CHAPTER XXV.
 She rose and got a bottle—Bobby opened it—and she filled the glasses of the players—Then she leaned over Trevor's cards, just dealt, and touched them with the slim taper finger of her left hand; with her right she smoothed the soft dark hair from her forehead.
 Trevor looked up at her and caught her hand, held it for a moment, then pressed it to his lips. Bobby saw the action, but Morgan Thorpe did not, or appeared not to see it.
 She pouted, withdrew her hand slowly, and went back to her place.
 A moment later Trevor flung down his cards.
 "Lost!" he said. "Was it double or quits?"
 "It was," replied Morgan Thorpe. "Lucky I played that king, Trevor!"
 "Yes," snarled Trevor. "It was almost as if you knew I held the queen."
 Thorpe laughed.
 "Wasn't it? A mere fluke on my part; a rare piece of luck."
 Trevor pushed some bank-notes across the table, drank a draught of champagne, and rose suddenly, very nearly upsetting the table.
 "I'm done for to-night," he said, roughly.
 He went toward the fire and stood glowering at it, his hands thrust in his pockets.
 "And so you don't play, eh, Deane?" he said, looking down at Bobby with a sneer.
 "No," said Bobby; "I've chucked it. As I said, I can't afford it!"
 "By Heaven, it would have been well for me if I'd come to that years ago," said Trevor, with a harsh laugh.
 Bobby rose.
 "I must be going," he said. "Are you coming, Trevor?"
 "No," replied Trevor, curtly.
 Bobby said "Good-night."
 "You will come again soon?" Laura murmured, as she pressed his hand—and left.
 Trevor stood staring at the fire for a few minutes, then he looked over his shoulder at Morgan Thorpe, who was lighting a cigarette.
 "Thorpe, I want to speak to your sister," he said.
 Morgan Thorpe looked over his cigarette and raised his brows.
 "Certainly, my dear Trevor!" he said, pleasantly. "I efface myself instantly!"
 When the door had closed upon him, Trevor looked down at the woman sitting over the fire. His eyes were bloodshot, they and his red hair accentuating the pallor of his face.

 "Laura, I want to speak to you," he said. "I'm sick of this."
 She looked up at him with a faint smile.
 "It's about played out as far as I am concerned," he went on in a strained voice. "I can't stand it any longer—and don't it, what's more, I won't!"
 "Why use such language; what is the matter?" she murmured.
 "Never mind my language," he retorted. "It expresses my feelings. Laura, you know I love you, you know that I love you—Bah! what's the use of saying it? You know it all. Will you be my wife? I want your answer. I'm sick of playing this game, sick of seeing you flirting with that—that d-d boy. If you care for me enough to be my wife, say so. I can't and I won't wait any longer!"
 His eyes shone redly, his lips were set and dry, and his voice rasped huskily. For a moment the woman was daunted. She had played this man as an angler plays a trout; now tightening, now loosening the line. And now that he had come to the surface, lo! it was not a trout, but a shark, a dragon with gleaming teeth, a thing almost to be feared! She turned rather pale under her powder, but she smiled tenderly, as she murmured:
 "You know I care for you—Ralph!"
 "Do I?" he said. "But do I? I'm not so sure that I do. Sometimes I have half an idea that you—you have been fooling me, that—" The words were broken by his clinched teeth; his face grew red. Then, suddenly, his mood changed, and he flung himself on his knees besides her and gripped her hands. "Laura, for God's sake, tell me the truth! If you love me, be my wife at once—at once! I can not, I will not wait any longer. I am half mad with love of you; I am drifting to the devil while you—you keep me shilly-shallying. You know that, you know that I am on the road to ruin; marry me and save me—if you love me. If you do not, then—then—I will go. Oh, Laura, have pity on me!"
 His upturned face was distorted by his passion, and suddenly his head fell until his face was hidden in her lap, his hands gripping her dress.
 There was something terrible in his self-abandonment, terrible and pitiable, and most women would have been both terrified and pitying. But this woman had no heart, and was incapable of pity. The touch of fear which had assailed her passed away as he surrendered himself to his passion, and loathing and contempt took its place.
 She looked down with a moue of contempt at the bowed red head, at the clinched hands, upon which the veins stood out in thick cords; but her voice was exquisitely tender and loving as she whispered:
 "You know I love you, Ralph, and—and I will marry you if you wish it; if you think it wise to trust your life to mine so full of the sorrows of the past."
 He raised his head, his face transfigured by relief, joy; and keeping his arm around her, he drew her down to him.
 "Laura, my own!" he cried, hoarsely.
 She suffered the embrace for a moment; she even put her lips to his hot forehead, then she slipped from his arms and rose.
 "Go now, Ralph!" she said, caressing his hand. "You—you almost frighten me!"
 "Forgive me, dearest, forgive me! If you knew how I love you!"
 "Perhaps I do." She smiled sweetly at him, and let her head rest on his breast for a moment. "But, Ralph, we—we must not be rash. You will wait." His face darkened instantly.

 "Wait! Why should we?" he began.
 "Foolish boy, I do not mean for long;—for a month."
 "A fortnight," he said, eagerly.
 "Three weeks, then?"
 She made a gesture of assent.
 "Go now, dearest!"
 She had to endure his parting embrace, with a tender, smiling affection of returning it; but what it cost her was expressed by the cry of disgust which broke from her lips almost before he was out of hearing.
 Morgan Thorpe, coming in, found her crouching over the fire, and wiping her lips, her arms, which his lips had touched, with her handkerchief, as if to free them from some stain.
 "Bah!" she exclaimed, with a gesture of loathing. "Why did you not come in sooner and save me from that—that savage?"
 "What is the matter?" he asked.
 "Has Trevor—?"
 "Yes," she said, between her teeth. "He has been making love, has asked me to be his wife." She gave a low laugh of derision. "And insisted upon an answer."
 "And what did you say?" he asked.
 She laughed again.
 "Yes."
 He started.
 "Great Heaven! Couldn't you have—?"
 "No, I couldn't!" she broke in, with something like a snarl. She did not look very beautiful at that moment. "I couldn't put him off. I was—yes—afraid. He behaved like a madman. Look at his hair! I hate all men; you are all brutes!"
 Morgan Thorpe watched her with a cunning intentness.
 "This is indeed serious," he said again. "Look here, Laura, this chap isn't like most of the others; he's a nasty one to tackle. We shall have to make a bolt for it."
 She shrugged her white shoulders indifferently.
 "Yes, we must fold up our tents like the Arabs, and silently steal away," he said. "It's lucky he didn't break out before."
 "Yes; I suppose you've plucked him pretty well by this time?" she said, callously.
 Morgan Thorpe nodded quite as callously.
 "Pretty near," he assented. "And, come to think of it, it's as well that we should make a move. The other boy has grown shy, and there's no more to be made out of him."
 She yawned with profound indifference.
 "He's not so bad as the other," she said. "He's only a fool. Trevor is a brute and a savage as well."
 "All the more reason for giving him the slip," said Morgan Thorpe. "We could clear out in a few days. By a stroke of luck, I have not paid the last quarter's rent." He poured out some wine and took it to her, and she drank it at a draught, and he followed her example. "I'm not so sure that the other boy, Deane, is quite exhausted," he said, musingly. "He took up his I. O. U.'s to-night, and he is good for another hundred or two. Look here, Laura, here's an idea." He came over to the fire and leaned against the mantel-piece, looking down at her. "He won't play any more, I'm certain of that. But couldn't we run a grand coup? How would it be if you were to work him for a bigish sum, say, a couple of hundred pounds?"
 She yawned.
 "How?"
 "It's easy enough. You can do anything with him."
 "I'm not so sure," she said, reflectively. "He's not such a fool as you think him, and I fancy he is getting a trifle suspicious. I saw him looking at me curiously when I was making the sign behind Trevor to-night."
 "Oh! Then it's time we wound up these operations. But look here; I'll show you the way to draw that couple of hundreds, my dear girl. You go to his rooms one night. Woman in great distress, tearful 'make-up,' with dark rings round the eyes. You've come to him—fisking compromising yourself and all that—because you are in great trouble. Threatened with ruin unless you can obtain a couple of hundred pounds. Have come to him because he is the closest, truest friend you have. See? He can save you by just putting his hand to a little bill. You may not want to use it, will in all probability return it to him in the morning, but in any case it will have you from ruin and despair. See?"

LUMBERMEN LOSE LIVES.

BANGOR, Maine, Nov. 19. Sixteen woodmen were drowned in Chesuncook Lake in the heart of the Lumbering District here yesterday, when a motor boat took fire. The men were being taken across the lake at the time. Efforts to quench the fire failing, the party became panic stricken and many jumped overboard, thinking to escape by swimming and all of these are believed to have lost their lives. About half the crew remained with the boat, and although they were forced to drop overboard after the engine stopped, they clung to the side of the craft until it was blown shorewards by strong winds. The boat drifted against a mass of stumps that protruded above water, and these served as isles of safety for the men until they were rescued by crews from neighboring lumber camps and village folks who had seen the flames from the distance. Because of the large number of lumbermen being sent into the woods at this season, it was said that it would be difficult if not impossible to learn the names of the missing ones except through the identification of the bodies recovered. A large crew of fellow-workmen was engaged in searching for the bodies to-day. Chesuncook Lake is in the heart of the so-called "wild lands" of the State where extensive lumbering operations are carried on.

GERMANY REPUDIATES TREATY CLAIMS.

GENEVA, Nov. 19. The German Government no longer considers itself bound by the clause of Versailles Treaty by which Germany surrenders her colonies to the Allies, according to an official note of protest which has been presented to the League of Nations. The note declares that the Allies have not fulfilled their undertaking regarding this clause of the Treaty concerning allotment of German colonies and mandates. It admits having signed the pact of the League of Nations, but Germany understood she would be admitted to the League and consequently take part in the allotments of mandates, but that now she no longer considers herself bound by that clause of the Treaty.

CANADA STEEL IN COMPETITION.

OTTAWA, Nov. 19. Cable advices from C. H. Flood, purchasing and Contract Agent of the Marine Department, who is in England looking into the market for Canadian steel plans, indicates that Canada will be able to dispose of but few of these plans in the Mother Country. It will be remembered that the Government entered into contract with the Dominion Iron and Steel Company to take a portion of the product of Sydney plant and dispose of it. Consequently the Government is now trying to dispose of the portion of the output of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company's plant, but Flood states that German and Belgian competition in the steel markets of Great Britain is now an appreciable factor and that Canada will meet with strong competition.

AN M. P. SENTENCED.

LONDON, Nov. 19. Lieut.-Col. Lestrangle Malone, Liberal member of the House of Commons, who was arranged in Dublin November fourth, for alleged seditious utterances, was to-day sentenced to six months' imprisonment. There were loud cries of "shame" from Malone sympathizers in the court when sentence was pronounced. Two surety bonds of one thousand pounds sterling were demanded pending an appeal from the judgment of the court. Prior to the sentence Malone declared through his lawyer that he withdrew nothing and apologized for nothing in his Albert Hall speech and was willing to stand trial. The case has caused a sensation in England, because of Malone's position as member of the House of Commons and his notable war record.

GREECE HONORING OBLIGATIONS.

OTTAWA, Nov. 19. Despite disturbance Greece is honoring her obligations to Canada. In an original credit of twenty-five million Canada has actually advanced to Greece rather more than five and quarter millions of dollars. On this sum Greece has met all interest payments due. The interest is paid in dollars at Bank of Montreal.

CAUSE OF DELAY EXPLAINED.

LONDON, Nov. 19. It became known to-day that one of the outstanding reasons why negotiations for re-opening trade with Russia are being prolonged, is the discovery by Great Britain that there are many more British prisoners in Russia than reports to the Government a few weeks ago indicated. After the Soviet agreed some time ago to release all British prisoners many of them were repatriated. At one time it was announced that not more than two score were left and they were expected to be released immediately. The Government is now certain there is still in prisons in Russia British subjects of whom it has no record. They are scattered about the country and officials here believe that possibly the Soviet itself has inaccurate records of their cases. While it was believed ten days ago that the prisoner question had virtually been settled, it has now loomed big in present negotiations.

COMMISSION TAKING EVIDENCE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19. Charging that the "Black and Tan" militia in Ireland made raids without provocation, John Derham, Town Commissioner of Balbriggan, Ireland, gave to-day to the Commission of one hundred investigating the Irish question, what he described as details of the September raid on his home town, which, he said, resulted in the death of half a dozen persons. The "Black and Tan" spent a night of yelling, burning and shooting, said Derham. All of us were ready to collapse at each new outbreak, for we did not know what would happen to us next. In Balbriggan the commissioner declared that James Lawless and John Gibbons were stabbed and claimed it was done by the militia, but said that an inquiry by military authorities failed to establish who was responsible for the death of the men. He declared that a score of houses were burned and that the contents of these left standing were wrecked.

RAIDS AND ARRESTS.

DUBLIN, Nov. 19. From early this morning till late this evening the military were busy raiding in all parts of the city. Places raided included offices of Food Emergency Committee in the City Hall. Twelve persons were arrested during the raids.

EX-EMPRESS IMPROVING.

DOORN, Holland, Nov. 19. The condition of former Empress Augusta Victoria of Germany, who has been suffering from several heart attacks, was so much improved to-day that the former Crown Prince Frederick William, who had been summoned to Doorn because of his mother's illness, returned to his home at Wieringen this afternoon. Before he left he said to a correspondent, "The Ex-Empress is a little better. There is no reason for grave anxiety."

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WILL IT BE LIKE THIS!

RUTH CAMERON

"There is something intensely annoying to me," said the Authorman the other day, "about the idea that sometime, whether I give my consent or not, I've got to die."

"It seems highly probable you will have to," I admitted.

"I don't think I'd mind the idea," he went on, ignoring my response. "If there were some choice about it. If, when one came to the point where one's own free will, one could, of one's own free will, decide to throw down the hand and see if the deal were any more satisfactory, there would be something sporting about doing that. Or if one were called upon to give one's life for some great cause, one could make that gesture with a sense of doing something sublimely worthwhile. But this idea that sooner or later one is going to be pushed off the precipice without a by-your-leave, as I before remarked, is exceedingly annoying to me."

"Perhaps as you grow older it will seem different to you," I suggested.

Just as One is More Willing to Sit Down With a Book.

"Just as sitting down with a book or sitting down and talking seem like better amusements than they did in the days when the 'thrill royal game of hide and seek' was my idea of an ideal way to spend a Saturday afternoon," he took me up. "Perhaps, he's feelings about so many things change. But I wish you'd ask our reader-friends if any of them were felt that way. I'd like to know 'I'm unique."

As if anyone ever were unique—except Adam and Eve.

However, it will do no harm to ask perhaps the Authorman may thus and an affinity.

'Perhaps I Tread On Dangerous Ground.

I find my readers did not finish too such from my remarks on more beautiful funerals (in fact, I had quite a chorus of 'amens' from them), so perhaps they will let me approach even a bit nearer to that subject which some people seem to think is almost as delicate to speak openly about as birth or love or religion—the other three great facts of life.

For my own part I have found that the older I grow the more the word "peace" has come to mean to me. I can remember when it first occurred to me that love might be a sense of contentment and satisfaction in the presence of the beloved—rather than a sense of stimulation and excitement.

Just as the Leaf Gets Ready to Fall.

Likewise, as I grow older the whole connotation of death has come to be linked more closely with the idea of peace, and the thought of it has come to be a less unwelcome thought—especially when I'm tired.

I fancy that as we grow old and weak it will be like growing so much more tired that peace and rest will come to seem the most beautiful and welcome things in the world, and that when the time comes we shall be able to say with Stevenson—

"Here I am where I longed to be, And I laid me down with a will; Home is the sailor, home from the sea, And the huntsman home from the hill."

The Doom of the Seal.

So airships are to be employed in the "hunting" of seals. Hitherto the difficulty which confronted the "hunters" was the location of the herd on the ice; up till now—we are told—it has been a case of "hit or miss." But with the assistance of the "blimp" the element of chance will, it is hoped, be largely eliminated. What a striking picture we have here! The ships of the seal "hunters" no longer poking their noses this way and that in the misty North Atlantic, in the search for their quarry, but steaming straight to the goal on the intelligence supplied by wireless from airships scouting far ahead. Straight to the seal herd they go, and so to their "sport" amid the smacking seas. Is it not a tribute to man's ingenuity and resourcefulness, this turning of the instruments of war to the pursuits of peace? Does it not make a magnificent, an inspiring, picture—these hardy sons of the sea slaughtering by the thousand the defenceless seals, the majestic airships hovering overhead? This scheme is worthy of being placed alongside the proposal of the "hunters" who thought it would be splendid sport to shoot big game with a machine-gun from an aeroplane. Is it not strange—startling would perhaps be the better word—to what lengths people will go in the pursuit of wealth? This much is certain—the use of the airship in the slaughter of seals—if the proposal is really carried out—will speedily have one result, there will soon be precious few seals to kill.—Glasgow Citizen.

The newest blouse features the kimono sleeve and hand hemstitching. French blouses often have soft-frilled fronts.

The narrow surplice collar is in favor.

Evening wraps have widened hip-lines and narrowed hems.

The evening bodice is usually without ornament.

Many new dress models slip on over the head.

The tucked front and collarless neck are featured by some blouses.

The blouse that is worn outside the skirt is favored.

Teddy bear cloth is excellent for the strictly tailored suit.

One-piece frocks emphasize the sides with smart loops of self-goods.

New woolen frocks have fullness arranged on the sides.

The narrow band at the hem is a French fashion.

Loose side panels are employed on semi-evening gowns.

The draped waist is seen chiefly in the evening.

There are some indications of a normal waistline.

The harem skirt is still high in favor.

The apron effect tunic is seen on afternoon frocks.

Some coats are belted only at the sides.

Short, very full skirts are beginning to be worn.

The uneven hem and vague waist-line are features of many French evening gowns.

Drooping frills and collars with hand-drawn hemstitching trim net and Georgette blouses.

Narrow, loose, accordion-pleated panels trim the skirt of a Georgette frock.

World's Smallest Coin.

The coin of the least value ever issued is the "mite," so called, such as the widow of the Bible contributed to the poor. Its shape was hexagonal, and its value about one-fiftieth of a cent. It would take five thousand mites to make one dollar.

CHARACTER.

True greatness is in reach of all. 'Tis not the merit of the few; We need not heed some stirring call. A deed beyond our skill to do; We need not spend our strength for fame.

Nor quit the humbler walks of life Nobility of soul to claim. True greatness is not born of strife.

It matters not what work we do, What post Life asks of us to fill. We can be honest men and true. Though lacking genius or skill; The workman digging in the street, Scarce noticed by the passer-by, May be too great to play the cheat. Too big of soul to tell a lie.

Worth is not always well arrayed. Fine raiment's but an outer shell. Beneath the shabby garb and frayed A patriotic heart may dwell; The man the proud behold with scorn With honest coin may pay his way, Despite appearances forlorn. His conscience may be clear as day.

Medals and crowns are glory's marks, Fame is a witness of a success. But character throws off its sparks. Of lasting brilliance, none the less, And character's one jewel which The humblest man his own may call, Equal with famous men and rich.

True greatness is in reach of all.

A U. S. King Celebrates.

Mike Fogel, "King" of Moorea Island, who at one time was a San Francisco musician, recently gave an elaborate banquet and a ball in honor of all of his native subjects in celebration of the first anniversary of the beginning of his reign. Fogel became "king" when he married Taata Mata, native "queen" of the island, whose husband died when influenza swept the Society Islands. At the banquet Fogel served native foods cooked in European style. The natives, who never before tasted foods cooked other than in the time-worn manner, enjoyed the banquet immensely. Ten oil cans and four ancient hollow drums furnished "music" for the dancing, in which two hundred girls took part. The dance lasted until daybreak.

The Die is Cast.

In more homely words, the "jig is up" for Mr. Coaker. Surrounded by his centurions and captains on the platform of the C.C.C. Hall Thursday night, he made the unpleasant discovery that the fishermen can no longer be bulldozed or flattered into falling in line with his desires, wishes or dictates. This meeting called by himself and conducted under the auspices of the Government, all the speakers being members of the Administration, the chief speaker being no less august personage than the Acting Prime Minister and Minister of Marine and Fisheries, followed by stars of lesser magnitude in the persons of Hon. W. W. Halfyard, Post Master General, Hon. Alex. Campbell, Minister of Agriculture and Mines, and His Honor the Speaker (recently from Norway) Mr. W. F. Penney, M.H.A. for Carbonear. Neither of these gentlemen made convincing speeches. All were redolent of the lamp, particularly that of Mr. Coaker, who merely handed out a rehash of statements made elsewhere, in a vain effort to convince the fishermen present that he was their only saviour, their only sheet anchor, and if they left everything in his hands all would be well. But if not, to quote the words of a notorious French monarch, "Aprez moi la deluge." The Wordy President could not refrain from the well known whining appeal, which is his stock-in-trade on such occasions, and which he has repeated so often with tongue and pen, that he now believes it to be true. "Send me a petition," he said, "signed by fifteen hundred voters of Bonavista District, and I will at once resign." Too thin, Mr. Coaker! All that has been heard before. The men who were present did not go there to listen to such verbal and insincere rot. They wanted to know how and when they were going to get rid of their fish, but they were not enlightened, hence their hostility, which deepened into indignation. Italian blunders made by the stupidity of the Minister of Fisheries could not compensate for the delay suffered by fishermen in hanging around St. John's in a vain endeavor to sell their voyage, made impossible by the Fish Export Regulations. Diagram boards and other subterfuges resorted to in explanation were not the answers the toilers required.

The real fact is that fishermen are here to-day going from merchant to merchant, begging them, almost, to buy their fish, without success. Mr. Coaker has tried hard to put a bluff over on them but it has been palled. All the plausible explanations and excuses that can be made by the Fisheries Minister are not now accepted. The truth has been brought home to the fishermen that they have been sold out and they no longer regard the word of the President as being worthy reliance. All the talk handed out on Thursday night, all the oratory and eloquence of the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, and of the man from Norway, fell upon ears that would not hear. The fishermen has been betrayed, and they have become cognizant of their betrayal. Bluff and bluster have had their day. The power of the Honourable W. F. Coaker has vanished, and he is now regarded as a traitor by the very men who once hailed him as a deliverer. His Export Regulations have imposed such a burden on the dominion that to be free of them is the desire of the producers, and their present temper is such that they will not brook or stand for any attempt to turn them aside from their determination. All the interesting reminiscences of Mr. Penney on his Norwegian excursion at the expense of the people, will not compensate one cent's worth towards all the dollars lost by the fishermen through the operation of the Export Regulations. And speaking of the member for Carbonear, we hand back to him the infamously false assertion of his that any section of the press or any of his fellow townsmen blackguarded him during his absence. Mr. Penney's name was not once mentioned while he was away living and travelling in first class style on a fool's errand, for which the revenue will be taxed. Mr. Penney was not referred to at all in the press until his return home and then only because his useless trip has to be a charge on the taxpayers. So much for him. He merely did as he was told and enjoyed all the pleasures of high life to be paid for out of the people's money. Mr. Coaker's error of judgment was in bringing him upon the platform at all, but then Mr. Coaker is not always responsible for his own actions. The Fish Regulations are one proof of this. His arrogation of all knowledge on all current matters is another, but his crowning accomplishment is in alienating the fishermen from their ten years' allegiance to him. It took a whole decade for the majority of them to discover the truth of the old saying: "Who supps with the devil should have a long spoon."

Czarism.

An interesting sidelight is thrown on Mr. Coaker's ideas of the freedom of the people where he himself is concerned. At Thursday night's meeting in the C.C.C. Hall, the Acting Premier had a posse of constables doing guard duty, with instructions to arrest any fisherman misbehaving himself by heckling the Big Chief. Coaker's idea of fair play is further more illustrated by his refusal to give the fishermen a chance to present their side of the case, by ordering the police on duty to clear the Hall after his speakers had finished. This action of his amply proves our contention of some weeks ago when we stated that Coaker within the four walls of a Union Council Hall, surrounded by paid storekeepers and clerks, could impose his will upon those present, because none would be permitted to speak in denial of any statement that the Chief chose to make. Mr. Coaker nearly went wild because we suggested this. This same Coaker, also, as Chairman of the Railway Commission, the man who is responsible for all the splurge and flutter about the "Cornwall" incident, in the Advocate, only a few days ago sent a squad of police to Clarendville to overawe men there who had refused to work unloading coal steamers for the starvation wage of 80 cents per hour, and if necessary, to compel them to slave at discharging cargo under penalty of arrest. Such is Czarism when Boss Coaker rules. And Squires "the noble young tribune" is on the Atlantic, coming home—to what?

Explanation and Correction.

In our issue of November 15th, under the title "For Popular Consideration," the following words, contained in a letter signed "X.Y.Z." were published:

"How is buying done now? Messrs. Job Bros & Co., for instance, issued 'a periodical trade circular a few days ago, in which they said 'the Regulations (Export) permit the placing of a value of $11 per qtl. on 'No. 1 fish.' There is the suggestion of a falsehood in that statement. The Regulations did not expressly permit the fixing of any price between fishermen and merchant. What should have been said by a 'really truthful circular' was this, 'the prices actually fixed by the Export Board, for fish sold abroad, are such that Job Bros. & Co. feel that they can afford to pay $11 per qtl. for No. 1 fish.'"

Messrs. Job Bros. & Co., Ltd., have complained to us that they had been misrepresented in this statement, and upon careful examination we find that they did not use the words ascribed to them. What they did say, in their trade circular, dated Sept. 16th last, was this:

"We now write to give our friends our views as to the value of the different grades under the revised standards (meaning the grades established by the Standardization Rules).

"Extra No. 1 (White Nape, large and medium) we are prepared to buy this grade at present at $11 per qtl."

We regret that words should have been ascribed that were not used, or if any wrong impression were created, however unintentionally, and hope that the reputation of Job Bros. & Co., Ltd., was not in any way injured.

Kyle's Strenuous Trip.

Twelve hours negotiating the run across the Cabot Strait from Port aux Basques to North Sydney, was the record long trip of the steamer Kyle, which reached her berth at the terminus wharf Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Under ordinary conditions the Lintrose and Bruce made the run in six hours. But Saturday was an exceptionally stormy day. From the moment the Kyle pulled out from Port aux Basques at 3 o'clock Saturday morning she encountered heavy head winds and continuous snow flurries. Scarcely one of the sixty passengers escaped a heavy dose of seasickness, and none will ever forget the trip, according to several of the passengers. All however, were loud in their praises of Captain Stevenson and the various officers of the ship, who were in constant attendance on the board.—North Sydney Herald, Nov. 15.

Burin Marine Railway.

First Trials Highly Successful. A credit to the South Coast.

BURIN, To-day.
Special to Evening Telegram
The first trial of the new Marine Railway was made this morning, when both cradles were successfully launched and put in operation. This plant has been built under the superintendence of Mr. J. Urwin of The Crandell Engineering Co. of Boston, U.S.A. The largest of the cradles is capable of pulling a dead weight of one thousand tons, while the smaller cradle capacity is five hundred and fifty tons. The plant will cost in the vicinity of one hundred thousand dollars. The opening of the Western Marine Railway marks a new era for the Southwest Coast and Burin now possesses the most up-to-date Marine Railway in Newfoundland. The Railway Company, under the presidency of Mr. W. H. Hollett of this town, has had many difficulties to contend with, but without much advertising has at last succeeded in bringing the work to a successful finish. Time and money that were formerly spent in St. Pierre will be retained in our own country, and the Company deserves the patronage of the ship owners of this Dominion. We wish the President and the Company every success in their venture, as they are men of vision and have faith in the future of Newfoundland.
GEO. A. BARTLETT.

The Herring Fishery.

There was good fishing in Middle Arm last week and prices ran from $2.00 to $2.50 per barrel from the nets. In Humber Arm fishing has been slow the past week or twelve days, but the fish taken this week are of a larger run generally than had been seen and the price continues to $2.00 per barrel. Yesterday there was some fishing off Cook's Brook, and on Monday there was a little doing at McIvers. The gales of wind of late, however, have interfered somewhat with operations. A message from Bonne Bay last Friday stated that herring were very scarce at that place then.—Western Star.

Police Court.

Three members of the Delco's crew were charged with stealing goods, the property of the captain. They were fined $100, $50 and $25 respectively. The case of a first class stoker of H.M.S. Briton, charged with receiving stolen goods, was held over until this afternoon.

A Stormy Trip.

A great many men have been laid off as a result of the temporary closing of the Nova Scotia Steel plant at Sydney. As the majority of workers are Newfoundlanders, we shall be especially hard hit. The company is retaining as many married men as possible, but all the young single men had to go. The closing down of the plant is said to be due to the tie-up of the collieries last Monday, the company being left with practically no coal on hand to keep the furnaces going.

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, Nov. 20.
The Powder known as K.D.C. used to have a great and, we believe, well deserved reputation in cases of indigestion and dyspepsia, and is still occasionally desired by customers in town and outports. We would say that we are able to supply any demand for K.D.C. that we may have. Packages are of two sizes and sell for $1.35 and 50c.—if by post 8 and 5c. respectively must be added for postage.

With the Hunters.

Two men who walked across the country from White Bay to Howley last week, report that they had not seen a caribou during the trip. Hunters are returning from the hunting grounds without having secured any caribou. They report rabbits fairly plentiful.
Word reaches us that thousands of caribou were seen couple weeks ago in back of Hr. Deep and Canada Bay by people in there from White Bay.—Western Star.

Body Not Found.

Word reached us on Friday last, says the Western Star of Wednesday, to the effect that Mrs. S. Blanchard, of St. George's, who has been missing for about a month, has not been located, though search parties scoured the country in that vicinity. The missing woman was about 70 years of age. She went in berry-picking one day and has not been seen since. The only trace found was a shoe in the vicinity where she had gone.

The Collection in aid of the Child Welfare Fund, which will be taken up during the coming week, is being managed by Mrs. Angus Reid and Miss Margaret Furlong, whose names are a guarantee of success in an undertaking of this kind. They are hoping to raise $5,000. When the public knows that it means life or death to many poor babies, surely the response will be prompt and generous. The names of the ladies in charge of the various districts, together with the amounts collected, will be published later.—nov20,21

MEETING THE CONDITIONS OF THE DAY

The position of the Dry Goods Business to-day is such that we feel compelled to make a very definite statement, in fairness to the public and to ourselves.

We hold splendid stocks of merchandise which were bought at the lowest possible prices some months ago.

We have consistently offered goods at prices which permitted us only a narrow margin of profit.

There is a tendency to sell goods to-day at prices which bear no relation to the cost.

Being fully determined to uphold our claim as to St. John's Lowest Prices, we have decided to offer our Entire Stock at such prices that similar qualities are not to be bought so cheaply anywhere else.

A Stormy Trip.

ELEVEN DAYS FROM PLACENTIA TO ST. JOHN'S.

Capt. James Pollett, of the schooner "Emile H." of 30 tons register, describes a very stormy trip experienced by him on a voyage from Placentia to St. John's, with fish cargo. Leaving his home port on Monday, 8th inst., the vessel took the wind dead ahead, blowing hard from S.W. and was obliged to square away for Paradise Sound as the seas were mountainous and wind was increasing in force. So heavy was the wind that the strain of it carried away the fore sheet, and the jerk of the sail going over the side, smashed the fore gaff, and all was hurry and confusion clawing down the canvas. After running under bare poles for some time the crew succeeded in bending and hoisting a riding sail, then shaping course for the bottom of Paradise Sound. To complicate matters a snow storm came on, but after careful navigation the vessel was at length anchored in the desired haven, at 4 o'clock on Saturday evening, the captain and crew having been on deck the whole time, and everything being battened down, nothing to eat could be gotten from tea time Friday until the vessel was safe in port. Leaving Paradise Sound on Sunday morning Petit Fort was reached the same evening, at which place a stay was made until Tuesday, 16th, when a fair wind offering, sail was made and the voyage resumed, and a hard time was experienced coming along to Bay Bulls, which harbor was made on Thursday night last. Leaving Bay Bulls yesterday morning St. John's was reached at 8 o'clock last night much to the delight of all hands. Had the "Emile H." not been an AI sea boat, and well found, it is doubtful if she would have weathered the storms encountered, which in all his experience, Capt. Pollett says was the worst ever met. The vessel is being discharged at the South Side premises of Monro & Co. to-day.

Wedding Bells.

On Nov. 17th, at St. Mary's Church, South Side, a very pretty wedding took place when Mr. Kenneth Samson of Bonavista, and Miss Annie George of this city, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The bride looked charming in a suit of blue silk with hat to match. Mr. Arthur Roberts acted as best man, and Mr. Luke Noseworthy as brides boy, the brides girls were Miss Violet Rose and Mrs. G. Samson. The groom's present to the best man and brides boy were gold sleeve links, and to the brides girls were gold brooches. The groom's present to the bride was a set of furs. The reception was held at the bride's home, where an enjoyable time was spent. The bride received many beautiful presents.

RELATED IN "VERS LIBRE"— VERY.

To those readers who are not familiar with the style of verse and metre, the author wishes to state that it is a new method of his own for which a copyright has been applied. The rapidly changing metre was made to correspond with changes in weather.

Mr. Halfyard:—
"My friends I'll ask you to be quiet
And give to me your keen attention
Whilst I unto you I now relate
The reason for this great convention.
How hard times are, I need not tell
You,
I fear that all too well you know it,
Whilst fish is not a good price fetching."

A Voice:—
"And well you ought to know that, blow it!"

Mr. H.:—
"Well, friends, no longer I'll detain
you,
For Coaker now wants to address
you."

From me he needs no introduction,
To-night he's here, my friends, to bless you:
A big man physically, is he, and mentally—

A Voice:—
"I fear deficient!"

Mr. H.:—
"In matters all with fish connected There's no man who is more efficient."

Mr. Coaker:—
"My friends, I fear the outlook's black."

The country's trade is getting slack,
And if it weren't for men like me,
Now tell me true, where would you be?"

If you don't like this Government,
Still with it you must be content;
For here we are and here we stay
Till nearly four years from to-day.
Trust you yourselves that put us
here.

So now you have no cause to swear,
Now I'll explain the facing situation;
And who we're facing rationally;
Blame the Consorzio for it all,
For they it was caused fish to fall;
They're trying hard to bleed us white.

'Twas up to us to show them fight,
Which we did, as you'll learn—
Voice:—
"And were done in your turn."

Mr. Coaker:—
"I'll not have any interruptions,
I pray you cease all these disruptions,
And now, I say, if it weren't for us Fish would be down to four bucks or less."

A Voice:—
"But now we're not even getting that,
We might as well give it to the cat."

Mr. Coaker:—
"If interruptions do not cease
I shall once call the Police.
Though Greece has lots of olive oil,
In which they might our produce boil.
They do not seem to hanker for it,
Tis sad 'tis true, I much deplore it;
In fact, there's no fish we can sell,
The markets simply gone to h—ll
Voice:—
"Oh, yes, thanks to you and your hunting crew."

Mr. Coaker:—
"If those of you who do not want me
And merely have come here to taunt me,
Will bring to me a large petition
From Bonavista, which addition
Makes fifteen hundred names or more
Though it would cut me to the core,
I will retire at your desire
And ne'er to office ore aspire;
Of markets there's a little I don't know
Though my own trumpet I do not blow."

In everything you can trust to me,
And ne'er again will you be at sea."
Mr. W. F. Penney:—
"Oh, I've just come from Norway,
A country far away;
And many wondrous sights I've seen
In my short foreign stay.
At all the big hotels I've stayed,
By bills the Government has paid;
My stateroom on the ship was great,
Yes, it takes me to travel about in state."

A Voice:—
"Oh, Mr. Speaker, on your spree,
Did you hear anything of poor
Mutt?"

Mr. Penney (ignoring interruption):
White Napes are very welcome
there."

A Voice:—
"It wasn't they had those we have here."

Mr. Penney:—
"No longer you shall I detain,
From further speaking I'll refrain."
(Takes his seat amidst loud cheering.)

"Doc" Campbell:—
"This little I have got to say—
Audience (ensemble):
"What welcome news, O Halfyard, Hurray!"

"Doc" also sits down whilst his brother
Mr. Halfyard:—
"The very last word must be mine,
We want you with us to combine,
And raise the price of fish;
Adhesion is our only hope,
Together we may better cope
With all the trouble which—
Audience (ensemble):
"Oh, fish, dry up!"

St. Andrew's Club

CARD PARTY AND DANCE.

The members of St. Andrew's Club gave a dance and card party in their Club Rooms last night in honor of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Association.
During the evening the lunch room was formally opened by Hon. J.
Browning. It is arranged in the ladies parlor and will be of great convenience to members. Beginning Monday next the steward will serve teas to the Club members and their friends. The Ladies' Auxiliary and their guests also may avail of the convenience. The charges for teas will be only nominal. An up-to-date kitchen has been installed, a competent chef engaged, and a first-class service is assured. After the opening of the tea room a card party was held, at which about 120 players took part.
The ladies' first prize was won by Mrs. MacNab, the second by Mrs. Mc-Lellan and the "booby" prize by Miss Crawford. Mr. John Browning won out in the gentlemen's contest and D. G. Gowens the "booby" outfit. After the card party dancing was taken up, more than 60 couples participating.
The enjoyable gathering dispersed at about 1 o'clock this morning, the National Anthem bringing the affair to a close. During the present week
Mrs. J. Browning presented a valuable secretaire to the Ladies' Auxiliary, which gift is highly appreciated.

Dominion Sports Night.

The gold and silver medals now on exhibition in M. Chaplin's window are attracting much attention. There are thirty medals displayed, but by Monday the full complement of thirty-six will be shown. These medals are for prizes in connection with the Dominion Sports, which takes place on Monday evening next, 22nd inst.
The Secretary, Mr. J. M. Tobin, has received a large number of entries and to-night the various contestants will meet and draw for positions.
The Committee will see that each event is run according to schedule and a programme has been prepared, which will be adhered to. The Committee, at the request of the contest-ing athletes, have decided that there should be no smoking in the rink as it is detrimental to the best interests of the runners.

Coastal Boats to Have New Termini.

It is correctly reported that when the Ministry of Shipping is closed down, St. John's will no longer be the terminus of the Portia and Prospero.
The former, it is said, will make Argentia her headquarters, and Port
Union will be the terminus of the latter.
One of the reasons advanced for the change is that it will bring additional revenue to the railway, and help to pay expenses while that service is being operated by the Commission. But it will also mean increased transportation charges on all goods shipped from here, and thus another tax on the people of the West and North. But then, we ought to be used to that.

Store Burglarised.

On Thursday evening at 7 o'clock the store of Mr. F. Bradshaw, situate on Duckworth Street in the building formerly known as the Army and Navy Depot was entered by three unknown men who started in to clean out the place. Three boxes of soap and two cases of corned beef valued at $65.00 were being removed when two pilots whose office is near the store appeared on the scene. The burglars seeing that they were observed dropped the packages and made their escape. The owner and the police were acquainted of the matter and an examination of the store was made. The men entered the building by breaking a pane of glass and but for the arrival of the pilots there is no doubt that the thieves would have made a good clean up.

Got His Own Back.

Two young ladies entered the tram-car and found only standing room.
One of them whispered to her companion:
"I'm going to get a seat from one of these men."
She looked down the row of men and selected a sedate gentleman who bore the general settled appearance of a married man. She sailed up to him and boldly opened fire:
"My dear Mr. Green? How delighted I am to meet you! You are almost a stranger. Will I accept your seat?
Well, I do feel tired, I heartily admit.
The sedate gentleman—a total stranger, of course—looked, listened, then quietly arose and gave her his seat, saying:
"Sit down, Jane, my girl. Don't often see you out on a washing day.
You must feel tired, I am sure. How's your mistress?"
The young lady got her seat, but lost her vivacity.

TRINITY.

The facts referred to in my notes of last week—that about sixty years ago there were fifty-six Crookers living on the N. West side of the S. West Arm; and that to-day there is no one of that name there,—constitutes a brutal reminder of the changes that have gone on in that one little part of Trinity. But the worst is yet to come, for by extending the limits to Penguin Cove on the West of the Crookers, and the Bay's Point on the East of the Crookers, the changes are still more accentuated, by the fact that to-day there is not a name-representative left—not only of the Crookers, but also of the Hiscocks, the Moores, the Guys, the Sevoirs, the Janes, the Eagens, the Jamisons, the Murrays, or the Pearceys, who lived and flourished there sixt-five years ago. Where there were twenty families in those days, there are only four to-day, and these few are strangers who have come to live there within the recent past.

The same may be said of a settlement at the south end of the town of Trinity. Less than fifty years ago there were, at least, six families of Bugdens in that settlement, whilst to-day, Jacob Bugden, son of Joseph Bugden, is the only one of the name, not only in what was the Bugden settlement, but also in the whole of Trinity. None of those families has died out. The majority of the old people died here, but the younger people of the next generation went away. Some have settled in different parts of Newfoundland, whilst others have gone farther a-field.

They all had a narrow escape at one time; for long years ago when the guns on Gun Hill were being got ready to repel a French invasion; during a practice by the gunners, one of the guns was trained on an imaginary group of Frenchmen on the South Side hill. By some means unknown to the master gunner, the muzzle of the cannon dropped an inch, and one of the balls that was intended to kill all the Frenchmen, nearly killed all the Bugdens; for it embedded itself in a ledge of rock on George Bugden's property, and is there to-day as a warning to careless artillerymen.

An incidental reference to the Monument at Christ Church, Port

Rexton, in memory of the men who fell in the Great War, has reminded me that I have not given the detailed description of it which it is entitled to. I do so now. The Monument stands mid-way between the West End of the church and the church gates, within only a few feet from the main road. Though it is erected on church property, it is in every necessary sense available to the general public; for the church gates—like the church doors—are never locked. The church thus guarantees the Monument reverent protection, by the fences and gates provided to protect the church property on which it stands. The Monument stands 8ft. 3in. high, and is made up of three parts, viz.:—the base 1ft. thick. A block of polished marble, 2ft. 3in. high. A Celtic cross 5 ft. high; the whole resting on a concrete base about four feet square. On the face of the cross is a crusader's sword in bold relief. The face of the polished block, on which the cross rests, is divided by a chiseled perpendicular line, into two parts. On one side of this line are the names of those who belonged to the Royal Naval Reserve, and were drowned at sea:—George Barbour, Zebulon Fowlew, and Ralph Randell. These names are surmounted by an anchor, carved in relief. On the outer edge of the line are the names of those who died on the battlefield:—Horatio Barbour, John Banister, Norman S. Fowlew, and Marcus Randell. These names are surmounted by the Caribou head, and the word Newfoundland carved in relief.

On the left side of the block are the words:—"He died for all that they who live should not henceforth live unto themselves." On the right side of the block are the words:—Jesus, Mercy! Grant them Lord eternal rest. On the top of the face of the polished block are the words:—"To the glory of God and in loving memory of the men of this church, who fell in the Great War, 1914-1918. The Monument was made by G. Reid, St. John's, and cost $500.

One by one the old house-landmarks of every place are removed. They have done their work; they have had their day; and the places thereof know them more. Sometimes they are removed by fire and then, as we say: it is the last of them. At other times they are removed by the hands of their owner, in order that such parts of them as are still useful, may become parts of other buildings,—though often for less honourable positions and responsibilities, than they held in the building from which they have been taken. I have often thought of the wonderfully interesting story of the past, that some of such compound buildings could relate, if gifted with speech. Every part would tell the story of its own past experience, in the old building of which it once was a part,—of the words it had heard; of the deeds it had seen; of the people it had known; of the parts it had played in the drama of life; of the assistance it had rendered to those who, one after another, lived or worked in the building.

This train of thought came to me a few days ago as I watched the final removal of the old house, over on the Neudic hill-side, near the house of the late G. H. Cole, Esq.; and the using up of the timber in the construction of a barn. This house had a varied history, and it played several important parts in the domestic and educational life of many of our people.

Mr. John Collins, the town Constable, built this house about eighty years ago, and at that time it was a house of no little importance. John Collins was married to Matilda Finch, a sister of the late Mrs. James Gent, and Mrs. William Hart. The family lived there for many years, and after they were done with it, it was sold and was used by several other families for transient abode. Fifty-five years ago Polly Martin taught school in it. I remember it, for I was one of the pupils. I don't remember the names of any of the other pupils, (except Emma Pittman, now Mrs. Hiscock.) There were, I know, some ten or fifteen others, and I should be glad to hear from some of them, and of their recollections of those days.

Mr. George Stoneman gave us permission to play in his field alongside of the school; but Mr. Ebenezer Stoneman often chased us out, and threatened us with dire destruction if he caught us. Now the house has gone, and for a while our eyes will miss something in that line of vision. Then, all too quickly, we shall forget that it was ever there. Sic transit.

Mr. Cuning, who has been relieving-station-master at Trinity Junction during the last few weeks, has been transferred for temporary duty to Bay Roberts. We shall miss him.

The "loyal town of Trinity" did not do justice to itself on Armistice Day, in outward display of thankful remembrance of all that Armistice Day means to us. I take it for granted that everybody kept the two minutes of thoughtful silence at 11 o'clock, in compliance with the King's request. Only three flags, however:—Robert Fowlew's, Sergt. Ryan's, and that on the Parish Hall were unfurled to the breeze. The children in the school observed the thoughtful silence at 11 o'clock, and a Thanksgiving service was held in St. Paul's Church. Lest we forget.

Mr. Gilbert Christian has been a guest at Garland Hotel during the last few days. "Gill" is always glad to get here, and we are glad to have him come.

The Reid Newfoundland railway will issue a General Shopping excursion one first-class ticket to St. John's, on Saturday, November 29th, till Thursday, December 2nd, to return not later than Monday, December 6th. This will enable the visitors to take in the Poultry Exhibition at St. John's. The ticket from Trinity to St. John's and return will be $9.40.

Mrs. Flander, the wife of Captain Flander, went to St. John's last week to meet her husband there.

By the same train, Messrs. John Hayter, William Hiscock, Samuel Maybee, Lindsay Oakley, and Peter Coleridge, left to go with Captain Flander as crew in his foreign going schooner. Hiscock, Maybee and Oakley belong to the Royal Naval Reserve.

To-morrow—the last Sunday in the Church year—has been appointed by the Bishop as Thanksgiving Day in the Church of England in Newfoundland. The Thank-offerings will be for the Home and Foreign Mission Fund. The Eucharist—the great Thanksgiving Service of the Church, will be offered by every priest with his own congregation on Sunday morning. Rev. C. M. Stickings, and Rev. Hugh Blackledge of Trinity East, will exchange duties on Sunday evening.

Mr. Kenneth Coffin, of King's Cove—son-in-law of Capt. Robert Fowlew—spent the week end in Trinity.

A baby girl has come to the home of Doctor and Mrs. Fitzgerald, Trinity East.

Mr. Robert Peel, representing the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, is a welcome guest at Garland Hotel.

The ladies of St. Paul's Guild, Trinity, intend to hold their annual sale of work and tea in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening next at 7 o'clock, November 24th. This is conveniently arranged to enable the Trinitarians at St. John's to attend. By leaving St. John's on the Wednesday morning's express, they will get to Trinity Junction at 6.30 p.m., where they will be met by autos and taken to the Hall, just in time for supper, and a good time generally. Then, they may either stay a week, or return in the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Grant returned from the City by Wednesday's express.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but few moments to prepare, and saves you about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose. Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup. To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pine in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly. You can feel this hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, but may be persistent. Pine will win formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—infamed membranes—and this Pine and Syrup will win it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment. HOW TO COLLECT STAMPS.

Removing Paper.
Now, let us suppose that you have identified and classified your stamps. There is yet one step before mounting them in your albums, and that is, removing the paper from the backs. The easiest way to do this is to put the stamps into boiling water to let them stay there until the bits of envelopes become separated from the stamps. Unfortunately, however, this does not always give satisfactory results as a great many stamps have been printed in "fugitive" inks, which run when immersed in water. For stamps so printed, the only correct method of removing the paper is to lay them face upwards on a damp sheet of blotting paper and wait until the gum is loosened sufficiently to enable the paper to be removed without harming the stamp. Now, before mounting, let me say a few words on Condition.

There is nothing which spoils the appearance of a stamp collection more than a heavily postmarked or torn copy. Personally I never allow a stamp which has even an imperceptible cut or one tooth of the perforation missing, to get into my collection, except in the case of a variety. Of course in a matter of this kind a collector should use his own discretion, but I would not advise the inserting of a bad copy in one's collection except as a space filler until a better copy is obtained.

How to Mount Stamps.
Too little attention is often paid to this very important matter. When I began to collect I confess that my first specimens were fixed, not wis-perforated 14 instead of 12.) In 1879 a 3c. stamp and a 6c. each bearing the same design, Queen Victoria in widow's weeds, appeared. These were followed in 1871 by a re-engraving of the 1c. of 1868. (In this stamp the letters N. and F. are about ½mm. from the ribbon containing the words "one cent.") In the 1868 stamp they are fully 1mm. away.) This issue was completed in 1873 by a 3c. stamp, of similar design to the former 3c., but of different colour. Between the years 1876-79 the 1c., 2c., (1866), 3c., and 6c. and 5c. were issued rouletted. The 5c. blue is also found imperforate. The engraving and printing of all the stamps of this series was the work of the American Bank Note Co., New York.

Chebogue Point, N.S.
For years I have never considered my stock of household remedies complete unless a bottle of Minard's Liniment was included. For bruises, sprains, frostbites or chilblains it excels, and I know of no better remedy for a severe cold in the head, or that will give more immediate relief than to inhale from the bottle through the nasal organ. And as to my supply of veterinary remedies it is essential, as it has in very many instances proven its value. A recent experience in reclaiming what was supposed to be a lost section of a valuable cow's udder has again demonstrated its great worth and prompts me to recommend it in the highest terms to all who have a herd of cows, large or small. I think I am safe in saying among all the patent medicines there is none that covers as large a field of usefulness as does Minard's Liniment. A real truisim good for man or beast.

PURITY ECONOMY

Child Welfare Work.

On Monday the W.P.A. Child Welfare workers begin their campaign for funds to enable them to carry on their good work. It is intended to canvass the entire town in a house-to-house collection in order that every one shall have a chance to contribute. It is hoped that this appeal will meet with a generous response, because money is badly needed. For the benefit of those who do not know what the W.P.A. has been doing in this particular field of labor it may be as well to mention what its activities have been. It contributes largely to the expense of running the Community Nursing Service, paying almost half the salaries of the four nurses employed. No praise can be too great for the splendid work done by these nurses and the good results they have accomplished. They visit all newly born babies and instruct the mothers, watching over the little ones to give them a good start in life. Through their efforts the infantile death-rate has been materially reduced during the last few years.

The W.P.A. has equipped and set going three Milk Stations in widely separated parts of the city. This ensures a supply of pure clean milk to mothers of young children, and renders available assistance in keeping the babies well. Child Welfare work embraces a variety of other minor activities, which all need money to keep them going, but the chief object of the present collection is to obtain funds for supporting a number of cots in Dr. Fraser's Hospital, King's Bridge Road, where sick babies who cannot be properly cared for at home, may be sent to avail of the facilities for treatment thus afforded. In many cases this will mean life or death to them. Ten dollars a week, five hundred and twenty dollars per year, are needed for each baby sent by the W.P.A., so that the amount of good which this organization can accomplish in this connection will be determined by the money collected during the coming week. Large subscriptions are wanted, of course—the larger the better—but the smaller contributions will be most gratefully received, as well. Do not let this appeal go unheeded! Everyone can give something, and every little helps. The Community Nursing Service, the Milk Stations, the Infant Welfare Centres, and the hospital treatment for babies constitute so great a need, that it is the Community's solemn obligation to support it.

Met Tragic Death.

A message received by relatives a day or two ago announced the tragic death at Brooklyn, N.Y., of Mrs. McNeill of St. John's. From the message, which gave but the most meagre details, it would seem that the deceased lady was using oil to start a fire when an explosion occurred and she was enveloped in flames. She received immediate aid and was rushed to hospital, but died there after a few hours. Mrs. McNeill, whose husband is on the New York detective force, was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arch Campbell, who with their family left here several years ago.

Klark-Urban Co.

The presentation of "Tess of the Storm Country" by the Klark-Urban Company at the Casino Theatre last night, showed that the performers are as much at home in country drama as in high life and society productions. "Tess of the Storm Country" is altogether different from other plays in the repertoire of this thoroughly versatile company, the scenes being laid among the "squatters" and fish poachers along the shores of Lake Cayuga, New York, among whom dwell two of the chief characters, Oron Skinner and his daughter Tess. Oron is accused of murdering a fish warden and is sent to prison unjustly. A young minister offers Tess his assistance to clear the name of her father and becomes her valuable friend. Later, however, with the assistance of a weak-minded fisherman, Ezra Longman (Billy Webb) Oron Skinner is found innocent and the real murderer brought to justice. The remainder of the piece went through without a jarring moment and each performer delivered his and her respective role with absolute ease. Mr. Harden Klark as Rev. Frederick Graves, took his part in his usual manner. Miss Maisie Cecil as Tess, was most realistic in her clever impersonation of the wild forest girl who is unrefined and uneducated. The remaining members of the cast were very pleasing. This production will be repeated this afternoon and night. The bill for Monday night will be "A Contented Woman," Tuesday, "Nothing But Lies," and Wednesday, "The Divorce Question," which closes the engagement. The C.C.C. Band furnishes the orchestra to-night and at the other performances next week.
