FIRST CHURCH IN AMERICA.

About sixty miles from Mexico City, solated among rugged hills, untouched by modern civilization, only a fragment remaining of its early greatness is the moss-grown town of Tlascala. Four centuries ago it had a population of 400,000 fiercely independent ple who were never subjugated by their powerful neighbors, the Aztecs or Mexicans. The number of its residents at the present day does not exreserved, and pitifully poor, the descendants of the Tlascalan chieftains live in the traditions of the Tascalan chieftains dom leaving the rarrow boundaries of their domain, knowing little, caring "Black bread"—that is, rye bread—is not a famine ration, says the London Lancet, but just as good food as white bread, and the staple form of the staff of life in several civilized countries. There is almost no difference chemically between the two breads, although the wheat contains slightly more gluten. Black bread "keeps fresh"—that is, moist—much longer than white bread. It has a slightly greater irritant effect upon the intestinal canal, which is also an advantage under ordinary circumstances. The whole rye bread, or pumpernickel, is the prefer-

Will Probably Come to Terms On the Question of Peers.

London, June 11.-Special correspondence of the Toronto Telegram says: Your average Britisher is the most interesting psychological study on earth. He loves nothing so much as to pretend that he does not want something that he really does want very much indeed, and he knows all the time that everybody knows that he is pretending. Ask why this peculiar mental attitude, and nobody can answer you. The facts are these: The Opposition are in a tight corner. They have run their House of Lords to the death. The difficulty is that the leaders of the Opposition were beaten on the question as to whether the peers should act as they did, but nevertheless, endeavored to retain their position, and now that the tight corner that they predicted is reached, they have got to pull their followers out somehow. It is, seemingly, essential that they should pretend that they are not in a tight corner; that if they are, they do not particularly care, and that, in any case, it is not for them to make any overtures. Unionists Back Down.

The Government are in much the same case. They say, We are not responsible for the situation—the next move is with the Opposition. And so the sparring has commenced in real earnest. The truth is, the Opposition have got to retreat.

They have, indeed, already commenced to do so. Lord Rosebery has "postponed" his resolutions, and an important member of the Opposition, speaking with authority, has intimated that if the Government will provide a golden bridge, the Opposition leaders will avail themselves of it with pleasure and alacrity. This is not the pre-cise language that has been used, but it is the exact purport thereof. In short, the Opposition leaders can see no other way out of their tight corner than by a retreat, and they appeal to the Government to render the process as little humiliating as possible.

Asquith Willing.

The Government are quite ready to do what they can in this way, because they know that to stand absolutely pat would involve a prolonged and most probably bitter controversy, and that everybody, who is anybody, feels it is very desirable to avoid. Accordingly, in response to Mr. Long's in-timation that if the Government invite the Opposition to a conference, they will gladly and patriotically take part in it. Mr. Asquith is said to be preparing, if he has not already sent, a private and confidential letter to Mr. Balfour, suggesting that a conference of representative and responsible men sitting on both front benches should be held with a view to reach some common ground.

What are the prospects before such conference

The only answer to that question at present is that agreement might be reached on two points, to begin with, viz.: first, that there should be no more interference by the peers, with financial bills, and second, that a referendum should be taken with regard to the limitations of the peers' power of veto touching other bills. The points of real difficulty here are as to the first, that of determining the authority that should decide what are financial bills pure and simple, and as to the second, that of determining whether the peers should have the power to decide that their veto should not be over-ridden except by a general election. It will at once be seen that this latter point bristles with embarrassment and difficulty, and this is why it is doubted in some high quarwhether any real advantage can come from the proposed conference.

Opposition Must Accept.

A very sagacious parliamentarian assures me that there can be but one advantage in a conference, and that is that it will enable the Opposition leaders to say they have done their best to save the face of their supporters. but that the Government's proposals will have to be substantially accepted. It is hard to see what other issue there can be, and it is interesting to note that this is practically what is anticipated in at least one important Opposition quarter. The Morning Post is very dubious, indeed, about the conference. It is referred to as a proposal that may gain the Opposition nothing and lose them everything. This, however, it is right to say, is not the attitude of the Opposition leaders. Their attitude is simple and honest enough. It is to save their followers' face as far as possible and by all honorable means to attain a peaceful settlement of the question at issue.

SOCIETY IN DEBT

Condition in Smart World Shown by a London Advertisement.

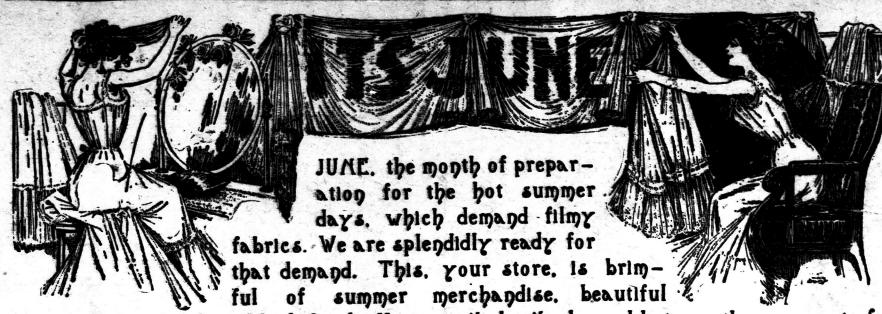

London, June 20.- The fact that for some time an advertisement has been appearing in a London morning paper offering a sum no less than $5,000 a year to society people who will use their influence in procuring introductions to friends or acquaintances in want of money at a moderate rate of interest, tells its own story of the state of debt and insolvency from which many smart folk are suffering today. Women are, perhaps, the most flagrant offenders in this respect, according to a writer in M. A. P., who asserts it would not be by any means difficult to name, haphazard, a dozen or more well-known society hostesses who at the present moment owe considerably more than they can ever hope

"What is more," he proceeds to say, "under existing circumstances nobody is ashamed of the fact. Nowadays no woman ever dreams of making any secret concerning the fact that she is in debt-except to her own husband. Indeed, it is counted rather chic than otherwise. Listen to the conversation at any women's club, at an afternoon bridge party or a smart at home, and you will hear beautifully dressed women, wearing valuable jewels and indulging in every luxury, complaining of the hardness of their lot and the iniquity of their milliners, dressmakers, jewelers and tradesmen in general in pressing them to pay bills—the to-tal of which they declare is far too exorbitant to be covered by the annual "After the money-lender, it is no

LONDON, TUESDAY, JUNE 21. THE WELLS AND INSURANCE RATES.

We are pleased to see the Messrs Blackburn coming round to a reasonable view of the water question,

In their newspaper today they tell the fire insurance underwriters that it well to await the completion wells system before deciding that London is "a bad risk." In this advice The Advertiser thoroughly concurs. It is to be hoped our Richmond street neighbors intend at last to give the wells scheme a fair show. Through their newspaper they have been trying to discredit it for over a year. At one time the cost of pumping is oppressive; at another, the wells are sure to go dry. The wish has seemed to be father to the thought. Last night's edition of the Toronto Telegram says that the fire underwriters have declined to reduce the rates in London, "because the additional water supply will not increase the pressure." The substance of this was telegraphed The Advertiser yesterday. Apparently it refers only to the existing conditions. The present plant is only a makeshift, although a very fortunate one for the city of London. When the pumping apparatus is perfected, there will not only be plenty of water available, but a decidedly higher pressure. As our local contemporary says in a moment of candor it will be well to await the completion of the wells system.

Farmers living in the older sections of the Province will doubtless be surprised to learn that in Temiscaming timothy seed is sown in April, and in the early part of middle of August a splendid crop of hay is cut. Hereabouts a crop of hay is never reaped until the year following the sowing of the seed. In New Ontario they take off two crops of hay as quickly as farmers in older Ontario can take off one. This rapidity of growth is probably due to the fact that in the north the

The farmer settling in Western Canada finds the soil all ready for the plow, and it is this that makes that region so attractive. The settler in Temiscaming has an asset in the shape of timber and pulpwood that is of great assistance to him in hewing out a home. One of these settlers relates that during the winters of 1905-06 and 1906-07, when the western farmer was idle, he removed from sixteen acres of his land 225 cords of pulpwood that netted him, after paying for cutting, $550

Dr. Helen MacMurchy, in her fourth annual report to the Provincial Secretary's department, on the feeble-minded in Ontario, makes a strong plea for the establishment of a provincial institution for the care of these unfortunates. The report refers to a visit to a number of the Toronto public schools by Dr. MacMurchy and Miss Dendy, a member of the Manchester (England) school board, and founder of the Sandlebridge schools for the feeble-mind-A somewhat hurried inquiry among 1,800 school children confirms the general opinion that among all will be found to be defective. McKENZIE'S FAST TRIP.

Winnipeg, Man., June 20. - Wm Mackenzie arrived on Sunday and established a new record in his run of 22 hours and 22 minutes from Edmonton. Interviewed, Mr. Mackenzie stated that the new management would double the present annual output of the newly acquired Dunsmuir collieries. The present output is about three and a half million tons. The C. P. R. will take 25,000 tons. Mr. Mackenzie admitted he had been offered and had accepted a seat or the Canadian advisory board of the Hudson Bay Company.

Jeffries will reach San Francisco this morning, and start for Reno this evening. Johnson will possibly not start for Nevada before Wednesday, and possibly until Thursday morning.

The board of supervisors of San Francisco have put off any action of pending fight permits. The Ketchel-Langford match will be pulled off in Reno on the morning of July 4.

Considerable apprehension was caused in the camps of the fighters by a report to the effect that Gov. Dickerson of Nevada would follow Gillett's lead and prevent the fight in his state. Johnson seemed more disturbed than anyone else, and announced last night that he would not move towards Reno until definite assurances were given that the Nevada governor would not interfere. It is known here that strong pressure is being brought to bear to stop the fight in Nevada, but Gov. Dickerson is said not be averse to to prevent it. Assurances to the latter effect were received from the governor

The average physician is helpless in the presence of skin diseases such as eczema and salt rheum. Some make the mistake of treating eczema as a blood disease and advise internal treatment. Others think only relief is possible and recommend a lotion to afford relief from the itching.

Whatever the cause may be local treatment is necessary to heal up the sores, which otherwise spread over body and produce the greatest suffering imaginable.

gara power bylaw, authorizing the city council to issue bonds for $100,-000 for the installing of a transmission line and station for supplying power to the city of Windsor and vicinity. The vote started at 9 o'clock in the morning and the polls closed at 5 o'clock, with the vote standing 622 in favor of the bylaw and 618 against it. The passing of the bylaw means that the city may now enter into the contract with the hydro-electric commission of Ontario for extending the Niagara power from either, London, Ont., or St. Thomas, to the limits of the city of Windsor. The city is required by the commission to take 15,-000-horsepower, in order to have the line installed, and as they will only use a small part of this, the balance will be contracted for by the company that submits the best proposition. The Electrical Distributing Company has submitted a proposition. The voters flocked to the polls when they opened yesterday morning, and it was seen very early in the day that the vote polled would be as large as on any other question ever submitted to the citizens of Windsor, and it was predicted at 5:30 o'clock that though the margin was very small the measure had safely passed.

One feature of the election was the fact that a great number of women property owners exercised their right to vote on such questions. They were transported to and from the polls in automobiles. Nearly every automobile in the city and a great number of carriages were filled all day with voters being hurried to the polls.

The election was open to property owners only.

Relationships to Aldermen Are Hinted At—Explanations Are Made.

There is none too pleasant a feeling growers will begin to plaw under their mong certain aldermen regarding the appointment of two engineers for the steam .oners.

It will be remembered that the board of works appointed Messrs. Fred Groves and Grover Glass, while the council last night overruled these appointments, naming Messrs. Groves and Martindale. Ald. Jeffries, who was a firm supporter of Mr. Martindale, succeeded in having his man selected. A report was circulated after the appointments that Mr. Martindale was a brother-in-law of Ald. Jeffries, and Mr. Groves a brother-in-law of Ald Rose. Some challenged the propriety of the appointments. Ald. Jeffries, however, strenuously denies that Mr. Martindale is his brother-in-law.

"He is certainly not a brother-inlaw of mine," declared Ald. Jeffries when questioned. "He is a relative of am not afraid of the truth, but I do object to the statement that he is my brother-in-law. He is a good man, an old citizen, and will give satisfaction." Ald. Rose, but it was scarcely known until after the appointment was made He was the unanimous choice of the

WAS NEARLY DROWNED TO IMPROVE THE SERVICE While Bathing He Suddenly Ready to Go On With Double

Tracking On Horton • Street.

The Horton street double tracking is again to the fore, and this peren-nial subject will start another debate At the meeting of the council Monday a communication was received from Manager C. B. King, of the London street railway, asking what was being done about the company's request. He pointed out that the company intended doing some work on the street at once, and desires to know what the city intend doing about the matter.

The communication will be taken up by No. 1 committee at its next meeting, and some decision arrived

The sticking point at the present time is over the payment of the cost of moving the sidewalk back. The company refused to pay the bill, and the finance committee also refused to pay it, on the ground that as the company would reap all the benefit, the city should not be taxed.

The parties split there, and since then have not been able to get together. People who use the Oxford, Ottaway and Wellington cars are behind the street railway, and many granted, so that the service on lines named may be improved.

Amusing Incident Before Police Magistrate Love-Youthful Gentleman Was Subjected to a Very Unpleasant Examination.

One of the most unusual charges f assault that was ever heard before Magistrate Love was heard this morning, when Nelson James Rowcliffe. aged 15, of East London, charged a girl of about his own age, with slapping his face.

The latter admitted the charge, bu her counsel, Mr. E. C. Scatcherd, stated that Rowcliffe, while calling on a little girl who lived across the way from his client got behind the curtains in her parlor and amused himself by waving his hand at her.

When Rowcliffe and his friend went out the defendant's mother crossed the street and wanted to know what he meant by insulting her daughter by waving at her and, it is alleged, that Rowcliffe told her to go home and shut her mouth, whereupon her daughter came up and said: "You will talk to my mother like that, will you," and slapped Rowcliffe's face. Rowcliffe immediately laid an infor-

TAKEN FROM CARS

STREET RAILWAY ITEMS

Express Companies Always Have Large Stock on Hand of Unclaimed Goods-How the Railways Get Rid of Unclaimed

Every day London street cars yield a rich reward, when the conductors at the end of their day's work take all articles found on the trolleys to the barns on Lyle street.

It is little wonder that "I can't find my umbrella" has been such a common refrain during the past spring. During the past three months since April 1 no less than 127 umbrellas have been taken from the cars and listed among the unclaimed goods at the car barns. Most people know where to look for their missing goods, and as a result 76 of these have been recovered, leaving 51 unclaimed umbrellas in the hands of

A Perplexing Variety.

There is a perplexing variety of unclaimed goods. The conductors have orders to bring in everything they find, even down to buttons, and as a result the collection ranges all the way from a cute little Teddy Bear to a switch of hair, which the conductor in his ignorance of feminine adornment regis

People Claim Goods. The street railway company does not lose any sleep in locating the owners. If it is anything really valuable, peo ple know where to find it, and this class of goods is invariably reclaimed. Nor is the company at all precipitate in returning anything. An accurate description is required of any article before the owner gets it into his posses-
