A FORTUNE
Inherited by few, is pure blood, free from hereditary taint. Catarrh, consumption, rheumatism, Scrofula, and many other maladies born in the blood, can be effectually eradicated only by the use of powerful alteratives.
The standard specific for this purpose —the one best known and approved—is Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the compound, concentrated extract of Honduras sarsaparilla, and other powerful alteratives.

"I consider that I have been several hundred dollars' expense by using Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and would strongly urge all who are troubled with lameness or rheumatic pains to give it a trial. I am sure it will do them permanent good, as it has done me."—Mrs. Joseph Wood, West Plattsburgh, N. Y.

Dr. J. W. Shields, of Smithville, Tenn., says: "I regard Ayer's Sarsaparilla as the best blood medicine on earth, and know of many wonderful cures effected by its use."
"For many years I was laid up with Scrofula, and treatment being of no benefit, I used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after taking three bottles, I was completely cured."—E. C. Cull, Mt. Lewis, Miss.

By Taking about a dozen bottles, was restored to perfect health—weighing 250 pounds, and an active believer in the merits of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. —James H. Hays, Brockton, Mass. (Lancet, Victoria, Ky.)
"My niece, Sarah A. Lane, was for years afflicted with scrofulous humor in the blood.
About 18 months ago she began to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after taking three bottles was completely cured."—E. C. Cull, Mt. Lewis, Miss.

SAFE NO. 27.
BY CARLOS KING.
(Conclusion.)
I passed a sleepless night, thinking over the whole situation. It was impossible to avoid the conclusion that some danger menaced Miss Gower's jewels, yet, at present, it was so intangible that I could not make up my mind to take anyone into my confidence. I was not afraid of an attack upon the vault; it was too strongly guarded. I could only think of one plan by which I could insure the safety of the jewels, and to follow out that plan might place myself in an awkward predicament. I resolved upon it, however, and waited my opportunity.
The first time old John Seaton went away for a few hours, leaving the keys with me, as usual, I went to the vault, straight to Safe 27. I took out the iron-clamped box, opened it, and removed the jewel level case, of which Miss Gower alone held the key. I put a small letter weight or two in the box, and filled it up with copies of old deeds, receipts, and such worthless documents. I replaced the box in Safe 27 and locked it carefully.
The letter case I took up to the second floor, to my own room, deposited it in a strong little box of my own, and that in the bottom of my wardrobe, which was always securely locked. The event proved that I was right; but I positively troubled myself to think how easily I might have been arraigned as a thief had the jewels been found in my wardrobe.

About a week after I had transferred the letter case to my own keeping, John Seaton came into the bank, fresh and smiling as usual. After his pleasant and courteous greetings he presented to old John Seaton an order, written in Miss Gower's firm handwriting, bearing on its face the half of the secret code, and requested that the iron box containing Miss Gower's jewels be given to him.
I saw Mr. Seaton referring to his private ledger to verify the code, smiling the while at an amusing episode. He was reluctant in his gayest manner. I could scarcely contain my uneasiness. What if Hessel had the key of the letter case, and should wish to open it there? What if all were being done in good faith, and he should really convey the box to Miss Gower?

After a short absence, Mr. Seaton returned, bearing the iron box, which he wrapped up in brown paper, passing a strap around it for easy carrying. He detached the key from his own ring, and handed it also to Hessel.

"See you at Sir Gilbert's to-morrow," Varncomb called out Hessel, gayly, as he was passing out with his prize. I only nodded in response; in truth, I was almost incapable of speech without betraying my anxiety. The torture compressed into the next two hours was detached the key from his own ring, and
handed it also to Hessel.

persisted. "I asked Mr. Seaton to show me the key of the letter case, to be returned to me immediately. You showed them to my aunt, Mrs. Gower, of Havel-wicke, a few months ago, when I could not go with her at the time, and you brought me back the key yourself, Mr.
Varncomb."

"Very true; but I heard nothing of a key this morning, and Mr. Seaton is so precise and correct that I am certain he has not exceeded his instructions, as he understood them. I assure you, Miss Gower, that—"

I was interrupted by a movement of the company towards the door, and after a confirmatory nod from Lady Varncomb, in response to my enquiring glance, I offered my arm to Miss Gower, and we joined the procession, of which John Hessel did not form a part.

How does this matter strike you, Mr.
Varncomb? I asked Miss Gower, in a low tone, when we were surrounded by a subdued hum of voices at table.

"Well, I can scarcely offer an opinion as yet," I answered; "but I think it should be looked into, straight in the face, and at once, Miss Gower."

We did not again allude to the subject, but when we were all once more in the drawing room I saw that she continued to have a few moments' speech with her father, and I saw him glance towards me with uneasy perplexity. He approached me a little later and whispered under cover of a noisy duet on the piano-forte: Try to leave when we do, Varncomb, I must speak with you.

Truly the repose and self-control that "stamp the cast of Vere de Vere" are beautiful and admirable in themselves.
This father and daughter knew that the fate of a large fortune hung trembling in the balance, yet they smiled, conversed, enjoyed with high-bred ease and unmoved composure. They left early and I accompanied them. We drove straight to the bank and told John Seaton, who sat at great surprise and consternation, sent me down to the old empty office for Miss Gower's order, which I found filed with others in the manager's room. He read it aloud, and then handed it without comment to Miss Gower who looked astonished.

It is my own hand writing," she said, and yet I never wrote that I never mentioned either to night or to morrow in my note."

You see that I acted only on what I believed to be your instructions, Miss Gower," said John Seaton. "I cannot yet believe that an actual robbery has been committed. Varncomb will run you to the Windsor—it is not quite 11—and ask for Mr. Hessel?"

"And I'll go to the Cedars," cried Col.
Gower, eagerly. "He may have left there. I box at our house since we left there. I too, feel unwilling to believe that John Hessel has really taken the jewels—appropriated them—stolen them, in fact."

I sped away to the Windsor hotel, hoping Miss Gower would remain with John Seaton until my return—hoping, also, that the fretful invalid mother might not appear on the scene to precipitate my confusion with her jeremiads.
As I expected they had not been received at the Windsor since the early forenoon, and he had paid his bill, as he did punctually every week, the evening before. I went back with this news to the bank house. Miss Gower was still there; and within a few minutes of my return her father came in, triumphantly brandishing a letter. "This came for you, Eleanor, by the evening post. I have no doubt Mr. Hessel explains all satisfactorily."

Eleanor took the letter with some eagerness, and read aloud: My dear Miss Gower—I have at last obtained the object to which I have devoted months of patient waiting—the Havelwicke jewels. They are mine, by right, not yours; for I am John Hessel.
I am sorry to deprive you of them, but they are certainly mine.

JOHN HESSELDEINE.
The others turned bewildered looks on each other; but I, with the knowledge of that letter jewel case safe in my wardrobe upstairs, pictured the cool soundless collapse on opening and searching the iron box, and laughed aloud. John Seaton looked at me reproachfully: visions of Scotland Yard detectives on the trail, commotion among the Rawlin magnates in the city, possible reprisals and severities were evidently before his mind.

Col. Gower was intensely angry, and no wonder, at the cool manner in which we had all been hoodwinked.
"What will he deserve at your hands, Col. Gower?" I asked, "who will restore all the jewels, without one misleading word would let him name his own reward?"

The colonel looked at me grimly from under his shaggy eyebrows. "Yes," I would let him name it," he replied, with euphuism.

"And if he named what was promised to Schiller's 'Dyer'?" I persisted, boldly.
"He has really taken them grown very hot." He looked at me still more grimly, but with a twinkle in his eye, which I interpreted favorably. Miss Gower and John Seaton were talking together for whiskey by the window, who were their time and money away from their homes and families.—Society Journal.

Hon. Mr. Haggart said that the whole complaint, so far, was as to the redistribution in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. No reference was made to the other provinces. He did not think that section 51 was the full limitation of the British North America Act; it was the 40th section that made it complete. It might be done in such a way and at such a time as the parliament of Canada may determine. There was not the slightest reason to doubt that parliament had full authority to deal with this question. The power was not only given, but was mandatory on them to do so. This was the first occasion on which any such question was raised. The government proceeded to redistribute the seats in the fairest manner possible. (Trousseau) heard, from the opposition, Ontario was divided by a line running between Peel and York to Georgian Bay, giving 46 members for western Ontario and 46 members for the east part of the province. That was a fair way of dividing the representation in regard to the population which was about equal in divisions. If we adopted the amendment of the member for Simcoe it would be a gerrymander in the worst way. (Hear, hear.) Why all the counties would have to be changed, except eighteen in the province, give him the county lines and he would give such a gerrymander as would even bring the bulk of the vote to the member for North Simcoe. (Hear, hear.) Anybody could do the same thing. He would ask again what effect would such a redistribution have on the members of the opposition? Would it be satisfactory to either side of the house? Certainly not. As for the bill of 1885 no one was more respectful than the member for Simcoe. At that time Mr. McCarthy occupied a position in the house and had a influence with the government as strong as any member could have. It was strange for him now to move a bill of confidence motion in the government without giving any warning of it. (Cheers.)

After remarks from Mr. Casey, Mr. O'Brien, who seconded Mr. McCarthy's amendment, spoke strongly against the bill. He refused the charge of freemasonry which was hurled against Mr. McCarthy and which might be applied to himself as recorder. (Hear, hear.) He knew what "hear, hear," meant, but he was only elected to support the government or their trade policy which he always did.

Mr. Mason followed in support of the bill. He saw nothing in the measure which called for his opposition.

Mr. Patterson (Brent) supported the amendment.

Mr. Dennis followed, speaking in favor of the bill pointing out the manner in which Sir Oliver Mowat gerrymandered Ontario. Dr. Widdow held that section 50 of the B. N. A. Act was the readjustment as between provinces and provinces, but did not refer to redistribution as far as the electoral boundaries were concerned. What he meant by readjustment was that the province of Nova Scotia or New Brunswick would have so many members in accordance to what they were entitled in ratio to the members in Quebec. He applied distribution to the dividing up of this province into electoral districts, to which section 51 did not refer. He was free to confess that the redistribution of 1882 did very little credit to the parliament that passed it. But whether it was fair or not the result was that the liberal voters got their full representation in the house. The bill therefore did not do the work that it was expected to do. The wrong done, if they were wrong done, did not succeed on that occasion. It might be better to repeat the act of 1882, and go back to the old basis, but how could we do it. It might be heroic to pursue such a course as the amendment proposed, but it was not practical politics. By adhering to these constitutions as they exist today and providing some general way for the future redistribution, we put it out of the power of the evil which he referred to being again done. He recalled the redistribution that had been given to Mr. McCarthy from the minister of railways and others. McCarthy was not deserving of the attack which had been made against him by the member for Cumberland and the minister of railways.

Mr. Devin followed in favor of the bill.

Mr. Fiat moved the adjournment of debate, and the house adjourned at 12:45.

OTTAWA, June 8.—Mr. Fiat resumed the debate on the Redistribution bill. He admitted that the proposed bill was a gerrymander as far as Nova Scotia was concerned. It was the principle of the bill which he objected to.

Mr. Hughes followed dealing at length with the manner in which Oliver Mowat gerrymandered Ontario, yet the reformer never condemned him for doing so. He showed that Mowat through his gerrymander bill had power in Ontario today, notwithstanding that he had a minority of over 5,000 in the province. The reputation speaks of Messrs. McCarthy and O'Brien reminded him of the utterances of reformal rascals in religion.

Mr. McMillan followed against the bill.

Dr. Sprague followed Mr. McMillan, showing that the latter was all out in his figures in regard to the standing of parties after the last general election. The unfairness of Mr. McMillan was manifest when he took the returns of the last general election and compared them with the present standing of the house without ever considering the by-elections.

Dr. McDonald supported the bill. He accused Hughes of being a reformer at one time and having left the party because "he was a disappointed officer seeker. Hughes said that he left the reform party because they sold their selves to the Irish Catholics.

Mr. Coatsworth supported the bill and Mr. Sample opposed it. Mr. Boyle moved the adjournment of the debate and the house adjourned at 12:30.

NOTES.—Sir John Thompson was presented this afternoon by the liberal conservative members of the house with a magnificent group picture of the ministerial party in the commons, at the close of his first year as leader of the house. Dr. Chas. Ferguson, the oldest liberal conservative member made the presentation. He highly eulogized Sir John for his ability, integrity and services to his country. Sir John made an eloquent reply. He said the present was totally unexpected, but he accepted it in the spirit in which it was offered and would value it as containing the faces of men with whom he had shouldered to shoulder in the dark hours of adversity. He expressed himself as willing to accept any position which the liberal conservatives desired him to assume, whether in the ranker elsewhere, and could promise them faithful service. Sir John's remarks were loudly applauded. The significance of the presentation is commented on, seeing that Ontario members constitute the majority of the subscribers.

Hon. Mr. Cattanach entertained sixty of his friends to dinner in the house of commons restaurant this evening. The gathering was a most pleasant one. Hon. Mr. Cattanach proposed the toast of the House of Commons, and called on

Mr. Gilmer to respond. The latter made a witty reply. Hon. Mr. Bowell proposed the health of the host and referred to the pleasant intercourse between Hon. Mr. Cattanach and himself in parliament for the last twenty-five years. Hon. Mr. Cattanach made a feeling reply, and said that while not posing as the representative of the Irish Catholics in parliament, it could never be said of him that he had ever failed to assist a countryman when it was possible for him to do so.

OTTAWA, June 9.—In the house this afternoon a division was taken on the motion of Mr. Beausoleil to refer back to the committee on banking and commerce a bill which was thrown out for purpose of incorporating the National Mutual Loan and Banking society.

Hon. Mr. Foster and Sir John Thompson said that the bill was duly considered in committee and there would be no good in sending it back. The motion was lost by 53 for and 93 against.

Sir John Thompson put his motion taking Mondays for government.

In reply to Mr. Laurier, Sir John said all measures were brought down except the supplementary and railway subsidies. The motion was carried.

Mr. Boyle of Monck, resumed the debate on the redistribution bill. He agreed with the members of the house who would give full representation to cities. He supported the bill and showed that the amendment was wholly impracticable. The bill wiped out his own constituency.

Mr. Bain of Wentworth, whose constituency also disappears by the bill, followed, speaking against it.

After recess the debate was continued by Messrs. Cockburn, McMillan (Huron), McNeill, Lister, Montague, Mackintosh and Edward Christie.

The house then divided on the motion. The amendment was lost by 62 for and 109 against. The only liberal conservative who voted for the amendment were Col. O'Brien and Dalton McCarthy. The house adjourned at 1:05 a.m.

OTTAWA, June 10.—The house devoted the whole day to the Criminal Law bill. They passed from section 407 to section 510, which was very good progress, adjourning at 10:30 p.m.

For the better protection of salmon and trout in P.E.I. killed by persons under a pretence of spearing, eels from boats carrying torches, and fishing from boats with torches is prohibited in any waters of the province frequented by salmon and trout during the months of October, November and December.

The regulations under which spirits, tobacco and cigars may be ex-warehoused free of excise duty for ships' stores on regular lines of oceanic steamers have just been approved.

Sir Leonard Tilley was warmly greeted by all the parliamentary friends. He had a long talk with Sir John Abbott to-night.

A report current to-day that Sir John Thompson would leave for England immediately in connection with the Behring Sea arbitration, turns out, on investigation, to be totally without foundation.

Sir Richard Cartwright gives notice to-night of thirty-one questions arising out of the Globe's trial by newspaper publication. He wants to know whether the government intend to propose to lay their hands on his excellency, whether Sir A. P. Caron has denied the accuracy of the work that it was expected to do, and whether an investigation will be granted.

NEWS FROM EVERYWHERE.

A large fish-lying house is being erected at Annapolis by Mr. Thomas Whitman, who has invented a novel and efficient process of drying fish artificially under cover, quite independent of the weather. Mr. Whitman expects to have his dryer in operation in July. This should give employment and encouragement to his fishermen.—Weymouth Free Press.

LAREDO, Texas, June 8.—The drought on the lower Rio Grande border continues unbroken. The usually green grass is now barren as Sahara and seed planted in the spring has not sprouted. In this particular region the losses of live stock will be ninety per cent. Great destitution exists among the Mexican population, which comprises three-fourths of the inhabitants of this region and but for the contributions forwarded from various points in Texas, and by the Red Cross Society, hundreds would have starved to death.

The number of Nova Scotia fishing vessels this year is greater than ever before. There are not so many on the Grand Banks, but many more in the Labrador and North Bay fisheries. Thirty-five vessels have been fitted out from Halifax for the Labrador coast. Over forty sail have been added to the North Bay and Labrador fleet. The outlook is better.

Shediac harbor is to be restocked with oysters, and two English experts, Messrs. Kemp, are at Shediac looking about the place with a view of planting oysters there. These gentlemen who have had much experience in this business, seemed perfectly satisfied with the place and the chances of success. The oysters will be got at Buctouche and Bedouque, P. E. I. They will be planted under the supervision of Inspector Chipman and work will be begun at once.

A Mouton despatches.—Detective Skelington of the Intercolonial is in trouble, and figure as the defendant in an assault case at the police court on Monday. It appears that he met on the street two boys named Beatty and Geo. McDowell, and stopping stared at them. McDowell said to Beatty: I wonder who he is after now? This caused Skelington to lose his temper and he knocked the boy down and severely maltreated him. The boy's father had Skelington charged with assault before Sheriff Wortman. The case naturally excites much interest in Intercolonial circles.

"August Flower"

For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said stomach was about worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food for a time at least. I was so weak that I could not work. Finally on the recommendation of a friend who had used your preparations with beneficial results, I procured a bottle of August

Flower, and commenced using it. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained in strength and flesh rapidly; my appetite became good, and I suffered no more from what I felt like a new man, and considered that August Flower has truly cured me of Dyspepsia in its worst form. JAMES H. DEDRICK, Saugerties, New York.
