Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER XLIV.

She was sleeping so peacefully. She still wore her big travelling coat, and from its big upstanding collar her dainty head and slender throat rose like some graceful flower. Her hat had fallen on to the floor beside her, and her hair was slightly ruffled by the cushions of the big chair.

Had she meant to come to him, even as Philip had said—in his heart he longed to know, and yet now he never would.

He wondered how he would have acted had she done such a thing—if he would have been man enough to send her away or if he would have taken advantage of her loneliness and unhappiness to bind her to him. It would not have meant happiness for either of them. He was wise enough to know that and to know also that she had never cared for anyone but Philip.

He stood in silence looking down at her, his heart in his sad eyes. It was the end of everything for him, and though he had always known how it must end, the knowledge had not served to soften the blow now it had fallen.

He bent over her, taking in every detail of her face—the delicate arch of her brows, the curve of her mouth and the childish way in which her hair broke into soft ringlets about her ears.

He longed to kiss her just once, but he knew that the right was not his even though he had loved her since the first moment of their meeting. It seemed strange that she should never have guessed it.

She stirred a little in her sleep and he held his breath thinking she would wake, but she only turned her face a little further from him as if in mute protest against the desire in his heart and then lay quiet once more.

"Somewhere, to someone, this is the golden hour—"

The words floated into his mind and he wondered idly where he had heard them.

He roused himself with a sigh. It was only his golden hour, anyway. He was only a trespasser here, a trespasser with tears in his honest eyes as he bent and laid his lips for a moment to her hair and then to the little limp hand which bore his friend's ring.

A thrill of gladness passed through his heart at the knowledge that he and Philip could still be friends; that no action of his had made it impossible to look Philip in the eyes again.

Then with a murmured "God bless you" he went away without a backward glance.

He met Philip in the hall, a haggard Philip, whose tragic eyes told their own tale of suffering. He broke out incoherently as he saw Calligan:

"I can't stop here—I can't rest—I'm going back to Apsley to see if she's there. You'll look after Peter . . . I can't rest till I've found her. . . . I'll get off at once."

There was the faintest possible smile, when Calligan said slowly: "There's no need, she's here—in your room."

He caught Philip's elbow and steadied him. "She's all right," he said. "She's asleep."

He did not look at young Winterdick's face. He felt that the relief and joy which he knew he would read there would be more than he could stand just now. He waited a moment, then he turned away and Philip went on alone to the open door across the hall.

Eva was no longer sleeping. The voices of the two men outside had roused her, and she was sitting up with startled eyes and flushed cheeks.

She was not quite awake yet, and for a moment she looked at Philip almost without recognition, as he shut the door behind him and came over to where she sat in the big chair. He went down on his knees and put his arms round her, hiding his face in her lap.

Doris; neither does he himself. I could tell you what his aims are far better than he could. Think well, Doris, before you decide. You brother, Arthur, if I judge him rightly, will agree with me. You will give us both up for a stranger, a Radical, a demagogue! Bah! I have no patience to speak of it!"

This conversation took place on a bright June morning. The lawyer had written a brief, contemptuous reply to Martin Ray's letter requesting his daughter's hand, and then sent for Doris to his study. He had fancied it would be easy to influence her. He believed that he had only to refuse, and she would forget all about the proposal. He had found that he was mistaken. The new love was stronger than the old; hero-worship had a greater charm than mere obedience.

Amos Hatton gave his daughter a few days to decide upon her fate in life. She took the decision into her own hands, and married Martin Ray—but not with her father's consent or blessing. She stole from the house one sunny morning never to enter it again. She married the man whom she believed to be a hero, and reaped her reward.

There was some little surprise and consternation in Harbury when it was known that Doris Hatton had married the young demagogue, whose appearance had created a social whirlwind.

"What could she see in him, a pretty, sensible girl like Doris?" people asked each other.

Few understood the attraction that such a man would have for a romantic, sentimental girl. Doris thought no lot in the world one-half so brilliant as a hero.

Amos Hatton was a heart-broken man. He had but two children, and he had loved them with the deepest possible love. His son, Arthur, a handsome, spirited boy, eight year older than his sister, had chosen the army for a profession; and quite early in his career he had received an excellent military appointment in India, where he was rapidly accumulating fame and fortune. Doris, his fair daughter, was the very pride of his heart. For her the old lawyer had worked and toiled, only to see himself forsaken for a man whom he hated and despised. His heart was bitter, and his wrath was great. He wrote to his son in India, telling him what had happened, and bidding him to drive all memory of his sister from him for ever. Then Amos Hatton made another will, in which he left all his property to his son; and when he spoke of Doris it was as of one dead. Everything that had ever belonged to her—piano, books, pictures, clothes, ornaments—was sent after her. In the lawyer's pleasant, old-fashioned house in Harbury not a trace was left of the daughter once so beloved. He faded quickly after her.

Anaemia
Thin, watery blood is no more nourishing than thin, watery milk—skim milk.

But you can soon enrich this blood, overcome the anaemic condition and build up the whole system by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. F. G. Simmons, 42 Curtis St., Brantford, Ont., writes: "For about eight years I suffered from anaemia. My circulation was poor, my gums and lips were pale, and my hands and feet were always cold. I was nervous and unable to sleep well. I had frequent headaches, seemed restless and easily worried or irritated. There was a buzzing sound in my ears. Indigestion was also one of my complaints, and I often was attacked by weak spells. I went to a doctor, who told me I was anaemic, but as I did not get any better I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after the first box I felt brighter and my headaches completely disappeared. I continued using the Nerve Food for quite a while. I am quite well now, and cheerfully and gratefully recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to people suffering as I did before I used this splendid medicine."

Three Percenters

Do you know that since January 1921, some $250,000,000 of Government loans which carried rates of interest from 6% to 8.47% have been placed in the hands of investors (U.S.)?

Leading bankers say there will be no more of these attractive issues—money is becoming cheaper.

This brings to your immediate attention the passing of an opportunity to secure high-grade investments carrying a high rate of interest for a long period of years.

Political Sensation in Great Britain.

Secretary for India Resigns Office--Canadian Parliament Enlivened by Crossfiring of Leaders--Griffiths Blames De Valera for Limerick Trouble.

MONTAGUE RESIGNS.

LONDON, March 9.

Edward Samuel Montague, Secretary for India, resigned that office today. His resignation was forced some four hours after publication of the despatch from India which was a furor of condemnation in British press--the message from Mr. Montague, reading forth the feeling in India regarding the necessity for a revision of the Treaty of Sevres between the Allies. In announcing the resignation of Mr. Montague, the Government was unable to reconcile the publication of the message on the sole responsibility of the Secretary for India, before consulting his colleagues with the cabinet responsibility of the Cabinet in the city which all Governments of the Empire owed to each other in times of Imperial concern.

MEIGHEN AND MEIGHEN CLASH.

OTTAWA, March 9.

Sharp cross firing between Premier and Hon. Arthur Meighen, Opposition leader, enlivened the brief sittings of the House of Commons today. After the speech of the Premier, the motion on the address in reply to the Prime Minister was considered on Monday. Meighen complained that the Premier had not been given the opportunity. The Premier said he was sorry the notice had been overruled, but thought Meighen ought to have the usual custom. The Premier added warmly that Meighen did not even permit his opportunity to read the speech from the throne before saying what business the Opposition wished Parliament to take up. Meighen protested that it was not the custom of Parliament to delay matters. The Premier retorted that the Opposition would have ample time to discuss matters. After the presentation of some reports adjournment was made until Monday.

LIBERAL PROGRAMME.

OTTAWA, March 9.

The Liberal programme was formally presented by the Governor General this morning. In the speech from the throne, after expressing the opinion that the worst of the industrial depression is about over, the Liberal programme made the following commitments: 1. Communications have been opened with other countries for the extension of Canadian lines and the widening of Canadian lines; 2. Conferences have been held between railway authorities with respect to reduction of rates on commodities; 3. It is intended to start a date to co-ordinate Government owned railway system with view to increased efficiency and economy; 4. An immigration policy will be adopted to attract new settlers; 5. Parliament will again be called regarding re-establishment of the treatment of returned soldiers; 6. Negotiations have been opened with Western Provinces for the transfer of natural resources; 7. A bill will be introduced creating a Department of Defence; 8. The programme adopted at the Washington Conference will be submitted to Parliament for ratification; 9. Changes will be made in the Customs tariff. The speech further in-

Canada will attend the Genoa Conference and that Canadian representatives are to be appointed to meet United States representatives on the question of mail communication.

BRITAIN AND RUSSIA RELIEF.

LONDON, March 9.

The question of British Government relief for starving Russians was heatedly debated in the Commons today. Austen Chamberlain stated that in view of the large sums already voted for European relief and grave distress among the British people the Government was unable to propose a grant from the public funds, but would make every effort in supplying medical stores for Russia. George N. Barnes, of Glasgow, asked if Chamberlain was aware the United States Government had voted $12,000,000 and was feeding 7,000,000 women and children against Great Britain's 70,000. He also asked if Chamberlain knew there was a shortage of 5,000,000 pods for Spring sowing and that if this seed grain was not forthcoming the Russian people would face worse conditions next year. Mr. Chamberlain said he knew the United States had devoted an even larger sum to famine relief, but the British Government must have regard to what it had already done.

GRIFFITHS BLAMES DE VALERA SUPPORTERS.

DUBLIN, March 9.

Arthur Griffith in a statement tonight on the Limerick affair, said the situation there was largely the outcome of incitement to indiscipline indulged in or connived at by some of De Valera's supporters. If, he added, De Valera would now condemn the mutiny in the army the danger of the situation would be greatly lessened.

BLAMING MULCAHY.

LIMERICK, March 9.

A proclamation extensively posted in Limerick today asserted that Richard Mulcahy, Minister of Defence for Dublin, was a "breach of trust" and alone responsible for the present Limerick situation. This document says the Dail Eireann had promised to keep the Irish Republican Army intact until the election, but that Mulcahy had refused to allow the Limerick brigade to occupy the evacuated barracks because they would not take them over on behalf of the Provisional Government, but insisted on maintaining their status as part of the Republican Army.

WASHINGTON, March 9.

BIG FIRE AT QUEBEC.

QUEBEC, March 9.

The Dominion Arsenal here was burnt to-night, with a loss of $200,000. Two hundred men were thrown out of work.

MINERS READY.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 9.

President Lewis of the United Mine Workers Union declared today that the "miners have been ready and now are ready to meet with the operators at any time and place to negotiate a new agreement that will avert suspension of operations in the coal industry."

GREENWOOD TO GO TO HOME OFFICE.

LONDON, March 9.

It is expected that Right Hon. Edward Shortt, K.C., Home Secretary, will be elevated almost immediately to the judicial bench, and that Sir Hamar Greenwood will succeed him in the Home Office.

NEWSPAPERS WIN OUT.

TORONTO, March 9.

Mr. Justice Bidell has given judgment in favor of fourteen Western Canadian newspapers who sued the Fort Frances Pulp and Paper Company, for return of a large sum paid by them in excess of the rates fixed by the tribunal appointed by the Dominion Government for this purpose. The counter claim of the Company is dismissed. The fourteen papers claimed $125,742 from the Company, whose counter claim amounted to $2,500,000. This amount represented the difference between the price allowed the Company by the tribunal and that to which the Company declared it was entitled from the papers.

How Emperor Nicholas of Russia Was Executed.

Ekaterinburg, Russia. (Associated Press.)—A Bolshevik account of the execution of the late Emperor Nicholas and his family which took place here on the night of July 16, 1918, has been made public in a pamphlet written by P. Bykoff, former chairman of the Ekaterinburg Soviet. It was inspired by the Communist opinion that the story of the execution should be told from the Bolshevik side. But apparently it did not meet with the approval of the higher officials for, although it was published in the closing days of 1921, it was immediately withdrawn from circulation. The book was printed by the state printing department of the Cral district government in this city and gives a general review of the labor revolution in the Urals. The last chapter in it records the Emperor's death and is entitled, "The Last Days of the Czar." The book was obviously censored carefully before it was published as it lacks many details of the execution which ordinarily would have been given by eye witnesses. It attempts to justify the execution by explaining that the Orenburg Cossacks were then threatening Ekaterinburg from the south; the Czechoslovak forces were pressing in from the east and letters had been received showing that plots were being formed to deliver the imperial family to the counter-revolutionists. Two extracts from letters are quoted as evidence of the existence of these plots.

THE CZAR'S LAST WORDS. According to Bykoff's account the last words of the Emperor when he and his family were led unexpectedly into the basement of their prison and told that all the Romanoffs must die were: "But are we not to be taken anywhere?" The Empress and her four daughters (the Grand Duchesses Olga, Tatiana, Anastasia, and Marie) and the little Czarvitch and the remaining members of the household of 11 were so stunned that they said nothing when Avdieff, the commandant of the house ordered them to line up against the basement wall and pronounced the sentence. Bykoff says that a firing squad of four shot the former imperial family with revolvers. The identity of the members of the execution squad is not revealed.

Municipal Council.

WEEKLY MEETING.
The weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon. Deputy Mayor Martin presided, and Councillors Outerbridge, Vincombe, Collier and Ryan were present.

The routine business being disposed of, the following matters received attention.

The Secretary of the Bennett Brewing Company, Ltd., wrote stating that owing to choking of water-course near their premises, they had sustained considerable damage and inconvenience for which he asked compensation. The Council does not acknowledge responsibility in this matter.

Local Union 1320, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America submitted resolutions passed at a recent meeting of their Association, in which they claimed that, owing to men from the Outports coming to the City and engaging in carpentering, a great number of the members of the Association were out of employment, and they strongly protested against such a state of affairs being allowed to continue, when they, as residents of the City, are subject to taxation for the upkeep of the various City services. Consideration of the above was deferred to a meeting of the full Board.

Mr. F. Fifield asked that he be given the privileges of the Small Homes' Act for installation of water and sewerage in his dwelling. His request cannot be acceded to at the present time, as there are no funds available for this purpose. His application was, therefore, ordered filed.

Mr. A. Pittman, South Side, wrote with reference to Tax Bill recently received by him, requesting information as to what benefits he was receiving from the City, and why he was liable to taxation. The locality in which Mr. Pittman resides is within the Municipal Limits, and all buildings erected within said limits are liable for the "City Tax."

Communications were tabled from Messrs Dicks & Company, S. G. Condon and G. Luff, in reference to overflow of surface drains flooding their premises. These matters are being attended to by the Engineers' Department.

The City Solicitor reported on Regulations governing the removal of snow from sidewalks, and stated that the Act makes compulsory the removal of snow from Water Street only; and it was, therefore, his opinion that, under the Section of the Act, amended Legislation must be sought before any regulations the Council may make regarding other thoroughfares would be valid.

The matter of Street Lighting was again the subject of considerable discussion, and it was brought to the attention of the Board that the lights in some localities are anything but sufficient to light the surrounding neighbourhood. That on Livingstone Street, corner of Long's Hill, was referred to, and it was pointed out that this light is inadequate. The price paid for these lights, namely $70.00 per annum for each, was considered rather high. The Lighting Committee will take up the matter with a view to improving present conditions.

During the week, a number of residents of Water Street were summoned for non-observance of the law relating to the removal of ice and snow from the sidewalks. In many cases, people who have been circled and informed of their responsibility in this matter, have entirely ignored the notice sent them, and the Council is determined that citizens shall carry out the law in this respect.

The City Engineer submitted plans of proposed new Sanitary Stables. Same were deferred to another meeting.

The City Clerk reported that the past week had been an exceptionally busy one at the Office, as a great number of citizens were taking advantage of the 10 per cent discount on rates, and, as a result, many thousands of dollars, for which payment would ordinarily have been deferred, had passed into the City Exchequer. The matter of discount is a new one in connection with City Taxes, and the taxpayers ought to avail of this opportunity by making payment within the time allowed.

Health Officer Behm reported six new cases of Diphtheria within the City for the past week.

Reports of the City Engineer, Sanitary Supervisor, etc., were read.

Requests for the various departments were acceded to, and accounts presented were ordered paid. The meeting then adjourned.

To-night patrons of the Nickel will see an unexcelled program of 100% entertainment value. First attraction are the well selected songs to be sung by Miss Ruth Chase and Mr. George Dale, which in itself is a distinct attraction. The second big attraction is Maurice Tourneur's tremendous picture "Victory." Those who enjoy motion pictures brimmed full of action, pictures which pull the emotions this way and that, and those who think that Joseph Conrad is the world's greatest writer, will go wild over this picture. The production is on a lavish scale. The scenes shift to various quarters of the globe, and all of them are pictorially beautiful. The South Sea Island locations are especially remarkable. Willing to Meet Negro.

WILLS KNOCKED OUT KID NORFOLK--RATHER A TAME AFFAIR.

New Orleans, March 9. (Canadian Press)—Harry Wills, New Orleans negro, is to be pitted, as a result of his victory over Kid Norfolk last night, for a title match with Jack Dempsey.

Norfolk went to the canvas after 26 seconds of boxing in the second round of his match last night with Wills. Several persons claimed to have seen the blow which sent the "Kid" down, but it escaped the notice of a majority of those at the ringside.

After a tame first round, Wills and Norfolk started and missed a few punches in the second, then fell into a clinch. The referee made an effort to separate them when Norfolk toppled over backwards landing on his shoulders. He arose and walked to his corner apparently unharmed after taking the count. Wills and the referee, "Kid" McFarland, said the knockout blow was a short inside right to the jaw.

Dempsey last night expressed his willingness to defend his title against Wills, and Governor Edwards, of New Jersey, said he would approve of such a match in his State if the public demanded it.

Wills is powerfully built, and while not possessed of the ringcraft and speed that carried Jack Johnson to the championship, has something of a wallop in his punches, and is a willing scrapper. He has a habit of holding an opponent with one arm while hitting with the other, thus exposing his jaw and body to attack. A more clever boxer whose punching power equalled that of the negro might break him of the holding habit.

concerned, is that the language is beautifully simple and easy to learn. And yet it gives the Esperantist the ability to express any thought far more easily than ever any other language would permit. Talleyrand, the famous Frenchman, said: "Language is given to men to conceal his thoughts." This aphorism does not hold where Esperanto is concerned. So far as the need for an international language is concerned, Esperanto is the language of the future. Internationalism is spreading. Art, music, science are already international. Politics are becoming more and more international. Language is at present a great barrier between international fellowship. Take any international conference now. There are dozens of interpreters translating each man's speech into other languages, copies then being handed round for perusal. The result is cumbersome and unsatisfactory. In trade, too, an international language is invaluable. Many big firms of England are already using Esperanto. In some English schools Esperanto is taught already, and many eminent educationalists there have expressed their approval of the language. At the conclusion of his interesting lecture, and after questions put him had been answered, a vote of thanks proposed by Dr. J. A. Robinson and seconded by R. F. Horwood was enthusiastically accorded.

Canada assisted at the opening of Parliament in the Barbados. The Canadian fleet, consisting of the cruiser Aurora and the destroyers Patriot and Patrician, has been spending the winter in the south, and the crew of the cruiser furnished the guard of honor at the opening of Parliament in the Barbados Islands. The Governor of the islands especially thanked the captain of the Aurora and commented favorably on the appearance of the Canadian sailors.

Chased by "Killer" Whales.

Mr. Ponting, a photographer, who went with Captain Scott's ill-fated party to the South Pole, had some nerve-wrecking adventures. Some of them he describes in his book, "The Great White South." Crossing the ice one day with his sledges packed with photographic apparatus, he noticed some "killer" whales in the distance.

These whales have terrific jaws, full of sharp teeth, and they will readily attack human beings. Mr. Ponting decided to get photos of them if he could, as Scott had expressed a wish to have some. Suddenly the whales dived under the ice. Hurriedly reckoning where they would next appear, Mr. Ponting dashed towards the edge of the great mass. When he had got to within six feet of it, he felt the ice—which was only a yard thick in that place—heave up under his feet. It had been split into pieces around him by the whales.

These great creatures were now only a few yards from him, leaping about, rocking the fragments of ice, so that it was only with great difficulty that Mr. Ponting kept his feet at all. His only hope of salvation was to reach the firm ice, and he began to jump from piece to piece, closely followed all the while by the "killers." When he had reached the last piece of ice—the one nearest to the main portion—he found that the distance he had to jump was too great. Luckily at this moment, a side current bore the fragment a little nearer and with a mighty jump he landed on firm ice and was safe.

Only just in time, too, as when he looked round, he found that one of the whales had leapt right on to the fragment of ice he had just left.

The Stormy Petrel of Turkey.

ENVER PASHT MANY TIMES SENTENCED.
MOSCOW (Associated Press)—Enver Pasha, who was Turkish Minister of war during the world conflict, and who has just been arrested by the Soviet authorities in the Caucasus, was believed to have been on the best of terms with Mustafa Kemal Pasha, leader of the Turkish Nationalists in Anatolia. Reports that he would be sent to Angora to be tried by the Turkish Nationalist Government for high treason had only another surprising chapter to the amazing career of this Turkish adventurer. Enver Pasha was sentenced to death by a Turkish court-martial after the war for plunging Turkey into the great struggle. He escaped and for a long time has been head of a mission stationed in Moscow.

WORKING IN THE DARK.
It was understood here that he had obtained material help from Russia for the Turkish Nationalists headed by Kemal and that he would remain in Kemal's good graces so long as he kept away from Anatolia. Enver has made frequent trips from Moscow to the Caucasus and other regions near by where his movements have been unknown. One of the latest reports was that he was organizing Bolshevik occupant in the Caucasus, and that an army was being organized there with the support of the Bolsheviks for the purpose of marching into Anatolia. The Russian Soviet Government recently cut off the food supplies, house and plenty of Soviet rubles which it had generously donated to Enver Pasha's mission during the past year.

Shot Wife and Then Took Own Life.

Newton, Mass., March 3. (Canadian Press)—Baraged because his wife stayed out late at a motion picture show, Wm. T. Garvey shot and killed her, wounded Mrs. Doris G. Atwood, a young woman boarder, and then took his own life last night.

A seventeen-year-old son, Raymond and two other children, witnesses of the shooting, tried unsuccessfully to stop their father, one of the girls jumping at him.

At the Newton hospital to-day, physicians said Mrs. Atwood would recover. Garvey, 49 years of age, was a building contractor. Mrs. Garvey, forty years of age, Mrs. Atwood, 26, and Mrs. Garvey's oldest son left the house early in the evening for a nearby picture show. Upon their return Garvey in an argument worked himself into a frenzy, and when Mrs. Garvey turned toward her bedroom he drew his pistol and opened fire. The first shot went wild.

The second killed Mrs. Garvey. Then Garvey began shooting at Mrs. Atwood, who had attempted to prevent him from firing, a bullet piercing her arm. Mrs. Atwood ran screaming from the house and fell in a faint in the snow. The three children, who had tried to wrest the pistol from their father, were thrown off and Garvey fired a shot through his heart.

Occurrence at Literary Institute.

INTEREST AND VISITOR CONCERNED IN ESPERANTO—THE INTERNATIONAL LANGUAGE IS INTERESTINGLY DESCRIBED BY REV. R. E. FAIRBAIRN.

An unusual and unique occurrence transpired at Methodist College last night, when Rev. R. E. Fairbairn and Charles C. C. a visitor, conversed about Esperanto, and then translated the session to the Institute. Poetry and prose were thus spoken in two Esperanto. The regular debate was not held, and its place was taken by a lecture on the International Language by Rev. R. E. Fairbairn. This was the only lecture given at the Institute this year. The subject of the lecture was of great interest, and was well received. Mr. Fairbairn had to himself an enthusiastic audience, and then translated the session to the Institute. TU QUOQUE.

The Advocate with that reputation for consistency which has made it famous, takes the Telegram severely to task for its apparent lack of that trait, but as usual wanders away from the point and uses up all its space in praise of Mr. Coaker. That is as it should be, for the day upon which the organ of the President fails to laud him to the skies, there will be witnessed the spectacle of a general cleaning up on Duckworth Street. The attitude of the Advocate is of course inspired by circumstances. That which was not good enough for Mr. Coaker seven years ago, when in Opposition, is quite safe enough for the Colony to accept to-day, with Mr. Coaker in the Government. And as always the ad captivum cry is used to capture the Northern fishermen. The consistency of which the Advocate prates never had an existence in the editorial department of that paper. Any old shibboleth is always considered good enough to engage the support of its Northern readers, and naturally to hold their attention, it must condemn those in Opposition, otherwise there would be no kernel in the political nut. It is distasteful to the Advocate to have Mr. Coaker's recorded utterances on the Products Corporation Bill of 1915, given more publicity than Hansard could compass. But the half has not yet been told. So far the bare outline alone has been given. Other interesting excerpts will be forthcoming as occasion demands. Thus will be shown the absolute inconsistency of the President and his following.

At Bell Island.

The situation which has arisen in connection with relief work on Bell Island, is a very serious one, and in all probability may result in the closing down of the mines. At present it is only possible to hazard a guess at the cause of the trouble which has caused the Conception Bay workers to leave the Island, but apparently the conditions under which the men understood they would work, have not been fulfilled. It is known that the minimum wage was $6.10 and the maximum, $9.00. It is manifestly impossible for a man to support himself and family on less than a dollar a day, and that is what the majority of the workers are receiving. Under the circumstances it is only natural to expect that the men from Conception Bay would prefer to take their chances of work or starvation with their families, rather than at a distance from them. It is to be hoped that this very difficult problem will soon be solved in a manner satisfactory to all concerned.

Co-operative Marketing

To-morrow (Saturday) we hope to give space to the address of Mr. A. B. Morine, K.C., as delivered to the members of the St. John's Rotary Club on Tuesday last, making such editorial comment on the subject as its importance warrants.

Availing of Discount.

The inducement to prompt payment of Municipal taxes offered by giving a discount of 10 per cent. if the amount is paid before March 15th, has caused quite a rush at the Municipal office. This morning the lobby was crowded with people anxious to avail of the reduction. The daily average of people paying during the past six days is over 100, and something over $3,000 per day is being collected. This discount is one of the provisions of the new Charter, and had it been put in operation before, there is no doubt but a lot of the outstanding arrears would have been paid on time.

Casino Theatre Leased.

The lease of the Casino Theatre was awarded, last night, at a meeting of the T. A. Executive to a gentleman well known in amateur theatricals. The price is said to be $750 a year more than was paid by the former lessee, amounting to in the present instance, $4,250 per year. A company of which a well known dentist is the principal, is back of this new venture, and it is their intention to produce high-class opera.

Benefit Night.

The management of the Prince's Rink hope to run off the benefit for the ice men to-night. An elaborate sports programme has been arranged and a large number of rink fans are participating in the various races. The Tie-Cup round, if ice conditions permit, will be played next week, on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. These games are bound to prove a big drawing card and it is to be hoped the ice will be good enough to enable them to be played.

Youthful Desperadoes.

SMALL BOYS COMMIT LARCENY.
Four young boys were charged before Judge Morris to-day with the larceny of money and cigarettes from a shop. The smallest of the four, whose head barely appeared above the bar, said he got behind the counter, took the stolen property and gave it to one of the other accused. His Honor took the position that the bigger boys had probably sent the little boy in. The Inspector General asked for a remand. He withdrew the charge against the little fellow and put him in the box. He further said the boy had been before the court in company with the other accused. George Williams said he was ten years of age. He went in around the counter of Bing's shop and took the money out of the till and ten packages of cigarettes. On other boy went into the shop with him. The remand was granted until to-morrow.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, March 10.
Since it has again become possible to obtain our famous Cream of Lilies soap at a price that renders popular sale possible, we have been greatly gratified by the number of our customers who have testified to their pleasure in being able to get this excellent soap once more. We think we can now say that there will hereafter be no difficulty in supplying them with Cream of Lilies soap which during the war years became so difficult to obtain or to sell at a reasonable price. Cream of Lilies soap now sells for 35c. a cake or for a box of three cakes $1.00.

Latest Political Rumors.

Political rumours have been current for the past few weeks, but very little reliance can be placed on most of them. There is a possibility, however, of there being some truth in the latest report, which states that Hon. H. J. Browne is leaving the Department of Finance and taking the office of Commissioner of Public Charities, while his place will be taken by Hon. Dr. Campbell. The present Commissioner will probably be pensioned.

PRINCE'S RINK TO-NIGHT. - Will contestants in the different events advertised for the Benefit Performance for Rinkmen kindly note the show is on to-night without fail!

Princess Mary's Wedding

NEWFOUNDLANDERS PRESENT
A special cable to the "Ottawa Citizen" dated Feb. 28th, gives a list of the colonial guests who were present at the wedding ceremony of Princess Mary. Amongst the names are the following Newfoundlanders: Lord and Lady Morris, Sir Edgar Bowring, Mrs. John S. Munn, Hon. S. and Mrs. Milley, Hon. George and Mrs. Shea. The message further stated that at the end of the present week Princess Mary will receive Lady Morris and Mrs. Munn, who will present the gift of the "Anglo-Nfld. Ladies' Colony" which consists of a magnificent jewel box wrought in Labradorite, encircled with gold and with initials in diamonds. The whole is enclosed in a box covered with Newfoundland seal-skin.

Influenza Prevalent.

At the present time a large number of people are confined to their homes suffering from La Grippe or a mild form of influenza. About 12 men of the police force are off duty on this account. Although many claim it is the flu, yet no cases of this type have been reported to the authorities. It is certainly not like the flu epidemic which visited this country in 1918, in that it has none of the attending complications.

Horsemen Complain.

SULCHES NOT LEVELLED OFF.
Horsemen living on the Logy Bay Road complain of the impassable condition of the main road to the city. The gulches in many places are five feet deep. Yesterday a man was sent to level the gulches but instead of doing so he filled them with snow, so that horses coming to town this morning got bogged. One of these was owned by Mr. Dowden. The animal however was not injured but the shafts of his milk sleigh were smashed off.

Large Attendance at Auction Sale.

Messrs. Dowden & Edwards spent a very busy morning auctioning the provisions and stores of H.M.S. Briton. The attendance to-day was even greater than yesterday. Owing to the electric light being off the ship the auctioneers have been obliged to discontinue the sales in the afternoons. A very large amount of goods remain yet to be disposed of, and the auction will be continued in the forenoon of next week.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

READ IT TWICE.

LONDON, March 10.
In official circles, the view is held that the only justification for publication of the Indian Government's note would have been that the local Indian situation is so acute as to necessitate a demonstration to the Moslem element of the population, that attempts were being made to adjust their grievances. The Foreign Office, however, does not concur that the situation justified any broadcasting of the viewpoint, without merging it with the British and general Allied policy toward Turkey. The publicity, accorded by the note, it points out over-emphasizes India to the extreme detriment and embarrassment of the Empire.

Hero of Vimy Dead.

Major-General Sir David Watson, former G.O.C. of the 4th Canadian Division in France, died Saturday, February 18th, after a paralytic stroke. General Watson was one of the first Canadians at Valenciennes, because he was there before the Government bought the land for that great training camp; in fact, it was he who took General Sir Sam Hughes down there and urged him to acquire the land for what, in a few days, was transformed from a veritable "Sleepy Hollow" into one of the finest military camps in the world.

Under General Watson, the 4th Brigade earned immortal fame. It captured and held Regina Trench after weeks of bloody struggling at the Somme. On April 12, in a blinding snowstorm, they attacked and captured the key position to Vimy Ridge. For services in the war, Sir David Watson was made K.C.B., following on his award of the C.M.G. He was also made a Commander of the Legion of Honour of France; awarded the Croix de Guerre of France and Belgium, and also given the Order of Leopold by King Albert. He held the long-service medal before the war.

HIS DIARY.
March 9th.—To wait on the Prime Minister and to enquire of him concerning the men who did leave relief work on Bell Island. He tells me how he knows little of the matter and awaits a report. Many of the sailing steamers did leave to-day for the ice-fields and but few yet to go. In the afternoon to a meeting about the War Memorial and learn how the printers did in my journal of yesterday, write Father Ryan for Father O'Brien. And another error too, being that they did make Father Crotty of Father Troy, the priest whose remains were dug up in Torbay. Pretty to see how it did rain all the day, and is a sign that spring will soon be with us.

Grocers' Association.

DISCUSS CHEAPER SUGAR.
At last night's meeting of the Grocers' Association held in their new offices at the Royal Bank of Canada building, a very lively discussion centred around the Government's attitude in the sugar situation. It was stated that the losses on sugar received during its control by the Food Board were now redeemed, and that it was high time that the heavy burden of taxation which the people of Newfoundland are asked to shoulder on this commodity should be knocked down to a minimum. It is understood that when the House opens in a few days, this matter will be given the attention of the Government.

The Retail Grocers' Association laid its cards on the table last night, and expressed its intention to use every possible means that is fair to all classes of trade, in reducing the price of food. The people of Newfoundland are no longer able to pay high prices for food, or any other necessities, and it is the intention of every member of the Grocers' Association to do his utmost in giving his customers cheaper goods. The country can never return to the old-time prosperous days, unless somebody makes a sacrifice. The grocers have made many sacrifices during the past two years, and it is now the intention of the Association to foster a better spirit of sacrifice and give the price of food another lift downwards. The many articles of food and other commodities that should be sold at a much cheaper rate to the consumer, but over which the grocer has no control, fell in for a lively discussion at last night's meeting, and it is hoped in the near future to take active steps in this direction. The inauguration of the Grocers' Association brings new hope for the improvement of conditions, and the slogan adopted is: Lower Prices and Better Service.

Laid to Rest.

Yesterday afternoon the funeral of the late Robert Comerford, St. Bonaventure's College, took place from his uncle's residence, Military Road. A large number of mourners attended the funeral, amongst whom were the college boys who marched four deep ahead of the hearse. Immediately after the hearse were the father and brother of the deceased. They were accompanied by members of the College staff and by other Christian Brothers from Mt. St. Francis and Mount Cashel. Then came a very large and representative gathering of sympathizers, amongst whom was a contingent of boys from Bishop Field College, some of whom had been Robert's companions in his home-town, Heart's Content. On reaching the Cathedral the College Boys lined up to form a guard of honour through which the cortege slowly passed. The Prayers for the Dead were recited by Rev. Dr. Carter. Interment took place at Belvedere Cemetery.

PADRE NANGLE ADDRESSES LLEWELLYN CLUB.
Padre Nangle lectured last night to the Llewellyn Club on the "Trail of the Caribou." A very large audience was present. The lecturer was listened to with rapt attention and his address was greatly appreciated. The slides, of which there were 120, added considerably to the interest of the lecture. Padre Clayton and Vice-President C. E. Hunt proposed and seconded a hearty vote of thanks to Padre Nangle, and paid glowing tribute to his work on behalf of the War Memorial. Rev. E. C. Earp, President of the Club, also expressed his thanks to the Padre for his interesting lecture. A collection was taken up and realized $50. To this the Club added another $50 from its funds.

Turkish Weddings.

The modern Turkish wedding has lost much of its Oriental charm. But in some old Turkish villages the ancient customs are still maintained. When a girl has reached her fifteenth year she is considered "grown up" and has to wear the national feredje to cover her face, with a thick black net or muslin. Now faces are very much uncovered. The young man, having attained his stage of life, the mother or aunts of eligible young men go and propose to the mother of the girl their son or nephew as a suitable husband for her. The parents discuss the matter between themselves. If they accept, the young girl is told that in a short time she will marry a man she has never seen in her life.

Then comes the ceremony of the Nisnahl. The bridegroom goes to the high Turkish priest and makes a written oath that he values his wife to as many head of cattle as are considered appropriate, and also at a cost of bread daily, which he must give her if he happens to divorce her. Three days before the wedding the celebrations begin. The men friends of the bridegroom assemble at the latter's house, where for three consecutive days they eat, drink, dance and sing.

On the morning of the fourth day, generally a Thursday, the bride and her friends and relatives leave to go to the bridegroom's house.

First in the bridal procession comes a gaudily decorated cart drawn by two bullocks. It contains mattresses and various articles of furniture—the bride's dowry.

Two small boys sit on the top of the furniture, slinging and playing weird tunes on flutes and drums.

Next comes a common wagon in which the relations and friends are sitting, humming and chatting. Finally, in a closed, heavily curtained sedan chair comes the bride.

The procession having arrived, the furniture is taken into the house, and the bride, heavily veiled, is led to her new home. At this stage everyone else leaves. Then the bridegroom uncovers her face and has either a disagreeable or agreeable surprise.

Divorce in Turkish law consists merely of saying, "I don't want you; go away." But a wife so sent away has to be given the "daily loaf" of bread and the cattle at which she was valued.

A LICENSE FOR CYCLISTS.

Here is a suggestion for a town or city ordinance. I know most towns and cities have twice too many already, but cheer up, one more won't hurt the proportion perceptibly. My ordinance consists of some sort of regulation forcing bicyclists to get a license to ride a bicycle as in many places the automobile has to get a license to run his machine by taking an examination to see he is capable of doing it. Now please don't say "She certainly has it in for the cyclist. Probably she is one of those motor hogs who wants all the road for herself."

By the contrary, I think I would be the cyclist's best friend if I really got down to pass such an ordinance. It will be his mother's best friend. I would also like to see the cyclist's mother's best friend. I am thinking of the wobbly young bicycle rider who endangers his own and, to a degree, other people's lives, by his close main highways, often without full control of his wheel, without any knowledge of the laws of the road, and without any sense of direction.

Here is what one automobile driver told me: "I used to be careful to get a horn when I saw a child on a bicycle in front of me, but now I don't dare because I find they don't know the laws of the road and just as apt to turn the wrong way as the right if they hear a horn."

Origin of Seven Day Week.

The Babylonian priests who appear to have been the first to give names to the days of the week took the great heavenly bodies which they had identified with their seven great gods and denoted the seven days—one to the special worship of each god. These heavenly bodies included sun, moon, Jupiter, Venus, Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The priests simply designated the days on which their planet gods should be worshipped. Their scheme really worked this idea out through days of 24 hours. They arranged the planets in the order of their distance from the earth as understood by them. They thought the sun was between Mars and Venus. Each day's worship was devoted to the god whose term came at the first hour of the day. Our names for the days of the week are different from their names. Sunday comes, of course, from the sun, and Monday from the moon; Tuesday from the name of the Scandinavian god Tyr and Wednesday from the Scandinavian god Woden. Thursday is named after the great god of war Thor, and Friday from the one goddess in the list, Freya. Saturday takes its name from the Roman god Saturn.

Letter Spoiled Chances.

Publication of the letter of the exiled Crown Prince in which he expressed his views on democracies and monarchies and voiced his desire to return to the Fatherland, is understood on good authority to have wrecked whatever chances Frederick William may have had for going back to Germany. And in this connection an interesting situation has come to light.

President Ebert, it is understood, did not indicate any great objection to the Crown Prince returning, so some of the latter's friends set to work on a scheme to enable him to come back. They arranged for a minor official to issue a passport for Frederick Wilhelm.

Armed with this, it was planned that he should leave Holland and enter Germany. Once in Germany he had only to await developments. If his return should result in any unpleasant consequences, or indications of public disapproval, then officials in higher office than the man who issued the passport could disavow any approval of the Crown Prince's return. His passport, under such conditions, could have been taken up and he would have been returned to Holland.

Owing to the publicity resulting from publication of the Crown Prince's letter, and the unfavorable comment aroused, however, the entire scheme of thus bringing about his return has now been abandoned.

STILL LEARNING.

I keep on reading, reading, until my eyes are sore; my dome of thought I'm reading with new and ancient lore. I read the grand old masters, the poet and the seer; their thoughts, like porous plaster, to memory adhere. I read the modern feller, the "Main Street" type of scribe, whose book's the foremost seller among the human tribe. I read the thoughts of Caesar, the works of Harold Bell; I buy of every geezer who has a book to sell. One cannot grind forever with any sort of mill, if he makes no endeavor the hopper part to fill. So many brilliant striplings start out to conquer fame; they'll all be newer Kiplings, and beat him at his game. That they are grandly gifted no person can deny, who marks how they have lifted their lyres and lutes on high. They make a brave beginning, their very spirits soar; we say, "They'll soon be winning the wreath that Milton wore." They dash off something clever, they glitter for a day, and then wink out forever, and cease to put up hay. They do not read or study, their minds they do not school, but chase where lights are ruddy, to play a game of 'pool. No mill can function proper, or turn out flour, I wish, unless into its hopper you put some sort of grist.

Bits About Beards.

ONCE THEY WERE TAKEN.

At one time kings and nobles were the only people allowed to wear beards, servants being compelled to shave in token of their servitude.

In the Middle Ages, when any specially important document required the Royal seal, three hairs from the Sovereign's beard were imbedded in the wax, to signify its importance.

Both Turks and Arabs set great store by their beards, because the prophet Mahomet wore one. When a Turk combs his beard, he spreads a cloth to catch any hairs that fall. These are carefully collected, and when sufficient have been accumulated, they are wrapped up and taken as an offering to the dead.

The old French kings had the curious custom of knotting their beards with golden threads.

When a Moor swears by his beard, he may be trusted to keep his word.

When asking a favour at the time when beards were generally worn, it was the custom for the asker to stroke his beard downwards to indicate inferiority or deference; while to pull another person's beard was to insult on the wearer's greatest possible insult.

Peter the Great taxed beards, much to his subjects' disgust. Many who were too poor to pay the tax shaved their beards and carefully preserved the hair so that it might be buried with them later.

Some of the Eastern nations, instead of shaking hands on meeting, greet each other by kissing the beard; while the Turk feels that he is not entertaining his guests properly if, on their arrival, he does not sprinkle their beards with scent.

That shaving has been practised since the dim dawn of history, we know from the primitive attempts at razors found from time to time in ancient graves.

The custom in those days must have had a religious significance, as indeed most old customs had. The beard was the symbol of manhood, therefore to the High Gods, must be offered in token of obedience or mourning.

Even at a far later stage of history the Romans practised shaving on reaching the age of twenty-one. It was a formal initiation of manhood's estate.

Religion apart, shaving had its uses in military purposes. The beard formed a too convenient handle in the combats of olden days, and Alexander the Great accordingly issued an Army Order to shave.

It is curious to notice the reversions of fashion in the matter. The huge monuments of the Assyrians show the conquering armies full-bearded and only the slaves and captives shaven, but at a later period it was the Norman Conquerors who were clean-shaven, and the bearded barbarians who were the conquered. In passing, two quaint "shaving laws" might be noticed. Peter the Great of Russia heavily taxed his subjects' beards and the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland once passed a law that every Irishman must shave his upper lip or be reckoned an enemy.

March of the "Blanketeers."

On March 10, 1817, a body of weavers, said by the Government to amount to ten thousand men, but by a more competent authority, Samuel Bamford, the author of the "Life of a Radical," not to have exceeded four or five thousand, met in St. Peter's Field, Manchester, and commenced a march southward, their intention being to proceed to London, to present to the Prince Regent, in person, a petition describing their distress. Bamford, who had been consulted, condemned the project as wild and likely to bring trouble on the petitioners. He believed that they were instigated by spies sent out by the Government, in order to find an opportunity of justifying their arbitrary measures. But the poor deluded people assembled, "many of them" having," says Bamford, "blankets, rugs, or large coats rolled up and tied knapsack fashion, on their backs. Some had papers, supposed to be petitions rolled up, and some had stout walking-sticks." From their blankets they afterwards acquired the name of "Blanketeers." The magistrates appeared and read the Riot Act, and the multitude was dispersed by soldiers and constables, although three or four hundred fled in the direction of their intended route, pursued by a body of Yeomanry. By the time that they reached Macclesfield, at nine o'clock at night, they amounted to only one hundred and eighty, yet many of them perished in proceeding; but they gradually melted away from hunger and from the misery of lying out in the March nights. By the time they reached Leek they were reduced to twenty, and six only were known to have passed over the bridge at Ashbourne.

Is Usually Due to Constipation

Motor Liners.

There sailed from London on December 30 on her maiden voyage a ship which is probably destined to make history.

The Domala, as she is named, is the first vessel equipped with oil engines to be designed and built specifically as a passenger-carrying liner.

It is well known that during the past few years the internal combustion engines has made great headway at sea. This is indicated by the fact that at present there are several hundred ships so equipped, totalling about 1,500,000 tons.

Hitherto, however, the oil engine has not been applied to the propulsion of motor-passenger liners, perhaps account of the natural hesitation on the part of shipowners, who can afford to make no experiments where the transport of passengers is concerned.

The Domala, which has been built for the British India Steam Navigation Company, and will trade between London and India, has accommodation for about 140 passengers, in addition to a cargo capacity of some 11,000 tons. Her two oil engines develop 4,660-h.p., and her fuel consumption, when travelling at 13 1/2 knots, is under 20 tons of oil daily.

Diesel oil engines possess many advantages over steam machinery for such a vessel. In a steamer of the same size, equipped with the most modern plant, the coal consumed would be between 3 1/2 and 4 times the weight of oil used on the Domala.

The liquid fuel is carried in double bottoms, whereas bunker space must be provided for the coal, so that the motor-ship has an additional cargo capacity corresponding to the space thus utilised.

The Domala can carry about 1,300 tons of fuel, which is sufficient for a round trip from this country to the East and back, whereas a steamer of the same size and speed must take on coal at various ports—a process that is far from pleasant from the passenger's point of view.

It will be evident that owing to its wider radius of action, the motor-ship is more favourably placed with regard to the purchase of fuel at the ports where it can be most cheaply obtained, and the elimination of stokers due to the absence of boilers is an advantage of some importance.

It is admittedly a far cry from the Domala to the Transatlantic Leviathan, but if this vessel and the ships of similar type which are to follow are successful, still larger motor-passenger ships will be built, and it is impossible to put the limit to future development.

Mix hot mashed potato with yolk of an egg, season, egg-and-bread crumb, fry in balls, scoop out part of center, and use as casings for creamed sweetbreads.

Canadian Woman Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Manitoba.—I can not speak too highly of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a nervous wreck and I just had to force myself to do my work. Life was a misery and work was a burden. Even the sound of my own children playing made me feel as if I must scream if they did not get away from me. I could not even speak right to my husband. The doctor said that he could do nothing for me owing to my condition, but told me to expect another miscarriage. My husband's grandmother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I started it right away and everyone noticed what a different woman I was in a short time. I went and engaged my doctor and he did not know me. I was so well. I was able to do my work once more and it was a pleasure, not a burden. Now I have a "fine bouncing baby" to use the doctor's own words. I am able to nurse her and enjoy doing my work. I can not help recommending such a medicine, and anyone seeing me before I took it and seeing me now, can see what it does for me. What it has done for me, it can do for anyone in the same condition. I am only too pleased for you to use my testimonial.—Mrs. Barry Davis, 721 McCre St. Winnipeg, Manitoba.

When Riots Break Out.

THE DUTIES OF CITIZENS AND SOLDIERS.

It is the duty of every citizen to become acquainted with his rights and duties in time of civil disorder. Yet how few people seem to be aware of their responsibilities!

The Justices of the Peace are, in the first place, for the civil peace of the country, and in time of tumult it is to them that law-abiding men look for instructions and example.

The instruments supplied to the magistrates for magistrates and the constables themselves have also the power of calling upon the citizens for their assistance.

In obeying this order every person has all the protection which the law affords to the constable, and to disobey such an order is a misdemeanour.

If the rioting be, or appears likely to be of so serious a nature as to become a felony (that is by the destruction of property, the burning of buildings, and the like), the Justices may summon to their aid any military power which is available.

And when soldiers are brought in for the purposes of quelling civil disorder they cease to be soldiers and become civil citizens. Their powers and duties are identical with those of the "man in the street," who has been called upon by a magistrate or a constable to give his assistance.

READING THE RIOT ACT.

They are just citizens who, by the nature of their employment, are always armed with very deadly weapons, and it is on this account that the Justices are, and ought to be, very chary in making use of them. The only action they can take is bound to be followed by very serious reprisals.

Should a riot assume a grave and dangerous aspect, it is the duty of some magistrate present to read the "Riot Act" or rather the Proclamation made under that Act.

This commands all persons assembled to depart peacefully to their own homes, and warns them that if they remain for the space of one hour "unlawfully, riotously and tumultuously" assembled they are guilty of felony.

The effect of the Proclamation is often misunderstood, many believing that no action can lawfully be undertaken by the military before the expiration of one hour. This view is quite wrong, for at any moment it may become necessary to use force for the protection of life, or to prevent a felony.

The position of an Army officer at a riot is unenviable, for if the magistrate orders him to fire on the rioters and he does so, and it is afterwards held that such firing was unnecessary the order of the magistrate will not justify his action.

If, on the other hand, the magistrate fails to act, and in consequence the officer looks on while the rioters commit felony, he will be considered liable and probably cashiered.

Do you want your choice of a Suit or Overcoat—cut, made and trimmed in the Spurrell way—at almost your own price? We must have work, even if we don't get profits. SPURRELL the Tailor, 365 Water Street. jan30, eod, t Mountains of Pulp-wood at the Mills.

BANGOR—The dullest winter in more than 40 years' is what employment agents say of this season is the Maine lumber woods and men familiar with the industry say, that less than half the usual quantity of pulp wood and only a few million feet of long logs will come down the Penobscot this spring, while like conditions prevail all over the state. There are no small operators in the woods and the big pulp concerns, heavily overstocked with wood cut last year and earlier, have this winter curtailed operations 50 per cent. FOR FIRST TIME IN 86 YEARS. From present indications less than 10,000,000 feet of long logs will come down to Bangor this year, and it is said that for the first time since Bangor boom was established, 80 years ago, there will be no rafting there this season. In the flush days of the lumber trade, when Bangor sent away from 180,000,000 to 240,000,000 annually, this boom employed hundreds of men at sorting out and rafting the logs of different owners to the saw mills at and below the city. In recent years the volume of business has steadily dwindled, until this season, it is said, only one small mill have any logs to raft out here. The slump in woods operations has sent wages down with a bang from the fabulous war-time rates. Two years ago men were getting as high as $3 and $3.50 a day for work that now commands only $1 to $1.25 a day, and whereas in war time and even in 1919 and 1920-21, there were more jobs than men, this winter there have been three men to one job. It is a lean and hungry time, indeed, for the axemen. As late as July, 1920, alien laborers, who never owned a good suit of clothes until they came to this country, were swaggering around Exchange street contemptuously rejecting offers of $2.50 to $3 a cord for chopping cordwood or sawing pulpwood. They had wads of money, were feeling rich, and picking their jobs. BOTTOM BEGAN TO DROP OUT. Then, early in the fall of 1920, the bottom began to drop out. Peeled pulpwood fell from $31 a cord to $21, and rough from $23 to $15, while, with an overstock on hand every where, cutting operations were sharply curtailed. Wages went down rapidly, but the bottom was not reached that year, as much as $1.75 a day being paid in the fall of 1920. The slump continued in 1921, and in the fall of that year the most that any woodman could get was $1.25 a day, while a great majority of those who were lucky to get jobs at all went in at $1 a day, with time out and board charged for sickness. Spruce lumber, which at one time in 1919 reached $63 to $65 per 1000 feet, now is quoted at $40 to $45 for dimensions and $32 to $40 for fardoms, while pulpwood is a drug. When the boom was on, every farmer in Maine who had a wood lot, and countless small operators, went to work at cutting four feet stuff for the pulp mills, expecting to get fat prices. These people, for the most part, still have the wood on hand, and as two or three seasons out of doors usually make the wood dry and unfit for pulp material they are likely to keep it. The whole eastern section of Maine is dotted with piles of pulp wood, for which there is no demand, the big manufacturers having mountains of the same stuff heaped up at their mills. The great mystery of the time in Maine is: "Why, knowing as they must have known that the war boom was certain to collapse within a year or two, did the big pulp concerns pile up several years' supply of wood at top prices?" No one as yet has been able to answer that question.—Sunday Herald.

Rod and Gun for March.

If you have gone over your fishing tackle and have everything in readiness for the opening day, turn to the March issue of Rod and Gun in Canada and heap fuel on the fire kindled by the Red Gods by reading "Nagomani Beauties" by L. F. Steenman; "A Speckled Trout Puzzle," by Bonny-castle Dale and "Fishing the Cowichan River From a Canoe," by John P. Babcock. If you are not a fisherman, read any one of the hunting and trapping stories and articles contained in the March issue of Canada's national sportsman's monthly. The rifleman interested in the Lee-Enfield will find some very helpful information, while the "scaker gun" enthusiast will read with interest the trap department. This number of Rod and Gun in Canada has several especially good nature photographs which will undoubtedly prove of interest to all worshippers at Nature's shrine. Rod and Gun in Canada is published monthly by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont.
