ryan appeared in Tombstone, Gibbons arrived in Tucson, only to make distant. He talked foot race from the start. The two daily newspapers took him up and made sarcastic remarks about his lack of lack of racing talent. Then Ryan disclosed his identity to several of the best far dealers of the camp. He was "Virgil Earp, then the marshal of the camp, Morgan Earp, Wyatt Earp, Doc Holliday, Leslie Blackburn, all noted gun and card men, were admitted into the Ryan syndicate. A formal challenge was sent to Gibbons, who had organized a syndicate of Tucson sports, among them Jake Levy, Roy Chisholm, Harry Duking and Dan Tuttle. After a party it was decided to run the race in Tombstone on the 26th.

The distance was fixed at 100 yards, and it was agreed to transform Third-street, from Allen to Fremont, into a cinder path. On the 26th the runners arrived in Tombstone three days before the race. The runners were formally introduced. He talked as if they had never met before.

"The men kept on training and both appeared to be in the pink of condition. The Tucson sports played their role on Gibbons, and the Tombstone sports were already planning how they would spend their winnings. Ryan, the proprietor of the Oriental Saloon, was the stakeholder. His big safe was filled with the money the sports had won. No one in the town suspected that Gibbons and Ryan were in collusion.

The rival syndicates were composed of honest men, although gamblers by profession. The night before the time set for the race a sport from El Paso reached the camp. He had heard of the proposed race, and had gone to Tombstone to play his money.

"The remark caused comment and an explanation was demanded. I lost $10,000 on a foot race three months ago," he said, "and I didn't get a square deal. Then he described the other syndicate. His description fitted Gibbons to a T.

"Late in the afternoon a conference of sports was held in the faro room of the Campbell & Hest's Saloon, opposite the syndicates and the El Paso sport were present.

"It was first decided that the race should be run as scheduled. The foot race was to be permitted to remain in ignorance of the presence of the man from El Paso. It was also decided that all bets should stand just as they lay, and that the best man should win in the race.

"At the appointed hour the next morning Gibbons and Ryan, attired in racing harness, appeared at the head of the course. The conditions of the race were read to them. Then they were told to go to the scratch.

"When I first saw you're off," said the master of ceremonies. "Then, raising his voice, the master of ceremonies said, 'Boys, get ready.' Two dozen men lifted their revolvers in their belts. 'Take your places,' was the next command.

"Two men of determined looking men motioned down the cinder path and took positions about 20 feet apart. The master of ceremonies took a tone that carried conviction with it.

"Clear instructions.

"We don't know whether you fellows are crooks or not, but you're in the care. You fellows have got to make good. If either of you takes or throws the dash for the tape the most exciting race I ever saw. The gun men forgot to keep their eyes on the race, and they yelled like crazy Indians.

"The spectators, several thousand in number, threw their hats in the air and danced about like kids in the street. Well, Ryan won by a hair's breadth. Gibbons looked like a man when he reached his training quarters. He ran to win, and when he reached a hall of bullets he was in his direction. He was afraid to turn his head after Ryan had cut the tape.

"Ryan also showed signs of the terrible strain he had been subjected to. 'Gib,' he said, 'we quit this camp today.' 'Gib' was willing, and they left the camp in a hurry.

"That night 'open house' was kept at the Grand Casino Theatre, but 'Gib' and Ryan were not among the guests. "It was an attempt made to fix the Old Sport was asked. "We never heard a word that would lead even a Sheriff Holmes to conclude that a fraud had been planned."

PUBLIC AMUSEMENTS.

HERE FOR TWO DAYS.

The Coldstream Band Cannot Remain Longer.

For a variety of reasons the Coldstream Band will be unable to make a longer stay in Toronto than Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 1 and 2, as there seems to be some misunderstanding on this point. It is well for all who desire to hear them to know that they will open their Canadian tour in Toronto at Massey Hall on Monday afternoon, Sept. 7, and they will also play at Massey Hall on Monday evening, and on Tuesday evening, Sept. 8. Their appearance at the exhibition will be on the morning and afternoon of Tuesday, and they then visit the other cities of Canada in order to avoid the crowds which are sure to take place later on the manager of Massey Hall has arranged to open the plan to-morrow morning at 9 a.m. and the citizens of Toronto are unable to secure seats with a certain degree of comfort before the exhibition through comes to town. The sale will take place in the lobby at the main ticket office of the hall, and the front doors will open at 7, in the event of rain, so that those in waiting may have shelter.

The organization and production is said to be the largest and most elaborate the country has ever seen, headed by the greatest minstrel artist in the world, Levi Dockstader, the poet, humorist and monologist of the stage, whom his manager, Jas. H. Decker, has surrounded by a host of comedians, singers, dancers and musicians of wide repute. The scenic environment is from the brush of Louis Young, who has in this instance outdone himself as the first part of the "The Fables" is worthy of being ranked with the work of only first-class artists, and its reproduction on a smaller scale would be a prize winner at any exhibition.

"Carle's 'Banana Girl' Burlesques, embracing all that is new in burlesque and vaudeville, will be the attraction at the Star Theatre next week, commencing Monday, August 31. Eight splendid vaudeville comedians are given in the new laugh-eliciting burlesque, 'Cohenstein and the Fables' will be the curtain raiser, and will be full of bright, catchy musical numbers, to be followed by Kelly and Davis, Irish fun dispenser, Herz, singer, change artists; Rosalie, singing soprano; Reynolds and Gull, German comedians; Deanda and Ewey, club experts; three American stars, novel musical act; the La Valks, in their astounding aerial act; the breakaway ladders; terminating with the uproariously funny burlesque 'King for a Day.'

THE EMPEROR OF JAPAN BUYS THE GERHARD HEINTZMAN PIANO

FOR THE USE OF THE ROYAL FAMILY.

Mr. Gerhard Heintzman has the pleasure to publish the following official letter, advising the purchase by the Emperor of Japan, of his piano, sent by the Canadian Government to the 5th National Exhibition of Japan at Osaka.

This Gerhard Heintzman Piano was the Canadian representative of our highest achievement in the manufacture of pianofortes from a mechanical, musical and art standpoint, so that its purchase for the Royal Palace, though no surprise to those who are familiar with the pre-eminence of this piano, is yet an honor that Mr. Gerhard Heintzman appreciates on personal and patriotic grounds.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND COMMERCE. Office of the Imperial Commissioner for the Fifth National Industrial Exhibition. OSAKA, JAPAN, July 24, 1903.

Yours very truly, H. OSA, Chief Commissioner Act'g. Fifth National Exhibition.

GERHARD HEINTZMAN, Esq., Sherbourne St., Toronto, Canada.

Dear Sir:—The piano you sent out here has turned out well as regards its tone and finish, while its tone and general finish has attracted a lot of attention.

I have had several chances to sell it, but held off for some time; but now have to sell it to the Department of the Imperial Household for use in the Imperial Palace at Tokio.

I will return to Canada at the end of the month, when proceeds of the sale of the piano will be handed to you.

W. A. BURNS (Commissioner).

Some beautiful fac-similes of this piano are now on sale at the city warehouses—188 Yonge street—and others will be on display at the coming Dominion Exhibition. An early inspection and selection are advised.

Don't wait till the rush is on. You will find it more agreeable to select now, to say nothing of the advantage of an early choice.

Politics in Nova Scotia.

Chief Justice Macdonald Will Retire From the Supreme Court.

Montreal, Aug. 26.—(Special.)—A special from Halifax says: Some months ago I told in this correspondence of the intended retirement from the Supreme Court bench of Nova Scotia of Chief Justice Macdonald. The news has come back again, and it is now confirmed.

It is possible that Dr. Russell will succeed Chief Justice Macdonald, and the Mayor Black of Windsor will take up the Liberal banner in Halifax.

A year ago it was thought that Hon. J. W. Longley had an eye on the bench. Now, however, it is thought that Longley still lie along political lines, and that in the near future he may be called upon to assume the responsibilities of the leadership of his party in provincial affairs.

It would not surprise anyone if Nova Scotia should elect a Conservative government. It would not surprise anyone if Nova Scotia should elect a Conservative government.

Weakness in New Campaign.

Venice, Aug. 22.—Venice continued to be deeply interested in the question of the rebuilding of the famous Campanile of St. Mark and the repairs to the Palace of the Doges, the dilapidations of which were drawn attention to by the collapse of the campanile.

The repairs to the palace are being carried on unintermittently. The famous painting by Palma the younger, with the portrait of his wife, in blue, seated in heaven, below her purgatory and hell and above her purgatory, was successfully taken down from the wall of the 'Sala dello Scrittino' (voting hall). The wall, which was concealed by the canvas, requiring immediate rebuilding.

To-day under the direction of the painter, Sig. Zennaro, will commence the delicate operation of bringing down from the eastern wall of the Great Council Hall the enormous and celebrated painting 'Paradise' by Jacopo Tintoretto, with its extraordinary multitude of admirable heads and figures. Ruskin considered this painting 'the most precious thing Venice possessed.'

It will be entirely covered with gauze, and it is said that all the required precautions have been adopted to take it down safely. The entire wall which it covers requires also immediate and radical repair.

The project of reconstructing the Campanile is a much more difficult matter than the sudden resignation of Sig. Beltrami, the architect, and his abrupt departure from Venice, after failing to receive the necessary sanction of the Imperial Household for use in the Imperial Palace at Tokio.

The question is now being debated whether the old stile shall not be deserted and the Campanile built on new foundations. The matter will probably be referred to a committee of five experts.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

By a Dumb Woman Walked into a room full of widowers everyone of them would marry her before she could get out.

A woman thinks she has been a widow long enough when it comes time for her to marry her second stock of mourning.

When a bank cashier tells a woman she hasn't a sufficient balance to pay a cheque she has issued she is sure he does it merely to be impertinent.

The man who knows enough to tell somebody near enough for her to have to buy her second stock of mourning.

When a man knows enough for her to have to buy her second stock of mourning.

When a man knows enough for her to have to buy her second stock of mourning.

When a man knows enough for her to have to buy her second stock of mourning.

The Kind of Courting That Does Not Count

The man who is perfectly honest in his intentions is desirable as a friend—if his intentions are neither disagreeable nor pernicious. The man who is honest in his intentions does not let his words reveal them in words, but he has the sterling quality of not mistaking in order to lead you into plans of his own. He gives you a broad privilege of deducing his attitude from his conduct, and if you are not clever enough to do so no fault can be ascribed to him.

A man cannot go against all precedent and all natural acceptance of what is right and still be honest in his intentions. No justification lies in a course of conduct which is intentional with his intentions, no matter how wide a margin there may be for differing judgments.

There's a man pays a girl 'particular attention for a year, taking her to theatres and spending two evenings a week' and she has been thinking of course to believe he is in love with her, especially when he 'kisses' her 'good night' and tells her 'how lonesome' he is. But she has no reason to feel 'puzzled' when he says that he is sorry that she is 'interested' in her 'very self.'

'Flora' has not been foolish in believing that a man who demonstrated affection to this extent has been more than 'interested' in her 'very self.'

But she has no reason to feel 'puzzled' when he says that he is sorry that she is 'interested' in her 'very self.'

Apparently the man is enormously selfish—and it is best for 'Flora' that she knows it. Her 'attentions' are not 'disinterested' but 'selfish'—and she is 'quite frank' in his conversation about the report so that she will not be 'misconstrued' by 'Flora.'

led"—she should generally and decidedly put an end to the man's exclusive attention—she should get into her prettiest clothes and merely stare forth, and with her buoyancy refute any suppositions that the man was just amusing himself and that she "is suffering a disappointment."

There was one Swift McNeill, M.P., in the reign of King George II. In fact, parliament was occupied, for the most part, by faddish members, who were content to sit and listen, more and vote, without finding fault with anything, "ragging" or subalterns' debts. The parliament of those days was intended to pass a few measures, and vote a few salaries; and not to wrangle over statements which had been published in the newspapers, of which there were but few. Much as has been talked, and written, against the state of our army, we would appear to have improved somewhat on the efforts of our forefathers. A young officer of the period of George II. was (according to records) absolutely discouraged from displaying undue zeal, or striving to fulfil the meaning of that blessed word "efficiency." He knew perfectly well that if he distinguished himself in action another officer who had taken no part therein was quite likely to be promoted over his head. In fact, "efficiency" was a sine qua non; the man who had influential friends, and, of course, plenty of cash, was sure to get on all right; and if he had a handsome wife or sister, so much the better for his advancement.

Such a state of degradation had the army sunk at about the time when Hogarth's "March to Finchley" was written, and his countrymen for tradesmen and others in difficulties to enlist in the Foot Guards. This was done to the collusion of the commanding officers, who, having "accounted" the pay of the tradesmen and others in difficulties, exempted them from all military duties; and their uniform protected them from arrest by the civil power. It is hair-raising to read the records, and as for publishing the Duke of Cumberland's general orders contain in three consecutive days sentences of eight hundred, five hundred and eight hundred lashes, served out for "theft," "mutinous expressions" and "insolent behavior." The punishment has on occasion witnessed the infliction of the regulation half-dozen during the "early sixties"; but what sort of castiron back must the "swaddler" of a century and a half ago have possessed?

Rashness of that sort is still popular in China, and only the other day a man named Shen Chien (which reads doggy) was sentenced to death by the order of the Emperor Dowager. The punishment lasted for two hours. But he was only a journalist, and wrote things, and objected to modern improvements. In the Duke of Cumberland's army there were other pretty little punishments, calculated to make the soldier more military service, such as "locking" and "high horse." In picketing the culprit's naked heel rested on a sharpened stake, driven into the ground, his right wrist and right leg being drawn up as high as they could be to a hook fixed in an adjoining post. This was done in a quarter of an hour or so; and he who had to ride the high horse he strode a sharp ridge formed with his arms tied behind him. Heavy weights were attached to both feet, and the man was then drawn up and down. This was the productive of the dearest results to the unfortunate victim; and the Duke of Cumberland's army there was grateful that he did not live "when George was King."

SIR MELVILLE PARKER ILL AT HIS COOKSVILLE HOME

Justice of the Peace for Over 40 Years, He Has Never Accepted a Fee. The illness of Sir Melville Parker, Bart., is causing his friends in Toronto much anxiety.

Sir Melville is the second son of the late Admiral Sir Henry Parker, and is the sixth baronet, the title having been created in 1707.

Speaking to The World last night, Nicholas Murphy, K.C., once an old friend of Sir Melville, noted the fact that Sir Melville, who over 40 years ago was appointed a justice of the peace, is one of the very few holders of such office who decline to accept fees or emolument for his services.

Sir Melville Parker is a staunch Conservative, and at the times he has been unable to see eye to eye with others in the party, yet his allegiance to its principles was never to be doubted, and he has several times strongly urged to accept the nomination for Federal honors.

Only 75 Police Patrol the City's Streets at One Time

Heads of Department Show Reason For Increase in Strength of Force.

The efficiency of the Toronto police force has been a subject of discussion among citizens. The partially successful break for liberty made by the three young burglars, Doyle, Quackenbush and Gallagher, is largely responsible for some very critical comment, while the escape of a man, taken in as a drunk, at No. 3 station, who, it is said, walked off while the station officer was engaged with another party, has also had something to do with the present strictures.

The questions are asked: "What is the reason that the episode in the jail grounds was allowed to happen? Who is responsible for the apparent carelessness in dealing with the prisoners, and what steps are being taken to prevent a recurrence of desperate men breaking for liberty?"

Concerning all of which, the World has received from authoritative sources some interesting information respecting the workings of the Police Department and the conditions under which the force are working. It is surprising, nevertheless true, that Toronto, proportionate to population, has a smaller force than probably any other city in America, certain conditions also governing comparisons. This applies both to the detective and to the uniformed police.

While there is no desire on the part of the police officials to complain in any way about the strength of the force, yet the Police Commissioners have had it pointed out to them that, to properly police the city, an increase in the numerical strength of the force is necessary. To-day the full strength of the force is about 300. This includes men of all ranks and grades. Five years ago, when the population of the city was many thousands less, and the area much smaller, 270 members of the force were maintained by the city. Of the 300 men, the number available to patrol the streets is 230. The others are needed for duty at the different stations, for the patrol, ambulance and operating services, and for plain clothes and detective work.

75 Men Patrol the City. There are three shifts of eight hours each for the street duty men, which means that, if equally divided, there are more than 75 men in actual care of the citizens' persons and property at one time, during the day or night. There must also be taken into consideration the patrol men, who are off duty three months, and during the summer months, from the first of April to September and the police who are on vacation.

More Detectives Needed. Inspector Stark, when sought on information regarding the smallness of the detective force, told the World that Toronto had fewer detectives than any other city of its size.

In Detroit thirty detectives are on the staff; in Buffalo there are also thirty detectives employed, while in Toronto there are but twelve all told. This number is inadequate to properly perform the work in a city of this size.

Toronto is a point where many of the most notorious criminals, and the moving population, in the summer, especially, is surprisingly large. It is here that the hard-working staff in Canada, and for that matter in most cities in the United States, the number of detectives at present is inadequate. An addition of four would be a decided advantage.

An increase to the headquarters staff is almost imperative. The chief of police, in Buffalo, where the population is 325,000, there are 600 police on the force.

Under the circumstances the comparative immunity from serious crime Toronto enjoys reflects the greatest credit upon the authorities. But eternal vigilance is the price of safety, and the recommendations of the chief of the department should not long be overlooked.

tion. Is it a wonder that, with but 75 patrolmen on duty, there is a time when a policeman, in certain parts of the city, cannot be met at every corner? It means that in some streets, 250 miles of streets and 84 miles of lanes, and watching over 17 square miles of property encircled by the city limits.

Then, while the population of the city numerically is about 225,000, during the summer months, the population increases, and when other big sporting or social events are on, during the time of the Exhibition, the population is still further increased. In other words, there are thousands of people in Toronto who constitute a drifting population, the "birds of a feather" who come to the city for the visitors come many who are undesirable, and must be watched for.

Street Patrols Never Walk. Then there is the island, the waterfront, the different parks, and the numerous open-air public functions requiring police protection. It means, therefore, the difficulty of properly policing the city is also greatly increased by the fact that every spring thousands of people migrate to the cooler sections of the city in the East End, leaving vacant houses to watch and create a new colony, over which no extra protection is required. Then it is that the police have to be most vigilant to protect property in the vacant houses in the central part of the city. As a result of the limited number of men, it is impossible to afford all protection.

Chief Grassett Says. Chief Grassett, who has just returned from his holidays, was spoken to concerning the matter. He said: "While I believe the present force is efficient, I must confess that an addition of fifty constables would aid materially in the proper protection of citizens and their property. Of late years the city is rapidly spreading, and fifty men divided among the seven precincts could be used to great advantage."

Speaking of the recent escape of the chief remarked that since his return to the city he had not had time to thoroughly investigate the matter, but something would likely be done to preclude the possibility of prisoners in the future escaping in this manner.

Of the recent capture of Quackenbush and his pals at the house on Sherbourne-street he said: "Forrest's capture of these men showed him to be possessed of great bravery as well as sagacity and shrewdness."

Advertisement for Save Weak Men. I have discovered the marvelous secret of Perpetual Life and vigor in man. I have been given to bring to the faded, weary, worn-out brother the knowledge of this precious boon, and to the uttermost ends of the earth I send my message of love and peace, and hope and help. I believe my secret will give you what I need them not. My work has just begun and I am saving men.

Advertisement for Save Weak Men. No Man is Lost—There is a Sure Cure for Every Weak Man.—Dr. Ferris. The secret of this mighty healing power, this vital life spark, this marvelous tonic fluid is known to me alone. It is mine to give to whom I will and my works go before me. Doubt not, I can cure you. Believe me, I do give to every weak man free this precious boon and it restores him instantly to the strength and vigor of his youth. With this marvelous, mysterious compound, and to every man who has only after a lifetime of sorrow, and through all the realms of science, and the archives of the past, I will give you every weak man to have for his own the glorious manly power, the manly vigor and the long life of the patriarchs of Bible times. With this mysterious compound, no weak man will ever again be troubled with impotence, or loss of vitality, or nervousness, or spermatorrhea, or varicocele, or prostritis, or defective power, or lack of vital energy.

Advertisement for Save Weak Men. Send me no money. It is my duty, guided by an Unseen Hand. It is my mission on earth—my life work—to lift up the fallen, heal the weak and cure the afflicted, and to every man who has lost his vital power or finds it waning, I send my message of love and peace and health. I can save him and I will save him and restore him to many years of happiness and the imperious vitality and vigorous manhood of perfect health and youth. Remember, matters not how old you are; it matters not how long you have suffered, or when you lost it. It matters not what disease or suffers you. This is no ordinary drug or stimulating method of treatment, but it is the vital spark of life itself, and it matters not how long you have suffered, and doctors have failed. I have repeatedly and instantly renewed the youth of old men. My secret compound has cured the aged, and often instilled into aged men new vitality, health and strength. For worn-out men I have oft knitted, in an instant, and restored the sparkling vitality of youth. My private address is Dr. Sargant, Ferris, 163 Strawn Building, Cleveland, Ohio, and I urge every weak man to come to me for I will give him undying strength, the supreme joy and happiness of perfect manliness. My wonderful discovery has startled the world by its miraculous effects. I seek not fame nor glory. It suffices me if I may be the humble instrument of Nature's greatest power in bringing all men into the enjoyment of their own manliness and I do it free. In the time allotted to me here on earth I shall do all that in my power lies to give my fellow-men the benefit of this great secret and my reward shall be in the knowledge that I have done unto others as I would that others should do unto me.

Advertisement for Save Weak Men. DR. GOLDBERG. The possessor of 14 diplomas and certificates, who wants no money that he does not earn. My method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He will send you a small book, which will cure you, promote trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poisons, byzantine conditions of the prostate, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but also restores the complete system, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, etc. The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. He would seem, therefore, that it is to his best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially, and let him cure you before he sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him, Dr. S. Goldberg, 205 Woodland Avenue, Room 8, Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent to you.
