Instituted October 29th, 1833.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE, FOR 1869-70.

In presenting the thirty-second Annual Report of this Society, the Committee, while rendering thanksgiving to the Giver of all Good for continued blessings bestowed by Him upon their efforts, would at the same time record their grateful appreciation of that liberal support which the institution has hitherto received from a benevolent public.

In carrying out the objects of the Society during the past year, the Committee has endeavored to follow closely in the track marked out for them by their predecessors, and with catholicity of spirit the means placed at the Society's disposal have been distributed to the poor and needy, without distinction of creed or nationality. Death, within the compass of the period referred to, has removed several of the best and most liberal subscribers to the Society's funds; yet while the removal of generous benefactors by providential dispensations is a source of regret, the Committee would indulge the hope that the acknowledged merits of the institution, and the continued claims upon its resources may still prove influential in eliciting public sympathy and support.

In conclusion, the members of the Committee feel, as they believe the supporters of the Society do, that they ought not to be weary in well-doing. The obligations which pressed upon them at first have not diminished in importance. The motives which then influenced them, remain with equal, nay, with greater constraint, for there are fewer sands in their life-glass than when they first began, and the destitute and helpless whom they have sought to aid are still to be found as numerous as ever. Above all, acts of benevolence, whether in feeding the hungry or clothing the naked, are still commended by Him who said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."
