CHAPTER XXIX.

"My best wish for you Florence," she said, "is that you may be happier than I am."

"That would be impossible," she replied; and then she sprang to her feet in terrified astonishment.

"change, almost ghastly, had come over the face of Lady Lynne. Her eyes grew dim and full of horror; her white lips parted and quivered.

"Dear Lady Lynne," cried the young girl, "are you ill? What is it? Shall I call any one?"

With a desperate effort Inez recovered herself.

"I am faint and tired," she replied; "do not say anything, Florence, not one word. It distresses Lord Lynne and Agatha. See," she continued, carelessly, as a gentleman sauntered slowly down the path, "there is one of my husband's friends, the Count Rinaldo Montaldi."

There was a dark frown upon the count's face, but it vanished when he saw that Inez was not alone. He bowed most courteously.

"I am happy to find you, Lady Lynne," he said. "Your servants, when I called, directed me to the villa."

"How long have you been in Rome?" she asked.

"I only arrived this morning," he replied. "I left London hurriedly and on important business. I found that a friend, in whom I had placed great reliance, had deceived me and played me false."

"How unpleasant!" said Lady Lynne, coldly, seeing that he stopped and awaited her reply.

"It will be so for my friend," he said, sneeringly; "but I am forgetting, Lady Lynne, I must ask for an introduction to your companion, whose face seems strangely familiar to me."

Lady Lynne complied with his wish with a very ill grace.

"Florence," she then continued, gently, "Lord Lynne and Agatha are over there on that large terrace. Will you be kind enough to tell them the Count Montaldi is here? I am so tired I can go no further."

Lady Florence hastened to comply with her wish, and then Inez found herself alone with her enemy.

CHAPTER XXX.

"You thought you had escaped me," said the count, as soon as they were alone. "How foolish and blind you are, my lady! You cannot fly from your fate."

"So I begin to perceive," she replied, coldly. She might dread the danger, but, face to face with it, Lady Lynne was no coward.

"I shall not repeat all I said before," he continued. "I never change, my purposes are inflexible. I am here to marry your sister, by your help and aid. Unless you give that to me, and use your influence to such good purpose to persuade her to accept me, I shall tell all I know to Lord Lynne, and claim you and your fortune from him."

"Then, in reality, my fate lies in my sister's words, not yours," she replied. "If she accepts you, I am saved; if she refuses you, I am lost. So be it. I would rather take death from her hands than life from yours."

There was a dreary pathos in her tone that might have moved a heart of iron.

"Be reasonable, Inez," he said, more gently, "and you will have nothing to fear. I shall not wait long in suspense. This very evening you must begin the work I have given you to do."

"If I tell you it is all in vain," she replied, "that Agatha loves some one else, and that her lover is here in Rome, what shall you say or do?"

"Nothing," he replied, with a grim, inflexible smile. "If that be the case, you will have perhaps a harder task than I expected. But you will succeed; she will never resist your persuasions."

"Count Rinaldo," said Lady Lynne, gently, "will nothing but this content you? Must my sister be sacrificed? Is there no one else in the wide world you can seek?"

WOMAN SICK TWO YEARS

Caused by Troubles Women Often Have—Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Medina, New York.—"I had a great deal of trouble such as women often have, and this affected my nerves. For over two years I suffered this way, then I read in the Buffalo Times about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and have taken it with very good results. I am very much better and feel justified in praising the Vegetable Compound to my friends and neighbors who suffer from anything of the kind."—Mrs. Wm. H. Adams, 311 Erin Road, Medina, N. Y.

Feels Like Girl Sixteen

Rochester, N. Y.—"After my twin girls were born I was all run-down. My neighbors thought I was going to die. I saw your advertisement in the paper and bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle helped me and I kept on taking it. I only weighed ninety pounds when I began taking it, and I have gained in weight and feel like a girl of sixteen. I never can say enough for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. NULAN DORR, 16 Seavey Park, Rochester, N. Y.

"No," he replied; "it is your sister, and no one else, I want."

"I have pleaded with you for the last time," she said, haughtily. "My doom is fixed. I shall not ask for mercy or compassion."

"That is something like common sense, Inez," he returned, more cheerfully; "now we shall do; I thought you would see wisdom at last."

She looked at him for a moment, in utter wonder that he could mistake her meaning so entirely. He glanced before the calm scorn of that beautiful face, and then Lord Lynne, who had joined them, claimed his attention. He was unfeigningly glad to see the courteous Italian again; he welcomed him warmly, and gave him a pressing invitation to visit frequently at the Palazzo Giorni. Agatha received him with a marked coolness that did not escape her sister's notice.

"We are quite fortunate," said Lord Lynne, "in meeting so many of our friends. Some country neighbors of ours are in Rome now, or will be here soon,—the Leighs. You will like them, count, very much; they are old friends of ours."

Count Rinaldo declared he should be charmed to meet any friends of Lord Lynne's. They left the gardens together, and he drove home with them, when Lord Lynne invited him to spend the remainder of the evening.

"Lady Lynne has been very ill," he said; it was on account of her delicate health that we left London so suddenly; she is much better now, and cheerful society will do her good."

It might have been a pleasant evening, for Lord Lynne was animated and happy, Lady Florence seemed to have recovered the ray cheerful manner that had once been her great charm, the count told irresistible anecdotes of his London adventures, and Agatha listened, amused and interested; but Lady Lynne had a weary, listless look upon her face, and her heart was sad almost unto death. Once or twice Lord Lynne gave an anxious look at his wife.

"She is not strong," he thought; "I must not let her fatigue herself too much."

How could he ever dream of the depth of anguish in that wearied heart!

That night Lady Lynne could not sleep; in vain were pillows of softest down made smooth and cool; the hot, aching head tossed wearily from side to side, seeking for the rest she was never more to find. At times there was a strong impulse upon her to seek her husband, and confess all to him. But then she would never see him again,—her sin, her struggles, and her triumph, would all be in vain.

"Better," said the grieved heart, far better to die while he loves you than to live without him."

No sleep came to ease the burning eyes and the aching head. When the gray dawn of morning came, Lady Lynne went quickly to her maid's room.

"Stephanie," she said to her, "will you get up and find me that little bottle of Iodineum I had when my face ached so badly?"

Points to Remember When Playing "Doubles."

There can be little doubt that "doubles" is the most popular form of lawn tennis. Many players, however, who do quite well at the "singles" game, fall badly when called upon to perform with a partner.

The secret of success lies in combination with and a proper appreciation of your partner's strong and weak points. If some trouble is taken in coming to a complete understanding with the player you may be called upon to assist, there should be few of those periods of hesitation when the ball goes flying unchecked on its way, with two players standing still in their respective courts, each waiting for the other to "take" the shot.

When returning the service one of the most useful strokes in doubles is the side-line drive. This requires cool, deliberate play and results in the ball being sent down the chalk line at the side of the court, just out of reach of the server's partner.

It is particularly useful when you occupy the right-hand court, as it passes the back-hand of your opponent, who is likely to be standing up at the net. Furthermore, this stroke prevents the centre of the net, and, by drawing him nearer and nearer to the extreme edge of his court, opens up room for a "cross-court" return.

If you are a right-handed player, the side-line drive should be made with the left shoulder pointed almost in the direction in which the ball will travel. By bringing your body well round you prevent any "pull" on your racket, and although there is always the danger that you may "slice" the ball too far, you will be safer than would be the case if you tried to drive in the ordinary manner.

There is no need to use any great strength, for once your effort has passed the partner of the player who is serving, there is little fear of a stroke of this description being returned.

The "cross-court" return is a more natural shot. If you have been successful in drawing your immediate opponent towards the side of the court, and consequently prevented the possibility of a cross-shot being "volleyed," you will do well to drive in the direction of the server's foot. Usually you will find that the taker of the initial stroke starts to move towards the centre of the base-line after serving, so that, if your return pitches somewhere near the opposite corner, the server will have to pull up and go back before being in a position to cope with the stroke.

Avoiding Awkward Returns.

If you wish to combat these effective returns, your own service should be directed towards the centre of the receiving court. If you place your service near the centre-line the only likely returns are the straight drive down the centre, or a lob.

Your partner should always have a chance to "kill" returns when you are serving, but if you make your first stroke towards your opponent's side-line, it is more than probable that the return shot will be out of reach of the player you are assisting.

When two good volleyers are playing together they should advance towards the net in the whenever possible, but some arrangement should be made as to which of them should go back after lobs. It is useless for both partners to rush around the court after one stroke, and it is equally futile for both to remain still.

Four-year-old Ellen lost her gun in the yard the other day. The next day she flew into the house in a rage. The neighbor's cow, she told her mother, had found the gun and was chewing it. Her mother says Ellen can't pass the cow even yet without giving her a mean look.

The Lighter Side.

Magistrate declares New York women gamble too much. That's right, some of them have been married three or four times.

Early to bed and early to rise is a motto now used by flies.

"I never play cards, but if I did I would be a sanitary gambler like the sailor boys," says Longsome Lucie. "It says in a book I'm reading that they always wash the decks before they play."

A boy's class in Sunday School was asked what gratitude was. After considerable squirming, one went so far as to say that they hadn't gotten that far in school yet.

A BOOMERANG. When a bit of sunshine hits ye, After passing of a cloud, When a fit of laughter fits ye An' yer spine is feeling proud, Don't forget to up and fling it At a soul that's feelin' blue. For the minutes that ye sling it It's a boomerang to you.

Because a girl has a "fresh air" complexion is no sign she hasn't a "hot air" line of talk.

The shapely wife sighed to her husband: "I'll simply have to begin wearing my skirts longer." "I'll say you will," grinsly replied her husband, "for I simply can't wear these old pants of mine a week longer."

A Stormy Session in House of Commons.
Three Labor Members Suspended--Mt. Etna again Active--U. S. A. Determined to Enforce Liquor Regulations.

STORMY SESSION IN COMMONS.
LONDON, June 27.
Three Scottish Labor members, James Maxton, J. Wheatley, and Campbell Stephen, were suspended from the House of Commons this evening after a stormy session over the proposed reduction in the appropriations for Child Welfare in Scotland. Maxton and Wheatley denounced those favoring the reduction, notably George Bantbury, Labor member for Poplar, as "murderers," and refused to withdraw despite the advice of J. Ramsay MacDonald, Labor leader. They also refused the summons to leave whereupon they were formally named by the Speaker and the Home Secretary moved their suspension, which was carried 258 to 70. Rev. Mr. Stephen arose and repeated that Mr. Bantbury was a murderer and refused to withdraw. He was named by the Speaker and suspended by a vote of 258 to 50. Hardly had he subsided when another member, Emanuel Shinwell, was commenting on the demeanor of the Ministerialists when Sir George Hamilton was understood to have made immediate references to Jew with regard to Shinwell. This the latter presented, though he said he was proud of being a Jew. Immediately clamor arose on the Labor benches for the suspension of the offender. Buchanan roared "white livered cowards," "dirty dogs" and similar epithets, while Chairman J. F. Hope said he had not heard the offensive remark. Buchanan continued shouting, accusing the chair of partiality. He refused to take his seat and was suspended 286 to 58. Sir George Hamilton eventually apologized to Mr. Shinwell and quiet was restored.

MT. ETNA BREAKS OUT AGAIN.
LONDON, June 27.
A new and violent eruption broke out this morning near the summit of the south side of Mount Etna, plainly visible to the naked eye in Catania, says a Rome despatch to the Central News. It is feared the observatory has been overwhelmed with lava. Professor Cararra reports a new flow of lava advancing at the rate of a kilometer an hour.

U. S. DETERMINED.
WASHINGTON, June 27.
A new regulation prohibiting the bringing of liquor into U. S. A. waters after a certain advance date next month, under penalty of the seizure of the ship carrying the liquor and the arrest of its captain, is understood to have been virtually agreed upon to-day as a result of conferences amongst officials here. Foreign Governments are to be notified again of this Government's intention to enforce the Supreme Court's liquor orders vigorously, it is understood, and to warn them that seizure of offending ships will result from further violations.

THE REASONS AGAINST NEWBOLD.
LONDON, June 27.
By a card of two and a quarter millions against two hundred and nineteen thousand the labor party conference has rejected a resolution in favor of extending party whips to J. T. W. Newbold, Communist member for Motherwell. Ramsay MacDonald, Leader of the Opposition, stated it was not because Newbold was an extremist that they would not have him in the party. In the Commons, Newbold, he said, was more a model of decorum, and his great contribution to parliamentary procedure had been his new method of bowing to the Speaker. The objection was that the member for Motherwell was not a believer in the Labor Party but wanted to enter it in order to change its basis of organization.

Four deaths, many injured persons and heavy property damage followed in the wake of an intense electrical, wind and hail storm, that swept New York and vicinity on Monday afternoon. DANGEROUS BUSINESS.

Don't meddle with other people's business. Women are said to be born match-makers, but as you value your friendship, and your peace of mind don't do it.

That it is one of the most precarious of pastimes was brought to my mind the other day when a little bride came to me in tears with a story of an undesired rebuke from a pair of ungrateful friends.

"They did all their courting on our porch," she said. "Why, Tom and I have sat inside or gone out walking evenings, when we didn't want to at all, just to let them have that porch to themselves. She has kept me at the telephone interminably," she went on, with rising indignation, "prattling about her Dicky-boy; and now that they have announced their engagement, and I asked her why they didn't plan to be married in June and use our little lakeside camp for their honeymoon, she told me that they weren't discussing their plans with anyone and that when they wanted my advice they would ask for it."

I was sorry for the weebone little woman, and it was the thought that, by telling her experience as a warning, I might save someone from a similar hurt that prompted me to write on this subject.

He Regrets His Confidences.

For I am sure that wherever in the world lovers have loved and woman—romantic woman—has sympathized and tried to play the role of Cupid's understudy, this sort of thing has happened.

In the first flush of a newly found love, the recipient wants a confidant. He wants someone to whom he can picture a thousand and one charms of this wonderful girl whom he has discovered. He wants a responsive audience—and that's all! So long as you are willing to listen, and assent, and say nothing, all will go well. But love is a sensitive plant. If you touch it with too eager a finger it will curl away from you, leaving you rebuked and resentful. The memory of those rapturous confessions react unhappily on your confiding friend. He feels that he has been most indiscreet and absurdly sentimental and he cannot forgive you for having permitted him to make a fool of himself.

Advice to Risky.

But there is another and more serious side to this match-making game. Sometimes the match-maker is a friend whose judgment is trusted and acted upon. I have in mind the case of a girl who has married a "rough diamond." I doubt if she ever really loved him. The man's personal magnetism was attractive to her, but here is a prim, demure nature, and his frequent gauderies make her wince visibly. But her closest friend, a match-making matron, urged her into the marriage.

"You don't want to be an old maid," she said, "and this may be your last chance. You'll be more unhappy without him than with him, and just think of your lonely old age if you don't marry."

And, although it is a digression, let me refute that last prod of the match-making matron.

Don't You Believe Her!

A single old age is by no means of necessity, a lonely or a loveless one. Indeed, the chances against it are far better than in the case of an ill-advised marriage. The unmarried woman has limitless opportunity for service that will bring her unmeasured returns in love. I could name you a dozen spinsters who are the adored aunts—adopted or real—of more than one family, who have not days enough to divide among the homes that crave their visits, and whose own cozy bachelor quarters are a haven of rest to many a grateful, over-tired mother whom the spinster friend invites to be her guest.

"Abundance of men would never have been in love if they had never been entertained with any discourse of love," says La Rochefoucauld.

Spare yourself the terrible responsibility of having fostered an unhappy marriage by your match-making "discourses of love."

And remember, matches that are "made in Heaven" will develop nicely without your help.

THE GREAT EVENT.

If Dempsey conquers Mr. Gibbons, and knocks his classic face to ribbons, we'll feel encouraged and elated—we'll know our culture's vindicated. We've long excelled in building flippers, in laying rails and damming rivers; in things mechanical we flourish, and the inventive arts we flourish. But in the higher arts, and graces we've never held the foremost places. But all the time we've felt within us the future would new laurels win us. Now two exponents of our learning with high and noble zeal are burning to show the world we have ambition to rise above the old tradition, which is that all our aims are sordid, no higher thoughts to us accorded. If Gibbons knocks J. Dempsey silly, far far Montana, cold and hilly, the news will flash to distant places, to foreign lands, and save our faces.

"At last," in Munich they'll be saying, "the Yankees from clay gods are straying; the higher arts are now demanding a tribute from their understanding. From packing beef and canning peaches they turn to Art's unsullied reaches." In Rome the news will cause a flutter; I seem to hear the Romans mutter, "Americans have long been busy improving bus and boat and lizzie; and in their zeal, no brusque and brutal, they passed up Art as being futile. But watch their smoke, now they have started for higher levels, hero-hearted!"

Monster of the Sea.

NEW SEA GIANT THAT WEIGHS FIFTEEN TONS.

A mysterious sea monster captured south of Miami, Florida, by Captain Charles H. Thompson, is exercising the minds of American piscatorial experts and naturalists. The seas round Florida are famous for their huge tarpon, but this fish makes the tarpon look like a sprat.

The strange creature, of a species altogether unknown has, after great labour, been preserved and mounted by Professor J. S. Wambeth, of Washington, the American taxidermist.

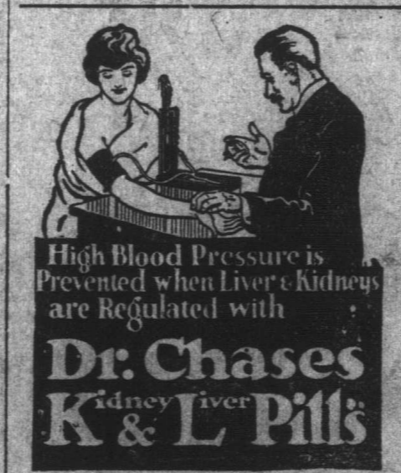

Everybody who has seen it says the most remarkable feature about the monster is that it is very much like an ordinary fish, but thousands of times magnified.

At the Star Movie.

FRISCELLA DEAN STAR OF BIG 'UNIVERSAL JEWEL' UNDER TWO FLAGS.

"Under Two Flags," is one of the few really great stories. A love epic immortal, a tragedy sublime, "Under Two Flags" captures the heart of the world when it came as a novel from the pen of Ouida (Louise de La Ramée), and its growth in popularity was heightened by its presentation on the stage by many renowned artists, including Blanche Bates. Now it has been made into a picture by the Universal Film Co., and will be seen here Monday at the Star Movie. Priscilla Dean, whom there is no more magnetic figure on the screen, breathes the fire of her dramatic personality into the role of Clarette, girl of a French regiment at Algiers.

There are street scenes in "Under Two Flags," that give a true insight of the life of the masses in this French province of Northern Africa. The military pomp of an army post is accurately surrounding, and the pampereau beauties of a sheik's harem add picturesque color to this dramatic film.

The technical staff at Universal City a group of highly trained experts spent months of study preparing for this production. Every interior setting, every street scene was constructed with faithful accuracy. Hundreds of photographs of different parts of Algiers were obtained to guide them in their work. Not an inharmonious note was allowed to creep in.

The result is that those seeing "Under Two Flags" might well imagine they are spending an evening in the African desert. While the picture is superb as a spectacle, it is also the work of great historic value. Tod Browning, the director, has developed the romance of the tale in masterly fashion.

Electric and Hand Pumps to be had at BOWRING BROTHERS, Ltd., Electrical Department.—June 21/23.

A photograph record has on one side, "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," and on the other side, "When a Feller Needs a Friend."

Montrealers Out for Labrador Gold.

Sydney, N.S., June 26.—(Canadian Press).—Filled to the hatches with gasoline and other supplies, a nameless fifty-foot motor launch lies here all ready for a dash to Labrador and the hoped-for gold fields.

Captain David Abbott, in command, is waiting for two mining engineers from Montreal, Williams and Crosby, and the moment they arrive his little craft will head for the Straits of Bellis Isle. His brother, Ira Abbott, and William Goreham, of Woods Harbor, Shelburne Co., are the crew.

Captain David is making a strictly business voyage with passengers and supplies. He is not a gold digger.

"There may be gold there," he said, "but all I can say that if anyone gets a barrel of gold there, he will earn it. The black flies and mosquitoes in that country are something terrific. There is perfect co-operation between them. At sunrise these insignificant-looking little black flies show up and work all day without murmur or complaint. When the brief Arctic summer night comes, the mosquito relieves them, wing for wing and carry on."

Regatta Notes.

The greater number of people who were on the race course when the late King Edward, as Prince of Wales, visited St. John's in 1890, have naturally passed away in the intervening years...

The growing generation of Regatta enthusiasts, however, have, in such memorable event to relate, and refer to, when in the years that are coming they will discuss the Regattas of the years just passing, for it was only as recently as 1919 that the present Prince of Wales walked over the same course to view the happenings at our great annual race as did his equally popular grandeur fifty-nine years before.

That year of 1890 was the last Regatta which was held till in 1871, just eleven years thereafter. The hard times decade of the 60's was the chief cause of lack of interest in keeping it going, most of the former participators being obliged to go off to Canada and the States to earn their livelihood.

The two short interludes since were, first the year of the 1892 fire, which laid waste the whole eastern portion of the city. This conflagration having happened on the 3th July, just about four weeks before the regular date of the Regatta, the citizens' minds were diverted entirely to other purposes...

We missed the Regatta the second interlude in the years inclusive from 1915 to 1918. We all remember that the war conditions were the cause of all this for the efforts of citizens generally were then directed towards laboring patriotically and assiduously to put forth the best that Newfoundland could offer in resisting and overthrowing the Kaiser's domination.

Then when those of our gallant boys who survived the ordeals of these terrible years came back to us again, and conditions became somewhat more normal, as the summer of 1919 approached the great Regatta day was again revived, so that the extent of this revivification will greatly depend upon the efforts of those younger members of the community who will be expected to keep it going as successfully as ever unless any more national calamities like fire or war would as before tend to stop it for a time.

In addition to the three Boat Clubs mentioned in previous notes, that kept the Races going in the last decades of the 19th Century, there was another which had a short but eventful and a merry life. This was the West End Club whose headquarters were in the Newman Building on the corner of Water and Springdale Streets.

They had two racers built for them one was the Daisy, the other the other the Cabot. The former was the swifter and hence the more popular of the two, and during her running was crewed by some of the best of our oarsmen of these years. Judge Morris, who now officiates in our Central District Court was for some time President of this Club, and so his connection with our Regatta has been of some importance.

a long duration as we notice this year he is enrolled again as an Honorary Member of the Committee.

With him in those years were also associated as the directing members of the West End Club's activities, John Rowney, Tom Curran, the late Capt. Perez and Bob Johnson, then one of our leading and most popular city tailors.

One of the most notable races in which the Daisy figured was that in which she was rowed by a crew of fine young Amateurs, some of whom were over 17 years of age. They had the pluck to face the crack crew of the City Club that had held the leading place for three or four years previously, as well as two other senior and skilled crews of regular Amateurs.

Ned Cooper stroked them with a skill, a courage and a coolness that evoked the admiration of all on the lakeside as they passed down by the Committee tent, neck and neck with their crack competitors of the City Club, whilst their coxswain, S. White, directed and controlled the boys in his well known and encouraging manner and professional handling of the rudder.

So the race continued back over the course till the Committee tent was re-passed again, an element of doubt even then still apparent in the minds of all onlookers as to which of the two boats would be first to reach the winning stakes. Evidently the lads kept at it, whilst their opponents bent their ears also with all the energy they could command, and so toward the finish they dashed on in an exceptionally exciting contest to the stirring music of Jack Bennett's performers and the cheering of the rushing multitude along the bank to follow up the finishing scene.

The lads lost by this very close margin, it was nevertheless a magnificent achievement, considering also that the other two crews were simply nowhere in the race; so far behind were they at the finish, whilst those from whom the Daisy's young crew received the most sincere and well-earned compliments, were the Amateurs of the City Club who confessed that the starch had been taken out of them entirely in their superhuman efforts to win by such a narrow squeak.

Personal.

Capt. L. Stevenson, of the s.s. Kyle, who has been in the city for several days past, went out by today's cross-country express. Capt. Stevenson has fully recovered from his recent illness, and will take over the command of the s.s. Kyle as soon as he arrives at Port aux Basques.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DIS-TEMPER.

In Memoriam.

Again the great truth that "In the midst of life we are in death" has been forcibly brought to our minds, for on Sunday morning, 17th inst., just as the glorious summer sun was climbing the hills, the soul of Barram George Maudeer winged its flight to the Great Beyond. He was a young man with many beautiful qualities of character, and by his quiet and modest disposition won for himself the high esteem in which he was held by his many acquaintances. Those who claimed him as a friend could see in him the promise of splendid manhood, and each will be the poorer for his early passing. It was the writer's privilege to be personally acquainted with the deceased, and during that acquaintance there grew a strong feeling of admiration for his sterling qualities. The most strongly marked of which were his keen sense of justice and his distaste for the baser things in life. During his long illness he bore his suffering bravely and when he was told that the end was near he intimated that he was resigned to the will of God. "They say that he set to us, but ah! alas elsewhere. In Heavenly Light. 'Th' enquiring gloom' is gone, and all is fair. In Heavenly Light. Thy home is reached, thou dost not ask to see. Th' distant scene, for it is near to thee. And thou art 'ever thine' no need to pray. In Heavenly Light. For guidance on a dark and rugged way. In Heavenly Light. The day of sorrow and of doubt is gone. Thy love remembered and thy heaven won. And now thy faith is sight, and thou dost know. That God is Light: And over 'most sad' and 'terrible' we must go. Through the dark night. Till in the glorious morning light we see 'Th' angel faces' of the bliss and thee." C.R.B.

"Conceit" Photoplay Decidedly Worth While.

IS THE FEATURE ATTRACTION AT THE NICKEL TO-NIGHT.

The Nickel Theatre to-night presents the latest big Selznick Special, "Conceit," and according to the management the patrons of this house are promised a picture that is decidedly worth while. Combining the best elements of a modern society play with the action and adventure of an outdoor drama it is said that the spectator will find much variety of scene and character in this photoplay. The central figure is William Crombie, played by W. B. Davidson, a wealthy man who has always been able to buy anything he wanted. He is slowly losing the affection and respect of his beautiful wife through his persistent neglect. When the story opens another man is gradually usurping Crombie's place, and he is too much of a weakling to defend his own. While on a hunting trip Crombie becomes separated from his companions and is lost in the wilderness. At the point of exhaustion he is found by a trapper who takes him, only to be rewarded by Crombie's attempting to steal away the man's watch. When Crombie refuses to fight the trapper for the gift, she turns from him in disgust. It is then that Crombie is awakened to the stern realities of life. He despised himself but determines to work out his own regeneration. How this is accomplished is shown in a manner that provides capital entertainment.

Burton George directed the production and the cast includes such prominent screen folk as Hedda Hopper, Maurice Costello, Betty Hillburn, Charles Gerard and Patrick Hartigan.

Junior Football.

B. I. S. WIN BY 4 GOALS TO 1. Last night's game between the B. I. S. and T. A. Junior League teams was fairly well attended and resulted in a victory for the B.I.S. team by 4 goals to 1. In the first period the B. I. S. had matters nearly all their own way and Manning, Buckingham and Brown scored a goal each for their team. The T. A. tried hard to equalize but could only get one goal. When the teams crossed over the T. A. failed well, but were unable to penetrate the Irish defence, while Buckingham got away again and scored the fourth for the Irish boys. The final whistle sounded B.I.S. 4; T.A. 1.

The S. S. Capto which went on dock about four months ago with her rudder carried away and her shaft damaged, came off the dock yesterday. The ship is now berthed at Morley's premises to take on board bunker coal. It is understood the Capto's repairs cost in the vicinity of $50,000.

Belvedere Garden Party.

Great enthusiasm still prevails towards making this year's function a great success. The table holders are on the grounds nightly and the men's committees are busily engaged in transforming the fields into veritable Bazaars. Dining, awning and other paraphernalia may be seen going every day and there is a hum around the grounds indicative of the effort being put forth by those unselfish ladies and gentlemen to help the cause of the orphans. We understand that preparations are about complete and only Old Sol is now wanted to make it a banner day. Tea, loaves, refreshments, flowers will be offered at moderate rates. Games of every description, new and old will be introduced; gymnastic exercises with novelties will be featured; and the fish-pond will be in evidence and the Junior League footballers will keep up the enthusiasm. The really interesting feature to a great many is the Road race and we know of a number of young men who each think he is going to bring home the silver cup. A very acceptable improvement is the ban placed on ticket selling on the grounds, and patrons may wander about at their leisure enjoying the beauties of this ideal surroundings for the orphans. That prince of sport, W. J. Higgins, is Captain of the Field and all fans may look forward to an interesting programme.

Luenburg Banker in Port.

The banking schooner "Francie L. Spindler" has arrived in port and is now berthed at Job Bros. premises. The vessel had only arrived at the Banks on Friday last when a heavy gale sprang up in which she drifted down on a French banker and lost her cables. As soon as the new cables are placed on board the vessel will return to the Banks.

Captain Injured by Explosion.

After the arrival of the schooner "W. E. MacKenzie King" from the Banks yesterday, Capt. Handigan was removed to the General Hospital, having suffered injuries by an explosion of gunpowder on board the vessel while on the fishing grounds. It appears the accident occurred while the Captain was sending up signals, calling his boats to the vessel. He was badly burned and as soon as his injuries were temporarily dressed, by members of the crew, the schooner called to the attention of the Harbour Commissioners. A disaster is being tendered the Dominion representatives by the London G.W.V.A. and a closer co-operation between the various organizations throughout the Empire should result.

Gaelic League Outing.

The Gaelic League outing to Donovan's yesterday, proved a most enjoyable affair. The party went out during the afternoon by motor bus, and on arrival a programme of field sports, was arranged. At 6 p.m. a supper was served in the style for which this well known hostelry is noted, and after justice had been done to the good things, the affair concluded with a dance. Four or five old time Irish dances were introduced which were thoroughly enjoyed. The affair concluded at an early hour this morning.

Commemoration Day Display.

Citizens around town this morning were much struck with the Commemoration Day display as shown in Jas. Baird, Ltd. window. It is particularly fitting that such a display should be given, which in itself helps to create a greater interest in the Memorial Day ceremonies, which are being held on Sunday. The initiative taken by this firm is worthy of commendation.

Weather a Disappointment.

Yesterday's disagreeable weather came as a great disappointment to the promoters of St. Michael's Garden Party and the G.L.B. Sports, compelling them to postpone the events for which every preparation had been made. The G.L.B. definitely announces postponement until next Monday, this being the only day on which St. George's Field is available.

Empire Service League.

The Dominion Committee G.W.V.A. has chosen as its accredited representatives to the Biennial Conference of the British Empire Service League, Lt.-Col. T. Wainwright, C.F., Capt. J.E.I. Fox and the Dominion Secretary, Capt. O. Whitty. This Conference of the Empire Veterans Association is being held in London, July 14th, 1923. Representatives from F.J.A.D.C., the Aimsagated ex-Service Men's Organization of France, Belgium, and the other Allied Nations will be in attendance. The Prince of Wales will preside, while the chairman's duties will be discharged by Field Marshal Earl Haig. The B.E.S.L. being the parent organization of all the ex-Service Men's organizations throughout the Empire, is a very strong institution and it wisely administered, such an amalgamation must be a factor for good. The unemployment situation throughout the Empire is one of the most important items in its agenda. Much help in this connection is expected from the British House of Commons Branch of the League, whose membership is some 110. That much good will be derived from this conference some can gain say. It is particularly fitting that Newfoundland should be represented. A disaster is being tendered the Dominion representatives by the London G.W.V.A. and a closer co-operation between the various organizations throughout the Empire should result.

Dr. Kinsman's Heart Tablets and Powders

COULD NOT SLEEP ON LEFT SIDE. Your Heart Tablets and Powders are a wonderful medicine, and I wish all to know what they have done for me. Before I commenced their use I could not lie on my left side at all nights, and had such a choking sensation in my throat that I could hardly breathe. I would have to sit up in bed nights my heart would beat so hard, and my left arm and side pained me very badly. My heart would also flutter terribly when I would go upstairs, and I would have another spells. I have felt none of these symptoms since using your Tablets and Powders, and can lie on my left side with ease. Please accept my gratitude for ever offering so good a medicine.

Female 'Jack the Ripper'

Marie Lacoste, known in the Paris underworld as the "Tigress" of La Chapelle, has at last been caught and brought to face charges of stabbing women victims to death. The adventures of this woman are typical of the life among the Apaches and thieves of the quarter called La Chapelle. Marie, who was born 33 years ago at Saint Denis, for the past 10 years has been considered by the police to be the virago incarnate of La Chapelle. In 1913, Marie Lacoste is alleged to have killed, with a knife her first victim. This was a young woman named Marie Lefevre. The "tigress" disappeared for a while from her usual haunts, but a few months later two other unfortunate girls who had been seen in her company were found dead with terrible knife cuts in their bodies. Chief Police-Inspector Leroy finally located her in a beautiful country pavilion at La Yvergne, St. Hilaire. With her was a pretty girl, Helene Martel, formerly of Paris. Leroy and another officer raided the place, and had to kill two savage bull-dogs before getting into the house. Marie Lacoste fought like a tigress, wielding her big knife with the skill of a Sioux Indian, but the policemen finally overpowered the two women and finally took them handcuffed to the motor car waiting outside. Helene Martel had been slightly injured in the encounter with the police, and was taken to hospital pending the trial of Marie Lacoste. The "tigress" herself was locked up in St. Lazare prison. There she remained for several weeks. She engaged some of the best lawyers in Paris, and secured her temporary freedom.

BRITTON AGAIN A WINNER.

New York, June 15.—Jack Britton, former world's champion welterweight, won the judges' decision over Soldier Barfield, of New York, in a ten-round bout here last night. Britton knocked Barfield down with a right to the jaw shortly after the bell rang in the second round, but Barfield did not take a count.

MCTIGUE AND SIKI AGAIN.

Babylon, N.Y., June 14.—Mike McTigue to-day signed articles to meet Battling Siki in a return bout at Dublin on September 8. The agreement was reached between Dr. Patrick McCartan, of Dublin, representing Siki, and Joe Jacobs, McTigue's manager. McTigue will receive $100,000 for his end of the purse, it was said.

A REPORT FROM LOS ANGELES.

Los Angeles, June 18.—Jack Dempsey was recently knocked out by a negro sparring partner, and has been neglecting his training, according to reports brought to Los Angeles, the champion's home town, yesterday, by Walter Miller, wrestling instructor of the Los Angeles Athletic Club. Miller told the United News he received this information from Jim Johnson, Mayor of Shelby, Mont., in Portland, Oregon, a few days ago. Miller says that the odds of the Gibbons-Dempsey fight have tumbled to even money in the Northwest States, and that many were betting that Gibbons would win by a knockout. The man who is alleged to have knocked out the champion is "Kid" Godfrey, negro heavyweight of New York. "I had a long talk with Johnson and Mike Collins," said Miller. "Johnson did not mince words in discussing the manner in which Dempsey is training for his bout. He said that Godfrey put over an unexpected sock on the chin, and Dempsey was falling when Godfrey realized what he had done and grabbed the champion. It was a full minute before they were able to get Dempsey to his feet so that he was able to stand unaided."

Nature's Carpet

of Jewels.

WONDERS OF A PINCH OF SEASHORE SAND.

The sand upon which you may be basking as you read this article is not a ready-made article, nor does it find its way to the beach in a haphazard way. Sand is one of Nature's most finished products. It is the result of countless thousands of years of ceaseless work, and a wondrous compound of a myriad ingredients.

And now Nature begins to sort out her ingredients and arrange them in order of size. You will find close to the cliffs a coarse gravel composed of stones as big as oranges. Nearer the water's edge they grow less and less in size. Coarse gravel is followed by fine; fine gravel by sand. As the stones are split and torn the larger fragments resist the pull of the water and therefore remain close to the cliffs; the smaller ones roll farther out with receding tides. During a storm the waters of a sandy bay may look like pea soup owing to the tiny fragments they are carrying.

Tricks of the Tide.

In some places the tides pick up the sand and remove it as fast as it is made, carrying it away to deposit it on the other reaches. That is why some shores are sandy whilst others are not. And when Nature lays down her carpet of sand she mingles with it the shells great and small for which her tiny creatures have no further use.

SWEET THEIR REST

Sweet is the rest of those who lie under the grass and the open sky. Pain no more shall come to them. The lips of censure are dumb to them. Sorrow nor hurt nor shame may touch

The breasts of those whom we loved so much; Age has lost them the same as we. Always beautiful now they'll be.

Safe are the souls of those who sleep Where the trees are kind and the grass is deep.

Never a care may find them there; Never a feter may bind them there; Those who are living must shed their tears.

Bear the weight of the heavy years. Lose their beauty and suffer pain. But never the dead shall sigh again.

Mourn you not for the ones who lie Under the grass and the open sky. Never shall sin draw near to them. Never shall terror bring fear to them. They have gone home to the God above. Sheltered now in His boundless love From all that maketh men's misery, Always beautiful now they'll be.

The black-and-white silk blouse is popular, as are also those of bisque and gray.

Flowers and cocoades trim the gray and black felt hats for early fall wear.

Both pleating and embroidery are used on novelty suits of heavy rough silks.

Tiny tucks form squares on the overblouses and skirts of white tailored costumes.

Sixteen Rules of Health.

The Life Extension Institute, an organization for the purpose of giving an applicant a thorough physical examination, has formulated sixteen rules of health.

There is so much said about the various things we must do to keep in good health that we are likely to become confused. It is therefore of great value to get the essentials laid down into clear and concise steps. Without doubt the Institute has no copyright on these rules and will be glad to have them widely disseminated. Here they are:

1. Ventilate every room you occupy.
2. Wear light, loose and porous clothes.
3. Seek out-of-door occupations and recreation.
4. Sleep only if you can.
5. Breathe deeply.
6. Avoid overeating and over-drinking.
7. Eat sparingly of meats and eggs.
8. Eat some hard, some bulky, and some raw foods.
9. Eat slowly.
10. Use sufficient water, internally and externally.
11. Evacuate thoroughly, regularly and frequently.
12. Do not allow poisons and infections to enter the body.
13. Stand, sit and walk erect.
14. Keep the teeth, gums and tongue clean.
15. Work, play, rest and sleep in moderation.
16. Keep serene.

Of course to get the most out of these words of advice they should be taken not as rules, but as principles; that is, they should be mixed with common sense and adapted to one's circumstances and physical condition.

Each of them is a generality, but it is well to keep in mind what someone said, to the effect that "all generalities are false, including this one." One thing to be noted is that the observance of one or more of these rules is going to hurt a bit, is going to require some sacrifice, but a generality to which there is hardly an exception is that no good can be obtained without effort and self-sacrifice and this holds particularly true in regard to health.

We may dodge the penalties of excess, over-indulgence and neglect almost anywhere else better than in regard to our bodies.

These bodies were made for vigor, for the forth putting of all their faculties.

And the brain in them was made to control the body.

We always pay the penalty when either of these two functions fails.

Intelligent physical culture has very often brought one out of a state of illness into health, but it does something which is vastly more important than that; it keeps one in a state of health. When it comes to matters of bodily vigor, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

These rules are worth committing to memory or at least worth cutting out and pasting on your looking glass.

Anthracite Coal.

A Philadelphia "North American" reporter, who has been investigating coal conditions in that city, finds that although production at the anthracite mines has averaged since October last a million tons per month more than in 1920-21, when there was no strike, that there are no available reserves and no prospect of early reserves. The reason is the demand for supplies by householders who do not intend resigning to be caught with empty bins. Despite the failure of operators to put in effect reductions at the mines, the retail dealers in Philadelphia have lowered prices consequent on reductions by the independent operators. These prices were from $1.00 to $4.00 per ton in excess of the mine prices. Coal that sold during the winter at $1.00 to $1.25 at the mines, or $1.05 to $1.70 New York, is still selling at that figure. The unseasonably cold weather creating a more than average Spring demand. The Philadelphia reporter's conclusion is that the prospects are dark, as the demand will continue until the fall. It is useless to expect a price drop. Broadly speaking, the Philadelphia conditions are the conditions elsewhere. Every community is asking for coal. None is being stored either at the mines or in local yards. The brokers are booked and all they can secure for months to come, and dealers who have delayed making purchases may not find it easy to get stocks.

These conditions are all based on the assumption that there is no interruption of production through strikes or other causes. A tie-up at the mines in delivery services would completely upset calculations, which at the best promise only adequate supplies at prevailing prices—Canadian border.

The First Derby.

The Derby in one of our most popular races, and yet few people know that it was originally a purely Manx affair long before it was run at Epsom.

This first Derby was started in 1657, by William Earl of Derby, then Lord of the Isle of Man. All horses running to be foaled in the Island or in the Gulf of Man. The value of the stakes being five pounds sterling. The race was run on the July 28th, and if this fell on a Sunday it was run the next day.

The earl kept his racehorses at Castle Rushen, Castletown. The race was run through Derby Haven to Langness. There is in existence a copy of the rules on which the race was conducted, with the heading, "Manx Monax, 14th July, 1657."

"Articles for the Plate which is to be run for in the said Island, being of the value of Five Pounds sterling, given by the Right Hon. William Earl of Derby, Lord of the said Isle."

Following this are eight rules, similar to the present ones in all essentials. When the Earls of Derby left the I.O.M. they instituted the race in England.

The first Derby was run in 1780, and started by the then earl. The Derby is so frequently spoken of as a typical English event that it will come as something of a surprise to learn that it originated in the sporting little island.
