PREYED UPON CORPORATIONS

Montreal, Aug. 18.-It became known here today that the secret service department of the C. P. R., under the direction of Mr. Dunlop, the claims agent, had unearthed a gigantic swindling system, by which, it is claimed, large Canadian corporations have been systematically bled for years. Immediate action will be taken by the company to break up the organization, and some sensational developments are expected within the course of a few days. The heads of the organization are said to be a number of wealthy Hebrews, and their system is to employ people to fake up accidents and put in claims to large Canadian corporations, themselves getting a certain share of the profits, but the organization getting the biggest slice in return for supplying paid witnesses, doctors and lawyers.

Mr. Dunlop says that the organization has a regular salaried staff of expert witnesses, who are sent from place to place throughout the country, giving evidence of fake accidents, and also employs a large number of dishonest doctors and lawyers, the medical men swearing to the effect of imaginary in-

Tieh Liang is said to have attrib financial difficulty. The provinces are unable, or unwilling, to find the necessary funds. Moreover, the success of the metropolitan province in raising and equipping its full contingent is somewhat discounted by the fact that ever since the days of Li Hung Chang's viceroyalty it has been conspicuous for the number and equipment of its local forces. It is pointed out that had she succeeded in carrying out her military programme China would have been ûnable to put a million men into the field without any difficulty, but that with only five divisions she will not be nearly so strong as Japan was before the war of 1894-5. The commission on constitutional reform is now said to be considering a scheme of compulsory service. Equally discouraging seem to be the prospects of the long-promised naval revival. A week or two ago it was announced that Admiral So Chen Ping had memorialized the throne, urging that a sum of $11.875,000 should be devoted to the building of a squadron consisting of three cruisers of 3.000 13 tons displacement, two transports of 2,000 tons, eight gunboats of 500 tons and one destroyer. He recommended the adoption of Sanmun Bay as the main naval base and that a naval college should be established there as soon as the naval cadets now studying abroad return to China. He further suggested that Sanmun Bay should be equipped with a dock, a railway, a coaling station and wireless telegraphic apparatus. It was stated that the proposals had been approved in influential quarters. Later reports, however, indicate that the carrying out of even this modest scheme is despaired of, again, apparently, owing to the

SAMUEL GLASS

Laid at Rest.

The funeral of Mr. Samuel Glass took place this afternoon from his late residence, 254 Queen's avenue, to the Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The funeral was of a strictly private nature, and only the most immediate relatives and friends were present. The services were conducted by the Rev. James Kennedy and the Rev. F. Farrell. The pallbearers were Messrs. Samuel Glass, Samuel Screaton, J. W. Little, George

Chapman. The late Mr. Glass was well and favorably known throughout the city. He was at one time deputy sheriff of the county of Middlesex, and in that and other capacities he showed a profound interest in the welfare of the city. He was for many years a member of the First Methodist Church, and a prominent member of its official boards. and his death will leave a gap that will

Tombs and Pyramids of Long Ago Combine With Modern Wonders to Hold.

Cairo, Aug. 17 .- Yes, I am in Cairo, at the National Hotel, which is a rather cheerless hotel, and not one in which I would care to remain any ength of time. It all seems natural, ust as I had expected it: Alexandria he Delta, the camels, first glimpse of he pyramids, and this big city, a strange conglomeration of the old and new; it is all crowded, highly colored, beautiful, dirty, sweet, malodorous new, and ancient, but not to be seen without time and money. I propose to make the best of what I have of hese two commodities, and it is going to be great fun.

I have been in this ancient town of Cairo only a few hours, and yet it seems like an old friend, and this notwithstanding the fact that when I awoke this morning I was still aboard of the Vanderbilts from the New York the really beautiful ship Heliopolis. The tombs are all far beneath the ground, reached by well-made stairways, and the carvings are beautiful blendings of Egyptian and Graeco-Roman styles.

Country Swarms With People.

The whole country seems to teem with life; people, people everywhere swarming; people of every color of the contract of the building of an ad- skin and every conceivable kind of costume, those with long flowing robes of white or black or blue predominating. Occasionally we met peculiarly costumed figures which are, presumably, women. Their face is closely veiled, probably not without reason.

The intensity of the cultivation was everywhere apparent. Not only is every available inch of ground cultivated, but nothing seems to go to waste. In many places we saw them New York Clerk Begs in Vain for His gathering the stubble of last year's cotton, carrying it off in great bundles to be used as firewood. I finally got through the line-just how I do not remember. I entered the hotel bus, and a drive of ten minutes brought me to this hotel.

I have seen precious little of Cairo My impression is that there are really two cities here: a modern Paris, with luxuriant life on the one hand, and the old Cairo far back from the river, with its haunts and hovels and bazaars. But so far it has all happened as per programme, and I am glad I am here.
