Germans In Violent Attacks on Allies Repulsed Each Time

Heavy Fighting All Day Yesterday, Says Paris Report—Six Times Enemy Tried to Pierce the Line—Great Turning Movement Near the Channel

Paris, Oct. 21.—The French official communication given out this afternoon says that the enemy's attacks on Neuport, Dixmude and Labasse yesterday, all were repulsed by the allies.

The text of the communication follows:—"During the day of yesterday the attacks of the enemy were particularly violent at Neuport, Dixmude and Labasse. They all were repulsed by the allied armies with great energy. At all other points the situation is without any notable change.

ALLIES SUCCES ON CHANNEL COAST

London, Oct. 21.—A comparison of the official reports from Paris and Brussels leads to the conclusion that all along the western battle front in Belgium the Germans have resumed the offensive, but with their supreme efforts directed against the allies' left.

The news supplementing these official communications, however, indicates that on the left, at least, the allies are not acting merely on the defensive. The great turning movement is undoubtedly developing through the corner of Belgium bound by France and the sea, but the purpose remains in a haze, as to whether the turning movement is one of the allies to get around the German right flank, or a German operation to envelope the allies' left.

The impression grows that the Germans are determined to add Dunkirk to the line of seaports now held along the Belgian coast, and the allies are making desperate efforts to hurl back the invaders. Late reports through Dutch sources, declare that the Germans have been repulsed six miles from Ostend, and that guns are now heard near that city. Other late reports, which lack confirmation, state that the Germans have abandoned Bruges.

If these reports are true, it would indicate that the allies are meeting with some success in their efforts to recapture the sea coast.

GERMAN PLANS UPSET

London, Oct. 21.—The correspondent of the Times in Northern France, in showing how the German plans have been deranged by the strong pressure of the allies on the left, says:

"The occupation of Ostend had little strategic advantage. Dunkirk is strongly fortified and an attempt to move on it would be dangerous to the Germans while Calais is well able to look after itself. The fighting line daily has undergone variations which were totally unexpected.

"The Teutonic attention for the occupation of the open towns belonging to the enemy has led them into greater difficulties than the temporary advantages in the matter of food and lodging afforded them. It is only fair to say, however, that so far as I have been able to gather, the Germans behaved well in most of the places that they recently visited. Indeed in one case, a line imposed on the inhabitants was returned upon occasion as a token of the hospitality shown to the German troops."

EMPEROR WILLIAM IN BRUSSELS A FEW HOURS.

London, Oct. 20.—Emperor William, coming from Luxembourg, arrived in Brussels last Tuesday, had luncheon, remained a few hours, then dashed off to some other scene of military operations. He was accompanied by a large staff.

DUTCH DOWAGER QUEEN'S HALF-BROTHER KILLED.

Amsterdam, Oct. 20, via London, 7.40 p.m.—The Handelsblad has published a despatch which declares that Prince Waldemar Frederik Waldeck-Pyrmont, half-brother of Emma, Dowager Queen of the Netherlands, has been killed in the western theatre of the war while engaged in patrolling.

Germans Out of Upper Alsace

London, Oct. 21.—A Daily Chronicle despatch says: "An officer who has returned from the south says that the Germans have practically been cleared out of Upper Alsace. He says the population received the French troops with enthusiasm and that no anti-French feeling was found to exist."

Hostages in Ghent.

Amsterdam, via London, Oct. 21.—The Stills, Netherlands, correspondent of the Telegraph, says that Gen Jung has been appointed commander of the German garrison at Ghent, which numbers 4,000 men.

The soldiers are not quartered in private houses, but in public buildings. No alcohol is sold to the soldiers, who are under the strictest orders to prevent looting.

Ghent had to produce hostages, who, however, says the despatch, are permitted to go to their homes.

More Airships for Enemy. London, Oct. 21.—The Times' Copenhagen correspondent learns from German sources that airships are being constructed at Tondern, in Schleswig and at Rostock on the Warnow near the Baltic Sea, in Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

According to a Rotterdam despatch, three Zeppelin dirigible sheds are being erected at Brussels and four at Antwerp. If this is true, it may be the preliminary to the threatened raid on England.

BEATING RUSSIANS SAY THE AUSTRAINS

London, Oct. 21.—An official communication issued in Vienna on noon Tuesday, is given in a despatch from Amsterdam to Reuters. It says: "The battle in central Galicia has increased in force, especially north of the Etrivaz River, where our attacks are progressing. The attempts of the Russians to regain the Magara heights have been repulsed. In the course of this fighting many Russians were captured, including one Russian general. Several machine guns were also taken.

"The Austrians have occupied Strij, forty-two miles southwest of Lemberg, Koersmool, and Serth after strong Russian resistance."

TRAMPLED ON BRITISH FLAG

Germans' Action In Sinking The Steamer Glittera

SEIZED BY SUBMARINE

Captain and Crew Given Ten Minutes to Get Into Boats and Steamer Then Was Sent to Bottom

London, Oct. 21.—Captain Johnson and sixteen men of the British steamer Glittera, which was sunk by a German submarine, have arrived in Stavanger, Norway, according to a Reuter despatch.

"The Glittera left Grangemouth, Scotland, on Sunday at noon, with coal and coke for Stavanger. At half past twelve o'clock on Tuesday afternoon the German submarine N-17 popped out of the water to the starboard and stopped us. The place was about nine miles southwest of Skudenes. No other craft was in sight.

"The submarine sent a boat aboard with five men. With revolvers in hand, they ordered the English flag taken down, threatening to shoot me if I did not obey. Furthermore they notified me to take the ship's papers back when the life boats had taken off the crew.

"The German officer took out of my hands, and trampled it under foot. I was forced to take the ship's papers back when I attempted to take them off, and some of the crew was allowed to take any of his belongings.

"The crew went in two lifeboats, which the submarine quickly lowered 600 yards from the Glittera. Three Germans remained aboard for a few minutes searching the ship thoroughly and rapidly taking the torpedoes out of the bottom valves, because the rear of the ship began to sink. Then in a short time the Glittera disappeared quietly beneath the waves.

"We in the lifeboats were ordered to row to the shore. When we reached Norwegian sea territory, we met a Norwegian torpedo boat which was ordered to pilot boat which towed us until a Norwegian tugboat took us aboard. We were landed at Skudenes. The Glittera was not insured."

CAPTURE OF MANY GUNS BY RUSSIANS

Large Number of Prisoners Also, Including a German Prince

London, Oct. 21.—The Petrograd correspondent of the Times sends the following report:

"Private reports here state that the Russians have captured some heavy artillery near Lysek, East Prussia, and also on the night of October 16, in the regions of Warsaw, they took fifty guns and two regimental colors, besides a large number of prisoners, including a German prince whose identity has not yet been established.

"Letters and telegrams published in the newspapers prove that the inhabitants of Warsaw, who have been anxious since Sunday and Monday of last week when the fighting was very near to the city, are now at ease.

"It was rumored at one time that the exigencies of strategy required the sacrifice of the city, and the valves were held retired east of the Vistula river. There was an overwhelming feeling of relief when the city was realized that these rumors were false."

FOR DEVELOPMENT AT EAST ST. JOHN

A. H. Likely to Confer With Commissioners This Afternoon

With unusual forethought on the part of a subdivision promoter, Arthur H. Likely is looking forward to the time when all the East St. John and Little River district will be included within the city limits, and is asking for the co-operation of the city in preparing his plans for the development of his large real estate holdings in that suburb. Mr. Likely is one of the largest single property owners on the eastern side of Courtenay bay, and when the district is built up his lands will form an important part of the new city, which is expected to arise there.

In order that work of development carried on now shall not conflict with scientific town planning, operations later on, Mr. Likely is seeking to have the plans arranged on a permanent basis before the work is commenced. With this in view he has asked for a conference with the city commissioners, and he will meet them this afternoon in city hall to discuss the matter.

ELOPE FOR SECOND TIME

Moncton, N. B., Oct. 21.—For the second time within a year Henri LeBlanc, of St. John, has eloped with his sister-in-law, leaving behind him his wife and family of six children. Some months ago LeBlanc and the woman were married in Oldtown, Maine, but were brought back to Moncton, where he was sentenced to six months. The judge suspended sentence on condition that he support his family.

Recently the woman returned to Moncton from P. E. Island and a few days ago she left again in what direction is not known.

NEGRO MAID SAYS THAT MRS. GARMAN ADMITTED KILLING "THAT WOMAN"

Sensation Sprung in Testimony of Star Witness in Murder Trial

Mincola, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Celia Coleman, negro maid in the Carman home, and star witness for the state, testified today at the trial of Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman, accused of the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, that Mrs. Carman had appeared to her, revolver in hand, a moment after Mrs. Bailey had been shot, and that Mrs. Carman had said: "I shot her." Celia thought Mrs. Carman referred to her husband, Doctor Carman, who was in the room.

"The next morning about daylight, Mrs. Carman came to my room," Celia continued. "She said 'Oh Celia, what did I kill that woman for? I hope God will forgive me. You stick to me and if anything happens to you I'll take care of your little boy.'"

Mincola, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Unless she is overruled by her counsel, Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman, on trial for the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, will take the witness stand in her own defence. The state case will probably be completed today.

Mrs. Carman said to her lawyer, "I insist," she said, "that I give me the opportunity to tell the people of this country that I am not the sort of woman who would kill anybody."

BY TOMORROW WILL HAVE SEEN CENTURY OF LIFE

Mrs. Annie T. McDougall of Charlotte Street 100 Years Old

WAS BORN IN WICKHAM

Recalls Interestingly Old Days in St. John—One of Her Children Was Late Secretary of the Associated Charities

Touched but lightly by the hand of time, Mrs. Annie Taylor McDougall, of 208 Charlotte street, this morning told a Times reporter of her preparations for the reception of her first anniversary of her birth. Possessed of a remarkable memory and with a voice almost as strong as in her prime, this wonderful old lady recalls the days of her childhood in St. John, even when it was nothing more than a village of a few scattered houses.

Mrs. McDougall was born in Wickham, Queens county, on October 22, 1814, and was the eldest daughter of Thomas G. Cook, a prominent young business man of Watright, and founder of Frederickton, N. B., charged with the murder of William H. Crawford, another Watright business man on May 14, was opened yesterday and promises to be sensational.

It is expected to last until the middle of next week. The father and mother of the accused have arrived from Fredericton.

BERI-BERI BREAKS OUT IN NEWFOUNDLAND AND ALSO IN LABRADOR

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 21.—The feverish folk of Labrador, facing a hard winter as a result of the short catch of cod during the present season, will be aided by the Newfoundland government. Efforts also will be made to prevent a further spread of beri-beri, several cases of which have occurred along the coast.

It was announced today that during the remaining five or six weeks in which the cod fishery is open, the government mail boat would make two trips, one to the northern parts of Newfoundland as well as in Labrador. Dr. W. T. Grenfell, the Labrador medical missionary, writes that cases are becoming alarmingly frequent in that region. Dr. J. M. Little, in charge of the Grenfell hospital at St. Anthony, Nfld., attributes that situation largely to the fact that the fishermen in many cases eat little but white flour bread during the winter. Patients in an advanced stage of beri-beri, according to Dr. Little have been cured simply by providing them with a varied diet.

MAYOR HAS NAMES OF VOLUNTEERS FOR "OLD BOYS" BRIGADE

Mayor Frink's suggestion for the formation of an "Old Boys" brigade for home defence has met with a prompt and hearty response. Although he has not had time to prepare a service roll, or to make any other preparations, His Worship has received the names of quite a large number of men who are willing to do their share in this way. Many of those who are volunteering are former members of the city militia corps, who already are familiar with the rudiments of the drill and know how to handle a rifle. Although these men are over the age limit for active service, they still feel able to do good work as many of the younger men.

The intention of those who are offering to be in the present arrangements, but to take the responsibility for home defence off the shoulders of younger men who are fitted for active service at the front.

CHANCERY COURT

In the case of Orchard vs. Dykeman, continued before Chief Justice McLeod in the Chancery Division this morning, the defendant and Miss Nellie Daley were heard on his behalf, and G. R. Wetmore and Mrs. Dykeman were called in rebuttal. This concluded the evidence and argument will be heard this afternoon.

OFFICERS CHOSEN

The annual meeting of the junior branch of St. Monica's Society was held last evening in the A. O. H. rooms, Miss Katherine Cotter was re-elected president, Miss Gertrude Agut was elected secretary and Miss Geraldine Carleton, treasurer. Another meeting will be held when plans for the winter work will be discussed.

Germans Put To Flight, Say War Reporters

London Correspondents Agree on News of Reverse on Channel Coast

ENEMY'S UBILATION CANCELLED

In Anxiety Over Situation, a German General Ends His Life—Allies' Infantry Attack Follows Effective Work of Guns of British Warships

London, Oct. 21.—The correspondents of the London newspapers in the field have succeeded today in getting through some details of the fighting along the channel coast, in Belgium. Their reports agree that the Germans are met with a reverse and it is said the Germans are retreating.

The Belgian correspondent of the Telegraph reports that British warships bombarded villages which the Germans occupied and also the country south of these places. Then the order was given for the infantry to advance," he says, "and the rattle of machine guns supplemented the noise of the naval guns. The Germans were caught between two fires, and their line began to waver, and slowly gave way before the pressure of the infantry.

"The strength of the attack was then increased and soon the whole German line resting on the coast, was in full retreat."

In a despatch from Flushing, sent at one o'clock, the correspondent of the Daily Mail declares that the Germans appear to have been driven back in an engagement, at Middle Kerke, six miles southwest of Ostend. He says that cannon has been placed near Ostend and adds that most of the German wounded had been removed from Bruges.

The Daily Mail's Rotterdam correspondent under date of Tuesday night, says that according to a German message, a fierce battle is still raging between Furness and Dunkirk. He continues:

"On the march on Dunkirk the Germans met a large and unexpected body of troops, which attacked them horse, foot and artillery, while the British warships co-operated with the land forces. The Germans are reported as falling back in confusion on Ostend, and troops from all over the west of Belgium have been hurried to Neuport.

The Germans have received the greatest surprise of the war. A despatch from Ghent says that the result of this fighting has caused anxiety among the German officers, one of whom, a German general, committed suicide. Festivities announced to celebrate German successes were suddenly cancelled yesterday.

CAPTAIN ALBERT ERB OF ST. JOHN IS DEAD

Prominent Mariner Passes Away at His Home in Mobile

Word received in a wire from Mobile, Florida, by Harry Olmstead, of Victoria street, brought news yesterday which will cause regret among many friends in St. John and throughout New Brunswick for it told of the death of Captain Albert Erb, formerly of this city. He passed away on Sunday at his home in Mobile but the telegram did not give particulars of the death. His mother, wife of Captain George Erb, of Victoria street left for Mobile on Saturday, and it is expected to be some time before she will be able to return to St. John.

He was about 45 years of age, and had a creditable record in shipping circles. When but a youth he took up a life at sea, and soon rose to the master's post. He had command of several large vessels sailing from St. John. Among these were the schooner Mary George and Abbie Keast, and the barkentine Hancock. For some years he had been in the south, and had made his home in Mobile, where he owned two large sailing ships, one of which a four masted schooner, the Goldfield, he commanded at the time of his death. He had also sailed as master of the schooner Maude B. Kram for many years.

His wife, who was formerly Miss Blanche Olmstead, of Jemasag, N. B., survives with three children, also his parents, Captain and Mrs. George Erb of North End, and one brother, Rev. Frank Erb, of Portland, Me. He was a member of the I. O. O. F. and was well known about St. John, and the sympathy of many friends here will go out to his bereaved family in their hour of sadness.

A REVOLUTION IN PORTUGAL HAS FAILED

Lisbon, Portugal, Oct. 21.—A revolutionary outbreak in the cities of Braganza and Mafra, under the leadership of Adriano Beça, a former colonel, has been promptly put down, according to official announcement today. Beça has been arrested, and a band of the revolutionaries are being pursued by troops. Beyond the cutting of telegraph wires and the stopping of trains, nothing seems to have been accomplished.

THE WAR NEWS

Fuller particulars of the repulse of the German near Nieuport, west of Ostend, in Belgium, in their attempt to sweep down on Dunkirk and on to Calais and Boulogne, shows that they were given near Nieuport one of the great surprises of the war. Not only was that portion of their troops near the coast line exposed to a heavy shell fire from British warships, but a very strong force of infantry supported by cavalry and artillery advanced against them, evidently the Belgian army, and they were compelled to retreat toward Ostend.

their prayers in the Polish language. Even Russia, which has persecuted the Poles for generations, has never dealt so harshly with them as Prussia has done, and one of the wrongs to be righted at the close of this war is that which has been done to the Polish people, Germany, moreover, will be stripped of her colonial possessions, and their people, too, will enjoy more of liberty than they could ever hope to possess under German domination.

IT IS CANADA'S WAR.

Canada is not sending men to Europe merely "to help the Mother Country," although she would cheerfully perform that service. In this war the men who go to fight will fight for Canada. What would be the fate of Canada if Germany won in this great struggle? It would immediately be subjected to the Germanizing process, and we know from the history of Poland what that means. Canada would be a rich prize of war, infinitely richer than any other Germany could gain, so far as material considerations are concerned. Our soldiers, then, will not be fighting "for England," but for the people of the Mother Country and those of the over-sea Dominions. It is the consideration of national honor, for which Belgium fought and is fighting, although the price she pays for her fidelity to the people of the Mother Country and those of the over-sea Dominions. It is the consideration of national honor, for which Belgium fought and is fighting, although the price she pays for her fidelity to the people of the Mother Country and those of the over-sea Dominions.

Hon. Robert Rogers says he does not think the elections will take place in Canada before 1915.

Evidently the demonstrations sent to the government have borne fruit.

A Halifax report says that in the second contingent there will be a Nova Scotia regiment, and another regiment composed of men from New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Canadian troops on Salisbury Plain are to be reviewed by King George and Lord Kitchener.

THE NATIONALISTS WIN

The appointment of Hon. T. Chase (Cassidy) as a member of the Borden cabinet was not unexpected; but nobody anticipated the choice of Hon. Mr. Blondin as another member. During the election campaign of 1911, Mr. Blondin was one of the most anti-British of all the Nationalists, and one of the most determined opponents of either a Canadian navy or a contribution to the British navy. He is the man who told the French-Canadians at Ste. Eustache that it was necessary for their forefathers "to shoot holes in the British flag in order that we might breathe the air of freedom."

A STRIKING CONTRAST.

No more effective contrast between the spirit of Britain and that of Germany can be found than appears in the recent history of South Africa and Poland. The British conquered South Africa, and then gave the Boers self-government to an extent which really caused fear in the minds of some timid folk in England. The result of British generosity, however, is seen today, when South Africa is rallying to the support of Britain in the war against Germany, although for racial reasons the sympathy of the Boers would be stronger for Germany than for England.

Men's Solid Leather Working Boots

Thirty-six years spent in selling and handling Boots and Shoes surely gives us license to speak authoritatively on the question of leather and its products. We do not make shoes, but do have them made for us. We have a fair idea of the kind of shoe the working man needs, and we have them. Heels, insoles, counters and hidden parts all leather.

Mr. Workingman, when you need a pair of working shoes, come to our stores and see what we have to offer.

CANADA, SHOULD GERMAN WIN

(Montreal Star.)
A hundred thousand men is well below the proportion which our Canadian people should send to the front, measured by the sacrifices which the people of the United Kingdom are making. Yet Canada would indignantly repudiate the suggestion that she should liberally and knowingly do less than her full share toward the defence of the principles and liberties and institutions which she would be laid in the dust if Germany were to win this war.

Canada will be bankrupt if Germany wins. Canada will be in imminent peril of coming under Prussian dominion, as a result of war, if Germany wins. Canada will be the most tempting prize which the German Empire would offer to its German conqueror.

Canada is a land in the temperate zone, rich agriculturally and with limitless natural resources. It is precisely such a territory as the Germans could dearly love to get into their possession. They could send their surplus population here by the millions, and rest in our far provinces and on our road prairies a new Germany.

This would imply German rule at Ottawa—German dominion in our cities—German garrisons throughout our country—German officers swaggering about our streets—German insolence to our civilians, our women and even our children. We should have Zetern incidents by the score—Montreal would be one another Strasbourg.

And this is quite possible if Germany wins. Put Germany in command of all the resources of Europe—as she would be if she won this war—and the Monroe Doctrine could not protect us. The Monroe Doctrine would be powerless before a superior navy, and ten million soldiers marching on orders from Berlin.

We should think of these things when we are deciding how many men we ought to send to the front. There is no limit to the number of men of military age in this country—to what we ought to be ready to do to prevent a German victory.

Easy & Practical Home Dress Making Lessons

Prepared Especially for This Newspaper by Pictorial Review

FOR MERE MAN.

The men do not get much of a show in the column devoted to women's fashions, yet every home dressmaker will be pleased to have some reliable knowledge about the construction of a bathrobe. Bath towel cloth or flannel may be used for this model, a robe for a man of medium size requiring about 6 yards of 44-inch material.

All of the different parts of the pattern are cut from a fold of the goods. It is necessary to know, however, that if the robe is made of bordered material the pattern should be laid on the material with the edge of front and back; the sleeve (having small perforations) is laid along the bordered edge. There is no reason why the vester neophyte should hesitate to attempt making this model. First, pleats are formed front and back, creasing on lines of small perforations; bring folded edge in front of small "o" perforations and bring fold in back to center; attach to position. Turn hem in front at Serviceable and neat design for a man's bath robe. It may be developed to bath towel cloth or flannel and trimmed with the regulation cord.

Pictorial Review Pattern No. 4478. Sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50 inches chest measure. Price 15 cents.

Patterns published in this series may be obtained by sending price of pattern in cash or stamps to The Evening Times Pattern Department, 23 Canterbury street, St. John. As a rule it takes about one week to deliver the pattern to the buyer. These sending money must be careful to write the number of the pattern plainly (2) to write their name and post office address clearly, and (3) to enclose the price.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Here's Grandmother's Recipe To Darken and Beautify Faded Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggy, use an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Weyth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

Rev. G. A. Lawson submitted a report on temperance which was adopted.

Secretary Scammell, of the Canadian committee on the peace celebration, gave an address in explanation of the plans of celebration of 100 years of peace between English-speaking countries. He stated that it was proposed to hold peace services in all churches on Sunday, Feb. 14, of next year. It was also proposed among other things to have the schools of Canada exchange shields with the schools of the United States.

At this evening's session, the work of Canadian missions was discussed by Rev. I. W. Porter, of Nova Scotia and Rev. E. Hand home mission board; J. G. Poirais, of Grand Ligne missions, and Rev. A. S. Lewis, of western missions.

A resolution of thanks to the church and people of Fredericton was adopted. Reports of the officers and committees were read and adopted.

INDICTMENT BY BELGIAN MOTHER

Open Letter to the German Emperor—Empty Honor of Iron Cross

Frank Hellier, a London newspaperman, sends the following to his paper from Antwerp:

"I have received a letter, headed 'An Open Letter to the German Emperor' and signed 'A Belgian Mother,' appears in the Metropolitan this evening. The following is the substance of it: 'Madame, I read in the newspapers that your son Joseph has returned to Berlin wounded, that you went out to meet him, and that you regarded with pride the Iron Cross pinned on his breast. He has not fought, thank God, under the same colors as your son. But, as wife and mother, I can understand the joy you must have felt at seeing your son again alive.

I feel no bitterness against your soldier, but I am sure that you, as a mother, doubt, heid command. It is here with an armed hero devoted to rapine, to murder, to the uttermost length of the most heinous horrors, that he has earned his Iron Cross.

Stained Iron Cross

"Therefore, madame, did you feel so proud on seeing him as you are said to have felt? Did no after-thought trouble you? And, unless you were unaware of the onyx of the beads of hell in your country, among which Prince Joachim has fought and commanded, did you assure yourself that that Iron Cross bore no stain, that it was in honor of a soldier's deeds and could cover up no responsibility in the crimes of which my country has been the victim at the hands of your people?

"Does it appear to you as likely that a single German officer, and your son more than any other, can escape before God and before history the responsibility for a joint work which has been consummated for several weeks, methodically and without mercy, in all parts of my country at once?

"This cross, then, which is not inspired by you with a little terror beside the pride which the newspapers credit you with?

"If delicacy, sweetness, and sacredly remain the moral adornment of our sex, in all the regions where Christian civilization has left its stamp, every woman's heart ought to be doubly horrified that human hands could perpetrate the deed which the emblem of the Christ can find itself in such a position as lying as a reward on the breasts of those who are so responsible for it before conscience and before humanity.

"I do not envy your pride, madame, face to face with your son fresh come from the revisited regions of Visé and Dinant, of Aerschot, of Louvain, or Termonde, wounded, which is nothing, but decorated with the Iron Cross which is an ironic sacrifice and a profanation worthy of supreme punishment.

"No, I envy you nothing. And even

ONTARIO MAN GUILTY OF DOUBLE MURDER

Brazebridge, Ont., Oct. 20.—William Rutman was found guilty at the assizes here today before Mr. Justice Lennox, of murdering George Costermache and his own daughter on May 20 last, burning the barn of Henry Cook and M. Brace, neighbors, and trying to murder Cook and another daughter. The jury in rendering its verdict included a recommendation to mercy.

WOMEN CAN HELP IN WAR Against Drunkenness

Mothers, wives and sisters owe it to those dear to them to help them stop drinking. Drunkenness is a disease, and the inflamed members of the stomach must be healed, and the craving removed—the trembling nerves soothed and restlessness of the victim can stop drinking.

Last Night's Cables Brought News of Continued Success of The Allies

London, Oct. 20, 9.15 p. m.—Fighting of the most desperate character is in progress in West Flanders and Northwestern France. The Belgian army, supported by the Allies, is holding on stubbornly to the line of the River Yser, despite determined German attacks, and has thus far succeeded in bringing to a halt the advance of the invaders along the coast.

This is announced in the French official communication issued this evening, and is admitted in the report of German general headquarters, which says that fighting has been going on since Sunday in the vicinity of Neuport, which stands at the crossing of the river near the sea.

A little further to the south the Allies are making an attempt to advance toward Lille for the relief of that city, which has been in German hands for some time, and also pushing on to the north and south of Arras. Their attacks of yesterday on the advance to Lille, where the Germans hold strong positions, were repulsed, according to the German reports.

Generally speaking, the French claim to have made some detailed progress on various points of the front. Paris reports that the Allies have destroyed fifteen German machine guns, two of which were armored, near La Bassée, and a battery of German heavy artillery in the environs of St. Mihiel.

Both sides are bringing up reinforcements to the western front, where one of the supreme struggles of the war is on. The Germans are not bringing new troops from the east, but are throwing every available man in Belgium into the firing line. They seem to have the railroads working well, although they must have been seriously damaged during the battles of August and September. Troops are being transported over them, and Dutch sources report that train after train of wounded is being taken back to Germany.

German and Russian reports agree that the situation in the east has not changed, although the armies are in close touch along the East Prussian frontier and right across Poland and Galicia.

Sarajevo, the Bosnian capital, according to a report issued at Nish, is now completely enveloped by Servians, and determined efforts are being made to take the town before the conclusion of the trial of the alleged assassins of the Austrian heir, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, which started the war.

In South Africa the rebellion of Colonel Maritz has been virtually broken up. Another lot of officers and men have been captured, while others have surrendered voluntarily to the African authorities.

Italy has issued an official denial of the report that she has occupied Avlona, the Adriatic port of Albania. The news from Italy shows that the Italian people are growing more antagonistic to the Austrians because of interference with the Italian fishing industry by Austrian mines, and the necessity of suspending the service of many steamships because of the danger to seamen.

Sweden has ordered all lights on her coasts extinguished, so that they cannot be of use to the belligerent powers.

Treitschke, Prophet of Brute Force, Behind Militarism

Berlin Professor by His Teachings After War of 1870 Helped to Throw Glamor of Power Over German "Culture"

(From the London Times Educational Supplement.)

Five years after the war of 1870 there appeared in a professorial chair in Berlin a man who soon riveted upon that chair, and upon the seat in the Reichstag which he also occupied, the attention of the whole world of German culture. His name was Heinrich von Treitschke. Never since the days when Germany was under the heel of Napoleon, and Fichte sent his messages of hope and patriotic ardor through the youth of the nation, had a German professor made the heart of the people throb to his utterances as it throbbed for twenty years to the words of Treitschke. In this man, in this teaching, the historian can lay his finger with the highest precision of which history admits, on the germinal point of that development of thought whose final issues are at this moment being proclaimed by the thunder of the German guns.

The figure which year after year drew to the lecture hall of modern history in Berlin a dense throng not only of students, but of soldiers, writers, officials, and of the general public, was that of Treitschke. He was tall and lithe, his eyes were frank and sympathetic, his diction was clear and rhythmic, with a wealth of picturesque and dramatic touches which at first somewhat shocked his colleagues, with words which were brilliant, and in speaking he had to win his audience in the teeth of a serious draw-back—his voice was harsh, his sentences irregularly emphasized, oddly broken, it was as if a mechanism spoke, and a mechanism imperfectly under control. Nor was it under control, for not a word of what he uttered did Treitschke himself head. An illness in early life had left him completely deaf.

His career did not commence in Berlin university, though it was from that stage that he first made his personality and his teaching felt as a national force. He had lectured at Kiel, at Heidelberg, at Freiburg in Baden, and as early as 1866 Prof. A. Ward of Cambridge, first of foreign observers, had discerned his significance and called attention to it in the English Historical Review. From the very first he had embraced that ideal of his life work which he expressed in the words "Durch die Geschichte politisch zu wirken." He meant to make German history a living force, not a mere theme for learned controversies; from the past, the German people was to forecast its future, and what was to draw strength and inspiration to work and to fight for it. No one can deny that this was a worthy ideal of the historian's office. But what was the future to which the German people was pointed? Here we come upon the fatal, the pernicious side of Treitschke's teaching. He spoke, at least after 1870, to a nation in which a dazzling material success had produced a demoralization then now recognized and lamented by the wisest and deepest minds of Germany.

World Domination Through Arms.

Stimulated by the French milliards there was a rush for wealth, and by the triumph of the army an overweening adoration for brute force which soon wholly transformed the aspect of German society and German culture. "Everything is falling to pieces," wrote the aged Ranke, shocked at the moral decay which he witnessed around him, "no one thinks of anything but industry and money." And Theodor Mommsen had already spoken in words of profound seriousness and weight to his constituents at Halle: "Have a care, gentlemen, lest in this state which has been at once a power in arms and a power in intelligence, the intelligence should vanish, and nothing but the pure military state should remain."

This was the society, these were the tendencies, over which it was Treitschke's mission to throw the glamor of a false idealism. He had to give them a soul, or something which could be taken for a soul, else they could never have without the healthier forces in the German character. And in spite of all that was noble and true in his splendid portrayals of the great statesmen from German history, it must be said that the soul which he gave to modern Germany was first and foremost that of its own worst and most dangerous qualities, glorified only by the scale on which they were to be applied. World domination to be won by military power—that was the new German ideal for Treitschke himself a Saxon by birth, and the Prussianizing of the whole of Germany. All Germany, according to Treitschke, must be a Saxon by birth, to become an expansion of Prussia, "ein erweitertes Preussen. Polen, Litauen, Dänen or what-not, must be ruthlessly Germanized—they must be taught that "there is no getting on in Germany without the German language." Perhaps it is not a little this conception of "culture" which has made the rest of the world so singularly reluctant to accept the position offered to it in Pan-German dreams.

"Let Us Take Holland."

Treitschke had at any rate no can about him. He knew well what his programme involved, and he taught his hearers that they must say farewell to a whole range of ideas once dear to the German heart. "The only condition of triumph over the weak," he declared, "is the spirit of Nietzsche, 'is an iron will.' We are only too easily seduced," lamented Treitschke in connection with some protests from these quarters, "by the fine phrases of tolerance and enlightenment." Many years after the utterance of the warning which we have already quoted Mommsen saw in the new Germany which was growing up under Treitschke's leadership, not a "power of intelligence," but "a new barbarism," and from his vast historical knowledge he pointed out that the omnipotence of the administrative power which was a condition of the execution of Treitschke's programme, and was implied in the "Prussianization" of Germany, was no true sign of strength—it was more often "the last phase of national decay."

But Mommsen's voice was raised in vain—and how deeply the poison of Treitschke's teaching has penetrated we have just seen with a shock of astonishment when even a thinker so refined and idealistic as Rudolf Bucken can write of England in a tone of indignant reproach for having made war on German "culture" because of Germany's "military advance through Belgium territory—the territory Germany had solemnly sworn to respect in the very event which caused this alleged 'necessity.' We do not value the culture which justifies such deeds—think it rightly described as a 'barbarism' and a barbarism all the more revolting because it strikes at the heart of civilization with the very weapons, intellectual and material with which civilization has armed itself.

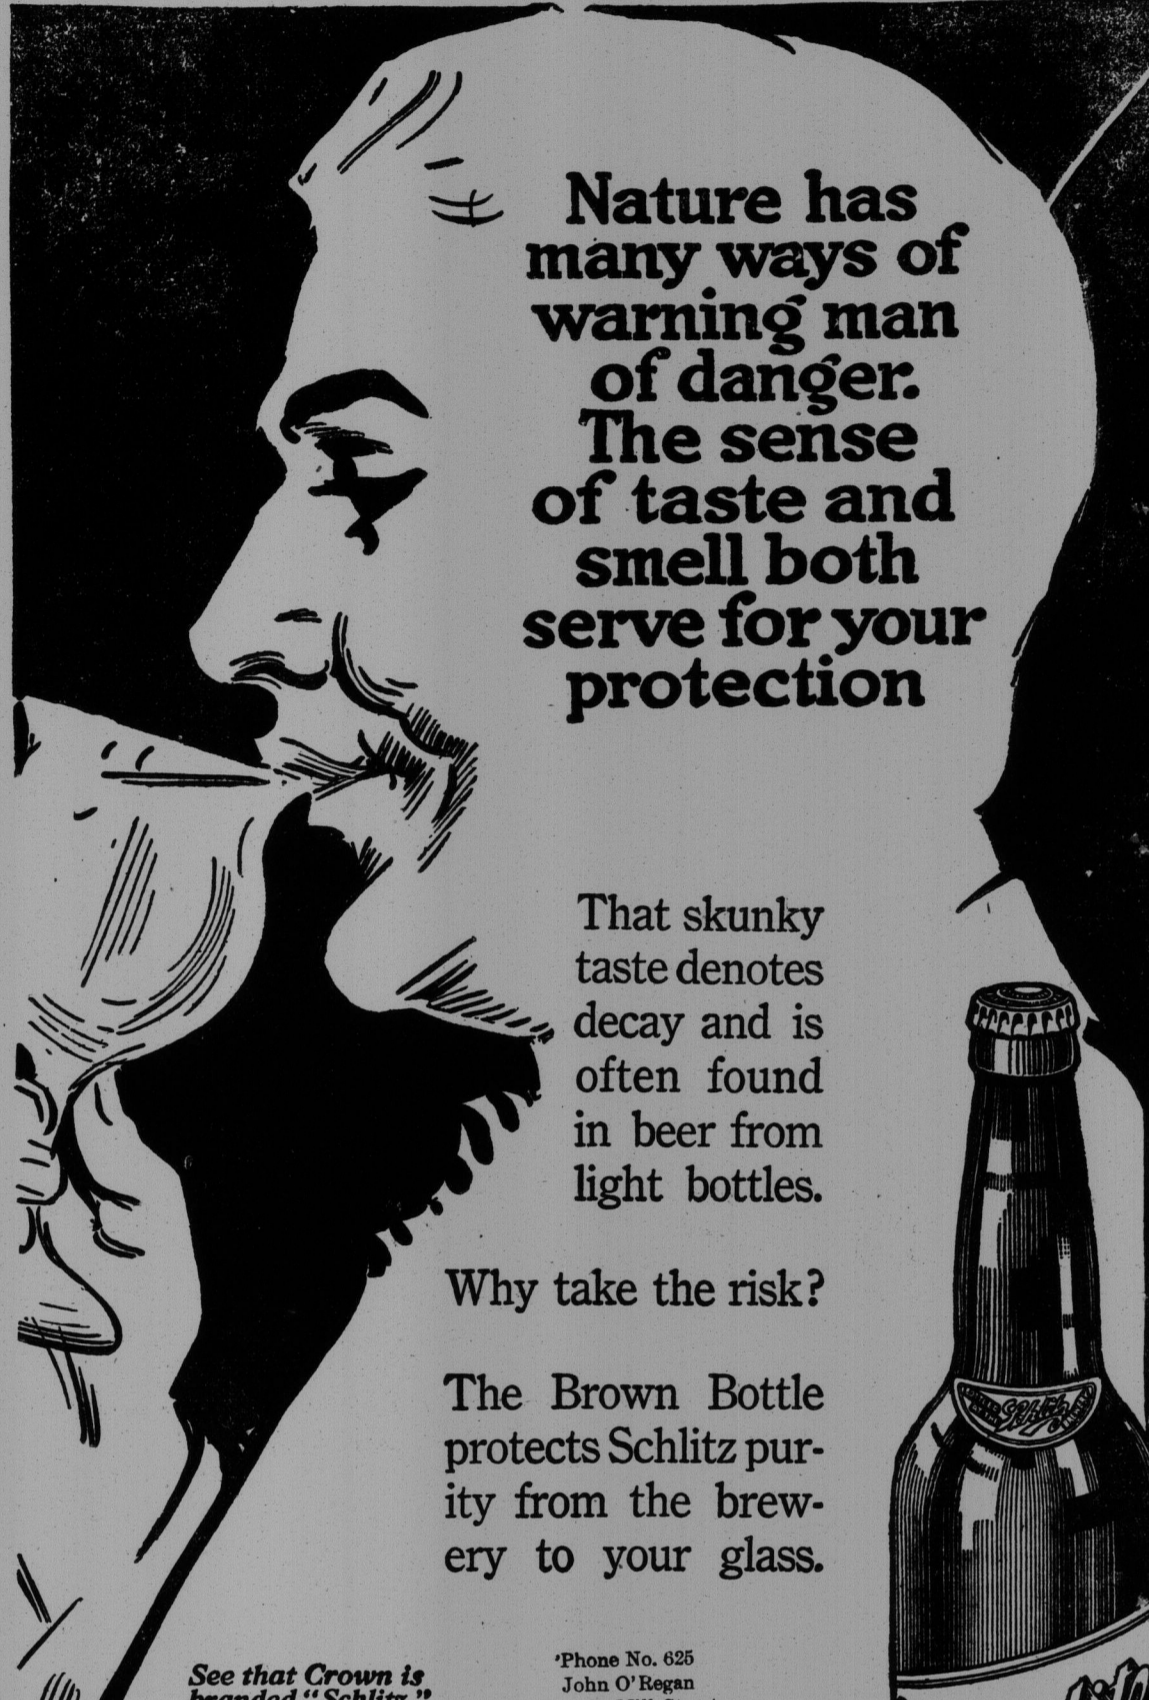

Envy of England's Sea Power

Against England, the power which of all others stood most conspicuously in Germany's way upon the path marked out for her by Treitschke, he never ceased to direct the hatred and contempt of young Germany. So early as 1864 he had declared that "no European power can be great without being great at sea," and envy of England's sea power grew to be a kind of mania with him. "After all," he wrote to his friend, Gustav Freytag, in 1876 "we do live in a glorious century—nothing absolutely rotten can long endure in it" and two absolutely rotten things of which he expected to see the downfall in his own lifetime were the rule of the Grand Turk in Europe and the sea power of England, the latter of which, he added, "obviously belongs to the century gone by."

"So, indeed, did everything else that was good in England. 'With the English,' he wrote in 1874, 'love of money has killed every sentiment of honor and every distinction between right and wrong, though they hide their poltroonery and their materialism under the unctuous phrases of religion.' To overthrow such a power, or rather say such a lingering phantom of power, should be no difficult task for a virile people 60,000,000 strong—and then of what an inheritance to take possession!"

Poison Spreads Through Universities

Such were the ideas which spread over Germany from the lecture room of Treitschke. They clung, they stung, they germinated, they were soon re-echoed from hundreds of voices. They did not greatly affect the literary classes in Germany—these have always looked with a curious misgiving on the modern

War Reveals Waste of Food

Apprehensive over food shortage, the London press is advising the English people to save and utilize every article of food value, including the bran coating of grain.

Why? The outer coat of grain holds the precious mineral elements which mean so much in vital building and up-keep of body, brain and nerves. And yet the modern miller throws out about four-fifths of these priceless food elements just to make the flour look white and pretty!

Isn't it astounding that it took war to wake people up to such a fearful waste!

Nearly twenty years ago the crying need of a food which would fill the lack caused by demineralized white flour products led to themaking of development of the German empire—but they completely conquered the army the bureaucracy, and the universities; and in virtue of the power of the universities over the schools and of the state over both, they deeply perverted the general education of the country, or at least of Prussia. Thus among the commonplaces of German thought we come on utterances like this, from a book, "England's Waltherscheit," which in 1912 went through 14 editions: "On every one of the world's trade routes, like an ancient robber-knight in full armor, lance in hand, stands England. * * * Every nation, for the sake of the future, must combat this predominance. * * * All nations have become tributary to the city of London, some more, some less. Germany would find existence at England's suzerainty unbearable. And yet it is not with Germany against this brigand power, but with the brigand against Germany that we find at the present moment six states arrayed in arms, with the sympathy of nearly all the rest of the world behind them! They must be blind indeed who do not see in this phenomenon a crushing commentary upon the course of German policy, on her colossal egotism, her restless and unscrupulous ambitions for the last 40 years.

Germany's Overwhelming Egotism

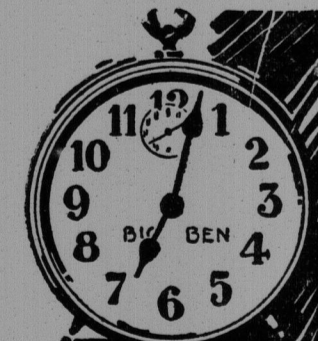

Dr. Hans Delbrück, Treitschke's colleague and afterward, his successor in the editorship of the Preussische Jahrbucher, once declared that Germany was bound to expand at the expense of one or all of the three great world powers, England, France and Russia. Does it ever occur to the German intelligence to ask itself how these are so bitterly envied in Germany? Assuredly it was not by overblowingly talking about it, by vilifying their rivals, by continually brandishing the sword and elevating into a political system the right of the mail-

NEW BRUNSWICK POET

Douglas Malloch, the lumberman poet, on the staff of the American Lumberman of Chicago, is a native of Charlotte county, N. B. He has published several books of verse, and of the latest, 'The Woods,' Sir Gilbert Parker wrote: 'The Woods has given me unalloyed pleasure. It is a joy to get real, natural verse with the lift and the charm of natural song.'

Mr. Malloch has visited England and has written poems on English themes. In last week's Lumberman, with a pretty picture of the famous cottage, appears the following poem:

Ann Habaway's Cottage Each summer, when the garden blooms And the green hedge is greenest yet, When sunshine floods the quiet rooms Where Shakespeare and the maiden met.

Here come the pilgrims overseas From lands of myrtle and of pine To live again the love of these And lay love's tribute on their shrine.

And Shakespeare, he who won a world, The world of men, the world of time, Never in any sonnet peared, Never in most majestic rime, Never in all the lines of his The listening angels leaned to catch, Taught us how great a thing love is In this little cot of thatch.

Here comes the pilgrims overseas— The very old, the very young, The leaves upon the English trees Of tremble to an alien tongue: The rich, the poor, the good and ill, The proudest, mortal and the meek— So comes the same procession still.

So come the pilgrims year by year, Drawn by a silken cord and strong— The tale that love had conquered here With sweeter song the king of song. Yea, Ann was sweet enough to sing Than his own song a song more sweet And through the centuries to bring A world of lovers to her feet. Shutter, near Stratford-on-Avon, England.

In Ottawa there is much talk of parliament meeting in January.

SAYS UNITED STATES SHOULD SYMPATHISE WITH ALLIES' CAUSE

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 21.—Prof. Leo Wiener, of Harvard, speaking of the United States relative to the European upheaval said:

"The United States cannot restrain its sympathies in the present crisis and keep self-respect. While I do not look for any actual assistance from the United States in behalf of the Allies, I do feel that this country must come out unequivocally and express its true position within the next two months."

"The United States is peculiarly indebted to some of the contestants in the European struggle, and we have always been the foe of injustice and oppression. Hence it is to be expected that we must take the side of those nations which are fighting Germany, or be branded untrue as a free people."

"I look to see the United States facing the issue squarely, and while not rendering assistance to the Allied nations, throwing its great influence into the balance against the oppressor."

Montreal Bomb Outrage. A block of nine tenements and three stores was demolished in Frontenac street, Montreal, last evening, by the explosion of a bomb carried in, it is thought, by two men both of whom perished. One of the bodies has been recovered and the other is still in the ruins.

The block was occupied by nine Russian families, and about a dozen received injuries which are not considered serious. The body recovered is thought to be that of an Austrian and the fact that the people occupying the house were all Russians is thought to bear some significance.

Water furnished without charge to charitable, religious, educational and public institutions in Chicago last year was valued at more than $300,000. This is about 4 1/2 per cent of the city's total revenue from water consumers.

WOMEN ACCOMPLISHED THE MOST REMARKABLE 1914 SWIMMING FEATS

Although the outdoor swimming season of 1914 saw men accomplish brilliant feats of aquatic speed and endurance, its most remarkable feature was the work done by girls and women in the competitive field. Their performances, particularly over the longer courses, were far beyond anything seen in the past and several of them compared favorably with the best made by the stronger sex.

In fact, one seeks in vain for instances of such early development among boys as was exhibited last summer by tiny mermaids of ten and eleven. Take Florence McLaughlin of Philadelphia, a little miss of ten, who officially covered nine and a half miles in three hours, twenty-two minutes and twenty-five seconds, and swam half a mile over a surveyed still water course in eighteen minutes thirty-seven seconds; or Helen Rablman, one year her senior, who defeated Florence by a touch in the latter race, and has a record almost as good in marathon swimming; or Catherine Hose, of St. Louis, who in a two-mile contest for women finished among the leaders, in thirty-two minutes forty-nine seconds, despite the fact that she is only twelve, while the field included about twenty of the fastest women swimmers in the west. Where can there be found lads of the same age with such astonishing achievements to their credit?

Most Striking Feat. The most striking performance of the season was that of Elaine Golding of Bath Beach, in the championship race from the Battery to Steeplechase Park Pier, Coney Island, in August. She swam the entire route—about fourteen miles—with the turgid stroke, completing it in four hours, thirty-one minutes, forty-five seconds. Bud Goodwin, the United States half-mile and one-mile A. A. U. champion, established a record of four hours thirty minutes for this course, but landed at Landis' Pier, which is approximately half a mile nearer the Battery than where Miss Golding finished, so that she actually made better time, and this notwithstanding very rough water and a stiff head wind.

Loise Debus, a Philadelphia girl of seventeen, and an exponent of the crawl stroke, was second only to Miss Golding. Although handicapped by lack of weight and strength in the Coney Island test, she crossed the line close upon the winner, and before that had established records for two classic courses in her home waters, going from the Flatrock Dam to Combschocken in two hours forty-eight minutes and swimming the sixteen and three quarter miles between

BELGIAN RELIEF

Ninety-three cars of food and clothing for the Belgians are on the siding at Deep Water, Halifax. More food stuffs and more clothing are pouring in every day from all parts of Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario.

Mrs. George A. Fawcett, of Middle Sackville, has collected 221 barrels of potatoes for the Belgian Relief Fund. The potatoes are of the best quality, and were donated by the farmers of Sackville parish. They have been shipped to the Relief Committee.

Ladies' Aid Organized

At a largely attended meeting on the church parlor yesterday afternoon the Ladies' Aid of the Congregation church was organized for the season. Officers elected were Mrs. J. A. Brooks, president; Mrs. Holmes, vice-president; Mrs. Thomas, secretary; Mrs. Stanley K. Smith, treasurer. Plans for the month-long teas in the church school room were being made.

"BREWSTER'S MILLIONS"

Story by George Barr McCutcheon

KEY TO 1000 LAUGHS

"Peter Brewster mistreated your mother and father and I do not want you to touch a dollar of his money. If you spend the million left to you by him and can, at the end of a year, show by receipts that you have judiciously spent, not squandered this million dollars, my attorneys will turn over to you my worldly possessions, aggregating seven millions. You must own nothing of value at the end of a year," said George Brewster, and Monty, learning for the first time that Peter Brewster had mistreated his parents, begins to spend the million.
