IN AUSTRALIA.

The Victoria-New South Wales match at Sydney extended over five days, during which 55,000 spectators were present and £2,000 were taken in gate money. New South Wales won by 159 and 270 to 268. M. A. Noble, 153 not out, was top scorer, getting these figures in the second inning of New South Wales.

South Australia won from Victoria by an innings and 70 runs. Score: 427 to 279 and 75.

Insuring Firemen.

Each Man to Carry $2,500—The City to Pay for $1,500.

Tenders for Relief Wood Ordered and Geo. McNeill's the Lowest.

Ald. Hunt Opposed to His Receiving the Contract—No Scheme Yet Adopted for the Rearrangement of the Market—Street Watering.

No. 3 committee of the City Council again threshed out the market bazaar question last night, but came to no conclusion. Ald. Hunt gave the committee an idea as it had been presented to him by a man who knew well whereof he spoke. It was that the veranda on both the bazaar buildings and on Covent Garden house be carried around to cover both ends of the building and that the bazaar be assigned the east side of the bazaar building, near the fish market, where they would be under cover instead of standing near the arcade, as they now are. He proposed to do away with the retail butchers' stalls in the market house, and place benches and tables in their stead for the convenience of farmers and dairymen, and also renting the vacant stalls for storage purposes to whomsoever wanted them. The were done there would be no butcher's rigs on the east side of the market house, and this place could be used for greengrocers, instead of their crowding along Talbot street, as at present.

Ald. McCallum proposed to place a row of benches about the center of the bazaar building when the alterations were made, and he thought no one would have any kind coming there. The mayor said the rent from the stalls was about $900 per year.

Ald. Taylor concurred with Ald. Hunt in saying that the wholesale butchers might have the west side of the bazaar. Ald. Olmstead was against pulling down the market house, and said the loss to the city by doing away with the bazaar was enough for one year.

Ald. Dineen said the bazaar was all they wanted to do away with, and he was supported in this by Ald. Taylor.

Ald. McCallum—What about raising the rent?

Ald. Dineen moved that the matter be laid over.

The Mayor—It is not fair to leave it over too long.

The matter will stand over until the next meeting.

Ald. Hunt—I will move that when these alterations are made that no person but those having grain, hay and straw be allowed to stand anywhere than west of the market house.

Ald. Taylor thought there was no use making alterations if they were not going to have laws governing them enforced. There were rigs on the market that had no right there.

Ald. Dineen said people tied their horses at the east side of the market to save 19 cents for the day's hire of the hotel. He had even seen hacks there.

A petition was presented from the tenants of the market bazaar complaining that since they had received notice those having stores to let had increased the rent and insisted that in the face of this they should be given the stalls gratis until the time of removal, as the store owners would charge them rent from the present.

"They don't want much," said Ald. Dineen.

Ald. Hunt's motion to have the same sub-committee visit the market again next night at next meeting carried.

Ald. Olmstead moved that the engineer be instructed to prepare plans for the market, and that the engineer be the best qualified man to make the market changes.

THE MAYOR'S INSURANCE SCHEME.

Mayor Little was present to speak for his communication which he sent in suggesting that some action be taken towards placing an accident insurance policy on the lives of firemen.

In speaking of the matter he understood that each man carried $1,000 now at a cost of $7.88, but he thought each should carry at least $2,500, the city to pay for $1,500 and the man for $1,000. It would cost only about $250, $120 per week, and he would then be placed in a position to pay his family's expenses. The city had since 1880 paid $254, or about $50 per year, for substitutes. Two or three years had elapsed without any substitutes being needed.

Ald. Hunt moved that tenders be called for $2,500 insurance for each man, the cost of $1,000 to be charged against his wages in case the rate is lower than that which he now pays.

Regarding Chief Roe's request to place a man in No. 3 station, Ald. Olmstead asked if it were necessary. The chief replied that five men in a station were few enough. The committee, however, decided to take no action at present.

Ald. Hunt said he had advocated that a couple of call men be appointed who would be given a situation when a vacancy occurred.

Ald. Dineen—And then, when there was a job to give out, some other man with more influence could get it.

Ald. Taylor—Take this year, for instance. If you had a Tory call man, what chance would you have of getting him in.

Ald. Hunt explained that a motion of the council could regulate that once and for all.

The chief said the council had decided not to purchase any horses this year, but they would have to reconsider that motion.

Ald. Taylor moved that the council be recommended to purchase three horses, and then the council could do as it liked.

Chief Roe reported that the firemen's uniforms had been delivered, and requested that they be inspected.

Ald. Taylor—Yes, to see if they fit.

Chief Roe said they did not look just the same as the clothes last year.

Ald. Olmstead did not like the idea of inspecting men like a lot of horses, but the committee will visit the central station on Friday at 4 o'clock to see the uniforms. Mr. Baker, in the meantime, to make any alterations the men desire.

RELIEF WOOD.

Four tenders were received for relief wood. According to numbers, the tenders were as follows: No. 1—Maple, north of Dundas street, $4 55; south of Dundas street, $4 55; mixed beech and maple, $4 70; for north and $4 60 for south of Dundas street.

No. 2—Maple, $4 58, for north and south, mixed, for both, $4 85.

No. 3—Maple, north of Dundas, $4 65; south, $4 75; mixed, $4 45, north, and $4 55 south of Dundas street.

No. 4—Maple, north and south, $4 55; mixed, for both divisions, $4 55.

The cost of wood delivered at the yard was $4 12. It was decided to have the wood delivered from the yard. If kept at the city yards, they would have to pay 10 cents to look after it.

Ald. Dineen moved the lowest tender be accepted.

Who is the tender asked Ald. Hunt.

A vote was called for, but only the hands of Ald. Dineen and Taylor.

Ald. Hunt then said he would refuse to support the tender if it came from one of the contractors whose previous contracts had been cancelled by the city. He would go on record against it now, and knew it would not pass the council.

The motion to accept the lowest tender passed. Ald. Hunt, Stevely and Olmstead declining to vote.

A general laugh followed when the name of George McNeill was read as the third tenderer. No. 1 was Campbell & Chantler, No. 2, James E. Downs, and No. 4, J. G. Orchard.

THE GARBAGE QUESTION.

The report of the Board of Health was read concerning the whole business of garbage. Ald. Hunt said that as one of the instigators of the movement, he was naturally interested in it.

He agreed with the report in all but one point. He thought that instead of collections twice a week, he would recommend twice a month. The scavengers could act in the capacity of inspectors since so many were needed.

Ald. Taylor thought this scheme had been tried before, and had proved a failure. He expressed himself as against imposing any hardships upon the ratepayers.

Ald. Hunt said there was nothing compulsory about it. He wanted the thing to go through, so that the wardens might be called for, and if it were found that it could not be done for a cent or two per bushel, he would be against it also.

He moved that tenders be called for, and that the engineers, instead of their crowding along Talbot street, as at present.

Ald. McCallum proposed to place a row of benches about the center of the bazaar building when the alterations were made, and he thought no one would have any kind coming there.

The mayor said the rent from the stalls was about $900 per year.

Ald. Taylor concurred with Ald. Hunt in saying that the wholesale butchers might have the west side of the bazaar.

Ald. Olmstead was against pulling down the market house, and said the loss to the city by doing away with the bazaar was enough for one year.

Ald. Dineen said the bazaar was all they wanted to do away with, and he was supported in this by Ald. Taylor.

Ald. McCallum—What about raising the rent?

Ald. Dineen moved that the matter be laid over.

The Mayor—It is not fair to leave it over too long.

The matter will stand over until the next meeting.

Ald. Hunt—I will move that when these alterations are made that no person but those having grain, hay and straw be allowed to stand anywhere than west of the market house.

Ald. Taylor thought there was no use making alterations if they were not going to have laws governing them enforced. There were rigs on the market that had no right there.

Ald. Hunt's motion to have the same sub-committee visit the market again next night at next meeting carried.

Ald. Olmstead moved that the engineer be instructed to prepare plans for the market, and that the engineer be the best qualified man to make the market changes.

Fishing!!

The Sport in the River Thames

What Fish Are There—How They May Be Caught—Where They May Be Caught—The Enemies of the Sport.

With the warm weather comes around again the thoughts of summer, and summer sports and pastimes. Of all the summer sports, it is claimed that none can hold a place with that which has made the name of London Water so household word, even down to the present time.

When fishing is mentioned, one's imagination naturally calls up a bass-hunt in a deep, rock-bound lake in a Muskoka or a day's trouting in a friend's preserve pond. But when these pictures are beautiful and inspiring, it must not be forgotten that there are places where the piscatorial art may be practiced with satisfaction.

The River Thames was at one time famous for its fishing, and even yet the enthusiast may find some return for his efforts in its waters below Springbank. The fish which are chiefly found at this season of the year are the mullet, the sucker, the pike, the chub, and more rarely, the carp. Later on rock and black bass are also caught, while, even in recent years, sturgeon weighed upwards of twenty pounds have been captured.

At present, however, the numbers of the funny tribe which are most commonly caught are the June mullet, the sucker, the chub, and the pike. Of these the first two vary in weight from a half pound to three or four pounds; the chub is much smaller, and rarely weighs more than a quarter of a pound; while the pike is larger, varying from three to six or seven pounds. Carp are also caught, weighing usually four or five pounds.

The fishing in the neighborhood of Byron has not been very encouraging. It takes the fish about nine days to come up the river, and for some reason there has not yet been much evidence of a general increase in their numbers. A few good catches have, however, been made, and the prospects of really good sport are every day growing brighter.

The favorite spot for fishers, is in the bed of the river, just below the bridge at Byron. It is not an uncommon sight to see from 40 to 100 people ranged along the bank, engaged in the fascinating sport.

Of the methods of catching fish that practiced by local sports in the river below Springbank is among the most novel. The practice is for each fisherman to provide himself with three or four lines. At the end of each line is attached a weight, or "sinker." At the distance of about a foot and a half from the sinker a piece of lighter line, from four to eight inches in length, is attached, with a hook at the end. In some cases a second line is attached to the first, and the main line is sufficiently long to reach to the middle of the river.

At the end of the line, the fisherman stands on the bank. After having cast out his line, he passes the end which he holds in his hand over a light, notched stick, which he has stuck up on an end in the sand, and after having secured the remainder of the line by means of a stone, awaits developments, allowing his eye to rove in turn from one "indicator" to another. The hook is baited with earth worms. When a fish "bites" the immediate result is to make the light stick, over which the line passes, to bend forward, and if the fisherman is sufficiently quick the victim is his. If not, he has at least had a bite, and that is encouraging. In this ingenious way the difficulties presented by a swift current and shoal water near the shore are overcome.

If the proper authorities would put a stop to the netting further down the river, and insist upon the owners of mill-dams putting in a proper water-way to allow the fish to pass up the river, still better sport would be assured.

FRIDAY, APRIL 13.
+ BREAKFAST—Honey with cream. Stewed rhubarb. Eggs with cream sauce. Rice waffles. Cocoa.
+ LUNCHEON—Saratoga chips. Cheese fondue. Olives. Toasted crackers. Tea.
+ DINNER—Planked shad. Flaked potatoes. Fried egg plant. Lettuce and cream salad. Caramel custards. Coffee.

Cut these recipes out and past them in a scrapbook.

Planked Shad—Purchase a plank, at least two inches thick, made from hickory. Just the size of your oven. Have it planed out in the middle, so that the juice will be held rather than running off the edge. Have your fish cleaned and dry, put on the plank, skin side down. Then baste with two tablespoonsful of melted butter, dust with salt and pepper, and cook in the oven for over 20 minutes. When ready to serve, baste again with melted butter, and place parsley and slices of lemon around fish. Be sure and have the plank very hot when you place the fish upon it. Serve on the plank, on a large platter or tray, with a napkin laid between.

Fried Egg Plant—Peel and cut the plant in slices less than one-half inch thick. Place in a quart of water with a tablespoonful of salt for two hours; drain and dip each slice in beaten egg and bread crumbs, and fry brown.

Caramel Custards—Put a half cup of sugar in an iron saucepan over the fire. Stir until the sugar is melted. Add a tablespoonful of lemon juice and turn this into the bottom of six custard cups. Beat three eggs without separating, add to them one and one-half cups of milk, four tablespoonsful of sugar and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Mix thoroughly and pour into the cups. Stand in a baking-pan of boiling water and bake twenty minutes. Serve cold.
