

BEWARE OF DECEPTION

Statistics show that when egg albumen is used as a constituent of baking powder, the amount so used is too small (usually 15/100 of 1%) to affect the quality or effectiveness of the baking powder containing it, and when so used, is plainly for the purpose of fraud. Intelligent buyers will not permit themselves to be deceived by the water glass test.

CHAPTER XIX.
IN STRANGE SURROUNDINGS.

Now, there is one advantage, at any rate, in being an actress: that nothing surprises you. No grandeur can overwhelm a person who has been nightly playing with kings and queens—perhaps enacted a queen herself; and though the first glimpse of the interior of Lady Despard's town house was rather startling, Doris was capable of concealing her surprise. The house was new, and magnificently furnished after the latest art craze. The hall was intended to represent the outer part of a Turkish harem, with richly chased arches, marble passages, tropical ferns, and a splashing fountain. Brilliantly coloured rugs made splashes of colour on the cool marble, and here and there a huge but graceful vase lent variety to the decorations. It certainly rather reminded you of one of the divisions of a Turkish harem; but Lady Despard couldn't help that.

As Doris passed through this Oriental hall she heard the sound of an organ, and found that one stood in a dimly lit recess. A young man was playing, and he scarcely raised his eyes from the keys as he glanced at her.

"Miss Marlowe" said the footman, opening a door on the left of the hall, Doris entered a room as dimly lit as the organ recess—so dark, in fact, that for a moment she could distinguish nothing; the next, however, she saw a lady rise from a low divan and approach her.

Doris could not make out her features, but she heard a very pleasant and musical voice say:

"How do you do, Miss Marlowe? I am so glad you have come. Will you sit down a little while, or would you rather go to your room first?"

Doris sat down, and Lady Despard drawing aside a curtain from before a stained-glass window, Doris saw that her ladyship was young and remarkably pretty; she was dressed in exquisite taste, and in colours which set off her delicate complexion and softly languid eyes. Lady Despard scanned Doris's face for a second or two, and her gaze grew more interested.

"It was very good of you to come to me, Miss Marlowe," she said.

Of course Doris responded that it was more than good of Lady Despard to have her.

"Not at all. The favour—if there be any—is on your side," said her ladyship. "I am simply bored to death and pining for a companion. I hope we shall get on together. Mr. Spencer Churchill was quite eloquent in your praise; and he certainly didn't exaggerate in one respect"—and her ladyship let her eyes wander over the pale, lovely face meaningly—"and I am sure you look awfully lovable. By the way, what's your name—I mean your Christian name?"

Doris told her.

"How pretty! You must let me call you by it. 'Miss Marlowe' sounds so stiff and formal—as if you were a governess—doesn't it? Mr. Spencer Churchill says that you are dreadfully clever. I hope you aren't."

Doris smiled.

"I am afraid Mr. Churchill has prepared a disappointment for you, Lady Despard," she said.

Her ladyship shook her head.

"I don't think so. I only hope you won't be disappointed in me. I am awfully stupid; but I'm always trying to learn," she added, with a smile.

"Do you know Mr. Churchill very well? Is he an old friend of yours?"

"No," said Doris, gravely; "I have known him for a few days only. He was very kind to me; very kind indeed."

"I know. He always is," said Lady Despard. "Such a benevolent man, isn't he? I always say that he reminds me of one of the patriarchs, with his gentle smile and long hair and soft voice. Anyone would guess he was a philanthropist the moment they saw him, wouldn't they?"

"I don't know," said Doris; "I have seen so few philanthropists."

"No. Well, I suppose there aren't many, are there? Oh, Mr. Spencer Churchill is a wonderfully good man; he's so charitable, and all that. Why, I don't know how many societies he is connected with. I try and do all the good I can," she added, looking rather bored; "but my philanthropy is generally confined to subscribing five pounds; and there's not much in that, is there?"

Doris was tempted to say "Exactly one hundred shillings," but, instead, remarked that if everybody gave five pounds poverty would be very much on the decrease.

"Yes," said her ladyship, as if the subject had exhausted itself and her too. "How well you look in black! Oh, forgive me!" as Doris's lips quivered. "How thoughtless of me! That is always my way! I never think until I've spoken! Of course Mr. Churchill told me about your trouble. I'm so sorry. I've had trouble myself."

She glanced at a portrait which hung on the wall as she spoke, a portrait of a very elderly gentleman, who must have been extremely ugly or very cruelly wronged by the artist.

"Your father?" said Doris, gently.

"No, that is the earl—my husband," said Lady Despard, not at all discorporated, though Doris's face went crimson. "You think he looks old? Well, reflectively, he was old. He was just sixty-eight when we married. We were only married two years. He was very good to me," she went on, calmly eyeing the portrait as if it were that of a chance acquaintance, "extremely so—too much so, they all said, and I daresay they were right. He was immensely rich, and he left me everything he could. I'm afraid I'm wickedly rich," she added, almost plaintively; "at any rate, I know there is so much money and houses and that kind of thing as to be a nuisance."

"A knock was heard at the door, and a footman entered.

"A person with the tapestry, my lady," he said.

"Oh, very well," said her ladyship, languidly. "I'll come and see it. Would you like to come, or are you too tired, dear?"

"I should like to come," said Doris.

They went into the hall, and a man displayed a length of ancient tapestry.

Lady Despard linked her arm in Doris's, and looked at it for a moment or two with a very small amount of interest, then asked the price.

The man mentioned a sum that rather startled Doris; but her ladyship nodded carelessly.

"Shall I buy it?" she asked of Doris.

Doris could scarcely repress a smile.

"I—really I am no judge," she said.

"I don't know whether it is worth the money or not."

Lady Despard laughed indolently.

"Oh! as to that, of course it isn't worth it," she said, with a candour which must have rather discomfited the man. "Nothing one buys is ever worth the money, you know; but one must go on buying things; there's nothing else to do. Yes, I'll have it," she added to the man, and drew Doris away.

"Now, I've kept you with your things on quite long enough," she said. "You shall go upstairs. I've got some people coming to tea—it's my afternoon—but you needn't come down unless you like; I daresay you'll be glad to rest."

Doris was about to accept the suggestion thankfully; but, remembering her new position, said:

"I am not tired. I shall come down, Lady Despard."

"Very well, then," said her ladyship, touching an electric bell. "Send Miss Marlowe's maid, please."

A quite pleasant-looking maid came to the door, and Doris followed her through the hall and up a winding staircase of carved pine and into a daintily furnished room.

The maid brought her a cup of tea, and leaving Doris to rest for half an hour, returned to show her down to the drawing-room.

As they made their way to it, Doris heard the sound of a piano and the hum of voices, and, a footman opening the door, she saw that the room was full of people.

She made her way, with some little difficulty, to Lady Despard, who was seated at a small table, evidently merely pretending to superintend a tea-service, for the footman was handing around cups supplied from something outside and more capacious than the tiny kettle on the table, and her ladyship looked up and smiled a pleasant little welcome.

"You have come down, after all!" she said, making room on the settee beside her. "This is my new friend, Miss Marlowe, your grace," she added, addressing a stout and dignified-looking lady near her—the Duchess of Grantham.

Her grace surveyed Doris through a pair of gold eye-glasses, and inclined her head with ducal condescension, and Lady Despard introduced several other persons in the circle.

"We are going to Florence together," said Lady Despard, "though why Florence I haven't the slightest idea; it's a whim of my doctor's. I don't feel the slightest bit ill; but he says I am, and he ought to know, I suppose."

The room, which had seemed to Doris quite full when she entered, appeared to get still fuller. People came, exchanged a few words with Lady Despard, took a cup of tea, strolled about and talked with one or the other, or listened to someone who sang or played, and then wandered out. Everybody appeared either languidly indifferent or horribly bored. Doris, as she leant back, half-hidden by Lady Despard's elaborate tea-gown on one side and the voluminous folds of a plush curtain on the other, looked on at the crowd, and listened to the hum and buzz of voices, half in a dream.

Every now and then she heard some well-known name mentioned, and discovered that the people around her were not only persons of rank, but men and women famous in the world of music and letters.

Suddenly she heard a name spoken that made her heart leap, and caused her to shrink still further back.

"What has become of Cecil Neville?" asked the duchess.

Lady Despard shrugged her shoulders.

Successor to Laurier.

W. Mackenzie King Choice of Canadian Liberals.

Profiteering Bill Condemned -- United States Ultimatum to Roumania -- Germany's Big Money Vote.

NEW LIBERAL CHIEF.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6. Hon. Wm. Lyon Mackenzie King, formerly Minister of Labor in the cabinet of the late Sir Wilfred Laurier, was elected to-night chief of the Liberal opposition at the convention here, to which delegates from all over Canada have been sent. The runner-up was Hon. W. S. Fielding, formerly Finance Minister of Canada. Mr. King secured 476 votes against Mr. Fielding's 438. The contest started this afternoon with four nominees, Mr. King, Mr. Fielding, Hon. G. P. Graham and D. D. Mackenzie. Messrs. Graham and Mackenzie retired after the result of the second ballot showed the favorites to be Mr. King and Mr. Fielding. Mr. King led from the first ballot. When the announcement of Mr. King's victory was made Mr. Fielding in a brief speech offered his congratulations to his successful rival.

ANOTHER JOKE.

GENEVA, Aug. 6. The International Socialist Congress in session at Lucerne voted in favor of a German resolution advocating revision of the German peace treaty.

CARVELL'S SUCCESSOR.

OTTAWA, Aug. 7. Stanley E. Elkins, Liberal Unionist M.P. for St. John city and county, is mentioned as a probable successor to Hon. F. B. Carvell in the New Brunswick cabinet representation.

PROFITEERING BILL CRITICIZED.

LONDON, Aug. 7. The Government's sudden decision to introduce a profiteering bill in Parliament announced yesterday at a committee meeting, met much adverse comment in to-day's newspapers. Many of the papers condemn the terms of the bill, which provides for a system of special tribunals, and others express dissatisfaction at the decision which interrupted the work of the parliamentary committee.

GERMAN FINANCE.

WEIMAR, Aug. 6. A bill was presented in the German National Assembly to-day under the terms of which the Finance Minister will be authorized to issue six billion marks in treasury warrants and new money during the coming year. The purpose of the bill is to make more fluid and strengthen temporarily the ordinary cash supply of the Imperial Treasury.

HOLDING BACK.

BERLIN, Aug. 6. Better food conditions do not attract German workmen in large enough numbers to carry out the necessary repair work in France. Only one-fifth of the men needed may be expected to volunteer, the remainder must be recruited through some moderate form of compulsion.

ARCHDUKE AT HEAD OF HUNGARIAN GOVT.

PARIS, Aug. 7. The Peace Conference was advised to-day that the Hungarian Cabinet headed by Jules Peidi had been overthrown and that Archduke Joseph had established a ministry in Budapest.

FOOD SITUATION CRITICAL.

BERLIN, Aug. 6. (By the A.P.)—The food situation in Budapest has become critical because the most productive territories in Hungary have been cut off from the capital by the Roumanian advance, according to advices received here.

BOLSHEVİK SUB SUNK.

LONDON, Aug. 7. A Bolshevik submarine has been sunk in the Baltic Sea by the British torpedo boat destroyer Valorous and Vancouver, according to an official statement issued by the Admiralty this evening.

U. S. ULTIMATUM TO ROUMANIA.

LONDON, Aug. 7. A despatch from Vienna, by way of Copenhagen, to the Exchange Telegraph Company, says that the United States has sent an ultimatum to Roumania demanding the withdrawal of the severe armistice terms presented to Hungary, on pain of a cessation of the shipment of food to Roumania.

PORTUGAL'S NEW PRESIDENT.

LISBON, Aug. 6. Antonio Almeida, former President and Minister of Colonies, was elected President of Portugal to-day by Parliament.

TO CONSIDER RAILROADERS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7. President Wilson to-night notified Director General Hines that he was authorized to take up the demand of the railroad shop employees for higher wages and decide them on their merits.

ARCHANGEL IN BOLSHEVİK HANDS.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 6. (By the A.P.)—The Social Democrat reports that Archangel is in the hands of the Bolsheviks, who have succeeded in cutting connections between the Murman and Archangel coasts.

FRIENDS.

The town is full of friends of mine, and when I leave my tree and vine to walk around a square, they greet me with a cordial smile, and seem to think I'm well worth while, and smooth and passing fair. I often wonder how they'd act if I disclosed the doleful fact that I was busted flat, if I put up my hard luck tale, and for a bunch of borrowed kale should straightway pass the hat. No doubt the cordial smiles would freeze, and I'd be shunned as though disease had marked me for its own; and men I cornered would exclaim, "That I may play my private game, I need my every bone." And punk philosophers will say, "So runs the weary world away, and friendship is a snare; well fixed, you're greeted with a grin; but when your bank account's all in, you're turned down everywhere." When I go forth to work my friends, the sacred boon of friendship ends, and that is right and just; they cannot love me or respect, if I surround them and collect their hard earned store of dust. I have good friends on every block; I meet good friends wherever I walk, but they would turn and flee, if I should try, in friendship's name, to work some cheap leg pulling game, and that's as it should be.

WALT MASON

At the City Hall.

The Municipal Council held its regular weekly meeting last evening. The Mayor presided and all the Councilors attended. After the reading of minutes, etc., the following matters were taken up:

It was decided to begin closing Gower Street Friday morning.

The Mayor reported that the Venturi Meter installation at Headquarters was completed last week and the Department is to be congratulated on the success attending it. During the time the connection was being made the city was supplied with water from St. George's Pond. The Venturi Meter is a great and important addition to the city water works, as it records accurately the amount of water daily or hourly used by the city and would at once indicate any break or interruption which might occur in the supply.

Mrs. M. J. Power called attention to an open space rear of Duckworth Street, which it was stated should be fenced, as it creates a menace to houses nearby. The owner will be written to have fence erected.

James Jacobs asked for the extension of the water main on College Square, to enable him to connect. The Plumbing Inspector is to report.

A. Faulkner wrote stating he was only lessee of the property on Le-Marchant Road and wanted to know if he were responsible for the extension of the sewer along his frontage. He will be written on the matter.

L. White, Charlton St., applied for permission to repair house. Referred to the Engineer.

The Board of Trade, Bowring Bros., Hon. Sir J. C. Crosbie and the G. W. V.A. were granted permission to erect arches.

A. J. Kavanagh will be asked to submit plan of houses proposed to be erected on Rocky Lane.

Enquiry will be made into the capture of horses now at the Public Pound.

Mrs. Healey, Job St., was granted permission to erect small porch.

Thomas Bros. will be given street line to erect fence at the corner of Bannerman St. and Circular Rd.

Thos. Fitzpatrick's plan of building, corner Flavin and Gower Streets, was approved.

Augustus Osmond submitted plan of dwelling to be erected on Bonaventure Avenue. Granted.

S. Feaver was given permission to erect small addition to rear of dwelling, Bond St.

The Health Officer reported ten cases of diphtheria in the city during the past week.

After disposing of some routine business, and passing the pay rolls and bills for the past week, the meeting adjourned.

At the Majestic.

The Majestic presents, to-night, the pictured version of the great and widely-known novel of Mrs. Augusta J. Evans. This novel, "Beulah," was read by millions, and when it is known that the picture surpasses the story, Majestic patrons should turn up in large crowds to see it. Henry H. Walthal takes the leading part, Walthal is America's greatest actor in his own particular line, and in this picture he is shown to great advantage. "Beulah" is an orphan girl, whose younger sister dies without her being allowed to see her. The doctor, seeing Beulah's deep grief, is, although a cynic and a misanthrope, deeply touched and his respect for women, before down to the minimum, is much strengthened. He takes her to his home, where his sister and her daughter become jealous of her, making things so hot that she is eventually forced to run away. The doctor, however, finding that he loves her follows and finds her, at length, to her and his own happiness, marrying her. The picture is one that should be seen by everyone. New and appropriate selections by the orchestra.

C. C. C. for Camp.

Arrangements have now been finalized to hold the C.C.C. Camp this year on the 20th August. At last night's parade over sixty lads offered for camp, and another 50 will be coming from the Bell Island Company. The drum and bugle band will be in attendance. Captains J. O'Grady, L. C. Murphy, and W. Clare will be the Camp officials. A list of articles required by all boys going to camp was posted in the armoury last night, and the list for receiving names has been fixed for August 11th.

Victim of Apoplexy.

A man named William Price of Petty Harbor was stricken with Apoplexy while on the fishing grounds on Monday last, and expired a few hours later. Deceased was about 47 years old and one of the most highly respected fishermen in the settlement.

Fads and Fashions.

For the sea voyage have a suit made of flannel or heavy serge. Silk lace and chiffon make some of the prettiest evening dresses. Earrings are mostly showy, and of pearl, jade, jet and lapis lazuli. Codet fullness is a characteristic of many of the new tailored suits. Italian gray is one of the new shades for felt hats for motoring. A white cotton voile is daintily trimmed with bands of pink voile. A waistcoat in color or white adds to the smartness of the tailored suit.

Louis XVI influences are strong in garments for the advanced season.

Knitted fabric capes have collars of angora wool in contrasting colors.

Brown net over brown satin makes a distinguished afternoon dress.

Blue charmeuse with red embroidery makes a frock of fascinating effect.

Girdles for the new long Georgette blouses sometimes end in three-toned tassels.

Dainty summer wraps are made of two layers of Georgette crepe of contrasting colors.

There is a chic waistcoat blouse of white pique to wear with tailored suits, the sleeves of which are of handkerchief linen.

A smart wrap-coat is of heavy white cheviot and moleskin with heavy embroidery in color.

A fashionable fillet for the hair is a band of gold with clusters of purple grapes at the sides.

A fillet of spangled net is charmingly finished with a big bow of brown tulle, Alsatian style.

Imagine wearing a bird of high plumage at the girdle. This is what Paris women are doing when in evening dress.

STEELE-STEVENSON.

Miss Amy Gertrude Stevenson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Stevenson, and James Robert Steele, ex-Lieut. of the Royal Nfld. Regiment, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Steele, of this city, were married in George St. Church at 3 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. The Rev. D. B. Hemmison, M.A., officiated, and Mrs. R. F. Horwood presided at the organ. The bride, who was given away by her father, was beautifully attired in white satin and wore a veil and orange blossoms, and was attended by Miss Steele and Miss Jean Stevenson who wore exquisite pink georgette gowns. Mr. Richard Steele, brother of the groom, acted as best man. After the ceremony a reception was held at the summer residence of the bride's parents, "Wee Burn," Waterford Bridge Road. The grounds were beautifully decorated with flags and flowers. The presents were many and costly, including cheques. About six o'clock the bride and groom were given a hearty send-off when they motored to Holyrood, where the honeymoon will be spent. Mr. and Mrs. Steele will reside in St. John's. The Telegram extends the best of wishes for a long life of matrimonial happiness.

BLAKE-DAY.

A quiet, but pretty, wedding, was celebrated at St. Thomas's Church on Wednesday evening, when Miss Ella Day and Sergt. K. Blake were united in the sacred bonds of matrimony by the Rev. C. A. Moulton. The bride was neatly gowned and entered the church leaning on the arm of her uncle, Mr. George House, who performed the duties of father-in-law. The bride was attended by Miss Lily Day and Miss Edith House, while Sergt. J. O. Newman supported the groom. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the residence of the bride's uncle, Mr. Geo. House, where supper was served and the health of the happy couple toasted by Rev. C. A. Moulton. Mr. and Mrs. Blake leave shortly for their future home at Gan-der Bay.

Ethie's Report.

(Western Star.)
At some places on Labrador there is a sign of codfish, but it won't trap well, is the report brought by the S.S. Ethie, which ship reached Curling on Saturday afternoon from Straits of Belle Isle. Capt. English informs us his ship reached Battle Hr. on 30th July; there the season was backward and the weather cold. On Labrador side of the Straits there was no cod from Blanc Sablon. Northward, and Grant at that place had only 1,200 quintals on shore when the Ethie was there. Whately has 2,000 quintals, and is doing well at Bonne Esperance and Salmon Bay. On Newfoundland side of the Straits, from Point Ritchie northward there is good fishing, and from St. John's Islands to Fletchers Cove traps are getting all they can handle. Salt is getting scarce in this vicinity now.
About fifty passengers came along by the Ethie, including S. D. Grant and wife, from Blanc Sablon, and L. D. Crane and Dr. Norris who were to River of Ponds salmon fishing.

With the Rod.

(Western Star.)
Dr. Norris spent some weeks fishing on East River, Hawkes Bay, and found salmon scarce.
Mr. Bristol is fishing at Torrent River, and is not finding salmon very plentiful, thought to be due to the high condition of the river.
L. D. Crane who was fishing at River of Ponds for a month, secured eleven fish, the heaviest weighing 21 lbs. The river was in poor condition for fishing.

Handsome Arches.

Amongst the arches erected in the city, the one in course of construction by the Reid Nfld. Co. on Church Hill is much admired by the numerous people who have viewed it as it rises in its majesty. It is indeed a magnificent work of artistic skill, combining neatness and symmetry, and will be a blaze of electric light, with the arc lighting on Water St. with its round towers will be another magnificent contribution to the tout ensemble of the demonstration.

CAPT. LILLA RIDOUT GOES TO SERBIA.

Dr. Lilla Ridout of St. John's, Newfoundland, Captain Ridout, as she now is, by virtue of a Commission granted her by the Serbian Relief Committee of America, was among the 17 Drs., Nurses and Child Welfare workers who sailed for Patras, Greece, on July 26th en route for service in Southern Serbia.

The unit to which Captain Ridout belongs was equipped and sent out by the Serbian Relief Committee of America, Wm. Jay Schieffelin, Chairman, with officers at 70 Fifth Avenue, New York. From Patras it goes to Salonika where it will join Major Wm. A. Cressy the Committee's Director of Medical Relief for Southern Serbia.

There are half a million destitute war orphans in Juge Slavia and the condition of the children in Southern Serbia is most desperate. It is the universal report of those in the field that they must be cared for before winter sets in. "These children," says one report, "have already borne all that it is humanly possible to bear. Their vitality is exhausted, they are strained to the breaking point and unless they are helped and helped quickly they can never live through another Serbian winter."

When the call went out from the Serbian Relief Committee of America for doctors, nurses and trained workers to go to Serbia, applications poured into the committee's office from almost every state in the Union and among those chosen to make up the present unit are natives of North and South, East and West.

The American Woman's Hospital which has already done such invaluable work in Serbia, is co-operating with the Serbian Relief Committee of America by paying the salaries and furnishing the uniforms of the women physicians of the unit. There is no glamor of war here, of going to the front to serve ones country--this is plain hard work--hum-drum and prosaic; to be carried on under many difficulties and amid all kinds of discomforts. Those who go are under no illusions, they are seasoned workers in many fields and they are moved by the call of humanity, by admiration for a gallant people bearing with fortitude undeserved suffering and above all by an abiding love for little children.

Among the questions asked of each applicant was--"What interest have you in going to Serbia?" In answer

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE CURSE OF UNENTHUSIASM.

A near relative of mine loaned her home — a charming house in a beautiful suburb — to a friend for the summer.

I met that friend on the street the other day and asked her how she liked it. Expecting course that she would speak with enthusiasm in order to send her gratitude to my relative through me.

"Oh, it's very pleasant," she said lukewarmly, and then added with much more real feeling, "but we were awfully hot in that terrible hot spell."

I repeated the incident to a woman who knows her much better than I, and she said: "Oh, that's the way she always talks. Don't mind it. It's just her way."

What an ungracious, unbecomingly way!

What Deadly Wet Blankets They Are!

We all know people who are like that, people who are cursed with the curse of unenthusiasm, and we all know what deadly blankets they are.

I have a friend whom I hate to show anything new to because I know just what her reaction will be. Suppose it's a dress—she looks me over critically while I brace myself for what is coming!

"Don't you think it would look better if the sleeves were short?" she says. "I think long sleeves are so ugly. And she's got it a little bit too high in the neck." And then a moment later she adds, with none of that warmth that goes right to the cockles of one's heart when one is displaying some new possession, "Yes, it looks very nice."

Perhaps Short Sleeves Would Look Better.

"Perhaps the dress would look better with short sleeves. Her taste is good and several times I have taken her suggestions and made good use of them. I would not have her omit them. But why, oh why, must she bring them out the first thing? And why can't she put a little enthusiasm into her approval! I have another friend who makes just as valuable suggestions, but her method would be to say: "Oh, what a pretty dress, and it's awfully becoming, too! I do like you in blue," etcetera. Then, a few minutes later, she would look at me as if an idea had just occurred to her and say: "Do you know, I think that dress would look a little better if you would have the sleeves short. I don't think long sleeves are quite so graceful, do you?"

The good results are the same and the atmosphere created is infinitely pleasanter.

Couldn't They Pretend a Little.

Perhaps certain people simply cannot help seeing defects before they see anything else. I don't know. But of this I am sure. They could help making them the backbone of their comment instead of a side issue.

And maybe some people couldn't feel spontaneous enthusiasm, but I do believe that they could install a little show of enthusiasm into their manner if they tried hard enough. Don't you?

I bought a horse with a supposedly incurable ringbone for $30.00. Cured him with $1.00 worth of MINARD'S LINIMENT and sold him for $85.00. Profit on Liniment, $54.00. MOISE DEROSCE. Hotel Keeper, St. Philippe, Que.

Did the Trick.

They sat in sweet converse in the parlour, while the family hid themselves in other odd corners of the home.

But the delicious silence was broken by a loud rat-tat at the front door. "George, dear," said the damsel, "I'm afraid that means another caller."

"But you—there is such a thing as your being 'not at home,' Ethel," implored the youth.

"Yes—or being engaged!" added Ethel, meaningly.

The Onion Way.

Onion eaters, as medical men have noted, are rarely ill, and that because onions clear, as nothing else does, all the poisons and impurities and germs from the body. Onions, in fact, are strong disinfectants, and if sliced raw, and put about a sick room would gather to themselves all the infectious germs just as well as an expensive disinfectant would.

It is for that reason that it is extremely dangerous to eat a cut or skinned onion that has been exposed to the air. It has cleared the air, but gathered to its raw surface what it has cleared.

Medically, onions are excellent for insomnia, and they aid digestion. Further, an onion diet is one of the cures for rheumatism. This is due to the large proportion of sulphur oil in onions.

It is that oil, too, which produces a beautiful, clear, and velvety complexion. Bretons, great onion eaters, are noted for their smooth skins. Onion-juice, too, gives immediate relief from the pain of wasp and other insect stings.

THE GLOWING FUTURE.

Life is getting kinder every day. Men are striving harder to be true; Never mind what scornful critics say. Overhead the skies are shining blue, Through the clouds the sun of truth appears. Selfishness is breaking down at last; Now the future glows with happy years. Peace shall bless the ashes of the past.

Better days than we have ever known Shall our little children live to see, They shall claim contentment for their own.

They shall have the blessings of the free. They shall dwell with neighbors kind and fair; They shall walk with brave and gentle friends.

Goodness now is growing everywhere. Hatred has begun to disappear.

Life is getting fairer every day. Hope is shining bright on every hand. Old-time fetters now are thrown away.

Freedom is the bulwark of our land. Here are signs which every eye can see.

Of a radiant future for our youth. Men are toiling for the world to be. Out of the darkness shines the light of truth.

The largest trout ever caught in the Province of New Brunswick was recently taken from Bedell Brook by Ranger H. W. Bradbury, who was angling in that water, which is tributary to the North Branch of the South-West Miramichi. The fish was a genuine speckled trout. Its weight was eight pounds. Length, twenty-four inches, and girth sixteen inches.

The New York Journal of Commerce places the fire loss during June at $20,475,750 for the United States and Canada. This is better than last year's $24,820,600 but worse than 1917's figures of $15,513,270. The total for the six months so July 1 was $131,016,974, which is not an unusual figure. The pity of it is that a very large percentage of it could have been prevented. Much of it is due to carelessness or the flimsy building.

A hotel in a Colorado town bears a huge sign on which are the words: "Free Board on Days When the Sun Doesn't Shine." This offer, it is said, was first made in 1912, and since that time only three days, December 4, 1913, December 18, 1914, and February 27, 1918, have passed in which there was no sunshine and guests could claim their privilege of free meals. This is a record of 2,554 sunny days in seven years.

The highest price ever received for a bull in the British Isles was paid at the Royal Show at Cardiff, when a red shorthorn bull, Engotte Hero, which was first in its class, was sold for 10,000 guineas. This price is believed to be the second highest ever paid for a single animal. The world's record goes to America, a 3-month-old Holstein bull, Champion Sylvia Johann, was sold by auction at Milwaukee for $106,000 (£21,200). The calf was bred in Ontario.

Against Prohibition.

Lady Henry Somerset, the noted English temperance worker, declares that to enforce prohibition now would be the undoing of all her years of labor to obtain a sober England. Lady Somerset believes that America differs from England, and while prohibition may be all right for the former, it will but mean a revolt in England, and she intends to do her best to ignore the prohibition drive in England, which, she states, will set public opinion dead against temperance.

FRIDAY, August 8, 1919.

The Flour Situation.

Dependent, absolutely, as we are on the millers of Canada and the United States for our flour supplies, the news that the Government of our sister Dominion has decided to take control of the 1919 wheat crop, will be received with much interest, especially if it should ensure, as has been intimated, a reduction in the cost of flour to the consumer, and may eventually lead towards an early general reduction in the present high cost of living, a cost which is being felt more and more by the wage earner.

The main features of the Canadian Government's plan may be summarized as follows: (1) A board to buy and market the wheat crop of 1919. (2) Cash payment on account to be made to the farmer at the time of selling. (3) The entire wheat crop of Canada to be sold by the board at the prevailing world prices. (4) No speculation or profiteering to be allowed to the disadvantage of either producer or consumer. (5) Direct and immediate cash sales by the farmer and speedy movement of the crop along the usual transportation channels. (6) The establishment of a minimum price for flour and to buy and sell on an arrangement similar to that made for wheat.

With this latter, however, the farmers of Western Canada do not unanimously approve, and their objection to price fixing was made plain to the Canadian Prime Minister in a series of telegrams of protest, which urge that "the farmers of the West are entitled to the full benefit of the best price in the world's market." It is very obvious from the policy outlined by the Canadian authorities that this is just the price that the farmers will receive, so why there should be any kicking is not at first sight apparent. Later developments will doubtless furnish the real reason, which may or may not be the refusal to allow speculation or profiteering by outsiders.

But whatever the outcome of this producers' protest, there is considerable assurance from the stand taken by the Canadian Government that their endeavours are being turned in that direction which will ensure lower prices to consumers, and with their determination to control the wheat situation Newfoundlanders will cordially agree, as any reduction in flour prices to the consumer in Canada, will, as a sequence, mean a proportionate reduction to the people of this Dominion, and no person can truthfully deny that the quicker this desideratum is brought about, the better it will be for all concerned in Canada as well as in Newfoundland.

Laurier's Successor.

Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, C.M.G., M.A., LL.B., Toronto; Ph.D., Harvard; F.R.S.C., was born at Berlin, (now Kitchener) Ontario, on Dec. 17th, 1874, his parents being John King, K.C., and Isabel Grace MacKenzie King. The new Liberal Leader is unmarried. He entered the Canadian Parliament as member for North Waterloo, Ontario, in 1908, and was Minister of Labor under the Laurier administration from 1909 to the defeat of 1911. He has filled many important public positions in Canada, particularly in relation to labor, his knowledge of this subject being phenomenal, and his election to succeed the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier as Leader of the Canadian Liberals, over Hon. W. S. Fielding, is proof of his ability and the hold he has on the affections of his party.

English Journalists Here.

Press correspondents representing the London Times, Express, Chronicle, Morning Post, and Daily Telegraph, arrived by H.M.S. Dauntless and are now staying in the city. They are Messrs. Gerald Campbell, Percival Phillips, Douglas Newton, Warner Allen and W. T. Massey whose papers are as mentioned above. They came across on the Dauntless for the purpose of accompanying the Prince of Wales on his tour, having been too late to catch the Renown, which is bringing the royal visitor. Every one of these journalists has been throughout the war, representing their papers.—Mr. Campbell with the French, Mr. Phillips the British, Mr. Newton in London, Mr. Allen the French, and Mr. Massey with General Allenby's forces in Palestine.

The latter scooped the capture of Jerusalem, and is known, as all of them are, as a big figure in the English journalistic world.

Reception of New Rector.

There was a large gathering at the Synod Hall last night to welcome the Rev. L. G. Jeeves, the new rector of the Cathedral Parish and Mrs. Jeeves on their coming amongst us. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Canon Field occupied the chair and there was a pleasant little programme, to which Mrs. Job, Mrs. H. Outerbridge, Misses Hayward and Hallett, and Messrs. Somerville and Bennett contributed. Refreshments were then passed round and enjoyed by everybody. Mr. J. W. Withers, as the oldest member of the vestry, then formally welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Jeeves, and the rector replied in a suitable manner. A vote of thanks to the ladies for their excellent catering was then proposed by Mr. G. R. Williams and carried unanimously. The Telegram joins in wishing Mr. Jeeves the fullest success in his new sphere of work.

CADETS—W. Clare, goal; Dr. Power, Brown, full backs; Thomson, T. Duggan, Galway, halves; Spurrell, Caul, Maddigan, Canning, Callahan, forwards.

STAR—Delahanty, goal; Kavanagh, Sullivan, full backs; E. Kavanagh, Hart, W. Duggan, half backs; B. Hart, Power, L. Kavanagh, J. Simms and Brien, forwards.

REFERENCE—W. J. Higgins.

Hit by Motor Car.

As a result of being hit and knocked down by Mr. Cantwell's motor car yesterday, Mr. James Warren, of Parker and Company, now lies in the general hospital, very seriously injured. Mr. Warren was crossing Duckworth Street to enter the Custom House, when he was struck and injured about the head. The doctors in attendance have every hope of pulling him through without mishap.

Heavy Electrical Storm.

A violent thunder and lightning storm was experienced on the southern part of Labrador the night of July 26th, and was felt with great severity at Sandy Islands, a "bolt" having fallen there and completely demolished a house, some of the occupants being severely shaken up. Such storms are unusual on the Labrador and the one referred to was evidently confined to a small area, as no report of any such weather was brought along by the Sagona.

Diana's Report.

The Reid Newfoundland Co. received the following wireless from Capt. Burgess of the S.S. Diana yesterday morning via Fogor: "Left Battle Harbor Wednesday morning, coming south. Got down as far as Iron Bound Islands; landed all freight and passengers. Jam of ice up to Cape Harrison; very good sign of fish at Cape Harrison; sign of fish from Indian Tickle to Seal Islands."

Bankers in Port.

A number of Lunenburg bankers arrived in port last night to Job Bros. and Company for sale. They report good plentiful on the Banks and also squid, but variable weather, which hampered operations. They will all resume the voyage as soon as they have their supply of salt.

New Church at Grand Falls.

Rev. Father Finn P. P. of Grand Falls is now making arrangements for the erection of a large church, which will be made of concrete blocks, the dimensions being approximately 150 feet long by 60 feet wide. When completed it will be one of the most beautiful specimens of architecture in the country. It will be remembered that the present church was partially destroyed by fire, some time ago, and Father Finn recognizing that his congregation is increasing is making provision for the future. All who have the pleasure of knowing the Rev. gentleman will wish him success in his undertaking.

A very pretty ceremony was performed at the Chapel of Our Lady of Good Counsel, Presentation Convent, Cathedral Square, yesterday morning, when Gertrude, daughter of Mr. J. and Mrs. Power, Duckworth St., was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. J. P. Roche, of O'Mara's Pharmacy, the ceremony being performed by His Grace, Archbishop Roche. The bride who was beautifully attired in a travelling costume of blue serge, with hat to match, was attended by Miss Nellie Heaney, while the duties of best man were ably performed by Mr. Edward Peany. Following the ceremony the party drove to the home of the bride's parents where luncheon was served, after which the happy couple motored to Avondale, where the honeymoon will be spent. A large number of valuable and useful presents were received by the bride and groom, showing the esteem in which they are held in the city. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Roche wish them many years of wedded happiness in which the Telegram joins.

To Visit Old Country.

Messrs. John Parsons and George Sansom, of Rose Blanche, came to town by the Fortia, last trip, for the purpose of taking passage to the old country on a visit to friends, and will leave by the Digby for Liverpool today. This is their first time going across since they came out as "youngsters," the former 58 years ago to the late Thomas Ridout at Harbor Le Cou, the latter to Newman's room at Gaultois, some 35 years ago, from which place he went West, finally settling at Rose Blanche. Both men, having made good at the fishery, experienced a desire to see again the tree-shaded lanes and green fields of their native counties.

Mr. Parsons goes to Yeovil, Somersetshire, and Mr. Sansom to Sherbourne, Dorsetshire, the distance from each other being inconsiderable in their new homes. Should they like the change both will spend the evening of life in the garden counties of England, but should the lure of Terra Nova prove too strong to be resisted, they expect to come back again. The Telegram wishes them bon voyage and a long and pleasant life in the land of their birth, should they elect to remain there; if not we will be glad to welcome them back to the land of ### Peace Celebration At Holyrood.

On Thursday evening a meeting was convened in the Star Hall to formulate a programme of events for the Peace celebration. The Rev. W. P. Finn was appointed Chairman and Mr. R. Dwyer, J.P., Secretary. The Rev. Chairman spoke briefly on the great event to be celebrated, and emphasized the fact that it would only be in keeping with Holyrood's war efforts to fittingly celebrate the great event of Peace. The following gentlemen were appointed a committee to formulate and carry into effect a programme of events for the Peace celebration: Messrs. Capt. Lewis, Constable Grouchy, M. E. Hawco, Wm. P. Walsh, Wm. Veitch, J. J. Maloney and J. A. Hannon. On Friday night, the ladies of the Patriotic Association held a meeting at which Mrs. Capt. Lewis presided, and the following ladies formed the committee, to add their quota to the programme of events: Misses Nellie Flynn, May O'Neill, C. Fewer; Mesdames Kirby, Dwyer, Crawley and Kennedy. Monday was a lovely day for outdoor sports and amusements. The day was kept as a holiday, and quite a number of our townfolk came around to join in the day's festivities, and this number was largely increased by city visitors who caught on and joined in the general rejoicings. There was a plentiful display of bunting, and at intervals the old cannon near the railway station shook the surrounding hills with thunderous tones of joyous reverberation.

At noon all the school children, gaily dressed and bedecked with flags, assembled in the Star Hall, and whence, marshalled by their teachers Misses Flynn, O'Neill, Bennett, Kennedy and Joy they marched to the field of Mr. James Lewis, to celebrate the Peace Picnic. The children engaged for a time in games and plays, and even some of the older folk present got young again, joined in the games and made lots of fun for them. The good ladies of the committee served them with teas and feasted them with refreshments and other good things which children like so well. In the course of the picnic the children paraded to the Presbytery nearby to call on Father Finn, and each received from him fresh and plentiful supplies of candy. With feasting and playing, gaming and marching the children had little time to spare, and all returned home at 6 p.m. happy and well pleased, and to remember long their part in the ceremonial of the Peace celebration.

At night bonfires blazed forth, and lit the surrounding country and scenery, and a dance was held in the Star Hall by the officers of the W.P.A., and was well patronized by a large number of guests, including many visitors from the city and our own townfolk, all of whom seemed delighted and filled with the enjoyable time. Drinks and refreshments were served by the ladies of the Patriotic Committee, the catering being done by Miss Flynn and Mrs. Capt. Lewis, who spared no pains to give all their patrons a jolly good time. The proceeds amounted to a handsome sum and were presented to the new church fund. On the whole the Peace celebration was a splendid success. The hundreds of school children who participated in the celebration will never forget the event; while visitors from the city and residents of Holyrood contributed largely to make it a memorable one.

To Hon. Sir M. P. Cashin and Wm. Woodford, for some material requirements, and to all who assisted in the celebration, we tender sincere acknowledgment and thanks.—Com. Holyrood, Aug. 6, 1919.

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME.

The fans who attended last night's exhibition game between the "A" and "B" city teams were sadly disappointed at the brand of ball dished up. Errors and bonehead plays were the features of the game, and unless the players considerably improve St. John's can begin right now to bid their fond adieu to the R. G. Reid trophy. In fact all players were in such poor form that Major Montgomerie deferred the selection of the home team, and it would not be at all surprising were he to pick additional ones for another tryout. "A" team won out by a score of 7 to 6. No word has yet been received from Grand Falls, but a telegram is expected by the Trustees of the Cup to-day.

THE HOME PLATE.

"Why do they call the fourth base on the baseball field the plate?" questions a fan. Probably because that's where the players spend so much of their time. Incidentally, that's where they often try to eat up the umpire. And that's where they also try to polish off a pitcher.

IF

IF the Red Lions beat the B.I.S. and Wanderers they are champions. IF they lose one game, and the Cubs should win their next two then they are both ties, and a play off will be necessary. IF both the B.I.S. and Wanderers should win their remaining two games then it's going to be a helluva mix-up, and the pennant will be anyone's.

CLAUDIE H

He lost the game, no matter for that, he kept his temper and swung his hat to cheer the winners. A better way than to lose his temper and win the day.

NEXT LEAGUE GAME.

On Tuesday night at 8:30 the Red Lions will try conclusions with the B.I.S. The Hiltz crew have just got to win in order to clinch the pennant.

Labrador Reports.

The Department of Marine and Fisheries received the following report from Labrador yesterday: Holton—Strong south east wind; cloudy; no ice. Sign of fish. Smokey—Calm; poor sign of fish. ### LLOYD GEORGE PRAISES FOCH.

LONDON, Aug. 6. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—In the Commons yesterday, Premier Lloyd George, in moving a motion of thanks to Marshal Foch, stated that his genius was recognized both by friend and foe. The war would have been won without Marshal Foch, but not in 1918; as what the winning of the war in 1918 had meant to the world was hard to calculate. The gratitude of the whole civilized world, therefore, went out to him (he said). The Premier paid a notable tribute to former Premier Asquith and Sir Edward Grey for accepting the challenge of Prussianism in 1914, thus saving Britain from shame. "We would have been," he stated, "a prosperous but despised people had we not entered the war."

KING GEORGE TO THE PREMIER.

LONDON, Aug. 7. The following is His Majesty's letter from Buckingham Palace to Premier Lloyd George: "My Dear Prime Minister: The honors and rewards to officers of the navy, army and air forces, having been submitted to Parliament, I feel my people will share with me regret that it is impossible to express the nation's grateful recognition of the prominent services rendered by the Prime Minister, both carrying the war to a victorious end and securing an honorable peace. To rectify, somewhat, this omission, and personally to mark my high appreciation of these services, it gives me great pleasure to confer upon you the Order of Merit. Believe me, yours sincerely, GEORGE, R.I." The Premier, in moving the resolution for money grants to the commanders of the British forces, emphasized that the British scale of pensions were incomparably the most generous in Europe, aggregating ninety eight million pounds sterling yearly, or half the national expenditure before the war. It was urged that exceptional rewards ought to be given to those who had borne exceptional responsibilities with exceptional success. He recalled Sir Douglas Haig's tenacity, dauntlessness and readiness to subordinate himself to the demands of his country. He recalled that Lord French of Ypres had fought with very small forces in one of the decisive battles of the war and covered the British army with honor. (Cheers). The Premier paid a tribute to General French as a brilliant commander who had won success in a triumphant crusade. Gen. H. Wilson he described as one of the most gifted soldiers Britain has ever possessed, and stated that his vision and gift for organization were great assets to Britain in the crisis of 1918. "We are indebted to General Robertson," stated Premier Lloyd George, "that the General Staff was so well organized and rendered such good service in the war. Commander Trenchard's energy, he stated had made the air force possible. General Hankey's services were known to but few, but were unsurpassed in displaying remarkable foresight as to the requirements of war. He was indeed an organizer of victory." The Premier also referred to the brilliant leadership of Generals Plumer, Rawlinson, Horne, Byng and Birdwood, without which, he stated, it would have been impossible to turn the tide in the battles of 1918.

LABOR TROUBLES EASIER.

LONDON, Aug. 7. Labor troubles in Liverpool are easier, many ships are held up. General Currie was to have sailed on the Caronia but the boat is unlikely to leave immediately.

THE FIRST DELINQUENT.

LONDON, Aug. 8. The surrender of General Kruska, commander of the German prison camp at Kaiser, has been demanded by the Allies as the first of enemy officials to be tried for violation of International Law during the war, according to a Copenhagen despatch, quoting Berlin advices. General Kruska is accused of having been responsible for the epidemic of typhus fever at Kaiser Camp which caused the deaths of three thousand French prisoners.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, Aug. 8th, 1919. It is a mystery to us why some people continue to suffer from indigestion and dyspepsia, when they might obtain speedy relief, and in many instances a complete cure, by the faithful use of Gault's Digestive Syrup. We cannot, reasonably claim that Gault's will cure all cases of stomach trouble, but in cases where there is constipation and liver trouble, and often when the person affected finds an uncomfortable sense of weight and fullness in the stomach after eating, a few doses of Gault's Digestive Syrup will ease things up, and a little persistence in the use of the remedy will give permanently beneficial results. ### Posthumous V.C.'s for Naval Trio.

London, Aug. 2.—Announcement of three posthumous awards of the Victoria Cross was made in a supplemental issue of the London Gazette recently. The first listed is to Lieut. Commander Geoffrey Saxton White, R.N., who left Madros in the submarine E-14 Jan. 27, 1918, to force the Narrows and attack the Goeben, reported aground after her sortie. The submarine could not find her object and, on the morning of Jan. 28 discharged a torpedo at an enemy ship.

Following a heavy explosion all the lights of E-14 went out and, springing a leak, she drifted. Later she got out of control and, as the air supply was nearly exhausted, Commander White brought her to the surface. She ran the gauntlet of batteries on the shore for half an hour and was badly damaged. Commander White turned her toward the shore to save the crew and remained on deck until he was killed by a shell.

Lieut. Frederick Parslow, R.N.R., is awarded, after nearly four years, the V. C. for gallantry in command of the horse-transport Anglo-Californian on July 4, 1915. The ship, unarmed, was shelled by a submarine for an hour and a half. Lieut. Parslow stopped his ship to get some of his crew away, but receiving a message from a destroyer, started again and held on for half an hour. He was killed, but two destroyers arriving forced the submarine to dive and the ship was saved. His son, Sub-Lieut. Parslow, R. N. R., won the Distinguished Service Cross for steering the ship back to port while his father lay dead beside him on the deck.

When the heavily armed raider Moewe ordered the Otaki to stop on March 10, 1917, Lieut. Archibald Biset Smith, R. N. R., refused and put up a twenty minute fight with one 4.7 gun, scored several hits and started a fire in the Moewe, which took three days to put out. Lieut. Smith got the crew away, but went down with the ship, still flying the British colors.

DYSPEPSIA MAN'S GREATEST ENEMY.

Most Prevalent of All Present-Day Diseases, Declares L. T. Cooper; Victims are Whimsical and Melancholy and Suffer Great Mental Depression; Disease Can Be Cured, He Says.

Explaining the record-breaking purchase of Tanlac by H. Connors and the leading wholesale and retail druggists through the United States and Canada, Mr. E. C. Harris, representing the International Distributor of Tanlac, stated last night that the hundreds of questions now being asked all over St. John's make it imperative that some explanation be made to satisfy public interest.

Speaking of Tanlac, he said: "Thousands of the most prominent people—in fact, people representing all walks of life—in the larger cities of the country, where the celebrated medicine has been accomplishing such remarkable results are even more enthusiastic over Tanlac than I am myself."

An explanation of this it should be stated that Tanlac is believed to be the first actually direct, specific for general inflammation of the mucous membranes and the complications which follow them.

The stomach, is one of the most frequent causes of dyspepsia, and catarrhal inflammation of the nose and throat leads to inevitable complications such as kidney and liver affections, rheumatism, etc. "Show me a man whose eyes are inflamed, whose sense of smell and hearing is affected, and I will show you a man who is suffering from catarrh. Frequently the lungs become involved by the extension of the catarrhal inflammation or germs to the lung substance. Specialists concede this, but it has remained for Tanlac, the new formula, to provide the remedy, as has been so conclusively and convincingly proven by the hundreds of thousands who have been relieved by its use."

At this point, Mr. Harris quoted from one of Mr. Cooper's recent lectures, in which he said: "Of all the distressing conditions that afflict humanity, catarrh of the stomach, or what is more commonly known as chronic dyspepsia, is probably the most prevalent. This most universal malady has baffled the medical profession for years, and the most skilled specialists have been unable to cope with it successfully. "Four might be consumed in describing the sufferings, mental and physical, of the sufferers from chronic dyspepsia and their failure to hasten to get relief. A morbid, nervous, whimsical and melancholy condition of the mind, aside from the nervousness and physical suffering, is the usual condition of the average dyspeptic, and life seems scarcely worth the living."

Dyspepsia or indigestion, as the case may be, is caused by the taking of rich food, or unwholesome food, and the mucous membrane of the stomach becomes irritated, and there is set up an acute or subacute gastric catarrhal condition, which prevents the proper digestion of the food.

"This food is apt to ferment and decompose and as a result the familiar distressing symptoms of dyspepsia may arise. In mild cases there is nothing more than an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach, with a certain amount of depression, headache, loss of appetite, perhaps belching of gas and occasional vomiting. There may be also accompanying intestinal symptoms such as constipation, pains in the back, colic, etc. There may be only the familiar heartburn, due to the inflammation of the stomach from excessive gases of fermentation or putrefaction.

"In the most severe cases—those that last over a day or two—the symptoms enumerated may be much more intense. The distress may be marked and the general constitutional symptoms more evident. When this stage is reached the loss of appetite, the mental depression and the general uncomfortable feeling in the stomach are much more pronounced. This is particularly true in acute gastritis.

"It frequently occurs from continued errors in diet that this condition becomes chronic, and the symptoms persist for an indefinite period; the appetite is very apt to be varied, although at times, very good. Heartburn is frequent, if not constant; the stomach is painful on pressure; the tongue is coated, there is a bad taste in the mouth and there are changes in the amount of the salivary secretion. Constipation is also usually present, although diarrhoea may alternate.

"Most cases of dyspepsia can be cured if the diet is properly looked after and with the proper treatment. Proper eating and the proper amount of food are the most important factors in the treatment. Most people eat too fast and eat too much.

"There is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the helpful action of Tanlac, which hastens its work by stimulating the digestive and assimilative organs, thereby enriching the blood and invigorating the whole system. Next, it enables a weak, worn-out stomach to thoroughly digest the food, promoting the assimilation of the nourishing products to be converted into blood, bone and muscle."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by H. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac Representative. —Adv.

French Cod Fisheries.

(From the Boston Herald.)

Things come from Paris that France has appropriated several million francs for the development of the St. Pierre and Miquelon group of islands. That colony is very small in terms of population and area, but it is the centre of the French cod fisheries, with a fleet at the beginning of the war of 227 vessels with crews of nearly 7,000 men, supplying France year by year with dried cod to the value of seven or eight million francs. The colony consists of a dozen islands a few miles south of the middle part of the southern coast of Newfoundland. In all they make 93 square miles of barren and picturesque rocks, but they furnish an invaluable home for the fleet. St. Pierre, the capital, has cable and steamship connection with the outside world. This seems to end the talk of ceding the colony to Great Britain; France appreciates the value of the islands as a source of food supply.

Aberdeen's name of the Granite City is well deserved. She certainly has more buildings of solid granite than any other city of her size in the world.

To return to England, Worcester, from her constant devotion to the cause of the Stuarts, is still known as the "Loyal City," and is proud of the title.

Plymouth has recently amalgamated with her two smaller neighbours, Stonehouse and Devonport. These three, which are, geographically, one of the same, are always known as the Three Towns.

Bristol is sometimes called the City of Masts and Spires. You have only to see the town to realize how appropriate is the title.

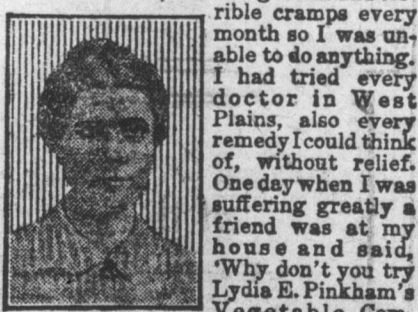

BLURTED IT OUT.—Bishop Clark of Rhode Island once went to see one of his parishioners, a lady with a prodigious family, which had been recently increased. ### WOMAN SAVED MUCH SUFFERING

By taking Friend's Advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

West Plains, Mo.—"I was all run down in health, had indigestion and terrible cramps every month so I was unable to do anything. I had tried every doctor in West Plains, also every remedy I could think of, without relief. One day when I was suffering greatly a friend was at my house and said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' So I did, and through it, I found relief from my suffering and I really believe it saved my life. It does not seem as though I can say enough in praise of this wonderful medicine for the health it has brought me."—Miss CORA LEE HALL, West Plains, Mo.

Perhaps it may seem an extravagant statement to say that this great remedy saved a life; but women like Mrs. Hall, to whom it has brought health, appreciate the danger and suffering they have escaped too well to doubt it! All who suffer should try it. Why risk life and health without it? For special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Asked to be Drowned.

The following graphic tale of the "Lion" in the Battle of Jutland is told by a gunner who served in turret "B" on the flagship during the action.

The German warship Derfflinger had found the range, and her sailors were doing much damage to the Lion's gun crews. One shell burst on the guns of "Q" turret, and lyddite wiped out the turret, exploding a charge which was ready in the left gun.

"The flash," says the seaman in his story, "ran down the trunk and set the shell room on fire and killed all the blokes there with gas and flash. That was everybody in 'Q' turret on for the count, except the magazine men and their crowd was only saved by the flash doors being closed. Only one bloke got away with it—the controller—the major of Marines—Gard knows how. He had the port side of his face carved off and only his leg and one arm—horrible mess he was in."

THE MAGAZINE BLEW UP.

"I saved that 'Dirt-figure' was still plonking in lyddite, trying to get the magazine, and would find it all right in the next few salvos, and blow up the whole ship, Beattie was all. Flooding the magazine would save the show, but fifty men was down there."

"They was to open the flash doors down would go the flames from the shell room what was a fire. So down the shell room, in among the burning cases and gas and arms and legs what was blown off, down all them broken ladders—red hot they was and all bent—Gard knows how he got down with one leg and no face to speak of—fisted the voice pipe to the magazine and calls them up.

"I don't know what his proper words was, but he tell them how the magazine was going to be found inside the next few salvos, and if they comes out of the magazine what the flash from the shell-room would do, and asks if he can flood the place from the shell-room valve and save the ship.

"All they say is—'Is Beattie aboard still?'"

"'Yes,' says the Major.

"'Then flood us and save the ship,' they shouts.

"'God help you all,' sings out the Major, and opens out the sea cock.

"'When he done that lot he crawls out of the turret through all the hot twisted guns and steel work, and crawls along the 'upper deck and climbs up the ladders to the bridge. Bilme! how he done it nobody knows. Up to Beattie's feet he crawls, and says faint-like 'Q' turret out of action, crew gone, and so am I gone.' He could do no more, and died then.

"'A fog comes on then, about 7 p.m. So we packed up, and the Huns gets

Week-Old Corns Should Be Unthinkable

These "positive" facts are now known to millions. The pain of a corn can be instantly stopped, and forever. The corn itself can be ended completely, and usually in two days. The method is scientific. It consists of attaching a Blue-jay plaster, forgetting the corn, and letting things take their course. The results have been proved by experience.

They have been proved to so many people that corns are now comparatively uncommon. Corns ache are needless. Paring corns is folly. Old-time harsh and mussy treatments have no place today. You will know these facts, and quickly, if you'll try a Blue-jay on one corn. Do it tonight, and the whole corn question will settle itself forever.

LIP LOYALISTS.

Whilst the people of the Allied Nations are united in celebrating the blessings of Peace, and St. John's making preparations to extend a hearty and loyal welcome to Britain's future King, there is one insignificant portion of our people, known as the Opposition, through the Press, who are endeavouring by every means in their power to belittle the merits of the authorities, and belittle the reputations of those who differ with them in politics, and are at present at the head of public affairs in this Colony. One would suppose that these gentry would sink political differences for the time being and unite with the Government and those in charge of the arrangements to welcome His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and by their example and love of country make that welcome one worthy of Britain's Oldest Colony, and a people second to none in the Empire for Loyalty to the Throne. Instead of doing so, they avail of the only channel left at their disposal to attack and malign those who are endeavoring to do their utmost to make the visit of Our Future King an epoch in our country's history that will be handed down to our descendants for all time. It is true that the Opposition forms a very unrepresentative portion of the people of our country, in fact, it is at present a political monstrosity without head, spine or sinew. It may be that they are ashamed to take a leading part in the demonstrations of welcome that are being arranged, and which will be carried out on the 12th and 13th inst., and that like Falstaff's ragged regiment, they cannot muster up courage enough to march through Coventry in a body. Instead of assisting our representatives to give a public and wholehearted exhibition of our Loyalty to the Throne, they assail and condemn, not alone the efforts of those in authority, but hurl tirades of abuse and calumny at our leading public and gentlemanly manner. Sir Michael Cashin is condemned by a certain section of the Press for entering into contracts and saving property at the risk of losing his money if the venture proved a failure. He is condemned and vilified for doing that for which Capt. Larder or any other enterprising gentleman from Canada or elsewhere would be applauded, and applauded for the benefit conferred upon himself and those associated with him. But Cashin—down with him—cry the wreckers of character! He is a Newfoundland, what business has he to risk his money to make more and expend it in this country? He has other Newfoundlanders associated with him, but they don't count! We must strike him through the Press, and make it appear that he has done something shady, which in others would be considered enterprising! The accusation will stick. Give a lie twenty-four hours' start, and it will travel round the world before it is overtaken. That is the doctrine of those character-wreckers, who have conveniently forgotten the words uttered by the Almighty from the Mount Sinai.—"Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor"—witness against thy neighbor—Cashin's character is well and favorably known to the clergymen of this Island, to the merchant with whom he has had connection for many years—to the managers of our Banks, and to the people generally of this Colony with whom he mixes freely, and by whom he is held in the highest estimation and confidence for his honesty, generosity, probity, sterling character and manly disposition, and it will take more than the spattering of a few pens-full of ink to damage his reputation in the opinion of his fellow-countrymen.

Victor Emmanuel Enters Milan as King.
On Wednesday, August 8, 1860, Victor Emmanuel, who, in 1849, had been proclaimed King of Sardinia, an island west of Italy, when his father, of the same name, had abdicated its throne, now entered Milan, from ancient times capital of Lombardy, in the centre of ancient Italy having been chosen as king of that part. In 1706, Joseph I, sovereign of Austria, had obtained possession of that city, and other parts of Italy, and when, in 1859, the late Emperor of Austria, Francis Joseph, was invading Piedmont, which now borders on the south-west of France, Napoleon Bonaparte III, Emperor of the French, declared war against him, and Victor Emmanuel allied with him for this defence. These two were victorious at Montebello on May 20, at Palestro on the 30th and 31st, at Magenta on June 4, Marignano on the 8th, and Solferino on the 24th. On July 11 a Treaty of Peace between these three sovereigns was signed at Villafranca, 14 miles east from the last battle site. As a reward to France the seaport of Nice, now at its southeastern extremity, was ceded to it, and its province of Savoy, further north, on March 24, 1860. On November 7 that same year, Victor Emmanuel entered the city of Naples, at the southern end of Italy, having been unanimously elected, while Garibaldi, its dictator, resigned and retired from it. On March 17, 1861, this new sovereign was proclaimed King of Italy, to whom, on November 7, 1866, was ceded its great seaport on the north-east coast, and where, on April 5, 1875, he received in peace the Emperor of Austria, and the same year at Milan, the King of Prussia, Emperor of Germany. Italy's troops had taken possession of Rome, its ancient capital, since which Italy has continued under the united civil government of himself, his son, and grandson. In the present great European war, the Austrians, under the successor of their Emperor, Francis Joseph, who had lost Italy, were trying to regain it. For this purpose Austria joined Germany as an ally, but this made Italy an ally for Britain and France.

Obituary.
There passed peacefully away at her grandmother's residence, on Saturday morning, Aug. 2, at 4 o'clock, Jean Hamilton, darling child of Archibald and Ida Steele, despite the careful attention of her grandmother, who nursed and carefully watched her during her life, and in her last moments on earth. The beauty of her face and sweet voice will be cherished forever in the sweet memories that linger with those who are left to mourn. Though only 6 years old, her trust in the infinite was remarkable to the end. She just fell asleep to be with those sweet Angels of the blest.
Also on Tuesday, Aug. 5, (Agnes Cowan), darling child of Archibald and Ida Steele, aged 8 years.
"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep
From which none ever wakes to weep;
A calm undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the last of foes."

Miserable Life of the Bedouin.
A Bedouin girl is usually sold to her husband at about thirteen years of age. This may seem terrible in this country, but a girl of thirteen in those hot countries is about as fully developed as a girl of 16 or 17 here. By the time she is twenty her beauty and charm has faded, and she is compelled to act as servant to the new wife her husband has bought.
The Bedouins are generally shepherds, but those of the northern Sahara cultivate small tracts of land. As the soil cannot be cultivated in one spot for long, because of the dearth of water, the family and the tribe are continually moving from place to place.
Only three months elapse between the sowing and the ripening of the corn; harvests are over in April or May, and then the Bedouins move on to cultivate another piece of virgin soil. The hard labor of moving is done by the women.

Our American Letter.

Christon, South Carolina, July 27

Senator Reed of Missouri, addressed an audience last Friday evening which packed to the doors the spacious Hibernian Hall. The subject of the brilliant statesman was the League of Nations covenant. I have listened to many of the world's most brilliant orators, including Mr. Gladstone, John E. Redmond and W. J. Bryan, but never have I heard an address which so completely captivated an audience as did this remarkable speech of Senator Reed. The imagery was wonderful and the flights of eloquence were reminiscent of the days when Southern orators made the halls of congress ring with the magic fire of their verbal thunderbolts.

Mr. Reed took up the covenant article by article and calmly and dispassionately pointed out the obligations which this nation is bound to incur should the document be given the assent of the senate. It was a masterly analysis and those who did not give the covenant more than the merest superficial thought previously were convinced by the able Missourian that the league if adopted would place the shoulders of this republic upon the days of the revolution.

We were asked to ratify a covenant which gives to uncivilized black Liberia the same voting power as the great United States of America. We were to allow Hedias, an enemy among nations, whose population consists of wandering hordes of the desert the same power in deciding the fate of nations as we ourselves would enjoy. We were to give to degraded and superstition-ridden Siam the same privileges in the league as far as voting power is concerned as the United States would possess. We were asked to accord to black and bloody Hayti, the land of witchcraft and voodooism the same standing in the league as that which we should hold, and deny representation to a great white nation which a thousand years ago had universities and libraries, a land which lit the torch of learning, when the rest of Europe was sunk in barbarism, a nation of God fearing, heroic souls—Ireland.

To say that this reference to Erin was applauded would be doing but scant justice to the outburst of cheering which it called forth. The entire audience rose as one person and for ten minutes the flower of Southern chivalry made the rafters of the old historic edifice where Calhoun and Henry Clay were wont to weave their oratorical spells; ring with thunderous cheers for poor hapless Erin the birth mother of so many gallant Americans.

Beautiful Southern women dressed in the charming and alluring costumes of Dixie stood upon their chairs and waved their handkerchiefs and fans at the mention of Ireland. It was a scene which once witnessed could never be forgotten. Southern aristocracy of the purest strain led in the cheering for Ireland and their example was followed by the entire assemblage.

The Senator proceeding pointed out the wrong which we have inflicted upon China in the cession to Japan of Shantung. We deceived, he said a trusting ally which had sent 300,000 men to work in the trenches of France that Germany might be defeated and the world saved from ruin and autocracy. The base ingratitude of our act constituted an infamy for which we should wear the sack cloth and ashes of repentance. We defeated one autocracy and are now engaged in setting up a second which if anything is infinitely worse than Germany could ever be.

Senator Reed told of the horrible murders of the Christians in Korea who while worshipping in a Methodist church in Seoul were burned alive by the Japanese fiends. He asked if in the sight of God, the murder of a Korean Christian was not as atrocious as the murder of a Belgian Christian. Yet the league would keep in power the Japanese tyrant and we would be compelled to go to Korea and fight in order that the rule of the Mikado might be safeguarded. It made no difference whether the cause was just or unjust the league would compel the great Christian liberty loving American people to send their soldiers to strange lands and fight in order that the signatory powers might be enabled to keep their grip upon helpless nations.

He continued to tear the covenant to pieces and show it for what it is, a colossal international fraud which will breed more heart burnings among the nations than anything ever before attempted in the history of mankind.

What Christ's sermon on the mount did not do, no league of nations of such a character will accomplish. Nothing that is founded upon injustice will prove sufficiently stable to weather the attacks which will be made upon it.

A wonderful peroration closed his address and the cheering which followed was deafening. It was an epoch in the civic life of Charleston, the very home of eloquence, refinement and chivalry and that it will have an effect upon the coming discussion in the Senate cannot be doubted.

W. M. DOOLEY.
