OUR OLD FRIEND, MR. WALTER M. DACK

of the Kincardine Reporter, has been blessed recently with the advent of what Artemus Ward would call, "two episodes" in his family-two in girls. He hasn't decided which air he will adopt for a lullaby-"The Babies on our Block," or "McSorley's Beautiful Twins." May his race extend.

CHILDREN AND EDUCATION.There is no better way of improving children in the art of reading, than letting them hear a good reader. M. Both gentlemen are well and favorably known here, and highly respected for integrity and uprightiness in business matters.

SOBE AFFLICTION.We clip the following from the Stratford Beacon the 10th inst: Our obituary column this week contains the announcement of a double affliction which has befallen our old and esteemed friend, Mr. W. N. Hossie, bursar of the Institution for the Blind, Bradford. Sorely indeed has he been bereaved-first of his beloved wife, and 24 hours after of his youngest daughter. For many years, says the Bradford Reporter, Mrs. Hossie has been in a delicate state of health, and was repeatedly given up by her physicians as near her end. Her wonderful vitality and spirit, however, seemed to carry her over serious attacks of illness that would have prostrated others.

Sorely indeed has he been bereaved-first of his beloved wife, and 24 hours after of his youngest daughter. For many years, says the Bradford Reporter, Mrs. Hossie has been in a delicate state of health, and was repeatedly given up by her physicians as near her end. Her wonderful vitality and spirit, however, seemed to carry her over serious attacks of illness that would have prostrated others.

Some three years ago she visited her native country, and returned greatly improved in health. But the disease had acquired too great hold of her constitution to be shaken off, and gradually she became weaker and weaker, until Friday evening, when death finally terminated her sufferings. No doubt the sudden loss of her youngest daughter, (who died 24 hours after the mother), hastened her end. Mrs. Hossie was much beloved by a large circle of friends. Her sprightly temperament and warm-heartedness made her a welcome guest in many a home. She was none the less an earnest, devoted Christian, and died in full assurance of hope. The remains of mother and daughter passed through Stratford for the place of interment at Goderich, on Tuesday, accompanied by friends from Bradford. Rev. Dr. Cochran came as far as Stratford, but pressing duties prevented his going further. The services at the grave were conducted by Rev. Dr. Ure.

MR. PLATT DIDN'T KNOW HIM.A correspondent writes: The change which Mr. Hesson has made in his appearance with the aid of hair dye, is so startling that even his intimates failed to recognize him. The other day there came a deputation to Ottawa from Goderich and vicinity to see if they could not get some special favors for the salt interest, which the government candidates for the Hurons might use as a trump card. The deputation were anxious to enlist the services of Mr. Hesson, but they could find them nowhere. Dr. Coleman and Mr. Sam Platt said they could and would find him. The House was sitting, and thither they bent their steps. Accosting the doorkeeper, they enquired for the member of North Perth. The official opened the portals and looked in. "Yes," said he, pointing with his finger, "there he is, in his usual place." The visitors started intently in the direction indicated, but could see nothing of the object of their search. "That black-and-tan looking chap," said Mr. Platt, in despair, "is likely to be some Frenchman who has taken Mr. Hesson's seat." They went away much chagrined at their want of success. Later in the day, they met with some of the ministers and several M. P.'s among whom was the rejuvenated M. P. for North Perth. "Goodness me!" exclaimed Mr. Platt, "it is Hesson, and not a forrin frogger. I have heard of people's hair turning white through hard study, but I'll be hanged, if I ever heard of his turning black!" Upon the matter being explained, Mr. P. burst into a hearty laugh, exclaiming, "Why, I did not think we had one man in the whole Huron Tract that would make such a guy of himself!"—[Stratford Beacon.

DEBATE.-The Y. P. C. A. of Knox

Church on Friday last debated the question: "Resolved that Napoleon was a greater General than Wellington." For the affirmative-W. Hossie, leader. T. Dickson and P. Blair. Negative-E. Duncan, Jas. Weir and R. Miller. The chairman decided in favor of the affirmative, although it seemed to us that the other side made a far better presentation of their case. Miss Ferguson gave a song and Miss Oliver a reading. The meeting was largely attended by young people.

M. ELEANOR GEORGEN'S READINGS.This talented elocutionary lady artist gave one of her entertainments under the auspices of the Mechanics' Institute, in the Town Hall last night. The rendering of the various pieces was most excellent, and elicited frequent expressions of applause from the audience. "The Senator's Dilemma," "Sims Little Girl," "How we went to a Pic-Nic,"-but stay, it is too late to go into particulars when every selection was admirable. Those who were absent last night missed a treat seldom offered to an Ottawa Sound audience.-[Owen Sound Times.

PARLOR CONCERT.The regular fortnightly parlor concert under the auspices of the ladies of Knox Church was held at the residence of Mrs. Cozzen on Tuesday last and was well attended. The following programme was carried out successfully: Duet, Misses Maud Stewart and Williams; recitation, Miss Fannie Hutchison; song, Mrs. Toms; instrumental solo, Miss Carey, reading, Mr. Fred McDonald; duet, Mrs. Toms and Miss Williams; reading, Mr. Elliott; song, Miss Williams; recitation, Miss Maggie Cameron; duet, Misses Hutchison and Star; solo, Mrs. Toms; "National Anthem" by the company. The chair was occupied by Mr. Weir. About $12 were netted on the occasion. The next concert will be held at the residence of Mrs. Frazer on Tuesday, the 28th inst.

THE SAFEST CAR.It is very well known that the car nearest the engine is exposed to the least dust and that the rear car of a train is generally safer than the front car. The safest is probably the last car but one in a train of more than two cars; that is, they are fewer chances of accidents to this than any other. If it is a way-train at moderate speed, or any train standing still, a collision is possible from another train in the rear, in which the last car receives the shock. Again, the engine and front cars of a train will often run over a brook or a cow, or a stone without detriment; while the last car, having nothing to draw it into the line of the train, is free to leave the track. Next to the forward car the rear car is probably the most unsafe in a train. The safest seat is probably near the centre of the last car but one.-[Railroad Journal.

THE EXODUS.

On Wednesday morning a dense crowd filled the waiting room and platform of the G. T. railway station here to witness the departure of the first consignment of emigrants to Manitoba and Dakota from this point for 1882. So great was the jam that it was difficult to move about.

The scene was a stirring one. Men were to be seen, red faced and perspiring, hauling boxes and trunks for check-in, or dragging vehicles, leading horses, or assisting in lifting some agricultural implement into a car. The railway officials were kept very busy, and the amount of freight was much greater than had been expected. The freight was rushed on board the cars in a lively manner, nevertheless the train did not get away until 10.15, owing to the vast amount of stuff to handle. It was impossible to get the names of all who left at this point. It is thought that the number of persons leaving would reach nearly 100. We secured the following names:

FOR MANITOBA.
Wm. Murray and W. G. Murray, of Goderich; W. Robinson and family, five persons; Goderich; Alex. Maywood and family, nine persons, Goderich township; Miss Lizzie Gordon, Goderich; Mr. Jas. Mr. C. J. O'Connor, the well-known travelling passenger agent of the Chicago & North Western R. R., and Mr. Thos. Ford, travelling agent for the G. T. R., arrived in town on Tuesday, and satisfactorily arranged for the "exodus." Mr. Ford left on the early train on Wednesday.

WEDNESDAY, for Clinton, to prepare the way

at that point, and Mr. O'Connor remained to get the Goderich party under way, which he did in such a manner as to gain credit to himself and the company which he represents. Mr. Harry Armstrong, the popular ticket agent, went as far as Stratford, and saw that the travellers were nicely started on their way.

From the Clinton New Era.
If any doubt had been entertained as to the existence of a fever termed "Manitoba," or "Dakota," these would have been removed by a visit to the Grand Trunk stations between Goderich and Mitchell, yesterday, where everything was bustle and activity in the desire to get away on the "specials for the West."

The train from Clinton consisted of 14 freight cars and 2 passenger coaches, and were loaded with almost every possible kind of merchandise, which includes seed grain, farm implements, buckboards, wagons, buggies, fowl, cattle, horses, etc., etc. The following are the names of parties shipping cars from here, with their destination. Where two or more names the parties are shipping together:-

John and Thomas Gorrell, Hull, Brandon; Thos. Burnett, Goderich township, Fargo, Dakota; John Hudie, Goderich township, Granden, Dak.; Thomas Elliott, Goderich township, Fargo, Dak.; George Cox, Goderich township, Granden, Dak.; Jas. The passenger coaches contained 125 persons, and in addition to the names enumerated above, were the following whose names we were able to get:-Jas. Thompson, Clinton, who goes through in charge of the party, J. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. R. H. Call and 2 children, Mrs. J. W. Fullerton and family, W. Fox and family, Jno. Fox, R. W. Moore and family, J. A train of 12 cars of general effects left Goderich yesterday, with about 100 persons on board, and one left Seaford with 8 cars of freight and about 125 passengers. The whole forming the largest party that has ever left this county in one day.

By the GREAT WESTERN.
Yesterday the Great Western special excursion passed through sharp on time, with 175 passengers on board, among them being Messrs. Jas. McCartney and J. Pinning, from Clinton. About 40 take tickets here on the excursion of next week.

Literary Notices.

The LEONARD SCOTT PUBLISHING CO., 41 Barclay Street, New York, have issued their reprint of the London Quarterly and Edinburgh Reviews for January. The former review will attract much attention, as it contains a further criticism of the Revised Version of the New Testament. The article in the number for last October continued itself to an examination of the new Greek text; that in present number handles with severity the new renderings of the Greek into English. Both articles are reported to be from the pen of Dean Burgon, of Chichester. The other articles in this number worthy of note are: "American Politics and Parties," "the Jacobin Question," "Darwin on Earth Worms," and "The Comte de Montlosier." The Edinburgh Review is a very full and interesting number. It contains eleven articles; the principal of which are: "Taine's Conquest of the Jacobins," "The Life of Mr. Cobden," "Ancient Animals of South America." Three articles are devoted to subjects which are in present possess unusual interest, viz: "Funis and Carthage," a very readable historical sketch of a portion of North Africa hitherto little known; "Electro-Motive Power," a popular account of the steps made toward the application of electrical force to mechanical purposes; and "Irish Discontent," which contains extracts from the literature most widely read by the Irish people, and attributes much of the dissatisfaction to the publications of the Young Ireland school.

J. C. Currie's Sale List.

Peremptory auction sale at Currie's auction mart, Crab's Block, Goderich, on Saturday, March 26th, 1882. Sale commences at 1 o'clock sharp.

It is said that Redpath, the monopolist lord, who grows rich under the N. P. at the expense of everybody who uses sugar, is about to purchase the palatial residence and grounds lately occupied by the ex-Empress Eugenie and live permanently in England, leaving an "agent" behind to extort more blood-money from Canadians to keep all this style up.

WHICH OF THE FIRST DEPARTURE OF THE SEASON.

A Neat Appearance.

A girl may be fortunate enough to have a well-stocked wardrobe; but it does not take good care of her clothing she never looks well dressed.

The careful person will take pains to preserve a new calico no less than a new silk. If it is without an apron, and exposed to damp and dust, it will soon look untidy and bedraggled.

All dust was brushed off, a sponge dipped in ammonia water brightened the faded places, and snowy collars and cuffs suggested dainty habits of cleanliness.

The New Life.

A Christian must have a new life, a new nature. Nothing is taught more explicitly in the Bible, and yet it seems as if very few people ever really think of it; or if they do, don't believe it.

Everything reversed in Japan. Another passage from Mr. Stevenson's papers is worth quoting (Good Words, March, 1879).—It seemed as if every one was bent on doing the opposite of what he should do.

For Hoils and Carbuncles.

From Rev. Richard Edes, of Bolton, Mass.:—"For years I was a sufferer from that my life became wearisome through their frequent and persistent recurrence.

Powers of Pleasanz.

Woman's chief business is to please, says Dr. Holmes. A woman who does not please is a false note in the harmonies of nature.

A Portsmouth despatch says the person who fired at the Queen is believed to be MacLean who lived at Southsea in wretched and singular style.

Mr. Beach was re-elected Mayor of Montreal yesterday by a majority of nearly 1,000.

An Iowa Girl's Ambition.

The smartest girl I've met in Iowa I met yesterday at Nevada, Story county, north-western Iowa—Miss Belle Clinton. Miss Clinton is a bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked girl of about twenty, as full of fun and health and vigor as a young girl.

Why, I hired a man, and we set out ten acres of trees. This gave me 160 acres more; so I have 320 acres now. But I must tell you about those trees.

Here is a girl who owns in her own right 320 acres of splendid black prairie soil now, and who will own 480 acres in the spring, every acre of which will bring $5 in three years, and $10 within five years, and $20 within ten years.

Superstition of Miners.

The foreign iron miners in the Pennsylvania coal mines believe that whistling in a mine is absolutely certain to be followed by some calamity, and they cite several stories of disasters which have happened to unbelieving Americans who have defied fate in that way.

Never Give Up.

If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters.

ABOUT BAKERS.

Points on Their Business by a Non-Professional.

The baker, children, is indeed the best subject I have yet lectured upon. It takes the cake.

The first baker I ever heard of was hanged for playing Pharaoh a scurvy trick, but hanged if I remember just what it was. Bakers do not play faro now, though they set out a fair row of cakes and pies.

The baker is a great worker, except when he has a slow oven; then he is apt to be a slow-oven-ly fellow.

Bakers are as much given to marrying as any other class of men, but you will find many batches and a bake shop.

MRS. CAPT. NORMAN, of Millbridge, Ontario, writes, Aug. 17th, 1871:—"ALLEN'S LUNG BALAM cured my Son of a severe attack of congestion of the lungs. He took no other medicine, the Balam acted wonderfully, taking away the fever, at once operating on the bowels, and sending matter up from off the lungs, in appearance dreadful beyond expression.

THE ONLY SOURCE OF NERVE force in the system is the phosphorus in our food combined with lime and iron as phosphates. When there is a deficient supply of these elements, owing to feeble digestion and assimilation, there is a falling off of vital energy and a failure of the nutrition of the tissues.

FRIDAY, MARCH 17, 1882.

The Local Legislature was prorogued on the 10th inst., with the usual ceremonies.

Col. Ross was never so strong in West Huron as he is at present. Advances from trustworthy sources lead us to believe that his glorious majority of over 400 at the last election will be increased by another hundred, should any person be found foolhardy enough to oppose him.

Actual settlement in Manitoba has been seriously checked by the action of the Government. The resident correspondent of the Toronto World says: The government are doing much to discourage actual settlement.

It is not generally known that Mr. Plumb, the superlative member for Niagara, is an importation from the United States. He was at one time a howling Democrat in New York state, and the British lion has often been dared and threatened by him in his 4th of July orations.

The Stratford Beacon flays the London Free Press in the following style: "In an article on the Reform leader the London Free Press is pleased to say that Mr. Mackenzie is 'personally upright.'"

It has been stated often that Sir "Onderdonk" Tupper is anxious to run for a constituency in Ontario, so that in the event of Sir John retiring into private life, he would have a controlling influence of the Western vote, as an offset to Sir Hector Langevin's influence in the East.

Mr. Mackenzie has been called upon to give an account of his administration during the five years since he was in power. Does the Free Press remember the steel rails and a score of other slanders? Would our neighbor have the goodness to look over its files from '73 to '78 and see how many of its issues during that time are without some charge against this "personally upright" man?

THE REFORM NOMINEES

The unanimous and enthusiastic nomination of Sir Richard Cartwright at the Convention held at Seaforth on Saturday last, will be another thorn in the side of the Tory party.

If Sir Richard Cartwright be the source of weakness to the Reform party, that our Tory friends would have the county believe, why do they not encourage the Reformers to take him to their bosom, so that the evil day of Grit dissolution may be hastened?

Even Sir "Onderdonk" Tupper had taken an interest in Centre Huron previous to the nomination, and had gone so far as to prophesy that Sir Richard would not be again renominated in the Riding which he at present represents.

Sir Richard Cartwright has caused to feel just pride at his selection by the Reform convention of Centre Huron. In few constituencies are there so many able local men as in the Centre Riding; and when it is considered that the question of deciding who was to be the nominee did not go to the ballot, there is great cause for satisfaction on the part of Sir Richard and his friends.

SOUND TO THE CORE.

The Tories have of late been laying the flattering unction to their souls that the popularity of Sir Richard Cartwright in Centre Huron was on the wane, but the action of the Reform Convention at Seaforth on Saturday, and the enthusiasm manifested when the nomination of the ex-Finance Minister was an accomplished fact, gave unmistakable evidence that the heart of the Riding still warmed to the sitting member.

It was any to expect any one industrial class and protect them against all others. To the farmer was largely due the present advanced condition of the country, yet they were not invited to the councils of the nation when an important change in the fiscal policy was contemplated.

CENTRE HURON.

Unanimous Nomination of Sir Richard Cartwright.

An Enthusiastic Convention—The Hearers of Centre Huron sound for Reform—Preparing for the Fray—Stirring Address by the Nominee of the Convention.

Reported for THE SIGNAL. The meeting of the Reform convention of Centre Huron, for the purpose of selecting a candidate to contest the constituency at the next election was held at Seaforth, in Cardno's Hall, on Saturday last.

At the appointed hour the meeting was organized by the President, Humphrey Snell, Esq., of Hullett, taking the chair. The first duty was the election of officers for the Association, and the local chairman or President for each municipality.

The following gentlemen were elected officers for the Riding Association, viz.: Humphrey Snell, Hullett, President; George Walker, Tucker-Smith, Vice-Pres.

The following gentlemen were elected local Presidents: Seaforth, W. M. Gray; Tucker-Smith, Geo. Walker; McKillop, Richard Pollard; Hullett, Geo. Watt; and John Morgan; Gray, Anthony Rayman; Brussels, E. E. Wade; Colborne, John Morris; Goderich, E. Martin.

The details of the delegates were then handed in and subjected to the scrutiny of a committee appointed for the purpose. After examining the several lists the delegates for the respective municipalities were called and took their oaths as follows:

Gowenlock, Andrew Gowenlock, Geo. Macintosh, J. McCleary, Angus McLeod, John McDowell, John Heran, Thos. Murray, Mathew Purcell and Wingle.

NOMINATING CANDIDATES. The work of organization concluded, nominations were made. Some twelve gentlemen were nominated as candidates, but each in his turn retired in favour of Sir Richard Cartwright, the sitting member. Sir Richard's nomination was then made unanimous by a standing vote, which was given amidst cheers.

Sir Richard Cartwright, who was present, in accepting the nomination thanked the Convention for their renewal of confidence, and while admitting he had no claim upon the riding, expressed his determination to serve the Reform party more faithfully if possible in the future than he had in the past.

RESOLUTIONS OF CONFIDENCE. The following resolutions were then carried by standing votes and cheers: Moved by Thos. Strachan, Esq., seconded by Geo. Walker, Esq., of Tucker-Smith: That we, as a Convention, hereby endorse the course pursued by the Hon. Oliver Mowat and his colleagues in the Local Parliament, and we further pledge ourselves to support them in every legitimate manner in the coming election.

Moved by Wm. Young, Esq., seconded by Wm. Young, Esq., seconded by Thos. Moon Esq. of Hullett: That this convention desires to record its hearty sympathy with an appreciation of the course of the Opposition in the House of Commons, and to declare its hearty approval of the course pursued by the Hon. Edward Blake and the leaders of the Reform party in that House.

THE BEST YET.—The record of those heroes of the axe and long saw, James Strong and R. Gibbs has been thrown in the shade by 10 minutes, John T. Thompson, of the Commercial Road and W. G. McFarlane is visiting Mr. Peter Green and old friends in this section. He is about to leave for a mission field in the North-west. At the close of his sermon on Sunday, Rev. J. A. Turnbull made a few feeling and appropriate remarks upon the decease of the late John Brindley, an old and respected member of the Presbyterian church here.

A Snowy Team.—Mr. D. Stirling,

HORSES FOR DAKOTA.—Messrs. John and Amos Fisher on Wednesday last shipped a carload of horses to Graham, Dakota. Huron has sent many men and much stock to that State.

RELICS.—Goderich is not alone in family relics. Capt. Jas. Bogie, of the Commercial road, recently came into possession of a family poker, which was taken into the bush with them forty years ago. The poker was lost for about thirty years, and was recently turned up by Mr. Robertson's plow. The venerable stirrer of fires was returned to the daring captain, who made a pilgrimage to the homestead for the relic.

A Summer by the Sea.

Bessie Bolton was delighted. Five minutes ago Bessie was in despair—and her gentle sister Eolia reflected all her moods like a human-looking-glass.

Eolia Bolton had not been well. It was not exactly a decline, but she had lost her appetite, grown pale, and coughed, and Bessie's quick affections had taken alarm at once.

"Miss Bolton ought to go into the country," the doctor said—and before Eolia could remonstrate her sister had given up the room they occupied in the city, and consulted the nearest estate agent. But it was easy to talk about "the country." Malaria reigned supreme in this place, clouds of mosquitoes drove away the rural aspirant in another, high fairs blockaded a third, and thus it went on, until Bessie began to think that it was a moral impossibility to obey the doctor's edict.

Until one day, walking sadly by the seashore, they came unexpectedly upon a low, rambling old farm-house, with its gray stone walls half covered with creepers, and a wilderness of hollyhocks, sweet williams, and crimson roses tangled together in the back yard, with full view upon the front a battered placard, "To let," swung idly to and fro in the wind.

And then it was—and there—that Bessie's lead-weighted heart gave an upward spring.

"Eolia," she cried, "this is the very place for us. Smell the sea air! Look at those delicious waves creeping over the sand below! Observe the picturesqueness of the vine growing about in the breeze!

"I'm afraid we can't afford it, Bessie," said Eolia.

"Inquire at Next House Below," said Bessie, deciphering the worn inscription on the paper. "Come, Eolia, come—I've a presentiment that we shall meet exactly what we want here."

The next house below, however, was a full mile distant, over a stretch of slippery sands half flooded by the foam of the incoming tide—it was inhabited by a deaf old woman who "didn't know—she couldn't say." Was the rent high? "She couldn't say for certain—she believed it was about $12 a month, but she didn't know." Were the premises in good repair? "She didn't feel that she could take it upon her to assert." Could they have the key? "Well, she wasn't certain. Praps they could. Sometimes her old man had it in his coat pocket, but—Yes, here it was. There was a deposit to be paid—the first month's rent, if—oh, thankie, kindly. She was very much obliged, she was sure."

Bessie came running out to Eolia, triumphantly waving the key over her head.

"Business is business, Eo!" she cried exultantly. "And we are the ladies of the manor now! We'll sleep under that pretty sloping roof to-night."

And they did, having succeeded in borrowing a sofa-bedstead and two or three chairs from a neighbor's cottage. Joyfully they wandered over the old rooms, peeping through the dust-filled lattices, opened the green, three-cornered cupboard, inspecting their new premises with all the delight of day-old proprietresses.

For Bessie colored photographs and Eolia designed wall paper, calico patterns, and title decorations, and they required a "studio" facing the north, and plenty of room. They were not luxurious butterflies, these sisters, but two warm-hearted, diligent working-girls, who earned their own bread and ate it with a sense of honest pride.

So Eolia stayed in the old house and set it to rights, and with the aid of Mrs. Chubb's red-armed, oldest daughter, and Bessie, went up town to pack their little store of furniture and send it down by express. And the first night that they sat in the little bow-windowed apartment that fronted the sea, with the casements all covered with red chintz; the well-worn crimson carpet on the floor, and the merry little fire of driftwood blazing on the hearth, they looked into each other's eyes.

"I feel better already," said Eolia. "The very air that I breathe is like a tonic. But it is so lonely!"

"Who is afraid of solitude?" cheerily demanded Bessie, as she knelt to put a new pile of wood on the fire. "You shall see that we shall be like two queens in a palace, here, Eo. We can take our work up to the city twice a week, by express; the expense here will be trifling, and—"

"There," cried Eolia, with a start, "I heard there was some one knocking. I heard it twice before."

"It's old Chubb with the fish for breakfast," said Bessie, springing to her feet. "No, it isn't," said Eolia. "The fish came half an hour ago. Bess, I'm afraid it is a pirate or a smuggler."

"Don't be a goose, Eo," said the elder sister, as she went briskly to the door, and peering through the salt-scented twilight, she said:

"Who's there?"

"It is I," a clear voice answered— "Captain Lilburne, with my traps."

"Then it's a pirate!" faintly ejaculated Eolia.

"What do you want?" demanded Bessie.

"To come in," shortly responded the other voice. "What should I want? Open the door a little farther, can't you, my good girl?"

"Go about your business," said Bessie, with the emphasis of one who is determined to have her own way.

"Let me in," sternly spoke up the voice.

"I'll do nothing of the sort!" said Bessie. "There is a tavern two miles up the road, and a farm house one mile down. If you want shelter, go which way you please. You cannot come here."

"But why not?" persisted the intruder.

"Because I don't choose it," said Bessie, and she shut the door in his face.

And utterly heedless of the rattle of knocks on the panel which succeeded this bold coup d'etat, she came back to where Eolia sat, pale and startled.

"Oh, Bessie," she cried, "how dare you?"

"How dared I what?" said Bessie.

"Lock him out!"

"Would you have me let him in?" counter-queried Bessie, composedly.

"It's some tramp or other who didn't know that the house is let. I think, Eo, we must have a dog, if we intend to live alone!"

"But, Bessie, suppose he should come back?"

"Well, and suppose he should," said Bessie.

"And insist on coming in," faltered Eolia.

Bessie laughed. "I should point the bed key at him," said she. "And he would believe it was a pistol, and take madly to his heels! Dear little Eo, don't be so easily frightened. Believe me, we have seen the last of our tramp."

Half an hour afterward Mrs. Chubb came plodding over the sands and plunged into the sitting-room like some rubicund monster of the deep. Eolia looked up from her knitting, and Bessie set forward a chair.

"Well," panted Mrs. Chubb, "I have done it now."

"Has anything happened?" said Bessie.

"I've let the house when it was let already," said Mrs. Chubb, still breathing very hard. "O dear! O dear! And you young ladies will have to clear out, bag and baggage, to-morrow morning."

"What?" cried Bessie.

"Impossible!" echoed Eolia.

"But we have rented the house for a year," argued Bessie.

"I can't help that," sniffed Mrs. Chubb. "It seems that the New York agent let it on Monday to a gentleman, and you took it of me on Tuesday."

"What is the gentleman's name," said Bessie.

"Lilburne," Mrs. Chubb answered; "Capt. Adam Lilburne."

"Oh," said Bessie, with the calmness of desperation, "I've just turned him out of doors."

And then, to Mrs. Chubb's infinite amazement, she burst out laughing.

The next morning when she unlocked the big front door and went out, there on the steps sat a respectable manservant in black, guarding a pile of trunks. She looked at him for a moment; he touched his hat.

"Good morning, miss," he said respectfully.

"Good morning," said Bessie. "I suppose you are Captain Lilburne's man?"

"Yes, miss," again touching his hat.

"Where's your master," she asked.

"He slept at the farm last night. And the missis, she's coming down by the noon train. There's the Captain now."

And Bessie valiantly advanced to meet a tall, handsome, sub-robust man in a suit of navy-blue flannel, carelessly belted around the waist.

"You are Captain Lilburne, I suppose," said she. "I'm sorry I behaved so rudely last night. But the truth is, it was dark, and we girls were all alone in the house—and I took you for a tramp!"

"Captain Lilburne raised his hat; his black eyes sparkled like wells of amused light.

"The mistake, although not flattering to me, was altogether natural," said he.

"We are in your house, it seems," said she, abruptly.

"Well, it has rather that appearance," said the Captain.

"And we suppose that we had, at least, a home for the summer," added Bessie, regretfully.

"I'm very sorry, I'm sure," hesitated the Captain.

"Now, see here," said Bessie, "I've a proposition to make. There's plenty of room in the house. Suppose you and your wife take us to board; or suppose we take you?"

The Captain smiled.

"Unfortunately," said he, "I have no wife. The Mrs. Lilburne who is coming down is my mother."

Bessie colored scarlet, but she stood bravely to her guns.

"All the same," said she, "I don't like to be turned out of doors. My sister isn't strong, and the doctor prescribed sea air, and—"

"Pray do not say another word," said Captain Lilburne, courteously. As you remark, the house is large. I hope you will consider the west wing, which you are now occupying, entirely at your service."

"But I couldn't remain there unless you will allow me to pay rent," pleaded Bessie.

"Very well," said Captain Lilburne, then you may pay rent."

So it was settled. Mrs. Lilburne, a mild, rosy-cheeked old lady, came down at noon, and was delighted with her son's bargain.

"There are no ghosts in the house, I hope," said she, half laughing.

"No," said the Captain. "But there are two young ladies, one of whom, a charming vixen refused me admittance last night; but I don't blame her, either. I took her for old Mother Chubb's daughter—and she, very naturally, supposed that I was a tramp."

"Is she pretty?" artfully demanded the old lady.

"Very," says Captain Lilburne.

So Bessie and Eolia Bolton spent that long, bright sultry summer at the sea. And old Mrs. Lilburne grew very fond of them in her quiet way.

"Adam," she said, when the October tides were creeping softly over the ribboned sea sands. "I shall be very sorry when these girls go away."

"Shall you mother?" he said.

"They are the sweetest, frankest, least affected girls that I ever saw!" she declared.

"I quite agree with you there," said the Captain.

"Adam—" after a little pause.

"Well, mother?"

"Would you think me very foolish," she faltered, "if I adopted that pretty, pale little Eolia for my own?"

Captain Lilburne's face brightened.

"Dear mother," said he, "I shall be delighted, especially as I mean to adopt Bessie for my own."

Captain Lilburne was married to Bessie Bolton on Christmas, and Eolia is living with the mild old lady, in a daughter's place.

"And all this happiness," softly said Eolia, "came from our summer by the sea."

POPPING THE QUESTION.

Some Ways of Performing a Disagreeable Operation—Hints for Ladies and Gentlemen.

A gentleman had long been paying attention to a young lady whom he was very anxious to marry, but to whom he had never ventured to declare his passion. When opportunity offered, his courage deserted him, and when he was resolved to speak, the fair one could never be found alone or disengaged. Driven to desperation, he one day succeeded in accomplishing his purpose in a somewhat remarkable manner at a dinner party. To most people, a dinner-party would hardly seem the most suitable occasion for overtures of this description, especially when, as in this instance, the lady is seated at the opposite side of the table from her admirer. The latter, however, was equal to the occasion. Tearing a leaf from his pocket-book, he wrote on it, under cover of the table: "Will you be my wife. Write Yes or No at the foot of this."

Calling a servant he asked him in a whisper to take the slip—which of course, was carefully folded and directed—to "the lady in blue opposite." The servant did as requested, and the gentleman, in an agony of suspense, watched him give it to the lady, and fixed his eyes, with badly disguised eagerness, to try and judge from her expression how the quaintly made offer was received. He had forgotten one thing—namely, that ladies seldom carry pencils about them at a dinner party. The beloved one was, however, not to be baffled by such trifling an obstacle. After reading the note calmly she turned to the servant and said: "Tell the gentleman yes."

When Professor Aytoun was wooing Miss Wilson, daughter of Professor Wilson, the famous "Christopher North," he obtained the lady's consent conditionally on that of her father being secured. This Aytoun was much too shy to ask, and he prevailed upon the young lady herself to conduct the necessary negotiations.

"We must deal tenderly with his feelings," said glorious old Christopher. "I'll write my reply on a slip of paper and pin it to the back of your frock."

"Papa's answer is on the back of my dress," said Miss Jane as she entered the drawing-room. Turning her around, the delighted professor read these words: "With the author's compliments."

Words of Wisdom.

That which is bitter to be endured may be sweet to be remembered.

There is a long and wearisome step between admiration and imitation.

Everywhere endeavor to be useful, and everywhere you will be at home.

We think very few people sensible, except those who are of our opinion.

The sunshine of life is made up of very little beams that are bright all the time.

Every individual who has work to do in this world, and does it, needs a vacation.

Every one is weary; the poor in seeking, the rich in keeping, the good in learning.

If anybody reports you not to be an honest man, let your practice give him the lie.

The greatest good to the greatest number cannot justify a wrong to the lesser number.

Our doubts are traitors, and make us lose the good we oft might win by fearing to attempt.

Repentance without amendment is like continually pumping without mending the leak.

Little drops of rain brighten the meadows and little acts of kindness brighten the world.

Men are never killed by the adversities they have, but by the impatience which they suffer.

To make the most of the good and the least of the evil of life is the best philosophy of life.

Improve the wit you have bought at a dear rate, and the wisdom you have gained by sad experience.

Less time spent in idle dreaming and dawdling to the duties of life would give us wealth and contentment.

The afflictions of this life are neither too numerous nor too sharp. Much rust require a rough life.

The elements of virtue are at the bottom of every heart, and though they may be trampled under foot and crushed into the mud, they still exist, and when rescued and restored, nobility and manhood will grow out of them. Prayer, holy thinking, and holy reading are the means which first supply these wants and then entice them on to run. Could these natural and wholesome appetites be gratified in innocent ways, who can tell in how many instances the temptation to strong drink might be entirely prevented?

Does How a Man to Bed.

Speaking of how a man goes to bed an exchange says: "There's where a man has the advantage. He can undress in a cold room and have his bed warm before a woman has got her hairpins out and her shoes untied."

That's how it looks in print, and this it is in reality: "I am going to bed my dear, it's half past ten." No reply.

"Now, John, you know you are always late in the morning. Do get to bed."

"Yes, in a minute," he replies, as he turns the paper wrong-side out and begins a lengthy article, headed "The Guiteau Trial."

Fifteen minutes later she calls from the bed-room:

"John come to bed, and not keep the gas burning here all night," and she creeps beneath the cold sheets, while John sits placidly on, his feet across the piano-stool and a cigar in his mouth.

By-and-by, he arises, yawns, stretches himself, throws the paper on the floor, and proceeds to that vigorous exercise, poking the grate.

Just at this point a not altogether pleasant voice inquires:

"For pity's sake! Ain't you ready for bed yet?"

"Yes, yes; I'm coming! Why don't you go to sleep and let a fellow alone?"

Then he discovers that there's coal needed. When that is supplied and rattled into the stove he sits down to warm his feet. Next he slowly begins to undress, and as he stands rubbing himself and absently gazing on the last garment, dangling over the back of the chair, he remembers that he wants a drink of water. Of course, he once more seats himself before the fire for a last "warm-up."

As the clock strikes twelve he turns out the gas, and with a flop of the bed-clothes and few spasmodic shivers he subsides—no, not yet; he forgot to see if the door was locked, and another flop of the bed-clothes brings forth the remark: "Good gracious! if that man ain't enough to try the patience of Job!"

Setting her teeth hard she awaits the final flop, with the accompanying blast of cold air, and then quietly inquires "if he is settled for the night?" to which he replies by muttering: "if you ain't the provokingest woman!"

The Poet's Corner.

Two Kinds of Wives.

A good wife is gear now An ill wife is an ill fate. [Scottish Proverbs.] Oh, he who gets a good, good wife, Gets gold enough and to spare; And he that gets an ill, ill wife, May make and may still be bare.

Fun and Fancy.

The net in which many a politician would now like to be caught and kept in the Cabinet. A question has been raised in one of our courts whether a blind man can be liable for a bill at sight. The lawyers are puzzled.

Warm and Cold Baths.

The physiological effects of warm and cold baths are thus noted by a writer in an English medical journal: Warm baths produce an effect upon the skin directly contrary to that which is brought about by cold water.

Newspaper Laws.

We call the special attention of post-masters and subscribers to the following synopsis of the newspaper laws: 1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning a paper does not answer the law) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reasons for its not being taken.

Shaving Statute.

In a Parliament held at Trim by John Talbot, Earl of Shrewsbury, then Lord Lieutenant, A. D. 1447, 26 Henry VI, it was enacted, "That every Irishman must keep his upper lip shaved, or else be used as an Irish enemy."

Blackie's Advice.

The best advice in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetty, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by all druggists.

The Dignity of Lowly Duties.

Women particularly are inclined to look at the struggle for subsistence as something that ought not to be; they feel that there is no real worth in it, and so they can be no beauty or dignity. The teachers who have assumed that this is such as it is in promise and full of possibilities for the great soul, is of no worth and value in itself, that the lesson to be early learned and to be acted upon always is that we are merely pilgrims who lodge here for a night in order that we may go on next day—these teachers have done more to narrow and restrict woman in the exercise of her best powers than all the petty tyranny of which the avowed woman's rights women claim.

Who was Job's Father.

I cannot refrain from telling a conundrum that was propounded to three ministers when the bluefish party went ashore at the 'Pint,' and took their picnic dinner under the shade of a fisherman's hut. It was: 'If Solomon was the son of David, and Job the son of Zeruiah, what relative was Zeruiah to Job?'

Phosphatine

Is a wonderful thing, yet so natural, so reasonable. Why? If you have feelings of goneness; too weak and dragging; too nervous to sleep; an appetite hardly sufficient to keep a body and soul together; headache with ains across the back; the whole system relaxed; perhaps coughs and sore lungs; and will use one or two bottles of Dr. G. L. Austin's Phosphatine as the case may demand; it will not fail to make you an enthusiastic friend.

The Great American Remedy for COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, LOSS OF VOICE, HOARSENESS AND THROAT AFFECTIONS.

GRAY'S SYRUP OF RED SPRUCE GUM. In this preparation the Gum never separates, and all the antiseptic, astringent, and balsamic properties are preserved.

Its remarkable power in relieving certain forms of Bronchitis, and its almost specific effect in curing obstinate hacking Coughs, is now well known to the public at large.

Prince Leopold's Bride.

The Princess Helena of Waldeck is going to Paris, says the London Truth to buy her trousseau. She will procure it at establishments patronized by the Queen of Holland, and is to be taken to them "incognito" by a lady attached to the Dutch Legation. I am told that Queen Emma is showing herself very generous to her sister, who is to stay with her from the time she has done with her Parisian outfits until she goes to England to be married.

Members and Passes.

Would it not be a good idea for Mr. Morat to amend the independence of parliament act by inserting a clause prohibiting a member under forfeiture of his seat of accepting a free pass from railway companies? It is simply shameful that men who get $600 a session for personal and travelling expenses should hamper their independence by accepting dead-head tickets.—[World.]

Free of Cost.

All persons wishing to test the merits of a great remedy—one that will positively cure Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, or any affection of the Throat and Lungs—are requested to call at your drug store and get a trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, free of cost, which will show you what a regular dollar-size bottle will do.

Burdock BLOOD BITTERS. A friend in need is a friend indeed. This nene can deny, especially when assistance is rendered when one is sorely afflicted with disease, more particularly those complaints and weaknesses so common to our female population.
