

Majority of Council Speak Against Power Company's Second Offer

Matter, However, Is Laid on Table for Further Consideration—New Owners Not Willing to Sell Out.

Disapproval of the offer made to the city by E. N. Sanderson, president of the Federal Light and Traction Company, was voiced at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Common Council...

Mr. Sanderson, after numerous and persistent questions from the commissioners, finally admitted that the new owners of the Power Company would not sell out to the city. They had not come here for a quick buy and a get-out, he said.

POWER COMPANY MEETING LAST NIGHT

Pythian Castle Meeting Hears Hydro Enthusiasts as Well as Opponents—Some Humorous Passages

A meeting of hydro opponents was held at the Pythian Castle last evening. L. P. D. Tilley acting as chairman and about 800 citizens present.

The meeting was quite stormy, and some of the speakers were subjected to sharp questioning on the part of citizens in the hall and their assertions closely checked.

Resolved, That this meeting is of the opinion that it would be detrimental to the interests of the city of St. John to have two systems of electrical distribution, and that every effort should be made to arrive at an arrangement with the New Brunswick Power Company whereby they would discontinue their present plans.

The chairman, Mr. Tilley, read the motion and then said, without asking for the question, "Those in favor please say 'aye'." After the "ayes" had been called for, he called for the "nays," which were given with a spontaneity that moved the chairman to call for a standing vote.

At the conclusion of the material part of the programme Hugh O'Neill, Grand Knight of the Council, proposed the toast to the King, which was honored in the customary fashion.

THE RIDDLE OF THE SPINNING WHEEL

Being An Exploit in the Career of Hamilton Cleek, Detective.
By MARY E. AND THOMAS W. HANSEW

Cleek realized the danger even as he met it, and knew what it ultimately meant. But the thing had to be done. And in the doing he had won one foot round a star of iron which rose up out of the parapet to form the base of Rhea's bronze throne, and so steadied himself for the nonce. But it was a difficult task indeed to free himself from this clinging, scratching, biting thing, and it took all his powers of resistance to combat him successfully.

"Stop it—damn you!—stop it!" he gave out furiously, in an angry whisper which at least reached Mr. Narkom's ears, and sent the night-owl hoot creeping eerily over the silence of that black night to tell Cleek that he would come to the rescue if necessary. And Cleek hooted back. He couldn't do this thing alone—it was too much for him. The space upon which they wrestled was a mere foot and a half in breadth, and at any moment one or both of them might pitch down into the darkness to certain death.

He peered into the man's furry-riden face, trying to distinguish the features of it, but the upper half was covered with a black mask through which the eyes gleamed like slits of fire, and the strength of him seemed superhuman, to say the least of it. It was merely a matter of moments now—something would have to be done—when, of a sudden, the man leapt away from him, reached down an arm again, and—like as a cat—swung himself down upon the perilously narrow ledge of the great bronze bell. Here was Cleek's chance. In an instant his hand shot out toward the man's leg and caught it in a "clasp" while with the other he steadied himself by a firm hold of the wrought-iron stave that had saved him a moment or two before.

The creature spat out his vindictiveness in a string of Italian oaths, and then he merely hung on tighter to the ankle and prayed for nothing other than a moment of this strain and—the light would be lost. His arm muscles were strained to their utmost, his whole body upon the rack. He sent forth the summons of the night-owl again and again, and was rewarded by the sound beneath him of a heavy exclamation from the Superintendent, a muttered "My Gawd!" from the hoarse throat of that little bit of Cockney whom he had served him and saved him many times before, and then the creature words, "Gawd!—there in a tick!" came with their ring of comfort, and he exerted himself to the utmost to retain his hold of the biting, clutching thing that lay twining leg in Cleek's grasp, upon the narrow confines of the ledge of Rhea's bell.

The moments seemed like hours and a tick had all but let go, with a strained wrist and a dislocated finger which was giving him agony, when he saw the dark shape approaching him, and knew that his rescuer had come. "In the nick of time, lad," he breathed as he released his hold in favour of Dollops. "God knows who the beg-is here's Mr. Narkom. Yes, let's have a look at the blighter, men, before you carry him off to the lock-up. I'm interested to know what he looks like beneath that mask of his. Just to get a line on his features, you know."

Speaking, he went up to the group and sent its spotlight upon the man's scowling face.

And it was just as he did this that Dollops let out a yell of amazement, and stared at him—mouth open, eyes wide.

"Gawblimey! and pink ossidess!" he exclaimed, whirling round upon Cleek in astonishment. "I must say! Who says anything about killing two birds with one stone? Men, I'm coming along with you to the lock-up. It's a bit late in the evening, or early in the morning, but I'm going to have a conversation with your prisoner which is going to elucidate many things for me. Mr. Narkom, I should advise you to get back to bed and take a rest. Tomorrow is likely to be a heavy day. Then, smiling, but still a trifle pale, Cleek swung into step with Dollops behind the little cavalcade which was winding its way slowly through the great gateway and out upon the road beyond—toward the goal of many inmates.

CHAPTER XXVI

Cleek spent an hour in the "lock-up" with the man he had captured, and had what he scathingly called a proper heart-to-heart talk with him, coming away with the contemptuous feeling in his heart which all clear men must find there upon discovering a fellow creature who, to save his own skin if possible, is willing to split upon a pal.

He vented his way toward the Inn of the Three Fishers, with Dollops beside him, head downward, every faculty concentrated upon the proper unraveling of the riddle that confronted him. If two and two made four, then he had the answer pretty well elucidated at last. One held to fill in the gaps with a bit of imagination, but—when he put the pocket where the missing will lay, lying close against that packet of love-letters that he had found in Mr. Andrew's desk. Funny how papers so often proved things which human eyes had failed. Clues—both of them, strong clues. And likely to give him a conversation with your prisoner which is going to elucidate many things for me. Mr. Narkom, I should advise you to get back to bed and take a rest. Tomorrow is likely to be a heavy day. Then, smiling, but still a trifle pale, Cleek swung into step with Dollops behind the little cavalcade which was winding its way slowly through the great gateway and out upon the road beyond—toward the goal of many inmates.

the issue. Justice must be done—and it's going to hurt some people pretty badly, it isn't my fault, is it?"

"It is not, sir," gave back Dollops emphatically. "But you come on up to yer room and let me attend to that there 'land. 'Urtin' pretty nasty, ain't it? I thought so. A bit er cold water'll slip some, an' I'm a dab hand at the First Aid stunt since I took them lessons in Lunnon last winter. We'll put yer right in a jiffy. But I earn't elp wishin' it was my paw, all the same. Miss Lorne'll be that worried when she sees."

"Then the best thing to do is not to tell her, you little Worry-Box," returned Cleek with a laugh. "It's luck it's my left one, so the writing won't be affected. A week or two will see it right. I wish I could cure all the heart-break and unhappiness in this old Castle-keep as effectively in such a short time. . . . Thanks very much. 'Twill do nicely. I think. And it's a good deal easier. Now, he off to bed, boy, and try to make up for the loss of that beauty-sleep which you've missed. Tomorrow, or rather, today, is going to keep us all fairly busy. I imagine I shall want you to come up to the Castle with me in the morning, you know—and I mustn't be later than ten o'clock."

And so it came about that in the morning Cleek, looking rather pale, with one hand in a roughly contrived sling, and with Dollops in close attendance, and Mr. Narkom bringing up the rear, made his way to the great door of Aygon Castle, rang the bell coolly, and notified pleasantly the door-keeper who admitted him as though nothing out of the ordinary had happened in the night that had just passed. As he passed through the gates with his companions and heard them clang to behind him, he laid a hand upon the gate-keeper's arm and spoke in a low voice.

"Heard nothing at all after we left Burns? Saw no one, I suppose, this morning?"

"Not a soul, sir. Aiverybody seems to have overslept themselves and never a word has even come to me over the telephone in my lodge."

"Good! Excellent! Well, keep your mouth tight-closed and know nothing if you are questioned. Not even to the master of the Castle himself. To nobody. Simply nothing untoward happened at all last night that you in a w. . . . Follow me."

"Very well, then. Come, Mr. Narkom, well make our way up to the Castle now. Fine place, isn't it? Wonderful bit of stone-work in that battlement round the tesselated tower.

COFFEE

Pure as the breezes of the mountain gardens where it grows—not a trace of any adulterant in this delightful coffee.

Never noticed it so plainly before. Perhaps it's the fine day."

Speaking, he led the way up the drive, followed by a wide-eyed Dollops and a panting Superintendent who had not long finished his breakfast of bacon and eggs, and had missed his usual ten minutes perusal of the newspaper after Jarvis opened the door to them, howling low over Cleek's cap as the latter powdered it, and giving Dollops a friendly wink behind his master's back as he led them into the little ante-room and went to summon his mistress.

As they sat waiting, Cleek saw Tavish, clad in riding-boots and trousers, and making a fine figure of a man, swing past the half-open door. Cleek nodded to him as he glanced in.

"Good morning. I say—omph! in a moment, won't you? I've got a perfectly astonishing piece of news!"

Then, as Tavish, with a nod and a smile, came into the room, seeming in his enormous stature, to fill up every nook and corner of it, and shook Cleek firmly by the hand, that gentleman leaned a little forward and whispered something in his ear.

Mr. Narkom saw the flare of eye and the slackening of jaw which betokened an amusement as Tavish opened his mouth to speak. But Cleek held up a silencing hand.

"Hush! I don't want the thing made public yet, y' know, my dear chap. Only I thought perhaps you'd like to have a look in and see the final round-up of the villains. Take a back seat, you know. There's no harm in that. And I've the most amazing bit of evidence by me which I've traced it all to. Stories will among other things. Bring it home to her as smart as you please. Ought to be worth watching when you see her face."

"Gad!—yes." Tavish struck one hand into the open palm of the other, and his nice face went grim. "The woman's a devil from the first letter to the last. And if you know the things she's done to my future wife—Johnnie McCall—well, it fair makes a man's blood boil. I'd tighten the noose round her neck, I can promise you, and with my own hands, too. The earth is well rid of her kind."

"In which I profoundly agree, and—hello! here's Miss Duggan. At half-past ten, then. I'll make arrangements for you to slip in unnoticed. It's going to be as sensational as a first-rate London melodrama. And—not a word old chap?"

THE EVENING TIMES AND STAR, ST. JOHN, N. B., THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1923

TREE AND CROP PESTS.

Save Birds That Destroy Them by Saving Forests, Inspector Urges.

(New York Times.)

Agricultural reports show a loss of from ten to twenty per cent. in our forests and in such products as cereals, cotton, hay, fruit, sugar, and tobacco, as the result of the ravages of insects infesting trees and crops. Inspector C. A. Johnston of the Conservation Commission names the bark and timber beetle, the carpenter worm, the chestnut worm, long-horned beetle, powder-post beetle, the white pine weevil, elm bark louse, leopard moth, grey moth, as the worst offenders, but there is a regular army of wood borers, scale insects and plant lice. The destructive work of these insects he puts at more than $200,000,000.

The birds, says Inspector Johnston, are our best protectors against their ravages. They are the natural guardians of the trees. The warblers, the tree doctors, the woodpeckers, the tree surgeons, nuthatches, wrens, chickadees and sparrows, together with the long-spurs, redpolls, crossbills, snow buntings, the musical family of vireos, pewees, phoebe bobolinks, meadow lark and many others, are constantly at work cleaning up and guarding the welfare of trees and plants.

"For many years the value of these wonder workers was known to the few and not to the many," he says. "Farmers in their busy life, unmindful of their usefulness, gave them little attention. They had not studied their habits nor learned their value, and many killed them, thinking they were damaging their trees. Their work has been recognized and proved so valuable that they are protected from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian border by a treaty between the United States and Great Britain signed Aug. 16, 1916."

The value of birds to our farms and forests was recently made the subject of a five-minute radio talk broadcast from WGY (General Electric Company, Schenectady) by Mr. Johnston, who has devoted years to the study of birds in the field. He spoke from the viewpoint of practical conservation.

"There is perhaps no question more vital importance in our work of conservation at the present time than a consideration of the best methods to adopt to save and preserve our forests that are being devastated by insect pests," said he.

"Every means possible that man could devise has been brought into play to arrest the progress and exterminate these pests. Chemicals have been applied in every conceivable manner. Trees have been sprayed, and the light dawned upon man that birds had been already provided for the protection of our trees, and the value

WOLVES INVADING BERKSHIRE HILLS

Lenox, Mass., April 4.—Wolves have been seen during the last ten days in the Berkshire Hills for the first time in a generation. They were first discovered in Otis. Then Cortland P. Bishop saw a pair of them stalking a deer in Sheffield a week ago when en route to New York from his estate in Lenox and they were seen a few days later by the Whitebeck rattlesnake hunter, near Bash Bish Falls in Mount Washington. They are now believed to be in the Auvergne Mountains in New York. Mr. Bishop attributed the wolf invasion of the Berkshires to the severe winter in Canada and a large increase of deer in Western Massachusetts.

WATCHMAN KILLED BY HUT COLLAPSE
Daughter was Dressing to Act as Bridesmaid When News of Death Came.

New York, April 6.—While she was cheerfully chatting with members of her family and putting on her bridesmaid's dress, preparatory to acting in that capacity at the wedding of a friend, Miss Ella O'Hearn was suddenly informed that her father, James O'Hearn, had been killed.

The body had remained unidentified for several hours at the East Thirty-fifth Street Police Station, following its recovery in the ruins of what had been a shack constructed by O'Hearn at a building being reconstructed in an old wall, and was wrecked during the night when the ground about it collapsed.

A fire truck was summoned, and firemen, working under Battalion Chief Murtagh, found that O'Hearn had been smothered under the wreckage. None of the employees at the building knew the dead man, and it was some time after the body had been taken to the station house that a timekeeper identified him through an employee's button.

A patrolman was then sent to the O'Hearn home, where his message interrupted the plans for the wedding, and instead of the bride-maid's gown Miss O'Hearn donned one of mourning. With the prospective bride, they hurried in a taxicab to the morgue, to which the body had been removed.

A cousin of Miss O'Hearn, Miss Martha Tobin, was the bride-to-be. As all the arrangements for the wedding at St. Pius Roman Catholic Church had been made, Miss O'Hearn bravely took her part in the ceremony late in the afternoon.

WATCHMAN KILLED BY HUT COLLAPSE
Daughter was Dressing to Act as Bridesmaid When News of Death Came.

New York, April 6.—While she was cheerfully chatting with members of her family and putting on her bridesmaid's dress, preparatory to acting in that capacity at the wedding of a friend, Miss Ella O'Hearn was suddenly informed that her father, James O'Hearn, had been killed.

The body had remained unidentified for several hours at the East Thirty-fifth Street Police Station, following its recovery in the ruins of what had been a shack constructed by O'Hearn at a building being reconstructed in an old wall, and was wrecked during the night when the ground about it collapsed.

A fire truck was summoned, and firemen, working under Battalion Chief Murtagh, found that O'Hearn had been smothered under the wreckage. None of the employees at the building knew the dead man, and it was some time after the body had been taken to the station house that a timekeeper identified him through an employee's button.

A patrolman was then sent to the O'Hearn home, where his message interrupted the plans for the wedding, and instead of the bride-maid's gown Miss O'Hearn donned one of mourning. With the prospective bride, they hurried in a taxicab to the morgue, to which the body had been removed.

A cousin of Miss O'Hearn, Miss Martha Tobin, was the bride-to-be. As all the arrangements for the wedding at St. Pius Roman Catholic Church had been made, Miss O'Hearn bravely took her part in the ceremony late in the afternoon.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION IS CONSIDERED

IMMIGRATION SYSTEM HERE IS CRITICIZED

Swiss, With Advance Guard of 20,000 Farmers, Worked Up Over Reception.

Toronto, April 5.—"From my observations and experiences in bringing out 200 Swiss immigrants to this country, I would say that the system of reception and distribution adopted by the immigration authorities in Canada is absolutely impracticable and unworkable," said Friedrich Beck, Swiss Government official, upon arrival here with his first party of Swiss agricultural immigrants.

"Perhaps it would be better if I did not talk now," he continued, "I feel tremendously agitated, I am glad that I have brought out only ninety men as an advanced guard of the 20,000 experienced farmers who wish to emigrate to Canada. I am certain that the Swiss Government must proceed with the greatest caution in bringing out men to Canada. Perhaps I will feel more inclined tomorrow to give my views in public."

The Swiss Government has decided to send a party of 20,000 Swiss agricultural immigrants to Canada. The party is being sent in three installments.

Panic in Pittsburg Movie House as Lieson Sends Four Bullets Into Her and Three Into Companion.

Pittsburg, April 5.—Several hundred men, women and children, who were in a thrilling western screen drama in a North Side playhouse, were converted into a panic-stricken stampeding mob last night when Gustave Lieson, waving a revolver, stalked into an aisle in the balcony and opened fire. Seven shots were fired. When the lights were switched on a man and a woman were found slumped in their seats unconscious.

The woman was Lieson's wife and the man Edward B. Weinger, her escort. Mrs. Lieson was shot in the temple, back of the head, right shoulder and neck. Weinger had three wounds in his head.

Physicians said Weinger would recover, but held little hope for Mrs. Lieson, whose military service showed him to be an expert marksman, but was arrested an hour later. He told police he had been "waiting for this chance for months."

She Has The World's Finest "Radio Voice"
According To Experts

New York, April 5.—Now it's the "radio voice" that has been demonstrated to be not every singer, even those of acknowledged beauty of tone, can sing successfully over the radio. Therefore, when a special jury of radio-musical experts got together recently and declared Miss Edith Bennett the "world's finest radio singer," it meant a great deal.

Somewhat the same problem is faced by singers for phonographic records. One singer is now singing in a Paris court claiming her reputation as a singer was ruined because she made some records for a French phonographic concern and her voice "didn't come out the way it went in."

The record people replied that it was all very unfortunate, but they could hardly be called at fault, for it was not to their financial advantage to make just as good records as possible.

The explanation, based of its technicalities, was that the voice of the singer in question simply did not "record."

Somewhat the same intangible something often stands between women of undeniable beauty and success in the movies.

One may have beauty and charm, and yet look like a "radio singer" on the screen. The answer is: you have not a "camera face."

Miss Bennett's ability to ride the airwaves vocally with great clarity and effect means about the same to her fans, where she will be the guest of honor at the Metropolitan debut of the opera singer.

It is in twelve reels.

HERE IT IS AGAIN. In a recent issue of the London Daily Times appeared a large picture of a British soldier, Canadian scolding, and some details regarding his entry in the Diamond Sculls. The picture was a caricature of the man that he had been representing. The man was John Rowing Club of St. John, New Brunswick, who had been scolding the British soldier.

GET-TOGETHER OF BRITISH LIBERALS IN WELSH CONSTITUENCY. London, April 5.—(Canadian Press)—The move towards a reunion of the National and Independent Liberals has taken practical form in the constituency of Anglesey, Wales, where both wings have agreed to support Sir Robert Thomas who is labelled "Liberal" without prefix. The Anglesey election has been rendered necessary by the death of Brig-General Sir E. Thomas who was returned in the last general election as an Independent.

Quebec, April 5.—Early this morning Antonio Fortin, aged 20, of Lauzon, died from internal hemorrhage said to have been induced by the swallowing of his false teeth several nights ago while he was asleep. The swallowing of the false teeth necessitated operation, which was performed at the Hotel Dieu Hospital here, and was declared to have been successful.

MERCHANT FINED FOR ASSAULT ON MAN WHO REFUSED TO BUY

New York, April 5.—Meyer Horowitz, 19 years old, owner of a clothing store, was fined $50 by Magistrate Norman J. March in Jefferson Market Court on a charge of disorderly conduct.

The complainant was William Hanck, 20 years old, who testified that he went into Horowitz's place to buy a suit of clothes. He tried on a $85 suit, when he refused to buy it, whereupon, he said, Horowitz and another man who was in the store assaulted him. Horowitz was arrested by Patrolman Mullens of the West Thirtieth street station. He paid the fine.

TRAVELS 1,000,000 MILES AS CONDUCTOR IN 32 YEARS

New York, April 5.—Edward Dematt of 94 Ravine avenue, Yonkers, a passenger conductor of the New York Central who began railroading thirty-two years ago, has just completed a traveling record of 1,000,000 miles, or forty times the distance around the world.

Dematt, who for years has run local electric communication lines, moved to Foughkeepsie and will hereafter be in charge of the "millionaire's communication express," as No. 74, due at Grand Central at 10:19 o'clock in the morning. He will run No. 119, the express leaving Grand Central at 8:58 the evening for Foughkeepsie, on his daily return trip to Foughkeepsie.

INTERESTING PAPER

A meeting of Union Lodge, No. 2, Knights of Pythias, was held last evening in the Pythian Castle Hall, Union street, with the chancellor commander, F. A. Kinnear, presiding. Following the business meeting a paper was read by Fred E. Harrington on "Ticket-selling and accounting." Mr. Harrington was employed as depot ticket agent for the C. N. R. and C. P. R. for thirty-four years and naturally had a grasp of his subject. A number of slides were shown during the reading of the paper. Among the scenes were the depot at the foot of Dorchester street, in about the same place as where the St. John Hide Company is now located.

EGYPT AFFORDS A GREAT FIELD FOR KNOWLEDGE

As Early as the Seventeenth Century Travellers Returned from the Nile With Relics of Dusty Ages.

London, March 23.—(By Mail).—Egyptology is in the air. Society ladies are going to lecture on tombs and mummies, and eccentrics are dressing their servants in the queer costumes of the brick-batt people who mostly in the mass were pastoral. Curios are examined; fakers are busy; even the newspapers are lured into printing long articles about buried cities, tombs, and dead men who have been so marvelously preserved for centuries. It is all very interesting—and a little bewildering.

Egypt is indeed a land of yesterday. Its glories lie buried beneath the wastes of yellow sand, or are hid deep beneath the rock-brown repulchres as if those who fashioned them for kings and nobles knew that the day would come when aliens would fill the land and with pick and shovel should lay bare the secrets of the dead. The Egyptian of this age is but a faded copy of the highly civilized man who 3,000 years ago formed the aristocracy of the known world, and whose memorials of art and luxury are now being brought forth to the light.

For Mysterious Past. If we should wish to know what manner of people were the ancient Egyptians who formed the first civilization of the world, we must descend to the lowest strata of life in what remains today of this once great dual Kingdom (for the Upper and Lower originally formed two distinct Kingdoms). We must go into the fields and observe the toiling fellahin, working for a miserable pittance and for long the foot of the Turkish and Arabian oppressors. When in imagination we see brought out into the sunlight the proud memorials of the Pharaohs who reached a height of luxury that set them upon a pinnacle overlooking the known earth, it is a pitiful reflection that their descendants have long since sunk into a state remote above servitude by the intervention of British policy. For when Kitchener set out to rid Egypt of the cruel oppression of the "Mad Mullah"—one of a long line of Arabian scourges, the Egyptian native had touched bottom in misery and degradation. He was an agricultural laborer earning about one farthing a day; or a porter, or a slave. We spent blood and treasure in clearing the Soudan of the dervishes and other warriors who flew the green flag of Islam, with the rather ironical result that the liberated Egyptian has inherited so freely of the gospel of liberty that he is getting somewhat restive. But in the face of the fellahin we

This Laxative Works Fine on Old People

Thousands have kept themselves healthy with Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. ADVANCING age with its subdued ambitions and strivings could be made very happy if only good health accompanied it, and the basis of good health, as everyone learns upon reaching the age of 60, is the regular daily movement of the bowels. If it can be effected through the food you eat, the water you drink and the exercise you take, so much the better. But if nature will not operate it must be assisted or sickness will follow. Neglected constipation causes the blood pressure to go up 28 per cent, and that is the forerunner of hardening of the arteries. It makes rheumatism and gout worse, too.

The ideal constipation remedy for people of advancing years is Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is gentle and mild, and does not cramp or grip. It is a mistake to think you need a violent salt or powder or pill calomel, cool-tar drugs and such things. They purge and weaken.

Now try the milder method. Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect with repeated use, and increased doses are unnecessary. Mrs. Helen Lairs of Picton, N. S., who is 87, keeps herself in good health with it, and Mr. Chas. N. Nicholas of Winnipeg, Man., finds it both helpful and beneficial, and every-thing that can be desired from a laxative standpoint.

may perceive the outline of the proud Egyptians who ruled not merely from the Nile Valley to the first Cataract, but over Lower Nubia, to Libya and Arabia down to the shores of the Red Sea, including terrible Mount Sinai and the fertile lands stretching to the Mediterranean.

Scientists Followed. In 1798 the flame of war blazed a trail through the land of the Pyramids. Napoleon's army of conquest carried in its train a band of earnest scientific searchers—the first occasion upon which science and destruction marched together.

In 1801 Mehemet Ali threw Egypt open to Europeans. Before this traveler had visited the land of the Nile at the risk of life. This led to a great impetus to excavations and there also grew up a busy trade in antiquities, not all of them, we regret to say, above suspicion.

In 1821 appeared Champollion's famous volume on decipherments of the ancient language, a monumental and awe-inspiring work. For the first time the ideas, thoughts, history, laws, etc., of the dead people were partially laid bare, and Egyptology received a definite place in knowledge.

In 1842-45, Prussia led the way with Lepsius, the great antiquary, whose labors included excavations in Nubia as well as Egypt. British scientific exploration in Egypt began in 1883 by the efforts of Professor Flinders Petrie, who had long been grieved by the supine attitude of his country in the face of German and French activity among the buried tombs. This was the beginning, however, of difficult times in Egypt, with many political complications culminating in the death of Gordon and the relapsing of the Soudan into the power of the Mahdi.

EXPLAINS HOW CLOUDS ARE DRIVEN AWAY

Washington, April 4.—Rain-making and the dissipation of fogs and clouds is a process invented by Dr. L. Francis Warren is a scientific possibility, and the further perfection of apparatus, no doubt will prove its feasibility, said Dr. R. B. Moore recently to The Associated Press. Dr. Moore is chief chemist of the United States Bureau of Mines. While he has not yet had opportunity to see Dr. Warren's apparatus in operation, Dr. Moore has been interested in the method since its inception and has had faith in the soundness of the scientific principle on which it is based.

The rain-making method consists in charging a dielectric (a material that retains an electric charge), such as fine sand, with a static charge, and then sprinkling this sand over the top of a cloud by means of an airplane, said Dr. Moore. "As everyone knows, clouds consist of minute particles of water, a large proportion of which are charged. All the particles in the same cloud are charged either negatively or positively and, therefore, as they carry the same sign, they repel each other when they come into too close contact. This mitigates against the coalescence of the particles into a size that allows them to fall through the atmosphere in the form of rain. Anything which will dissipate the charge on the particles will help coalescence and, therefore, will assist in precipitation."

"I have had no opportunity for personal observation," Dr. Moore continued, "in connection with the tests already made, but I have read the reports of the observers. From these it appears that a single airplane has been able to dissipate a cloud a mile or two long and over 1,000 feet deep in a few minutes by using about 100 pounds of charged sand."

"The apparatus which Dr. Warren uses for charging the sand is not by any means perfected, and he is able only to fall through the atmosphere in the form of rain. Anything which will dissipate the charge on the particles will help coalescence and, therefore, will assist in precipitation."

ARTHUR McHUGH RETIRES. Arthur McHugh, for eighteen years a valued member of the staff of the local parcel post service, on the occasion of his retiring from active service, yesterday received from C. B. Lockhart, collector of customs, on behalf of Mr. McHugh's fellow workers, a formal address to farewell and tangible evidence of appreciation. Genial, attentive, and well versed in his work, Mr. McHugh was popular with his business associates and with the general public. A sprinter of note in his youth, a baseball player who was fast enough to be a member of the famous Shamrocks and later a trainer of athletes, among whom was Charles O'Reilly, noted local middle-distance star, Mr. McHugh was most prominent in athletics for many years, first as a participant and afterwards as an instructor and supporter.

The Man Who Signs Must Make Good!

A responsible man puts his name to a piece of paper and it becomes a check—the equivalent of money.

He signs his name on the back of another piece of paper and it becomes an endorsed note—good for money.

He writes a letter and it becomes a binding contract.

The adding of the name makes these things solemn and legal obligations.

The man who signs is responsible.

Just so with an advertisement—the moment a man signs his name to it he has made a pledge to the public.

He is bound by his word, as much as if he signed a check or a note. He must do what he promised on the terms he promised.

If he does not, he courts business disaster. The man who advertises a lie publicly proclaims himself a liar. Such men are seldom in business but frequently in asylums.

It is safer to buy advertised articles than nondescript ones. It is safer to deal with merchants who advertise than with those who do not.

An advertisement is a signed pledge of good faith to the public.

Buffalo Barbecued at Banff

In the hope of producing a new beef animal which will thrive without attention in the northern territories, the Dominion Government has been crossing selected specimens from the Buffalo herd with Yak and other and better known domestic cattle. The hide pictured above is that of one of the buffaloes donated by the Government for barbecue at the Banff Winter Carnival, and those who partook of it in every respect. From a few head purchased 28 years ago, the Buffalo in Canada have multiplied so that they now number over 9,000, and they should soon be a source of revenue to the country as well as a source of entertainment for carnival revellers. They are kept within the confines of their own reserves, but these are in close proximity to the National Park at Banff, and hundreds of visitors and tourists are interested enough to walk over the fence to see the animals. In the centre is seen Banff Springs Hotel, the headquarters of the visitors to the Carnival.

Mr. Walsh denied that the Pre-State government had refused to grant a further subsidy to the games. He said that the athletic council had not yet asked for such a subsidy.

Westfield Club Elects.

The annual meeting of the Westfield Country Club was held in the Board of Trade rooms last night. Reports were read as follows: Winter entertainment, L. T. Allen railway committee, G. L. Warwick; auditor, Gordon Likely; treasurer, W. E. Golding; secretary, L. T. Allen; retiring president, W. E. Golding. A general discussion of the reports followed. The following officers were elected for 1923: President, G. L. Warwick; vice-president, D. W. Pradington; director, W. E. Golding, F. J. Likely, S. A. Thomas, H. J. Evans, and R. E. Crawford. The newly-elected president addressed the club regarding the coming season. A subsequent meeting was held by the directors, at which Mr. Allen was re-elected secretary and Mr. Robertson was re-elected treasurer. Plans for the coming season were discussed. The club has at present a temporary seven-hole golf course. It is intended to replace this with permanent holes, and as each is finished a temporary one will be dropped. It is hoped to have a nine-hole course by the close of the present season or the first of next season.

Hubbard, Jr., captain-elect of the Harvard Varsity football eleven for 1923, and holder of four As and a B in the engineering course, declares that such success as he has attained in his studies and on the gridiron, is largely due to the fact that he has been the result of hard work. System Run Down Blood Out of Order

Many people become run down, but don't know just exactly what their trouble is, when, as a rule, it is improper circulation of the blood. All they need is a good tonic to build up the system and put the blood into proper shape. For this purpose there is nothing on the market today as equal.

Burdock Blood Bitters

It regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, purifies the blood and tones up the entire system. Mrs. H. Poole, Fort Dover, Ont., writes: "My system was run down and my blood out of order, and I suffered a great deal from pains in my head which made me feel very miserable. A friend told me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got a bottle and before it was used I found it was doing me good. I kept on until I had taken three, and now I feel like a different woman. My husband also took it and it has built him up. For the past 44 years B. B. B. has been manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont."

Had Bad Pains In Her Heart Nerves Were Very Bad

Mrs. John Case, R. R. No. 4, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "I wish to say that I have been bothered very much with my heart and nerves. I doctored with two different doctors, but did not find much relief. I would have such bad pains in my heart, at times, I would be almost unable to move or breathe, and at night I could not sleep. If the pains in my heart were gone, my nerves would be all right. I could not lie still and would only get a little sleep by being tired out. My stomach was also very bad and I could eat but very little, and then only certain things or I would have so much distress which always made my heart worse. "I had been suffering for nearly two years until one day when I was told of your drugist about the way I felt. He advised me to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a fair trial. I have now taken five boxes and am feeling so much better, I am able to do my work, and can eat anything I wish. I can't praise Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills too highly." NEW JAPANESE STAR ON THE DAVIS CUP TEAM

Fukuda, Selected as Third Member, will Sail for the U. S. April 14. New York, April 5.—M. Fukuda, the latest of the Japanese tennis players to come into international prominence, will sail for the United States from Yokohama on April 14 to represent his country as third member of the seven other Japanese players on the Davis Cup team. According to Zezo Shimizu, who is representing the Japanese Tennis Association in the country, the two other members probably will be himself and Seichiro Kaisho. The appearance of the new star from the Orient will be awaited with much interest in this country, as the reports of his playing have heralded him as a second Ichihya Kumasawa. Fukuda holds the national championship of Japan, and according to Kaisho, who returned lately from the Far East, is regarded as the next best player to Kumasawa in his country. He is twenty-six years old and is a graduate of Waseda University. He is said to play one of the well-rounded games, combining and serving with good form and volleys effectively. His one weakness is his backhand. It is expected that a year of play in the United States will do much to correct his weakness and that by 1924 Fukuda will be a formidable representative for his country.

Chapman made a sensational escape from the Atlanta federal penitentiary last week and was recaptured near here following a gun battle with officers which resulted in his being badly wounded. Chapman leaped from a window on the second floor of the hospital, his body landing heavily in a garden below. He disappeared before the police could reach the institution. The prisoner was being treated for bullet wounds in the kidneys and thigh when he escaped. He is being guarded by Chapman. He said the prisoner made the leap when his back was turned.

EASTER FASHION PARADE IN N. Y.

Fur-clad Throngs Promenaded Avenue and Filled the Churches

Scenes Colorful as Ever—Flapper is Found Extinct—Gone are Sport Clothes and Flat Heels—Long Skirts and King Tut Modes Seen.

(New York Tribune.) A chilly dawn, with the mercury breaking records for April 1 when it lingered at 12 above zero around 8 o'clock, failed to neutralize the splendor of yesterday's Easter parade. Taking to heart the warning of the weather man that furs would be sensible and a la mode, thousands of women turned out warmly attired, their only tribute to the unofficial arrival of spring being their brilliantly hued hats and the bunches of fragrant flowers tucked into their furs. In spite of the cold, it was one of the greatest Easter parades on record, so far as numbers were concerned. Moreover, the weather improved and the crowds increased as the day wore on. By church time the temperature had risen to 20 degrees above zero, or 8 degrees under the previous record for April 1, which was set in 1909 when the mercury touched a minimum of 25 for half an hour. Soon after noon a temperature of 30 degrees was recorded, and throughout the afternoon it climbed steadily.

Strolling Crowds Fill Streets.

It was not an unpleasant cold, but a clear, dazzling frigidly, with blue skies and a brisk northwest wind that whipped color into pale cheeks. The warm blanket of sunshine that enveloped the city created a false impression of warmth, and after the church parade was over every thoroughfare of the city was crowded with men and women out for the leisurely afternoon stroll that is part of Easter Sunday's routine.

The churches, fashionable and humble, were filled to overflowing for the beautiful Easter services. The estimated attendance was record breaking. At St. Patrick's Cathedral the police had to regulate the overflow. The Cathedral of St. John the Divine was taxed, the dawn service held indoors at Columbia because of the cold was attended by more than a thousand, and in every section of the city people packed the churches. New bonnets, the certain symbol of spring, were as much in evidence on Third as on Fifth and Park avenues. It was in the poorer sections of the city that some of the girls braved the cold with thin suits, but their shivering looks showed they had made a mistake. Fifth Avenue was solid far warm coats and furs—furs bundled right up to the ears, almost concealing the many pretty faces peeping out from their soft folds.

Hats Form Rainbow on Avenue

Hats were a riot of color. No amount of fur wrappings around the neck and body could dim this fact. As far as the eye could see up and down Fifth Avenue yards of multi-colored ribbon seemed to whirl in the crowd. At close range the illusion faded and the hats took shape—tight, close turbans, severely plain, gay, little ground than four inches. Another return from boyishness to femininity was the veil, which was noticed draped around spring hats in a hundred graceful ways, sometimes floating behind a figure that progressed rather slowly, the old flapper stride missing.

Low Heels Obsolete.

Low heels appeared to have vanished, too, and a dozen variations of the strap shoe were in evidence, with bright blue and red popular among the more daring of the young paraders. Light stockings, semi-transparent, invariably went with these shoes. The Egyptian note was evident in the light, rather harsh turbans and in the draped effect and exotic embroidery of some of the frocks that showed below fur jackets. Aside from the hats colors were for the most part subdued, but one of the striking features of the parade was the number of fashionably attired girls who had used Oriental makeup—eyes of deep blue, lips with her olive tinted skin, brick red rouge and a close hat with earflaps that suggested the yoke of King Tut. A little dog with a blanket fastened around him trotted along behind this sphinx-like girl, who seemed to be unconscious of the attention she was attracting. Nothing quite so daring as Mrs. Asquith's Tut-and-amen frock appeared in the parade, although there were endless variations of the Egyptian theme in hats, handbags, embroidery and jewelry. Necklaces, earrings and bracelets of the newest sort showed scarab designs.

The less conspicuous 80 per cent. of the Easter parade kept strictly to warm winter overcoats. A few men ventured forth in light spring coats, but the majority decided, like their wives, to hold on until the weather changed. This did not apply to their spring hats, though, and they, too, appeared in tans and grays of a startling newness. More conventional Easter attire was much in evidence in the church parade, with the customary "topper," cane and gardenia.

Dusk Before Parade Ends.

Although the church bells ringing sharply through the cold, clear air brought thousands into the streets, the afternoon parade invited them forth in ever-increasing numbers. It was nightfall before the last of the marchers disappeared from the main thoroughfares. In the parks and squares a few stray birds hopped and chirped. The first faint touch of green did its best to push through its earthy coverings. Fashion houses, Granary Park and Washington Square. The last heaped-up mound of snow thawed reluctantly under the sunshine that did its best to offset yesterday's cold.

Shop windows were filled with spring clothes that made women shiver as they looked. Easter eggs, chickens and bunnies diverted the passing children whose clothes also showed the trend of fashion. Little girls were as proud of their Easter bonnets as their mothers, and a few little girls had great bunches of flowers crushed up against their tiny fur coats. Their cheeks were smacked with the wind until they glowed, and the sunshine made pretty lacework among the long lines of people stretching all the way up and down the avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Gould were noticed on their way to church with their little daughter, who was all bundled up in a pretty squirrel coat. Her mother wore a broadtail coat, fur neck-piece and one of the new shiny Egyptian turbans, unrelieved by any sort of trimming.

Mrs. James P. Silo, Jr., also on her way to church, accompanied by her husband, wore a mink fur coat, reaching right down to her heels, and a mushroom shaped straw hat, with flowers. Countess Sigany, who was with James W. Gerard, her brother-in-law, had a broadtail coat, with deep chin-chin collar and cuffs. Her hat was a drooping straw, finished off with a pom pom.

At Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, April 1.—Cajoled by the brilliant sunshine into a stalwart disregard for the stiff wind which blew all day, the Boardwalk this afternoon staged its annual fashion pageant with an attendance which broke all previous records. More than 200,000 persons, including women clad in furs and flowers, braved the wind and absorbed the sunshine.

Even in the early morning there were indications of an unusual congestion along the three-mile Boardwalk, and as the sun gained strength toward noon the crowds grew steadily thicker. By mid-afternoon two streams of closely packed humanity moved steadily along the entire length of the famous promenade, and gradually as the increasing warmth led the fashions on display showed bright splashes of carmine, dazzling greens and clear blues. Furs were worn in unusual combinations, a noticeably popular effect being achieved by the blending of pure white ermine with silken black monkey fur.

The community service held on the beach at the foot of Virginia avenue, under the auspices of the Council of Churches, was attended by thousands, while other thousands halted their boardwalk parade long enough to listen to the singing of the massed choirs of half a dozen leading churches. The Rev. Henry Merle Mellon, of the First Presbyterian church, conducted the services.

grass. It is being cultivated at Kew, and seeds are being sent to Nigeria and Uganda.

Against the tsetse fly, which in these regions is the carrier of the trypanosome of sleeping sickness and of nagana, a disease of wild and domesticated animals, various measures have been proposed. One was the extermination of the magnificent wild game of Africa, followed by the killing off of water fowl and crocodiles. Another was the segregation of the natives. The new scheme may render such proposals unnecessary and allow large districts, now almost useless, to come under cultivation.

The tsetse flies are creatures of the lakeside and the thickbush that grows there. They seldom leave their shady haunts or fly far except when following men or animals. A clearing fifty yards wide has been found a great protection, and every addition to it increases the safety. But clearings are not easy to keep open in the tropics. If water is said to flourish on exactly such clearings, choking the regrowth of bush. The fodder is so good that it will soon repay the cost of clearing.
