SENATOR DOMVILLE'S SCHEME FALLS THROUGH FOR PRESENT

(Special to the Star.)
MONTREAL, Sept. 19.—News has been received by railway and financial circles here that promoters of Central Canada railway, which proposed to connect the city with the Atlantic coast by a line from here to Ottawa, with terminal point on Georgian Bay, and thence to a point on the Lake Erie, near Chatham, has fallen through for the present, owing to difficulties of financing the project.

When Senator Domville returned from England last winter he brought news that the financial success of the undertaking was practically assured.

MARK TWIN FOR SIMPLIFIED SPELLING; HIS GOOD REASONS

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The annual meeting of the members of the Associated Press was held in this city today. Important matters in connection with the service were disposed of. Tonight the members, who include publishers, editors and other newspaper men, taking the Associated Press service met with several guests at the dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mr. E. B. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, presided, and with him at the guests' table were Samuel L. Clemens, who discussed the subject of "Simplified Spelling," General Horace Porter, former ambassador to France, who responded to the toast, "Our Guests," and Mr. A. S. Hays, the author, who talked of Criticism and Professor George E. Vincent of Chicago University, who spoke on the subject of "The Future of the Press."

General Porter paid a high and graceful tribute to the work of the Associated Press and of newspaper men in general. He spoke of the improvement in the handling of news and the expediting of its transmission in foreign countries brought about by the enterprise and energy of the executive officers of the Associated Press.

Mr. Stone next introduced Mark Twain, who was greeted with enthusiastic and prolonged applause.

Mr. Clemens said in part: "I am here to make an appeal to the nations in which I am speaking. I have come here because they cannot afford to neglect the subject of simplified spelling. It is the only remedy used internally. It is impossible to cure an established case of Piles with ointments, suppositories, injections, or outward applications. A guarantee is issued with every package of Dr. Leonard's Hem-Roid, which contains a month's treatment. Go and talk to your druggist about it."

The Wilson-Fyle Co., Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont.

DEATH OF FORMER

HALIFAX PASTOR

Rev. J. S. Black Was a Scholar of Rare Ability—Authority on Shakespeare—Had Traveled Extensively

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 15.—A telegram was received here today announcing the death in New York of Rev. J. S. Black, former pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, this city, aged 59 years. The reverend gentleman was an orator of rare ability, and devoted much of his time while in Halifax giving Shakespearean lectures. He was born in Scotland and travelled extensively in Europe. He was ordained at Naas, N. H., in 1870, and in 1870 was called to St. Andrew's Church, Halifax, where he remained until 1884, when he removed to Colorado, and later on came to Halifax.

The Neptune Rowing Club have decided to hold a fancy dress carnival at the St. Andrew's Rollway in Monday night, October 8th. Particulars regarding prizes, etc., will be published in a few days. Those who intend competing will find ample opportunity for a study of costumes and characters at the theatres this week.

NEWFOUNDLAND SENDS A VESSEL.

Wrecked Fishermen to be Taken Back to Their Home—Canadian Assistance Not Needed.

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—One hundred and forty people belonging to a Newfoundland cod fishing fleet who were driven ashore in eleven vessels, at Misery Point, in the Straits of Belle Isle, on Friday last, will be looked after by the Newfoundland Government.

The Canadian Department of Marine and Fisheries when advised of the disaster decided to send the steamer Minto to the rescue of the fisher folk, but were advised by Captain Gregory, marine agent at Quebec, that the steamer Portia had been sent by the Newfoundland authorities to look after the shipwrecked crews.

The wrecked people, the wives and children of the fishermen who always accompany them on their summer fishing cruises.

FRENCH FREEMASONRY

is Clearly Political in its Character.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The Times' correspondent cables from Paris as follows: Occasionally the opportunity is afforded to call attention to the wide difference between Freemasonry in France and in other countries. Seldom, however, has the distinction appeared so manifest as in the programme of the Masonic Conference opened today in Paris. Thus among the questions to be submitted, according to the newspapers, is one whether Freemasonry is to be radical or socialist. The following problems of social reform are to be examined—namely, the proposed income tax, old-age pensions, laws for public assistance, and the relations of capital to labor. No more is required to show the political character of French Freemasonry. When the papal anathema is launched against Freemasonry surely some distinction might be made between the Freemasons of France, whose work is largely political, and the Freemasons of England, where it is exclusively charitable and precludes atheism, which in France it does not.

LAST MAN IN LAST DITCH.

French-Canadian Would Fight for British Canada.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Ramsay MacDonald, in an article in The Chronicle on Cousin Pierre, says that if de Gaulle and the empire the French-Canadian would be the last man fighting in the last ditch for a British Canada. Analyzing Pierre's mind, he declares that the race for wealth, the triumph of materialism and the power of thought evident in modern Canada have no attraction for him. He is a devotee of church and labor now. Pierre is a trade unionist, however, discovered flaws in his church and cannot forget them. Concluding, the writer says that Pierre wants to live within the empire because he is determined to remain a free citizen in an independent French Catholic State. Quebec reverts the only basis for his empire and liberty.

It is possible for your STAR Want Ads. to be productive of more results by wording your advertisement properly. For instance, in renting rooms the answers will be better and more numerous if you tell the size, price, direction, locality, accessible car lines, etc., than if you merely give the street address. Tell the whole story, and readers will be interested. Think before you write. Word your ad. carefully.

Mr. John Greenlaw, who recently sold his farm at Bayville, and left for Saskatoon, Alberta, about three weeks ago with the intention of settling there, if the conditions pleased him, returned home on Saturday. The resident of the level prairie looked so unimpressed after a life spent amid the verdant, sun-kissed hills and dales of New Brunswick, that he could not entertain the thought of spending the balance of his days there. He said that he would just as soon be placed upon a raft in mid-ocean as to be fixed upon one of those lonesome prairie farms. Saskatoon he describes as a lively little place about the size of St. Andrews. He saw Capt. E. S. Andrews there and says that the advance in the price of land that followed the selection of Saskatoon as a railway terminus, has made the captain a wealthy man. Mr. Greenlaw is quite well satisfied to let others exploit the west, the east is good enough for him.—St. Andrews Beacon.

THE HINDOO INVASION.
A large proportion of the residents of British Columbia object to the importation of Hindoos which is now going on. The opposition arises chiefly from the labor element, but other persons as well are represented in the fight against this black invasion. The Hindoos are not a desirable class of settlers for Canada. It is argued in their favor that they are our brothers, subjects of the same king, and that this should open our doors to them. They are not brothers, not even second cousins, but are an alien race saved from themselves by British and taken under the protection of the British flag. They are a people who do very well in their own country, but who will not easily adapt themselves to conditions in Canada. This is a land where everyone has to work, and the East Indian is not a worker. He only imagines that he is. Physically the Hindoo is not strong, he lacks energy, is fond of resting, and when required to perform any task goes about it with great deliberation. As an instance is cited a case wherein several Hindoo servants were given a spade and told to dig a portion of a flower garden. There were three of them at the job. A rope was fastened around the spade. One man held the handle, another stood on the spade pressing it into the ground, and the third pulled on the rope to lift up the clod of earth. This is a fair example of the way in which they go about anything. In India the strenuous life is not necessary and it will be found that many of the Hindoos now landing in Canada will in a short time become public charges, through inability and disinclination to perform in a proper manner the labor necessary for their independent existence.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.
It is announced that a general election in British Columbia will be held before the beginning of the year, following the dissolution of the houses in November. Now is the time for Mr. Joseph Martin to appear on the scene and offer himself as a candidate for whatever may turn up.
British Columbia during recent years has been the scene of the worst political muddle in the history of Canada, and he would be a rash man who dared to prophesy what the result of the next election may be. Premier McBride for some months has been comparatively comfortable, when his former position is considered. He has had a majority of one in the house and has not been altogether dependent upon the vagaries of the socialist members. In his first ministry he had many troubles, and they have followed him so closely that any change, resulting from the elections, whether it be success or defeat, will no doubt prove welcome. In the Pacific province there has been a distinctly noticeable desire on the part of the people to get away from the present unsatisfactory methods of conducting public business. Mr. McBride has gained in popularity, and it remains to be seen whether this will prove sufficient to send him back to power with a larger number of followers.

THEATRE, CARDS AND DANCING.
It is unlikely that the Methodist general conference will make any changes in the church rule against theatres, card playing and dancing. The existing prohibition will stand for at least four years more. But of what use is it? How many people conscientiously refrain from these amusements because the church frowns on them? The families of ministers sometimes— not always—observe the discipline, and occasionally there are to be found other persons who stay away from the theatres, who do not know the tray of diamonds from a full house, and who mix a two step with the polka quadrille not because they desire to obey the rule, but rather because their inclinations do not tend to theatres, cards or dancing. Some really feel that these things are wrong, others have never tried them, but in the majority of cases personal sentiment is responsible, and not the rule of the church. In these days men and women are just as independent in matters of religion as in anything else, and prefer choosing their own course rather than having it mapped out for them.

The interview with Mr. Robert Matthews, which is printed elsewhere in this paper, is timely and of interest. Mr. Matthews has for some years been a resident of Cuba, and understands the condition in that fertile country.

There were some exciting racing at Chatham yesterday.

WONDERING.
Used to wonder, long ago,
Just how trees were made to grow,
Wondered if we'd ever fly
'Mongst the stars to the sky;
Sometimes wouldn't do a thing
All day long 'cept wondering,
Wishin' the stars I'd get big an' fat,
Wise, so's I could see 'em.
Kept on growin' year by year,
Now a mile an' then a tear
Came to fill my mind with doubt,
Wonderin' what 'twas all about.
Know no more than long ago,
'Bout the stars an' things that grow,
Solved no problems, great nor small;
Jos keep wonderin' an' that's all.
—Washington Star.

HOW THE JAPANESE FOOLED THE FAKER.
(From the London Telegraph.)
The street faker who was selling cement near the steps of the court house stood behind a little table on which was conspicuously displayed the sign, "A box of this cement given free to anybody who can break any of these eggs!"
There were spoils, blocks of wood, and other articles that had been cemented together and most of them bore marks of having been trusted with by persons with grimy hands in vain attempts to wrench them apart.
A swarthy little fellow who had stopped in front of the faker's stand pointed to a round peg that appeared to have been slipped in the cement, and driven into a good sized chunk of wood, and asked him what would be the reward for pulling it out.
"If you can pull that out," said the faker, "I'll give you a silver dollar."
The peg projected a little more than a quarter of an inch above the block.
The swarthy little fellow placed his left hand on the block and his right hand on the peg between the thumb and forefinger of his right hand, and pulled it out with apparent ease, a portion of the wood coming away with it.
"Great Scott!" gasped the man behind the counter. "What are you?"
"A Japanese dentist," replied the little fellow, pocketing the silver dollar and walking away with a grin on his face.

HORSE SENSE.
(From Country Life in America.)
Don't feed the horse too freely with new oats; they are loosening and may cause colic. If you must use them mix with old oats and accustom the horse to them gradually.
Hive heads should be mixed with the horse's food if he is troubled with worms. Don't repeat this too often or the rye heads themselves will become a source of irritation. It is more of a test than a remedy.
See that the horse doesn't avoid whole grain. Should he do so, he is troubled with worms. Have them fed. Many a horse fails to winter well on this account. While he can get good hay, wormed other food he does very well, but in fall and winter, when fed solely on dry food, he often falls to get sufficient nourishment.
Sponge down the horse's legs after the day's work; it relieves the strained tendons.
Keep fly nets on the horses while at work; insects are often more troublesome and persistent upon the approach of cool weather than in the heat of summer.

Oronhyatkahta Tells of Insurance Undertakings Which Were by no Means Profitable

TORONTO, Sept. 19.—The striking feature at today's session of the Insurance Inquiry were the operations of the Independent Order of Foresters in Australia, and loans which had resulted from high general expenditure. Dr. Oronhyatkahta was again on the stand. He denied that the society had any connection with Dr. Montague's subscription to an Australian election fund, either direct or indirectly. Dr. Montague was their representative but the society could no more be held responsible for this than it could if he had stolen sheep. Dr. Montague had always considered it a private and personal donation. With respect to loans from mortuary, sick and funeral funds, the doctor stated that these funds were at the entire disposal of the supreme court, and that the society had no right to make good expense deficits, the doctor stated that these funds were at the entire disposal of the supreme court, and that the society had no right to make good expense deficits, the doctor stated that these funds were at the entire disposal of the supreme court, and that the society had no right to make good expense deficits.

Young Congo did not seem to have a bone in his body at the time of his birth, and remained in the same condition until his death. Sight was the only sense that the boy ever had. He could neither hear, talk, walk, stand nor move his limbs, and remained in a cradle unless taken up in the arms of his father or mother. He was fed with a spoon, and seemed to enjoy good health until a few months ago, when an organic disease developed, which resulted in death.

Mr. Congo would not permit an autopsy, but allowed many doctors and scientific men, who had frequently called to see the boy, to examine the body. They were unable to give any explanation for the failure of natural development in the child.

NEW BRUNSWICK TITLES.

To the Editor of the Star:
Sir—Some years ago a celebrated English Baptist minister made a visit to the United States, and while there gave a number of addresses upon different subjects. When he returned to England he gave his congregation an address upon the subject of his visit, and there was one passage in his address I have always remembered. He said that he had traveled in many countries, he had traveled in most of the monarchial countries of Europe, but he had never traveled in any country where he met a government so good as the one he had met in the United States. He said that almost without an exception every man he was introduced to had a title of some kind.

I have always claimed that we in St. John are great imitators, and I have venerated whether in the indiscriminate use and application of titles we are running in the same direction. In this little city of ours we have a great many citizens dignified with the title of Honorable. Does it ever occur to us where this title comes from and how they got it? Throughout the British empire the King is the fountain of all honors. He can confer honors for meritorious services, but there are certain positions which, when a citizen has reached, he gets the title as a right. But the King has laid down strict rules and regulations in this connection. Some of them are as follows: When a citizen has reached the position of a member of the local government he has the title of Honorable so long as he is in the government, but when he leaves the title lapses. A citizen who reaches the position of a member of the Dominion government has the title and retains it for life. The same applies when a member of the legal profession reaches a place in the supreme court of the Dominion, he retains the title for life.

Last winter there was a discussion in the Senate as to whether the judges of the supreme courts of the provinces had the right to the title. So far as I understood the debate it was decided that they did not have the title by right. But it was suggested that as the title had always been attached to the office, it would be just to allow them to retain it by courtesy. Now I respectfully claim that when a title which has been attached to an office, and is not the slightest claim to it, it degrades the title and reduces the

After the recent double drowning at Lincoln, the body of Mother Mary, which was recovered, and was brought to the St. Marys reserve, and the funeral took place from there yesterday. Miss Sacote and another Indian claiming to be relatives of the deceased squaw, say that the priest in charge of the parish had refused to allow them to bury Kolly's remains in the Roman Catholic burying ground and that all the relatives of the deceased squaw had decided to leave the Roman Catholic church. They said that the priest claimed that Kolly was drunk when drowned and not entitled to be buried in the church ground.

The Indians were considerably excited over the matter and gathered among themselves in an excited manner.

WILL BEGIN HIS DUTIES TODAY

New Chancellor of U. N. B. Outlines His Policy

Dr. Jones Pays High Tribute to Late Dr. Harrison Whose Death Was a Shock to Him

Dr. C. C. Jones, the new chancellor of the University of New Brunswick, and his family, are at the Clifton, having come across the Bay yesterday in the Prince Rupert.

Dr. Jones will leave for Fredericton this morning to attend the funeral of Dr. Harrison, his predecessor, whose death he said in speaking to a Sun reporter last evening, came as a great shock to him.

"Dr. Harrison was a man of kindly nature, and generous instincts, and a particularly able mathematical teacher. I am very sorry to learn of his death."

DR. C. C. JONES.

Dr. Jones said the domestic details incidental to the removal of his household goods had occupied him time so fully since his appointment that he had been unable to develop any definite idea with reference to his university policy. It would, however, be his endeavor to build up the University from within and gain the interest and confidence of the public. That being accomplished, he would probably next summer visit the high schools of the province and present the claims of the University, with the object of securing students.

"The people of the province," he remarked, "take a deep personal interest in their University, and this feeling will be my aim to foster and justify."

He hoped that there might be long be an extension made to the work of the University in the shape of technical education, which he was a great believer in.

It is a rather and coincidence that the first duty of the new chancellor who takes office today will be to attend the funeral of his predecessor, who was also his friend and teacher.

GOING AFTER A NEW DREDGE

Hope to Sink First Crib on Friday

Cove in at West Side Continues—Shore Line Station Has Sunk Several Inches

At a private session of the board of works yesterday, which lasted from three o'clock till almost six, it was decided that Harbor Master Purvis should proceed to Boston immediately to inspect a dredge which is available for the use of the city. The firm offering the dredge is Alfred Windsor & Co. of Boston, who said that the dredge is in first class shape and is a good digger. Mr. Purvis is registered to look it over and if thoroughly equipped to at once communicate with Chairman McGoldrick, who will call the board together. If the dredge is suitable he will be brought to the city immediately and put to work at Sand Point, which it would seem now will be completed without the assistance of the Harbor. The progress of the dredging was discussed at length. The board were informed that E. P. Sheehan, resident engineer of the public works department, was satisfied that the dredging was now sufficiently advanced to permit the sinking of the first crib.

The board were also informed that the committee had told Mr. Clark of the readiness of the site and that Mr. Clark would at once proceed to take soundings and that Engineer Peters would give him the lines of the wharf, and that no soundings would be taken by the city, as it was thought that the soundings taken by the government engineer and Mr. Clark would be sufficient.

A communication was read from Divisional Supt. Downie, calling attention to the Union street culvert and the necessity of rebuilding the street at once, and also to the urgent necessity of the dredging at Sand Point. The C. P. R. have now made preparations for the rebuilding of the Union street culvert, and the work will probably begin today. The C. P. R. suggest that if the culvert at Sand Point are sufficiently dredged they may lie their steamers two abreast at the borths.

The approach to the new wharf was also considered and the question of obtaining possession of fifteen or more feet of Quinn Street, which is the property, so as to allow of making a better grade in the approach was discussed favorably.

George Robertson was called into the meeting, and speaking generally without much study of the situation, said that he did not think the city's possession of this property would interfere with the plans of the Dry Dock Co.

D. C. Clark, speaking to the Sun last night, said he would make the soundings over the site today, and that tomorrow he hoped, if the site was found to be ready, he would sink the crib. Mr. Clark expressed every confidence that he would be able to get the crib in position when the attempt is made.

The landslide back of Union street still continues, and there are many new cracks in the earth all around and evidence that a considerable section will yet sink into the slip. The granite shed, the big derrick in the yard and the Shore Line station are now all in a dangerous condition, and there is likely to be considerable claims for damages. Last night the Shore Line station sank six or seven inches further on the front, while the platform was thrown further out of position.

Foot passengers and teams are now pitching around Point by a temporary path behind the Gordon wall works.

His Worship Mayor Sears in company with George McAvity, drove out yesterday to Loch Lomond to see if any arrangement could not be made for a supply of water to the Mispic pulp mill, which has been compelled to shut down. The mayor said last night that after looking over the situation it was decided that the city could allow the mill seventy-two million gallons of water, which is as much as is now required.

FINE LECTURE COURSE ARRANGED BY LADIES

Annual Meeting of Ladies Association of Natural Society Held Yesterday—Business Unfinished

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Association of the Natural History Society was held yesterday afternoon at the society's rooms, Union street. This is the first regular meeting held in the new building. Owing to a small attendance the reports were not submitted, nor the officers for the ensuing year elected.

Arrangements were made at the meeting for a series of weekly lectures for the coming year. These will take the form of reminiscence talks; the speakers being persons who have visited the place which forms the subject of the description. These lectures will not be free, but the ladies will issue tickets at $1 each. The series will in no wise interfere with the course of free lectures which for the past ten years the ladies have conducted during the winter months. It is also proposed, in connection with the aforementioned talks, to secure any interesting souvenirs from the place under discussion, and their histories will mingle with the general talk. The subject will also be discussed.

The first of the series of lectures will be given by Miss Knovitch, whose subject will be The Rubiary of Omar Khayyam. The other lectures are as follows:

Oct. 11—Venice, Mrs. Fiske.
Oct. 18—Heldberg, Miss Annie Puddington.
Oct. 25—Rome, Mrs. Geo. Murray.
Nov. 1—Hawaii Islands, Mrs. Nesles.
Nov. 8—Oxford, Miss Fisker Robinson.
Nov. 15—English Lakes, Miss Picher.
Nov. 22—Canadian Northwest, Mrs. R. C. Skinner.
Nov. 29—Mexico, Mrs. Jas. F. Robertson.
Dec. 6—Egypt, Mrs. L. P. D. Tilley.
Dec. 13—The Nile, Mrs. L. P. D. Tilley.

The free course of lectures will open in January and will be given each Thursday afternoon during January, February and March.

The ladies have decided upon holding a public at home in the new building when everything is in shape there. Invitations will be issued to the extent of several hundreds. At present the work of transferring and setting up the museum is in course of progress. The museum is being moved at the time and it is not expected that the museum will be in proper shape before the first of the new year. The museum will be open every afternoon to the public from 2 to 6 o'clock. The additional room available for each lecture will be shown to the best advantage.

It has been suggested that $2,000 which the Dominion government stands willing to give towards erecting a monument to Champlain be given to the society, which would set apart a Champlain room, containing curios of the French occupation.

The meeting was adjourned until Monday next at 4 p. m., when the reports will be submitted and the officers elected.

MONTGOMERY NEWS

A pretty home wedding took place at noon today at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Hunter, when their eldest daughter, Miss Lillian May, was united in marriage to J. P. Allen, a local barister, formerly of Port Egin. The bride was given in a handsome wedding dress of white tulle and lace over white chiffon tulle, with veil of Brussels lace. Her bridesmaids wore a beautifully embroidered bright veil, carrying a bouquet of orange blossoms. Little Miss Muriel Ames of Oxford, N. S., acted as bridesmaid, and Master John Vereker as page. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Stothard.

Mrs. Narcisse Belliveau, a resident of Dorchester Road, had her arm badly broken a few mornings ago. She was unliking a horse, when the animal kicked, one of his hoofs striking Mrs. Belliveau on the arm.

Felix Boudreau of Shediac, a large ardent, in his arm, and for a time it was feared he would bleed to death. A doctor finally stopped the flow of blood.

JUDGE NOT.

By LELIA BURTON WELLS.

"Did I remember the luncheon?" She lifted her hands to her head and laughed aloud, and then, seeing the surprise in his face, recovered herself and said scornfully: "Do you suppose I would forget such an easy road to a man's heart? Yes, I remembered, with this sea and sky before me, I want to sail and sail, away and away into the gold of the sunset." She turned her long eyes toward the west.

Ferrol smiled, and taking off his white hat, he let the breeze blow through his hair, and asked with an uncompleted laugh: "What would you do when you go there?" leaning forward and trying to meet her eyes.

"What would I do? Buy myself gown all purple and gold, and a cloak of that deepest pink, and capture a white cloud for a hat!"

He smiled sympathetically. "It seems to me you have a cloud already," he ventured, indicating with a wave of his hand the fluff of white that was piled like a bird ready to fly, on her fair hair.

"Call you that a cloud?" She reached for it scornfully. "This! Why, I would have scorned to wear it in the States, but in this land where headgear is not plentiful, it assumes a fictitious value. Poor old thing!" turning it around regretfully. "It was once my best beloved, and now it is not worth a penny. How weary of mortal we possessors."

Ferrol tossed a burnt-out cigar into the water and watched her reflectively. "I look very fit to me," he said with quiet indifference. "I'll give you two pence for it myself."

She smiled. "What a miser you are! Only a dollar gold. Why, Langdon will do better than that—won't you?" turning ingratiatingly to her husband.

A spot of gray curled in her cheeks, and the falling sun caught the gold in her hair that drooped, Madonna-wise, about her face. She looked very lovely.

Captain Love felt in the pockets of his blouse and pulled out a little pile of silver and some crumpled bills.

"I might raise him one just for luck," he answered smiling.

"One!" scornfully. "I can see that you don't appreciate the value of these things! Why, the milliner's name inside is worth more than that. Mr. Ferrol, I can't believe you dream of giving a miser for a miserable three pence?"

She flitted the snowy nothing around on her hand before his amused eyes.

He gave a gigantic sigh. "It is near the end of the month," he complained, but he put up his hand and laid a dollar. "What do you say, Lang?"

Captain Love gravely selected a second bill from his pile and laid it with the first.

"I stay in," he remarked laconically, and puffed a ring of smoke up to the sky.

"You do, do you?" Sitting up with sudden dashing eagerness and feeling that he was being deceived, he said: "What! Do you say to a raise of five gold?"

Mrs. Love stared for a moment and then she said: "You didn't think you were talking. I see that you at last realize the value of the article you are bidding for!"

"I offered five gold," with a yell simulated air of importance. "Make it six," turning to her husband and putting out an imploring hand.

"Seven—seven—seven. Make it eight!"

"Eight!" A displeased frown had settled between Love's eyes, and he looked past the other man at the waiting hills. They were dark and tragic.

"Ten dollars gold," from Ferrol.

Mrs. Love gave a little gasp of excitement and addressed her property admiringly: "You didn't think you would ever bring ten dollars gold at second hand—did you, adorable old hat? Going for ten dollars gold—going, going, go!"

"Fifteen," Love leaned quickly forward, his eyes wide with light. "I'll take that! I'll take that!" he said, and held out his hand.

"Wait," interrupted the other man stubbornly. "I'll raise you five!"

Mrs. Love shrank back before the passion in the two faces. The hat dived in her hand.

"I think," she said tremulously, "I had better let it go."

"No!" retorted Love, and his voice rang over the silent water in unbridled anger. "I'll take that! I'll take that! I'll take that! I'll take that!"

"It is enough!" He nodded and tried to laugh, but Love reached out an angry hand for the hat. His eyes were narrow and started. His wife, trembling, tendered the airy trifle of contention, but as she held it out a light and sudden breeze sprang up and snatched it from her. It fluttered like a white bird for an instant, and then, rising, floated far out on the water.

"Oh, my hat, my hat!" she wailed frantically. "Somebody get it—get it quick!"

Both men sprang forward, but it was too late. The current was bearing its worthless treasure to the sea.

Ferrol tore off his coat with quick energy.

"I'll get it," he shouted, laughing. "Watch me make the rescue!"

"Don't be a fool!"

Love put out a fierce, detaining hand and his eyes were on fire.

They stared at each other for an instant, and then Ferrol shook himself free.

Again the stronger man detained him.

"If anyone goes for that hat—I will go," he said, with surprised passion. "I'll watch it, Evelyn. Sit down, Ferrol. This is my affair—I desire no interference." And with a great sweep of his mighty arm he plunged into the waiting water.

The two in the boat watched him in stunned silence. The woman's cheeks were white as a sheet, and her heart was fluttering under her thin bodice. The man watched that fluttering furiously. How pure she was and how beautiful! Her mouth curved at the corners into little plaintive dimples, and the skin on her temples was soft like a young child's. There, under the shadow of that softly drooping hair, a man might lay his lips. He knocked his hands together, but the unburned flesh. How roughly she had been handled—that white blouse, some of a woman. Cruel words had brought these shadows in her eyes, and neglected indifference that pale, delicate droop to the lovely lips where no rough voice should startle her cold hands.

He suddenly leaned forward as if to touch that hand on which the wedding ring was glittering brightly, but the woman's eyes were turned away. She was watching the rescue of her hat.

Love had caught it and was waving it aloft in triumph. He was swimming quite easily with one arm, his dark head the only spot on the silent water. Instinctively the two in the boat turned and looked into each other's eyes.

It was such a little thing—that speck upon the water—and it was all that lay between them and happiness. One puny life. A wave might wash over it, and a weed entangle it, and then—

Mrs. Love turned ashen, as the thought found lodgment in her brain. To what depths had she not sunk, and she had held herself so high! With a burning flush she put out her hands to cover her face, when suddenly, up to the sunning heavens a cry was heard—the fearful, strangled cry of a strong man in mortal fear!

The frivolous white hat had fluttered from her husband's grasp and he struggled in the water with all a demon's strength.

"It looks very fit to me," he said, and then like a flash, turned—paused—and looked into her eyes.

She stared. What a question, and for one fearful degrading moment she hesitated, and then something seemed to snap in her brain and she gave a long moan as one who has looked with uncovered eyes at death.

"Go!" she panted, screaming and pushing him with her hands. "Go, go!"

And Ferrol went.

She watched him as he swam out—far out—not with the steady, strong stroke of that other, but in quick uneven spurts. Did it mean the end for both? Must she stand still and watch them die? Had she sent them both to eternity?

She stumbled toward the tiller and tried to turn the boat, but the breeze was futile. She snatched an oar and tried to paddle with it, but it was useless. A red light zigzagged before her eyes. She never saw anything but red again, she who had had murder in her heart!

Her husband—her own—the core of her heart, the pulse of her lips. She had had to see that death's hand to know! What did it matter whether he tortured her, or neglected her, or made her life a misery? She was bound to him as closely as the petals is bound to the rose. She had been willing that he should die. She had looked at that other man's eyes and—

"O God!" she wailed, mumbling the words on her white lips. "Be merciful! Don't let me be that unnamable thing—spare him, only spare him and punish—me—all—the rest—of—my life!"

She rocked back and forth and hid her eyes that she might not see those in the water; that she might not see—

Ferrol was swimming slowly. His passion had taken his breath. The current swept him along.

He could see that Love was still holding his own and he called out to him encouragingly. "Keep on, keep on, keep on!"

He was slow work. Leaden weights seemed to be tied to his feet—his arms—his legs. The top of a water-turbine touched him. He was swimming too near the shore for safety. He was struggling, panting, choked a moment, and then—his presence of mind. If he sank it was the end! He heard, as in a dream, a rough voice saying, "And poor devil, we found him four days later tangled in the rushes at the bottom of the Laguna. He didn't have a ghost of a chance from the beginning."

Ferrol fought and cried out. When had he heard those words? They should not kill him, they were only words. He struggled as if he were fighting off some beast of prey, but it was no use. Down, down into eternity. He had not thought it was such a long way.

The lip of the water was sweet against his cheek. It was like a woman's kiss. When had a woman kissed him? It must have been long ago. The water was clear, his brain and he could not think. Ah, he knew now—it was his mother's kiss he remembered; and her hand rocking his cradle—back and forth, back and forth. What a heavenly mother! And that was her voice crooning him a lullaby. She was telling him to go to sleep. He struggled a little, as children often will—and then, with a smile of utter content, closed his eyes.

Love, battling with all his superb strength against the current, saw him sink. He turned toward the spot, swimming with almost superhuman effort, but his muscle was nothing to that relentless tide, that filled him with the only terror he had ever known.

His staring eyes searched the silver water with breathless terror. Ferrol was nowhere to be seen! The Laguna had devoured another victim, and the cruel waters lay silently hugging their fearful secret.

Love looked in desperation to the tiny boat equitably flitting its sail in the wind. It was never come. Must he share Ferrol's weedy grave? . . . He shouted with all his remaining strength, his bloodied eyes fixed on that white hope. Why did she not come? He saw her standing straight and tall in the bow of the boat. His wife! What would heaven be without her? Without those slender feet that had walked beside him in his beautiful harmony through the years? She had made him so happy, so happy, and he was losing her. He called again and again, and breathing hard, settled down to fight for his life. He would not die while her arms waited for him. Ferrol had died, but then there was nothing to hold him to mourn. He was no one to care, no one to mourn. He

For Family Colds

A reliable cough and cold cure should be always in the house ready for use the moment the first symptoms appear. It is always easier, cheaper and better to check a cold in the very beginning. It is safer, too.

Shilo's Consumption Cure, the Lung Tonic, has been tested for thirty-three years, and tens of thousands of homes in Canada and the United States today are never without it.

A dealer writes: "Shilo's Consumption Cure is the best remedy for Coughs and Colds on the market. Once used, my customers will never do otherwise. I have never known it fail."

If it were anything but the best would be so? Try it in your own family. It does not cure, you get back all it cost you. We take all the chances. Neither you nor your dealer can lose. Isn't that fair? Yes, it is the price. All dealers in medicine sell.

SHILOH

was glad that there was no one to meet her. He closed his eyes to rest a moment, when suddenly an angel's voice called. It came from far off, being faint and sweet. He wanted to sleep, but it called and called, and then, without warning of any kind, as he opened his eyes, something white hovered over him and straining arms clasped and lifted him up.

He gave a mighty shout and raised himself. The mist cleared from before his eyes and his hands touched something solid! It was wood! His wet fingers closed on it like talons, and he struggled like a crazy man, but still those wonderful retaining arms held him. He did not know how long they held him, and he scarcely marvelled at their almost superhuman strength, when they lifted him up and dragged him into the bottom of the boat; and he lay there staring into his wife's white face.

It was paler than he had ever seen it, and the eyes burned like two lights before a sanctuary. And he stared, and stared—and as if he had seen something very strange and beautiful. Presently she knelt down sobbing, and brushed the wet hair from his eyes, and put her face against his face, and her lips against his eyelids in the old, long moan as one who has looked with uncovered eyes at death.

"Go!" she panted, screaming and pushing him with her hands. "Go, go!"

And Ferrol went.

GERMAN THREAT DOES NOT ALARM AUSTRALIA

Will Still Grant a Preference to England and May Follow Canada's Example.

MONTREAL, Sept. 19.—The Star's London correspondent cables, Germany's people determined to drive the British Empire into commercial unity, the British free trader notwithstanding. The threat to treat Australia as a separate Canada, because of the proposed Australian preference of the tariff, has caused the Australian authorities here to investigate the results of Germany's tariff. While Australia's total trade with Germany is less than $3,000,000, Germany buys less from Australia by six times than Australia from Germany. Australia and New Zealand, France, are all better consumers than Germany.

NEARING TEN MILLIONS.

Toronto Having Marvellous Building Record—Thus Far Permits Are a Million and a Half Ahead of Last Year.

(Toronto Globe.)

Over nine million dollars invested in buildings in Toronto since the beginning of the year, is the city's record, and one considerably ahead of any previous year. Up to September 15th the building permits for 1906 were $1,531,740 ahead of last year at this date, and $4,965,580 in advance of 1904. The figures are:

1906 . . . . .	9,120,683
1905 . . . . .	7,588,943
1904 . . . . .	4,155,102

In August of last year the permit for the "Traders' Bank at $400,000 was granted, and is included in the figures for 1905.

During the last three days of last week a staff of the city architect's office passed upon plans for buildings representing an approximate value of $4,575. These included plans for twenty-six new dwellings, most of them being of the $3,000 class. A permit was granted for the new Metropolitan Tabernacle which will be erected at 648 Markham street, and which will cost $80,000. Alterations will be made to the Union Bank at Wellington street, and those improvements will cost $80,000. The value represented by building permits issued during the first fifteen days of September was $400,158, a slight falling off from the record for the first half of September last year, which was $520,158. The figures for the entire month of September last year were $877,665.

METHODIST CONFERENCE

Delegation From Presbyterian Church Heard

Dr. Chown Moved Strong Resolution Concerning Opium Traffic in China—Editor of Wesleyan Chosen

MONTREAL, Sept. 19.—Last night a large audience greeted Bishop Kelley, official delegate from the M. E. Church. Bishop Kelley is an ideal representative. He is the impersonation of ecclesiastical dignity in appearance and manner. He was at sight accorded a hearty and unanimous welcome and frequently interrupted by spontaneous and long continued applause. He confessed upon opening a chair and eloquent address that he could not feel as if he was a stranger. He found his own language and customs. He spoke briefly and feelingly of the character and gifts of his predecessors in the office of delegate to the Canadian church.

The things upon which we agree, said Bishop Kelley, are multitudinous and fundamental. Here is the North American continent given to you and us. France and Spain have taken their departure from this land and left us in control. It is said that the nineteenth century belonged to the United States, and the twentieth to Canada. The United States is not half developed yet and with Canada side by side, we will win the continent for God.

We have much in common as churches; we have the apostolic succession, for the only real proof yet found of apostolic succession is apostolic success. He could testify to the success of his own communion. We hold fast to the apostolic succession; by it we live and in it we win the world for God.

He gave some statistics relative to the work of the Methodist Church in the United States, showing the great strides the church there was making. He said he was glad England was in India, Egypt and South Africa, and hoped she would stay there.

Speaking of the character of preaching in Methodism, he said that while you may not so often as in the past hear the personal appeal or an effort to get a "verdict on the spot" it is yet more practical and has more meat than ever before.

It has less of metaphysics and philosophy and more of genuine life and earnestness. An educated minister is a necessity. He was glad to learn of the high educational standard of the Canadian Methodist church. The spirit of union is abroad in the church of the world. Here in Canada you are going to unite with the Presbyterian and Congregational churches. "Where shall we find you, Mr. General Superintendent, four years hence?" (Laughter.) He said that the Methodist method of propaganda is the best in the world and acknowledged as such far and wide. He spoke of the union of the English speaking people of the world and drew forth prolonged applause as he finished his address.

The motion of appreciation was moved by the Rev. William Dawson of Charlottetown in a characteristically philosophical and eloquent manner. The motion was seconded by E. E. Elliott and passed by a rising vote.

The representatives of the Presbyterian church of Canada were then introduced, and consisted of the Rev. ends Principal Selinger, Campbell and Scott and Judge Archibald.

amid applause said that he hoped the day would soon dawn when these churches would form a solid phalanx for the entire world to repulse God. Bishop Kelley was taken today as the giving of information to the press by the committee by Mr. Waugh of Hamilton, but the conference ignored it. Notice of motion was given asking for the removal of the time limit in the case of city missionaries.

Dr. Chown moved a strong resolution concerning the opium traffic in China, characterizing it as the greatest enemy to the spread of Christianity in that land, stating it to be an unjust infringement on the rights of China by Great Britain and a blot on the name of the British Empire and civilization, and endorsing transference of the resolution through the Canadian government to Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman. The resolution was seconded by Chancellor Burwash, supported by Dr. Sutherland, Dr. Shaw and other prominent members of the conference and unanimously carried.

At a meeting of the maritime delegation of the conference yesterday Dr. MacLean, editor of the Wesleyan, finally declined further nomination for the editorship of that paper.

Long known in the maritime church for his sterling and unaffected manliness and fairness, good business ability and directness of expression both in speech and writing, was the selection of the committee for the editorship. This will doubtless be confirmed by the general conference. The Rev. Geo. Stone received very strong support. The Rev. H. Hickey and F. W. Desbarres also proved favorites with a good many of the delegates.

Racial changes will be recommended by the missionary committee in its next report. Among their proposals are the following: To separate the home and foreign missions, and appoint a secretary for each. Both of these have been in a sub-committee at large to promote the interests of the work over their locality.

Besides these officers to appoint a general treasurer. It will also be proposed to do away with all intermediate officers and make all financial matters direct between each mission and the general treasurer, who will receive all moneys direct and make prompt, direct payment of all disbursements to salaries.

Dr. Sutherland spoke on the question at large. He said there was a divergence in the committee as to the best means of carrying out the proposed change. He opposed appealing the home and foreign work. He also opposed appointing two missionary secretaries and two field secretaries. He opposed the opinion that it would take four men to do the work one man is doing now, and said that such an arrangement would cost more than it was worth. He concluded his remarks with profoundly dignified and touching words to the thirty years he had spent in office and the fifty-one years in the office in the ministry, and said that whether in the office or on the staff, he had but a few more years before he goes henceforth and that it made comparatively little difference to him now where he spends those years.

Whatever the policy of the church if it succeeds he will willingly acknowledge its success.

Dr. Sutherland spoke with deep feeling, and members of the conference were much touched by his references. Dr. Huestis of Halifax said that he hoped that Dr. Sutherland would still be associated with the missionary work of the church.

On motion report was taken by item and the conference rose. The outcome of this report will be watched with great interest.

Yesterday an accident that almost proved fatal occurred at the department store of J. Murphy Co., Ltd., where a large number of delegates take their meals. One of the elevators containing Dr. Ellison, Rev. D. McPherson and others, including some ladies, fell five or six stories down the shaft.

Lightning-speed, the automatic clutch stopped it before it had gone far, but the shock injured the Rev. Dr. Stewart, delegate of Winnipeg, who is confined in the hospital. The elevator stopped between floors, and the occupants had to be removed through the top.

A horse belonging to James McKinney, of Bentley street, met its death last night by falling into a sewer excavation between the owner's house and the street. The hole was just large enough to admit the body of the animal, and its neck got twisted, between the chutes or another.

The North End hook and ladder company was summoned by still alarm, but the horse was dead when they arrived.

The Jewish new year began last evening, and will continue until sunset on Friday. It was recognized here in the usual manner.

SENATOR LOVITT GUILTY, SAYS NOVA SCOTIA JURY

Convicted of Falsifying Accounts of Yarmouth Bank—Sentence Suspended and Bail Granted—Appeal Will be Made—Perjuror Sentenced to Three Years in Dorchester.

(Special to the Star.)
YARMOUTH, Sept. 19.—The case of the King against Hon. John Lovitt was continued in the supreme court at Yarmouth this afternoon when the jury after being out for fifteen minutes returned with a verdict of guilty. In the morning Y. E. Staver was put on the stand by the crown and gave a technical examination of current laws and evidence. Mr. Thorne, manager of the Union Bank, was called by the defense and stated that, as bank president, he knew Lovitt, and that he made up the monthly statement, which was signed by the president, cashier and accountant. It would be impossible for the president of a bank to sign the statement, as it would be a violation of the law. Mr. Thorne, however, stated that he had seen the statement signed by Lovitt, and that he knew him to be a man of integrity and honesty.

THIRD BODY TAKEN FROM RUINS OF OTTAWA HOTEL

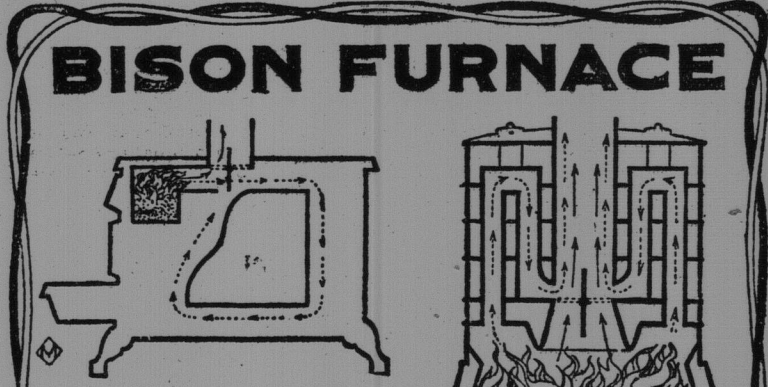

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—Portions of a third body were found today in the ruins of the Gilmour Hotel, but identification is impossible. Tomorrow a careful medical examination will be made to see whether the remains belong to a man or woman. It is almost certain that Mrs. Beckett, the widow of the hotel owner, is the woman who was found in the hotel at the time of the fire and they may be her remains, but that is more conjecture.

Bre. Leckie, superintendent of the Burnside Hotel, at Perth, and Miss C. and a lady visitor, identified the remains of Mrs. Beckett, and have taken them to Perth to be buried in a plot belonging to the Burnside Hotel.

OUTRAGEOUS PRICES FOR SCHOOL BOOKS IN ONTARIO

TORONTO, Sept. 19.—The evidence of Richard Southam, president of the Mail Job Printing Company, before the government text book commission, at the education department, this morning, stated that the cost of public school books at present is about 25 to 30 per cent. too high.

"We will supply the same books to the department for 25 to 30 per cent. less than is now paid."

Drafts in the Bison Hot Water Furnace work on exactly the same principle as in a kitchen range.

Its direct draft will give a roaring fire in "no time," and its side and down draft will bring the water to the boiling point very quickly.

Every heat unit in the fuel is utilized, its draft construction preventing any escaping.

The Bison has more good heating points than all other heaters combined.

MANTELL'S HAMLET WELL RECEIVED

Gave a Splendid Performance in the Character of the Melancholy Dane

Hamlet, Prince of Denmark, was presented at the Opera House last evening. Mr. Mantell's representation was powerful. In the scene between Rosencrantz and Guildenstern, in which he compels them to acknowledge that they have been sent by the king to entice him back to the scene of his former festivities, again when the "actors" first make their appearance, and chiefly in his acting during the play scene he was seen to great advantage. In this scene he introduces several trivial movements, all tending to hold the attention of the audience to the main thread of the story.

Perhaps the best example of his ability was given in the scene with the queen, when he pictures to her the vast difference between her first husband, his father, and her present spouse, his uncle.

Miss Marie Booth Russell as Ophelia was excellent, particularly in her acting of the "Mad Ophelia," when she meets her brother Laertes, and also in presenting the flowers to the King and Queen.

Miss Lillian Kingsbury played the part of Gertrude well, maintaining her queenly dignity throughout the play, and in the scene with Hamlet, when the ghost appears for the second time, was excellent.

Gordon Burby has two parts, one as the ghost, and the other as the leader of the players. He appeared well in both parts, being especially good in the play scene.

Franklin Bendsten also appeared in a double role, and as the grave digger.

gave that character a new meaning to the lovers of Shakespeare present. His gifts were very well delivered and his get up was also extra good.

Alfred Hastings as Polonius, acted very consistently throughout the piece. He has since been acting on Sheffield street with a colored woman. Last night Sergt. Campbell and Officer White entered the house in search of the man. At first he was not to be found, but a closer investigation revealed him huddled up in a cupboard, apparently suffering from a sudden attack of acute remorse.

When hailed forth by the policemen he fell on his knees and besought the pity of the officers. He solemnly promised to return to his family and to forsake his evil ways for at least six months. He was allowed to start on his path towards reform.

Before Judge Forbes yesterday afternoon the case was taken up of Nathan Erion of Moncton, who got into difficulties and a composition deed was entered into whereby Erion agreed to pay forty-five cents on the dollar. Guarantee of payment was given by Silas Cassidy and Isaac Bell, and it is against these parties that the action is brought by J. Shano & Co. to recover the whole or part of the amount agreed to be paid under the deed. Dr. A. W. Macfarlane for the plaintiff and M. G. Teed, K. C., for the defendant. The court adjourned until this morning at 10.30, to permit the plaintiffs a chance to produce their books.

While coming up the Carleton ferry yesterday afternoon a lady attempted to pass a team owned by Syre & Holly when it was going through the gates. The lady was crushed in between the gates and the lumber laden slown. She was soon extricated from her perilous position, but not before several of her toes had been badly crushed and she had received a severe shaking up.

The fire department was called out last evening at 6.45 to extinguish a blaze in the basement of Harry Harvey's residence on Coburg street. The fire was soon extinguished. As coal was being stored in the cellar it is thought that the blaze was caused by spontaneous combustion.

A sailor from the schr. Selma has adopted a new method of keeping appointments. His vessel is anchored at the lower end of South Rodney slip, and as he was in a hurry to catch the ferry he saw the only way to reach the boat in time was to cross the mud in Rodney slip. So grabbing up a pair of new boots from his trunk he hurried across, and when he reached the toll house changed his shoes, leaving the muddy ones to be called for upon his return. His trip across the mud caused amusement to the crowd waiting for the boat, but it is hardly likely his manner of attaining punctuality will be largely copied.

Rev. A. G. H. Dicker, who has accepted the call to St. Luke's church, Toronto, will preach his farewell sermon in St. Paul's church on Sunday, October 7th. Rev. Mr. Dicker has been pastor of St. Paul's church for fourteen years.

One of the largest cucumbers seen in the city this year was shown to a Star representative yesterday. It was the property of W. L. McKelvie, and measured nearly eighteen inches in length. The cucumber contained very few seeds and was indeed a fine specimen.

The Star has received a copy of the Dominion exhibition number of the Halifax Chronicle. It is a large magazine of thirty-six pages, with an artistically colored cover and contains a mass of information on Canada, along with many cuts of the more interesting scenes.

Last night Policeman Finley was called into a house in Harrigan's alley, off Brussels street, to quell a disturbance. The house is kept by Frank Croley (white) and Minnie Burns (colored). The result of the policeman's visit is that Naim and the Burns woman have been reported to the police court for keeping a disorderly house.

Letters of administration de bonis non of the estate of Margaret Croley have been granted in probate court to William Young and James Johnston, the executors of the last will and testament of John Croley, the only heir and next kin to the late Margaret Croley. The unadministered estate values at $400, deposited in the Dominion Savings Bank in this city, Bowyer S. Smith, executor.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union will hold its seventh triennial convention at Boston from October 17 to 24. The delegates from the St. John's district will be Mrs. James H. Gray of Fairville. Among the St. John ladies who will attend the convention are Mrs. Chas. H. Dearborn, Mrs. Howard Sprague, and Mrs. T. H. Bullock.

Rev. E. E. Jenkins, of Kansas, who has been living in Thornetown for the past year, has been asked to remain and be the pastor of the Thornetown and Cole's Island church. During his stay at Thornetown, Mr. Jenkins preached for both congregations and now the people don't want to lose him. It is probable that Rev. Mr. Jenkins will accept. He is a brother of Deputy Chief Jenkins.

A nice moose head arrived by express yesterday consigned to Mr. Douglas Roberts, son of the well known literary man, Prof. C. G. D. Roberts. The head had antlers with a spread of about forty inches and were very symmetrical in their formation. The animal was shot on Saturday about noon by Alex. Vance, a guide in the Magalloway Lake section. This is the second head which has been brought to the city this year, and while there will be larger ones come in during the season there will be none with immense antlers passed on by the city yesterday, says that a moose with immense antlers passed through the field at her home so close to the house that she could have shot it very easily. Had she killed the animal she felt sure that its antlers would have had a spread as wide as any which will be seen this year—Gleaner.

IN COUNTY COURT CHAMBERS.

Before Judge Forbes this morning the Young resume of J. Shans & Co. against Silas Cassidy and Isaac Sellick, who are alleged to have guaranteed the payment by Nathan Erion of Moncton of forty-five cents on the dollar, an agreement made under a composition. The case was concluded and the case for the defendant heard. M. G. Teed for the plaintiff said that the plaintiffs were guaranteed without consideration and therefore had the right to every defence of the law. The contract of guarantee was entered into upon the distinct understanding that it be signed by all parties, this had not been done and it was arranged and understood that the plaintiffs, S. Shans & Co., were to receive more than the forty-five cents on the dollar.

A PICTURE TAKEN

Cuban Insurgents Are a Free and Easy Crowd.

Robert Matthew, of Santa Clara, Tells the Star Some Interesting Facts of That Country.

Mr. Robert Matthew, president of the Columbia Colony Company of Cuba, is spending a portion of the summer at Moss Glen. Mr. Matthew is a former St. John man but has been in business in Cuba for the past eight years and during that time has gained an intimate knowledge of conditions in that country, both in politics and commerce. The property which Mr. Matthew controls is situated in the Santa Clara province about twenty-five miles from Cienfuegos and not far from the plantation in which George W. Fowler is interested. It is owned by an American company, and is for the most part a sugar plantation. The whole contains roughly twenty-two hundred acres, of which sixteen hundred are planted in sugar cane, the remainder being grazing land for on the ranch are some three hundred head of cattle.

During Mr. Matthew's absence the plantation is in charge of Mr. Wilfred E. Wetmore, of Clifton, N. B., Mr. Matthew's administrator, and Robert Matthew, of Kingsville, is also there. When Mr. Matthew left Cuba a few weeks ago there was absolutely no talk of an uprising. On the steamer coming north he was thrown in with a number of men who were in a position to know the feeling of the country, and none of those to whom Mr. Matthew spoke had any idea that trouble was so near. Mr. Matthew was consequently much surprised when he first heard of the present revolution. He had believed that during the last fighting Cuba had learned a lesson and that nothing would be rashly undertaken which would tend to injure the well being of the country.

Mr. Matthew since coming north has received a number of very interesting letters from Mr. Wetmore. As the plantation is in the district where the disturbance exists, Mr. Wetmore has been having varied experiences with the revolutionists, though as yet no damage has been done to the property. He states that on some six occasions the insurgents have visited the plantation and have paid him visits and have commandeered half a dozen horses. They are friendly enough as yet and show no inclination to destroy property. In his last letter Mr. Wetmore enclosed a photograph of himself of a band of upwards of a hundred Cubans on the warpath, under the leadership of Eusebio Salas. They had called to borrow horses, being on the march, but willingly forgot all about the war, made themselves look as pretty as possible, and lined up to have their picture taken. This was the largest party that had visited the plantation up till that time, but Mr. Wetmore expected others. He expresses the opinion that the strongest men on the side of the insurgents are Guzman in the Santa Clara province, in the centre, and Pino Guerra in Pinar del Rio, in the west. They and their forces have now control of practically the whole of these provinces with the exception of the towns.

President Palma was enlisting all the men who could be found willing to fight on his side, and Mr. Wetmore tells that out of a party of recruits secured at Cienfuegos seventeen were of the insurgents who after obtaining muskets and large supplies of ammunition went back to their own area, well armed against the government. This is going on everywhere, and desertion is one of the greatest difficulties against which Palma has to contend. Mr. Wetmore does not anticipate any serious trouble at the plantation, but at the same time he is prepared for whatever may arise.

Mr. Wetmore goes on to tell of political and commercial conditions in Cuba. The party in power, he says, conduct the elections to suit themselves and the opposition seldom receive a fair hearing. The present trouble arose from the methods pursued in the last election resulting in the success of a number of officials who are regarded as undesirable. The liberals, believing they did not get fair treatment at the polls, endeavored to secure it by force of arms. They will be satisfied with a new election or even with the deposition of several who now hold office. But in Mr. Matthew's opinion Cuba will never take her proper place while the present unstable form of government exists. Her salvation will be in annexation by the United States, and this cannot come any too soon. The credit of the country would be on a firmer basis, the monetary system would be revised, and instead of the present uncertainty on the part of capitalists there would be a restoration of confidence, followed by largely increased investments.

Cuba has possibilities for development such as are found in but few other countries. The soil is rich, and the climate all that could be desired. It is very rarely that crops are damaged or destroyed by changes in the weather. Of course by speculating on the market a man may lose, but a planter who is guided by his own business sense seldom fails. Mr. Matthew, speaking on his own line of work, said that on his plantation the annual output of sugar cane is two million pounds. This is sent to a central factory where the sugar is extracted, the factory retaining forty per cent. of the product in payment. The yield is from two to three tons of raw sugar to the acre and this is now selling at two and a half cents per pound. Sugar is cash, and the returns are immediate. The property is sold by rail to Cienfuegos twenty-five miles distant, and sold either there or in New York. Mr. Matthew, who arranges to spend some weeks in New Brunswick each summer, will return to Cuba about the first of October unless he is summoned before that time.

David McAlpine, nephew of H. M. McAlpine, who left for the west on the harvesters' excursion in August, has secured a lucrative position, with the C. P. R. at Winnipeg.

WHY

OUR BOYS' CLOTHING IS JUST AS GOOD—AND CHEAPER—THAN FASTIDIOUS AMERICAN MAKES . . .

THE Men who Design our Children's Suits and Overcoats are thoroughly expert. They earn princely salaries. Every season they reproduce in detail the very best models created for those much-advertised child outfitters, DePinna, Lilliputian Bazaar, Wilralph and others, thus keeping in immediate touch with New York and Chicago novelties, as well as introducing many of their own. The clothing is made by the most thoroughgoing and reputable concern in Canada and sold by us less the duty and expressage that some short-sighted people pay on American goods.
