PT. ARTHUR'S DOOM AT HAND; JAPS DOMINATE EAST FORTS

The Mikado's Men Are Now Closing In On the Last Line of Defense.

SUPREME EFFORT TO CARRY STRONGHOLD TODAY

Che Foo, Nov. 3. — Noon. — Japanese arriving from Dalny today report that the Japanese have captured Rihlung Mountain and Sungshu Mountain, which lies between the railroad and Rihlung Mountain. They also report that the Japanese have captured East Keekwan Mountain.

Conservative Japanese, realizing the intense desire of the Japanese for good news on the Emperor's birthday, received the above reports with reserve. Regarding the capture of Rihlung and Sungshu Mountains, the report is not considered improbable, but Japanese say that it is not intended to occupy East Keekwan Mountain. In August the Japanese succeeded in entering East Keekwan fort, as was related in these dispatches at that time, but under the concentrated fire of the other forts, they were compelled to retire. Japanese officers here say that it is impossible to hold East Keekwan, and that, therefore, an attempt on that position is presumably only a feint.

When the Japanese occupied the Russian trenches on Rihlung Mountain it is said that the Russian turned a current of water into the trenches, but the Japanese held fast. Previous to this Japanese shells exploded two land mines on Rihlung Mountain.

BEGINNING OF THE END

The Japs Have Captured the Dominating Positions.

Headquarters of the Third Japanese Army in front of Port Arthur, Nov. 2, via Che Foo, Nov. 3, 2 p.m.—(Censored). — The Japanese are now in a position to commence the beginning of the end of operations. For the capture of East Port Ridge and the siege of Port Arthur proper they have completed placing eleven-inch Howitzers.

On the night of Oct. 29 all the reserves advanced through a network of trenches in front of East Port Ridge from South Keekwan to West Rihlung Mountain, called by the Japanese Siehochosan.

The bombardment began at dawn on Oct. 30. The infantry attacks were planned at noon against the two Rihlung mountains, an entrenched hill between East Banjusan and East Keekwan Mountain and the three Keekwan forts. Tremendous excitement prevailed among the troops, who were convinced that success meant the capture of East Port Ridge and the surrender of Port Arthur in time for the Emperor's birthday celebration on Nov 2.

PORT ARTHUR DOOMED

Mikado's Flag Will Soon Wave Over Wrecked Capital.

Che Foo, Nov. 3, 4:30 p.m. — Port Arthur is doomed. The correspondent of the Associated Press here has received information, the reliability of which is beyond question, that the Japanese now occupy positions which place the east side of the town at their mercy. The last assault has gained for them positions which insure their ability to enter the main east forts whenever they are ready. It is calculated by the Japanese that if the Russians do not surrender, the latter will be capable of prolonging their final stand at Liaoti Mountain and on the Tiger's Tail for a much longer time with the mere hope of prolonging the struggle. Long before the second Pacific squadron arrives the Japanese flag will wave over the wrecked citadel. This will end Viceroy Alexieff's dream of an unconquerable city. The Japanese have not occupied the main forts and highest points of the east hills, but they occupy in overwhelming numbers positions which will enable them to drive the Russians back whenever they desire. When the Japanese occupy the East Port Ridge, they will completely dominate the other Russian forts with their artillery.

The Mikado's Birthday.

Tokio, Nov. 3, 1 p.m. — Upon the occasion of his birthday at luncheon today, the Emperor briefly addressed his guests, extending welcome to the foreign diplomatic corps and ministers of state. During the course of his remarks he said: "We regret that the time has not come to see peace restored in the Far East in realization of our desires." He then proposed the health of the sovereigns and rulers represented at his court, and expressed the wish that the bonds of friendship existing between the respective countries might be drawn closer.

Baron D'Anethan, the Belgian minister, doyn of the diplomatic corps, responded, congratulating the Emperor on the day and expressing regret at the continuance of the war.

Continuing, Baron D'Anethan said: "We again express our wishes for peace, and do so with more fervor when we contemplate with profound emotion the ravages already caused in suffering families and the thousands of noble victims on each side in the armies in the field, struggling and shedding their blood with a bravery that rises to the height of a sublime and indomitable heroism."

Terrific Explosions.

Che Foo, Nov. 3. — A censored dispatch from the Associated Press correspondent with the Japanese army does not give any particulars of a general engagement going on at Port Arthur, but it is certain that it occurred, and that some forts were captured. Terrific explosions heard here indicate that the Russians have exploded mines and destroyed property.

War Shadows Gaiety.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 3. — 12:59 p.m.— There was little attempt today to celebrate, except in a perfunctory way, the tenth anniversary of the accession of Emperor Nicholas. The imperial family attended a "Te Deum" at the Kazan Cathedral, and there were services in all the churches. Later the troops were paraded, the theaters gave free exhibitions to the school children, and there was music and other holiday displays in the parks. But, on account of the war, and the anxiety regarding the situation at Port Arthur, everything was on a small scale.

A VILE FRAUD

Conservative Plot to Entrap the Hon. Mr. Brodeur.

Montreal, Nov. 3. — Frank Picotte, of Montreal, was arrested yesterday at Marieville, county of Rouville, where Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Inland Revenue, is the Liberal candidate. The charge is fraud. It is alleged that he went into the county and distributed various sums of $2 and $5 to electors, saying the money was from Mr. Brodeur. The minister heard of what had been going on and at once saw that a scheme was afoot to entrap him on a charge of corruption. Picotte, when arrested, was in a hotel in company with the chief Conservative organizer of the district. In his pocket was an electoral list with certain names crossed.

NOTHING ELSE TO DO

Father of Bobrikoff's Assassin Tells Why He Wrote Memorial.

Helsingfors, Finland, Nov. 3. — Former Senator Schaumann (father of Eugene Waldemar Schaumann, the assassin of Governor-General Bobrikoff), who has been on trial at Abo for some time past, charged with having had knowledge of his son's crime, in his plea admits that he wrote the memorial regarding the necessity for the organization of the Finns, but he claims that it was without treasonable intent. Schaumann explains that he wrote it one evening when he had nothing else to do, slipped it into a book in his library and had forgotten its existence. The contents do not betray treasonable intent.

PRESBYTERIAN MISSIONARIES MENACED BY BOXER SOCIETY

Were Obliged to Flee From Their Posts Because of Threats.

Toronto, Nov. 3. — It was reported some time ago that the Presbyterian missionaries in Honan were in danger of their lives through an uprising, which had been threatened by the secret societies in that province for some time. Some time after that report a dispatch announced that there was no danger from any such uprising. The Honan correspondent of the Presbyterian, writing from Hwaiching Sept. 1, says that very disquieting news had come to him from various quarters. The missionaries at Changetefu had again had to call the attention of the officials to the Tsaiyuan sect, who were showing signs of fresh activity. The missionaries of Taimingfu had to flee from that city owing to their lives having been threatened by this same society.

"At Hwaiching," continues the correspondent, "there is considerable excitement owing to the magistrate having issued proclamations giving the details of the arrest of a leader of this same society by Rev. M. Gerrard, a Roman Catholic missionary in Weihui City. This leader, who is a native of Shanai, had the assurance to call on Mr. Gerrard to have a debate on religion. After leaving he was followed by some natives belonging to the mission to the village, where he was residing in semi-official style. They arrested him and handed him over to the Sinhsianghsien magistrate. Amongst his personal effects were found a seal for signing documents issued by the society, a list of the members living in the district, and a yellow flag bearing the device I have mentioned before as the one that Boxers in that region had on their flags in 1900, 'Remove the Tartars and destroy the foreigners.' It has been said that the magistrate is going to make more arrests, on the strength of the information contained in the list."

FIVE MEN HURT

Runaway Near Brantford Results in a Lot of Broken Bones.

Brantford, Nov. 3.—A remarkable accident happened here on Monday night, in which five men were injured, four of them having bones fractured. The injured are all moulders in the employ of the Buck Company. On the night in question they engaged a two-seated covered rig and drove out to Burford. On their way back they encountered a street car and the horses shied and then broke. The buggy struck a telephone pole and was turned over and the occupants were spilled into the street. Unfortunately they were caught between the rig and the pole and badly crushed. John Tyritt had a leg broken and a rib fractured, William Coleman had one leg broken, George Walters had two legs broken, Charles Wishler two legs broken, and William McMeams a bruised knee.

The horses were not captured until they had demolished the rig. They themselves were not injured, however.

THE WHEAT CROP SAFE

Threshing in Manitoba and Northwest Almost Completed.

Winnipeg, Nov. 3.—The C. P. R. weekly crop report indicates that thrashing is practically over, and that another week of favorable weather will clear the slate for this year at least. About half the points on their lines are finished, and the balance are well over the 75 per cent mark.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company's land sales in October aggregate 23,892.84 acres, for which the sum of $104,843 47 was realized, an average of nearly $4 50 per acre.

Conductor Goldstone, of the street railway company, was held at 5:30, while going to work, and relieved of $55 50.

A missionary convention in connection with the Manitoba and Northwest Methodist Conference is in session here. Rev. Dr. Carmen and Rev. Dr. Sutherland, of Toronto, are present.

Burned at Sea.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 3. — The steamer Beta, which arrived here landed the captain, his wife and the crew of the British barkentine Sunny South, from Pensacola for West Africa with lumber, which was burned at sea.

PREMIER ROSS TO GO TO COUNTRY

Rumor That He Will Ask Lieut.-Governor to Dissolve House at an Early Date.

Toronto, Nov. 3. — There is a rumor that before the end of the week Premier Ross will seek the consent of the Lieutenant-Governor to dissolve the Legislature preparatory to a general provincial election.

Whether the reconstruction of the cabinet will be completed and ready for announcement as soon as that is not known. So far, according to report, the only changes that have been arranged with a degree of definiteness are the advent of Hon. W. A. Charlton to the portfolio of Commissioner of Crown Lands and of Mr. G. P. Graham to the Provincial Secretaryship. Both of these gentlemen are members of the House, and have, it is understood, given the Premier their consent to enter the cabinet. If dissolution takes place as early as predicted, the elections will be over before Christmas.

HEADS ON PIKES

Shah of Persia Punishes Murderers of Missionaries.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The Shah of Persia has wreaked remarkable vengeance for the murder of the Rev. Benjamin W. Labaree, who was killed by six Kurd assassins near Urumia, Persia, last March.

Minister Richmond Pearson, who has just returned to Teheran, reported to the state department that an expedition sent out to punish Dr. Labaree's murderers, had executed six of the fanatics, and brought the heads of two of them to Teheran on pikes.

UP GOES SOFT COAL

Trouble in Western Mines Sends Price Up 35 Cents.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 2. — Prices of all grades of soft coal have been advanced 35 cents a ton, as the result of the increased demand for coal and the strike of engineers in Illinois, which has practically closed all the mines in that state. The price of run-of-mine coal was recently advanced from $1 05 a ton to $1 15, f. o. b., at the mines. The rates now quoted for Pittsburg district coal are as follows: Run-of-mine, $1 50 a ton; three-quarter-inch screen coal, $1 60; one-and-one-quarter inch screen coal, $1 70, and slack, 85 cents a ton.

THE PRINCE OF WALES

London Paper Says His Royal Highness Has Consumption.

London, Nov. 3.—In an article evidently calculated to create a sensation, Reynold's Newspaper says that it is common gossip in the vicinity of Sandringham Castle that the Prince of Wales is afflicted with consumption.

The prince, the paper states, has frequently been examined by physicians and it is known that the subject of their examination was the condition of his lungs.

The result of these examinations the paper says has not been divulged, but it is no secret that the prince's family feels great anxiety over the matter.

While Reynold's Newspaper, representing the extreme Democratic wing, is prone to publish sensational stories relative to the royal family, it is remembered that the first report of King Edward's illness was published in its columns.

STUDENTS AND POLICE FOUGHT

This Rush of College Youths Was Disastrous.

TWENTY-FIVE BADLY INJURED

150 Boston Policemen in a Wild Scrimmage With Six Hundred Wild College Boys.

Boston, Nov. 3. — At least twenty-five persons were injured during a clash between students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and police reserves, shortly after midnight. Most of the injuries consisted of scalp wounds and body bruises. Four students and four officers were so seriously injured as to necessitate their removal to hospitals. Others were treated at near-by drug stores, and private residences. Those sent to the hospitals were: Students Herbert G. Spear, Frederick Backman, Victor Gebnor, H. S. Higgins; Policemen B. R. Olds, Wm. A. Donahue, F. C. Rich, C. B. Kelly.

Other students who required medical attendance were Backman, Frank Stevens, Richard Marsh, K. W. Richards, Charles E. Allen, F. M. Barkman, John M. McMillin. Many others whose wounds were dressed on the spot left for their homes without giving their names.

The trouble occurred on the steps of Roger's hall, one of the technology buildings on Boylston street, where the students had gathered, following the joint parade last night of the Republican clubs of Harvard University and the Institute of Technology. The police had determined to keep the students from the steps of the building, and when the college men made a rush up the steps they were met by the officers with drawn clubs and a free fight ensued. The officers used their clubs freely and soon many of the college men were bleeding from wounds on the face and head.

Hundreds of students hurried to the support of their fellows and the police in turn summoned assistance with the result that soon 150 officers were engaged with four times as many students. It was half an hour before the police were masters of the situation.

President Henry J. Pritchett, of the Institute of Technology, was on the scene soon after the fight started, and assisted in caring for the injured. While withholding judgment in the case President Pritchett expressed his opinion that the police had acted somewhat hastily.

THE GOMEL TRIALS

Counsel for Jews Endeavoring to Overthrow Jewish Indictment.

Gomel, Russia, Nov. 3. — During the last ten days only one-tenth of the witnesses in the case of the prosecution of those held to be responsible for the rioting in September, 1903, have been heard. Counsel for the Jews is endeavoring to overthrow the indictment of the Jewish defendants. M. Shamakoff, a celebrated lawyer of Moscow, is defending the Christians without fee.

The court today took a recess until Saturday.

WEATHER FINE; VOTING IS HEAVY

Looks Like a Record Poll in All Sections.

A HOT CONTEST IN TORONTO

Much Challenging at the Capital —The Situation at Montreal, Winnipeg and Halifax.

Montreal, Que., Nov. 3. — Shortly before the opening of the polls today rain commenced to fall, and the outlook for a decent day for getting in a big vote seemed poor. In a little over an hour, however, the prospects improved greatly, and soon the sun commenced to shine again. There is great activity throughout the city, observable more particularly in St. Antoine division, where one of the greatest fights of the campaign is being waged.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 3. — The contest in Toronto is being conducted with great vigor by both parties. Hon. Geo. E. Foster's workers claim that the canvass shows a majority of 500 for the ex-minister of finance in North Toronto, while Mayor Urquhart's reports, it is claimed, give the latter 800 majority. Both parties admit an exceedingly close contest between MacDonell, Conservative, and Dewart, Liberal, in South Toronto, with the odds in favor of the Liberal, while this condition is reversed in Center Toronto, where his great popularity and strength with workingmen, are expected to turn the scale in Clark's favor. The vote in the morning has been very large, the weather being exceptionally fine and mild.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 3.—With weather balmy and summerlike, following a shower at early morning, election day in Ottawa gives promise of producing a record vote. Both parties are working hard, and the result is in doubt. A steady stream of voters went to the polls all morning, and considerable swearing of voters is being done. F. X St. Jacques, the hotelman, was challenged by the Conservatives, and could not vote. He lived at Hotel Victoria, Aylmer, Que., all summer. Both parties claim victory. Speaker Belcourt will get many Conservative votes, and his defeat would surprise many of an independent turn of mind. The Conservatives, however, claim Champagne by 200 majority.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 3. — Considerable interest in the election is manifest in the city of Halifax. Very little business being done. The weather is fine and warm, with indications for rain late tonight.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 3. — The three political parties in Winnipeg are thoroughly organized and arrangements are complete for fetching out the vote. Nearly all the available rigs in the city are being pressed into service today. The weather all over the West is ideal, bright and warm, and a heavy vote will be polled all through the country.

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 3.—The polling sub-divisions are well manned by the friends of the several candidates, and electors are quickly casting their ballots. The weather is ideal, genuine Indian summer. It is expected a big vote will be cast. Up to this hour no untoward episodes have occurred.

SHIPPING RETURNS

Montreal's Total Tonnage Will Reach Two Million Mark.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—The total tonnage of the port of Montreal this season will reach the two-million mark, which will be a record. Up to the 1st of November the number of sea-going vessels entering the port was 742, as compared with 734 up to the same date last year. The tonnage up to the 1st of November was slightly above 1,700,000 tons, while the tonnage of the entire season of 1903 was 1,890,000. The increased tonnage besides being due to the increased number of vessels can also be attributed to the larger type of vessels being used on the St. Lawrence route this year. Before the season closes, it is almost certain, the figures will reach two millions.

Sir Wilfrid's Movemnts

Quebec, Nov. 2. — Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in company with Hon. Mr. Parent, Premier of Quebec, is visiting the different committees in his county this afternoon. The Dominion Premier, on the eve of the general election, while he looks somewhat fatigued, has a happy smile for the many friends he meets on the way.

THE DESPERATE TACTICS OF THE CONSERVATIVE MACHINE

Discovery of a Wholesale Attempt to Deprive London Liberals of Their Votes.

SHINPLASTERS SENT WITH NOTE TO VOTE FOR HYMAN

One of the most dastardly attempts to rob voters of London of their franchise was made by the local Conservative machine today. While shouting corruption against their opponents to draw a herring across the trail, they deliberately and systematically planned, and put the plan into execution, to so compromise respectable voters as to make it impossible, as they thought, for these voters to take the oath.

This morning Brigadier Robert Hargrave, who resides at 33 Cartwright street, and who is the highly-respected commander of the Salvation Army in this city, received a letter containing a slip of paper, on which was typewritten the words: "Vote for your friend, Charles Hyman." In the envelope was also a 25-cent Canadian "shinplaster."

The insult to his manhood was so provoking that Brigadier Hargrave walked straight to the Liberal committee rooms, and handed the letter and its contents to those in charge. They at once instituted inquiries, and ascertained in a very few minutes that the scheme was a widespread one, and that the Conservative managers are leaving no stone unturned to elect Mr. Gray by fair means or foul.

The scheme is intended to work as follows: The voter receives the letter containing the money, and when he appears in the polling booth, his vote is challenged by the Conservative scrutineers, and he is sworn. Though the voter may be ever so innocent of any wrongdoing, yet the "bluff" is relied upon to prevent his taking the oath, and thus a vote may be lost to Mr. Hyman.

As a matter of fact, the sending of a letter containing money to any voter does not compromise his vote, but Mr. Hyman's opponents hoped to be able to disfranchise some citizens of London by this dastardly scheme.

It is possible that the Conservative scrutineers are not privy to the scheme, as they are instructed to swear certain men, and may not know the particular reason.

DON COSSACKS ROUTED BY JAPS

Famous Fighters Lose in Their First Engagement — St. Petersburg Anxious.

Tokio, Nov. 2. — 6 p.m. — Manchurian headquarters, in a report dated Nov. 1, says: "On the afternoon of Oct. 30, in front of the left detachment of the left army, a force of the enemy, consisting of a regiment of artillery, advanced from Litewentun, Hansantai, and then northward. Our detachment, after the fight, succeeded in repulsing the enemy. Our detachment sustained only a slight loss. Fifty of the Russians lost their horses. The Russian cavalry retreated in all directions, and in disorder, leaving thirteen dead. The left column of the left army, on the night of Oct. 30, seized and burned a village, about four hundred yards northwest of Chenglienpao."

Don Cossacks Routed.

Gen. Oku's Headquarters, Nov. 1—9 a.m. — Via Fusan, Nov. 2. — There is little change in the positions of the Japanese and Russian armies. On Sunday last, detachments composed of Russian infantry and Don Cossacks attacked the Japanese cavalry on the extreme left along the Hun River, but were driven back, leaving twenty dead soldiers and thirty horses. This is the first time that the Cossacks of the Don have taken part in the operations. The Japanese line now follows the bank of the Shakhe River, except on the extreme left, where it crosses the river.

Gen. Kuroki's Headquarters in the Field, via Fusan, Oct. 22.—Whenever a Russian or a Japanese exposes his head he draws the fire of an opponent. A constant exchange of shots between the outposts continues daily. The Russian casualties from sniping are large. The Chinese are busy carting grain along between the lines of both armies, and almost indifferent to the shooting.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 3. — 2:40 a.m.— There is considerable anxiety here over the military situation. Little news has been received from Mukden, Gen. Sakharoff's telegram of Nov. 1 merely indicating that matters were at a deadlock around Shakhe. The Japanese have made some tentative moves on both flanks, which were checked, but there are no signs yet of a general advance by their army. Foreign reports from Port Arthur are decidedly gloomy. While the authorities continue to profess confidence in Gen. Stoessel's ability to hold out, the popular feeling is that the heroic garrison, which has already made a gallant defense, must be near the limit of human endurance.

HOLD-UP MEN AT STRATFORD

Man and Wife Relieved of Their Money — Ontario House Burglarized.

Stratford, Nov. 3. — Highwaymen held up George Gastreel and his wife on the street between 10 and 11 o'clock last night and relieved them of a small sum of money and a watch. A later attempt to rob Gastreel's store was unsuccessful. Some time during the night an entrance was forced to the bar of the Ontario House and the cash register containing about $6 was carried off bodily. The culprits are supposed to be the same in each case.

CURIO-SEEKERS

Believed To Be Responsible for the Toronto Tunnel-Digging.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 3. — The police today are inclined to attribute the digging of the tunnel at the old fort to seekers after relics. About ten years ago the place was dug up and buttons and bodies of American soldiers, killed and buried here in 1812, were found. No new developments have occurred during the night nor this morning.

GERMANY NOT IN IT

Has No Agreement With Spain as to Santo Domingo.

Berlin, Nov. 3, 12:46 p.m.—The foreign office here authorizes the Associated Press to say that Germany has no agreement with Spain whatever respecting joint protection of their interests in Santo Domingo. Neither has Germany protested against the arbitration decision in the case of the claims of the Santo Domingo Improvement Company, of New York, nor does the foreign office know anything regarding the action taken by the Spanish consul at Santo Domingo in behalf of Germany.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 3. — Frederic Nicolai, representing Belgian papers is in the city. He is writing up Canadian agriculture, and intends to try to induce his own countrymen to come here rather than go to the Congo, which is Belgium's colonial territory.

Traitorous Jap Leader Was Flogged to Death

For a Bribe of £12,000 He Delivered Two Transports to the Enemy.

Tokio, Nov. 3. — It has transpired that the loss of the Hitachi Maru and the damage done to the Sado Maru by the Vladivostock squadron was owing to information having been given to the enemy by a Japanese admiral on the staff here.

Telegrams were dispatched to Fusan and communicated to the Russians by wireless telegraphy, which enabled the fleet to locate the transports soon after they left Moji.

The admiral was found guilty of treachery, and his death sentence was read out to him by his intimate friend and comrade.

The staff assembled and entered the room, which had been cleared of furniture. The prisoner was made to take off his uniform. He was then beaten to death by his comrades.

The admiral received a check from the Russian Chinese Bank for £12,000 for the information which caused such a blow to Japanese arms and is believed to have prevented the capture of Port Arthur.

The Hitachi Maru was loaded with the largest and best siege guns in Japan, and also carried two armored trains and railway plant.

The Sado Maru is docked at Moji for repairs. She carried 500 engineers and miners and thousands of pounds' worth of stores, besides a number of details. Capt. Campbell, who commanded the Hitachi Maru, was killed after giving orders to ram the Rurik which sank her and poured such a heavy fire down to the deck of the transport.

His widow has received £500 from the Japanese Government.

PRANKERS FILLED WITH BUCKSHOT

Farmer and Hired Men Fire Into Party of Hallowe'en Funmakers.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 2. — Eight young men, among the best known in the village, were shot at Smith's Creek, eight miles from here, by Farmer Joseph Lambert and his three hired men, John, George and Charles Sirloin, while on a Hallowe'en lark. One of them will probably die, and others are bady injured. They are as follows: Roy Lindsay, shot in the groin and legs, and will probably die; Chas. Gaffney, shot in the hands and arms; Ralph McCormick, shot in the head and arms; Russell Moore, shot in the legs; William Sturtevant, George Neil, James Waterworth and Roy Robertson. These young fellows had started out for a little fun about 11 o'clock and were approaching Lambert's place when a volley was fired from the shelter of a straw stack. Apparently Lambert and the three hired men had all fired at the same time, using shotguns. Lambert had threatened that if "any Hallowe'en foolishness" was started about his place he'd show 'em." He made good his word with a vengeance. Roy Lindsay, the worst injured, is 27 years old and married. He is a son of James Lindsay, a well-to-do resident of Smith's Creek. The father came to town today to swear out a warrant for the arrest of Lambert and the Sirloin brothers.

Hope For the Dyspeptic.

Everyone who has realized the discomfort and distress which accompany a disarrangement of the digestive organs will rejoice with Mrs. S. Macy, of Port Arthur, Ont., in the relief she has obtained after having suffered for so long a time. She says: "I have suffered for the last four or five years from stomach trouble and dyspepsia, experiencing great pain. I took Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and can truthfully say they have done me a great deal of good. I feel like a different woman as a result of using them, and the after-effect is never unpleasant. These Tablets are for sale by all druggists.

TUNNEL BENEATH STANLEY BARRACKS

Was Headed Towards the Magazine Section—No Clue to the Diggers.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—The military authorities at Stanley Barracks have been startled by the discovery of a tunnel being dug, apparently aiming to lead underneath the magazine in which the stores of ammunition, etc., are kept.

On Thursday night last the foreman of the pork packing establishment of Park, Blackwell & Co., saw four men working excavating on the lot adjoining their premises. The men ran on being discovered. They were seen again on Friday, and on Monday night five men were at work, their hours being from midnight till just before daylight.

Lieut.-Col. Graveley, in command of the ordnance corps here, and his assistant, Major James F. Macdonald, were notified, and also the police. The excavation was examined, where a hole about 6 feet by 2 feet and 12 feet deep was found, with a tunnel begun at the bottom leading towards the magazine about 15 yards off. Picks, pails and other utensils were found further away. The police hid last night in adjacent buildings to watch the arrival of the excavators, and Lieut.-Col. Graveley and Major Macdonald were also watching about the premises. No one appeared, and the police fear the men were frightened away. They were again on watch tonight.

The question is, what was the aim of the work. The magazine, besides a lot of small arms and ammunition, contains about one thousand shells.

TORONTO HUNTER KILLED

Herbert Goad Meets Sad Death at Trout Creek, Ont.

Trout Creek, Ont., Nov. 2. — Herbert Goad, of Toronto, with his wife and infant child, came to Trout Creek yesterday to spend a holiday. During the afternoon he went with some friends for a hunt. While going over a fallen tree, Mr. Goad placed his gun on the ground with the muzzle pointing towards him, when by some mischance the gun went off and discharged the contents into his abdomen. It was loaded with buckshot and three of the shot penetrated the body. His friends improvised a stretcher and carried him about four miles to the village. A doctor was called, but nothing could be done. Mr. Goad died about 9 p.m. and the body was taken to Toronto this morning.

Toronto, Nov. 2. — Herbert Goad, who was shot accidentally at Trout Creek, had been a resident of Toronto for about six years. He was employed as a turner by Jones Bros. & Co.

Brewery Purity.

The outward, general appearance of a brewery is a true indication of the methods followed within.

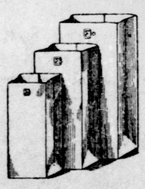

Carling's brewery is clean, tidy and always well kept—no cobwebs, murky corners, dusty shelves, tainted malt, sour kegs, etc., to be seen, as in common breweries.

The plant includes a perfect system of cold storage, modern machinery for cleansing bottles and kegs, and a large staff of skilled men devote their entire time to keeping everything spic and span.

Ask for Carling's Ale—accept no other, because no other is quite so good.

TO RESCUE OF NAN PATERSON

Man Who Says He Saw the Shooting Tells Story.

SAYS YOUNG HELD REVOLVER

Prominent Business Man a New Figure in New York's Hansom Cab Mystery.

New York, Nov. 3. — In defense of "Nan" Paterson, the actress now in the Tombs Prison chorged with having killed Caesar Young, the wealthy bookmaker, in a hansom cab in West Broadway, this city, on June 4 last, Milton W. Hazelton, a prominent businessman of Oneonta, Otsego County, N. Y., appeared at District Attorney Jerome's office and declared in an affidavit that he saw Young fire the fatal shot.

Hazelton said that another man was with him at the time of the shooting. He does not know the identity of this witness, however, as he was a chance acquaintance, attracted by a Masonic emblem on his watch chain. He declared that his conscience had been troubling him so that he finally had to come forward and tell his story. Hazelton told Assistant District Attorney Rand that he is 78 years old and lives in Oneonta. For a few weeks previous to the affair of June 4 Hazelton says he was staying with the family of Rev. D. W. Couch, whose wife is his cousin, at their home in Brooklyn. He says that he came to this city to see Joseph H. Hoadley, president of the International Air Power Company, with whose father he had been associated years before in California; that on the day to which he refers, he cannot remember the date, he came from Brooklyn looking for a boiler shop which he thought was somewhere on the lower west side.

"Up the street," continued Hazelton, I met a man from the west who was attracted by the Masonic emblem on my watch chain. He spoke to me and we walked along together. At first I thought that he was a 'bunco steerer' and was suspicious of him because I thought that he wanted to get to me. But he showed me that he was a Mason in good standing and we went along up the street together.

"I saw a hansom cab coming toward me. In this were a man and a woman sitting partly facing each other. When I first saw them they were about a hundred feet away. Their four hands were raised. From their excited faces and positions I saw that they were in a commotion of some kind. My companion saw them at the same time and said to me 'Look there.' Just then I saw the young woman drop her hands towards her lap and a minute afterwards I saw the revolver in his hand and saw and heard it go off. I saw him fall forward into the lap of the woman.

"The hansom did not stop but drove by us, it being near to us when the shooting occurred."

Hazelton says that as he and the man he was with did not wish to be detained as witnesses they agreed to say nothing about what they had seen.

Hazelton further said that when the stranger he was with introduced himself he gave his name but not his card and that he had forgotten the name.

After reading of Nan Paterson's arrest, he said, he came here and tried to visit her in the Tombs, but was unsuccessful. He then determined to tell his story in court when Miss Paterson was placed on trial. Before leaving the district attorney's office Hazelton was subpoenaed to appear there again next Friday.

After making his statement Hazelton was taken under escort to Bleecker street and West Broadway where the shooting occurred, but was unable to identify the locality.

BRITISH AFRICAN WAR

Force To Be Sent Against Tribe of Cannibals in Interior.

London, Nov. 3. — England intends to send another expedition against the cannibal Niam-Niams in Africa. It will be composed of about two thousand Soudanese troops under British officers. It is believed the Niam-Niams have a force of fully 25,000 fighting men. This will be the first expedition of an Anglo-Egyptian army since the Dervish war.

MONTREAL CRIMINAL CASES

Two Trials for Murder—Application Made in Cooke Vs. Blackley.

Montreal, Nov. 3. — The court of king's bench opened yesterday morning before Judge Hall. The docket is a large one, including two cases of murder, one of infanticide and a number of other serious cases.

Mr. Crankshaw again moved to reopen the Cooke-Blackley case in accordance with his course of ignoring the Quebec Government's commission, but owing to the length of the docket his application is delayed ten days.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

The skull of a gigantic mammal, hitherto unknown to science, has been unearthed from the sands of Fayum, in Egypt. The head is nearly a yard long and on the nasal region is found a double bony horn of enormous size. Near the eyes is also found a pair of smaller horns. At first sight the entire skull recalls that of the rhinoceros.

A BRAND NEW BUNCO GAME

Scheme Worked Over 'Phone by Using Cartoonist McCutcheon's Name.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Here is a brand new bunco game.

The man who perpetrated it scorned to "con" the dollars from the common citizens. He laid his snares to catch the wise men of the city, kings of finance and of trade. He almost succeeded, and now the police are hot on his trail.

Among Chicago's wealthy and prominent citizen who were intended victims were J. Ogden Armour, John Lambert and Henry E. Weaver, and the man whom the rogue impersonated in carrying out his scheme was John T. McCutcheon, whose cartoons have spread his fame throughout the land.

The scheme, worked at least on Monday and yesterday, was easy. It proceeded on lines (telephone) something like this:

"Hello! Is this Mr. Ogden Armour?"

"Yes."

"Well, this is John T. McCutcheon talking. I am getting up a portfolio of cartoons of distinguished Americans for limited circulation, and I should like to include your portrait with your permission. I am going to use sketches among others, of Marshall Field and President Baker, of the First National Bank of New York."

Mr. Armour was not unwilling, and so stated to the "artist."

"Thank you," came the answer. "I will send over for your photograph, and, er—there will be a little expense attached, you know, just a mere trifle for plates and that sort of thing. It amounts to $290 and you can send your check with the photograph."

"That's a little steep, don't you think? Couldn't you do it for $100?"

"Couldn't possibly do it for that figure, but I will make it $150 if you say so."

"All right, I'll send the picture and check to the office this afternoon.'

"Oh, don't do that. You see this is a little venture of my own, and I will send my own mgessenger."

"Well, how do I know you are Mr. McCutcheon?" asked Mr. Armour, a glimmer of light coming to him.

"If you don't believe me I will come myself in a few days. I am going away for two or three days. Good-day."

Mr. Armour mused over this proposition for a time and then called up Mr. McCutcheon at his studio, just to make sure he was not being tricked. What he told came as a surprise to Mr. McCutcheon, and he wondered whether anyone else had been "worked." He had not long to wait until he found out.

Henry E. Weaver was the next person to call up the cartoonist.

"I have my photograph and my check for $150 ready for you. Mr. McCutcheon. Shall I send them to you?" he asked.

It was explained to Mr. Weaver that he was the victim of a scheme to detach a little "easy money" from him, and he was warned to call for the police in case the pseudo McCutcheon or any messenger purporting to come from him appeared.

The thing was growing interesting, so McCutcheon waited in his studio, with the conviction that he soon would hear from this scheme from another source. He was right. Late in the afternoon he received a telephone call from John Lambert.

"Your messenger is here, Mr. McCutcheon; is it all right to send the photographs and check to you?" he asked. "I have them ready."

"The messenger is there, did you say?" asked McCutcheon.

"Yes, the boy who brought the note is still here."

"Well, you try to get a policeman, and never mind the photographs and check."

McCutcheon then explained the trick to Mr. Lambert, and it was at this juncture, late yesterday afternoon, the police department was called in. Through the boy the police expect to discover the "con" man. How many other possible victims there are has not been discovered.

APPENDIX IN FOUNDATION

Hanna's Brother-in-Law Makes Odd Contribution to Corner Stone.

Cleveland, Nov. 3.—"Such is my love for this club that I give part of myself into the keeping of its cornerstone," said Robert L. Ireland, brother-in-law of the late United States Senator M. A. Hanna, last night, as he placed his own vermiform appendix, inclosed in a vial, into the iron receptacle inside the corner-stone of the Tavern Club's new building. The laying of the stone was a mysterious Hallowe'en affair, in which many of the leading men of this city, members of the fashionable club, took part. The hour was midnight.

Ireland is a member of the firm of M. A. Hanna & Co., having resigned as vice-president of the American Shipbuilding Company to take the place here. He married a sister of Senator Hanna. He is a member of the exclusive clubs of the city.

A few weeks ago Ireland was operated on successfully for appendicitis, and the appendix was preserved in alcohol. Ireland carried the organ in a small bottle wrapped in pink paper. After being passed around among the assembled clubmen it was carefully placed in the box among the other contributions. Harry Devereux deposited a shoe once worn by his famous stallion McKerron.

Pills and Piles.

A prolific cause of Piles is the use of catharties and pills of a drastic, violent nature, which is always followed by a reaction on account of the resinous, drying properties they contain.

There are other causes, but no matter what the cause or what the kind of Piles, Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid can be relied upon to cure—to stay cured.

It's an internal remedy that removes the causes of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Suppurating Piles.

A guarantee goes with each package containing a month's treatment.

It can be obtained for $1 at druggists', or The Wilson-Fyfe Company, Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont.

MAY BE MR. CLERGUE

Founder of Soo Works May Succeed Late Mr. Shields.

Toronto, Nov. 3. — Mr. C. D. Warren, president, and Mr. N. W. Rowell, director, of the Lake Superior Corporation, are in New York, attending a meeting of the directors to choose a successor to Mr. Cornelius Shields, the late general manager of the company.

It is reported that one of the names that will be considered by the directorate is that of Mr. F. H. Clergue, who was general manager of the old company, and was the original promoter of the whole concern. It is said that at the time of the appointment of Mr. Shields, since the reorganization, Mr. Clergue's name was favorably discussed and received support from some of the directors.

The disease which caused the death of thousands of menhaden fish in Narraganset Bay two or three weeks ago has at last been determined by Professor F. B. Gorham, of Brown University, who has worked on the case at Woods Hole at the United States fish commission laboratories. He has discovered that a germ existed in the blood of every fish examined which caused a disease known as pop eye.

PAINS DISAPPEAR BEFORE IT.—No one need suffer pain when they have available Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. If not in the house when required it can be procured at the nearest store, as all merchants keep it for sale. Rheumatism and all bodily pains disappear when it is applied, and should they at any time return, experience teaches the user of the Oil how to deal with them.

MRS LANGTRY WINS SUIT

Jewelry Firm Must Return Her $50 Deposit.

Cincinnati, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Lily Langtry, the actress, without appearing in court herself or without her deposition being read, today got a $50 verdict in Judge Murphy's court against the Duhme Jewelry Company.

Her manager, V. E. De Kiraly, left a $50 deposit at the Duhme store last December and secured several sample articles to be shown to Mrs. Langtry, who was at a hotel. When the goods were returned without her accepting any of the pieces the company refused to give up the deposit. It was stated in court by the company's attorneys that the money was in part payment for some of the goods. The jewelry over which the litigation developed was for a wedding present for Charles Frohman.

A GENERAL FAVORITE.—In every place where introduced Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has not failed to establish a reputation, showing that the sterling qualities which it possesses are valued everywhere when they become known. It is in general use in Canada and other countries as a household medicine, and the demand for it each year shows that it is a favorite wherever used.

SEAL ROOKERIES RAIDED BY JAPS

Colonies On the Commander Islands Wiped Out—Haul Worth $1,400,000.

London, Thursday, Nov. 3. — The Daily Mail prints Hakodate advices of Sept. 25 to the effect that Japanese schooners which left that port in May and June are returning so deeply laden that their scuppers are awash from a raid on the Russian fishing stations at Kamschatka and the seal rookeries in the Sea of Okhotsk and on the Commander Islands. Quantities of the furs have been packed and sent to London, where the number offered for sale will be larger than for many years, but hereafter sealskins will be among the rarest furs, for the rookeries, which are largely the property of the Russian crown, have been practically destroyed. Three Japanese vessels which raided Kamschatka were attacked by Russians and captured after a three days' fight. Half the crews were killed and the remainder were captured. Seven other vessels attacked and dispersed the attackers after a fierce fight, in which 50 men were killed. Japanese and Mexicans, who were raiding on Copper Island, were driven off with the loss of fifteen killed. Fourteen Russians were also killed. The British warship Algerine arrived in August, and warned off the raiders. She also frustrated a scheme to attack the Kamschatka Commercial Company's warehouse at Petre Paulovski, where skins value at $1,500,000 are stored. It is estimated that the raiders secured fish and skins to the value of $1,400,000. The damage done amounts to several millions.

CANADIAN CATTLE

Correspondent to The Glasgow Herald Defends Our Stock.

London, Nov. 3.—Patrick Gray, secretary of the Edinburgh branch of the Canadian Store Cattle Admission Association, writes to the Glasgow Herald protesting against a previous correspondent's assertions that certain tests had proved that Canadian cattle were largely infected with tuberculosis. He says the tests referred to by the correspondent consisted of tests on foreign cattle or their offspring or on some beeves connected with foreign cattle, as a result of which an enactment was made that British cattle should be free of the tuberculosis test. Now, according to Mr. Trotter, a veterinary inspector in Glasgow, all Canadian bullocks and cows are practically free, while British cows and a large number of bullocks to a considerable extent suffer from tuberculosis. Either man or nature kills the infected stock in Canada. British cattle bred from tuberculosis stock are constantly in contact with infected.

The Glasgow Herald in an editorial says that Great Britain desired not to debar cattle free from disease, though disease was very prevalent amongst home stock.

Department of Railways and Canals
LACHINE CANAL.
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Sealed tenders, addressed to the undersigned and indorsed "Tender for Substructure, Atwater Avenue Bridge," will be received by the undersigned until 16 o'clock on Tuesday, the 8th November, 1904.

Plans can be seen at the office of the superintending engineer of the canals of the Province of Quebec, on Monday, the 17th October instant, where specifications and forms of tender can be procured.

The department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender. By order,
L. K. JONES, Secretary.
Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, 14th October, 1904.

Newspapers inserting this advertisement without authority from the department will not be paid for it. 48k

SEALED TENDERS ADDRESSED TO the undersigned, marked on the envelope "Tenders for Railway Ties and Posts," will be received by the undersigned until noon on Friday, the 11th day of November next, for 25,000 cedar railway ties and 10,000 cedar posts, made from dead and fallen trees, which the Indians of Manitoulin Island, unceded part, are to take out during the ensuing winter and deliver on the shore of Lake Huron at convenient points for shipment; also for 5,000 cedar ties and 10,000 cedar posts to be made from green and dead timber by the Indians of Sheshegwaning Band and delivered at convenient points for shipment on the shore of Lake Huron.

Tenders should state the prices that will be paid in cash, free of Crown dues, for the ties, and also for the posts of 8 inches and over in diameter, and under 8 inches in diameter at the small end.

The successful tenderer will be required to make reasonable advance to the Indians as the work progresses.

An accepted check on any chartered bank in Canada, for 2% of the value of the whole, as shown by the tender, made payable to the order of the undersigned, should accompany each tender, which in the event of failure to carry out the contract shall be forfeited to the department.

The highest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted, and the unauthorized insertion of this advertisement in any newspaper will not be paid for.
J. D. McLEAN, Secretary.
Department of Indian Affairs.
Ottawa, 13th October, 1904. 45c-tyw

SEALED TENDERS ADDRESSED TO the undersigned, and indorsed "Tender for Echo Bay Pile Wharf," will be received at this office until Wednesday, Nov. 16, 1904, inclusively, for the construction of a pile wharf with approach, at Echo Bay, Township of McDonald, District of Algoma, Ont., according to a plan and a specification to be seen at the office of H. A. Gray, Esq., engineer in charge of harbor works, Ontario, Confederation Life building Toronto, on application to the Postmaster of Echo Bay, Ont., and at the Department of Public Works, Ottawa.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed form supplied, and signed with the actual signatures of tenderers.

An accepted check on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Minister of Public Works, for seventeen hundred dollars ($1,700), must accompany each tender. The check will be forfeited if the party tendering decline the contract or fail to complete the work contracted for, and will be returned in case of non-acceptance of tender.

The department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender. By order,
FRED. GELINAS, Secretary.

RESERVOIR OVERFLOWED

Cause of Great Disaster at Winston Salem, N. C.

The cause of the disaster was the overflow of the reservoir, and a thorough investigation will be made in order to ascertain if the negligence of any of the employes at the pump station was responsible for it. The reservoir burst without warning, and the victims were drowned while asleep in their beds. One couple, a negro man and his wife, floated on their bed for five hundred yards. Neither one was injured. The dead as far as known are: Mrs. Peoples, Thomas Southern, Mrs. John Poe and daughter, and five negroes. The water supply of the city is uninterrupted by the accident.

The dead identified are Mrs. Martin Peeples, Mrs. Vogler, Mrs. John Poe and a 12-year-old daughter, Mrs. Southern, John Southern, Mrs. Bailey, aged 20; Lucille Lone, Carolina Martin. The two last-named are colored.

The north side of the reservoir, which is thirty feet high, tumbled over, falling upon the home and barn of Martin V. Peeples. There were about eight hundred thousand gallons of water in the reservoir, and the mad stream rushed northeast to the southern railway cut, and thence to Belos Landing, a distance of half a mile. Four tenement houses were washed several hundred yards.

RUSH TO TANANA FIELDS

New Discoveries Cause Greater Excitement Than Those of 1897.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 3.—Word comes from the Tanana district in Alaska that the discoveries of gold there have produced in the mining towns and cities for hundreds of miles around excitement beside which that of 1897 is insignificant. So great is the rush up the Tanana to the gold fields, which are 400 miles from the confluence with the Yukon, that prices for passage and freight, as high as any known in the middle of the Klondike rush, are gladly paid. One little steamboat, the J. C. Leight, with a capacity of only 600 tons of freight, took in $63,000 for one trip from Dawson City to the heart of the Tanana region, a voyage that at the worst could not take more than three weeks. The charges were $70 a ton.

The Leight is licensed by the Government to carry only freight, or her trip would have yielded a much larger amount, because of the number of persons who wished to travel on her to the new fields of fortune.

When it was learned in Dawson that she would carry no passengers there was great disappointment. Those who had influence were able to join her crew and thus make the trip. It is safe to say no vessel ever left a port with such a list of deck hands, cabin boys of all grades and ages, ship's surgeons, stokers, relief stokers, under stewards and waiters as did the Leight. Men of all trades and professions, laborers, miners, physicians and lawyers signed articles for the trip. It was a question of getting to Tanana.

If any paid a price for serving an apprenticeship in his new calling the steamboat's books did not show it, but many who were left behind would have paid well to have taken the job of any one of those who got their names on the crew list. The Leight sailed Sept. 9.

A letter from Dawson City says the waiters, firemen and deck hands, which classes were the best filled, were fairly falling over one another to get out of the way of those who had work to do.

The stampede for Tanana is on from Eagle City and Circle City, as well as from Dawson, and some men are going from Nome. In the first three cities scarcely a miner remains, and there are vacant houses in every block—some for rent, but more for sale. Claims in those regions have been abandoned while claims in Tanana are held at $100,000 each.

The belief throughout the gold producing parts of Alaska and Yukon Territory is that Tanana next year will yield greater wealth than did the Klondike or the beach at Nome in their palmiest days.

In social lige Onoto Watanna is Mrs. B. W. Babcock; her maiden name was Winnifred Eaton, and she was born in Nagasaki, Japan. Her father, Edward Eaton, was an Englishman in the consular service, who fell a captive to the charms of Grace Trepesis—a full-blooded Japanese girl. Imagine a lotus from far-away Japan engrafted upon a rosebush of old England, and in the resultant flower you have Onoto Watanna.

London, Thursday, November 3.

A Little Prophecy.

When this edition is in the hands of our readers, or the great majority of them, the polls will have closed. The Advertiser is willing to stake its reputation as a prophet on the election of Hyman and the return of the Government. The question of majorities is debatable ground. As to the local situation, the Liberals have aimed to do as well as four years ago, when they had a majority of 547. But many in the inner circles will not be surprised if it falls short of the mark. A systematic campaign of falsehood has been waged against the Liberal candidate, and it must have had some effect upon portions of the electorate who read only one side of the story.

There have been more heated and demonstrative election contests in the city than the present one, but none in which the opponents of the Liberal party have resorted to such debased and puerile tactics. The attempt to prejudice Grand Trunk employes against Mr. Hyman was particularly shameless. The charge that he had throttled legislation asked for by them was made in cold blood and cold print. After it had been refuted by the production of official records, Conservative speakers and newspapers continued to repeat it. The addresses by the local Conservative speakers were a travesty of honest and serious political discussion. The wonder is that citizens of prominence and reputation should be the authors of such performances. The breakwater bid in West London was distinctly corrupt, and those who were guilty of it must have known also that the question was not with in the purview of the Dominion Government. The people ought to look for better things from "one of the sweetest and cleanest personalities in public life." From the mayor, who has dilly-dallied with the matter for months, the appeal came with particularly ill-grace. The personal allusions to Mr. Hyman at the same meeting were petulant and childish, and it is gratifying to note that Mr. Hyman refused to answer in kind. The introduction of such picayune questions as the private car and the smallpox cases, which formed the staples of Conservative press and platform discussion, brought ridicule upon Mr. Gray's candidature, though such things will sometimes catch feather-headed electors. We repeat that after the campaign of calumny carried on against Mr. Hyman, it will be no surprise if Liberal expectations are not realized at the polls. Whatever the result, Mr. Hyman and his able band of speakers have the satisfaction of knowing that they refused to play in the gutter.

As to the Dominion, it is generally conceded that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will improve his strength in Ontario and lose a few seats in Quebec, where the Government is so strongly entrenched that the Conservative party in many constituencies is almost a negligible quantity, and Liberals feel free to fight among themselves. The Nemesis of success may therefore interfere with Liberal prospects. The Maritime Provinces will undoubtedly give the Government a majority; but prophecy is timid as to the west. The Liberals do not expect a majority in Manitoba, where the whole strength of the Provincial Government is thrown against them: but they will be disappointed if the Territories do not more than compensate for the Prairie Province. British Columbia defies the prophets of both parties.

Contradicting Itself.

It will be noticed that the Free Press did not print the following till today, when there was no chance to reply by quoting the Free Press against itself:

"Crush it (the G. T. P. contract) by your votes today, and you will not cripple nor greatly offend the Grand Trunk Company. You will not crush any part of the scheme that the company really wants. You will only cancel the mad, hare-brained addition to the Grand Trunk scheme known as the eastern section, the "lean section," as Mr. Blair called it, the section of 1,500 miles through a barren wild, where no settlers are or ever will be while the prairies are still open."

Two weeks ago the Free Press declared that the eastern section should be built and operated by the public, because it was bound to be profitable long before the Grand Trunk Pacific lease expired. The people, it argued, should have the railway profits arising out of the development of this "barren wild."

It is useless to look to the Conservative party for any consistent or rational line of criticism and argument against the Government's policy.

The Conservative party in this campaign need not cry that it is minus the sinews of war. A huge fund has been raised by capitalists, who in the event of a Conservative victory, are to secure the contracts for the extension of the Intercolonial to the Pacific coast. This money has been poured into doubtful constituencies, and it is understood that some of it has come to London.

A NEW SWINDLE

Parisian Soothsayer Who Engages to Locate Lost Articles.

Paris, Nov. 3. — No wonder the Parisians, like the Londoners, have started a crusade against the soothsayers, who are alarmingly on the increase in the two capitals. The following report from one of the Paris papers explains the credulity of the populace and the boldness of the fakirs:

Mme. Mabille is a prosperous, simple-minded washerwoman of suburban Paris. She was robbed of a bracelet in the summer, and having no faith in the French police, she consulted a somnambulist, in order to discover the thief.

Of course, she had no difficulty in finding a lady ready to promise her the moon for a fee. The name of the lady was Houssaye. Mabille planked down 60 francs and operations began.

Houssaye asked for an egg, a sugar bowl and a napkin. Mabille was in bed. Houssaye stood at the foot, and, after making a series of magnetic passes, placed egg, bowl and serviette well wrapped up as a foot-warmer for Mabille, who was to mind lest she broke the spell.

Next morning Houssaye returned, sprinkled salt on Mabille, woke her up, broke the egg and found long hairs in it. The hairs were the hairs of the thief, said Houssaye, and the thief was one of Mabille's 20 employes.

Mabille was perfectly convinced that the serviette could not have placed her on the track of the stolen bracelet more rapidly, and she paid up louis after louis like a lamb until Mabille's "garcon" thought it time his mistress stopped making a fool of herself and called in the police. Houssaye was sent to prison for six months for swindling, and Mabille remains minus her bracelet and 218 francs, as well as the name of the thief.

COSTLY SHAMPOOING

Mrs. Jack Gardiner Pays $25 a Week to Have Her Hair Cared For.

Boston, Nov. 3. — Ten dollars every three days is the price that Mrs. Jack Gardner pays for fragrant, soft, clean hair. Of this sum, $3 goes to the barber shop of the fashionable Hotel Touraine, and the remainder goes to the journeyman who performs the ablution for her. Not that she has any surplus of woman's crowning glory, but she considers that what she has is well worth paying for so far as preservation is concerned.

Her shampoo concoction is very simple—being nothing more or less than the whites of fifteen strictly fresh eggs from her country estate at Brookline.

This is the story of Angelo Carrarri, upon whom she has settled as her court barber.

Mrs. Gardner was in the Touraine one day all covered with dust from a long ride over the dry July roads. Her hair was somewhat tossed and she was very much fatigued. She went downstairs to the Dutch room and passed the little shop where seven of us are kept busy trimming the hair of the guests.

"The very idea," I heard her say, and the next minute she entered the shop.

Addressing the foreman she said: "I wish you would send your best man to Fenway Court prepared to shampoo my hair. My maid does not know how to fix it properly. A French barber whom I engaged once in Paris performed the only really satisfactory shampoo that ever I enjoyed.

The foreman turned to me and said, "Angelo, go out with Mrs. Gardner."

I was somewhat confused, but put on my coat, and went upstairs with her after she had refreshed at the Dutch room, and climbed upon the box alongside her couchman.

When she saw me she told me to come down at once, that I was an artist, and that she preferred that I ride with her so she could instruct me on the way out.

When we reached the Fenway I hesitated. I did not seem quite properly attired, but she laughed and invited me in. She had a deep chair brought in, and a maid. With a high stool beside me, on which I rested my kit, I began to prepare. I had only opened a package of shampoo fluid when she gave a gasp. "Heavens, man, don't use that stuff. Here, Marie!"

The girl brought over a deep dish, and a basket. In the basket were eggs —nothing but eggs. The girl quickly broke them open, discarding the yolks, and soon had beaten the whites into a foam.

"There" said Mrs. Gardner, "that's what I want you to use."

I began under her directions to saturate, as well as I could, her hair with beaten whites of the eggs, and then added a little lukewarm water. So on her head was a mass of foam.

"Ah, that feels good," she exclaimed as I rubbed it in as firmly as I dared. "Rub harder," I obeyed, and for half an hour kept kneading and rubbing her hair.

Then she ordered me to wash it out carefully. A fresh bowl of warm water and towels were brought in and the rinsing began. I don't know how she stood it. It must have hurt her, but she called for pressure, and—well, I obeyed her orders.

Soon I had it all wiped dry, carefully, and she asked me to brush it out, which I did, completing my work in just two hours from the time I entered her house. I worked at the Touraine for eigh months after that, and twice every week was sent out. And each time she would pass me a ten-dollar bill, telling m to keep the change.

RETURN OF A SAILOR

Mother Died Longing for a Sight of Her Absent Boy.

Passaic, N. J., Nov. 3. — Gustav Gaebler, jun., a sailor in the navy, returned yesterday to his home in Garfield after a long absence. His parents did not know of his coming. As Gaebler neared his father's house he saw a hearse in the street, and as he reached the door a coffin was brought out. He asked who was dead and learned it was his mother, Mrs. Gaebler had been ill some time and her greatest desire had been to see her only son before she died. The father is also sick and was unable to attend the funeral.

OLDEST INDIAN VETERAN

Aged Hindoo Chaplain of a Bengal Regiment.

London, Nov. 3.—Perhaps the most remarkable old man in the world, and certainly the oldest in the service of the British Government, is at present stationed at Fort George, Calcutta, in the person of Saikh Imamudda, maulvi, or regimental chaplain, to the Eighteenth Native Bengal Infantry.

This veteran enlisted as chaplain eight years ago, and was then entered in the regimental book as being 122 years of age, so that he is now 130, and the oldest British soldier living.

A small, spare man, five feet in height and bent with age, he still reads without the aid of spectacles, is active and intelligent, and is respected by every man in the regiment.

He has been twice married, and has had two sons, one of whom was past middle age when the first Sikh war took place.

Imamudda was born in the Punjab, and, in addition to his native tongue, speaks Urdu, Persian and Arabic. Great objection was made to his appointment as chaplain in 1896 on account of his age, but the regiment would have no other maulvi, and the authorities gave their consent.

THERE IS NOTHING equal to Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator for destroying worms. No article of its kind has given such satisfaction.

AIRSHIP ANSWERED HELM LIKE BOAT

Second and Entirely Successful Flight Watched by Cheering Multitude at World's Fair.

St. Louis, Nov. 3. — A. Roy Knabenshue, of Toledo, Ohio, sailed over the World's Fair in the Baldwin airship, "California Arrow," steering the craft at will and returning to the exact starting point within the aerodrome 30 minutes after he arose in the air.

It was a complete success, and aeronauts at the fair agree that it was the most wonderful exhibition of aerial navigation ever seen in this country, or, probably, in any other.

More than one hundred thousand persons witnessed the flight, and thousands crowded around Knabenshue and Baldwin after the return, shaking their hands and congratulating them on their success. President Francis, of the exposition, and other World's Fair officials, led the ovation.

Knabenshue was in the air twenty-eight minutes, rising to a height of 2,000 feet and steering his craft absolutely at pleasure both with and against a brisk wind, or tacking or cutting across it, describing circles and great S's and L's and other characters in the air.

Upon landing Knabenshue in ecstasy ran from one part of his machine to another caressing it and patting it with little exclamations of wonder and delight. His mother threw her arms about him and kissed him and told him how proud she was of him and his achievement.

President Francis seized is hand and warmly congratulated him. Vice-President Corwin H. Spencer and Mayor Rolla Wells also praised his effort, and Mrs. Francis warmly congratulated him while she held his hand. President Francis was introduced to the aeronaut's wife and congratulated her. Then Mrs. Knabenshue and her baby came up, and they were congratulated all around, the youngster receiving his full share of attention. And all the time, the excited crowd was pushing and shouting and cheering or grasping the aeronaut's hand, or the inventor's, or any other that they could lay hold on.

Mr. Baldwin announced that he would now enter the Arrow in the $100,000 prize competition and try to attain the speed required, 20 miles an hour.

Knabenshue's first words as he reached the ground were: "Hurrah for Toledo! This was Toledo Day at the fair."

"It's great sport—this sailing an airship," said Knabenshue. "It's the finest that ever happened. I hope the wealthy men of the country will take it up and provide themselves with at least a balloon and a little engine. It is better sport and less dangerous than automobiling. There was not a moment when I did not have complete control of the airship. It needed but the slightest pressure on the helm and she responded to every demand. The gasoline motor did not miss an ignition, and the revolutions of the propeller were steady and powerful. The sensation was most pleasant. I did not have time to think about danger. In fact, there was no real danger. The operator needs only to have an average amount of nerve and a little experience as an aeronaut to make a successful flight."

Knabenshue handled the huge vessel as an expert oarsman handles a canoe. It answered every move he made with the rudder, and in its flight back to the landing-place it came true as a carrier pigeon and landed so lightly that there was not a jolt.

The ascent was begun at 3:37 p.m., with the wind blowing lightly from the southeast, and the sun shining. The haze of the early morning had gone, and there was a clear view of the entire country.

At 3:35 Knabenshue swung himself into his seat under the big balloon, which was held by ropes in the hands of attendants. Then he gave a nod, the spark was applied to the gasoline motor, and the tiny engine began to "chug-chug." Knabenshue watched it anxiously for a moment, then smiled and turned to Baldwin and nodded again. Baldwin gave the word and the balloon was released.

The balloon rose steadily, but not swiftly. Its head was toward the east. Knabenshue drove her straight at the tall concourse fence. Then he raised her prow and shot her over the hurdle, rising steadily higher and higher, and going in the teeth of the wind.

The cheers swelled into a great chorus, and from across the grounds there came answering cheers as the vessel came into the sight of the thousands watching for it beyond the limits of the concourse.

Then Knabenshue turned again and sent the Arrow flying toward the south. Next he turned toward the southeast. Here he put his vessel through its paces, much as a skilled rider shows off his high-bred horse. First east, then southeast, then northeast, and then straight to the east again; until, swinging clear around as he rose higher, he drove back over the aerodome, which he crossed at the height of 400 feet. As he passed he turned and waved his cap to those below.

As Knabenshue passed over the aerodome he turned the nose of his ship to the west and sent her up into the air about 200 fet higher. Then he dipped her up and down, like a "shoot-the-chute" boat striking the water from the slide. At the west end of the aerodome he turned around the building and came back.

The crowd turned itself loose in one long, glad yell as Knabenshue circled the airship barn, then rose higher still. He was "cutting capers," running a waving line through the air, to show the people that the Arrow was as biddable as a yacht on her rudder.

As he neared the aerodome he let out some gas, and the machine cleared the fence and came gently to earth within a few feet of where he started.

HAS NOT SLEPT IN A CHAIR SINCE

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Mrs. James Kinsella.

She Sends a Message of Hope to Other Suffering Women In Canada.

St. Malachie, Que., Nov. 2.—(Special).—To those women who suffer in silence—and there are thousands in Canada—Mrs. James Kinsella, of this place, sends a message that tells of a cure as silent as their suffering. As the result of her own experience Mrs. Kinsella says, "Take Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"When I sent for Dodd's Kidney Pills," Mrs Kinsella says in relating that experience, "I had a pain in my right hip and in the small of the back. I was swollen all down the right side of the abdomen and had to pass water every fifteen minutes in a burning, itching sort of way. I could not sleep at nights and was obliged to sit in a chair for two summers.

"After taking the first box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I felt much better, so I got more. They have done me a world of good and I have never slept in a chair since."

There can be no Female Weakness where there are sound Kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills make sound Kidneys.

LIFE ON NORTH SEA TRAWLER

Men Risk Their Lives for a Few Boxes of Fish.

WORK IS HARD AND PERILOUS

Graphic Description of the Dangers Endured in the Prosecution of Daily Toil.

In A. E. W. Mason's latest novel, "The Truants," there is a description of life on a North Sea trawler which has especial pertinence at this moment. Mr. Mason having himself gathered his material through life with the English fishermen, knows whereof he writes, and his account may therefore be accepted as truthful and exact. In "The Truants" his hero, Tony Stretton, is represented as shipping aboard the Perseverance for a period of a few weeks, in order to work out, undisturbed, certain problems by which he is confronted. He has to take some risks, and in the trawling fleet one learns how to estimate risks. "Out there," he says, "men risk their lives daily to put a few boxes of fish on board a fish cutter. Take the risk half-heartedly and your boat's swamped for a sure thing, but take it with all your heart and there are the fish boxes to your credit." Just how the risks are faced and conquered by the fishermen of the fleet, Mr. Mason tells us in his description of the meeting between Stretton and Alan Warrisden, who has come out in the steam fish carrier to find him. "It's no bobby's job," the captain of the City of Bristol tells him, when referring to the life of a man on the Doggerbank, and so we may infer from the following:

Warrisden looked over a gray, savage sea. The air was thick with spindrift. The waves leaped exultantly up from windward and roared away to leeward from under the cutter's keel in a steep, uprising hill of foam. All about him the sailing boats headed to the wind, sinking and rising in the furrows, so that Warrisden would just see a brown topsail over the edge of a steep roller like a shark's fin, and the next instant the dripping hull of the boat flung out upon a breaking crest.

"You will have to look slippy when the punt from the Perseverance comes alongside with her fish," the captain shouted. "The punt will give you a passage back to the Perseverance, but I don't think you will be able to return here. There's a northwesterly gale blowing up, and the sea is increasing every moment. However, there will be another cutter up tomorrow, and if it's not too rough you could be put on board of her."

It took Warrisden a full minute to realize the meaning of the captain's words. He looked at the tumbling breaking waves; he listened to the roar of the wind through the rigging.

"The boats won't come alongside today!" he cried. "Won't they?" the skipper replied. "Look!"

Certainly some maneuver was in progress. The trawlers were all forming to windward in a rough semi-circle about the cutter. Warrisden could see boat tackle being rigged to the main yards, and men standing upon the boats capsized on deck. They were actually intending to put their fish on board in the face of the storm.

"You see, with the gale blowing up, they mayn't get a chance to put their fish on board for three or four days after this," the captain explained. "Oh! you can take it from me. The No'th Sea is not a bobby's job."

As Warrisden watched, one by one the trawlers dropped their boats and loaded them with fishboxes. The boats pushed off, three men to each, with their lifebelts about their oilskins, and came down with the wind toward the fish carrier. The trawlers bore away, circled round the City of Bristol, and took up their formation to leeward, so that, having discharged their fish, the boats might go down again with the wind to their respective ships. Warrisden watched the boats piled up with fishboxes coming through the welter of the sea. It seemed some desperate race was being rowed.

"Can you tell me which is the boat from the Perseverance?" he asked.

"I think it's the fifth," said the captain.

The boats came down, each one the kernel of a globe of spray. Warrisden watched, admiring how cleverly they chose the little gaps and valleys in the crests of the waves. Each moment he looked to see a boat tossed upward and overturned; each moment he dreaded that boat would be the fifth. But no boat was overturned. One by one they passed under the stern of the City of Bristol, and came alongside under the shelter of its wall.

The fifth boat ranged up. A man stood up in the stern.

"The Perseverance!" he cries. "Fourteen boxes!" and as he spoke a great sea leaped up against the windward bow of the cutter. The cutter rolled from it suddenly, her low bulwarks dipped under water on the leeward side, close by the Perseverance's boat.

"Shove off!" the man cried, who was standing up, and as he shouted he lurched and fell into the bottom of the boat. The two men in the bow pushed off with their oars, but they were too late. The cutter's bulwark caught the boat under the keel, it seemed she must be upset and men and boxes whelmed in the sea unless a miracle happened. But the miracle did happen. As the fish cutter righted she scooped onto her deck the boat with its boxes and its crew. The incident all seemed to happen within a fraction of a second. Not a man upon the fish cutter had the time to throw out a rope. Warrisden saw the cutter's bulwarks dip, the sailor falling in the boat and the boat upon the deck of the cutter in so swift a succession that he had not yet realized disaster was inevitable before disaster was avoided

The sailor rose from the bottom of the boat and stepped on deck, a stalwart, dripping figure.

"From the Perseverance, sir. Fourteen boxes," he said, loking up to the captain on the bridge. And Warrisden, leaning by the captain's side upon the rail, knew the sailor to be Tony Stretton.

"IAN MACLAREN" RETIRES

Rev. Dr. Watson's Announcement to His Congregation at Liverpool.

Toronto, Nov. 3. — Rev. Dr. John Watson ("Ian Maclaren") announced on Sunday, Oct. 23, to his congregation at Central Presbyterian Church, Sefton Park, Liverpool, that in September next, having completed 25 years' service as their minister, he would retire. The determination, he said, was irrevocable, and was founded on the growing requirements of his church; with advancing years the burden of work had grown too heavy for him to bear.

Rev. Dr. Armstrong Black, an old friend of Dr. Watson, remarked last night that a good deal of interest would be taken in this country in the retirement from pastoral work of the famous author of "The Bonnie Briar Bush" and other well-known works. Dr. Watson was born at Manningtree, Essex, 54 years ago. A little over a year ago, owing to a breakdown in his health, he was compelled to take a complete rest for several months.

NEW PARISIAN PAPER

White Type on Black Ground Distinguishes It.

The latest thing in Paris journalism, a paper bearing the title of "L'Invisible," made its appearance on the boulevards today.

The new paper, which is a decidedly funereal-looking production, is unlike anything that has ever been seen before, for it is printed on black, carbonized paper with white ink. It well deserves its title "The Invisible," for it is almost impossible to read it.

It is published at a penny, consists of four pages, and is to be issued on the 5th and 20th of each month. The editor informs his readers that his contributors, unlike those of other journals, will not sign their articles. The staff will be absolutely free, independent, and invisible.

Prominence is given on the first page to an "interview with the Pope" by the Invisible's special correspondent, who, it is stated, in the momentary absence of Cardinal Merry del Val, imitated his eminence's voice and had a conversation on the telephone with Pius X.

The other pages are devoted to contributions of a not too interesting nature, news which is not fresh, and a feuilleton. Prizes of $200, $100 and $50 are offered by the editor for the best articles on the subject of social reform.

NO MISUNDERSTANDING

Russia and Great Britain Are Agreed on North Sea Inquiry.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 2, 2 p.m. — The Associated Press can authoritatively announce that the basis for the British-Russian agreement to submit the North Sea incident to a commission insures an amicable settlement without a sequel. The understanding is complete. In the heat of the excitement following the incident many false impressions obtained credence abroad. Now that the smoke has cleared away it is possible to state that Great Britain disclaimed any intention of trying to detain the Russian squadron, which could only be interpreted as a hostile act. It was never intimated to Russia that Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky's recall would be demanded, and Great Britain never asked Russia to pledge herself to the punishment of any one. The British Government fully realized that officers of the Russian squadron may have acted with excess of zeal. The whole affair was a deplorable mistake, but as a result of the inquiry which will establish the facts, each Government is expected to take appropriate action without demands from either side, and no pledges have been required or given by either country. So far as future complications are concerned the incident is regarded as closed, though there has been a slight hitch in the Russo-Anglo negotiations regarding matters relating to the international commission which has necessitated their transfer here. But they only cover minor points and are expected to be adjusted during the day. It is now regarded as almost certain that the commission will sit in Paris and be composed of five naval officers, one Russian and one British, each power to choose another member, and the four to select a fifth. Russia has practically named Admiral Kaznakoff, and Great Britain Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge, although the latter selection is not absolutely settled.

Great Britain expressed her intention of asking that a United States naval officer sit on the commission, whereupon Russia announced that she would select a French officer. There is a strong intimation that Great Britain will invite Admiral Dewey to be one of the commissioners. Officers of such a character as those mentioned insure the acceptance of the findings of the commission by both countries and the world.

Admiral Kaznakoff is one of the ablest of officers in the Russian navy, and is a courtly man of conciliatory disposition and judicial temperament. He has practically retired from active service. He commanded the Russian squadron which went to New York on the occasion of the World's Fair celebration in 1893.

It transpires that five and not four Russian officers left the squadron at Vigo and are now on their way to St. Petersburg. The fifth is Capt. Clado, Admiral Skrydloff's chief of staff.

WARDSVILLE.

Wardsville, Nov. 3. — Mrs. Andrew Wilson has returned from visiting friends in Grand Rapids and Detroit the last few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Middlekrauft, San Francisco, are the guests of Mrs. Middlekrauft's sister, Mrs. S. Leroy.

The service on Sunday evening in St. James' Church in memory of the late Bishop Baldwin was very impressive. The chancel was draped in mourning, an eloquent sermon was preached by the rector, and the choir gave good selections, suitable to the occasion.

The quarterly services in connection with the Methodist Church will be held on Sunday next, and on Monday the board meets for business.

FANTASTIC GARBS

Automobile Coat of Anglesey a Wonder of Violet Velvet.

London, Nov. 3.—The fantastic and resplendent trappings worn by the Marquis of Anglesey in his theatrical performances have been submitted to public auction at Willis' rooms, and they made a kaleidoscopic feast. The blaze of color suggested an emotional pantomime on "The Arabian Nights," and a dress reformer could have found ideas in abundance.

The former owner, for example, had views upon the aesthetic needs of the automobilist. His solution of the problem was a violet coat, lined with crimson satin, a paste horn, a hat with feathers and gray silk tights. The costume fetched $35.

A white Austrian uniform, trimmed with fur and embroidered with eagles has sold for $100, and Le Roi des Fleurs costume—green and blue velvet, with paste decorations on the back, spangled tights, crown and ostrich feather wand—brought the same amount. Other trophies of the toilet velvet, cashmere knickers and silk tights, $30; a plum-colored velvet Aladdin costume, $36; a black satin Punchinello suit, $30; the King of Orchid's costume, green satin, $30; Le Prince de Cinderella costume, $22, and a crimson velvet Coronation robe, with fleur-de-lys, $60. Lohengrin jackets, pages' liveries, dancing skirts, ragged minstrel costumes, coon trousers, college gowns, sunshades and ice-king suits were interspersed.

For the 180 lots on the first day the sum of $3,255 was obtained for the benefit of my lord's creditors.

The marquis is now in Paris waiting for a turn in fortune's wheel and "writing a few plays" by way of partial employment of his leisure.

HALF SICK PEOPLE

Just sick enough to feel heavy-heeled, lazy and listless; to have no appetite, to sleep badly, tossing and tumbling about sometimes until 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning from one side to the other; restless and nervous, and to have what you eat feel like lead in your stomach; not sick enough to take to bed or call a doctor, but just sick enough to not know what to do.

Ninety-nine times out of one hundred these symptoms are all caused by the stomach, bowels, liver and digestive organs. Just think for a moment what habitual neglect of the stomach, bowels and liver means; sickness instead of health, nervous and wakeful instead of restful and cheerful. Now, all this can be remedied in one night. Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills will always work wonders. They will regulate the functions of the liver and bowels, immediately unload the congestion, cure the constipation and cleanse the blood of impurities.

Anyone suffering from chronic constipation, biliousness, sick headache or liver complaint can tone up the entire system, elevate the spirits and again make life really well worth living by a single week's use of Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills. They will give you the appetite of youth, your food will agree with you and sound, refreshing sleep will wait upon you. They are Nature's laxative, entirely different from anything you have ever taken before, and always cure sick headache, constipation and biliousness in one night. 25 cents at all dealers.

BLAME LAID ON BALTIC SQUADRON

Coroner's Jury at Hull Delivers Its Verdict.

RUSSIA WAS NOT REPRESENTED

Officers Detached From Fleet at Vigo Remain in Paris—Report Now En Route to Czar.

Hull, England, Nov. 2.—"That George Henry Smith and William Leggatt were killed about 12:30 a.m. on Oct. 22, while fishing with trawls on the British steamer Crane, with the board of trade marks exhibited and regulation lights burning—killed by shots fired without warning or provocation from certain Russian war vessels at a distance of about a quarter of a mile."

This is the text of the jury's verdict at the coroner's inquest on the fishermen victims of the North Sea tragedy. At the request of the British Government, represented by the Earl of Disart, Solicitor of the Treasury, this conservative award was rendered by the first court of inquiry preceding the sessions of the international tribunal. The Government asked the jury not to find a verdict of willful murder or of manslaughter, because "delicate negotiations are going on which should not be made more difficult, and thought it better not to let anyone think they had prejudiced the case before having heard both sides." In consequence the jury simply set forth the facts proven by the evidence of persons, experts on explosives and the trawlers themselves. To the verdict the jury added the following rider:

"On this occasion, probably the most momentous in the annals of the British Empire, the jury would record their appreciation of the efforts made by the governments interested to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion of the matter which we feel has no parallel in the history of the world."

St. George's Hall, a large auditorium, which had been specially fitted up for the occasion, was quite inadequate to accommodate the crowds that wished to hear the evidence. The interest was intense, and there was some excitement, but no demonstration occurred. A great number of persons gathered in the vicinity of the building to await the verdict, and the space inside the hall was filled. The British Government, the board of trade, the owners of the Gamecock fleet and the relatives of the deceased and wounded fishermen were represented by counsel, but the Russian Government did not participate. The proceedings occupied only about three hours. The testimony consisted of medical evidence, by which it was proved that the death of Smith and Leggatt was the result of shell and machine gun wounds. Then an expert identified fragments of shells by private marks, which, he said, were undoubtedly Russian; and the stories of captains and mates of the trawlers. These latter related that, while they were engaged in their regular work, the ships of the second Pacific fleet, in two squadrons, emerged suddenly from the haze, and throwing the glare of their searchlights on the Gamecock fleet, without warning, and disregarding flare green lights, the fisherman's signal, and though within actual speaking distance of one vessel, commenced a cannonade, which the fishermen, at first not realizing the danger, enjoyed, thinking it was a sham fight. The firing lasted half an hour. To each of these witnesses was put the vital question regarding the presence of a foreign vessel or torpedo boat. Each with equal positiveness denied that at any time preceding or during the firing was a Japanese, British or any foreign vessel seen by them or the accompanying fishing fleet. It was also stated that there was no Japanese among the crews, and that none of the trawlers carried arms of any description. One of the skippers, replying to a question by the coroner, said that during five weeks he was in the North Sea he had not seen any warships until that night.

This closed the evidence. Counsel for the treasury then made the suggestion with regard to the nature of the verdict, which the coroner agreed to, and without delay it was so returned, with an added expression of sympathy for the relatives and friends of the dead and injured and of appreciation of the "calm and courageous manner in which the fishing fleet remained at its duties after this terrible experience."

The relatives of the deceased and the proprietors of the fishing fleet were also represented.

The first witness described the nature of the wounds as gunshot wounds.

Colonel Jocelyn Thompson, chief inspector of explosives, said the shells which struck the vessels were of Russian origin. He expressed the opinion that the shells which damaged the trawlers were fired at a range not exceeding a quarter of a mile.

Captain Gillard testified that the Trawler Guli was close enough for her crew to speak to the Russians. In order to clear the battleships the trawlers went out of their course. The Russians passed in two divisions, turning their searchlights on the trawlers. They then fired. The Russian squadrons were a mile to a mile and a half apart. The firing lasted fully an hour. There were no British or foreign torpedo boats among the fishing fleet, the crews of these vessels being able to see clearly owing to the searchlights. Captain Gillard added that the trawlers were distinctly lettered and carried fishing lights. The Russian squadrons signaled each other, and then two vessels fired on the Snipe. He denied that the trawlers carried arms of any description, and was positive that no Japanese vessels were among the fishing fleet.

A sensation was created by the appearance of James Nixon, chief engineer of the trawler Crane, who was brought to the hall from the hospital swathed in bandages. He testified that while looking at what he imagined to be a sham fight he was struck on the head and became unconscious.

After further corroborative evidence, Reginald Acland, junior counsel to the admiralty, addressed the jury in behalf of the treasury. Counsel suggested that a verdict be rendered recording the facts, but not prejudicing the case before the international inquiry.

The coroner suggested that if he acted on Mr. Acland's suggestion the verdict should read that the men were killed by shots fired without warning and without provocation from certain vessels.

The jury returned a verdict as suggested.

The Russian Evidence.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 2. — 6:33 p.m. — It is learned on high authority that the four (not five) naval officers Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky detached from his squadron while at Vigo will not proceed beyond Paris, whither Admiral Zaznakoff has already gone to meet them. The names of the officers are Captains Clado and Shramtchenkon, and Lieutenants Ott and Ellis, who were on duty on board the battleships comprising the division which fired on the trawlers.

Paris, Nov. 2. — 6 p.m. — Three officers of the Russian squadron, Captain Clado and Lieuts. Ott and Ellis, who are the principal Russian witnesses in the North Sea incident, arrived here this morning from Vigo, and held a conference at the Russian embassy. The report of the North Sea occurrence is being conveyed to St. Petersburg by Capt. Clado. The latter was on board the flagship Kniaz Souvaroff with Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky, who intrusted Clado with the task of drafting the official account. After the conference the officers left for St. Petersburg. There is said to be an understanding in Russian diplomatic quarters that two reports will be sent separately, one from Hull and the other from St. Petersburg, to The Hague, for the final hearing.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION

$100,000 Damage Done and Forty Persons Injured at Mt. Vernon.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Nov. 2. — A terrific explosion of dynamite which occurred here this afternoon caused injuries to about forty persons, and did damage to property that is estimated at $100,000. It is stated that one life was lost. An Italian, who was guarding the box containing the dynamite, has not been seen since the explosion, and it is believed that he must have been blown to atoms. The box containing 100 pounds of dynamite was lying close to the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, and under a bridge which crosses the tracks at the foot of Bond street. The shock of the explosion was felt for five miles, and glass was shattered within a distance of a mile and a half. The bridge over the tracks was completely wrecked, the ironwork being badly twisted. In a house near by John G. Sullivan was blown against a gas stove in the kitchen of his house. The stove was overturned, the man's clothing caught fire, and he was so badly burned that he may not recover.

About thirty-five or forty other persons are reported to have been cut by flying glass or otherwise injured, but their injuries are said not to be serious. Telephone and electric light wires are all down, and the district looks as if a cyclone had swept over it. The city was thrown into a state of intense excitement.

The dynamite was to have been used in blasting for the railroad company preparatory to the establishment of the new four-track system. The bridge destroyed was owned by the city. The cause of the explosion is a mystery.

RIOTS IN ITALY

Mafia Leader Seeking Re-election Is Cause of Serious Affray.

Rome, Nov. 2.—The electoral campaign is at fever heat. There was a severe fight in a public hall in Palermo where Palizzolo, the Mafia leader and former deputy, once convicted of murder, but subsequently acquitted, and who is again a candidate for deputy, attempted to speak at a meeting of his opponents. He was greeted with cries of "Down with the traitors," and in the riot that followed several persons were badly injured. At Corato near Bari, a procession of 10,000 people escorting a candidate through the streets was fired upon by the supporters of the Opposition candidate, and several were wounded. The police restored order. The troops are expected to prevent further disorder.

In Texas the lumber industry is exceeded in value only by the cotton and cattle industries.

Cancer of the Larynx Attacks Middle-Aged

New York, Nov. 3.—What many physicians consider a most important paper on cancer of the larynx, says the Herald, was read last night by Sir Felix Semon, a distinguished London specialist. The address was given under the auspices of the section on laryngology and rhinology of the New York Academy of Medicine, and most of the throat specialists in this city were there, as well as many who had traveled miles especially to listen to Sir Felix's description of the operation of thyrotomy, with which he has had remarkable success.

The specialist, who was an assistant of Sir Morrel Mackenzie, has for twenty years been an authority on diseases of the throat. Among the posts of honor which he occupies is that of special surgeon to the King of England. Stress was laid by him on the necessity of men who had reached the age of 40 years in watching closely for symptoms of cancer of the larynx. He advised those approaching middle age not to delay in seeing a physician if troubled with hoarseness. The redness of the throat and the formation of a nodule in the vicinity of the larynx were danger signs which should not be neglected. Sir Felix said that if the cancer was recognized in its early stage it could be cured without the removal of the larynx.

Dr. Francis J. Quinlan, chairman of the section of laryngology, presided at the meeting. Loud applause followed the introduction of the London specialist. Although the reading of the paper entitled "Malignant Tumors of the Larynx," took the author more than an hour, every word was listened to with eager interest by the specialists.

ADMITTED BRITT WOULD HAVE WON

After the Second Round Gans Knew It Would Be All Up With Him.

San Francisco, Nov. 2. — "It was too bad that the Britt-Gans fight came to such an inglorious end," said young Corbett today. "It was a great fight while it lasted, and as far as it went was certainly in favor of Britt. He cut out an awful pace, and at times had Gans dropping to the floor for rest.

"Referee Graney's decision was a just one. Britt had several times hit Gans while the colored man was on the floor. Of course, he was boiling mad, at the way the negro went down to avoid punishment, but that does not justify his breaking the rules, and he has no kick coming. Britt was plainly at fault and the punishment fitted the crime.

"The 'Frisco boy made a sucker play when he piled into Referee Graney, when the decision was given. It did him no good and hurt the game a lot. At that, he was taking a needless chance of getting licked, for Graney is no slouch with his fists."

Of the fight Gans said:

"I was too weak to do myself justice. After I went to my corner in the second round I knew it. I would like to fight Britt again, but I would not do it at 133 pounds ringside.

"Britt would have won had it continued."

WEDS AT MOTHER'S COFFIN

Connecticut Young Woman Thinks Thus to Keep Her Blessing.

Waterbury, Conn., Nov. 3.—While the body of her mother lay in its coffin Miss Edith Whitney was married on Monday afternoon to Frederick M. Bowers. Mrs. Whitney had died ten hours before, and as soon as the undertakers had completed their work Mr. Bowers was sent for and acquainted with the wishes of his fiancee.

With the Rev. J. W. Davis, an uncle of the bride, as the officiating clergyman, the ceremony was performed. On Tuesday the Rev. Mr. Davis read the funeral services at the grave of Mrs. Whitney. The marriage was to have taken place some time ago, but was postponed on account of Mrs. Whitney's illness. The daughter believed that her mother's blessing would always remain with her if married in the presence of the body.

BANDITS SURROUNDED

Wyoming Gang Will Soon Be Captured Or Wiped Out.

Cody, Wyo., Nov. 2.—Several battles have been fought between the posses and the outlaws who attempted to rob the First National Bank of Cody yesterday afternoon, and who murdered Cashier L. C. Middaugh, but the bandits are still at large, although their capture or death is but a matter of a few hours.

At dawn the officers came upon the bandits' camp on the Gray Owl River, 65 miles from the scene of last evening's battle. The robbers refused to surrender, and put up a hard fight. The horse of one of the officers was killed, and some of the men had narrow escapes. The robbers succeeded in getting away. The posse followed slowly, because of the necessity of avoiding a possible ambuscade.

The outlaws were again overtaken on Enos Creek, 30 miles from Meeteetse, and 80 miles from Cody, and another fight occurred. One of the bandits was wounded in the thigh, but his companions hoisted him on to his horse, and after a running fight for four or five miles the outlaws again got away.

A courier came into Meeteetse tonight with the news that the bandits had been surrounded in a forest on Cottonwood Creek, and that their capture is likely to occur at any time. The outlaws had been called upon to surrender, but refused to come forth. Night came on and no attempt was made to do any shooting.

The timber will be closely guarded during the night.

Col. Cody arrived at Cody today with his Indian trailers, scouts and cowboys, accompanied by a large party of English noblemen and New York clubmen. Cody will take the trail of the outlaws at once. His guests have been invited to accompany him, and some of the younger members of the party will accept.

SOCIETY BURGLAR KILLED

Was Attempting to Cut Electric Wires of Bank.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 3. — Overtaken in a twinkling by an awful fate, which surprised him under conditions in which he would doubtless have welcomed death rather than discovery, the body of James H. Hendricks, a member of one of the oldest families in Alabama and a leader in the younger social set, was found on the veranda roof of the American National Bank building at daybreak.

Near the body, which was clothed in the uniform of the Montgomery Grays, the crack local militia company of which Hendricks was a member, was a complete set of burglar's tools. Directly under the limp hand which hung over the roof was a pair of pliers such as are used in cutting wire.

It was apparent that death had come upon Hendricks while he was in the act of severing the feed wire leading to the electric arc light which illuminated the safe in the main office of the bank. That Hendricks should have been caught in such a death-trap seems well-nigh incomprehensible, in view of the fact that he was recently graduated from the Polytechnic Institute in Atlanta, where he learned much of the principles of electricity. The instant he affixed the pliers to the live wire he was electrocuted. A current of 4,500 voltage shot through his body.

PALE, SICKLY CHILDREN should use Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. Worms are one of the principal causes of suffering in children, and should be expelled from the system.

SOME CHANGES IN BASKETBALL RULES

Specific Playing Space Eliminated—Rink May Now Be of Any Size.

The basketball rules for the season have been announced. There are several changes from last year. In the future the word "basket" will be used instead of "goal," and the basket will have a background of wood, screens being no longer permitted. The specific playing space of 2,400 square feet has been eliminated, and the rink can be of any size. The paying of officials' expenses in serial championships is no longer mandatory. An important change in Rule XI., Section 10, prohibiting more than one player of each team from tackling the ball at the same time. A dribble is now only counted such when the player advances more than two steps while rolling or bouncing the ball. Under Rule XI., Section 17, a man is not out of bounds if only one foot is outside. Players may be changed at any time during the game. Last year's rules as well as the new rules authorized the referee to award one point to a man fouled by an opponent while trying for goal. There was some doubt formerly as to whether the team whose player was fouled should also have free throw for goal. The new rules add that "this shall not interfere with a free throw for goal from foul line," this making it possible to secure four points on this one play. If while being fouled the player throws the goal two points are scored, one point is awarded by the referee, and the player is allowed an additional free throw for the foul, giving him an opportunity of scoring one point more if he throws the foul goal. Under the old rules if a player threw for goal from outside and missed the basket the ball went to the center, while under the new rules the ball continues in play.

TEDDY THE STRENUOUS

Roosevelt Gets Bad Fall While Taking a Mad Ride.

Washington, Nov. 2. — It has just become known that President Roosevelt, in one of his wild 'cross country rides on Sunday before last, was thrown violently over the head of his horse and lay unconscious for some moments on a country road five or six miles out in Maryland, with no one near to give him assistance. As usual when he leaves the White House, he was followed to the line of the District of Columbia by a pair of secret service men. The latter then left him and he went on alone, having failed on this occasion to take with him the military orderly who is in the habit of accompanying him on his horseback excursions.

SLEPT ON

While a Rat Gnawed Off a Part of This Man's Ear.

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 3. — A rat gnawed off a part of Charles Lancy's ear while he slept in his home north of the city last night.

To a local physician he said that when he was awakened early this morning by a stinging sensation in the lobe of one of his ears he placed his hand to it and found it bleeding. Then he discovered that the upper part of his ear was badly gnawed and he is confident that a rat did it.

Lancy explained that he went to bed very cold and sleepy, and he presumes that he slept so soundly that he did not feel the pain until the rat had taken a good bite. The ear was carefully dressed to avoid blood-poisoning.

ELECTRICITY BEATS STEAM

Engine On Third-Rail Track Beats Limited Train.

Schenectady, Nov. 3.—In a race between the new electric locomotive of the New York Central and a limited train on the same road, electricity took a full out of steam yesterday afternoon. The race was only for four miles, but it showed the electric motive power easily superior in point of speed. Eight coaches were dragged by the new locomotive. Tests, it is expected, will be made every day this week. When Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Wilgus and other New York Central officials inspected the locomotive last week it was generally understood the formal speed test would not be made for perhaps two weeks. General Electric Company officials, however, are desirous of knowing just what time can be made.

The tests yesterday were conducted over the four-mile stretch of third-rail line near here. They were generally satisfactory. A speed of 70 miles an hour was attained by the locomotive unattached, and that is not considered maximum. One of the points demonstrated is that the electic motive power can get under way vastly quicker than that operated by steam. For instance 63 seconds after the lever was thrown over to start the locomotive, the speed indicator showed 30 miles an hour. The speed increased at the rate of five miles every 30 seconds.

Biddeford, Me., Nov. 3.—Eva Gray, soprano soloist in the Dot Karroll Company, playing in the Biddeford Opera House, had just finished singing "Goodbye, Little Girl, Good-bye," between the acts of "A Titled Outcast," last evening, and being about to respond to a hearty encore was attacked by heart disease and died in her dressing room.

MURDEROUS DEED OF HIGHBINDERS

Prominent New York Chinaman Fatally Shot.

MEMBER OF REFORM ELEMENT

Comrades of the Alleged Murderer Attempt a Rescue, But Fly Before Police Reserves.

New York, Nov. 3. — A shooting affray with many features resembling the Highbinder outrages of the San Francisco Chinese quarter, which occurred in Chinatown early today, may result in the death of Mock Duck, one of the most prominent members of the reform element in the local Chinese colony. Mock was waylaid as he was passing through Pell street, and one of two bullets fired at him lodged in his abdomen, making an extremely dangerous wound.

When his alleged assailant, who was captured as he was running down Pell street, was being taken to the patrol box by a policeman, the couple were surrounded by three other Chinamen with drawn revolvers, demanding the release of the prisoners. The situation was becoming serious, when a dozen police reserves arrived and found the policeman and his prisoner backed up in a doorway, the officer holding back three armed Chinamen. The would-be rescuers fled when the reinforcements arrived. Near the scene of the shooting the police found a revolver with a twelve-inch barrel and a hunting knife with a blade eight inches long.

The man under arrest is Lee Sing, a laundryman.

Mock was tried for the murder of a fellow-Chinaman about two years ago, but was acquitted. Immediately after his release from prison he became active in the Chinese quarter with the Parkhurst Society. By his work Mock had gained the enmity of many of his fellow-countrymen, against whom the work of the society was directed, and he has frequently been threatened with death.

Vesuvius Cone Collapsed.

Naples, Nov. 2. — The cone crater of Mount Vesuvius, which formed during the late eruption, fell into the crater today with a tremendous roar. There immediately ensued explosions that shook the whole mountain, followed by an issuance of an immense black volume, which gradually spread, falling in the form of ashes over the surrounding country within a radius of 25 miles. The disturbance lasted but a short time.

Ready For Hunt.

Cody, Wyo., Nov. 3.—Capt. Corfield, of the English Fusiliers, and Harry Corfield, a London capitalist, have arrived here, and are staying at Col. Cody's T-E ranch. They will be members of the big hunting party which will start out shortly after the arrival of Col. Cody here. The Englishmen understand that President Roosevelt is to join the party immediately after the election.

Watch Your Walk

Never allow your physical standard to drop. Keep up your energy; walk as if you were somebody and were going to do something worth while in the world, so that even a stranger will note your bearig and mark your superiority. If you have fallen into a habit of walking in a listless, indolent way, turn right about face at once and make a change. You don't want to shuffle along like the failures we often see sitting around on park benches, or lolling about the streets, with their hands in their pockets, or haunting intelligence offices and wondering why fate has been so hard with them. You don't want to give people the impression that you are discouraged or that you are already falling to the rear. Straighten up, then! Stand erect! Be a man! You are a child of the Infinite King. You have royal blood in your veins. Emphasize it by your bearing. A man who is conscious of the kingship with God and of his power, and who believes thoroughly in himself, walks with a firm, vigorous step, with his head erect, his chin in, his shoulders thrown back and down; and his chest well projected in order to give a large lung capacity; he is the man who does things.

You cannot aspire, or accomplish great or noble things so long as you assume the attitude and bearing of a coward or weakling. If you would be noble and do noble things, you must look up. You were made to look upward and to walk upright, not to look down or to shamble along in a semi-horizontal position. Put character, dignity, nobility into your walk.—Success.

LATEST MARKETS

LOCAL MARKET.

London, Thursday, Nov. 3.

The attendance of farmers and buyers at the market this morning was very small, because of the elections. As it was, the market was below the average for this time of the year. Prices were about the same as on Tuesday.

Grain—Oats were in demand; only 3 loads were offered, which brought 96c to 97c per cwt. One load of barley sold at 90c per cwt.

Hay and Straw—The supply of hay was smaller than on the previous day, when 20 loads were offered; there were only 6 loads on the stand today, and there was a slow sale for even this small number; prices ruled at $8 to $8 50 per ton.

Butter and Eggs—The supply of butter and eggs was very small; wholesale dealers are offering 21c to 22 per dozen for eggs, but were unable to obtain many at these prices; in the dairy hall holders asked 25c per dozen for strictly fresh-laid; butter was scarce and unchanged in price.

Fruits—Apples were dull of sale, at 75c to $1 per barrel and 30c to 50c per bag; grapes dull, at 20c per basket; 9 bushels of chestnuts sold at $3 25 per bushel.

Vegetables and Roots—Over a dozen large loads of potatoes were offered; sales were on the slow side, at 65c by the load and 70c per bag for 5 to 10-bag lots; prices may go higher in a couple of weeks, as the bulk of the crop is now being placed on the market.

Poultry—The hucksters were in control of the offerings in this line; prices were unchanged.

Dressed Hogs—About 20 carcases offered; most of the sales were made at $6 75 and $7 per cwt for nice lean hogs.

Butchers' Meats—The demand was not at all brisk for what meat was offered; prices steady.

At Saturday's market there should be a good demand for butter, eggs, poultry, oats and potatoes.

AS HIGH AS 5½% CAN STILL be obtained on Investments in choice bonds and stocks of undoubted security.

STOCK MARKETS.

H. C. Becher, stock broker, Bank of Commerce building, received the following by private wire from Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington today:

New York, Nov. 3.—Noon.—In some department of the market, notably in the steel stocks there was a good display of strength at the opening with London houses fairly heavy buyers. However, in Erie, Union Pacific and A. C. P., a reactionary tendency developed, which after the first half hour spread to the whole list. The selling was largely by western houses, and was supposed to reflect a desire on the part of certain large speculators to reduce their commitments prior to election. Towards noon something of a recovery took place on scattered buying by the traders, but the expectation is that the market will have no decided tendency until after next Tuesday.

Good butchers' cattle are selling well; very light demand for export cattle; common butchers' cattle and feeders are draggy; milch cows are selling well.

MONTREAL.

Montreal, Nov. 2.—About 700 head of cattle, 25 calves, 200 sheep and lambs and 500 fat hogs were offered for sale at the east end abattoir today. There were no prime cattle in the market, and anything moderately good was in active demand at higher prices. Even the common stock sold higher than for some time past. Good mediums sold at 3¾c to 4¼c, ordinary mediums at about 3½c, the common stock at 2¼c to 3½c per lb, and the canners at 1¾c to 2c per lb; the calves were nearly all grassers, which sold at 2c to 3½c per lb; shipping sheep brought $4 per cwt, and the others went at 3c to 3⅜c per lb; lambs were dearer, selling at 4c to 4⅝c per lb; fat hogs sold at 4½c to 5¼c per lb.

TALES FAOM STORKLAND

Punishment of Birds That Hatched Out Alien Broods.

A French surgeon at Smyrna, being unable to procure a stork because of the great veneration in which these birds are held by the Turks, took the eggs from a stork's nest and put hen's eggs in their place.

The female stork, in all innocence, hatched the chickens. This, it would appear, was more than the male stork could stand. He at once deserted the partner of his joys and sorrows and was not seen for three or four days. At length he returned in company with many other storks, who, forming a circle, placed the unhappy female in the middle and commenced to adjudicate the case.

To bring forth chickens instead of young storks, even unintentionally, is evidently a serious crime among these birds, for they fell upon the prisoner, and straightway killed her.

Still more remarkable is a similar story which comes from Berlin. Two storks built a nest upon the chimney of a mansion, the owner of which finding an egg in the nest, took it and put a goose's egg in its place. As in the previous case, the female stork hatched the egg, much to the anger of her companion, which circled three or four times around the nest, and then flew away.

For some days the female stork fed the young goose, and all went well until upon the morning of the fourth day, the inmates of the house were disturbed by a loud clamoring. The noise proceeded from nearly 400 birds, which were standing in a compact body, apparently listening to the harangue of a solitary stork, standing some twenty yards off.

All this time the female stork was sitting in the nest, trembling with fear, which, perhaps, was not altogether unwarranted, for suddenly the whole company of storks flew toward her, headed by one, presumably the injured husband, who struck her violently three or four times, knocked her out of the nest, and then killed her.

HE PEEPED IN

Wanted to Get a Glimpse of the Brid He Had Lost.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—While the guests to the wedding of Miss Eleanor Green and William M. Wilson were making merry last night at the residence of the bride's father, Clinton Robinson, a former admirer, struggled with a policeman to see the bride for the last time.

As a result of Robinson's efforts to look upon the young woman through a window he was arrested, and this morning Justice Quinn gave him a fine on the technical charge of attempting to overpower a policeman. Only the officer appeared against Robinson, the bridal pair having departed for Hot Springs on their honeymoon.

The Greens are prominent in south side society, and the wedding in St. James' Church was a fashionable affair.

Robinson watched the bridal pair leave the church, and a short time later was arrested while peeping in the window at the Green home.

JAPS MAY WINTER IN THEIR POSITIONS

Mikado's Troops Are Fortifying Themselves on the Plain South of Mukden.

Che Foo, Nov. 3, 2 p.m.—On Oct. 24, having made every possible preparation, the Japanese opened fire with their artillery along the whole line, incidentally continuing the daily practice of dropping shells into the harbor. The Russians replied, the sound, as of distant thunder, telling the inhabitants of Port Dalny that the long expected assault on the fortress was imminent. The bombardment continued furiously until the afternoon of Oct. 26, when the Russian guns on Etse Mountain, Antse Mountain and Rihlung Mountain became briefly silent. At 4 o'clock that afternoon a regiment of Japanese swept out from behind a recently captured hill adjacent to Rihlung Mountain and advanced on the Russian trenches lying between Rihlung Mountain and the railroad, occupying them after hours of fighting. The Russians stuck to their posts till the Japanese were within a few yards, both sides hurling hand grenades at each other. The Japanese infantry are now using mechanical devices which enable them to throw grenades with great accuracy and rapidity.

In the meanwhile another body of Japanese assaulted the trenches on the slope of Rihlung Mountain. The Japanese trenches extended to certain portions of the slope and stopped some distance above the extreme Japanese outpost, where the ascent of Rihlung Mountain became almost perpendicular. The Russian trenches seamed the slope. To advance against them over an unbroken slope which was mined, even without Russian resistance would have been a difficult task, but the slope had been torn up, great holes having been blown in it at various places by the bombardment, and the Japanese availed themselves of these indentations, which offered combined foothold and protection against bullets. In the meanwhile the fire of all their available artillery was directed against the Russian trenches, the Russians eventually retiring, whereupon the Japanese in 30 minutes constructed trenches sufficient to shield themselves. The Russians exploded mines, but the Japanese claim without result.

One company of Japanese engaged in this fight aroused general complimentary comment for its remarkable coolness, executing the various maneuverings for the purpose of securing shelter with automatic exactnees, as if on parade.

Upon the retirement of their troops the Russians opened fire from Liati Mountain and that night they made a sorie. But the Japanese had in the meanwhile brought up machine guns, with which the sortie was repulsed. Except for the knowledge that the bombardment was continued all information covering the period between Oct. 27 and Oct. 29 is lacking, but presumably it is much of the same character as that just described, the Japanese operations gradually assuming the proportions of the general attack of yesterday. The fighting is reported to have been most severe from Rihlung Mountain down along the whole east side of the town.

Che Foo, Oct. 31, 6:30 p.m.—A steamer, which has just arrived here from New Chwang, reports having heard heavy firing at Port Arthur last night and today until she was out of earshot, indicating a continuance of the battle, which began Oct. 24, in a preliminary manner, developed yesterday into the third attempt of the Japanese to secure a commanding position.

Mukden, Nov. 3. — The situation is rather puzzling. Neither side apparently is willing to assume a genuine offensive although the Japanese are showing greater activity. They are fortifying themselves, however, as if they intended to winter in their present positions. Two Russian cavalry detachments on Friday night carried out a reconnaissance along both sides of the Hun River, in the direction of Nachantun and Sandiapu, and on Saturday night some volunteers reconnoitered the Japanese trenches in front of Lone Tree Hill, firing from three signal posts, creating great excitement among the Japanese. The weather is fine and crisp. The curling smoke of camp fires is everywhere to be seen. Some of the Russian officers scurry about in automobiles. Yesterday there was a splendid spectacle when Major-General Kondratovitch distributed 418 crosses of St. George to his Siberian division for services covering the fighting from Vanfangow to the retreat from Liao Yang. The division has been consistently in the thick of the fighting. Many of the heroes designated for decoration have since been killed or scattered in the various hospitals between here and Harbin.

One summer a country house was so overrun by ants that the owner, after destroying a large anthill near the house and collecting the numerous pupae for poultry feed, laid sticky fly-paper before the door of the house in such a manner that the ants could not enter without crossing it. In the morning he found his poultry feed gone and the fly-paper covered with sand, dry grass and pine needles, over which the ants had passed "dry-shod." The ant-hill had also been rebuilt during the night.

MAGISTRATE IN LENIENT MOOD

Suspended Sentence on Stage Driver Who Was Extremely Cruel to Horse.

Police Magistrate Love was in a lenient mood this morning. He suspended sentence on Arthur Christie, the driver of the Belmont stage, who a week ago was found guilty of extreme cruelty to his horse. At the same time the magistrate delivered a severe lecture to Christie. Today Christie joined the Humane Society and contributed $10 to its funds, and during the week he has taken the pledge not to touch liquor for a year.

When asked if he had anything to say in court, Christie replied that he had not, and the magistrate went on to say that several prominent residents of Belmont had interceded in his behalf, and had given him a good character, alleging that no man treated his wife and family better than he did. Until he started to drink there was not a kinder-hearted man in the country, they said. His whole trouble, the magistrate held, could be credited to drink. In view of this fact, and that Christie had resolved to do better, and had shown his good intentions, Mr. Love decided to suspend sentence.

The father of a most respectable family was in court on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. His wife and daughter were in the magistrate's room and they furnished the information that the man went home drunk and struck the daughter, and also flourished a pistol. The prisoner denied all of the charges, and the magistrate decided to remand him for a week, when he will be tried.

An express company charged a former employe with misappropriating funds, with which he was intrusted. He first pleaded not guilty, but a settlement was effected, and he changed his plea. He had never been brought up on any charge before, and in view of the fact that the money was paid back he was let go on suspended sentence.

Two drunks were discharged.

LIVE TOPICS DISCUSSED

Interesting Session of Park School Debating Society.

A meeting of the Literary and Debating Society of the pupils of the Park School was held this morning in their class room in the Y. W. C. A. building. As it was election day, the meeting was of a political character, the principal questions of the day being discussed from Liberal and Conservative points of view. The various papers and the debate which followed displayed a thorough knowledge of the geography and government of Canada, and the young ladies did themselves much credit. The following is the programme:

Character sketches—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Miss Dorothy Gunn; Hon. R. L. Borden, Miss Eloise Chapman.

The Tariff—Preferential—Miss Mary Puddicombe.

Protection—Miss Nancy Manigault.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Scheme—From a Liberal point of view—Miss Ida Weldon. From a Conservative standpoint—Miss Arletta Hughson.

Public Works of the Liberal Government—Miss Jean Allen. Conservative criticism of public works—Miss Lewella Shaw.

Public Expenses—Liberal, Miss Elaine Leonard; Conservative criticism, Miss Marjorie Pennington.

Miss Catherine Smart presided over the debate, and Miss Kathleen Betts summed up. The meeting was one of the most successful the society has held.

BOND HAS 18 SEATS

Opposition Has Five in the New Newfouneland House.

St. Johns, Nfld., Nov. 3.—Today's election returns confirm the success of the Bond Government. Completed polls of St. Johns West show the election of Sir Edward Morris, Minister of Justice, and his two Bondite colleagues. In St. Johns East, Mayor Shea and his two colleagues win. In Burin, Hon. Henry Gear, minister without portfolio, and his colleague, Davey, defeated ex-Premier James Winter and his colleague, Robinson. Winter is the second of the Opposition leaders to undergo defeat, the other being former Premier Whiteway. In St. George's, Carty, Bondite, beat Gibbs, Opposition, by eight votes. In Bonavista, Morine, another Opposition leader, and his two colleagues retain their seats, though by reduced majorities.

Premier Bond now has eighteen seats and the Opposition five seats.

CAUGHT BY FINGER PRINTS

Scotland Yard Has a New System for Criminal Records.

London, Nov. 3.—The interesting statement is made in the official review of last year's crime that at the close of 1903 there were 60,000 sets of finger prints of criminals registered with the police at New Scotland Yard.

Since the official report was closed some thousands of additional records have been obtained, and the register is now increased to about 70,000 sets. It is growing at the average rate of 350 weekly.

The commissioner of police states that as a system of crime detection it is showing excellent results. The system is thoroughly established throughout England and Wales, has just been introduced into Ireland, and many police officers have come to London from the colonies to study how it is worked at Scotland Yard.

A wing of the Scotland Yard building at Westminster is specialy set apart for this finger-print museum; it is officially designated "The Convict Supervision Office." In the quietude of this block of offices Inspector Collins and his staff are daily classifying, pigeon-holing and re-examining their prints of the finger tips of the habitual criminals of the United Kingdom.

The record room is pigeon-holed elaborately, as a chemist puts away his fatal drugs; every criminal in his own little receptacle; all criminals whose finger prints show corresponding characteristics brought together; until about 1,024 pigeon-holes have exhausted all the sub-divisions of finger characteristics which the scientific examination of human fingers has been able to discover.

Identifications are increasing annually. Last year 3,642 recognitions of criminals were obtained, of whom about 2,000 were in London; in 1902 there were 1,722.

Last year the police tried the system on race course thieves. A special detective was sent to Epsom for Derby week, and also to Ascot. Finger prints were taken of all persons arrested on these courses. The impressions were delivered at Scotland Yard the same night, and in the morning the police were able to inform the magistrates that they had recognized 27 of the men captured at Epsom as thieves, and nine at Ascot.

The examination of the physical condition of the 1,800 street sweepers employed by New York city shows that 283 are affected with tuberculosis contracted during the course of their work by inhaling disease-laden dust.

QUIET ELECTION DAY IN LONDON

Everything, However, Indicated That a Large Vote Would Be Polled.

Election day in London is passing quietly.

The weather is all that could be desired for polling day, the sun shining throughout the entire morning and afternoon, and there was every reason to believe that a large vote would be polled.

In the first hour or two, the electors did not present themselves at the booths in very large numbers, but from 11 o'clock on, the deputy returning officers and their clerks were kept fairly busy.

There was no scarcity of election rigs to be seen in every part of the city. Both the friends of Hon. Mr. Hyman and Mr. Gray came to the front and volunteered the use of the vehicles for the day, and these were used to good advantage.

Every polling booth was fully manned by both parties, and at none of them did any trouble of a serious nature occur. At one booth it was found that the number of ballots sent by the returning officer was less than the number of names appearing on the lists in that division, and the Conservative scrutineers objected to the voting proceeding until more ballots were secured. Returning Officer Dignan was notified, and he soon had additional ballots in the hands of the deputy.

BAD RUNAWAY IN EAST LONDON

As a Result of Which Dr. W. J. Stevenson May Lose a Valuable Horse.

In a runaway accident in East London this morning, Dr. W. J. Stevenson, of Dundas street, received some severe bruises and a general shaking up, and his horse, a valuable animal, worth at least $300, sustained injuries from which it will probably die. The buggy was also badly smashed.

The doctor was driving east on Grey street, when his horse suddenly shied at a pile of lumber in front of some houses in course of erection. Another rig was approaching from the opposite direction, and just as the doctor's horse shied the wheels of both rigs became locked. Both horses plunged forward, with the result that Dr. Stevenson's buggy, a light, pneumatic-tired rig, was upset, and his horse ran away. The doctor pluckily held on, however, and succeeded in keeping the animal in check until some workmen hurried to his assistance. Dr. Stevenson was with difficulty pulled from under the overturned buggy, and was standing alongside holding the reins when the animal suddenly bolted again. This time the reins snapped, and the horse got away. It ran east to Rectory street, and turning south took to the sidewalk on the east side of the street. It continued on the sidewalk to Van street, when it bolted on to the boulevard, but was brought to a sudden stop by striking full force a large tree. The shock floored the runaway, and it is not likely to recover.

Dr. Stevenson suffered some very painful bruises, but is being congratulated by his friends upon his narrow escape.

Letters to the Advertiser

CANADIAN BRASS INDUSTRY HOLDS ITS OWN.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

It is really too bad that your little interview with me in reference to the brass trade should have annoyed any particular firm. It is always the last resort of one getting the worst of an argument to become cowardly and get personal.

The statements made to your reporter by me were perfectly true in every detail, and if they were not satisfactory to others I am extremely sorry. Our experience in the brass business has been a long one, but we are pleased to say not so varied or sad as of some others.

American manufacturers today bother us very little in the brass business, and we are well able to take care of them, and able to meet their prices and our local competitors' prices, and go lower, even to the extent of 8 per cent, or 18 per cent, if necessary, as we are in a position to do so. Yours truly,

A. W. MANN.

It is Alice's only amusement, to stab her sister with these little conversational pin-pricks.

"Well, deceived, betrayed, what you will," says Alice coolly. "If we could only meet someone we knew; even the Palmers would be something. Listen to the band. They say that the band of the Casino is the best in France."

She stops as she speaks, then moves in the open door of the great gambling saloon and looks in eagerly, hungrily.

"Come," says Paula curtly, "someone will see us. I hate this place, and the people who frequent it. It is a vulgar, disreputable den."

"Great heavens!" exclaims Alice in a tone of surprise and delight, "it can't be! Yes, it is," and she takes a step forward, as an elaborately got-up young men comes swaggering in.

"Mr. Stancy!"

Stancy de Palmer, for it is he, stops short, and puts up his eyeglass, and then with an exclamation of genuine amazement and interest:

"Miss Alice! Good heavens!" Then his eye falls upon the tall slim figure behind her and his eyeglass tumbles from its place and his face grows crimson.

"And—and Miss Paula, too," and he shambles forward and takes the hand slowly extended to him.

"Good gracious!" he exclaims, with the under-bred stare and stammer. "Who'd have thought of seeing you here? Why, by Jingo, I thought you were in England. 'Pon my honor, I did!"

"But we're not, you see," says Alice gayly, her color coming, her eyes flashing. "We can enjoy ourselves as well as other people, Mr. Stancy. Is it very naughty to be seen at Nouville-by-the-Sea?"

"Naughty! If it's naughty, it's nice," he says with a leer. "Eh, Miss Paula?"

Paula murmurs something coldly and with no responsive smile; but he is too delighted by the meeting to be rebuffed.

"This is, haw, a really delightful surprise," he says, putting on his affected manner. "By Jove, quite too jolly. The guv will be delighted, I assure you."

"Is your father here?" asks Alice.

"Yes, and May, too. May's been queer, you know, and ordered here. We're staying at the Golden Eagle, of course."

"Of course," says Alice meekly.

"Only decent hotel in the place," says Mr. Stancy, pulling at his feeble mustache. "Where are you staying?"

"Oh, we are in lodgings; we couldn't go to an hotel, you know," says Alice hurriedly. "At the first white house on the cliff."

"Haw. I'll tell the guv and May; she will be delighted. We must come and see you. By Jove, they'll be surprised."

"When did you come?" asks Alice, turning and walking by his side, as if loath to leave him, although it is in an opposite direction from their house.

"Yesterday," he says. "Splendid place, aint it? No end of fun inside there," and he jerks his finger towards the Casino. "Much better than slow old Brighton, and that sort of thing. I have spent nearly all the time I've been here inside that place; lost a lot the first night, but pulled it in today."

"I'm afraid you won't find much time to bestow on our poor society," says Alice, and Paula colors with shame at the soft insinuating tone she uses.

"Shan't I?" he returns gallantly. "I shall, though, you'll see. That is, if you'll have me," and he smiles at Paula, whose eyes are steadfastly fixed on the sea.

"We shall be only too glad," says Alice. "We are a couple of solitaries, you know."

"Haw!" he says. "I'll run up with the guv and May this evening."

"Do," says Alice eagerly. "We can hear the evening band from our drawing-room."

"All right," he says patronizingly. And Alice reluctantly stops short.

"Au revoir," says Mr. Stancy, fumbling at his eye-glass. "Au revoir, Miss Paula."

Alice returns his adieu with an effusive smile, but Paula merely bows; and with a little smile of self-complacence, the exquisite swaggers off.

Alice breathes a long sigh.

"What a godsend," she says as they turn in the direction of their lodgings, "a perfect godsend! To meet them here, where they know no one, and where they'll be thrown upon us so completely. Oh, what a chance—what a chance!"

"What do you mean?" says Paula, quietly, but with a cold shrinking at her heart.

Alice looks at her with undisguised contempt.

"What do I mean?" she says. "Oh, I forgot—I beg your pardon. Of course, you wouldn't know what I meant; you are so unworldly, so absorbed. What do I mean?" with a metallic little laugh. "My good Paula, I mean that you have got the main chance, and I wont believe that even you will be such an imbecile as to let it slip."

CHAPTER XXXIII.

"Jane, light all the candles," says Alice, as she bustles into the sitting-room of their lodgings, "and make the wretched room look as comfortable as you can. Some old friends are coming, Jane—the Palmers of the Court. Put that arm-chair near the window for Mr. Palmer—and, Jane, ask the landlady to get some brandy and soda water. Am I not thoughtful?" she says, swinging round to Paula, who stands by the window, looking out at the moon rising over the sea, and thinking, not of the coming guests, but of Bob—of Bob, struggling somewhere under this same moon.

Paula starts and turns to look at her, and smiles with faint amusement; for Alice has suddenly become transformed from a peavish, languid individual, into a brisk, hopeful schemer.

The appearance of Stancy de Palmer is like a break in the clouds that have loomed so darkly over the fortunes of the house of Estcourt. If Paula will but nerve herself and prove equal to the emergency—what may not happen!

"Aren't you going to change your dress, Paula?" she asks. She herself has doned her pretties gown and rearranged her hair.

Paula looks down carelessly at the plain, dark merino and shakes her head, but Alice is not to be denied.

"Nonsense," she says. "Why should you not look your best—for once?" with a little sarcastic smile. "I'm quite tired of that stuff thing. You may be sure May will have the latest things from Paris."

"Poor May!" says Paula absently.

Alice makes an impatient gesture.

"Why 'poor May'?" she asks putting a vase of flowers on the table and artfully arranging the antimacassars so that they cover the worn and slit parts of the red-covered furniture. "What's the matter with May? Pray reserve all your sympathy for ourselves. If anybody deserves pity we do; such a life as we have been leading would kill a cat with sheer ennui. It was bad enough at the cottage; but we weren't quite penurious there and we did get some amusement, but here——"

"Mr. Palmer, Mr. Stancy de Palmer, and Miss Palmer," announces Jane, and Alice turns, with her hands outstretched.

Both the gentlemen are in evening-dress, Mr. Palmer quite fat now, and rather more pompous than of old.

"How do you do, my dear Miss Alice?" he says with his patronizing air full on. "Quite a pleasant surprise, and 'ow's Miss Paula?" but his bland inquiry is addressed to deaf ears, for Paula stands with May's hand in hers, their eyes fixed on each other with a mute, tender, sympathetic interest.

May, pale and red by turns, pants a little commonplace greeting; but Paula will utter no commonplaces, and takes her to the window, where May can speak to her heart's content.

"Oh, Paula, dear," she whispers hurriedly; "you can't tell how delighted I was when Stancy came in and said that he had met you. I could scarcely believe it; it—it is the first bit of good news I've heard since—since——"

Here she stops and her lips quiver.

Paula presses the timid little hand sympathetically.

"And have you been very ill, dear?" she murmurs, examining the pretty face, and noting its thin, worried, and all too wistful look.

May shakes her head a little wearily. "No, not ill, Paula, dear, though they all said I was, and the great London doctor insisted upon papa bringing me here. Poor papa, he hates the continent so much, you know. Poor papa!" and she sighs.

Paula looks at her questioningly: the sigh seems to indicate some kind of trouble beyond May's illness.

"What is the matter?" she asks. "Has there been any trouble?"

May glances around her to see that the others are not within hearing.

"It's—it's not about me, Paula, dear," she says. "Of course, there has been trouble, and papa is hard with me, sometimes, because I will not give in—as if I ever should!" And a faint flush of steadfast resolution dyes the pale, pretty face, and the blue eyes grow suddenly resolute. "I promised him that I would wait, and I will wait till—till I die! But"—with piteous sadness—"it is hard to have to wait month after month and hear nothing. To-night when Stancy came in and said he had seen you, my heart leaped, and—and I nearly fainted. My first thought—I am always selfish, my dear—was, not that I should see you, but that I should hear of him. Is he——"

Paula draws her arm nearer, and caresses her hand.

"Bob was all right when last we heard, dear," she says, in a whisper, that is rather tremulous, though she smiles bravely. "But—but he has not made his fortune yet; and he sent the tenderest message to you."

Women WHO Are Weak

And Suffer the Derangements Peculiar to Their Sex, Find That

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Cures All Such Ills Permanently by Strengthening the Nerves and Muscles.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food stands high in women's favor because it is especially successful in overcoming ills peculiar to their sex.

When, on account of a run-down condition of the system, the muscles and nerves fail to control the action of the feminine organism, there is bound to come much suffering.

Headaches, pain in the back and limbs, indigestion, feelings of discouragement and despondency, weakness, and irregularity, rob life of the joys which would otherwise be possible.

Stimulating medicines cannot possibly be of more than slight temporary relief. To be of lasting benefit the nerves and muscles must be fully restored by such treatment as is afforded by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Not only is the action and vigor of the bodily organs fully restored, but new, firm flesh is added, the form is rounded out, the weight is increased, and pallor gives way to that healthful glow of complexion which tells of the full enjoyment of health.

MRS. SYMONS, 42 St. Clair street, Belleville, Ont., states: "Some weeks ago I began a course of treatment with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and have found it a very satisfactory medicine. I was formerly troubled with nervous exhaustion and a weak, fluttering heart. Whenever my heart bothered me I would have spells of weakness and dizziness, which were very distressing. By means of this treatment my nerves have become strong and healthy, and the action of my heart seems to be regular. I can recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as an excellent medicine."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

MAJOR DELMAR THE BRIGHT STAR OF PRESENT TROTTING SEASON

His Wonderful Work On the Track -Sweet Marie Stands Second Only to Him.

The season of 1904 in harness racing is fast drawing to a close, and while it was not so remarkable as that of 1903, because of the arrival of the two-minute trotter through the aid of a wind shield, it has nevertheless been an unusual one for the sport. Major Delmar stands out as the bright particular star, not only because he wrested the title of champion trotter from Lou Dillon, but because he established a record for the greatest number of miles at extreme speed—in fact it may be said that the great gelding trotted more fast miles this year than any of the trotters has done in a lifetime.

Second only to Major Delmar stands Sweet Marie, the wonderful California mare, who is without a doubt the greatest racing trotter the world has known, and before another year has passed she is more than likely to be hailed as the champion.

In this connection it is interesting to recall that this brilliant performer was called a quitter last year, and with reason, for she gave evidence time and again of either faint heartedness or lack of endurance that has made her record of this season the more remarkable. After her wonderful display of gameness at the Lexington track, when she outgamed the other entries, including Tiverton, the horse that beat her in the Charter Oak, she was stamped as being not only a speed wonder, but a mare possessed of the stoutest of hearts, as well as a constitution of iron.

But the season that gave Sweet Marie pre-eminence as a racing machine marked the downfall of the sensational Lou Dillon, unquestionably the fastest of trotters. Last year Lou Dillon was queen and Sweet Marie a fast mare, but a quitter. This year Sweet Marie fought her way to the top through her gameness, while Lou Dillon displayed either a faint heartedness or a weakness of constitution that has relegated her to the class of horses that have great speed but nothing else. In discussing her race with Major Delmar for the gold cup at the Memphis meeting, the Horseman says:

"Why was it that the little mare, which had so decisively defeated Major Delmar a year ago, was unable to even force him to trot a couple of miles to wagon in record time? The only spot for an excuse is found back in July when the mare did not do herself justice at Detroit and was a few days later taken dangerously ill with fever at Cleveland. She recovered quickly from this sickness and was brought along during the balance of the season with the one idea in view, of defeating Major Delmar in the race for the gold cup. To this end all her exhibition dates were canceled.

"Lou Dillon was prepared for the race with the greatest of care and skill. Millard Sanders and Charles, better known as 'Doc' Tanner had a record of the trial miles, method of feeding, etc., which was so successful last year in bringing the mare to the track in record-breaking condition. The preparatory work for the cup race was based on this, and there is no question but she was prepared with the greatest of care and skill by two of the best conditioners in the country. A couple of weeks previous to the race the mare was tried out, trotting a mile in 2:01¾ and repeating in 2:03. She came out of these workouts in as good condition as the most critical judge could wish. On Friday previous to the race she trotted a mile in 2:05 and asked if she had her extreme speed she stepped an eighth in 13½ seconds. On the day previous to the race she impressed the visitors to the track as having all her 'hawk-like speed' as one of them expressed it. To better understand her condition the work given her since the race should be considered. On Thursday she was worked a mile in 2:05 and on Saturday one in 2:01¾, with the fractions in :30¼, 1:01¼ and 1:31½. Before the race and after Lou Dillon had all her speed. Not one bit of fault could be found with her preparation. Was it racing luck that she was apparently not at herself in the second race of her life? Or was it possible she did not like being beaten to the half in 1:03¾?

"Major Delmar is not new to the racing game. He won honors as the 3-year-old in competition with others of his age. Later he raced against the best in his class and won and was beaten as fortune favored. A year ago the mare started in the first race of her life, caught Major Delmar when he was acknowledged off and with the advantage of the pole beat him decisively. On the day of the race Major Delmar was a champion in appearance, trained to the very second, had the fortune to draw the favored position next the pole and refused to even be headed after the word was given."

Granting that Lou Dillon may not have been herself that day it must be admitted that the work of the mare just before and immediately after that race lend color to the belief that it was Major Delmar and not sickness that beat her.

BRITT NOW WANTS TO FIGHT GANS AT ANY WEIGHT OR PLACE

Californian Eager for Another Battle With the Baltimore Colored Man.

San Francisco, Nov. 3.—Jimmy Britt has offered to fight Gans at any weight, at any place and at any time. He declares he fought so savagely Monday night because the many bitter things said of him in the last two years by the people behind the negro caused him to determine him to give the Baltimorean the hardest beating any boxer ever got.

"I was bent upon handing Gans a thrashing he didn't expect was in the deck," said Britt. "I think if the fight had gone on for another round or two it would have been necessary for the coon's seconds to send for an ambulance and have their man taken to a hospital.

"I was at my very best weight, and was twice the man I was when I worked and starved myself to 129 pounds in order to whip Young Corbett and win the featherweight title.

"It is my idea, and my friends have advised me, that I would be foolish to consent to fight at any other weight but 125 pounds, ringside. I want to take a whack at this Young Corbett, however, and I guess there will be a match made between the Denverite and myself for 133 pounds, 6 o'clock. I don't think I will have to be at my very best to give Corbett another beating."

Referring to his failure to win the championship, Britt said:

"The decision was fair. I could not help it. Gans kept slipping to the floor without being struck. He also kept hanging on to me, and I tried to fight him off. I went in to win, and in my opinion I would have knocked Gans out had the fight continued."

It is admitted everywhere that Britt clearly showed he is far and away a better man than Gans, and that he is really the greatest boy at his weight the ring has ever known. Even those who lost bets through his desire to put the negro down and out have kindly words for him, and never again will he be a short-ender in San Francisco betting. Sports here say that in another fight with the Gans at the same weight Britt would be a 5 to 1 favorite.

Gans was up and around today. He denies he made any effort to bring out the blow that caught him while he was on his knees. Joe says the hard spell of work he did stiffened him, although he thought he was as good as ever.

"I felt good," said Gans, "until after I had gone three rounds. Then my knees got sore and I got slow. There is no getting away from the fact that Britt is a fighter. I am sure there is not anything in the world within three or four pounds of his weight that has a license to win from him. I am ready to make a match with him at 135 pounds, but will take a rest before I again go into training."

WOODWORTH WILL BLOW WHISTLE

Has Been Selected as Referee for the Tiger-London Match On Saturday.

Speaking of the Saturday game between the Hamilton Tigers and London, the Hamilton Times says the following: The champion Tigers will wander away from home on Saturday, and will head direct for London, where they have an engagement with the Forest City's dozen of gridiron artists. Since their visit to this city London has devoted the time at her disposal to attaining the fine points of the game, and reports have it that she has succeeded in marvelous style. The team is also a much stronger one now than it was, as a number of their strongest players have recovered from injuries received at the beginning of the season. At all events, the game should not be as one-sided as the Tigers have participated in so far this season, but instead the affair should be a stiff proposition all the way through. As there is no game here Saturday, a large crowd will go with the seniors to London, as already more than a hundred have notified Secretary Jamieson of their intention of going. At considerable expense the club has arranged for a special train leaving here at 12:15 p.m. sharp, and returning at 9 p.m. Upon the arrival in the city at midnight of the special, street cars will be in waiting. For the benefit of those who desire to stay over in London, the club has arranged with the G. T. R. that tickets will be good on all trains on Sunday and Monday, except those that leave London on these days at 12:35 a.m. and 6:35 p.m. London was quite agreeable to H. C. Griffith as referee, but this gentleman could not act, and accordingly it is likely that Frank D. Woodworth will officiate, as both teams are satisfied to accept him.

FULL OF PLEURISY.

Doctors say the country is full of it. First it's a chill, then a cold; the inflammation grows until pleurisy is the result. Give twenty drops of Polson's Nerviline in hot water at once. Congestion is prevented, warmth and circulation restored—you are cured. Any sickness can be prevented by Nerviline. It saves big doctor bills, and costs 25 cents for a large bottle. JOCKEYS ARE BEING WATCHED

Turf Stewards in the East Are Conducting an Investigation --Pinkertons Engaged.

New York, Nov. 2. — That the turf authorities have become alive to the fact that racing as it has been conducted for the past month or so is in need of thorough cleansing may be shown by the statement that Pinkerton detectives have been shadowing certain jockeys night and day with the idea of finding out their associates and running down possible clues leading to proof of wrongdoing. It has been a noticeable fact that sleuths in plain clothes has been watching all of the jockeys in the paddock before and after the races each day at Jamaica. The sleuths have six programmes each, one of each race, and they jot down carefully and with minute details the number of men—and their names if possible—with whom the jockeys converse during the time they are loitering about preparatory to climbing into the saddle. If one of these men leaves the paddock after a chat with a jockey he is shadowed. If he goes to the betting ring and speaks to a bookmaker the latter's odds on the race are noted, together with the prices displayed by a next-door neighbor. If the bookmaker lays against the horse ridden by the jockey in question and the horse loses, the sleuths have something of interest to report to the stewards.

It was in the paddock at Jamaica only on Saturday that a detective was seen following a man closely identified with leading members of the Metropolitan Turf Association. The friend of the bookmakers makes a habit of joking with trainers and jockeys during an afternoon and had been indulging in some good-natured exchanges when he said "good-by!" and started toward the betting ring. This was a few moments before the fifth race was run and the sleuth was at his heels, looked as if there might be something to report after all, as the day had been especially dull. The sleuth was visibly agitated as his man drew nearer the scene of plunging, but his jaw dropped when the spotted-one pulled up at the lunch counter and proceeded to swallow a plateful of steaming clam chowder while the horses were actually running around the track.

It is stretching the point to say that the stewards, under these circumstances, do not have lines on the operations of all shady persons at the track. Then, why do they refuse to act promptly in flagrant cases? Hundreds of turfmen have been asking this question of late, but it has not been satisfactorily answered except by the statements that the stories of alleged frauds have been exaggerated or that there is not enough evidence to convict. Meanwhile, Jockey George Mountain has been ruled off the turf for life by the authorities at the Kansas City track. Mountain put up several questionable rides on favorites, and it was shown that he had offered another jockey money to pull a horse. It is well enough, perhaps, to punish a jockey convicted of wrongdoing, but the crooked individuals who tempt a boy to go astray should be nailed also. And there are some pretty wealthy, well-dressed, polished crooks on the turf who boast of influence enough to keep them out of trouble no matter what they do to undermine the integrity of the sport.

SURE REGULATORS.—Mandrake and Dandelion are known to exert a powerful influence on the liver and kidneys, restoring them to healthful action, inducing a regular flow of the secretions, and imparting to the organs complete power to perform their functions. These valuable ingredients enter into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, and serve to render them the agreeable and salutary medicine they are. There are few pills so effective as they in their action.

PRIZEFIGHTERS MAKE SUCCESS IN PROFESSIONS AND BUSINESS

Many Have Retired From the Ring and Become Prominent in Other Spheres.

There are several instances where pugilists have engaged in professions that require intelligence and ability in order to succeed. Some fighters have turned their attention to law and the stage and have done as well, if not better, than the average disciple of Blackstone or Thespis.

The latest boxer to take up law is Jack O'Brien, of Philadelphia. He is a fine pugilist and is still in harness. O'Brien has been studying nearly four years and expects to become a full-fledged member of the bar within a short time.

Johnny Griffin, the "Braintree Lad," who was a champion at 122 pounds about ten years ago, was a skillful dentist before he became a scrapper. Griffin practiced his calling even while a boxer. E. E. Price, a successful lawyer, with an office in New York, was a well-known fighter in his day. Billy Elmer, before he became an exponent of the mitts, was a clever actor. John Morrissey, one of America's champions, was one of the few pugilists who became a successful politician.

Mike Donovan, after his retirement from the arena, became the boxing instructor of the New York A. C. This is a position which any boxer may be proud of.

When the late Peter Jackson decided to go upon the stage, everyone, even his most intimate friends, predicted humiliating failure. Jackson was an intelligent man, a clever linguist, and, although colored, was popular with all classes.

Jim Corbett is a clever monologue artist. He does so well in his act that he can command a salary of $750 a week. Corbett manages his own affairs, something many other pugilists have failed to do.

George Reynolds, of this city, who flourished as a clever pugilist in 1892, went to France in 1895. He learned several languages while abroad and is now making an excellent living teaching them to a large class of pupils in New York.

Frank Erne at one time studied to become an architect, but abandoned it to go into the fruit business. Erne is going to devote his time to taking a course in medicine at Coumbia College next year.

John Gully, who was champion of England in the eighteenth century, entered the English Parliament as an ardent Liberal and became a political power. Jem Ward, another English champion, who flourished in the last century, was a versatile pugilist. His tastes were eminently artistic and musical. At the age of 45 he was an exhibitor of his own paintings and some of his pictures were praised by art connoisseurs.

SHORTSTOPS PLEASE THE FANS

If there is anything the average baseball fan loves to see in action, says the Sporting News, it is a good, brisk shortstop, and no performer on the field has a better chance to make sensational plays, to do brilliant and effective work, and to keep eternally solid with the bleachers than the gentleman who cavorts between second base and third cushion. Around the shortstop pivot plays of the most important kind are made. He has burning liners to catch, towering flies to chase, sizzling grounders to overcome. He has throws to take and throws to make. He is a factor in two-thirds of the double plays, and a fraction of a second more or less means the two putouts or only one, and a big chance left for the enemy. Nowhere is a good head more needed than where the shortstop wiggles.

Nowhere is it more needful for a man to be fast of foot and sure of eye. A good shortstop is a joy forever, and retains his hold upon the memories and affections of the fans for years after his career is ended.

The shortstop work around the circuit of both big leagues was very good this year, but no better than in any one of several years past, owing to the fact that the shortstop, like the second baseman, has been developed to pretty near the limit, while the records of the past were full of great shortfielders, who have no superiors and few equals today.

At Boston the Nationals had a fair shortstop and hard worker. Abbatichio, while the Americans had Freddie Parent, a great batter and one of the fastest, cleverest little men who ever chased the grounders.

Chicago was well equipped in the shortstop line. Joe Tinker, of the West Side team, fielded finely, but had an off year in batting. The veteran George Davis, of Comiskey's bunch, covered an immense area of ground, hit fairly well, and was the life of the whole South Side infield.

At New York, Elberfeld played the prettiest kind of ball for Clark Griffith, and Dahlen, always a star, shone as brightly as ever with McGraw. At Philadelphia, Rulswitt played fast and cleverly, while Monte Cross, always a fine fielder, was very weak with the biffstick.

The St. Louis Americans had one of the finest shortstops now in the business, every point considered—Bobby Wallace. Shaw and Brain divided the work for the Nationals, and neither set the world afire, though both played excellently at times.

Babb worked hard and well for Brooklyn. Tom Corcoran, the veteran who covered short for the Reds, never did finer playing. Hans Wagner is still the same old Hans—an awkward but effective ground-coverer and a grand batsman.

Turner, Cleveland's shortstop, is a corking good little man. O'Leary did elegant fielding for Detroit, but could not hit. Cassidy, of Washington, has the makings of a great infielder.

None of the shortstops now playing ball has anything on the one man who was it, as far as shortstop doings are concerned. Hughey Jennings was the ideal shortstop, the past master of the position.

Jennings could make impossible catches—he was death alike on flies, throws and grounders, and as a batter and base-runner, Wagner is now the only shortstop who can compare with him.

Great in every way was the star of Baltimore, and it is hardly likely that the game will ever develop his superior. The shortstops of today are all right and crackerjacks, but will the diamond ever have anything better than Williamson, Ward, Glasscock, Jennings and Herman Long?

It has been calculated that a ton of tobacco withdraws over a hundredweight of mineral constituents per acre of land.

CATARRH

The only Sensible Treatment.

How absurd to think of curing catarrh with tablets, tonics and blood purifiers. These so-called cures (?) go first to the stomach, then into the intestines, mix with the food and the excretions, are taken up by the blood, and eventually an infinitissimal part may reach the nose. If you had an acute attack of indigestion, would you put the medicine up your nose and expect to be relieved. Vice versa, how can you cure catarrh by dosing the stomach?

Japanese Catarrh Cure is an aromatic, antiseptic pomade. It is inserted in the nostrils, melts at the temperature of the body, and reaches every part of the afflicted tissues. It soothes and heals inflammation, kills the germs of catarrh, clears the head, stops all discharges, and sweetens the breath.

Japanese Catarrh Cure is sold by druggists everywhere, 50c.

McCarthy Bros. Quarrel Over Rare Volume of Shelley.

New York, Nov. 3.—The classic row between Patrick McCarthy, the aesthetic junk dealer, and his brother Jim, over the missing first edition of Shelley, which has been chronicled in police court epics for a twelvemonth, took the two sexagenarians to police cells again last evening.

Patrick is 60 years old, and he has a "big brother Jim," who is 67. Jim ran away to sea many, many years ago, and Patrick always spoke of him with awe and mystery. Accordingly he was delighted to receive a visit from long-lost Jim in October of last year, and when Jim had got through telling of forty years of sea-roving, Patrick took his turn, and recounted the commonplace tale of forty years in a junk shop at Houston street and Varick. Jim was busted. Patrick waved a majestic hand at the scrap heap as his accumulation of worldly goods, and Jim jogged a hornpipe in derision.

"Not so," said Patrick. "I am wealthy. See here."

He produced from a nondescript pile a musty volume. Jim roared. But when Patrick, with glistening eye and tender voice, told him that for twenty-five years he had treasured this volume, Jim opened his eyes and listened to the tale of the priceless value of a first edition of Shelley's "Original Poems, 1810."

"You couldn't buy it for $5,000," said Patrick. Jim was awestruck, and soon after departed.

The night that "Shelley" was stolen Patrick knew that no one but Jim had been in the shop, and he forgot his adjourned joy of forty years, and tearing his hair in desperation, had long-lost Jim haled to Jefferson Market court.

The gray-haired brothers confronted each other a moment. Then Jim struck out, like a true sailor, with firsts and feet.

So the police have got both of them prisoners, with the mystery of the missing first edition still unsolved.

The muff originated in Venice and its use was restricted to the nobility.

—Mr. Guy Hamilton, of Marley Place, South London, has gone to Toronto to take a position in the head office of the Imperial Life Assurance Company.

—During the month of October there were 104 real estate transfers in London, the total assessed value of the property being $132,413. The property brought $173,958, or $41,545 more than it was assessed for. This is the greatest number of transfers ever recorded in one month in this city.

—The Methodist Church at Wyton, which has been closed for the past month while improvements were being made, is to be reopened on Sunday next, with a service at 7 p.m., conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Rogers. The choir of the church will have charge of the music, assisted by Miss M. Whitehead, of Thorndale, and there will be a special collection. The painting and graining of the interior of the church were done by Messrs. H. & C. Colerick, of this city.

—Byron Council, No. 197, of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends, gave a concert in the hall at Byron on Tuesday evening. Mr. E. T. Essery presided, and among those who assisted in the programme were Jim Fax, comedian; Miss Elliott, elocutionist, London; Miss Mabel Webb, violinist, of Delaware; McLaren and Frank, violinists, of Byron. Grand Organizer Campbell was also present and spoke on the work of the order.

FELL FROM STREET CAR.

A soldier from the barracks had the misfortune to slip and fall while alighting from an Oxford street car in front of St. Paul's Cathedral, last evening. He was stunned slightly and the ambulance was sent for. Before it arrived he recovered sufficiently to proceed home. He was not seriously injured.

GOOD WORK DONE.

The members of the Askin Street Epworth League institutional department gathered on Tuesday evening in the league's rooms. The officers who have been acting for the past six months retired, after making their report. The latter proved that the department has made rapid progress. The new building is now completely clear of debt. The election of new officers resulted as follows: Honorary president, Mr. James Stevenson; president, Mr. Bert Childs; vice-president, Mr. Fred Lsndon; secretary, Mr. Roy Childs; treasurer, Mr. J. F. Maine; league representative, Mr. C. A. McFarlane.

ELECTION RETURNS.

Manager Kormann, of the Grand Opera House, has had a special wire installed in the theater, and the election returns will be announced tonight before, during and after the performance of Marie Wainwright, in "Twelfth Night." There will be no delay in the receiving of the returns, for the wire will be handled by an expert operator. The London Vaudeville Theater management have also made arrangements to secure the election returns tonight by a private wire running into the house, and they will be bulletined as soon as received. Patrons of the theater may thus know exactly how the election is going, and may at the same time, sit in a comfortable seat and enjoy first-class vaudeville.

LATE MALCOLM CAMPBELL.

Mr. Malcolm Campbell, who died recently at his home in Ekfrid Township, was one of Middlesex County's pioneers, having emigrated from Glasgow, Scotland, in 1824, and spending 70 years on the farm where he died. He came to Canada with his parents, two brothers and a sister, and six other members of the family (one of whom was the father of the late ex-mayor John Campbell) also took up their home in this country. Mr. Campbell was possessed of sound judgment and business ability, and filled many public positions, being a magistrate, councilor and reeve of Ekfrid, and also warden of the county. In politics he was a Liberal, and in 1867 contested West Middlesex against Nathaniel Curry, but was defeated by a small majority. Mr. Campbell in his early days taught school. He also took an active interest in church and Sunday school work, and for half a century was president of the Ekfrid and Middlesex Bible Society.

AN EPIDEMIC OF SCARLET FEVER

Crediton Suffering From One at Present—Twenty Cases in a Week.

The village of Crediton is suffering from an epidemic of scarlet fever. Dr. Haist has during the last week reported about 20 cases to the health officer, more than one half of them developing in the past two days.

The disease is spreading so rapidly, and the situation has become so serious that the authorities have ordered the public school closed until Monday, the 14th. In the meantime the building will be thoroughly disinfected.

Some of the cases are said to be of a very severe type.

GORKI'S NEW BOOK

Deep Piety Rules New Romance of the Tramp Author.

Paris, Nov. 3. — The publishers in all the capitals of Europe, and one firm in New York, are doing herculean work, hoping to make a big Christmas sale of the Russian "tramp" author's latest novel. From the description of Maxim Gorki's "Man," it is learned that the author has departed considerably from his rather radical views of religion. In fact, a certain deep piety rules the new romance. He really goes so far as to show that man without God in him, or without divine teachings in him, either given to him directly or by religious instructors or through intercourse with Christian people, is lower than the beast. This truism has been preached long before him by the Apostle Paul and upheld to this day by the orthodox Christian ministers of nearly all denominations.

As Gorki does in all other works, he depicts in "Man" scenes of frightful depravity, which would make him appear as a man of ultra-pessimistic and morbid views. In private life, however, Gorki is a jolly, good fellow, always to be found in good company in the wine houses of St. Petersburg.

LAST DAY OF BIBLE INSTITUTE

Final Lectures To Be Given This Afternoon and Evening—Yesterday's Addresses.

The attendance at the Bible Institute yesterday was still larger and the interest still more marked than on the preceding days, and certainly the quality of the lectures was such as to repay the crowds for any effort put forth in coming.

The first lecture was on "The Customs and Characteristics of the Hebrew People During the Assyrian Period," by Mr. Crummy. The lecturer gave a most vivid picture of Hebrew life, from the gradual overrunning of the Holy Land by the disorganized Israelites to the establishment, and, later, the downfall of the kingdom. Of course, it is as a religious people that we are most interested in them, and the effect of the national religions of Palestine on the form of worship of Jehovah was brought out. Mr. Crummy certainly speaks as an authority on Old Testament history.

Mr. Irwin followed with a lecture on Ephesians. This epistle was written, in all probability, not to the church at Ephesus only, but also to all churches existing at that time. It seems to have been a circular letter, written to counteract heresy, which had been disturbing the churches. The object of the epistle seems to be to show that God is not far off, but actually present, and working in all things. The lecturer began a most helpful and suggestive exposition of the epistle.

Mrs. F. C. Stephenson then conducted a second conference on "Methods of Missionary Work," in which she dealt with the subject of missionary literature. This, said the lecturer, should always be strictly up to date, and should be read and talked about by everyone interested in missions, so as to spread the "missionary fire."

The afternoon session was opened by Mr. Irwin's second lecture on Ephesians, in which he continued his exposition of the epistle, showing a rare insight into its truths, both from a critical and from a spiritual standpoint.

Then Mr. Crummy lectured on "Literature Among the Hebrews," outlining the building up of the Hebrew national literature, which we now have as the Old Testament. The lecturer pointed out that, like other literatures, the books of the Old Testament must be subjected to a close scrutiny from a historical and literary standpoint.

"From Old to New Japan" was the subject of the next lecture, given by Mrs. Stephenson, in which a glimpse of the history of Japan was given, showing the wonderful development of the last 50 years.

Mr. Irwin lectured in the evening on "The Person of Christ," showing how the whole fabric of Christianity rests upon the fact that Christ was a real, historical person, and, not only so, but a person in whom human and divine blended in wonderful unity. His character was unique, "The Son of Man," and "The Son of God." The whole treatment was most reverent and at the same time beautifully clear and simple.

Mrs. Stephenson then outlined the work of the Methodist Church of Canada in Japan, showing how our missionaries are touching the strongest and highest life of the Japanese, especially the soldiers.

The institute is to close today, and this evening's session promises to be one of great interest, lectures being given by Mr. Crummy on "Isaiah," and by Mr. Lavell on "The Attempt at Reconstruction in the Church."

FOR NATIONAL WAR FUND

Appeal Being Made in All Parts of the British Empire.

London, Nov. 3.—Henry Russell, of London, England, founder of the National War Fund of the British Empire, arrived in the city yesterday in the interests of his fund. He is making a preliminary canvass with a view to establishing head offices in Toronto.

The fund is described as a voluntary taxation of British subjects throughout the world to contribute towards the upkeep of the navy and army of the British Empire.

The honorary treasurers are His Grace the Duke of Norfolk, K.G., His Grace the Duke of Devonshire, K.G., the Rt. Hon. Lord Rothschild, P.C.

When fully organized in Africa, Australia, New Zealand and India the project will appeal to 500,000,000 people, and Mr. Russell thinks its possibilities are limitless. He asks the public and press to assist him.

That certain foreign powers do possess war funds in gold.

That Great Britain in the event of war would have to go to the nation for money.

That the movement is not an aggressive one; on the contrary, the greater the preparedness of the fighter the less likely is he to be fought.

As regards India a vast sum should be subscribed by the millionaire native princes, some of whose present yearly contributions to the state are not quite sufficient for the privileges they enjoy.

That the fund be never closed.

That the funds may be used to an extent for the purposes of the navy, army, or the purchase of foodstuffs for the people, and by various forms of insurance as may be deemed expedient, in the discretion of the council, even although the British Empire were not in a state of war.

That a body be formed under the title of the council to the war fund.

The fund is immediately self-supporting, therefore no financial assistance is required from the state.

That it is obviously easier to establish such funds in the time of peace than in the time of war.

In Japan and Russia alike moneys are being brought into the treasuries unasked quite irrespective of increased taxation.

RACE SUICIDE WARNING

Nebraska Professor Says Family Should Have Four Children.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 3.—Speaking before the student assembly, Professor Ross, of the University of Nebraska, said:

"To keep up the race every family should have four children. Of these four it is likely that one will die and one will fail to marry, or will go to the wars. Thus two only will be left to perpetuate the race.

"One of the chief reasons for the constant decrease in families is that people are constantly being borne away from the simple life. The American is esteemed for the dollars he can gather and spend. It is this, not caste, which strangles the birth rate.

"Why should it not be the ideal of every woman to raise a family? It should be counted the highest honor."

A CLEAN BILL AT THE LONDON

The Vaudeville Performance Is High-Class in Everything Except Price.

The wholesome, entertaining performances being given at the London Vaudeville Theater continue to attract fair audiences to the popular playhouse, and there seems no doubt that but for the dullness attendant upon election week the house would be crowded each night. Certainly Londoners have never in the past been furnished with such excellent entertainment for so little money. As the management caters especially to the ladies, the audience is never fearful of being offended by a rude jest. The house is for vaudeville, not variety, performances, and it is high-class in everything but the prices. This week's bill is worthy of double the admission fee charged, and those who have not as yet visited the pretty playhouse, should not fail to do so, for they are denying themselves a wholesome pleasure by remaining away. An evening spent with Art Bondo, the Latells, McKinnon and Reed, and others, is certainly an evening of thorough enjoyment. The vaudeville will be repeated each night this week and also at a matine on Saturday afternoon.

The people of London scarcely gave James J. Corbett his due on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at the Grand, for at both performances the audiences were somewhat small. "Pals" is, however, a play worthy of the patronage of the better class of theater-goers, for in it Corbett as a pugilist plays no part, though as an actor he is in the lead throughout. And as an actor he is entirely above all his pugilistic contemporaries. The engagement closed last night.

COSTLY LOT OF FOSSILS

A Valuable Collection Secured for the Toronto University.

Toronto, Nov. 3.—The University of Toronto has again been the recipient of a generous gift. The collection of Cambrian fossils made by Dr. George F. Matthew, of St. John, N. B., one of the two acknowledged experts in North America in Cambrian palaeontology, has been for sale for some months, and until now it was feared that, although it can never be duplicated, it would, like so many other Canadian objects of scientific interest, become the possession of one of the great museums of the United States or Great Britain. The sum required, several thousand dollars, was not at the disposal of the University of Toronto, nor apparently at the disposal of our National Museum at Ottawa, to which the collection would certainly be a most valuable addition. However, by the generosity of Mr. William Mackenzie this collection has been saved to Canada, and will become the possession of our university. In addition to the cost of the collection, Mr. Mackenzie has also provided the cost of a number of cases for the fossils.

The following note on Dr. Matthew's collection by Mr. Parks, of the university, will be read with interest:

In view of the great antiquity of the Cambrian series, well preserved organic remains are exceedingly scarce in these strata. In fact, nearly all the Cambrian fossils ever found, in any part of the world, are more or less fragmentary and imperfect. However, as the history of the chain of life, so far as it is exhibited by fossils, begins with the organisms of the Cambrian, the importance of the forms there occurring cannot be overestimated. It is almost superfluous to say that the scarcity and fragmentary character of these fossils render their collection very difficult, and their identification impossible, except to one who has made a life study of the organisms of this distant period. Such an one is Dr. George F. Matthew, of St. John, N. B. Forty years ago Dr. Matthew began the study of the Cambrian rocks of New Brunswick. At that time but one or two fossils were known in these rocks; now more than 400 have been recognized, and every one of these is represented in the collection. We have, then, 440 different species, each represented by from five to ten specimens, say, 2,500 in all. The peculiar value, both academic and historical, lies, however, not in the numbers of the collection, but in the fact that they are nearly all the actual specimens first found and described by Dr. Matthew; in technical language, the "type specimens." These can never be duplicated, and must always remains a unique and valuable possession of the University of Toronto.

Besides containing all the type specimens, the collections shows many forms which, in addition to being type or first specimens, are absolutely the only ones ever found. This will serve to show the peculiar value of such material and to point out the extreme rarity of many of the organisms of this ancient series of rocks.

Another feature of this collection of especial value is the fact that it is complete; it contains all the known fossils from the Cambrian of Eastern Canada. It is unnecessary to say that such a remark can be made of very few collections from any place or any age.

In addition to the material above described, the collection contains about as many more specimens from the Cambrian of other parts of the world, making in all about 5,000 specimens.

POET RILEY'S SHAVE

His Evidence Helps in Getting His Barber Friend Fined.

Indianapolis, Nov. 3.—James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet, was a witness in a justice of the peace court in a case in which William Miller, foreman of a barber shop, was the defendant and the Barber's Union, through the state, was the prosecuting party. The charge was that Miller had kept his Denison House barber shop open on Sunday and had shaved persons, and by thus following his usual occupation on the Sabbath had violated the law.

Dr. Riley has long been a warm friend of Miller, notwithstanding the fact that Miller is a colored man, and he was a very reluctant witness. He volunteered no information whatever, and the attorney for the prosecution got only what he asked for and, sometimes, not all of that. Mr. Riley, however, finally said that he had been shaved on a certain Sunday, as had been his custom for years, and that the artist, who did the work was employed at the Denison House shop.

He said Miller did not shave him, and he did not know the name of the man who did. He was sure that he was shaved and when he was asked if the foreman, Miller, was in the shop at the time he said he was. This admission was made after some thought.

The court found the defendant guilty and fixed a fine of $1 and costs.

MARIE WAINWRIGHT IN "TWELFTH NIGHT."

"Twelfth Night," which will be presented at the Grand tonight with Miss Marie Wainwright as Viola, is a genuine comedy, a perpetual spring of the gayest and the sweetest fancies, and such also is the interpretation of the tender Viola and charming Cesaria by Miss Wainwright. In artificial society men and women are divided into castes and classes, and it is rarely that extremes in character or manners can approximate. To blend into one harmonious picture the utmost grace and refinement of sentiment and the broadest effects of humor, the most poignant wit and the most indulging benignity, in short, to bring before us in the same scene Viola and Olivia, with Malvolio and Sir Toby belonged only to nature and to Shakespeare. The stage settings provided for this popular revival are like the comedy itself, superb. Olivia's garden is said to be a scenic poem, the sea coast of Illyria, a stage picture of masterful skill, and the Rose Bower an ideal trysting place for ideal lovers. The complete election returns will be received over a special wire, and announced before, during and after the performance tonight.

"DAVID HARUM."

One of the reigning successes of the past two seasons has been "David Harum," which is to be presented at the Grand tomorrow night. The play, as everyone knows, is a dramatization of Westcott's novel, and report credits it with being the best of all the works transplanted from between the covers of a book to the stage in the absolute faithfulness with which it reproduces its scenes and characters. Everyone who has ever had a whiff of new mown hay or lived within sound of the cow bells in the country cannot help but like this play. Though its scenes are laid in a country town, however, it is not like other country plays. It possesses no suffering, weeping heroine, no bold, detestable villain, neither does it deal with a story that is in any way suggestive. It is clean and wholesome, bright and cheerful in its treatment, and sparkles with quaint philosophy and rugged epigrams. Its adherence to nature is said to be responsible for its great success. Some one who greatly appreciated Westcott's work said that "David Harum" was the greatest and best drawn character in American fiction of recent years, and the critics have repeatedly asserted the same thing about the old fellow who held that a man "might be straighter'n a string in most things and yet never tell the hull truth about a hoss."

"WAY DOWN EAST."

"Way Down East," Lottie Blair Parker's idyllic play of New England farm life, comes to the Grand on Saturday matinee and night. It appeals not to a limited class, but to everybody with a spark of sympathy, a liking for an interesting story and a relish for good, wholesome fun. There are many reasons for its popularity—its pathetic theme, its genial humor, its charming pictures of country life, its quaint characters and striking realism; but its more potent element undoubtedly is the strong human interest that permeates every scene. To this, all classes and creeds must yield their sympathy. Miss Parker's work so admirably produced under the skillful direction of Mr. Joseph Grismer will be interpreted by a cast that has been especially selected for their different characters. Sale of seats opens this morning.

A SCENE IN A COTTAGE.

One of the cleverest scenes in "Cousin Kate," the English comedy from the Hudson Theater, New York, which comes to the Grand next Monday night, is that in the cottage whither Kate Curtis hies to furnish it and make it homelike for the honeymoon of her cousin Amy and the latter's finance, Heath Desmond. While spinster Kate is engaged in this interesting but slightly unsatisfactory occupation, enters the handsome stranger who has made her acquaintance on a railway train the day previous and with whom she has fallen desperately in love. The stranger is hard hit, too, as his every action shows, and when in tones of emotion he tells his love and asks for her hand, Kate, unconventional to the finger-tips, honest, but scorning Mrs. Grundy, accepts him. Just at the crisis of emotion Cousin Amy appears and immediately recognizes the fascinating stranger as her future husband, the young man for whose marriage with Amy, Cousin Kate has been preparing the love-nest. "No, no, I do not love you," she now vehemently protests. "I was merely flirting—that is all!" Of course, Heath Desmond will not take her at her word; says Cousin Amy dismissed him in a huff and that he has a perfect right to make love to Cousin Kate. But Kate, with her loyalty to Amy, won't hear the explanation, but will devote her time and strength to restoring the shattered love romance of her cousin. It is only in the last two acts that circumstances so shape themselves that Heath and Kate are free to follow their warm and sincere passion, while Amy meets a truer affinity than the Bohemian Desmond, in a Church of England curate who has long admired her.
