Mother's Way.

Oft within our little cottage As the shadows gently fall, While the sunlight touches softly One sweet face upon the wall, Do we gather close together,
And in hushed and tender tone,
Ask each other's full torgiveness
For the wrong that each has done.

At the ending of the day, Eye and voice would quickly answe 'It was once our mother's way!' It our home be bright and cheery,

"Oh, dear, how nice it is to be hon

Faith Lindsey tossed her brown straw hat upon a table, and rolling her well-worn kid gloves up into a tiny ball, flung them after it.
"Mother," she went on, cheerily, this vacation is just a blessing to me I'm so to fed of that dingy old schoolroom, and my slmost hopeless task of teaching the young ideas, etc. There are times when I long to drop every-th ing and just fly away. She sprang to her feet, the glad smile still lingering around the dainty mouth; and pulling the pins from her coil of red-brown hair, let it fall in rebellious ripples all over her shoulders, half covering her petite figure. And as her little fingers went busily to work plaiting the thick wavy tresses, and making them into the most bewitching braids and puffs that ever bewildered a man's admiring eyes, her thoughts still flew

"If only Aunt Patience had left us her money! She must have been very rich! I was too young when she died to remember her. She had always intended to make mamma her heir. But the old was so eccentric—crazy, I should t! I should not wonder if she had property ever discovered was this little house and the grounds around it. But that was a great gift for us, coming as it did just at the time of dear papa's death and I too work. and I too young to be any assistance, Faith, with her cheerf and mamma nearly penniless. He was brave and earnest. To him life was a battle, in which he meant to come off con-

And the days flew by on golden wings, bringing nearer the hour when Faith must return to the city and the toil of the schoolroom. What was her consternation, one morning, to receive a terse note informing her that the school-board which employed her had determined upon a retrenchment of ex-penses for the coming season, and had proceeded to discharge a number of the eachers, herself among them. > Some interesting figures on the divorce question in New England States have been brought together. Connecicut last year granted 316 divorces, which is eighty-five less than in 1878, and in part a result, no doubt, of the repeal of what is known as the "omnibus clause." For several years previous to 1878 this shows a decrease of 130. Vermont also shows a falling off. Only 129 divorces were granted in 1879, or seventy-one less than in 1878. In Massachusetts the case has been the other way. In 1876 600 were granted and the increase last year is believed to be enough to balance the falling off in Vermont and Connecticut.

A beginning is about to be made, says Nature, to carry out Lieutenant Wey-brecht's proposal for a circle of observing stations around the North Polar region. The Danish government has resolved to establish a station at Upernivik, in West Greenland; the Russian government has granted a subsidy for an observatory at the mouth of the Lena, and another on the new Siberian islands; Count Wilczek is to detray the expenses of a station on Nova Zembla under the direction of Lieutenant Weyprecht; the United States signal service, under General Meyer, has received permission to plant an observatory at Point Barrow, in Alaska; and it is expected that Canada will have a similar establishment on some point of her Arctic coast. At the Hamburg conference it was announced that Helland would furnish the funds for a station in Spitzbergen; and it is expected that Norway will have an observing post on he extremity of the province of Fin mark. This is a good beginning, and it will be established to have all the observations made after a unitorm method, otherwise their value will be Gough and the Bible.

While in England, says John B. Gough, I was invited to church with a ofergyman who is now bishop of Car-lisle, and we had a discussion for two hours. A titled lady was present and she helped him. I was alone, and had to bear the whole brunt of the battle in the Scriptural argument.

"The Bible permits the use of wine," A maiden whom to love appeared a duty—
A speil around her hung;

"Very well," said I; "suppose it does?

"The Bible sanctions the use of wine."

"Very well, suppose it does?" "Our Savior made wine." "I know he did."

"Why, we thought you were prepared to deny this." "I do not deny it; I can read"

"Wine is spoken of in the Bible as a blessing." I replied: "There are two kinds of wine spoken of in the Bible.'

"I do not know that I can, but I will tell you what it is; the wine that is spoken of as a blessing is not the same that is a 'mocker,' and the wine that is to be drunk in the kingdom of heaven cannot be the wine of the wrath of God. So that although I cannot prove it earnedly I know it is so. "Now, there are others who go farther than I can go, but you will please let me go as far as I can understand it, and if I cannot go any further do not find fault with me. I hold that the Bible permits total abstinence; I would rather search the Bible for permission to give up a lawful gratification for the sake of my weaker-headed brother who stumbles over my examples into sin, than to see how far I can follow my own propensities without committing sin and bringing condemnation upon any one's soul. Another gentleman who came to me for a long talk said: "I have a concientious objection to teetotalism, and it is this; our Savior made wine at the marriage at Cana, in Galilee."

"I know he did." "He made it because they wanted

"So the Bible tells us."

" He made it of water." "Yes." "Then he honored and sanctified wine by performing a miracle to make it. Therefore," said he, "I should be reproaching my Master, if I denied its use as a beverage."

"Sir," I said, "I cannot understand how you should feel so; but is there nothing else you put by which our Savior has horored?"

'No, I do not know that there is." "Do you eat barley bread?" "No," and then he began to laugh.

"And why not?" "Because I don't like it." "Very well, sir," said I; "our Savor sanctified barley bread just as much as ever he did wine. He fed 5,000 people with barley loaves, manufactured by a miracle. Gathering Salt. Cheshire has long been noted for its alt springs, but these are of mild quality compared to the brine springs that rise in the rock-salt localities. This natural brine supplies the best salt. It is pumped up from its springs by a powerful engine, and conveyed into a huge cistern, and from thence into the pans prepared for it. Under these pans, when full, fires are kept burning day and night, and constartly attended by the firemen, whose sole business it is to keep the furnace at its proper working heat. As soon as the brine becomes heated, the process of evaporation begins. All around us stood rows of long black sheds, from which, at every crevice, issued steam in soft white clouds. Inside these sheds it was very much like being in a briny Turkish bath; the heat of the steam was so intense that we could only bear it long enough to take a hurried look at the vast pan in front of us filled with boiling brine, on the top of which the salt lay in a thick scum, remaining for an nstant on the surface, and then sinking slowly to the bottom. Standing on a raised ledge beside the pan was a shaggy, foreign-looking man, stripped to the waist, and perspiring at every pore, who held a long-hardled rake, with which he drew to the edge of the pan the salt which lay in masses over the bottom. Having raked together a considerable quantity of salt, he took another tool not unlike a giant spade, another tool not unlike a giant spade, perforated with holes, with which he lifted the salt from the pan. The quality of the salt varies according to the time at which it is "drawn" or lifted a good manner is the best thing ih the world, either to get a good name or to supply the want of it.

being ready to work as soon as the bobbin is placed in it. If the machine accidentally turns backwards it does no harm, and breaks no thread or needles. The construction of the shuttle and shuttle race is such, that ro wear comes on the shuttle as in other machines; consequently, the shuttle does not wear sharp and cut the thread. Also the wearing points of the machine are adjusted on steel centres, thereby avoiding friction, and adding greatly to its durability

The feed can be quickly raised or lowered to adapt it to thick or thin material; also the length of stitch can be regulated from above, while the machine is in motion. The tensions are easily, evenly, and perfectly the machine is in motion. The tensions are easily, evenly, and perfectly adjusted, the under tension being self-regulating, and no threading up required in the shuttle. The underthread is drawn from a short, deep bobbin, giving a perfectly even tension, never breaking the thread, making the Lock Stitch, the strongest and best. It runs lighest of any shuttle machine. Makes the least noise. Has self-setting needle. Has the most room under the arm. Never skips stitches or breaks threads. Is most easily learned: Can be instantaneously adjusted to work from No. 300 to No. 10 cotton. It is strange but true that some peo ple delight in saying biter things to their neighbors. You are never safe with them. When you have done your best to please, and are feeling very kindly and pleasantly, out will pop some underhand stab, which you alone can understand—a sneer which is masked, but which is too well made to be misunderstood. It may be at your person, or your mental feeling, your foolish habit of thought on some little
