REPORT

Of the Select Committee Appointed to Examine and Report on the Expediency
OF ESTABLISHING A PROVINCIAL BANK

Within this Province

House of Assembly, Committee Room, 13 February, 1885.

COMMITTEE

Messrs. William Morris
Charles Duncombe
William Robinson
Allan N. McNab
AND
William H. Merritt

Your Committee submitted the draft of a Bill as their first report to afford ample time to discuss its principles and details, after which the following questions were proposed, and those gentlemen summoned who were supposed to be the most likely to object to the measure, and the most capable of assigning reasons for that objection.

The following questions were proposed.—See Appendix A.

The answers and opinions of

Thomas G. Ridout, Esq., Cashier of the Bank of Upper Canada, Captain George Truscott, R. N., Private Banker of the firm of Truscott, Green, and Co. Toronto,
J. S. Harper, Esq. Cashier Midland District Bank,
John Cleveland Green, Esq. Banker, firm of Truscott, Green, and Co., Stamford, Benjamin Thorne, Esq. Merchant, Thornhill,
Joseph Cawthra, Esq. Toronto,
John S. Baldwin, Esq. Director of the Bank of Upper Canada, Charles Bowman, Merchant, Montreal.
William Lyon Mackenzie, Esq. M. P. Toronto,
Thomas Dalton, Esq. Proprietor and Editor of the Patriot Newspaper, Toronto, and Charles Shirreff, Esq. of the Ottawa District, are appended hereto, (see Appendix B.)

The concurrent testimony of these individuals go to establish two important points, viz: that there is not, nor can there, by any Legislative enactment, be a sufficient amount of metallic currency introduced to supply the circulating medium which the increasing business of this Province requires; & that a much greater Banking Capital, is required to supply that medium, than we now possess.

These opinions are supported by various reasons to which your attention is directed.

It appears that Banking Capital in the United States is, in proportion to their population, as four to one greater than with us. It has been for many years in the State of New-York, in a ratio of fifteen or twenty to one, which enables their agriculturists, tradesmen, and mechanics, although subject to double taxes—higher prices for land; with a soil and climate by no means superior, with the additional expense of transportation, to successfully compete with, if not undersell or supplant, the inhabitants of this Province in our own markets.

The only question on which a difference of opinion exists, is the method by which this increased circulation can be accomplished with the greatest security and advantage to the public.

In examining the evidence on this subject, due allowance should be made for the habits and engagements of the different individuals, our minds being naturally directed in the same channel with our favorite pursuits.

Some recommend increasing the Capital of the Upper Canada and Midland District Banks, placing some necessary check on the emission of Bank paper by individuals—& withholding Charters from any other Banks throughout the Province.

Others, to leave Banking unrestricted by any Legislative enactment whatever; while others recommend the establishment of a Provincial Bank.

It appears from the short time Banks have been established, altho' with limited Capitals, their beneficial influence in promoting the prosperity of the country is generally acknowledged; at the same time, Banking may be considered in its infancy in this Province, and the present period is remarkably propitious for adopting any system which may be conceived most advantageous for promoting the public interest.

With respect to UNRESTRICTED PRIVATE BANKING, it is a question to which your Committee have given their most anxious consideration, and admit that should Banking remain on its present footing without some salutary check, it must be attended with imminent risk to the public. Whatever command of Capital, or however respectable the present Banking-houses recently established in this Province, other Houses may be established by persons of questionable means and character. In a short time, from the extremescarcity of money, their paper must be forced into circulation; and in case of any casualty, either by fraud or misfortune, the public must sustain the loss of whatever over issues may have been made, without an opportunity of ascertaining either the amount of their Capital, or the amount of the paper they may, from time to time have circulated. Notwithstanding this evil must necessarily attend the system, there are precedents of long standing to warrant a different view of this subject.

In the investigation before a Committee of the House of Commons in England in 1826,—“To enquire into the circulation of promissory notes under five pounds,”—it appears that Banking in Scotland did not thrive while the circulation was confined to one Institution.—After the establishment of other Banks the system worked well; at that period 133 Banks and Branches were in operation—three chartered Banks the two former with Capitals of £1,000,000 the latter £500,000, besides private Banks.

It appears from the evidence adduced, that all enjoy equal confidence, and from the experience of a long series of years it is proved, that if a statement of the Bank is submitted once a year, the Capital paid in, and a limit to the circulation on that amount, it affords a sufficient security to the public. That if a Bank issues more money than their customers can absorb in their business, it returns immediately to the Bank from whence it came: this salutary check appears to be created by the competition in the number of Banks which induces them to pay interest on deposits.

In the State of New-York a different system has been adopted: Private Banking is prohibited by law. Banks are chartered in every part of the Country where required. It is true that formerly the most iniquitous and fraudulent system existed in the chartering of Banks; no check was imposed; The Directors were allowed to hypothecate Stock for which they had never paid, and a legalized system of swindling the public was permitted: From this circumstance may be attributed the undue prejudice which still exists against the system of Banking in that State. By a law passed some years since, provision is made for all Banks to pay in their Capital, limit their issues, and submit a statement of their affairs to the Legislature; since when there has not been a single failure to the knowledge of your Committee. Before the United States Bank was chartered, their exchange was in a deranged state; that institution produced a most salutary effect, not only by regulating the exchange, but by restraining the over issues of those small Banks; and the system has since been found to work well.

Banking having proved eminently beneficial in Scotland and the State of New York under entire different systems, your Committee are averse to recommending any restriction whatever, although they feel sensible from the continued emission of notes by private Bankers, from our local position the public must incur much greater risk here than in Scotland—at the same time, from the great scarcity of money and the acknowledged want of Capital, they feel it would be injudicious to hazard any measure which might operate to prevent its introduction.

The same reasons preponderate in favor of chartered companies in different parts of the Province, by which capital may be more generally diffused.

The propriety of establishing a Provincial Bank, and of permitting the two other Banks to merge into it, and to obtain a quantity of land from Government on which to constitute a Capital, has been suggested. This method affords a still greater saving to the public, but cannot be acted upon without extending the time to a remote period. It has been also recommended to limit the issue of any note under one Pound: This measure has been adopted in Europe and the greater part of America.

The recommendation to establish the legal value of Gold and Silver coins also requires attention, but as it does not come under the immediate jurisdiction of your Committee, they decline offering any opinion on the subject.

The principal objection which appears to be urged against the establishment of a Provincial Bank is the alleged fear of its becoming a political Engine. On this subject the public mind is remarkably sensitive; and is liable, without due examination to be greatly misled.

Your Committee have endeavoured to establish as equitable a division in the management as the nature of the Institution will admit. It is proposed—

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, to appoint	-	1
The Legislative Council	- - - - -	3
House of Assembly	- - - - -	6
Private Stockholders	- - - - -	5
Making in all	- -	15

By this arrangement the Directors appointed by the private Stockholders form a body sufficiently numerous to counteract any undue political influence if attempted to be exercised, either by the Executive or Popular Branch.

The idea of establishing a national Bank is by no means new. Among other cogent reasons assigned in support of the measure by J. R. McCulloch Esqr. in his “Remarks on the institution of a National Bank as compared with the Bank of England,” are the following—

No. III.

“ It is not necessary to enter at any length into an examination of the objections that may be raised to the establishment of a National Bank on the ground of its placing a power in the hands of Government which it might be tempted to abuse. It is clear that no abuse would be perpetrated unless by authority of Parliament; but if the Legislature should be at any time disposed to sanction a suspension of bullion payments and a depreciation of the currency, there is obviously no possibility of preventing it, however paper may be issued. The same power that enacts that the Commissioners shall be appointed in a certain way, and that they shall follow a certain line of conduct in conducting the affairs of the Bank, may enact that they shall be appointed in a different way, and that they shall follow another line. At bottom therefore, the only real security for the prudent and proper management of the affairs of a National Bank, must be found in the discretion and good sense of Government and the Legislatures. If these guarantees are inadequate, it is to no purpose to trust to others.

“ The question with respect to its establishment is really one of profit and conveniency, it would save the country, after expences of management are deducted, near £500,000 per year. Again, there can be no good reason why Government should gratuitously concede to any private Company privileges calculated to enable them to realize such large gains. Under any circumstances such a proceeding would evince what might be justly deemed a want of due attention to the interest of the public; and in the present financial situation of the Country, it would be very apt to be looked upon as an unjustifiable and wanton degree of profusion.”

Will not these reasons apply with peculiar force to our present situation ?

While we admit the principle that power must be placed in the hands of those who must necessarily guide or direct such Institutions, all experience goes to prove it must be placed with far greater safety in the hands of our Legislature, combined with the watchful superintendence individual stockholders will necessarily exercise, to guard their private interests.

The short period the Bank of the United States has been in operation also favors the above position.

$7,000,000 of the stock of that Institution was held by the public.
28,000,000 by Individuals.

$35,000,000 Capital.

The Government, by only retaining a small proportion of the Stock, vested the power of managing the Bank in the hands of individuals. Is it likely, had they retained the greatest proportion of the stock, together with the control under their Legislature, the same popular feeling could have been excited against the Institution? Again in the first charter of the Bank of Upper Canada the Legislature held one fourth of the Stock, individuals three fourths; had this been reversed, with an abundant capital, and the Legislature participated in the appointment of Directors, would not the public feel a far greater interest in its success ?

The second objection is that it may become a dangerous monopoly.

The most ordinary mind will comprehend the force of this reasoning. The creation of an abundant capital which this measure provides, is calculated to defeat or destroy any monopoly which now does, or may hereafter exist—it interferes with no established institution; with none that may hereafter be established, nor with private banking—and if it should be the means of preventing the profitable extension of the business of those Institutions, it only proves the superiority of the system.

The means of acquiring the capital is by a simple fiscal arrangement. The Bank issues stock under the guarantee of the Province, payable in a given number of years, at 5 per cent, half yearly in London; arranged as follows :

Amount of Loan	300,000
Premium on sale of Debentures in London 8 per Ct.	} 24,000
Premium on exchange 7 per Ct.
Public Deposites	25,000
Which constitutes that part of the capital to be represented—by the Public	£375,000
Stock held by individuals	125,000
Making in all for the main Bank which is to be established in the City of Toronto	£500,000

After this Bank shall have been one year in operation, in order to diffuse Capital more generally and equitably throughout the Province, branches are to be established in any district as soon as their increasing business may require it. The capital to be created by issuing stock on the credit of the Bank at 6 per cent per annum payable at any given time.

11 Districts at £75000 each	£825,000
Private Stock - - -	275,000
Making for District Banks -	1,100,000
Main Bank at home - -	500,000

will ultimately extend the capital to £1,600,000

This Stock bearing interest at 6 per cent, forms a medium of exchange here, similar to the exchequer bills in London, in which capitalists may readily invest their means, secure an interest at all times, and realize the principle when required. They will thus pass from hand to hand, keep the interest within the province, and bring into immediate action and use every Pound of dormant capital, besides having a tendency to draw capitalists to a country where they may have an opportunity to invest their money with certainty, safety, and profit.

REPORT ON ESTABLISHMENT OF A PROVINCIAL BANK

No. III.

After all, the main consideration is the question of profit. This can only be proved by reference to other institutions. The stock of the bank of England in August 1834 is quoted 122 per cent premium.

The Bank of the United States rose to 27 per cent premium, after paying their government $1,500,000, for the charter, and have since offered $3,000,000, for its extension.

The stock of the Bank of Upper Canada, exceeds sixteen per cent premium, it makes a regular dividend of four per cent half yearly—and although the stock of the commercial Bank, does not command so high a premium, its dividends are equal.

These facts are sufficient to establish a positive profit by banking under ordinary management, and few will question its being a legitimate source of revenue. They have reason to believe this Bank will operate as a most salutary check on all chartered, as well as private banks—by regulating or restraining any undue issue of paper money; it will also, by lessening the profits of Banking, prevent so many from entering into the business.

It will offer to the Public an abundant capital—a safe currency in which every man will feel an equal interest from a knowledge that he is an equal participater in the profits; place under the control of our Legislature a revenue equal to that derived from all other sources; pay off the Provincial debt in a few years—and thereafter leave a fund which may be appropriated to education or any other purpose for all future time.

The above reasons in favor of the Bill already presented they most respectfully submit for the consideration of your Honorable House.

W. HAMILTON MERRITT.
Chairman.

APPENDIX A.

4th.—Do you think it would afford any greater protection to the public, if the names of all the Partners, who may issue Notes or Paper Money, were required to be registered in some Office within the Province, or would it, in your opinion, have a tendency, in any way to prevent the introduction of Capital, or check the operation of Banking by individuals?

5th.—It has been proposed by this Committee to Charter a Provincial Bank with a Capital of £500,000, to be established at the Seat of Government, upon the following principles:—the public to hold $\frac{3}{4}$ of the Stock, instead of $\frac{1}{4}$ as in the original Charter of the Bank of Upper Canada, managed by

1	Director	to be appointed by the Lieutenant Governor,
3	“	“ by the Legislative Council,
6	“	“ by the House of Assembly,
5	“	“ by the Individual Stockholders,
15	“	in all,

To raise the proportion of Capital required by the public, it is proposed to issue Stock bearing an interest of 5 per cent., under the guarantee of the Province—in case the Bank should fail to make payments—

After this Bank shall have been one year in operation—Branches shall be established with a Capital of £100,000, in every District throughout the Province, where the increased business may require it, on the Inhabitants subscribing $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Stock—the proportion on behalf of the Province to be raised by issuing Debentures or Stock, bearing interest at 6 per cent. on the credit of the bank only.

Whatever profits may arise to be appropriated exclusively in payment of the Provincial debt.

Will you state your objections to this scheme?

10th.—What premium does the Bank of Upper Canada command in the market at this time ?

11th.—What premium does the Stock of the Midland District Bank command ?

12th.—What is the cause of the difference ?

13th.—Do you know what premium the Debentures or Stock issued by this Province, at 5 per cent. interest, bear in England ?

14th.—Are the different Agents established by Your Bank paid by the Company or by the individuals borrowing money ?

15th.—What per centage is charged by the different agencies in remitting money to this principal or Mother Bank, or what more do they charge for negotiating exchange than at the principal Bank ?

16th.—What is the usual profit made on buying and selling exchange between this and New-York,—Montreal and Great Britain ?

17th.—What dividend was paid for the last six months ?

18th.—From what period did the reserved profits in your last Return commence to accumulate ?

Answers to the questions put by the Honorable the Committee of the House of Assembly on Banking and the Currency.—By T. G. RIDOUT, Esq.

1st.—Do you conceive the Metallic Currency, now within this Province, or what may be brought in by any Legislative Enactment sufficient for the circulating medium thereof ?

The Metallic Currency now in actual circulation within this Province is of small amount, but it might be beneficially increased, by Legislative Enactments raising its legal value to the par of other countries, and by preventing the circulation of small notes—it is not necessary that the whole circulating medium should be in specie, as many inconveniences would arise therefrom, and I think that the internal or external commerce of the country could not be carried on in a prosperous manner, with the aid of specie alone—the quantity of money required varies with the seasons, and prospect of Foreign trade—and the supply best suits the demand, by substituting Bank Notes, which may be expanded or curtailed to suit the course of trade, I do not therefore think that the metallic currency now within this Province, or what might be brought in by Legislative enactments, would be sufficient for the circulating medium thereof.

2nd —Do you conceive it necessary to supply a circulating medium by means of a paper Currency ?

In a commercial and flourishing country like this is, and so much engaged in Foreign Trade, both by exports and imports, I think that Bank paper is a necessary aid to the circulating medium, and that a proportion of the precious metals ought to be encouraged along with it—I would not recommend an entire paper currency by any means, as it nearly is at present, when every coin from a dollar upwards, is represented by paper, and some Banks make a practice of forcing out small notes, knowing well, that in the absence of silver, the people are compelled to keep these notes within their communities for their ordinary transactions, until they are either worn out or lost.

3rd.—Do you believe that measure can be best accomplished :

—By increasing the Capital of the Bank of Upper Canada ?

—By increasing the Capital of the Midland District Bank ?

—By Chartering new Banks in different parts of the Province ?

—By leaving the subject of Banking on its present footing ?

—By establishing a Provincial Bank, and on what conditions or plan ? or

—What other method would you propose to establish a paper Currency, with the greatest advantage and safety to the public ?

I do not think this measure can be best accomplished by increasing the number of Banks, neither am I for a monopoly in favor of one—the people will be better served, and trade will be better regulated by the establishment of two Banks with large capitals, than by a number of small Banks, suppose one in every District, these latter would generally be poor and needy, always afraid and in hostile attitude towards each other—their own fears would prevent them from giving liberal credits, and the same motive would make them harsh and griping to the people when in their power, besides being kept in a continual state of alarm, their profits would be small, and their principal accommodations would be confined within the circle of their chief stockholders and directors

I think it would give general satisfaction throughout this Province, if the Legislature would increase the Capitals of the two Chartered Banks, to a sufficient amount to meet the fair demands of the country, for in my opinion, every Farmer, person in trade, or in reputable circumstances, who can give unexceptionable personal security, have a right to receive from Public Banks, reasonable accommodations in proportion to their means, without being considered to ask favors, and it would much promote the prosperity of the country, and the ease and convenience of the inhabitants, if these Banks would establish regular offices in every District of the Province for discount and deposits—I do not mean an office from each Bank in every District, but let the two Banks mutually agree on that subject and divide the Province between them; this would not prevent people from applying to either or both if they pleased—by so doing the Banks would not clash with each other, and they could afford to serve the public better, but if they would not agree to do so, let each establish offices where it pleases, and then there could be no complaint of monopoly.

I should propose that the Bank of Upper Canada should have its Capital increased to £500,000, and that of the Commercial Bank to £250,000, the former has a claim to the greatest amount of Stock, as it is located at the capital, where the great monied transactions of the Province centre, where the greatest trade is carried on, and where the chief part of the Foreign Capital which is yearly introduced, is first deposited, besides it is the oldest Institution, and is in part owned by Government—there might be many other reasons given why it should be first in rank, if any rank there is, and that without any disparagement to the Commercial Bank.

I do not think that the chartering of new banks in different parts of the province is necessary, but that it would be detrimental; for the offices of a great monied Institution can give longer and more extensive accommodations, from the facilities they enjoy of drawing upon the Foreign funds of the parent Bank, or upon the Bank itself—a small bank would always be harrassed on this point.

I have not sufficiently thought on the subject of establishing a Provincial Bank, but will endeavour to make some remarks at the end of this paper.

It would not be advisable to leave the subject of Banking on its present footing, as many regulations are required for the public benefit.

In the first place no Bank should be allowed to issue notes of a less denomination than Four-dollars, and a penalty should be inflicted on any person who attempts to pass or circulate the notes of a Foreign Bank less than four dollars, for if this protection is not granted the country would be overrun with small notes, of the Lower Canada or American Banks, and specie would disappear. The State of New York, and many other of the states have adopted this system.

4th—Do you think it would afford any greater protection to the public—if the names of all the Partners, who may issue Notes or Paper Money—were required to be registered in some Office within the Province, or would it in your opinion, have a tendency, in any way to prevent the introduction of Capital, or check the operation of Banking by Individuals?

I do not understand upon what principle private Banks are to be encouraged or acknowledged as legal institutions in this country, they certainly are not needed for the introduction of Capital, for the stock of the chartered banks can be so increased from time to time, as fully to meet the demand, either for investment or loan—besides it is very doubtful and uncertain by having Private Banks, whether you introduce any capital at all, or whether it is not a money making scheme to encourage adventurers from England, and perhaps from the United States, to flock into the province and set up private Banks, with or without real capital, as they build their success upon the known credulity of the people to take any thing in the shape of a Bank note, and if they can once establish a circulation of small notes which always return slowly, they can easily collect the large notes of good Banks, and thereby create a fund to serve in lieu of capital. This, with the bills they discount, which they may before hand agree must be repaid in the notes of other Banks, would enable them to carry on business to an immense extent, and in the end become actually rich and wealthy.

There is another way in which the public are imposed upon, and will no doubt be continually imposed upon by these Private Banks, viz. instead of issuing their notes as the notes of the partners composing the Firm, they give their Bank some good sounding and popular Title; whereas their notes as private individuals, would no more pass current throughout the Province than the notes of many of those persons to whom they lend money, and who in real estate may probably own more property than the whole capital of any one of these Private Banks.

I think it would afford greater protection to the public (although in a very small degree) if the names of all the partners who may issue notes or paper money, were required to be registered in some office within the Province. I do not suppose that any honest man would refuse to give the names of his Partners, nor would it in my opinion have a tendency in any way to prevent the introduction of capital, it would perhaps check the operation of Banking by individuals who have little or no capital, and who would be unwilling to trust to their own names only for the circulation of their notes; as it is very much the custom in this country to add the word "Company" to a Firm, although there are no more partners in existence than those already named. This addition, unless founded on fact, is prevented by law, in the State of New York.

6th.—Do you know the principles on which the Bank of the United States was Chartered?

I know very little about the United States Bank. It was established I believe in the year 1817 with a Capital of $35 million of dollars, for the purpose of regulating the currency throughout that country, to receive the Public Revenue in deposit, and to pay it out in all parts of the Union without expense to Government, also to manage the sale and transfer of the public debt, and payment of interest thereon without charge, and to make discounts and transact the same kind of business as the state Banks. It is also allowed to have an office in every State, or more than one; in New York State it has 3 offices.

It pays specie at all its offices, for the notes issued at the Parent Bank for use of such office.

The Government holds about 4 millions of the Stock.

7th—Do you know the cause of the dissatisfaction which appears to exist by a part of the public in the United States against that institution?

I do not know the precise cause of the dissatisfaction which appears to exist against this Bank. I understand that it arises from Political motives and the unfriendly feeling of State Banks, whose operations it no doubt sometimes checks, and keeps them within due bounds.

8th.—Do you understand the Scotch system of Banking?

I do not understand the Scotch system of Banking unless in a very slight degree, from what I do know of it, I do not think it would suit this country, as lands given in security for loans could not be so readily sold and converted into money as in Scotland, in case of default

9th.—In case a general system of Banking was adopted, do you consider it advisable to introduce a clause compelling the Bank to pay interest on deposits?

When money is deposited in a Bank, it is done to serve the temporary convenience of the depositor, in order that it may be in safe keeping, and ready for use at any moment; so that Banks that have real Capital cannot afford to offer such an interest for money as could induce depositors to leave it with them for any term of Months, and the uncertainty when it would be drawn out would prevent any use being made of it advantageously, for a Bank must always hold a disposable sum idle in proportion to its deposits, in order to meet sudden demands on that account, and it would not be profitable to pay interest for this money and at the same time keep the vault properly supplied with specie.

If people did not deposit their funds in a Bank, they would keep them at home, in the former case the benefit is mutual, in the latter there is risk, and in either case the parties would put their money to better use as soon as it was convenient for them, without consulting the convenience of the Bank.

10.—What premium does the Bank of Upper Canada command in the market at this time?

The Bank of Upper Canada Stock at this time is at sixteen per cent premium.

11th.—What premium does the Stock of the Midland District Bank command?

I do not know what premium the Stock of the Midland District Bank commands in the market: I understand it is at eight per cent.

12th.—What is the cause of the difference?

I do not know.

13th.—Do you know what premium the Debentures or Stock issued by this Province, at 5 per cent. interest, bear in England?

I do not know what premium the Provincial 5 per cent Debentures bear in England.

14th.—Are the different Agents established by Your Bank paid by the Company or by the individuals borrowing money?

The different Agents established by the Bank of Upper Canada are paid at fixed salaries by the Bank, and are not allowed to take or exact any fees or per centage whatever from individuals borrowing money.

15th.—What per centage is charged by the different agencies in remitting money to this principal or Mother Bank, or what more do they charge for negotiating exchange than at the principal Bank?

All monies paid in at the agencies by persons who keep accounts with the Bank or for use of persons who do so are remitted if required to the Mother Bank, free of charge. But if drafts are required, then a charge of $\frac{1}{4}$ or $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent is made according to the sum; the same rule applies to the Bank here, and I may add that all public monies are remitted to every part of the Province, by Bill or otherwise at par. The negotiation of Foreign exchanges is the same at the Bank and its agencies.

16th.—What is the usual profit made on buying and selling exchange between this and New-York, Montreal and Great Britain?

The usual profit made on buying and selling exchange between this and New-York, varies with the season, and means of transporting silver, in the winter it averages one per cent premium, and when the Navigation is open from one half to three quarters per cent. profit, this also varies according to the kind of specie then paying out, for if exchange at New York is about 8 per cent premium on London and we are paying out British silver at the legal existing rates, a loss of one per cent on our bills would not keep it in the vault, its intrinsic value being then full three per cent over its legal value, besides the expence of transport.

The usual profit arising to the Bank for its Bills on Montreal, is a quarter of one per cent, altho' in the summer from the facilities of making remittances it is often down to par.

For Bills on London the Bank endeavours to make a profit of one and a half per cent, altho' from the constant fluctuation it does not average so much for the year's business.

17th.—What dividend was paid for the last six months?

The dividend paid by the Bank of Upper Canada for the last six months, ending 31st December, 1834, was four per Cent upon the Capital Stock.

18th.—From what period did the reserved profits in your last return commence to accumulate?

The reserved profits stated in the last return, have been accumulating since the 1st January, 1833

I beg leave to add a few remarks respecting our Gold and Silver coinage, now in circulation, a very material change having taken place within the last year, respecting their value—which does not accord with the rates at which they are legal tenders in this Province, and if some corresponding alterations are not made in our Laws, it will be impossible to maintain any thing like a metallic currency, in the room of small notes.

By a late law of the United States, the Gold Sovereign was fixed at $4 - 84Cts or $4 - 85Cts. according to its weight; equal to about

£1 - 4s. - 2½

By our laws, it is by weight as British Gold, only worth 1 - 2 - 8.

Making a difference of £ " - 1 - 6½.

consequently it never remains in this country a moment after it leaves the pocket of the Emigrant, and is never offered as a circulating medium. This increased value is 8½ per Cent. advance on the one pound Sterling, its nominal value.

The American Government have also made Mexican, Peruvian, and Popyan dollars pass as legal tenders, at 100 Cents each. They are not legal tenders with us. The consequence has been, that the Bank of Upper Canada was obliged to pay last October, a very heavy premium for American half dollars, both at Philadelphia and New York, as the Banks there knowing that the former coins would not answer our purpose, refused half dollars without a premium. Altho' the Spanish Mexican dollar is finer silver than the American, and in the European markets, it's worth more.

In order to prevent the exportation to Europe of their silver coinage, the United States government have always fixed the value legal of their half dollars &c. between five and six per Cent. above its intrinsic value, compared with the coins of England or France, so that unless exchange on London rises to nine per Cent. premium, no profitable exportation of the silver currency can take place with any advantage. The difference between its intrinsic and legal rate, probably 3 per Cent. does not more than cover the expense of shipment, insurance, loss of time, and other charges. The Gold is protected by a higher rate, and cannot bear exportation unless exchange rises to 11½ or 11¾ per Cent. premium

In the course of the last season, when exchange on England ruled between 3 per Cent. discount, and 4 per Cent. premium. The Bank of Upper Canada imported from London £75,000, sterling, in British Silver. And at the special requisition of the Bank, the whole of this money was coined at the mint by order of the government, as the Bank of England could not supply the amount at that time, the silver coinage being very scarce. This was done at some inconvenience, as the mint was then coining for the West Indies, the Gibraltar and Mediterranean services, and for the Home circulation. Yet the government taking into consideration the interest of this Province, sent down an order to the master of the mint, to comply with the requisition for Upper Canada, and it was completed as soon as possible. All this avails little, as under our present laws, and the demand for silver in the United States, and the course of exchange on London, the whole of this money will leave the Province as soon as the navigation opens, unless it is made a legal tender at its real value, instead of being left as it is now, 3 and 4½ per Cent. under par.

The Bank imported £60,000 Sterling, in half Crowns,* and £15,000, in shillings and six-pences, the former are at 3½ per Cent. and the latter at 5 per Cent. above their par value, with the dollar at 4s. 6d. sterling, whereas the dollar is only worth 4s. 4d., and is often less, consequently as soon as exchange at N. Y. rises to 6½ per cent, our half crowns will be drawn from us, and exported, and when it rises to 7½ or 8 per Cent. the shillings and six-pences will follow, as they will bear export long before the American half dollar, besides being more valuable for their weight and fineness. How the great difference between 3½, & 5½ per cent originated, I cannot tell, unless it was for the purpose of making the sterling shilling even money, at 1s. 2d. Currency, and the 6d. sterling even money at 7d. Currency, the crown is fixed at 5s. 9d. C'y and the half crown at 2s. 10½d. All these rates are below their intrinsic value in America, as the par of exchange is acknowledged to be eight per Cent. At this rate, British Silver coins ought to be as follows:—

The Crown	5s.	at eight per cent.	6s.
The Half-Crown	2 6d.	do	3
The Sterling	1	do	1 2½ and a fraction.
And the	6d.	do	7d and a fraction.

But for the sake of making even change for a dollar, the shilling sterling might well pass as 1s. 3d. currency, and the 6d. at 7½ currency. This would be but little more in proportion than the rise on gold in the United States 1st of August last, and it is not likely that any great quantity of shillings and sixpences will be ever imported as they are always scarce and difficult to be had at the Royal Mint.

I beg to conclude by stating, that if such a law passes and that all Bank Notes under four dollars are prohibited we shall have in this Province, a wholesome circulation of British Coins, for all ordinary purposes, and that Bank Notes will be as they ought to be, an auxiliary to trade and a convenient mode for carrying on large monied transactions.

It is to be hoped also, that the Legislature will take into consideration, the expediency of raising the Gold Sovereign to its par value in the United States, about £1 4 2½ if over weight, and £1 2 full weight—and if it is intended that it should have a fair circulation, it ought to be £1 4 3 currency, it would then remain in the country, and would help to maintain the exchange between this and New York, at about one per cent. premium, and would prevent a drain of our specie.

In reply to Question, No. 6, respecting the establishment of a Provincial Bank, of which it is proposed, that the Government should hold three-fourths of the capital. It appears to me, that the plan is a good one, provided there were no other Banks, & would be very profitable, under such a Bank the people would receive immense accommodation, & it would bring forth the resources of the country & accelerate its improvement beyond example

The whole strength and object of the Bank would tend to this point, instead of being frittered away in idle and useless opposition to each other, as a number of small Banks must necessarily be engaged in for self-preservation, without advancing the public prosperity more than they are forced to do.

It is supposed that should this Bank be established, that the Stockholders of the Bank of Upper Canada and of the Commercial Bank of the Midland District, would feel the necessity of surrendering their charters in order to become incorporated in such an institution, and it would soon prove itself to be the best Bank Stock in North America.

The annual Election of Directors as proposed would render the institution extremely popular, as there never could exist any undue bias of political feeling in its transactions.

As it would take some time to bring a Bank of this description into operation, it might perhaps be as well in the mean while, to increase the Capital of the two Chartered Banks as hereinbefore mentioned, with a proviso in their respective Charters, that as soon as the Government is prepared to add its Capital, whether one-half or three-fourths, these Banks shall merge into one great Provincial Institution.

In creating the Government Stock, it might be done on debentures redeemable in a certain number of years, bearing six per cent. in this country, or 5 per cent. in England, and secured on the general revenue of the Province—for if the Province derives the advantage arising from profits, so ought it to bear the responsibility of its own Capital, for if these Debentures are issued on the faith and credit of the Bank, and the Bank should fail, Government would lose nothing altho it had perhaps for years reaped all the advantages, and the loss, whatever it might be, would fall upon the private Stockholders or the owners of the Debentures.

It does not appear to me that in an undertaking of this kind, there is any necessity to pledge the Public Revenue, when money to the amount of £500,000, or a million could be raised in London by mortgaging a portion of the Crown Lands in this Province, if Government would consent—in that case a good foundation would be laid for the Capital of the Bank, and these lands now unproductive or nearly so, would, by this measure, be converted into an active Capital for the Public benefit. This mortgage need not prevent the sale of the land, as the usual sales might still proceed, and the net amount be paid in to a fund for the annual redemption of a portion of these Debentures, so that probably at the end of a term of 20 years, one half or less of the land mortgaged would pay off the whole debt and leave the Government Stock unincumbered. The University and School-lands might, by this plan, be brought into immediate operation and use, and those Corporations would of course hold their proportion of the Public Stock.

The distribution proposed for the Capital of this Bank amongst the different Districts, cannot be fixed by any rule, it is quite ideal, and must depend upon the business to be done, sometimes more, and sometimes less—the Parent Bank being the guide to the whole, and the one that must provide for the general resources.

It is quite useless for me to enter into further details, as many interests must be consulted before a Bank of this kind can be established.

Answers to the questions put by the Honorable the Committee of the House of Assembly on Banking and the Currency.—By CAPT. GEORGE TRUSCOTT R. N.

1st—Do you conceive the Metallic Currency, now within this Province, or what may be brought in by any Legislative Enactment sufficient for the circulating medium thereof?

Abundant, as it is used during the Winter months, at other seasons it may be otherwise: consequent on receiving supplies from the States of almost every article of consumption, either directly or indirectly which has to be paid for in Cash. This must occasion a constant drain until the Ports are closed—any amount imported for some years, in the present state of the Country (Commerce maintaining the present channel) would be fruitless. By a Legislative enactment for raising the price of British specie, will alone keep Silver in this Country, and I may also observe with due submission, it would act as a protecting duty direct and indirect on our neighbours, more than any Law of Taxation that could be passed, and if passed put in force, from the extent and proximity of the coast. It appears from the returns of the Bank of Upper Canada, that there is no lack of the precious metals in this country, but from the young state of the Province, nominally called poverty I presume a large percentage, weekly, of their paper is returned upon them.

2nd Do you conceive it necessary to supply a circulating medium by means of a paper Currency?

The reply is most difficult and delicate, more particularly from the young state of the Country, a large circulation can only be kept up in a rich country, where parties are not obliged instantly to pay out what they receive, consequently returning it immediately upon the Banks, which obliges the Banker to be very careful and watchful to meet the demands.—As a proof of the circulating medium being sufficient for many miles round I beg to refer to the weekly Bank returns.—It is true temporary accommodation might be granted to more applicants but the risk is great to extend it beyond prudence, as general distress and panic must, as was the case in England in the years 1825 and 1826. I have ever been friendly to a paper currency on the ground that specie is a loss to the public, beyond that for the convenience of exchange, inasmuch as a certain interest is derivable from it, if applied as any other commodity in Trade.

- 3rd.—Do you believe that measure can be best accomplished :
- By increasing the Capital of the Bank of Upper Canada ?
 - By increasing the Capital of the Midland District Bank ?
 - By Chartering new Banks in different parts of the Province ?
 - By leaving the subject of Banking on its present footing ?
 - By establishing a Provincial Bank, and on what conditions or plan ? or
 - What other method would you propose to establish a paper Currency, with the greatest advantage and safety to the public ?

I am supported in my views both from Home and the United States, that all charters are dangerous from becoming too frequently political engines of immense power, they answer the purposes of those who chance to be appointed Directors (particularly if in Trade) but only to the public partially, consequently an increase of Capital would tend only to an increase of power and monopoly, without producing the contemplated advantages to the Country. Britain, after all her trials has found it the wisest plan not to interfere, and I should add that the numerous applications for Charters for Provincial Banks have all been rejected during the late Session. As regards the Bank of England the debt of the Country requires a public body to manage the affairs, but it is understood, that that body should and does render every possible assistance, not only to all the Banking interest, but to the public in general without mean jealousy.

As respects a Provincial Chartered Bank, I consider it still a greater Mammoth, destructive of the liberties of the people, and such an engine as to be capable of being turned to the very worst purposes, aye! in not more than three years to return the House of Assembly. I have heard a rumour of making the Notes a legal Tender, such would put thousands a year in the pockets of the opulent, as the notes would be at a large discount within six months.

The Province might be easily supplied, and beneficially so, by Banks being established by private individuals who are as rich as in England, in comparison with the country, where the whole of the Proprietor's property is in all cases liable.

4th.—Do you think it would afford any greater protection to the public, if the names of all the Partners, who may issue Notes or Paper Money, were required to be registered in some Office within the Province, or would it, in your opinion, have a tendency, in any way to prevent the introduction of Capital, or check the operation of Banking by individuals ?

I think it would afford protection to the Public.

5th.—It has been proposed by this Committee to Charter a Provincial Bank with a Capital of £500,000, to be established at the Seat of Government, upon the following principles:—the public to hold $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Stock, instead of $\frac{1}{2}$ as in the original Charter of the Bank of Upper Canada, managed by

1	Director	to be appointed by the Lieutenant Governor,
3	“	“ by the Legislative Council,
6	“	“ by the House of Assembly,
5	“	“ by the Individual Stockholders,
15	“	in all,

To raise the proportion of Capital required by the public, it is proposed to issue Stock bearing an interest of 5 per cent., under the guarantee of the Province—in case the Bank should fail to make payments.

After this Bank shall have been one year in operation—Branches shall be established with a Capital of £100,000, in every District throughout the Province, where the increased business may require it, on the Inhabitants subscribing $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Stock—the proportion on behalf of the Province to be raised by issuing Debentures or Stock, bearing interest at 6 per cent. on the credit of the bank only.

Whatever profits may arise to be appropriated exclusively in payment of the Provincial debt.

Answered by No. 3.

6th.—Do you know the principles on which the Bank of the United States was Chartered ?

I do not.

7th.—Do you know the cause of the dissatisfaction which appears to exist by a part of the public in the United States against that Institution ?

From the same causes arising as given in No. 3.

8th.—Do you understand the Scotch system of Banking ?

Not thoroughly.

9th.—In case a general system of Banking was adopted, do you consider it advisable to introduce a clause compelling the Bank to pay interest on deposits ?

It has always been found in Great Britain to be the best mode not to interfere.

10th.—What premium does the Bank of Upper Canada command in the market at this time ?

About 15 per cent., Premium.

11th.—What premium does the Stock of the Midland District Bank command?

I have heard 9 and 10, Premium.

What is the cause of the difference?

One being established longer than the other, consequently first expences being heavy on them.

13th.—Do you know what premium the Debentures or Stock issued by this Province, at 5 per cent. interest, bear in England?

My last account gives it 8½ per cent., Premium.

14th.—Are the different Agents established by Your Bank paid by the Company or by the individuals borrowing money?

We have no Agents—Brokers transact our business.

16th.—What is the usual profit made on buying and selling exchange between this and New-York,—Montrea and Great Britain?

New York one half per cent.,—Montreal none, but rather a loss—Great Britain ¼ per cent., if exchange steady 17th.—What dividend was paid for the last six months?

18th.—From what period did the reserved profits in your last Return commence to accumulate?

17 & 18—Refer to the Chartered Banks.

You recommend an enactment to establish a value on British Silver, what legal value would you place on coin.

I would make a sterling Shilling Fifteen-pence and other British Silver coin in proportion.

Would it not establish a value much higher than in the United States and Lower Canada?

It would.

Answers to the Questions put by the Honorable the Committee of the House of Assembly on Banking By F. A. HARPER, Esq., Cashier of the Bank of the Midland District.

1st.—Do you conceive the Metallic Currency, now within this Province, or what may be brought in by Legislative Enactment sufficient for the circulating medium thereof?

There can be no doubt that a Metallic Currency would be preferable to a Paper currency, if it was possible to procure such a quantity of gold and silver as would meet the wants of this Colony; but experience has shown, that in a Commercial, and Agricultural country like Upper Canada, it is impossible to procure a circulating metallic currency in sufficient quantities, to meet a moiety of the demand. It might be a curious matter for investigation, to ascertain in moderate accuracy the actual quantity of gold and silver in the Province at this time, and I feel convinced, that the amount would be remarkably small, and totally inadequate to the wants of the Province. I do not conceive that the importation of any quantity of British or Foreign coin would cure the want of it for I do not conceive that any benefit can accrue to the Province, by giving it fictitious value (one above its actual worth) and without this whenever the rate of exchange was high, it would be exported. For instance, a British half crown is current at 2s. 10½d. which is only 3½ per cent, when therefore exchange is 8, it is the cheapest remittance, as insurance can be effected so as to make it available at 6½ or 7 at furthest.

A Provincial coinage is much wanted, and it has been argued with much plausibility, that if it was a little under the standard (that is the usual fineness) it would prevent the money from being exported. I object to this, as I fear it would have a tendency to depreciate the value and currency of our Bank paper beyond the limits of the Province, and consequently have an injurious tendency in our intercourse with other nations. This is a question deserving the serious attention of our Provincial Legislature.

2nd.—Do you conceive it necessary to supply a circulating medium by means of a paper Currency?

I would reply at once, that it is absolutely necessary that a sound paper currency should exist, as paper is found the most convenient. It should however never be forgotten that paper possesses no intrinsic worth, it is a mere representative of money, and is received as such, solely because the holder knows it is convertible at his will into cash, or that it passes in the market as readily as the coin it specifies. Its value is diminished by excessive issue, and a limitation of the issues to the actual demands of trade, will alone maintain its value. The amount therefore of Bank Notes which can be kept in circulation, is regulated solely by the demand of trade, and whenever they issue more than is requisite, it will immediately be returned to their counter to be exchanged for specie.

3rd.—Do you believe that measure can be best accomplished:

- By increasing the Capital of the Bank of Upper Canada?
- By increasing the Capital of the Midland District Bank?
- By Chartering new Banks in different parts of the Province?
- By leaving the subject of Banking on its present footing?
- By establishing a Provincial Bank, and on what conditions or plan? or
- What other method would you propose to establish a paper Currency, with the greatest advantage and safety to the public?

I am of opinion that a sound paper currency would be best accomplished by increasing the Capital Stock of the two Banks now chartered and placing them on equal terms, it may perhaps appear invidious in me, as belonging to one of the Chartered Banks to appear averse to the establishment of others, but I have no hesitation in asserting that the Public would be better accommodated if the number is restricted, for instance, when the Bank of Upper Canada was the only one, the Public were allowed to renew paper by paying twenty per cent., and if a person borrowed £100 he had 15 months to pay it—after the Commercial Bank was in operation it was reduced to 9 months, and if other Banks are established it will be imperative in the Banks to refuse any but business paper that will be returned in full at maturity, and the majority of persons now seeking accommodation will be thrown out. There can be no doubt but the accommodation formerly granted by the Bank of Upper Canada was of great benefit to the people of every description and encouraged the Agriculturist and Mechanic to increase their means of production; for the time granted enabled them to find a market, but that no longer will be the case, when instead of 15 or 9 months, payment must be made in three. Now if the Capital of the present Banks should be so increased as to enable them to establish Offices of Discount and Deposite in the several Townships of the Province where trade shall demand, every accommodation would be afforded and the issues of paper prevented being excessive by a mutual circumspection but which I conceive could not be procured by chartering a number of other Banks.

4th.—Do you think it would afford any greater protection to the public, if the names of all the Partners, who may issue Notes or Paper Money, were required to be registered in some Office within the Province, or would it, in your opinion, have a tendency, in any way to prevent the introduction of Capital, or check the operation of Banking by individuals?

I do not see what benefit would accrue by registering the names of partners engaged in private Banks, but I think some means should be adopted by the Legislature to prevent the Province from being inundated by the paper of private establishments, so as to prevent that distress which must be experienced in case of failure. It is true that the notes of private Banks are merely taken (as are the notes of Chartered ones) on the credit of the partners, but many persons are so needy that they will receive any thing in the shape of money, and no person who has contemplated the distress which followed in England in 1825, by the failure of a great many private Banks, can see their future establishment in this Province without a desire to render them subject to such restrictions as will protect the public and at the same time inflict no injustice on the individuals composing the firm, or preventing the introduction of Capital.

5th.—It has been proposed by this Committee to Charter a Provincial Bank with a Capital of £500,000, to be established at the Seat of Government, upon the following principles:—the public to hold $\frac{1}{2}$ of the Stock, instead of $\frac{1}{3}$ as in the original Charter of the Bank of Upper Canada, managed by

- | | | |
|----|----------|---|
| 1 | Director | to be appointed by the Lieutenant Governor, |
| 3 | “ | “ by the Legislative Council, |
| 6 | “ | “ by the House of Assembly, |
| 5 | “ | “ by the Individual Stockholders, |
| 15 | “ | in all, |

To raise the proportion of Capital required by the public, it is proposed to issue Stock bearing an interest of 5 per cent., under the guarantee of the Province—in case the Bank should fail to make payments.

After this Bank shall have been one year in operation—Branches shall be established with a Capital of £100,000 in every District throughout the Province, where the increased business may require it, on the Inhabitants subscribing $\frac{1}{3}$ of the Stock—the proportion on behalf of the Province to be raised by issuing Debentures or Stock bearing interest at 6 per cent. on the credit of the bank only.

Whatever profits may arise to be appropriated exclusively in payment of the Provincial debt.

To the plan of a Provincial Bank there are many objections the principal of which are, 1st.—It would be a monopoly to which the Public would never submit, for with the Capital proposed, no other Bank could successfully compete. In the election of Directors the three estates of the Government being equal, should have equal representatives. Viz

|---|----------------------------|
| 4 | By the Lieutenant Governor |
| 4 | By the Legislative Council |
| 4 | By the House of Assembly. |
| 4 | By the Stockholders. |

I do not think that capital will be found to the extent proposed to be invested, at 5 per cent interest.

6th.—Do you know the principles on which the Bank of the United States was Chartered?

I am not acquainted with the principal on which the Bank of the United States was chartered. I only understand that it loans money at 6 per cent, and is authorized to establish Branches in every State in the Union, which is not the case with any other Bank.

7th.—Do you know the cause of the dissatisfaction which appears to exist by a part of the public in the United States against that Institution?

The Bank of the United States has done a great deal of good in equalizing Exchanges over the Union, but it has an undue influence in regulating Foreign Exchange—when they choose to enter the market they can by their extensive transactions lower or raise the rate of premium as it may suit their views, this with other charges against the management of the Institution has prejudiced the public against them and they now consider it a monster which they would be glad to get rid of.

8th.—Do you understand the Scotch system of Banking?

I am sufficiently acquainted with the Scotch system of Banking to give it as my decided opinion, that it is not calculated for the present state of this Province. In Scotland a cash account is opened with two or more securities as the extent of the credit may require—those sureties are men of Real Estate or otherwise considered wealthy and who do not require accommodation from the Banks and whose real estate in case of need can be realized at once—can such sureties be found here? if the system were to be adopted the Banks would soon have their funds locked up in lands. For instance, we suppose a gentleman possessed of property worth £5000 borrows from the Bank £2000 which they pay in their notes and which is expended in improving the property by building Mills &c. Now this money is paid to different individuals who wish to convert it into specie, and are necessarily put to the inconvenience and expence of procuring it from other sources than the property of the borrower.

9th.—In case a general system of Banking was adopted, do you consider it advisable to introduce a clause compelling the Bank to pay interest on deposits?

It would be the ruin of Banks to make them give interest on deposits by law, they cannot afford it as a great part of their Capital is laying dead in the vaults—whereas in Great Britain, it is generally employed in purchase of Public Stock bearing interest, which can be realized at any moment the Bank may require it. The Commercial Bank gives a small rate of interest on deposits lodged for 6 or 12 months, but this they have done to enable them to give more accommodation to the Public until their Capital is increased—when that is granted they will be paid off.

10th.—What premium does the Bank of Upper Canada command in the market at this time?

I believe the rate of premium on the Stock of the Bank of Upper Canada, to be 15 per cent.

11th.—What premium does the Stock of the Midland District Bank command?

10 per cent.

12th.—What is the cause of the difference?

The cause of this difference is easily accounted for, the Bank of Upper Canada is an old established Institution which has been paying for some years dividends of 8 per cent. per annum, besides bonuses—this is to be attributed to the large sums deposited in that establishment without interest, and which of course must add considerably to their profits—on the other hand, the Commercial Bank is a young Institution just entering into life, with but small deposits in comparison with the other—still there is not a Bank in the two Provinces, the value of whose Stock rose so rapidly in the same time it has been established.

13th.—Do you know what premium the Debentures or Stock issued by this Province, at 5 per cent. interest, bear in England?

I am not aware that any Debentures or Stock issued by the Province at 5 per cent. has been sold in England—further than the loan negotiated by the Receiver-General thro' Messrs. Thomas Willson and Co., London.

14th.—Are the different Agents established by Your Bank paid by the Company or by the individuals borrowing money?

The Agents are all paid by this Bank.

15th.—What per centage is charged by the different agencies in remitting money to this principal or Mother Bank, or what more do they charge for negotiating exchange than at the principal Bank?

The Agents of the Commercial Bank are directed to charge $\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. for drafts on the Mother Bank, or the office at Toronto, as the Bank sells none but its own Exchange, the rates are the same at the Bank and its Agencies.

16th.—What is the usual profit made on buying and selling exchange between this and New-York,—Montreal and Great Britain?

There is no profit whatever in exchange between this and the Lower Province, as the charge made on Cashing drafts, does not pay the expence of Agents. The premium between this and New York, is liable to fluctuation according to the rate of Exchange on London or the demand—it ranges from Par to 2 per cent Premium. With respect to the profit made on Exchange transactions with Great Britain, it sometimes proves a good speculation and sometimes a bad, the fluctuation for some months past in the rate of premium has been so great that it has baffled the most experienced in those matters.

17th.—What dividend was paid for the last six months?

The dividend paid on the first of December last, was 4 per cent. on the Stock.

18th.—From what period did the reserved profits in your last return commence to accumulate?

The reserved profits commenced accumulating on the 1st December, 1833.

ANSWERS

To "The Questions proposed by the Committee appointed by the House of Assembly to enquire into the expediency of Establishing a Provincial Bank within this Province" by J. C. Green Esq.

1st.—Do you conceive the Metallic Currency, now within this Province, or what may be brought in by Legislative Enactment sufficient for the circulating medium thereof?

The Metallic Currency now in the Province is not sufficient of itself as a circulating medium, to carry on the business of the country—it may be adequate as an integral part of the circulation, but I am of opinion that in the course of another year, the amount will be much reduced unless some enactment pass the Legislature to raise the standard of Gold and Silver, and place it at least upon a par with that of the United States

2nd.—Do you conceive it necessary to supply a circulating medium by means of a paper Currency?

Any Country which should abandon a paper Currency, and confine itself to the precious metals, would most certainly retrograde in the scale of improvement. The diminished amount of such a circulation would instantly produce a depression in the money price of all commodities,—Mercantile credit would be impaired—the spirit of improvement would be paralyzed, and the industrious laborer would transfer his energies to other lands, instead of languishing without productive employment in this.

Excessive issues of paper are doubtless to be deprecated, but almost every where they carry with them their own corrective, and always prove more injurious to the individual than the public. In a poor country dependent upon Agriculture, where the value of money is high, over issues cannot be profitably maintained; no man can afford to keep money unemployed—it passes from hand to hand rapidly—from the farmer to the tradesman and laborer—from the tradesman to the Merchant, and from the Merchant to the Bank, either to liquidate prior advances or to pay for Foreign Commodities. In no Society can paper be considered in excess, where it is at all times convertible into Coin and maintains itself at par in its relations with Foreign States. At this time the balance of our exchanges is in favor of the Province, and has been so upwards of a year.

3rd.—Do you believe that measure can be best accomplished:

—By increasing the Capital of the Bank of Upper Canada?

—By increasing the Capital of the Midland District Bank?

—By Chartering new Banks in different parts of the Province?

—By leaving the subject of Banking on its present footing?

—By establishing a Provincial Bank, and on what conditions or plan? or

—What other method would you propose to establish a paper Currency, with the greatest advantage and safety to the public?

Competition is frequently injurious to the pecuniary interests of individuals and Institutions, but it never fails to introduce improvements and work beneficially for the public. I am not aware of any sufficient reasons for reversing this axiom in the case of Banking; and I would not, therefore recommend any additional Capital to Banks already Chartered, or the instituting of others, with exclusive privileges and limited liabilities

Where there are many Banks, the public are as competent to judge by which their own profit, convenience & security will be best consulted, as they are considered to be, where there are many Stores, from which they may select their Goods, or to which they may dispose of their produce.

Restrictions were formerly imposed on Banking in England for the benefit of the Bank of England, but a more enlightened policy and a deeper sense of national justice has removed the fetters; and it is now competent for any number of persons to associate themselves as Banking Corporations, and to sue and be sued in the name of their Cashier. All such parties, however, are held liable for the engagements of the Bank to the full extent of their property; and not, so far as the public is concerned, in proportion to the shares actually possessed by them. In this respect, Joint Stock Banks stand precisely upon the same footing as Private Banks, through the medium of which nine tenths of the business in England is still conducted.

4th.—Do you think it would afford any greater protection to the public—if the names of all the Partners, who may issue Notes or Paper Money—were required to be registered in some Office within the Province, or would it in your opinion, have a tendency, in any way to prevent the introduction of Capital, or check the operation of Banking by Individuals?

I think this proposition perfectly reasonable, and that it would have no prejudicial effect whatever.

5th.—It has been proposed by this Committee to Charter a Provincial Bank with a Capital of £500,000, to be established at the Seat of Government, upon the following principles:—the public to hold $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Stock, instead of $\frac{1}{2}$ as in the original Charter of the Bank of Upper Canada, managed by

1	Director to be appointed by the Lieutenant Governor,
3	“ “ by the Legislative Council,
6	“ “ by the House of Assembly,
5	“ “ by the Individual Stockholders,
15	“ in all.

To raise the proportion of Capital required by the public, it is proposed to issue Stock, bearing an interest of 5 per cent., under the guarantee of the Province—in case the Bank should fail to make payments. After this Bank shall have been one year in operation—Branches shall be established with a Capital of £100,000 in every District throughout the Province, where the increased business may require it, on the Inhabitants subscribing $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Stock—the proportion on behalf of the Province to be raised by issuing Debentures or Stock, bearing interest at 6 per cent. on the credit of the Bank only.

Whatever profits may arise to be appropriated exclusively in payment of the Provincial debt.

A Provincial Bank with a large Capital conducted without reference to partial or political interests, might be rendered highly advantageous to the community, although not very profitable to the State—but there can be no security against its great powers being abused, and all experience is opposed to such a trust being confided in any hands. In fact it would be creating a fourth Estate in the Country capable of moulding and controlling the law of the land.

6th.—Do you know the principles on which the Bank of the United States was Chartered?

I am not aware of there being any feature in the constitution of the Bank of the United States essentially different from similar institutions. It is perhaps most distinguished by its large Capital as compared with other Banks, and by its having been the sole depository of the General Revenue, comprising, as it were under one roof, the English Treasury and the Bank of England. So great a command of money conferred upon the United States Bank extraordinary power and influence through every part of the Union, and these it employed, as it might have been expected to effect a renewal of the Charter on terms more unfavourable to the interests of the public than might have been obtained in other quarters. Hence the resistance on the part of the people, bribery and intimidation on the part of the Directors, and finally universal dissatisfaction.

8th.—Do you understand the Scotch system of Banking?

The Scotch system of Banking is remarkable for its extreme economy, and its adaptation to the wants not merely of the Commercial and Manufacturing classes, but of the Agricultural also. The circulating medium is confined within the narrowest limits of which the business of the Country is susceptible. There is no excess lying unproductive in the Coffers of the rich, the till of the tradesman, or the chest of the farmer.

It is returned upon the Banks with a rapidity unknown elsewhere, in consequence of a moderate interest being allowed on deposits however temporary or insignificant in amount, thus the charge of any Bank for advances is diminished by these daily returns, and the party is enabled to compete in trade or agriculture upon more favorable terms than if no such system prevailed. It is just as much the interest of nations to produce cheaply as it is of Individuals.

The system of “Cash Credits” is I believe peculiar to Scotland, & to the landholder it is particularly beneficial, because he is enabled to obtain advances, as he actually requires them, not by the expensive process of a mortgage, but upon a personal bond with two sureties. These credits are not granted indiscriminately, and for all purposes, but chiefly to parties whose pecuniary business bears a large proportion to the accommodation required.

It is stated upon competent authority that the deposits in the joint Stock Banks of Scotland, including the two chartered Banks, amount to upwards of Twenty Millions Sterling; and it is supposed that about one fourth of this sum is loaned out to the public on Cash credits. The Interest paid in the one case, and charged in the other, varies between one and two per cent.

This mode of transacting business, which has arisen out of competition is so generally approved of & possesses so much stability, that a run upon a Bank is unknown, and Gold is never seen in circulation. The exchanges between the various Banks are made twice a week at Edinburgh, and the balances settled by bills on London. It is understood that the entire issues of a Scotch Bank are returned in about two months.

9th.—In case a general system of Banking was adopted, do you consider it advisable to introduce a clause compelling the Bank to pay interest on deposits?

Such a clause would be contrary to the spirit of our free institutions; and would be unavailing. Leave Banking open to fair honorable competition, and provided temporary deposits can be made productive in the present situation of the Province, which is my opinion, Interest will speedily be paid to the Depositors, or they will withdraw their accounts from the Banks opposed to such a measure.

10.—What premium does the Bank of Upper Canada command in the market at this time?

I believe a premium of about 16 per cent.

11th.—What premium does the Stock of the Midland District Bank command?

Probably about 10 per cent.

12th.—What is the cause of the difference?

The longer standing of the Bank and its connection with the Government.

13th.—Do you know what premium the Debentures or Stock issued by this Province, at 5 per cent. interest, bear in England?

I am informed at about 5 per cent premium ex-dividend.

14th.—Are the different Agents established by Your Bank paid by the Company or by the individuals borrowing money?

We have no Agents nor Branches, and are only in communication with a few Discount Brokers

15th.—What per centage is charged by the different agencies in remitting money to this principal or Mother Bank, or what more do they charge for negotiating exchange than at the principal Bank?

Not applicable.

16th.—What is the usual profit made on buying and selling exchange between this and New-York,—Montreal and Great Britain?

On New York, about a half per cent, on Montreal no nett profit, and on Great Britain, an average of three quarters per cent.

17th.—What dividend was paid for the last six months?

Applicable to the Chartered Banks.

18th.—From what period did the reserved profits in your last Return commence to accumulate?

Applicable to the Chartered Banks.

Stamford, 5th February, 1835

JOHN CLEVELAND GREEN.

ANSWERS

To "The Questions proposed by the Committee appointed by the House of Assembly to enquire into the expediency of Establishing a Provincial Bank within this Province" by Benjamin Thorne Esq

1st.—Do you conceive the Metallic Currency, now within this Province, or what may be brought in by Legislative Enactment sufficient for the circulating medium thereof?

Unless I knew the amount which by Legislative Enactment was to be brought into the Province it is impossible to say whether with the existing Stock there would be sufficient for the various and necessary exchanges of property. The quantity of money which can circulate in any country must be determined by the aggregate amount of its wealth arising from land and labor and all the various sources of productive industry, and the amount required must be always varying according to the aggregate value of the different objects for which it is exchanged. This being purely an agricultural country it must be obvious that the bulk of our wealth consists in the productions of the soil, and the export value of the surplus we have to dispose of must in a great measure regulate the quantity of money that can circulate, whether that be specie or paper.

2nd.—Do you conceive it necessary to supply a circulating medium by means of a paper Currency?

Paper being a much cheaper medium of exchange than Gold or Silver it must certainly be to the advantage of every community to adopt it, provided the issuers of it be controlled by judicious and wholesome regulations. It has generally been supposed that its convertibility into specie on demand at the will of the owner was of itself a sufficient check to prevent improvident issues.—Experience, however, proves that something more is wanting to give solidity to a system which if rightly applied cannot but add to the common stock of a country.

Mr. Charles Grant in debating upon this subject says "the great problem with respect to Currency is to discover that check whereby the evil we wish to avoid may be arrested before it takes place. The principle should be preventive rather than corrective.—His honorable friend (Mr. Smith) seemed to think that the convertibility of paper into Gold would operate as a sufficient check to arrest its progress; and in this opinion he was certainly supported by high authority amongst whom were some of the wisest men that composed the Bullion Committee.—They all agreed upon the necessity of the convertibility of paper into Gold in order to establish a sound Currency. The science of Currency (for it deserved the name of science) was every day acquiring additional light, in fact it was now in a state of experiment. It appeared to him that those who supported the Bullion Report were led to rely too exclusively on this check not merely to correct the evil when it does take place, but to operate as a preventive by which to guard against the extension of it beyond a certain point. There was no doubt of the check but it may be so tardy in its progress as to produce the evil itself; because it is a check that operates not by necessity but by the discretion and judgement of those by whom the paper is issued.

It was clear then from what had occurred that the check provided by the convertibility of Notes into gold operated so tardily as to be inadequate to avert the evil, and it ought to be the leading principle in every sound currency to provide the means of arresting the evil before it arrives at its height.

Conceiving as I do that in this Province we require a considerable addition to our circulating medium, so that an individual may at all times & with facility be enabled to exchange the whole surplus of the products of his industry, and to purchase with the proceeds any of the products of the industry of others which he may want. The great desideratum then in paper currency is to guard against an excessive circulation on the one hand and on the other to have such a supply as is compatible with the wealth and progress of society. That we do not possess it at present if we compare our situation with that of other Countries and more particularly that of a neighboring one, whose habits, views and pursuits approximate nearer to our own than any other, I am fully persuaded, and I will illustrate this subject by observing that according to Mr. Gallatin's estimate the amount of currency for Europe & America may be estimated at two thousand three hundred millions Dollars, three fourths of which is composed of the precious metals, or five hundred and seventy five millions of paper, of which two hundred and seventy five millions circulate in England, Scotland, and America, which in proportion to the population is about nine dollars in paper and eight dollars and three quarters in specie or four pounds eight shillings and nine pence Currency a head in England and Scotland, and five dollars 29 cents paper and two dollars 67 cents specie or near two pounds a head in America, and at the rate of less than five dollars in Russia, which is supposed to have a Currency composed mostly of paper of one hundred and thirty two millions dollars for thirty five millions of people, say from Archangel to Odessa, to the confines of Asia.

France, nine-tenths of which is composed of the precious metals, from two thousand to two thousand five hundred millions francs, equal to seventy-two to eighty francs, or from thirteen and a-half to fifteen dollars a head.

The Currency of England and Scotland is supposed to be composed of thirty-two millions pounds of paper, twenty-two of gold and eight of silver. For the quantity of Banking Capital to produce the above results in England and Scotland, there is no data, no return being made by private Bankers of the Capital employed by them, which constitutes one of the great objections to private Bankers. In the United States in 1829, the Banking Capital of all the different States including the United States Bank, was 145,434,361 dollars, or equal to about 12 dollars a head,—of more recent date 1833, and 1834, the Banking Capital is 200,323,791, and notes in circulation 771,433,732. with specie and funds, 17,081,704—allowing the population to have increased one million since 1829, there would be about sixteen dollars a head, and between six and seven dollars of paper circulation, a head which I consider to be excessive, and accounts for the very great derangement we have witnessed in the Currency of that country considering the amount of Capital, and circulation in 1829, to be more sound and healthy than the latter date, I assume that as my data in estimating the probable amount of Banking Capital that may be created in this country, looking forward to a progressive improvement of the circumstances of the people, and a more general development of the resources of the Province.

I assume that the population of this Province is three hundred and fifty or sixty thousand people. We have now Banking Capital for only three hundred thousand pounds, or not twenty shillings a head. Allowing that we were put upon the same footing as in the United States 1829, with respect to these facilities, we ought to have a Capital of one million and eighty thousand pounds. I have therefore drawn up a plan for a more general distribution of Capital throughout this Province, which I beg herewith to submit for your consideration.

My opinion is, that the best system of Banking is that which is carried on by Joint Stock Companies, and my opinion as to making Stockholders personally responsible beyond the amount of capital subscribed remains unchanged, and is only confirmed by all I read on the subject. All the good effects which were supposed would flow from the alteration of the Law in England in 1826, with respect to Banking, have been in great measure paralysed by this unnecessary clog. I cannot look upon it in any other way than as a scheme on the part of the friends and Directors of the Bank of England, not to surrender into the hands of other Capitalists any share in the circulation of the Country.

Mr. Joscelyn an eminent writer on Currency, on this subject says, in allusion to this personal responsibility, "the consequence of this has been that the Banks which have been formed have been constructed on wrong principles.—They are a great improvement upon private Banks, but the credit of banks ought always to be founded on paid up capital; whereas they in general have been formed with very small capitals, depending for their credit upon the personal responsibility of their shareholders; and these are the worst description of joint stock Banks---when we were constructing a new system, it might as well have been done on the best principle at once."

Had the plan I suggested last year to the Committee on Banking, of increasing the capital stock of the Bank of Upper Canada been adopted, the loan authorised to be borrowed in London might have been taken by that Institution; by which a considerable saving to the country might have been effected; and it is fair to presume, that a considerable portion of the interest arising therefrom would have been expended in the Province. The advantages accruing to the Province from such expenditure, would be very considerable, though not so great as estimated by some. It is only that portion of it which is expended in the wages of servants and mechanics, the productions of the soil and the profits of the Merchant on the goods imported from foreign countries, that is added to our annual income---these however are very important items, and absorb the greater part of individual income.

Borrowing money for very long periods, I do not look upon as advantageous to the borrower, as the numerical amount of all capital must continue to diminish, unless very considerable additions are made to the stock of the precious metals (always the superstructure on which paper can be raised) by the discovery of new and productive mines. According to Mr. Jacob's report, the stock has diminished upwards of sixty millions in a little better than 20 years, whilst the wealth and population of the world have been gradually progressing.

If, in this country, we go on year after year increasing our public debt, without at the same time extending to the people generally throughout the Province those facilities which will promote the growth of individual wealth and industry, it must be evident to every one who reflects upon the subject, that such debt will ultimately press heavily upon them,---whereas if by their instrumentality, the resources of the country be proportionately developed, luxury, intelligence and comfort will be the issue.

I look upon the present period as a most favourable one to promote increase of capital in this country---much of the capital invested in the U. States Bank belongs to foreigners, and when paid off will be employed some where--and as it belongs mostly to English capitalists, it is possible that by judicious policy, on our parts some portion of it may be attracted to this Province.

In conclusion then I would observe that Banks are the important instruments in bringing the borrowers and lenders together---the medium by which the savings of the one and the gradual expenditure of the other are respectively brought together. In new countries they give proper direction to capital by divesting the timid of their scruples and encouraging the enterprising and industrious, in loaning to them what would otherwise be frequently dormant and inactive.

BENJ. THORNE.

Thornhill, February, 3rd, 1835.

I propose that the Bank of Upper Canada be allowed to establish Agencies in such parts of the Province as the Directors may select, not exceeding more than one in a District. All public monies received by the respective officers of government, to be deposited with the Bank of Upper Canada, which would lessen the responsibilities of any public functionary in the receipt of large sums.

No Bank to be allowed to loan more than one and a half the amount of its Capital including the advance to Government. nor issue more than the amount of its Capital, in notes, nor to issue any note below 4 dollars---by which a much larger circulation of specie would be kept up in the Province, for what is called consumptive circulation would in a great measure be made up of this kind of money.

No Bank to go into operation until fifty per cent of the Capital stock be paid in; a proportionate amount may be received in Government Securities, the Debentures belonging to the respective Banks to be deposited with the Receiver General or some proper Officer appointed by the Government; half yearly statements of the affairs of the Bank to be returned to him under oath and the same to be published in the Gazette. Any Bank refusing to pay its notes or deposits in them if demanded to be liable to pay interest on the same at the rate of twenty per cent per annum.

Upon mature reflection I do not think that loans on Government securities should be included in the amount which Banks may be allowed to lend. This restriction should only apply to notes discounted.

I see by a Table of foreign Gold Coins that the true value of the sovereign weighing 113-18-11-2-24 Grains fine compared with the American eagle of 232 grains fine is 487 7-100 or about £1 4 4 Halifax Currency. This is also the true par of exchange between the United States and London and is equal to a premium of 9 7-10 per cent as near as can be calculated on the nominal par of $4 44 or 109 7-10 per 100.

The Exchange between New-York, and this is $1\frac{1}{2}$ but may, I think, be called 1 in any calculation to be made in fixing a Standard for this Currency.

The House of Assembly to appoint five and the Executive four and the public twelve Directors for the Provincial Bank, or Bank of Upper Canada---the spirit of the present act, with respect to their election or appointment being preserved.

It may be necessary to make some change with respect to the value of Gold, so as to make it a legal tender at or about the value which is now attached to it upon this Continent ; repealing at the same time such acts as may apply to any regulation of the value thereof.

A Colonial silver coinage would be highly desirable, and some plan should be adopted to introduce it The value to be set on silver is a question requiring much consideration, and the necessary information may be obtained from persons well acquainted with exchange,

Will not give an opinion on this subject.

5th.—It has been proposed by this Committee to Charter a Provincial Bank with a Capital of £500,000, to be established at the Seat of Government, upon the following principles:—the public to hold $\frac{3}{4}$ of the Stock, instead of $\frac{1}{4}$ as in the original Charter of the Bank of Upper Canada, managed by

Whatever profits may arise to be appropriated exclusively in payment of the Provincial debt.

I think it will be a political engine to destroy the liberties of the people.

I think it will be fatal to the Institutions now established, so much so, that if established I would sell out my Stock in both Banks in which I hold considerable amount. I have been against all Banks, but when I found they would be established I determined on taking a large amount of Stock and feel myself deeply interested in their success.

ANSWERS.

To “ The questions proposed by the Committee appointed by the House of Assembly to enquire into the expediency of establishing a Provincial Bank within this Province” by John S. Baldwin Esq.

1st. Do you conceive the Metallic Currency, now within this Province, or what may be brought in by Legislative Enactment sufficient for the circulating medium thereof?

I consider that a metallic currency may be very much aided by Legislative interference and that the thing requires it.

2nd.—Do you conceive it necessary to supply a circulating medium by means of a paper Currency.

3rd.—Do you believe that measure can be best accomplished:

- By increasing the Capital of the Bank of Upper Canada?
- By increasing the Capital of the Midland District Bank?
- By Chartering new Banks in different parts of the Province?
- By leaving the subject of Banking on its present footing?
- By establishing a Provincial Bank, and on what conditions or plan? or
- What other method would you propose to establish a paper Currency, with the greatest advantage and safety to the public?

I do not consider it by any means necessary to adopt measures to establish a paper currency to a greater extent than we already have; as it is in my opinion fully established, that the Province will not sustain a greater portion making all due allowance for the gradual increasing wealth of the country and when required by enabling the present chartered Banks to meet it, is in my opinion the most prudent measure to adopt. as I certainly disapprove of establishing Banks in the outer Districts, thinking there is not sufficient wealth to sustain them.

4th.—Do you think it would afford any greater protection to the public, if the names of all the Partners, who may issue Notes or Paper Money, were required to be registered in some Office within the Province, or would it, in your opinion, have a tendency, in any way to prevent the introduction of Capital, or check the operation of Banking by individuals?

I see no possible use in registering the names of persons engaged in Banking with us, our two Banks are chartered on such equitable grounds, the Stockholder has paid up every shilling he has subscribed, thereby giving the Public very fair security in case of any defalcation and in consequence I consider it extremely unjust towards those Banks that any person or persons in the Province should be allowed to force a paper currency into circulation, without the public knowing or any means of knowing whether there is one shilling deposited in any Bank or country liable to their acts or deeds here, nor perhaps one foot of real estate in question, to give them the appearance of responsibility, so that every one holding notes of such a description runs a risk as there appears to be no security for the ultimate payment.

5th.—It has been proposed by this Committee, to Charter a Provincial Bank with a Capital of £500,000, to be established at the seat of Government upon the following principles:—the public to hold $\frac{3}{4}$ of the Stock, instead of 4 as in the original Charter of the Bank of Upper Canada, managed by

1	Director to be appointed	by the Lieutenant Governor,
2	“	“ by the Legislative Council,
3	“	“ by the House of Assembly,
4	“	“ by the Individual Stockholders,

15 “ in all,

To raise the proportion of Capital required by the public it is proposed to issue Stock bearing an interest at 5 per cent., under the guarantee of the Province—in case the Bank should fail to make payments.

After this Bank shall have been one year in operation—Branches shall be established with a Capital of £100,000 in every District throughout the Province, where the increased business may require it, on the Inhabitants subscribing $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Stock—the proportion on behalf of the Province to be raised by issuing Debentures or Stock bearing interest at 6 per cent. on the credit of the Bank only.

Whatever profits may arise to be appropriated exclusively in payment of the Provincial debt.

From the reasons already stated I disapprove of a Provincial Bank entirely; fully convinced that we have all in that way, that we want, it is actual Capital is wanted in this Country now, not an imaginary one more than we have, and I feel convinced, that increasing the facility of borrowing money on Banking principles or by means of a loan Office, and the propensity to indulge in it will end in a large portion of the real estate of the Country being sold and purchased by speculators to the prejudice of the present owners.

Do you know the principles upon which the Bank of the United States was chartered?

I really know nothing of the principles upon which the United States Bank was chartered.

7th—Do you know the cause of the dissatisfaction which appears to exist by a part of the public in the United States against that Institution?

I have been led to believe that the dissatisfaction felt towards the U. S. Bank by the Executive authority, and a large portion of the people is grounded on the circumstance of Stock to a certain extent being held by Foreigners particularly in England and the political influence it has in all parts of the union from its extensive means.

8th.—Do you understand the Scotch system of Banking.

I am not sufficiently acquainted with the Scotch system of Banking, to give a satisfactory opinion.

9th.—In case a general system of Banking was adopted, do you consider it advisable to introduce a clause compelling the Bank to pay interest on deposits?

I see no necessity to oblige a Bank to pay interest on deposits the accommodation is mutual, and the depositor expects his Money will be ready for him any time at a moments warning, If it should be for the benefit of a Bank to pay interest on deposits they will do so, and the Public will know it sufficiently soon to demand it, but it does not require Legislative interference.

10th.—What premium does the Bank of Upper Canada command in the market at this time?

The Stock of the Bank of Upper Canada I believe is worth from 16 to 16 $\frac{1}{2}$ per Cent premium.

11th.—What premium does the Stock of the Midland District Bank command?

The Stock of the Midland District Bank or its value I am not so well acquainted with, but have been told is worth 8 per cent premium.

12th.—What is the cause of the difference?

This difference may arise from various causes, the Bank of Upper Canada is the oldest institution it has always done well, paid a good dividend and occasionally a Bonus, it perhaps has the largest surplus fund just now, the Provincial Government being concerned in it, it has offices or Agents in most parts of the Country capable of sustaining them, and generally conducted with a degree of prudence that would do Credit to any Institution.

13th —Do you know what premium the Debentures or Stock issued by this Province, at 5 per cent. interest, bear in England?

I know nothing of what the Provincial 5 per cent Debentures sell for in England.

14th.—Are the different Agents established by Your Bank paid by the Company or by the individuals borrowing money?

Not being in the Direction of the Bank of Upper Canada now, I cannot say how its Agents are paid, but when I had the honour of a seat at its Board, I never heard of any agent or agents being compensated any other way than by a fixed salary established by the Board of Directors at the head Bank

15th.—What per centage is charged by the different agencies in remitting money to this principal or Mother Bank, or what more do they charge for negotiating exchange than at the principal Bank?

16th.—What is the usual profit made on buying and selling exchange between this and New-York,—Montreal and Great Britain?

17th.—What dividend was paid for the last six months?

18th.—From what period did the reserved profits in your last Return commence to accumulate?

None of these come within my observations now, unless the last dividend the Bank paid which was four per cent.

GENERAL REMARKS.

I certainly consider it an injustice to the chartered Banks as well as a risk to the public to allow any person or persons to be forcing paper in the shape of Bank notes into circulation without security being given for its redemption and that such person or persons ought to be obliged to state to the proper authorities of the Province what sum or sums they have properly deposited and liable to their acts and deeds within the same and to restrict them in going beyond a proper amount of issues compared to it.

I am well convinced that Banking in a New Country is attended with many advantages when properly conducted, but if not so managed and allowed to go beyond what its means would justify or the wants of a country to a certain extent, it will become one of the greatest evils; and when there is a propensity in the country to borrow money for various purposes, more particularly speculative motives, I am under the impression the general results would not be beneficial.

A proof that the country will not bear a greater portion of paper circulation than it sustains at present is, that on an over proportion being issued it will with a great proportion of the whole at once find its way into the hands of the trading or Mercantile part of the community by whom it is instantly returned or transmitted to Montreal or Quebec, by which means it is put out of circulation, and Gold or Silver or Bills on England demanded for it, this has frequently been to such an extent that the Banks have stopped discounting for short periods.

ANSWERS

To "The Questions proposed by the Committee appointed by the House of Assembly to enquire into the expediency of Establishing a Provincial Bank within this Province" by Charles Bowman, Esq, Montreal.

1st.—Do you conceive the Metallic Currency, now within this Province, or what may be brought in by Legislative Enactment sufficient for the circulating medium thereof?

I do not—if we were to import any quantity of specie, it must go back so long as the balance of Trade is against this Country.

2nd.—Do you conceive it necessary to supply a circulating medium by means of a paper Currency?

I do.

3rd.—Do you believe that measure can be best accomplished,

—By increasing the Capital of the Bank of Upper Canada?

—By increasing the Capital of the Midland District Bank?

—By Chartering new Banks in different parts of the Province?

—By leaving the subject of Banking on its present footing?

—By establishing a Provincial Bank, and on what conditions or plan? or

—What other method would you propose to establish a paper Currency, with the greatest advantage and safety to the public?

Not by increasing the Capital of one Bank to the prejudice of another.

I do not approve of chartering a number of local Banks.

I think Banks should not be left as they are, that is for private Bankers to issue notes at pleasure, without being under some Legislative control.

A Provincial Bank with a large capital can afford greater security to the public, than by having that capital divided in a number of Banks, and can also afford the public greater accommodation with less risque.

4th.—Do you think it would afford any greater protection to the public—if the names of all the Partners, who may issue Notes or Paper Money—were required to be registered in some Office within the Province, or would it, in your opinion, have a tendency in any way to prevent the introduction of capital, or check the operation of Banking by Individuals?

I think the names should be registered in some place where the public may have access to know the names of Individuals. I do not approve of private Banks being established in this Province in consequence of the risque always attending an over issue of notes by individuals.

5th It has been proposed by this Committee to Charter a Provincial Bank with a Capital of £500,000, to be established at the seat of Government, upon the following principles:—the public to hold $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Stock, instead of $\frac{1}{2}$ as in the original Charter of the Bank of Upper Canada, managed by

1	Director to be appointed	by the Lieutenant Governor,
2	“	“ by the Legislative Council,
3	“	“ by the House of Assembly,
4	“	“ by the Individual Stockholders,

15 “ in all.

To raise the proportion of Capital required by the public, it is proposed to issue Stock, bearing an interest of 5 per cent., under the guarantee of the Province—in case the Bank should fail to make payments.

After this Bank shall have been one year in operation—Branches shall be established with a Capital of £100,000 in every District throughout the Province, where the increased business may require it, on the Inhabitants subscribing $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Stock—the proportion on behalf of the Province to be raised by issuing Debentures or Stock, bearing interest at 6 per cent. on the credit of the Bank only.

Whatever profits may arise to be appropriated exclusively in payment of the Provincial debt.

Not having given the details sufficient consideration, I am not prepared to give an answer to this question.

6th.—Do you know the principles on which the Bank of the United States was Chartered?

I do.

7th.—Do you know the cause of the dissatisfaction which appears to exist by a part of the public in the United States against that Institution?

Because the power or direction is vested in Individuals who oppose the present Government.

8th.—Do you understand the Scotch system of Banking?

do.

9th.—In case a general system of Banking was adopted, do you consider it advisable to introduce a clause compelling the Bank to pay interest on deposits?

I do not—It may be advantageous to a few near the Capital, but I do not think it could be extended to advantage throughout the Province.

10th.—What premium does the Bank of Upper Canada command in the market at this time?

About 15 per cent.

11th.—What premium does the Stock of the Midland District Bank command?

About 5 per cent.

12th.—What is the cause of the difference?

By having the command of more capital and having made previous arrangements, on better terms than the Midland District Bank is enabled to do at present.

13th.—Do you know what premium the Debentures or Stock issued by this Province, at 5 per cent. interest, bear in England?

I do not.

It has been recommended to affix a value on British Coin, say the shilling sterling at 15*d.* Halifax currency, What effect would it produce? Ans—It would produce no effect whatever; the exchange will always regulate the value of specie which can never be fairly established by any Legislative enactment—for instance a Banker in London would send, say, £100,000 in shillings for which he would get in return exchange on London at the current rate—the shillings would remain unproductive in the Coffers of the Bank till exchange should so vary, that they would prove a profitable remittance.

ANSWERS

To "The Questions proposed by the Committee appointed by the House of Assembly to enquire into the expediency of establishing a Provincial Bank within this Province," by Wm. Lyon McKenzie Esq

1st.—Do you conceive the Metallic Currency, now within this Province, or what may be brought in by Legislative Enactment sufficient for the circulating medium thereof?

Considering the great natural resources of this Province, and the enterprise and industry of its inhabitants I can see no reason to doubt its ability, under good government, to procure a supply of gold and silver, sufficient for the wants of the population.

2nd—Do you conceive it necessary to supply a circulating medium by means of a paper Currency?

I think it would have been good for the colony if the paper currency had always been restricted to notes of $20 and upwards.

3rd—Do you believe that measure can be best accomplished,

—By increasing the Capital of the Bank of Upper Canada?

—By increasing the Capital of the Midland District Bank?

—By Chartering new Banks in different parts of the Province?

—By leaving the subject of Banking on its present footing?

—By establishing a Provincial Bank, and on what conditions or plan? or

—What other method would you propose to establish a paper Currency with the greatest advantage and safety to the public?

I would be in favor of passing a law laying such restrictions on private banking as might be absolutely necessary for the safety of the community—a law of which all capitalists might avail themselves to establish private banks wherever and whenever they thought fit.

4th—Do you think it would afford any greater protection to the public—if the names of all the Partners, who may issue Notes or Paper Money, were required to be registered in some Office within the Province, or would it, in your opinion, have a tendency in any way to prevent the introduction of capital, or check the operation of Banking by Individuals?

I think the regulation proposed for the registration of partners in Banking institutions would be of service to the community without preventing the investment of capital.

5th It has been proposed by this Committee to Charter a Provincial Bank with a Capital of £500,000, to be established at the seat of Government, upon the following principles:—the public to hold $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Stock, instead of $\frac{1}{2}$ as in the original Charter of the Bank of Upper Canada, managed by

1	Director to be appointed	by the Lieutenant Governor,
3	“	“ by the Legislative Council,
6	“	“ by the House of Assembly,
5	“	“ by the Individual Stockholders,

15 “ in all.

To raise the proportion of Capital required by the public, it is proposed to issue Stock, bearing an interest of 5 per cent., under the guarantee of the Province, in case the Bank should fail to make payments.

After this Bank shall have been one year in operation—Branches shall be established with a Capital of £100,000 in every District throughout the Province, where the increased business may require it, on the Inhabitants subscribing $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Stock—the proportion on behalf of the Province to be raised by issuing Debentures or Stock, bearing interest at 6 per cent. on the credit of the Bank only.

Whatever profits may arise to be appropriated exclusively in payment of the Provincial debt.

Such a Bank would prove a greater scourge to the community than even that partnership institution from which the United States have made provision for emancipating themselves at the expiration of its charter. Such a Provincial Bank as is proposed in the question, would, in all human probability, completely destroy the independence of the House of Assembly; and, being united with the other monopolies which oppress the people, become a grievance of the first magnitude.

7th.—Do you know the cause of the dissatisfaction which appears to exist by a part of the public in the United States against that Institution?

I have a copy of the act, with the several amendments since made in congress. The principle appears to be the same, nearly, as that on which the York, Upper Canada Bank was founded; and there has been a strong resemblance in the working of the two institutions.

8th— Do you understand the Scotch system of Banking?

I have studied it a good deal, and am of opinion that if our banks paid interest on deposits as is the Scottish one.

tom, and if Banking were left to free competition as it is in Scotland, and the number of partners left to the discretion of the parties, an improvement would be effected thereby—although I decidedly disapprove of the Scottish issues of one pound notes. Bad government and dear bought experience have weaned the French from permitting small bills to circulate, and it appears that they find no difficulty in keeping a supply of the precious metals.

9th.—In case a general system of Banking was adopted, do you consider it advisable to introduce a clause compelling the Bank to pay interest on deposits?

Let there be a fair competition in Banking, under the restrictions of a general and well considered statute, or statutes, & interest will be paid on deposits without compulsion.

10th.—What premium does the Bank of Upper Canada command in the market at this time?

I believe the premium within the last six months has ranged from 11 to 15 per cent, and even higher, perhaps, in some cases.

11th.—What premium does the Stock of the Midland District Bank command?

I do not know, but have understood that the value of the Stock is gradually rising.

12th.—What is the cause of the difference?

The Bank of Upper Canada has been long established; is partly upheld by the almost exclusive control of the government deposits; its managers and stockholders are more intimately connected with the government; and the institution transacts a great share of the business of the country. A belief of its solvency and stability, and the advantages it will continue to command from its connexion with the government and its officers, induces purchases to give a high price for its shares—but very little is known of its transactions. I tried last parliament to obtain important information, which even the Bank Solicitor in the House could not deny to be proper, and which the late President of the Board of Trade approved of as fit subjects of enquiry, but found the government and bank influence in the House sufficient for my expulsion and re-expulsion whenever I broached the subject.

13th.—Do you know what premium the Debentures or Stock issued by this Province, at 5 per cent. interest, bear in England?

No.

14th.—Are the different Agents established by Your Bank paid by the Company or by the individuals borrowing money?

This question is not intended for me.

15th.—What per centage is charged by the different agencies in remitting money to this principal or Mother Bank, or what more do they charge for negotiating exchange than at the principal Bank?

This question is not intended for me.

16th.—What is the usual profit made on buying and selling exchange between this and New-York,—Montreal and Great Britain?

The Banks or Mr Cawthra could give the best practical answer to this question.

17th.—What dividend was paid for the last six months?

18th.—From what period did the reserved profits in your last Return commence to accumulate?

17 & 18 Are intended for the Banks themselves.

ANSWERS

To "The Questions proposed by the Committee appointed by the House of Assembly to enquire into the expediency of Establishing a Provincial Bank within this Province" by Thomas Dalton, Esq.

1st. Do you conceive the Metallic Currency, now within this Province, or what may be brought in by Legislative Enactment sufficient for the circulating medium thereof?

The Metallic Currency now within this Province, is not sufficient for the circulating medium thereof, and yearly must become less and less adequate as Population, Agriculture, Commerce and Trade increase, by Commerce I mean the business of exporting and importing to and from Foreign Countries, and by Trade, in land traf fic, I am not aware that Legislative enactments in any country whatever, had ever the power to bring into and to retain within it, the precious metals, unless they were such as were calculated to secure to that country advantageous Commerce, in the track of which the precious metals will follow as a natural consequence.

2nd.—Do you conceive it necessary to supply a circulating medium by means of a paper Currency

I do conceive it absolutely necessary to supply a circulating medium by means of a paper currency, for the simple reason that the existing fund of the precious metals as respects the whole civilized world, is totally inadequate to effect the exchanges of the products of labor, now augmented to an unprecedented extent by the increase of population and Commerce, and the general spread of knowledge and refinement, which have a natural tendency to increase the wants and, consequently, the consumption of the products of labor which are not now, as in the dark ages and rude state of Society, confined to the mere necessities of life, but extend to comforts, conveniences, elegancies and luxuries, the production of which affords gratification to the wealthy and to the industrious Agriculturists, Artizans, Mechanics, and Laborers, a decent and comfortable maintenance, and opens to the more skilful and enterprising, the road to wealth and honors. Even were the precious metals now existing in the shape of Coin adequate to the purposes of exchange, it would be prudent to use a paper currency, in order to preserve them from waste, which is known to be in proportion to the activity of their circulation, and has been estimated to be, upon the average 10 per cent. every thirty-six years, which, in the course of two centuries, will reduce any given amount of Coin of the precious metals to about one-half, how much more then is a paper currency necessary when it is known that exchanges are made annually at the clearing House in London, to above twelve times the amount of all the precious metals in the shape of coin supposed to exist in all Europe and America, the two most Commercial nations in the World.—England and the United States have felt the imperative necessity and enjoyed the unspeakable advantages of a paper currency, to which both are indebted for their unparalleled measure of prosperity. The experience of these two great Nations should be deemed ample testimony of the value of a paper currency, and the practical benefits they have respectively derived from its prodigious powers of improvement, should be sufficient inducement to a young and vigorous Province to follow their example under modifications suited to its circumstances, and to the superior knowledge now abroad on the subject of Banking.

3rd.—Do you believe that measure can be the best accomplished :

- By increasing the Capital of the Bank of Upper Canada ?
- By increasing the Capital of the Midland District Bank ?
- By Chartering new Banks in different parts of the Province ?
- By leaving the subject of Banking on its present footing ?
- By establishing a Provincial Bank, and on what conditions or plan ? or
- What other method would you propose to establish a paper Currency with the greatest advantage and safety to the public ?

I believe that a sound and efficient paper currency can be best, if not alone, made under the present circumstances of the Province, by the establishment of a National or Provincial Bank, for the transactions of which the guarantee of the Province shall be solemnly pledged. I should strongly deprecate the augmenting the Capitals of the present Banks, or the Chartering of any new ones to multiply Banks with limited Capitals upon the principle of allowing them to issue three times the amount subscribed and exonerating the Stockholders from claims of creditors, in case of defalcations arising either from unforeseen & uncontrollable circumstances, or from imbecility, misgovernment, speculation or fraud. The Charters of our Canadian Banks have been made upon the model of the Banks in the United States, against which throughout the whole Union there has been justly raised an almost universal outcry; the principle on which they have been instituted, having been found to be utterly defective, rotten and corrupt; inasmuch as it has opened a door to frauds of the most extensively pernicious character, numerous Banks having failed tens of thousands of dollars in debt, with no assets to be found, the property of the Bankers, being intangible by law. Thus have whole villages been desolated, and hardly earned property been magically transferred from its honest unsuspecting owners, to the possession of chartered monopolists, empowered by law to issue a paper currency, the representative of absolutely nothing. It is the nature of, and consequently inseparable from Banks of limited means, to contract and expend their issues according to circumstances, sometimes discounting freely and then suddenly refusing all discounts, which is an insufferable grievance in any community; rendering the tenure of property a mere lottery subjecting the most solvent Merchants, Tradesmen and Mechanics to sudden ruin, and changing the value of Lands, Houses and every species of property, so unexpectedly and so extensively, that no man on lying down at night, can tell what estate he can count upon when he rises in the morning. This state of things is inseparable from the present American Banking system, a system which if allowed to grow to maturity here, will ultimately deluge the Province with misfortune, poverty and crime, making "the rich richer, and the poor poorer," as it has actually done in the United States, and has consequently raised general disgust among the mass of the people against paper currency altogether, without any discrimination as to quality, the mass of population never being able to distinguish between systems of Banking. That this Province has not suffered, but on the contrary thriven with its present Banks, is not attributable to the goodness of the system on which they are founded, but to a liberality and integrity of management, which it would be unwise to rely on, and absurd even to expect from a greatly multiplied number of institutions exempted by law from any obligation to pay their debts.

4th.—Do you think it would afford any greater protection to the public, if the names of all the Partners, who may issue Notes or Paper Money, were required to be registered in some Office within the Province, or would it in your opinion, have a tendency, in any way, to prevent the introduction of Capital, or check the operation of Banking by individuals ?

I do not exactly comprehend the meaning intended to be conveyed by this question.

5th.—It has been proposed by this Committee, to Charter a Provincial Bank with a Capital of £500,000, to be established at the seat of Government upon the following principles:—the public to hold $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Stock, instead of $\frac{1}{2}$ as in the original Charter of the Bank of Upper Canada, managed by

1	Director to be appointed by the Lieutenant Governor,
3	“ “ by the Legislative Council,
6	“ “ by the House of Assembly,
5	“ “ by the Individual Stockholders,

To raise the proportion of Capital required by the public it is proposed to issue Stock bearing an interest of 5 per cent., under the guarantee of the Province, in case the Bank should fail to imake payments

After this Bank shall have been one year in operation—Branches shall be established with a Capital of £100,000 in every District throughout the Province, where the increased business may require it, on the Inhabitants subscribing $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Stock—the proportion on behalf of the Province to be raised by issuing Debentures or Stock bearing interest at 6 per cent. on the credit of the Bank only.

Whatever profits may arise to be appropriated exclusively in payment of the Provincial debt.

I should not recommend the appointment of any Director by the Lieutenant Governor, more than two by Legislative Council, nor more than four by the House of Assembly, leaving nine to be chosen by the Private Stockholders; all to be chosen from the private holders of Stock to the amount of at least ten shares, & no Officer of the Government being eligible to serve, although a proprietor of ten or more shares. The Governor should choose the President from three persons presented to him as the choice of the majority of the Directors, but the Executive should have no power to nominate, Cashier, Bookkeeper, Teller, Clerk, or servant of any description, nor should any one holding a public office be qualified to serve in the Bank in any capacity whatever. The President and directors on entering into office should be required to subscribe to the following Oath:—

I, A B of———do solemnly swear so to conduct myself in all things pertaining to my Office of Director, or Governor (as the case may be) of the Bank of Upper Canada, as shall promote to the best of my ability, knowledge and belief, the interests, honor and safety of the institution now, by the high favor and good opinion of my fellow citizens in part confided to my trust; showing neither partiality to my friends, nor hostility to my enemies, imagined or real, Religious, Political, or otherwise, but in all things endeavoring to avoid just cause for reproach; and this I swear upon the holy Evangelists, without equivocation or mental reservation. So help me God

Sworn before me or us, (as the case may be,) &c. &c.

Signed.

All servants of the Bank to be chosen by the Directors

No Member of the Legislative Council nor member of Assembly, having assisted in the choice of the Directors, apportioned to those bodies, to be allowed any vote in the Election, of that portion of the Directors to be chosen by the private Stockholders.

With respect to voting by proxy, I would allow such voting; but would restrain any individual or any family from producing at any election of Directors more than three proxies, in order to prevent an accumulation of influence in few hands, which has been justly a subject of great complaint, sometimes one or two persons being able to control the whole Direction.

With these guards, I am not aware how the most fastidious can fear, that the Institution would become a political engine in the hands of the Government, of which indeed it behoves every people to beware of creating.

6th.—Do you know the principles on which the Bank of the United States was Chartered?

7th.—Do you know the cause of the dissatisfaction which appears to exist by a part of the public in the United States against that Institution?

The Bank of the United States is upon the fraudulent system of the other Banks in the Union as regards the Stockholders being exonerated from paying their debts. The dissatisfaction with the Institution first arose from the circumstance that a very large portion of the Stock was held by Foreigners, and especially Englishmen, it having been pretended that they could thereby influence if not control the politics of the Union. This is asserted and denied according to the bias of men's minds.

8th.—Do you understand the Scotch system of Banking.

Yes I understand the Scotch system of Banking. It is the only honest and durable system in the world. It is the system of doing unto others as you would have others do unto you. All the Stockholders are liable in their private estates for the debts of the Bank. They open Cash accounts and give as well as exact Interest, which is the only known check to an over issue of paper money. They receive deposits on Interest of sums as low as a pound which prevents the necessity of safety Banks, and the frauds too often perpetrated by them to the misery of the industrious poor. They thus accumulate in masses all the savings of labour which they lend out on security to those who want to borrow, and thus keep the whole capital of the Country in a constant state of activity : Unless the projected Provincial Bank adopt this system, I think to establish it would be a needless undertaking, but if it proceed on the Scotch System it must be a blessing to the Country of incalculable magnitude.

In case a general system of Banking was adopted, do you consider it advisable to introduce a clause compelling the Bank to pay interest on deposits ?

I know not if it would be advisable to coerce the Bank by law to take deposits on Interest, the true interest of the Bank would dictate such a course, and it would be equally the interest of the Country, for there would be no other means of keeping the whole Capital active, and the usefulness of the Bank would be greatly impaired by any other proceeding.

The rest of the questions it is more in the province of others to answer who are better acquainted with the subjects.

(Signed)

ANSWERS

To "The Questions proposed by the Committee appointed by the House of Assembly to inquire into the expediency of Establishing a Provincial Bank within this Province," by C. Shireff Esq.

I beg leave to submit the following remarks as answers to some of the questions proposed by the Committee appointed by the House of Assembly, to enquire into the expediency of establishing a Provincial Bank within this Province.

While Paper Currency continues in good credit, there can be little more Metallic Currency wanted than what may be reasonably considered a sufficient stock in the Coffers of the Banks to guard against sudden or temporary demands for Coin, and to divide into fractions the Bank Notes of smallest nominal value in the course of their circulation. Whether that quantity be really in the country or not cannot be very easily ascertained—but as there seems to be no difficulty in procuring specie when wanted, it may be concluded that there is sufficient to support the credit of the Paper Currency

A circulating Metallic medium has the advantage over Paper Currency, of carrying with it its own value, or nearly so, its credit, therefore, cannot be affected. But it is expensive and inconvenient, and it is difficult to procure it in sufficient quantities, where trade is extensive, for these reasons—Paper Currency has been generally resorted to in modern times as a substitute.

Banking establishments were, at first, merely places of safety for lodging coin or bullion, and to save trouble a kind of Paper Currency came into practice, called transfers, by which many transactions took place, without receiving or actually paying over the money. This was the plan of the Old Bank of Amsterdam and others. They were called Banks of deposit.—But the system for issuing promissory notes directly from the Banks is now more generally adopted, being a more extended mode of accommodation.

Banks formed by private Individuals, are but of comparatively recent date. Formerly all the Banks in Europe were public Institutions, firmly established on the credit of the country.

The Bank of Venice was under the guarantee of the Republic. Those of Genoa, Amsterdam, &c. were secured on the Revenues of their respective Cities. The Bank of England was the first establishment of this kind which was formed without a pledge from the State—but it soon became intimately connected with the Government, and may now be considered a branch of it. The Bank of Scotland was in operation nearly fifty years before the Royal Bank was established, and at the end of another half century, the British Linen Co. began to issue notes and do business as a Banking Company, in virtue of a clause in its charter granted originally for the purpose of encouraging the manufacture of Linen, as its name imports.

These Banks with their Branches supplied Scotland with Paper Currency for many years, and notwithstanding the estimation in which the Scotch system of Banking is held, I am persuaded that if no other Bank had been allowed to issue Notes, the country would have flourished equally well, and a great deal of mischief might have been avoided.

Indeed, Government so far discouraged it, by uniformly refusing applications for Charters, and by placing the English private Banking Companies under several restrictions.

Ayrshire feels, to this day, the fatal consequences of its Bank issues, & many in other parts of Scotland have been ruined by the unlimited facilities afforded by the numerous private Banks, when trade appeared to be in a prosperous state.

It has been brought forward as an argument in favor of Chartered Banks, that those in Scotland are more respectable and more substantial than the Banks in which the liability was not restricted. But this does not arise from the nature of their formation, but from pos sessing for a long period a monopoly of the currency.

The experience of ages is in favor of Banking for general accommodation being established on the solid basis of Government security. On no other system can the public rest with the same complete and uniform confidence. The very regulations considered necessary in granting a Charter to a private Bank, for its restriction and periodical investigation, indicate a want of inherent stability.

If one Provincial Bank were erected to the exclusion of others, it would, of course, do away competition.—Some may think this a disadvantage, for the saying is proverbial, “competition in trade is public benefit.” But it is not so in Banking. One respectable Bank, with sufficient funds, will do business more freely, more certainly, and to better purpose, both for itself and the community, than when more are established. Rivalship in any other Branch produces exertion, but in Banking, it has the contrary effect of cramping the operations. A singular, I may say, ludicrous instance of this occurred very lately in this Province. Soon after the Rideau Canal was commenced I remarked to one of the Directors of the Bank of Upper Canada, that By-town would be a good station for an Agency. His reply was, “it is too near Montreal.” The same kind of reasoning I presume, regulated the conduct of the Bankers in the Lower Province, and neither the one nor the other ventured to approach such a dangerous point of collision.

Thus while Paper Currency was flowing in great abundance at both ends of the country, its centre was utterly destitute of it, and the contractors on the Canal, who received all their payments from the Commissariat in Silver, were compelled to carry about, like the Lacedemonians of old, their clumsy circulating medium, in carts & wheelbarrows.

Mutual fear and jealousy cramped all the Banking operations in the country, put a certain portion of it to inconvenience, and prevented advantage from being taken of an opportunity for the best and most profitable circulation that can well be conceived,—where paper could have been converted into silver coinage, and the notes scattered over a wide field in payment of laborers wages.

Banking establishments of any description which issue notes, can never be considered as merely private concerns. The moment they go into operation, they assume a public character. By the circulation of their notes they bring every individual into contact with them. They become interwoven with the community, and every member of it is more or less affected by their proceedings, and interested in their fate. When Government therefore sanctions the establishment of a Bank, and grants a Charter for the safety of its Stockholders, some measures should also be adopted for the safety of the public, with whom the Bank, in its operations, must be inevitably blended. Hitherto nothing but external applications have been used for that purpose, such as restricting their circulation, and retaining a power of examining into their state, from time to time,—no means have been applied internally to strengthen the weakness of their constitution, and had I not now some hopes that Chartered Banks will not be multiplied in this Province, I would enter on the debatable field of double liability, and undertake to defend it, as the most effectual mode of giving them that credit with the public, which can only be obtained otherwise, by the accumulation of Stock, in the course of years, but which they will never obtain, if the number be increased in the country for in order to keep on a par with each other and that their prosperity may appear openly to the world, they increase their dividends, and give a bonus occasionally, while very little addition is made to their internal stability the profits being dissipated in this manner, instead of being allowed to accumulate as a sinking fund to form a fixed and steady Capital. Nor are the Directors to blame, for where there are rivalship and competition, it is the only means left them to keep up the price of the Stock, and to preserve the good opinion of the public.

I cannot help expressing an earnest wish that those connected with the two Banks established in this Province, would see it for their interest as much as it would be for the interest of the country to form a junction, that as one extensive Provincial Bank, they might go into free operation, acquiring in time, as other Banks of the same description, no doubt, have done (when guarded from rivalship) a strength and stability which cannot be attained while mutually curbing and opposing each other.

Distant as the Montreal Bank is from the Bank in Toronto, I have given an instance to shew they are still near enough to check and annoy each other, and the time is not far gone by when, if an unfortunate note strayed across the line between the sister Provinces, it immediately lost its original value, and was at a discount even when presented at the Banks, thus mutually stabbing before the eyes of the Public, the whole system in both the Provinces. I once spoke to one of the Bank Agents in the Lower Province on that subject, and to convince me of the propriety of confining the circulation of each Bank to its own Province, he entered upon a process of reasoning which, I confess was far above my capacity to follow. The conclusion seemed to be that considering there was a hostile spirit between the Banks manifested by the mutual exaction of discount on the notes, and other symptoms, it was prudent to prevent their circulation from mixing or coming in contact. The notes might quarrel when they met. The march of liberality or of common sense has, I presume, put an end to this practice, for I have not heard of it lately.

The multiplicity of chartered banks in the United States has been held up for imitation, but if their effect were closely examined, it may not be found to have produced a very desirable state of things. At any rate it is as yet only a country of experiment, we are not to look in that direction for lessons of experience.

Holland has been, for a long period, the mercantile school of Northern Europe. She lost her national bank in the convulsions occasioned by the French Revolution. Another has since been formed in Amsterdam, but circumstances having prevented it from being placed on the footing of the former a charter was granted to it on the usual terms, accompanied, however, with a monopoly of the currency, for fifty years, in order that nothing might be in the way to prevent the Bank from acquiring that stability necessary for public safety, which the charter, in itself, could not confer upon it.

I have already said that the Bank of Scotland stood alone for nearly fifty years, and it is well known that the Bank of England is the only one in that part of Great Britain which has been established by an Act of Parliament if the Westminster Bank, which has been formed lately, has not obtained a Charter.

Having, then, such examples before us, why should we turn our eyes to a wavering unsettled State, whose short span of existence has not yet given it sufficient time to establish a single precedent worthy of reference? Why not follow the policy of our own mother country and of every trading country in Europe?—A policy founded upon the experience of many centuries.

Toronto, February, 1835.

CHAS. SHIREFF.

Since closing this paper, I have been assured that the discount on the notes only took place in Lower Canada.

I have not said, nor do I mean to infer that those in the direction of the Banks in this country have managed them improperly; but if this system be continued, and banks be multiplied upon it, the most prudent conduct will not prevent occurrences much more hurtful than those I have related. If some decided restrictive measure be not adopted, there will be perpetual applications for charters from every quarter of the country, and as one is granted, it will be used as an argument for another.

Suppose the best possible state of things under this system, that the Banks were all conducted with the greatest regularity and prudence, still the inevitable interference and competition which must take place would keep the whole in a state of depression. None of them would attain that solidity and respectability, upon which the public could at all times repose with implicit confidence.

REC. GEN. OFFICE, 15th January, 1835.

Surveyor General's Office,
York, U. C. 7th Feb'y. 1834.

Sir,

I have the honor, in transmitting the accompanying Schedule of lands set apart as Glebes, in the Province of Upper Canada, to observe that they are lands which have been reserved from sale for the purposes named; that the lots specified as appropriated under survey of the Townships were so set aside under an Order in Council, 17th February 1789, from the Province of Quebec, which was previous to reservations of the 7th for the Clergy.

The Town Lots, &c. in York, were given for the use of the Rector, being two acres, under the authority of a Despatch from the Home Government, dated 1823, in order to make up for lands given to Archdeacon Stewart, by order of Mr. President Grant.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,

Your most obedient servant,
S. P. HURD.

COL. ROWAN, &c. &c. &c.

JOHN H. DUNN.

Letter from Archdeacon Strachan to His Excellency Sir John Colborne, respecting an endowment for the Incumbent.

[COPY.]

TORONTO, 31ST JANUARY, 1835.

May it please Your Excellency,

On the first settlement of the City of Toronto, then York, and its establishment as the seat of Government, the following lands were set apart to form an endowment, with the view, as I have frequently heard, of making the living, at no very distant period, equal in value to the office of Puisne Judge in the Court of King's Bench:—

1st. Park Lot No. 11, on which the buildings of the Law Society are now erected, containing one hundred acres.

2nd. A square of six acres in the centre of the town, which, after deducting a portion for the church and burial ground, left upwards of two acres, to be leased or sold as building lots for the benefit of the Incumbent.

3rd. Five Glebe Lots, containing 1000 acres, viz:

- Glebe Lot No. 14, 2d Concession East of Yonge Street.
- do No. 6, 2d Concession from the Bay.
- do No. 22, 2d Concession from the Bay.
- do No. 9, 2d Concession from the Bay.
- do No. 17, 3d Concession from the Bay.

1st. In regard to the two first items I beg leave to remark, that on my removal to York in the spring of 1812, at the particular request of Governor Gore, General Brock, and the principal Inhabitants, I found that they were disposed of, and no longer the property of the Incumbent. I had likewise the mortification to discover that there was neither Parsonage House, nor any allowance from the Parish, both of which I enjoyed at Cornwall. General Brock, on learning these particulars, of which he was till then ignorant, engaged with much kindness to make the Living equal to Quebec or Halifax as soon as he had leisure to take the necessary steps; and he was pleased to add, that he felt himself bound in honour to do so, as he was the principal cause of my accepting the situation of Clergyman of York. The death of that excellent person in the field of battle, and the continuance of the war, prevented me for some years from troubling the Provincial Government with my private affairs; but on the return of peace, I considered it my duty to bring under the consideration of His Excellency Lieutenant Governor Gore the dilapidations which had been committed on the proposed endowments of the Parish.

The first Clergyman, the Rev. Mr. Radish, procured a grant in fee simple of the park lot instead of during his incumbency, and having sold it, returned to England. Thus a property, which would have yielded by this time several hundred pounds per annum, was lost to the Parish for ever.

In regard to the square of six acres, Archdeacon Stuart, who succeeded Mr. Radish, procured a grant of two acres of the portion not appropriated to the Church and Burial Ground, leaving, for the benefit of his successor, an insignificant strip across the middle of the block. The two acres thus improvidently alienated, are so happily situated, being opposite the Market, that they have since been divided into building lots, and yield a large revenue. Governor Gore was so struck with these facts, that he directed a special report on the subject to be made by the Executive Council, which was referred home for the consideration of His Majesty's Government; but it remained without answer till the matter was taken up by His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, who felt strongly the hardship of my situation. Through His Excellency's kind and powerful interference, Lord Bathurst ordered immediately a fresh endowment of lands to be set apart, equal in value to that portion which had been alienated; and although he could not, at so late a period, make up the whole loss which had been sustained, he directed that two thousand acres of land should be given to the Incumbent as some small compensation for the injustice done him, and that the Living should not in future be less than £500 sterling per annum; and in order to secure that amount, His Lordship commanded, that in addition to the allowance granted by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, which was £275 sterling, the further sum of £225 sterling should be paid out of any revenue in the Province at the disposal of His Majesty's Government, but on condition that this annual grant of £225 sterling should cease when the new endowment became available to that extent.

In consequence of these directions, His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland endeavoured, with much anxiety, to find an equivalent; but after repeated search, he could find only two acres to set apart in lieu of the portion of the former endowment, which had been unadvisedly granted, but this was far from being an equivalent, and so far Lord Bathurst's instructions were by no means satisfied. One of these two acres, being that on which the old Gaol stood, has been leased for £150 currency per annum—the other acre, being part of what was formerly the Hospital square, for £100 per annum; thus furnishing yearly £250 currency, or £225 sterling; and consequently the like amount ordered by Lord Bathurst is no longer paid to the Incumbent, who receives these rents instead.

The small strip of the old endowment, already noticed, ought to bring £80; but owing to the various difficulties, it has never yet realised more than £57 10s, and frequently less, per annum.

On the whole, the portion of income arising from the town lots which have been granted by the Crown in trust, for the benefit of the incumbent of this Parish, ought, when regularly paid, to amount to £310 currency per annum.

2nd. In respect to the five Glebe Lots, they have been in possession of the Incumbents of this Parish nearly forty years, with the exception of Glebe Lot No. 6, &c., which was occupied by Paul Marrian and his widow, whom neither of my predecessors nor I ever sought to disturb; but the lot can now be resumed without detriment to any one.

The profits arising from the four lots, which have been actually in my possession for nearly twenty-three years, amount at this date to£119 15 0
Expenses incurred by clearing, fencing, surveying, and running disputed lines, &c.&c. 57 0 0 at least.....

Leaving, during my Incumbency, at the highest calculation,..... £ 52 15 0 or something less than £2 10s. per annum.

It is only of recent date that they have yielded anything, nor can it be expected that they will ever become property available for the support of the Incumbent, till they are made, by special grant, part of the endowment. In the meantime, the Incumbent has been exposed to the hardship of paying from a diminished income, an assistant, whom the increased duties of the Parish render necessary.

From this statement it cannot escape Your Excellency's observation, that during the first twelve years of my Incumbency, the Living was not equal to that which I enjoyed at Cornwall, while the duty was much increased, and the expense of living, the calls of charity, and subscriptions to various institutions, were more than double. In truth, I could not have lived through this period on such a small income had I not possessed some private resources, which, instead of husbanding, as I had intended, to meet the increasing wants of a rising family, I was compelled to expend for their comfort and to maintain my own respectability and usefulness. Even now the Living is not on a par with Quebec and Halifax, where Curates and Evening Lecturers are allowed. Nor is it likely ever to equal in my time what General Brock led me to expect,—all which is the more to be lamented, since the emoluments of the Parish would have amounted, years ago, to more than their first intention, had not the principal part of their endowment been most unwisely alienated.

All which is most respectfully submitted by Your Excellency's, &c.

JOHN STRACHAN.

TORONTO, MARCH 3RD, 1835.

SIR,—I have the honor to acknowledge your letter of the 27th ult., requesting such information on the subject referred to by the House of Assembly, as will enable His Excellency to comply with the wishes of that body, and beg leave to state, that I never received any such sum as £824 sterling, out of the public revenue of this Province, and have no knowledge of the return to the House of Commons in which that charge is said to have been mentioned.

Perhaps, however, the charge, though erroneous in amount, may allude to two separate and distinct sums of money which were placed in my hands by His Majesty's Government in London, during the winter and spring of 1827, which taken together compose £800 sterling.—1st. The sum of £300 sterling, being my salary for 1825 as Archdeacon of York, which was not paid over to me till January 1827. 2nd. The sum of £500 placed in my hands to defray certain charges incident to procuring the Charter of the University of King's College; all of which was expended to the satisfaction of the then Secretary of State for the Colonies. In this matter I was employed, merely as Agent, and had no personal interest in the disbursement.

Having thus endeavoured to furnish His Excellency with the only information, which can, as far as I am able to conjecture, be supposed to bear upon the matter of inquiry, I may be permitted to add, that I never received any money from His Majesty's Government to which I was not justly and honourably entitled, and have therefore not the slightest objection to explain any and every pecuniary transaction, which has taken place between me and the Government, either here, or in England, to which the attention of the Legislature may be directed.

I have the honor to be, &c.

JOHN STRACHAN.

DOWNING STREET, 28TH JUNE, 1827.

SIR,—You are already aware, that a Royal Charter for establishing a University in the Province of Upper Canada has passed the Great Seal, and of which Dr. Strachan is the bearer.

As Doctor Strachan was sent Home to solicit this Charter, and has been detained on the concerns of the Church and other matters of great interest to the Province, you will consider yourself authorised to make him such a remuneration from the Clergy Reserve fund, and any other fund at your disposal, as on account of the length of his detention in this country and the trouble and expense, to which he has been exposed may seem reasonable.

I have the honor to be &c.

TORONTO, 17TH MARCH, 1835.

Sir,

I have the honor to acknowledge your letter of the 7th inst. enclosing an Address from the House of Assembly, requesting various returns respecting Upper Canada College and the University of King's College, and beg leave to state for His Excellency the Lieut. Governor's information, that as the returns required seem to embrace a complete transcript of all the books of these Institutions, I very much fear that it will be impossible to satisfy the said Address to the letter, during the present Session of the Legislature, but every practicable exertion will be made, and in the mean time every particle of information that can be deemed either useful or necessary the proper officer has been directed to furnish with as little delay as possible.

In regard to one head of inquiry, numbered three,—“A copy of any communication from His Majesty's Government by authority of which £712 16 2 was paid to Archdeacon Strachan out of the College funds, as “expenses of a journey to England performed by him.” I most respectfully submit, that this money was paid to me in consequence of a despatch from Lord Ripon, then Goderich, dated, I believe, in June or July 1827, doubtless to be found in the Government Office.

To anticipate the trouble of future inquiry, it may be convenient to state, that confining myself merely to the expenses incident to my journey and long detention in England, a journey be it remembered made at the express desire of His Majesty's Government, I claimed and was allowed £1100, (eleven hundred pounds) payable in London, where the money had been furnished me on credit and chiefly expended, and where it remained at interest till repaid. This sum included £226 14 0 sterling, paid for the performance of part of my duty during my absence, and double passage money which the fulness of the ship obliged me to advance on my voyage homewards, leaving about a guinea and a half per day to cover my expenses while in London and on my journey.

My services were principally devoted to the subject of Emigration—to withdrawing the Clergy Reserves from what was judged an improvident sale. To the procuring an Act of the Imperial Parliament to dispose of one fourth of the said Reserves now in operation, and the Charter establishing the University of King's College.

From the nature of these various services it was deemed reasonable to pay one half of the eleven hundred pounds sterling, which including interest and exchange and difference of currency, amounted to £1356 13 4, from the Clergy Reserve fund, and one half from the funds of the University of King's College. The former half or £678 6 8, was paid in July 1828, the latter not till May 1829, at which time the accruing interest being added it came to £712 16 2.

The services I was enabled to perform were duly appreciated in England, and I feel justified in declaring, for it is now matter of fact, that they have been and ever will be beneficial to the Province, nor is the time far distant when the University of King's College, the Establishment of which on a more liberal footing than any similar institution in Great Britain or America, I was the humble instrument in effecting, will shed light and glory over the Colony, and embalm the names of its promoters in the grateful affections of posterity, when its ignorant and rancorous revilers are forgotten, or deservedly consigned to contempt and execration, as having been ready to sacrifice the most important interest of the present and future generations in deference to a popular clamour which they themselves had for the purpose excited.

I have the honor to be, &c. JOHN STRACHAN.

No. VI.

TO THE
Honourable the Commons House of Assembly of Upper Canada,
IN PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT ASSEMBLED,
The Petition
OF THE
JUSTICES OF THE PEACE OF THE MIDLAND DISTRICT:

Humbly Sheweth,

THAT your Petitioners, resident in the Town of Kingston, and in other parts of the Midland District, have, of late years, been frequently called upon to hear and receive information against Insane Persons, who had either committed some act of violence, or had excited in the minds of the Complainants just apprehensions that they would do some injury to themselves or their neighbours. It seldom happens that the Midland District Gaol is not occupied by one or more unfortunate individuals of this description; some of them strangers in the Country, without friends or relations to care for them, —and others whose friends and connexions are alike unable to provide for their support as they are for their safe keeping. Your Petitioners are aware that, by the Provincial Statute, 11 Geo. IV., Chap. —, some provision was made for the relief of Insane Persons in the Home District, and that its provisions have subsequently been extended to the other Districts of the Province; but, in cases of Insanity where restraint becomes necessary, if the restoration of the Patient to a sound mind be kept in view, it should only be that kind of restraint which is considered best adapted to promote the cure of the disease; & in such case where the lamp of reason appears to be so entirely extinguished as to leave no hope of restoration to light and life,—then will humanity suggest the means best calculated to cheer the gloom of dull idiotcy, or to soften and mitigate the unnatural energies of the raving maniac. It is under the consideration that our common Gaols do not afford the requisite accommodation for the successful treatment of Insane Persons,—and that our Gaolers, with any additional accommodation that might be provided for the reception of such individuals, are neither expected to be qualified for, nor to have leisure to attend to, the more difficult and responsible duties of superintending the Insane—

Your Petitioners beg leave to suggest to the humane consideration of your Honourable House the propriety of providing for the erection of a Provincial Asylum upon a scale sufficiently extensive for the probable wants of such as may require it, to be under such management as the Legislature shall, in its wisdom, see fit from time to time to direct.

Your Petitioners beg to refer your Honourable House to a Return of the Gaoler of the Midland District, hereto appended. Whilst this Return exhibits the names and number of Insane Persons committed to the Gaol of the Midland District since October 1830 to the present period, as well as the kind of offences for which they were committed,—it yet fails to convey any thing like an idea of the sufferings and wretchedness of these persons while in confinement, or of their hopeless and miserable condition when discharged. Not unfrequently individuals have been released under a conviction, on the minds of the medical attendant, the gaoler, and even the magistrate who had committed them, that their disease was becoming more confirmed by the kind of restraint necessarily imposed on them in their place of confinement, and the want of that soothing treatment that has of late been found so eminently successful in bringing back many wanderers to the light of reason, and ameliorating the condition of the greater number of the objects of its care.

All which is Respectfully Submitted.

NO. 7.

Report of the Commissioners appointed to superintend the improvement of the navigation of the River St. Lawrence.

To His Excellency Sir JOHN COLBORNE, Knight, Commander of the Most Honorable Military Order of the Bath, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, Major General commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

The Commissioners for the Improvement of the Navigation of the River St. Lawrence, Respectfully Report,

That having ascertained from the Receiver General that the necessary arrangements were made for carrying into effect the provisions of the Act authorizing the improvement of the River St. Lawrence, the Board proceeded to the adoption of such measures as they considered expedient to facilitate the progress of the work.

Having every confidence in the capability of the gentlemen by whom the surveys of the last year were made, the Board were desirous to engage their services in the prosecution of the work, and accordingly they effected an arrangement with Benjamin Wright, Esq. as Consulting Engineer, and with Mr. J. B. Mills, as Resident and Acting Engineer, with instructions to Mr. Mills to organize the department by engaging the necessary assistants. An Agent and Secretary were also appointed.

Doubts having been expressed as to the eligibility of the route from Brownell's Bay to Mille Roches, as laid down in the plans submitted last year, and aware of the necessity for an observance of the utmost caution and circumspection in constructing a work that involves so much importance to the public interest, the Board were induced to apply to your Excellency to afford them the professional services of Capt. Cole, Royal Engineers, and to procure those of Messrs Geddes and Fleming, Civil Engineers, in an examination of the line; and their several reports, with those of the Consulting and Acting Engineer are appended hereto.

It is satisfactory to discover throughout these documents that strong testimony is borne to the professional skill of the gentlemen by whom the original survey was conducted, which, whilst it strengthens the confidence reposed in them, affords considerable relief Commissioners from the anxiety necessarily attendant upon so important a charge to the as that committed by the legislature to their management.

Although, on a perusal of these Reports, it will be observed that routes differing partially, and some wholly from the original one, are suggested—there is, in all of them, a union of opinion expressed as to its eligibility in connexion with local and uncontrollable circumstances; and whilst the improvements suggested by these professional gentlemen command the attention due to talents of such high order, Messrs. Wright and Mills were enabled to present such objections involving either extraordinary expense or insurmountable difficulties as afforded satisfactory reasons for the adoption of the route originally laid down by them, and approved of by the Legislature.

As the prosecution of the work on the Longue Sault Rapids would necessarily cause an interruption to the transport of goods, it was important to provide a remedy with as little delay as possible. An arrangement was affected with the proprietors on the American shore of the Rapids, by which an exclusive right in the land required for the purpose of a towing-path was vested in the Commissioners for five years, and a guarantee was obtained from the persons interested in the forwarding trade, that the sum expended in its construction, amounting, as per abstract, to £436 1 4½ should be reimbursed by the payment of a Toll which has been accordingly levied on the boats in transitu since the completion of the path; the difficulties and inconvenience which otherwise must have existed have thus been speedily obviated.

The Report of the Agent under whose immediate inspection the tow-path was completed, is appended hereto, which exhibits a statement of the probable amount of toll to be derived from it, estimated by the levies of the past season. The next measure to which the Board conceived it important to direct their attention was, to the setting out of the lands required for the purposes of the Canal and causing the necessary alterations to be made in the highway, where it interfered with the bounds prescribed. These alterations are specified in the Report of the Resident Engineer on the subject, and have cost in the construction £ 636 1 6 $\frac{1}{2}$, as detailed in the appended abstract.

These preliminary measures having been put in operation, the Secretary was directed to give public notice that the plans, profiles and specifications of the contemplated work were ready for inspection at the Office of the Resident Engineer, and that sealed tenders for its execution would be received until the 16th day of July. On the day appointed by public advertisement, the Board proceeded to the examination of the tenders submitted, and whilst in their choice of contractors they were scrupulously attentive to an impartial decision, they were equally careful in satisfying themselves of the moral eligibility of the applicants, and of the means they could command to ensure a fulfilment of their engagement.

Aware of the inutility in most instances of exacting personal security for the fulfilment of contracts on public works, the Board deemed it more expedient to introduce a clause into the respective agreements empowering them to withhold twenty-five per cent at each monthly payment from the estimated amount of work done; but as the unavoidable outlay of capital in the purchase of implements, &c., and in the erection of dwellings and offices must necessarily cramp the means of the contractors, and might have an injurious effect as respected the progress and completion of the work, the Board were induced, at the close of the season, to pay twenty per cent of the amount withheld, upon obtaining a conveyance of the property on the works, which, whilst it afforded to the contractors the means of paying off their workmen and meeting their other contingent engagements, left a sufficient guarantee for resumption of work in the spring, when the Board will be guided by circumstances as to the mode most advisable to adopt for securing the fulfilment of the contracts.

The salutary effect of prohibiting the sale of ardent spirits by the contractors on public works has been so abundantly experienced in the United States, that the Board were induced to adopt a similar precaution, and it is pleasing to know that the regulation has met the approval of the Contractors in their desire to prevent, as far as possible, the introduction of this source of mischief on the works, by discountenancing the licensed houses and stores where it is accessible to the workmen, and discharging from their employment all persons addicted to intemperate, or disorderly habits. Other regulations tending to the promotion of good order and peaceable demeanor have been inserted in the contracts, and no pains have been spared to provide against the consequences to be apprehended from so large a body of the working class employed in a comparatively limited space.

It next became the duty of the Board to direct their attention to the adjustment of the claims made upon them for the lands required for the purposes of the canal, and for the injury to property in the removal of buildings and the destructions of orchards, &c.; and the difficulties which presented themselves in the accomplishment of this important portion of their trust were of a character which, whilst they called for the most decided impartiality and firmness, required the exercise of much forbearance.

As may be looked for in all similar cases, the claims submitted were in many instances absurd, and in most of them exorbitant—and the Board, convinced that arrangements satisfactory to the claimants and strictly just to the public, could not be effected by them collectively at their stated meetings, and aware that as the work advanced, and the benefits to be looked for from the improvement became more clearly developed, the difficulty of adjustment would be increased, they appointed two of their members arbitrators on the part of the Commissioners at different points along the line, with power to arrange with the individual claimants, if practicable, or to meet their arbitrators and proceed in accordance with the provisions of the Act. In this particular item of the expenditure the sum disbursed, as is shown by the accompanying abstract, amounts to £ 10,102 11 7. A few claims remain yet unsettled, but they are unimportant, and sufficient has been effected to show that the Board has not been unsuccessful in the accomplishment of an arduous part of their duty.

From the indications of the soil composing the high banks at the Longue Sault Rapids, it was anticipated that a large quantity of stone would be found in the course of excavation, which, with the material to be had from the surface of the circumjacent country, would be sufficient for the construction of breakwaters for the purpose of protecting the works on the Rapids. Disappointed, however, in the quantity of stone found, and having ascertained that to persevere in this otherwise most desirable plan of operation, would, from the depth and rapidity of the waters, involve a great and uncertain expense, the Engineers deemed it prudent to suspend its prosecution and to submit for the consideration of the Board, the substitution of one or other of the plans suggested in the report upon the subject, in reference to this part of the work which is hereto appended. To the plan which proposes the diminution of the width of the Canal to fifty feet at bottom and carrying it within the bank, and independent of the river for the distance required objections were found to exist sufficient to overbalance the comparatively small saving in expenditure (estimated at £5,633 4 9). In consideration of the delay and risk of accidents to boats and the material injury to the appearance of the Canal, the Board were induced to decide upon adopting the plan which suggests the removal of the line for the prescribed distance within the bank and beyond the influence of the rapid waters, and retaining the width at bottom as originally intended and in correspondence with the other parts of the Canal. The report of the resident Engineer details the progress of the work to the close of the season; the estimated value of which, deducting five per cent. withheld from the contractors as a part security for the completion of their contracts amounts to £20,271 1 9,—this sum includes £4,716 10 2 for work done since the last monthly payment.

The expenditures already particularized, with the sum of £1,980 11 5½, the disbursements of the Engineer Department, including the salaries of the consulting and acting Engineers, &c. £200 for quarry privilege, and £779 18 5½ for general and contingent expenses, exhibit an outlay in the past year of £29,689 7 8, which has been met by an advance from the Province during the season, of £35,000 and the balance on hand at the commencement of the year £259 9 2, amounting together to £35,259 9 2, and leaving a balance undisbursed at the close of the season of £5,570 1 6 in the hands of the Commissioners.

The Board beg to refer your Excellency to the annexed report from the resident Engineer, relative to the expediency of prosecuting the contemplated improvements on the St. Lawrence from the Longue Sault to Prescott.

Accompanying the abstract of receipts and expenditures, for the past year, the Board transmit, for your Excellency's satisfaction, the several vouchers corresponding with the detailed statement of disbursements appended.

APPENDIX.

KINGSTON, (U. C.) 10th June, 1834.

Report on the plans for the improvement of the St. Lawrence Rapids between Prescott and Cornwall, U. C.

LES GALOPPES AND POINT CARDINAL.

On these points there can be little or no difference of opinion.

RAPIDE PLAT.

The rejection of Routes Nos. 1 and 2, in the Report of Mr. Mills, appears to be well founded on points of economy, and, I believe, on the comparative length of the route. The only point appearing worthy of remark, is that it might be advisable to ascertain the exact velocity of current above Mr. Brattle's store; whether that current is uniform for the whole width of the channel, or might be avoided in ascending by taking advantage of eddies or counter-currents. If the unavoidable current does not exceed five miles an hour, it would remain at the option of the Commissioners to save one mile of embankment, and the purchase of the banks supposing each entrance to be equally convenient.

4 Report on improvement of the River St. Lawrence.

FARRENS POINT.

The mode proposed appears unobjectionable.

ARCHIBALD'S POINT.

The great judgment of Mr. Mills in his proposed route appears indubitable. It gives one and a half mile longer of good river navigation, is more economical, and is moreover essential to the proper following up of the system of river navigation proposed below. The only point I would suggest for the consideration of the Commissioners and their Engineers, being whether the head of the canal should not be placed at Tait's old store, or even a little below as far as safe from the draught of the rapid, thus giving another mile of placid navigation. The proposed entrance, if my notes do not deceive me, is at Stewart's Bay—this Bay appears favorable as an entrance in one point of view, and the objection is only one of economy, and the addition of another mile of river, unless it shall also be found that Stewart's Bay is more exposed to descending ice and timber than Tait's Store, where, I believe, the current rather inclines to the opposite shore—and secondly, whether by placing a sufficient number of mooring posts or heads of embankment, vessels waiting to descend, would not be equally or more safe from wind and current than in the Bay above—if all these points, or a sufficient number of them to warrant the change, are true, the saving in banks and purchase of land and houses might be spared, and Mr. Mills' judicious plan of river route, would be further followed up.

LONGUE SAULT.

Here four routes present themselves—No. 1 is preferred by Judge Wright and Mr. Mills, being the land route from Longue Sault to the Bay below Cornwall, estimated at $775,197 61cts—No. 2, by locking down into Brownell's Bay and obtaining a river navigation to Mille Roches by help of a Dam placed at the latter place, there cutting through above the Dam and joining Mr. Mills' inland route to the Bay below Cornwall. The expense as compared with No. 1, from documents furnished by Mr. Mills, left an advantage to No. 1 of about £18,000 after making deductions of the rate of cutting, not for the same depths, but as the additional cutting would be near the top instead of the bottom, as estimated by Mr. Mills, there was also a saving in the estimated price of Guard Gates—still further deductions might also have been made by following the shore for some distance below Mille Roches, as suggested by Judge Geddes and Mr. Fleming. This would have reduced the comparative expenses of Nos. 1 and 2 nearly to an equality. This plan has the defect of not taking sufficient advantage of River Navigation.

No. 3. The next plan which suggests itself is that of following the Banks of the River from Mille Roches, keeping the higher level of 8 or 9 feet above the River, and perhaps getting into the River at French's Lower Point. I do not know whether this plan was thought of by the Engineer employed, but it has the objection of heavy embankment exposed to the Ice, and still avoids the River too much—no estimate was made of this route, No. 4 appearing to meet the approbation of all parties either fully or with the reservation before mentioned

No. 4. This plan proposes to Lock down into Brownell's Bay, the surface of which is to be raised $5\frac{1}{2}$ feet by a dam at Moulinette; a lock at the latter place descends 9 feet below the back water of a dam of nearly equal dimensions at Mille Roches, the descent is here made by two Locks, the first at or near the dam. It then appears a matter of comparative expense whether the 2d Lock should be placed in the Basin immediately below the Mill, and a cut made through the River bed to the deep water below Marsh's Point, the cutting averaging about 5 feet depth, chiefly boulders and loose stone, which plan was the one agreed on—or whether as I have since thought, it would be found better to keep the level below first Lock across the Basin, by embankment to the deep water below Marsh's Point, where the second Lock would then be placed, with only lift enough to clear the bottom of the Basin, so as to save embankment; the greater part of lift being on upper Lock. This plan would avoid excavation under water, and the heavy consequent pumping. The expense of the heavy permanent embankment would not equal that of double coffer for excavating, and a large portion of the Basin would be left as a passing place within the embankment. It may also be considered whether the Mill can be saved, [and other damages to buildings,] by keeping on that side, or whether it will be expedient to place the Lock, and Canal, on the side next Sheek's Island, if this were done, a wash weir or embankment below would be necessary to carry off the Canal and Mill water, which latter would then be comprised within the embankment.

From Marsh's Point to French's Rift there is a fine expanse of deep water on the Canada side, within a reef extending nearly the whole distance—the current is trifling.

FRENCH'S RIFT.

At this point an embankment will start from the level above the Rapid and a cut through French's Upper Point will, with an embankment as far as Lower Point of that Bay, lead to a lock of small lift.—The cut through the Upper Point appears likely to furnish some good building stone, and sufficient for the whole work will be found on the spot if I am rightly informed. From French's rift is an open river navigation without much current to Maligne Point.

CRAB ISLAND RAPID.

I examined this part of the river in a boat with Messrs. Mills and Fleming, and (with the latter gentleman) I conceive the Rapid is under three miles an hour. The agitation over the island is from shoal water, and that in the channel from the meeting of two branches of water, which causes small whirls and ebullitions. On the shore and near Crab Island, the current appears more rapid. I have already mentioned to you in person that a closer trial is advisable.

POINT MALIGNE.

It is proposed to cut through this point and drop into Cornwall Bay. Thus far all opinions coincided; but you will perceive that the work is left imperfect, as the Rapid below and opposite Cornwall is left unabated, which is so considerable as to oblige the steam-boats to cast off their barges in tow, as you are aware: nevertheless this work being a separate one, may be left for consideration. I will merely mention my own views on the subject, which are considered by all the Engineers as perfectly practicable, and by the American Engineers as having been performed in the States, though not with so rapid a current to contend with, yet in equal depth of water, and Judge Wright has given the improved plan of making the wooden Crib work of the Dam, which I propose to be in pieces up and down stream, parallel to each other, and connected by heavy timbers after they are sunk. I will propose in a separate paper for the consideration, and under the hope of its being improved on by the Engineers employed, if they should advise its execution, I will, at the same time, give a sketch of its construction, as I would propose it, and an estimate, which (by allowing a greater length and depth than the soundings and measurements warrant,) I have made of its expense on a more solid scale than I had at first contemplated as to its thickness. This estimate I make to amount to £1440 for very solid timber work, and the sum of £4398 for filling in and sinking the Cribs with stone below and gravel above, not including Cables, Guys, and Anchors; which latter I think would not be advisable on account of the bad bottom. If it should be found otherwise, they might probably be borrowed from Government, as well as Crabs and Capstans.

The advantage of a dam at Point Maligne I have before stated to you, being, that the Crab Island current would be slackened, if not drowned by the water which would probably be raised higher than usual in Anderson's Gut, when only one channel remained for its passage. By the inverse operation of that usually expected from a dam, the Cornwall Rapid below would be destroyed, but the back water from Lake St. Francis would give 18 to 20 feet and upwards for a channel. The cutting through Point Maligne would be saved as an offset to the expense of the dam, the manner of sinking them and sustaining them until sunk. The only disadvantage would be the obstruction of the channel for the descending trade, in case the Massina channel is found inconvenient.

6 Report on improvement of the River St. Lawrence.

As to the formation of a dam being injurious to the Town by creating every year an extra flood, as once happened when a dam was formed of ice at Point Maligne, when, by the by, no additional flood arose to create fears, except at one Point, and which flood went down in an hour; I think I can show that the stone dam would, by reversing the usual formation of ice, create an opposite effect. But this, as I have said, I will propose in a separate paper, and will now only touch on another, plan which, if I mistake not, you hinted at when I had last the pleasure of seeing you: this is the continuation of the level above Point Maligne by cut and embankment through the Cornwall bay to, and perhaps through the lower point to the Lower Bay. This, independent of its disadvantages, would create a heavy expense in forming embankments to the level of the water, the material of which must be brought from a distance. Then the pumping out, inside this long embankment, in order to excavate to the depth of about five feet; also the cost of land, houses, and wharf. If the embankment were run along the island, the cutting would also be great and the embankment heavy.

General Remarks on the River Route.

In altering their plan to meet the wishes of the country, Judge Wright and Mr. Mills stated that they were aware of the greater cost of No. 1 (the inland Route) but preferred the latter as a more perfect work. The latter gentleman thought the saving might be £60,000. I imagine that this will be found under the mark, but nothing certain can be given until a survey of the Points to be improved has been made. The first, and principal feature of the natural course about to be adopted, is the damming below Brownell's Bay—Having given the subject such consideration as imperfect accounts of the localities, and Mr. Ridout's map of Canada, enable me, to give before I visited the spot, I concluded that we might construct these works advantageously, and I found the reality greatly surpassing my expectations. If an embankment be thrown across the passage above Brownell's Bay to Sheek's Island, the water lock may be finished without pumping, and the dams below constructed without the usual expense of an artificial waste weir or the shifting of a temporary one in the dam itself as the work progressed. The water being thrown round the outer channel by this embankment, no difficulties remain to contend with. This bank, I advise should be permanent, with a masonry waste weir of sufficient dimensions to feed the Locks and Mills, with a spur or jetty thrown forwards (as at present from the Wooden Lock) to catch the upper level of rapid as it passes at right angles across the mouth of the passage, this difference of level is about two feet. The extra expense of making this work permanent would scarcely exceed that of a temporary coffer dam independent of the masonry cheeks of the sluice way—and a guard of 3 or 4 feet against the spring floods would be much less costly than the same guard placed on the Dam and Lock at Moulinette. The advantage would be acquired of relieving the works below at any time, in case of leak in the Dam or Locks, which may be required in spite of all previous care of the Engineers, from the carelessness of the Contractor, or from some defect in the Lock itself which would require remedy; much, it is true, may be done by previous care in the foundation of Dams, and the examination of the rock under them and the Locks—all apparent fissures being filled with cement and covered with a little masonry. The advantage, also, will be given by the bank above, of letting in water by degrees, and watching the effect produced, so that all defects may be remedied before the navigation opens. The backing might also be allowed some time to consolidate before the water is let in. This work I call an embankment because it does not raise the level of water, but merely retains it at the level required. All these details, and many more, will better be known to the resident Engineer. I will merely state, that the masonry of dams should be arched key work, well wedged up; this saves extra masonry, and if well performed, there is no use in mortar or cement being added, but broken stone and shingle should in either case be placed about 4 feet thick on the back of masonry to prevent the passage of the gravel and clay of the slope above. The water should not run over, for several reasons, and a guard of two feet will be ample against the wash of the surface water. All these arrangements were concurred in by the Engineer, and from hence downwards, no discrepancy of opinion appeared; all details being left to the judgment of the resident Engineer, including the formation of sluices at each Dam. The works below Mille Roche will be covered by ice and water backed up during winter — This, from the testimony of the inhabitants, and the opinion of the Engineers will have no effect on the works as is proved by the wooden Lock. The ordinary rise is from 5 to 10 feet from Mille Roches to French's Rift, and the water is described as rising and falling with such gentleness as to leave all floating fences, &c. nearly on their proper site. This extraordinary rise which, 2 or 3 years ago affected the mill has not been known before by those who have resided on the spot during 27 years. The reaction on this occasion, was not occasioned by a dam at Point Maligne, but by that formed at French's Rift, which threw back on Mille Roches a sudden wash of water down the line.

I should have mentioned that, independent of the less expense in dividing the Dam, below Brownell's Bay, a separation of locks and a basin between them is secured for the time when an increase of trade will render that desirable. The saving of both mills is also an object of consideration. In taking the testimony of residents, due consideration has, of course, been had to local interests and prejudices which may distort opinion both here and at Cornwall. At the latter place the reaction is described as more formidable, but nothing to create fears for works of ordinary strength, particularly as they will be covered with water before the reaction commences.

The repairs of such works will be trifling, and less than those of a long cut or embankment. The interest of money saved by this route will soon pay for the whole cost of works below Mille Roches. It may be remarked that all embankments exposed to ice or powerful currents should have a retaining wall of crib work to the full height exposed to such action. This would be less costly in first construction and subsequent repair, as it will not require the heavy border of boulders and stone.

The river route is said to be imperfect as a Canal, but if Crab Island current is found to be trifling, and Cornwall Rapids be destroyed by a dam, I believe the term imperfect will no longer be applicable. The general advantages of a river route are too well known and appreciated to require remark, particularly as they need no professional knowledge to understand them, and come more under the notice of the trader and inhabitants in general.

*To Jonas Jones, Esquire,
President of the Board of Commissioners for Longue Sault Improvements,
&c. &c. &c.*

To the President of the Board of Commissioners for the Improvement of the Navigation of the River St. Lawrence.

SIR,

In pursuance of your instructions I have examined the proposed Canal line from Longue Sault to Cornwall, more particularly that part of the route from Brownell's Bay to Cornwall; an account of which is respectfully presented.

The level of the upper end of the Longue Sault, carried past Brownell's Bay as proposed by Messrs. Wright and Mills, I have denominated the upper level, and the other route, which is to pass through Brownell's Bay, the lower level.

At the upper end of Brownell's Bay, the two routes separate from each other, and unite again at the location of the second lock above Wood's Creek.

The lower level leaves the upper, by locking down seventeen feet to the surface of Brownell's Bay: said Bay being raised five and a half feet by a dam at Mille Roche, holding up the water thirteen feet above its present surface of that place, thus producing a depth of ten feet water through the Bay.

The artificial lake thus produced, would afford a fine piece of navigation for three miles, but destroy the valuable water power of Moulinette, and what is more serious, produce, in the canal line to be carried from Mille Roche's onward in much of the distance for the first three quarters of a mile, cutting seventeen feet deeper than by pursuing the upper level, beyond which there is nine feet between the two levels. The saving in a long embankment after this lock, is about balanced by the excess in a deep cutting opposite French's Rift. From below said rift to the location of the second lock on the upper level, the excessive cutting still continues.

8 Report on improvement of the River St. Lawrence.

The following is a calculation of the number of cubic yards of excavation which the lower level exceeds the upper :

Past Marsh's Point to first lock	302,130 c. yds.	a 25 cts. per c. yd.	$75,532
Past and below French's Rapid	153,268 "	18 "	27,588
On to second lock	54,440 "	16 "	3,710
Amounting to	- - - 509,838 c. yds.		Costing $111,330

To this sum may be added the expense of a Dam at Mille Roche's. This dam, or water wier, as Mr. Clowes calls it, has been valued by him at $4,000—by Mr. Mills at $16,000.

Few localities equal this in the facility of making said dam, or founding a water lock at the head of Brownell's Bay: a low embankment shuts all the water from the north side of Sheek's Island, leaving dry land to build the water lock on at the head of Brownell's Bay, and the dam at Mille Roches. This embankment at the head of Sheek's Island, Mr. Mills values at but $450—a canal from the head of Brownell's Bay to Mille Roches, he estimates at $103,980.

No estimate having been made of the damage that would be assessed for the interference with the many buildings on this route, nor of the land which would be saved by following the river, a strict comparison of the first cost of the two routes cannot now be made.

The excess of excavation in the lower level may be made less than what is shewn by the calculation, which followed the line laid down for the upper level, producing a cutting opposite Marsh's Point of thirty feet in the deepest spot.

Cut through Marsh's Point near the River, then follow so near the River below French's Rapid, as to throw much of the spoil bank into it.

Lessening the expense thus may be objected to, as lengthening the line of Canal, but the line of the lower level would not then be longer than the upper, as a measurement on the map will shew. To examine this as it ought to be done, would require the laying out a new line past Marsh's Point, and from above French's Rapid to the location of the second lock.

The value of three miles of an artificial lake, instead of a Canal, would be the sett off against some excess of expense which probably will be incurred by following the lower level.

Unless the current at Potash Point is much greater than I have understood it to be, I am decidedly opposed to conducting it, through Cornwall village.

A route still different merits particular attention, to wit, passing through Brownell's Bay, when raised five and a half feet to a dam at Moulinette, here lock down seven feet to the surface of water to be raised by a dam at Mille Roches, this level to be carried in a Canal half a mile long through Marsh's Point, where two seven feet locks pass into the deep water below said point. Thus will remain the water power at Moulinette and Mille Roches, and a third below Marsh's Point, to both of these dams belong the uncommon facility of being built in a dry channel.

The entrance to the river now is into a wide and deep sheet of water, reaching to near the head of French's Rapid, where a short side cut, and low lock may be required, and perhaps some straightening of the channel for the descending navigation.

Onward the next difficulty is the Crab Island Rapids, for which there appears no remedy—as marked on the maps of the land route, there is but five feet fall in the river from below Mille Roches to the lower end of the swift water near Col. Anderson's—less than four feet of this fall must be from the head of French's Rapid, the distance something less than two miles. In one eighth of a mile in this distance, called Wright's Rapid, I found the velocity five and a quarter miles per hour. It is said to be more rapid near the shore where the trial was made, than near the middle of the stream.

At Maligne Point I found the current over five miles per hour, and have no doubt that the swiftest spot is over six miles per hour. The improvement required past this rapid will be a side cut and lock; as all vessels descending will pursue the natural channel—these side cuts will require but fifty feet width at bottom.

I have thus, Sir, communicated such information as I have been able to obtain. From the velocity of the several rapids in the river, to which I gave an early attention, I was soon disposed to entertain little hopes of Mr. Barrett's plan of following the river from Mille Roches downwards, and now expect little else than that the Crab Island Rapids will be found sufficiently formidable to condemn the river route. Of the level of Brownell's Bay, denominated the lower level, I entertain the expectation, that the survey of a line running past Marsh's Point, and from above French's Rapid to the location of the second lock, as I have marked it on a sketch of the river herewith submitted, will be found to diminish so much the excessive excavation which is found to exist, by calculating on the line of the upper level as to give it a preference over the route surveyed by Messrs. Wright and Mills; but in the event of little advantage being thus obtained, their route cannot be departed from.

Submitted with great respect by

Your most obedient

JAMES GEDDIS, Engineer.

Brockville, 7th June, 1834.

Report of Peter Fleming, Esq. upon the proposed improvements of the navigation of the St. Lawrence, between the head of the Longue Sault and the Town of Cornwall.

To the Honourable the Commissioners.

As instructed by Philip Vankoughnet, Esq. I proceeded on the 2nd current, to make an examination of that part of the St. Lawrence within the terminations of a projected inland canal as surveyed and marked out on the plans of Mr. Mills, made under the direction of Mr. Wright, the head Engineer for the proposed improvements, and after viewing the route described by those plans, I have been led to consider this subject under three points of view, by which the navigation of this part of the river may be obtained, both for steam and other vessels, requiring ten feet depth of water.

The first of these is that throughout, by an entire canal of a hundred feet in width at bottom, and one hundred and forty feet on the water line, and of ten feet in depth as proposed by Messrs. Wright and Mills. The second compounded of a canal of same dimensions from the head of Longue Sault or Stewart's Bay, to fall into the river at Brownell's Bay, thence following the bed to Mille Roches, and from this last point, have a canal; or uniting with the route of Messrs. Wright and Mills, on which it continues downward to its termination.

The third which I now propose as new, is the same as the last to Mille Roches, but from here continuing in the bed of the river, or along its beach to the same termination as the others at Cornwall.

1st. On considering the first of these, namely, an entire canal, as now laid down by the Engineers mentioned, it appears to me to have been adopted under the impression of avoiding apprehended hazard from ice to any works which might be placed in the river between Brownell's Bay and Mille Roches, for on the left bank of this branch of the river the canal route is necessarily very circuitous and would be expensive to construct from the steepness and the brokenness of the ground, whereon much deep side cutting with heavy embankments must be made towards the river, for the level of the base of the canal, must be from thirteen to twenty-three feet above the surface of the river—which, in consideration of the magnitude of the canal proposed, becomes the more hazardous in point of stability, by being thus supported by new embankments.—At the upper side of

10 Report on improvement of the River St. Lawrence.

Mille Roches village, the same route leaves the bank of the river and proceeds about one mile farther on the same level to the first lock. On the last part the cutting is very deep and through a soil of a quality as indicated by several places here, much disposed to slip, and which may require, I would fear, somewhat more than the estimated expense, although this might be sufficient to accomplish the same quantity of excavation of better ground. The continuation of this route to its debouche into the St. Lawrence presents nothing remarkable but the deterioration of the lands and town of Cornwall, which it passes through.

Such being the features of this proposed route of an entire Canal, I regard that part of it which extends from Brownell's Bay to Mille Roches as unnecessary and expensive, and which, in my opinion, should be entirely superseded, by adopting the river here in its stead, which brings me to consider the second route mentioned above.

2d. That part of an entire Canal route from Stewart's bay to Brownell's bay is to be considered as common to all routes which are required to surmount the opposite parts of the Longue Sault, therefore it is proposed as better than an entire Canal route, to drop into the level of Stewart's bay at Brownell's bay, about seventeen feet, by two locks, and by a dam at Mille Roche's, of the average height of twenty feet; to lock the water so as to give sufficient water, or ten feet deep upon the lower lock of Brownell's bay—the level then of this reach of the river will be one foot below the level of the second lock upon the entire canal route, consequently the level of this branch so dammed up, may be united upon the same level of the entire canal at the third lock, by reducing this lock to seven instead of eight feet of fall.

It now will appear on this route, there would be a great saving in expense, by the mere construction of the dam proposed at Mille Roches, instead of forming a canal along the bank of the magnitude proposed. As additional to this dam is only required a stop gate in the entrance here of the Canal, it would also be advisable to throw a dam of small height across the stream at a point above the position of the lock at Brownell's Bay, by which the waters from the Longue Sault may be always regulated, or occasionally absolutely stopped. The means of doing the latter would afford the dam at Mille Roches to be built on almost a dry foundation, and also the same for the locks at Brownell's Bay, which also would allow to remove any shallowness or impediments of the channel,—pauls or buoys may be afterwards placed to direct the course of deep water.

It appears that in one instance about three years ago, an icy barrier somewhere below Mille Roches caused the water and ice to back upon the river here, nearly about the height which this dam is now proposed, which circumstance, although it may not happen again, or be a rare occurrence, this would direct that a dam here should be of the most substantial materials, not only as regards stability and duration, but to be also characteristic of this magnificent internal improvement. That part of the canal belonging to this route from Mille Roche's dam to where it would join at the same level with the entire canal route proposed by Mr. Mills, is not intended to be the same; for the dam at Mille Roches may be placed considerably below where the latter leaves the bank, and which encircles the whole village—but the new line proposed here would follow the bank and on the road in front of the mill, which it leaves on the right and afterwards again falls upon the bank of the river; thence proceeds around Marsh's Point, after which it joins the entire land route near to lock No. 1. It is true that this part of this route would be more curved and winding than the opposite part of the other; but this would be sufficiently easy in navigation, and would avoid a deep cutting on the other. It would also not embarrass the canal by having the village not isolated, to which some communication would be required, were the canal to be made otherwise.

As the proposed part of this new route on the canal is not yet surveyed, the expense of it must remain undetermined until this is done, however, it is clear this proposed alteration of route, from Brownell's Bay, would afford a much better Steam Boat navigation than an entire canal, and which would be evidently many thousand pounds less expensive; also, if well constructed in the dams and locks, the whole would require little annual repairs; besides this reach upon the river would afford a safe protection for vessels to lay up in the winter months; for the dam here would form a barrier against all movements which might hereafter happen from obstruction of the ice below, and with a very ordinary dam above the works at Brownell's Bay, there could be no danger apprehended on this side, while this last dam would regulate the supply of water as required for this grand Basin, as well as for mill purposes, which then might be properly afforded from the dam at Mille Roches.

Thus far I would decidedly recommend these alterations as superior, both in respect of utility in navigation and towards reducing the whole expense to that of an entire route, as proposed by Messrs. Wright and Mills.

3d. The third route which I shall now describe is to be different from either of the above. inasmuch as those are chiefly entire canal communications which limits the navigation to a state that yet has not been found commodious for Steam Boats, and especially for that class necessary to navigate the St. Lawrence, also the depth of ten feet is a narrow limit for these, or even for sailing craft which may hereafter navigate this noble river, and the lakes, for it is evident the growing prosperity of this fertile country, will require every extent which can be afforded to commercial intercourse upon the magnificent Saint Lawrence, which will always be the great carrying channel to and from the ocean, and not only this, for those countries already under settlement along its shores, but also those on the farthest sources of its waters. Under these views, every thing like restriction or confinement within narrow capability ought to be as much avoided, as natural circumstances will afford more extended limits, which makes me conclude that either of the modes of navigation above described for this part of the St. Lawrence in question, is so much subject to this objection or that these would be more constricted than the natural condition of the present state of the River requires; for inextension by enlargement is peculiar to inland canal navigation, without a ruinous interruption to trade, and also an immense expense. Therefore instead of being thus limited by almost unalterable conditions of an inland canal, I propose, here to lay before the Hon. the Board of Commissioners, a navigation which will be exempt from this alleged objection, by the unavoidable or necessary part of a Canal being only an appendage to a complete River Navigation, suitable to all descriptions of vessels.

It is obvious that a canal is the only means of surmounting the Longue Sault between Stewart's Bay, and Brownell's Bay—then, as before, I propose to fall seventeen feet into Brownell's bay by two locks and maintain the height of water for the lower lock by a dam thrown across the stream at Moulinette, on which would be another lock, No 3; the depth of water on this lock would also be maintained by another dam at Mille Roches; on which would be the fourth lock. At this point, it becomes a matter of actual survey to ascertain from the depth of the river, and other circumstances respecting it below the dam, whether it would be better to add another lock here, or carry this forward below the village: but by either way we come to the level of the river at Marsh's Point, or that of the reach to French's rift—the whole fall to this, making a fall from Stewart's Bay of about thirty eight and a half feet, containing five locks. There being deep water above Marsh's Point, I propose to cut the shallow point here close in shore, of sufficient breadth and depth of channel and which, in length, does not exceed two or three hundred yards, and average depth not exceeding half of the required depth in hard bottom, which thus unites the deep water on both sides of this point, which would then extend from the Mille Roches dam-lock to French's rift, and would complete a river navigation from Brownell's Bay to the last point. Also at French's Point, I propose another lock [No 6.] to surmount this rapid, the fall of which cannot exceed two or three feet, and below this to Wood Creek, or Point Maligne, there appears, by my examination in a boat, to be no obstruction but that which would arise in ascending a current of the river—which thus completes our river navigation to Point Maligne. At the last point, or the mouth of Wood Creek, I propose that a channel of the required depth and breadth, as proposed above to be around Marsh's Point, be cut close in shore or on the beach, but this channel would be of a canal form by its having a bank thrown up from the bottom against the river, but only of sufficient height to retain the water at the highest summer level of Wood Creek. This canal would follow the shore to Cornwall Steam Boat landing, at which place I propose to place the last or seventh lock, from this lock the outside bank would be continued across the bay in a curved direction with the convex side to the shore, which would thus enclose a capacious basin; from this basin another channel or canal of the above description would be carried round Potash Point, and terminating in the deep water of Mr. Vankoughnett's Bay, immediately below. It is to be observed this last canal and basin would be the level of dead water of Vankoughnett's Bay ; for the lock here would not rise the difference of this level, and that of Wood's Creek, and by this arrangement, vessels of all descriptions could proceed in and out from Mr. Vankoughnett's Bay, or the river into the Cornwall basin without lockage ; or instead of this course a canal may be cut right across the land into Vankoughnett's Bay, which, if properly formed, would not readily be altered by the ice floods.

Such is the outline of an improved navigation on the river, as much as its natural conditions offer, and will admit, and which I venture to prefer as much superior to an inland canal for the same objects. But it is also proper to shew the grounds of this preference : first, as regards the effective communication in relation to the great commercial objects required of those improvements, and next the proposed dimensions and probable stability of the whole, but particularly of those works to be below Mille Roches.

Then the presumed advantages which the canal possesses over the river from Mille Roches downwards to Point Maligne, can only arise from the one being dead water, upon which a boat is supposed to be propelled with less power than can be done on the other, ascending against the current—also it may be advanced, regarding this part of the river navigation, that here a boat of small power would not be very effective beyond her own tonnage, if even powerful enough to ascend, whereas upon a canal a boat too small in power to ascend the stream, would still be so far effective in a canal. So far, then, would a canal be superior to the river, but this only on the distance between Point Maligne and French's Rift ascending, and which only can refer to a class of boats of very small power: for boats of sufficient power and proportioned to the navigation proposed, would be less effective in a canal than in the stream mentioned, from the resistance which would be caused by the swell of a canal acting as an opposite force to the motion of the boat which itself has produced: this resistance is very obstinate in all canals and which precludes the use of power of steam boats upon them, as it does high speed upon them attempted to be raised by horses, except of those boats drawing the least draught of water, such as light passage boats. It then must appear that the objection to this part of the river navigation can only apply in the case of using steam boats of small power, and this only in ascending trade, which consequently would limit the smallest size ascending to be not less than a certain power relative only to the proportion of trade going up, which may not exceed one third or one quarter of that descending—but within these limits the effective power of such boats would be more than in a canal which it would be expedient to construct. It then becomes a matter of trial or experiment to determine the power and class of steam boats which would be found most suitable to ascend this short reach of the river, namely, between Point Maligne and French's Rift.

If this navigation is termed imperfect by its limiting to a certain class of steam boats it is easy to show that this may also be made a dead water navigation, and be not so liable to repairs and keeping as an inland canal, and be much more capacious in both depth and breadth of channel; which also may be accomplished progressively without alteration whatever, of the works described on the part wanting dead water, that is, from Point Maligne to French's Rift, a distance only about two and three quarter miles.

Then all that I propose for to effect the last purpose, is to make a channel or canal in the bed of the river or close on the beach with a bank thrown up between it and the stream, of nearly the same form as that proposed above, to be below Point Maligne, only in this, the outside bank need be no higher than about two feet above the highest summer level, nor, I am of opinion, need not extend downwards from the lock of French's rift farther than would cover St. Regis channel, as from this point downwards, I presume the current on the left bank falls off, and would be more so after the bank proposed is made, which would cause dead water from its lowest extremity upwards to French's rift at this level. By these means a dead water navigation may be easily obtained with all the advantages of a much more capacious channel for steam boats than could be in an inland canal, and freed from many appendages and incumbrances attending the latter—also this would be suitable to every description of vessels, and especially to sailing vessels which in it would require little or no horse traction, as would be required for them throughout the whole length of an inland canal.

It next becomes proper to shew the dimensions of the works proposed, and also the prospect of their stability as these are now designed to be placed not only within the flood water boundaries, but within the bed of the river.

If the St. Lawrence had been a river liable to be much raised or depressed in its waters, or subject to periodical freshes by the rains, it would have been useless to have made the propositions of the works I have done above—but it is not subject to such fluctuations, as from its great magnitude it is not sensibly changed by any of its feeders below the lakes, while the wide extent of those lakes prevents the same changes from any sources above them, and consequently its summer level does not vary above a couple of feet. In this view we only have to consider the St. Lawrence as a stationary lake, but without the surges to which the latter is liable by wind and storms. Then we have little to fear for our works during the summer months—but in winter the scene is changed, as this river then presents only heaped and vast masses of ice—and particularly above its narrowed sections, which sometimes happen to become choaked with ice, which consequently dams back, and raises the water to overflowing its banks—it is during the movement of those local and temporary floods, and particularly at the breaking up of those icy barriers (which if immediately over or near our works) might much injure or destroy them if exposed to their force.

That part which calls our attention first, regarding stability, is the lock on French's rift, and the other at Cornwall, which are both between Mille Roches and Mr. Vankoughnet's Bay. In the construction of these, it is proposed they should project as little as necessary above the summer highest level of the river, say eighteen or twenty four inches, and with no projecting part above the coping of the chamber walls, and by having an independent stop gate below each. The gates of the Locks can be locked into their respective recesses during winter. It is very clear from this state of the Locks there is no obstacle presented by them to the moving ice under any direction which this may take, for during the temporary floods or shovings of ice by being dammed back, such is acting at much higher level, as upon the top of the banks where their movements are generally destructive to obstacles met there. The new wharves at Montreal harbor afford a good experiment regarding the safety of works being placed low in the bed of the St. Lawrence, to which yet no material injury has been done; besides almost every temporary or ordinary low work exhibits the same security every where on the banks along the river. The channels mentioned to be cut around Marsh's Point, and Point Maligne, are proposed to be not less than one hundred and twenty-five feet wide in the bottom, and where an outside embankment is necessary, as at Point Maligne, to keep the water level of Wood Creek; this I propose, twenty-five to fifty feet wide at top, and its side slope one to two and a half on the inside, and the natural bank made or dressed up to the same slope, leaving a tracking path of ten feet in breadth, of the same form, in a cross cut, if made from Cornwall basin to Mr. Vankoughnet's bay, and also of the embankment across Cornwall bay. The width of channel proposed for dead water running down from French's rift, I would propose to deepen to 150 feet wide at bottom, and its outside embankment 50 feet wide at top; this embankment need not be raised above two feet above the highest summer level of the river; also the land bank is to be provided with a tracking path the same as described above, and the face of it also dressed up to a slope of one to two and a half, and where it inclines to slip one, to three. Such outside embankments may be chiefly made out of the deepening of the channels opposite, or from the river bank, by which the direction of the Channel will be made straighter than if following the natural shore, but no more need be cut than make the opposite portion of the river embankment, at any point except where a greater breadth is to be taken by crossing a curve or bay of the shore.

It is almost needless to observe from the lowness or little projection of all these works necessary to complete this navigation, and thereby presenting no real obstacle to the stream of the river; there is little to be apprehended of their being disturbed or seriously injured either by the rise of the river or movement of the ice.

In the proposed line of river navigation, I think it advisable to construct all the Locks to twelve feet water, which would be a better proportional depth for this than ten feet, as has been proposed for the inland canal; for although only ten feet channel is first obtained on the river route, the additional two feet may be progressively added as required, and more easily, as a dragging machine which I advised for, and is now obtained for the Lower Province, is the most effective in use.

In the above I have attempted to shew the most natural and best adapted line of navigation, not only in my opinion most suitable for the great object of accomplishing a perfect

Steam Boat navigation throughout the St. Lawrence—but most appropriate in its localities, by retaining all the privileges of the lands and property along this route. All which I respectfully submit.

PETER FLEMING,

Cornwall, 9th June, 1834.

Report of Benjamin Wright, Esquire, Consulting Engineer.

Considerations on the choice of route for the Canal at Longue Sault.

1st. The high level as reported last year will probably cost from 100 to 120 thousand dollars more than the river route.

2nd. The damages will no doubt be much greater to individual property on the high level than on the river route.

3rd. There will be more danger of breaches of the Canal than by the river route, as it is found that with ever so much care there are breaches in all new Canals, and the frost will be more injurious to the high level than the low, or river route in after time.

4th. The river route can be descended sooner and easier than the Canal or high route, as boats would scarce ever pass the locks at French's Rift, and never the one at Maligne Point.

5th. It is probable there would not be much difference in time in ascending by the two routes for steam boats of power sufficient to ascend Crab Island Rapid.

IN FAVOR OF THE HIGH LEVEL.

1st. It may be said to be out of danger from ice.

2nd. It overcomes all velocity of current to a point below Cornwall, where but gentle current is found, to Lake St. Francis, and no further additional work will ever be required between the head of Longue Sault and St. Francis.

RIVER ROUTE.

1st. There is danger of ice injuring the works at Point Maligne, and at French's Rift, and some little at Mille Roches, if the lock is carried down to Marsh's Point, which I think it must be.

2nd. There will be more security against accidents or breaches (ice excepted) on this than on the high level.

3rd. Although it is estimated by Mr. Mills that the difference will be 100 to 120 thousand dollars in favour of the river route, and although, Mr. M. has estimated (to appearance) pretty liberally, at each separate improvement below Brownell's Bay, yet it ought to be understood by the Board that where there is so much water work no estimate can be relied on. There are several favorable formations such as rock for lock bottom at Moulinette, perhaps at French's Rift, and it may be at Mille Roches, but I think not.—Where there is rock, the timber and plank for foundation will be saved: this would go towards pumping the lockpits to the amount of 3000 dollars nearly—it is true that we can perhaps make the current at these different places pump the water, but in doing so we incur considerable expense in machinery.

The whole question turns upon the point.

1st. Whether the River improvement is pretty safe from injury by ice.

2nd. Whether it reduces the difficulties of ascending navigation between Cornwall and the head of the Longue Sault, to be as easy as many places between the Longue Sault, and Prescott, which are never expected to be improved.

3rd. There is a view of the river plan of improvement at Point Maligne which deserves to be well digested viz:—whether a dam across the river would not have an effect to check the velocity of the current at Crab Island; my own opinion is, that it would produce a variation of one quarter less in the velocity, and it would make good navigation below and above Cornwall, to the head of Cornwall Island. It would deprive Cornwall of all descending navigation except when the boat had business there, as all others would go down the St. Regis Channel.

4th Whether should it be found that all kinds of boats could not ascend the Rapid at Crab Island, can there be an extension of the improvement from the proposed one at French's rift down to, and past Crab Island Rapid. I think this can be answered in the affirmative; but it will be pretty expensive, and still more in danger from ice than any other of the works, but it will not probably cost as much as the difference between the river route and the high level, unless the lock constructed below French's rift should be lost and transferred below Crab Island, or near to Colonel Anderson's—this depends so much upon the question yet to be settled viz: whether a dam shall be erected at or above Cornwall. If a dam shall not be erected, then it presents a question whether the improvement begun at French's rift ought not to be continued down at once to below Crab Island Rapids.

This question I think should be settled by further examination to ascertain what the velocity of current at Crab Island, is per hour, and reflecting well upon the greatest velocity which it is intended to permit in any part of the river unimproved when the whole work shall be complete from Montreal, to Prescott at a day twenty years hence.

Respectfully submitted

To Jonas Jones Esq. President, &c.

Report of J. B. Mills, Acting Engineer,

Jonas Jones Esq. President &c.

SIR,

I am not aware that any communication by way of report is expected from me on this occasion, but as the subject of the plan and location of the contemplated improvement, of the St. Lawrence, from the head of the Longue Sault, to Cornwall, has been one of general remark and discussion, and as opinions much at variance with each other in relation to the propriety of the plan as proposed have been advanced, and strongly contested—and as this general discussion has no doubt, had much effect in producing a change in the minds of some men as to the wisdom and expediency of said plan; perhaps it may be desirable and expected that those who have taken an important part in the projection of those plans, should give the reasons which deterred them in the plans as presented, and whether upon further consideration, they recommend them, or what changes, if any, they would make.

On my return to your service, finding this subject exciting much interest, I was led to reconsider and examine the plans in question, and I believe I have been able to do it free from prejudice.

I am free to say, and do it most unhesitatingly, that the more I consider them, the better satisfied I am with their location, this however, is in view of reasons which influenced mainly in the original determination. Immediately on my arrival in Canada, in April, 1833, and on my first interview with you sir, and two or three other members of the Board of Commissioners, I was desired to visit Cornwall, to observe the position and operation of the ice; at least so far as this could be done at that late date. From several members of the Board, I heard representations of the collection, dams and jams of ice that were truly astonishing and singular. These representations are corroborated by all intelligent and observing men in the vicinity of the projected works—the opinion seemed settled and confirmed that the works of the proposed improvement must be so located as to have as little to do with ice and floods as possible. Having had much experience in listening to representations of a similar kind, I was not greedy in swallowing them all,

16 Report on improvement of the River St. Lawrence.

As such operations in large streams ever leave marks of their effects; I presumed they were to be found along the banks of the river; accordingly, I observed such effects as the tearing up, breaking, and scarifying of trees, and concluded that the accounts might be half true, and if so, there was good reason for keeping as clear of exposure as possible in the construction of the works in contemplation. Floods, though free from ice, when they deluge a line of canal with earthen banks, ever cause great derangement and expense of repairs, and it is generally considered, by men conversant with matters of the kind in question, that such works ought not to be exposed to the danger and hazard of inundation—thus I viewed the subject sir, and accordingly I acted. As in the course of the past year I am not aware of any important change in the laws of nature or in the consequences of their operations, I am to presume that the danger of exposing works of the kind in question is as great to day as it was one year ago—therefore I have not seen any reasons for taking a different view of the said plans and locations.

In the course of the examination which has recently been made by professional gentleman who have been requested to consider and report upon the plan and location of the projected improvements passing the Longue Sault, many suggestions have been made, and changes proposed, some of them were soon abandoned, and others seemed to demand consideration, and comparative estimate. I wish briefly to refer to three plans that have been considered, and I believe abandoned.

1. The one proposed involving a dam of the St. Lawrence at Point Maligne, near Cornwall? This plan, I believe, is abandoned, not however, because of its impracticability, but rather from its inexpediency, all things considered

2. Passing Longue Sault by the original route—then dropping into Brownell's Bay, raised five or six feet by a dam at Mille Roches—thence passing the original line nearly, and reduced seventeen feet to Cornwall, I have made an estimate of the expense of this plan of improvement, and find it costs about £4,000 more than the plan recommended to your Board last year.

3. A similar plan to the second so far as Mille Roches—thence pursuing the shore of the river to Cornwall. This plan, as it would be at the height along the river most in danger from ice and floods, therefore requiring extraordinary protection and guard, it was concluded from some comparisons that were made, would cost more than the second—one other plan has been proposed which is to take the lowest levels possible from the head of Brownell's Bay to Cornwall, which may be called an improvement of the river navigation as follows:

4. Drop into Brownell's Bay, raised five or six feet by a dam at Moulinette. At Moulinette drop into a pond made by a dam at Mille Roches. At Mille Roches drop into the river at the foot of the fall at this place; thence pursuing the river to French's Rift, through which cut, and drop into the river below it—thence following the river to Point Maligne, through which cut, and drop into Cornwall Bay, where terminates the improvement. This plan, you may know, is not altogether new, at least it is as old as the spring of 1853, most of which was proposed to me by several persons at that time, and all of which has been more or less considered by me in the course of my surveys in reference to this improvement—however it does not receive from me so much serious consideration for the reasons which I have above stated. I believe this plan is thought well of, by at least two of the gentlemen who have recently visited the ground. I am very decided in the opinion that it is the best plan, if the original one is to be departed from, and the levels reduced—therefore I determined to furnish the Board with an estimate of the expense of it at this time. In the interval of the departure of the gentlemen who have visited us, and the meeting of the Board of Commissioners, there was not time for a minute survey with direct reference to this improvement.

In the course of my surveys the past year, all these points were passed over, and more or less examined; and are all accurately laid down on the plans presented to the Board, I furnished with data for an estimate which will approximate very nearly to the truth, and will enable the Board to act upon it with safety.

Report on Improvement of the River St. Lawrence. 17

The following are the results of the estimate on the plan of making the several improvements fifty feet wide at the bottom.

Expense accruing near the foot of Longue Sault and at the head of Brownell's Bay,	-	-	-	$14061	00
Ditto at Moulinette, (here I propose to make the improvement at the Sheek's Island side,)	-	-	-	44203	00
Ditto at Mille Roches (also on the Sheek's Island side) at present it is uncertain at which side it would be advisable to locate the work at this place, minute examination of the channel below this fall will be necessary to determine it. If it is found to be better to take the northern, or main shore, it must be at the expense of the hydraulic works, here at present, and the improvement will be longer, and cost more than this estimate,	-	-	-	$50,647	00
Ditto at French's Rift,	-	-	-	34,859	00
Ditto at Point Maligne,	-	-	-	80,697	00
Lockage same as on the original route,	-	-	-	301,032	00
Original line between same points costs	-	-	-		627,681
					$102,182
					00

Here we have about £25,000 in favor of the River Improvement, to which is to be added whatever extra amount of damages would be incurred in pursuing the original plan. The several improvements would take up about two miles, and the remainder would be river navigation. In the above estimate I have allowed quite liberally so far as foreseen expenses are concerned, but in the prosecution of works of this kind where so much of it is in the water, a great amount of unforeseen expenses generally occurs, and the expense may be swollen beyond the present estimate. It is a favorable feature of the river plan, that for so great a part of the distance you occupy the river, consequently that you have so much less canal in danger of derangement and requiring repair. The works in contemplation will certainly be safer at either extreme of the height of the floods than at any point between (considering the location as it respects the line the same) consequently if the works are not quite up, then the nearer they are to the point of the waters subsided the more safe they are. Upon the inland route you will observe that your works are not only up but off, out of the way of danger from ice and floods. By these remarks, I wish not to disguise the fact, that there may be accidents, and that there is danger of breaches and interruptions in the use of similar works whatever be their situation, and whatever be your forecast and precaution; but in the case before you, the probabilities of interruptions, derangements and expense of repairs in the one, hardly deserve to be named when considering the other.

The river plan appears favorable, when considering the first expenditure—but before you pronounce it the economical, the judicious, and altogether the best plan to be pursued, you must consider what it accomplishes, and what you have got for your money. In the first place you have got an imperfect improvement, and one which does not secure the ends contemplated—secondly, the works and construction of the improvement, the business, the commercial operations of the whole country are jeopardised upon an expected and oft occurring casualty, which may be avoided for the sum of 25,000*l* or 30,000*l*—Thirdly, in case of repairs being necessary they must be done at greater expense, and the same advantage cannot be taken of the season for repairs. These are matters which are perfectly within the comprehension of your Board, and I hope they will receive the consideration which they deserve. Either, sir, there is little or no truth in the accounts and representations concerning the operations of the ice and floods, or else there is great and imminent hazard in placing so important and expensive works in danger from their effects. Had this question come up in the shape it now does, one year ago, I believe that it would have received much less attention; at the same time I am not aware of any light having been thrown upon the subject or any new development concerning it in this interval.

18 Report on improvement of the River St. Lawrence.

Thus, sir, I have endeavoured to give a full and fair view of the question which now comes up for consideration in the responsibility which the Board must assume should they be disposed to change the plan of the contemplated work. Some doubts have been expressed as to the advantageous use and consequences of steam operating in the usual way in propelling boats and vessels upon a canal. I admit, sir, that there is not as much experience on this subject as would be desired; but to the case in hand; at farthest your pieces of canal are short, and your traffic and managements must be in reference to a canal business. Suppose the original plan adopted—you have, say ten miles of canal upon which you can move four to five miles per hour—suppose it only four miles (and I should not recommend a greater velocity in the first instance) you are two and a half hours in passing through, and I am inclined to think that the same time would ordinarily be taken in pursuing the river, considering the currents at various places which must be encountered.

In considering this subject, sir, you have probably had in mind the commotion and agitation of water caused by a boat moving at a velocity of from ten to fifteen miles per hour—this is one case; but it is quite another for her paddles to move so as to drive her only four or five miles per hour (a sight we never saw). At this velocity I apprehend no inconvenience from the abrasion of water—therefore attach no very great importance to the circumstance of having a few miles more of river navigation.

Respectfully submitted by
Your obedient servant,

J. B. MILLS.

Moulinette, June 12th 1834.

Review of preceding Reports.

To the President and Board of Commissioners for improving the Rapids of the St. Lawrence river, below Prescott in Upper Canada.

GENTLEMEN,

Being requested by some of the Members of your Board to reconsider and revise the opinion made by me officially in July, 1833, in regard to the route for a canal or river improvement on that part of the river called the Longue Sault. As public opinion had suggested that some alteration might be made to advantage, I was myself desirous to re-examine the whole matter, and see whether alterations could be judiciously made, of such a character as to make as good a navigation, and economise also in the expenditure. I have therefore examined the original plans as proposed by Messrs Clowes and Barrett, and also the plans as reported by Judge Geddes, of the present month, the plans of Captain Cole, Royal Engineers, and the plan proposed by Peter Fleming Esquire.

There are merits in all these projects, but there are to me very great objections to some of the details. I have come to the conclusion, in my own mind, that the river St. Lawrence would be sooner or later improved to make a steam boat navigation in every part where there was a velocity of current that could not be avoided of much over four miles per hour—all currents of that velocity and under, would never require improvement, for steam power in ascending with heavy burthens or for towing barges. Assuming this as the ground for eventual improvement of the St. Lawrence above Montreal, I have compared all the various projected alterations in the plans at that place. I have examined into the probable effect of ice upon any works along the river shore,—I have looked, and ascertained the velocity of current to be overcome at Crab Island rapid, and at Point Maligne; at the former in its strongest part six miles per hour, and the latter eight miles, Potash Point, below Cornwall, four and a half miles—and I have examined the various proposed plans for improving these difficult places, and after a full view of all the various suggestions of gentlemen of skill and talent, and whose opinions are worthy of great consideration and respect, I have come to the conclusion that the plan as recommended in 1833 is the one that I still think the best to make a perfect navigation, brought to the scale I have before given, and I still recommend it. If the Board should depart from this plan, I should next recommend the plan as given in a general outline by Captain Cole in his report, which I will give in detail.

1st. From the head of Longue Sault, carry a Canal to Brownell's Bay, and then descend by two locks, about seventeen feet.

2nd. Raise the water of Brownell's Bay by a dam at Moulinette to a height five and a-half feet higher than the present surface—make a lock at Moulinette on Sheek's Island side, and descend seven or eight feet—raise the water between Moulinette and Mille Roches by a dam at the latter place about five or six feet higher than its present level, and from this dam at Mille Roches carry a canal along the bank on the North shore to a point near an old store house, then let down by a lock six or seven feet.

3rd. Bank across the small bay above Marsh's Point, and cut hard upon the point, and drop another lock into good deep water in the river toward the lower end of Marsh's Point.

4th. Follow in the river to the shallow water above French's Rift, or rapid—thence cut a canal from a third to half a mile on the shore, and drop a lock into good deep water below the rift and navigate the river from thence to Wood's Creek, above Point Maligne—there begin a work along shore and by a hard cut through Point Maligne, end at some point in Cornwall Bay.

This work would be cheaper, probably, than the work as reported last year—its imperfections are, the velocity of current (six miles per hour) at Crab Island as before mentioned, and at Potash Point, four and a-half. It may be asserted that we ought to continue our Canal from French's Rift, and carry our lock down to near Col. Anderson's, below the Crab Island Rapid. I should be disposed to recommend this if the river route is taken, and although there is every reason to believe that the effect of the ice formation above Cornwall will do serious injury to this part of the work, still it is possible that we are mistaken, as no Engineer can say what will be the certain effect of ice formation of the character represented as nearly annually forming on this part of the river. From the representations of the people who have resided on the bank of the river for forty years, I should fear the effect of this ice, and the current of water passing in and through it in its large sheets set edgeways. These are my views, gentlemen, and the view I have taken of a change which I should advise if the plan of 1833 is departed from—which I do not recommend.

Very respectfully, I am,
Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,

BENJAMIN WRIGHT,
Engineer.

Cornwall, 13th June, 1834.

Moulinette, 13th June, 1834.

SIR,

On Returning from Mr. Reddick's, I have made some estimate on that part of the plan, as proposed by Peter Fleming, Esq. which he calls new. You observe, sir, that he follows very much the line that I do on the low level—he makes a little alteration at Mille Roches, and extends the works from Wood's Creek, (just above Point Maligne,) along the stream to the bay below Potash Point.

The work at Mille Roches, as proposed by him, will cost $25,000 more than my estimate for this place, on the same level. The work from Wood's Creek to Mr. Vankoughnett's Bay, constructed as he has proposed, will cost, protected as it ought to be, $232,301, this sum reduced by $102,182, (see the communication I addressed to you this day,) and there is left $49,422, which is the expense of his work, over and above the inland route, as proposed to you last year, to which add the above $25,000, and we have $74,422 plus the inland route. If found necessary, he proposes the formation of a bank in the margin of the river from French's Rift, extending down to about opposite the St. Regis Channel, distance two miles. This bank, as he has specified, will cost $225,000 which must be added to the above $74,442, making $299,422 plus the inland route. Had I time, I would refer to other parts of Mr. Fleming's report which I think demand comment.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

J. B. MILLS.

To Jonas Jones Esq. President &c.

Report of Mr. J. B. Mills, relative to setting out the Lands required for the purposes of the Canal.

To Jonas Jones Esquire, President &c.

SIR,

In relation to the Resolution of the Board of Commissioners, on the 14th June, "That the Engineer, as soon as convenient, set out the lands required for the purposes of the Canal, pursuant to law, and cause the alterations required in the road to be made," I beg leave to report.

1st. Concerning setting out the Lands :

Little has been done at this, except so far as the line has actually been staked out for execution, and it will be proceeded in as we proceed in laying out the line for construction. In cases where buildings are to be moved, for which damages are claimed in connexion with claims for occupation of land, the boundaries will be speedily defined.

2d. Concerning the alterations of the road :

This was required at three points—

1st. Opposite the Longue Sault about half a mile.

2d. Passing Moulinette, beginning at the military or post road, on the farm of Mr. John Bailey, thence crossing a part of his farm, also the farm of Mr. A. Dixson, Mr. Brownell, Mr. Forsyth, Mr. H. Amiable, and others, and terminating at the King's Highway, near said Mr. H. Amiable's—length of this change being about one and a half mile.

3d. Passing Mille Roches, and through the estate or farm of Mr. Marsh, deceased, distance little more than half a mile.

About the time that we were receiving tenders for the Canal, I made it known in this vicinity, that the said changes in the road were to be made, and that I would receive tenders for the same. I accordingly received five tenders, four of them covering said three alterations—accompanying this report on said four tenders, I made choice of, and accepted that of Mr. T. H. Maxwell of Osnabruck. The cost of constructing the several pieces of road varies from, [according to agreement.] £184 to £84 per mile of road, not including bridges, several of which are necessary. I have not yet agreed for the construction of the bridges. Mr. Maxwell is proceeding vigorously with the road—we are a little impeded in the prosecution of the road by disposition to wait a little for the crops of grain &c.

Report of the resident Engineer relative to procuring stone to protect the works on Section No. 1.

To Jonas Jones Esq. President, &c.

SIR,

In the estimate of 1832 of the expense of that part of the St. Lawrence Canal now embraced in Section No. 1—an allowance was made for stone in distinction from the stone which might be found in the excavation of the same. It was presumed at that time from the appearances, that in prosecuting the work, sufficient stone would be found for the purposes of protection—it happens, however, that in opening the bank along said work, comparatively few stone as yet are found. In these circumstances it becomes necessary to provide stone to protect the works, and possibly a great quantity will be required. On the 15th ultimo I communicated with you concerning this business, and it was agreed to advertise to receive Tenders for delivering stone upon this line of work, which was done accordingly. Tenders were received until the 20th ultimo, when, with the advice of Mr. Berford, the work was given to the Messrs. Herveys at 1s 8d per yard. It was thought best that said contract should extend no further than to the delivery of the stone upon the bank of the river, as it could not be exactly foreseen when, and in what quantities they would be transferred. As this second transfer of the stone from the bank of the river to their final deposit, is a work necessarily intimately connected with the work of the Messrs. Herveys, and as it was necessary for this part of the work to proceed at once, I requested Mr. Hervey on the eighth instant to make me an offer for said moving of the stone. He offered to do it for 6d per Cubic yard—this I considered too much, and offered him four pence—he concluded to take it, so that the agreement now stands at 2s per Cubic yard, for delivering and finally placing the stone as may be directed.

Report on improvement of the River St. Lawrence. 21

I am, Sir,
Very Respectfully,
Your Obedient Servant,

J. B. MILLS.

Report of the Resident Engineer relative to a proposed alteration of the plan in prosecuting the works on Section No. I. of the Canal:

To Jonas Jones, Esquire, President, &c

SIR,

In pursuance of the resolution of the Board of Commissioners at Cornwall, on the 14th ultimo, "That the Engineer be directed to estimate the difference of expense between prosecuting the work on section No. 1, according to the original plan, and curtailing the dimensions of the Canal at the Longue Sault to one half the width at bottom, and to report upon the probable advantages or disadvantages of such alteration"—I have accordingly made such an estimate.

As I believe the above resolution originated in some remarks of mine at the meeting of the Board on the 14th ultimo, I beg leave to make some preliminary observations. It was the plan, originally, to protect the works of the Canal passing the rapid part of the Longue Sault, by a kind of break-water formed of stone, nearly on the plan shewn by the section herewith presented (see plan) and the materials to accomplish this protection I presumed, from the examinations made at the time, would be found in the excavation necessary in furtherance of the same plan. It was the intention to perform the work by reserving the stone found in the course of the excavation, and until the excavation had so far advanced that it required the commencement of the prism of the Canal—then to run out wing dams, formed by a pile of stone in several places, (see plan) which would throw off the water from this shore, and enable us to embank between and below said wings to near their outer extremity. When the embankment should have been thus extended, to take said reserved stone, and place them along quite outside of the area required for the Canal, all which seemed plain and feasible, and of which I have not changed my views. As the excavation proceeded, and the opening of the bank of the river along this work, I was greatly disappointed at the small quantity of stone it afforded, and I did not hesitate to conclude that few stone comparatively for our purposes would be found in the work, and that stone must be brought from without the Canal. I accordingly communicated with you on the subject, and it was concluded to procure stone from abroad. An agreement was speedily made with the Messrs. Herveys, for the delivery of stone, and the delivery accordingly commenced. Of these measures the Board are already informed. After a quantity of stone had been delivered, I commenced the formation of one of these wing dams, I think in the most rapid part of Longue Sault. Although it did not proceed far, the effect was good, and such as I intended, but I found that it would require more stone to form these dams than I expected, and as the stone of said wing dams (these near the shore) must be taken out of the river again, I determined to abandon it, and perform the work another way, which is to begin at an accessible point at either end of the work, and proceed directly up and down the river, forming an independent pier, or mole of stone, as shewn by the sections, and on the line where it is required to be (see ground plan.) Proceeding upon this plan the work will require a greater quantity of stone as they will naturally form a rather flat slope on both sides. On considering the quantity of stone required to accomplish the object, and the means and facilities for obtaining them, it became a question whether a sufficient quantity could be obtained except at great additional cost. With this impression, at the meeting of the Board on the 14th ultimo, I spoke of reducing the canal at the rapid water to 50 feet wide at the bottom, and forming it entirely within the bank, and independent of the river. I have made such examinations as enable me to estimate the difference in the expense of the two plans proposed.

From the upper end of the section to near the point occupied by Burns' store house, distance 5490 feet it will cost 11,660*l.* more to cut the canal entirely within the bank of the river (the canal being reduced to fifty feet wide at bottom) than to protect it as at present located and upon the original plan. There is very little object in changing the location or scale of this part of the work, unless it is pushed quite within the bank, and will cost very little more to protect it where it is than if it should be moved inwardly even 60 feet.

From said store house to No. 86 (see plan) passing all the rough and rapid waters of the Longue Sault, distance 3512 feet, it is proposed to protect the work by a breakwater as represented in the sections. In this distance we have 1100 feet as per section No. 56.

676 " " "	70.
1140 " " "	86.

Which requires 136,623 yards of stone, which at 2*s.*—13,662*l.* 6*s.* The above is a maximum quantity required for securing this part of the work as at present located and planned which quantity would probably be much reduced, and it is also less than is provided for in the original estimate. If this part of the canal is reduced to 50 feet width at bottom, and cut entirely within the bank of the river, it will require 213,033 yards of excavation more than is required on the present line, which will cost 7101*l.* 2*s.* giving 6561*l.* 4*s.* in favor of reducing the scale, and cutting it entirely within the bank. The length of this proposed change is 3512 feet, and from the plan it will be perceived that either extremity of it is in fair view of the other. If we allow a boat to pass in the canal at the rate of 5 miles per hour, the detention in the most extreme case would vary from 8 to 10 minutes, and ordinarily not more than from 4 to 5.

Although I have no doubt of the safety or permanency of the work on the original plan, it is not to be disputed that it would be more secure removed altogether within the bank; however the most obstinate difficulty in the way of the original plan is the circumstance of an insufficient quantity of stone to be found except at greatly advanced prices. In view of this fact solely, concerning which I have now little doubt, I am decidedly disposed to recommend to the Board of Commissioners the changing the location so much as to construct the Canal entirely within the bank of the river. Here it becomes a question (in view of said resolution) upon what scale shall it be so constructed, when so changed? I will now present a comparison of the cost of three plans.

We have seen the protection of the work constructed on the original plan will cost £13,662 2*s.*—I suppose again the Canal reduced to 50 feet wide at bottom, and cut quite within the bank, and clear of the river—This will require (as above) 213,033 yards of excavation, which I will put at 8*d* per yard, making £7101 2*s.* and giving £65641 4*s.* in favor of said reduction and alteration.

Now if we adhere to the original dimensions of the Canal, and still construct it entirely within the bank of the river, we shall require 213,033 yards of excavation at 3d. \times 325,185 yards of excavation at 9d, making £7101 2s. \times £12194 8s. 9d. = £19295 10s. 9d, which reduced by £13,662 6s., gives £5633 4s. 9d. more than the original plan.

In view of the evident designs of the Legislature in the law under which the Board act, also in view of all the existing circumstances in connexion with the operation and progress of the Canal, I cannot recommend that this noble enterprise be marred in so important a degree as will be consequent upon its construction to 50 feet in width, even for the above 3512 feet.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your very obedient and humble Servant,

J. B. MILLS.

Report of Benjamin Wright, Esquire, Consulting Engineer, on the proposed alterations at the Longue Sault Rapids.

To the President and Board of Commissioners of the St. Lawrence Canal.

GENTLEMEN :

It appears by the report of Mr. Mills, Acting Engineer, of the work now being carried on at the Longue Sault, that there is difficulty in executing the plan of the work as originally proposed, by reason of there not being found the quantity of stone in the bank to be excavated against Section No. 1, which had been supposed would be found from the appearance on the surface. These stones which there was every reason to believe would be found in the bank were required to protect the outside of the embankment in the river, and an additional quantity to be gathered from the land adjoining were estimated. It is now found that the excavation into the bank will not produce the stone expected, and that all that can be obtained from the adjacent farms will not be sufficient to protect the work as formerly intended. Under these circumstances the board have properly required of the Engineers to devise a change of plan to suit and adapted to the material now found or to be obtained at reasonable expense.

The alteration which I would advise and recommend to the board will be to push the body of the Canal into the bank so far as to have the outside of the embankment next the river, nearly on the original shore of the water. This will increase the excavation and reduce the quantity of stone required to protect the work—It will, no doubt, make the whole work more safe.

According to the calculations of the Acting Engineer, the additional excavation will cost about 19295l. 10s. 9d. and there would be a deduction on the stone required equal to 13662l. 6s. leaving an extra cost of the canal by being carried the whole body of it into the bank, of 5633l. 4s. 9d. more than was formerly estimated. It has been suggested whether it would not be proper to reduce the width of the canal for the distance of 3512 feet to fifty feet in the bottom, and thereby save some expense:

If the saving had been a very large amount, I would probably have advised it to be done—In the present case, by saving only the sum as above stated, I do not consider it advisable, and cannot recommend it. Mr. Mills report gives this calculation, and I should regret to see so noble a work as this is intended to be, reduced in any part for so small a saving as it appears will be made.

Respectfully submitted,

BENJAMIN WRIGHT,

Consulting Engineer, St. Lawrence Canal.

Longue Sault, Dec. 10, 1834.

24 Report on improvement of the River St. Lawrence.

Report of William R. F. Burford, Esquire, Agent relative to construction of the tow-path on the American shore in the Longue Sault Rapid.

To the Commissioners for the improvement of the navigation of the River St. Lawrence.

GENTLEMEN,

Having visited the tow-path about the 20th of last month, and made a careful examination of the whole line, particularly of Cartin's point and the Pepper Mill point—the two places mentioned in my Report submitted to your Board upon the 24th of September, as not being properly finished. I am of opinion that Mr. Ault has now fulfilled his contract, and have accordingly paid him the balance due him. viz: £50.

I have taken several opportunities of going up the river from the foot of Stilwell's rapids on Barnhart's Island, to the foot of the great rush bed near Colonel Marsh's which includes the whole of the tow-path made under Ault's contract, and find that the heaviest loaded boats can pass up that side of the river with all the safety and facility that they can upon the Canada side. It is true that one boat got upon a shoal at the foot of the big chat at Stone's drawing place, and had to be lightened before she could be got off, and that some slight detentions have occurred at other places, but when we consider that from the usual depth of that channel the Forwarders have generally loaded their boats much heavier than formerly, and that the river has been nearly two feet lower than I ever knew it before, I do not think those accidents are to be wondered at or considered of any moment. From the present lowness of the water, the heavy Durham boats are obliged to go outside the shoal at the Pepper Mill point, in order to avoid another shoal a little above the point, which at present causes some short delay to boats of that class, but when the water is at its usual height, boats drawing five feet might go up that channel, passing through the small canal, in the Pepper Mill point shoal, whereas in ordinary seasons, and with the same boats, I understand that more than one half of the loading had to be carted upon the Canada side.

Agreeable to the instructions of the President of your Board, I have given Mr Erl Stone, (the person who draws boats at the Big Chat) directions to receive a ticket from each Durham boat owned by J. Macpherson, & Co., H. Jones, & Co, McMillan & Co., & the Canada forwarding Company charging themselves 17s 6d, and for every batteaux 15s—and to take the same amount in cash from all transient boats over and above the amount charged for drawing. From the number of boats that have already gone up this season, I have made a calculation that if they continue to pass next year in the same proportion, the toll charged will be much more than sufficient to reimburse the Province the sum expended in making that improvement. In less than two months, one hundred barges and Durham boats, and one hundred and nine batteaux have passed up by the American side—nearly an equal number of each class, and being loaded on an average, with fifteen tons. Last year there were fifteen hundred boats taken up the British side, with an average load of seven tons—there is no reason to suppose the number will be less next season, or materially differ in the respective number of each class, which, if we admit, we may make the following calculation of the comparative advantages of the navigation.

	Tons.
1500 boats, each loaded with 15 tons upon the American shore,.....	22,500
1500 " " " 7 " British,	10,500

Tons 12,000

1500 boats upon the British side with each 3 tons, to be carted at 10s per ton. £	2250
Deduct cost of tow path, say,	445

Report on improvement of the River St. Lawrence. 25

From this it will appear that on the present route, the same number of boats can take up twelve thousand tons more, and make a saving of upwards of eighteen hundred pounds in the season.

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Your obedient humble servant,
W. R. F. BERFORD.

Report of the Resident Engineer on the progress of the work and its estimated value to 31st December 1834.

To Jonas Jones Esquire, President &c.
SIR,

In relation to the progress of the work, it may be proper to remark that it did not commence until about the middle of August, then even it did not commence vigorously, that being the season of the year when the Cholera was in the Country, which circumstance induced hesitation in the congregating of men along the line of the Canal. The Autumn has been very favorable for the prosecution of the work, and I believe a fair and reasonable amount of labor was performed during that season. The winter thus far has been rather severe. Since the commencement of the severe weather not so much work has been done, or is now doing as we expected, neither has it been done with the usual facility attending winter work. The Autumn has been favorable, also, to the procuring and preparing materials for the locks, and other mechanical work, and the winter, thus far, is affording great facility for the delivery of the same upon the line of the canal, which delivery has been, and is now going forward with despatch.

The following is an abstract of an estimate shewing the amount of labor performed up to the first of January in pursuance of the contracts for the same.

26 Report on improvement of the River St. Lawrence.

Report of the Resident Engineer upon the expediency of prosecuting the contemplated improvements from the head of the Longue Sault to Prescott.

To Jonas Jones, Esquire, President, &c
SIR,

The relation in which I have the honour to stand to the Board of Commissioners, and which I bear to the projected improvements of the navigation of the St. Lawrence may render the following proposition within the course of my official duties.

I would respectfully recommend that the improvements contemplated between the head of the Longue Sault and Prescott be immediately commenced and prosecuted in pursuance of the projections of 1833.

The extent of improvement that may ultimately be necessary or expedient is a subject upon which I do not now propose to remark, but I conclude that there are several proposed, the propriety and necessity of which cannot be questioned—to wit, to Farren's Point, Rapid Platt and Le Rapide Galloppe. This being the case, their immediate prosecution is decidedly recommended by the following considerations—

In large expenditures of the Public funds, sanctioned by legislative enactments, the public look to the agents under whom they are disbursed, for those plans and arrangements that are best calculated to ensure the speedy accomplishment of their object and a quick and full return of the sum expended. You have just entered upon an undertaking which, if perfected as designed by the Act, will undoubtedly ensure to this Province the greatest possible Commercial advantages, and as undoubtedly will, if speedily executed, speedily return to the treasury the whole expenditure, together with liberal rewards.—But by the 13th Section of the Act authorising the improvement, you are required to complete a part of the line previous to the commencement of the remainder. The work has commenced at the point requiring the greatest expenditure (about £225,000) the profits and advantages to be derived from which, are by this clause of the Act, placed at a more remote, and an indefinite period—as it is clear that the completion of the Longue Sault improvement would add little, comparatively, to the facilities of the navigation, the points above being sufficiently difficult to prevent advantage being taken of this improvement. It probably will require about two years for the completion of the work at the Longue Sault. It would require about the same time to construct those above that place. The superintendance of the works now under your charge in all its departments will cost little less than £1500 per annum—the addition necessary to carry on the whole work at once would be about £750 per annum—If you complete the works at the Longue Sault before commencing those above it, the extra expense on account of superintendance would be about £9000—£1500=£7500. Though this is not a large sum, it is entitled to consideration; yet that, even, is not important in view of the loss of time and of other benefits which will probably be consequent upon postponing the upper part of the work. The fact of its being postponed at all, amounts to an indefinite postponement, and it is uncertain when the work may go on. This hesitation of the Province to move forward with spirit and energy in prosecuting the St. Lawrence improvements will serve only as an invitation to her neighbours on the south to go on with some of their projects, by which some, at least, of the trade of the Upper Country will find a Channel to a foreign and more Southerly market, and from which it might not readily be diverted. It has already been remarked that notwithstanding the great facilities to the projected improvements of the St. Lawrence in Canada, a Steam Boat navigation from Lake Ontario to the Hudson River may possibly be completed previous to the construction of your works. There is no doubt that such a communication will ultimately be effected, but when, it is difficult to tell; however it would be impolitic to be behind with the St. Lawrence improvement, even for the limited space of one year.

Having taken this liberty I leave the subject for your consideration.

I remain Sir,

With much respect

Your Obedient Servant.

MESSAGE

From His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, with Documents relative to the Post Office Department.

J. COLBORNE,

THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, transmits to the House of Assembly the accompanying Extract of a Communication from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, respecting the Post Office Department, and the views of His Majesty's Government in recommending an Act to be passed for regulating the internal postage of the North American Colonies; a copy of which Act is forwarded for the information of the House.

Government House, 29th January, 1835.

EXTRACT of a Despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, addressed to the Lieutenant Governor.

Downing Street, 5th October, 1835.

THE representations which have from time to time been received from the Legislature and Inhabitants of several of the Colonies in North America, respecting the Internal Postage in that part of the British Dominions, have not failed to attract the serious attention of His Majesty's Government; and I have now the gratification to send you an Act passed in the late Session of Parliament, which I hope will prove the means of settling this important question to the satisfaction of all parties.

The Act provides, that so much of the Statute, 5th Geo. 3rd, cap. 25, as authorises the taking of certain rates of Inland Postage within His Majesty's Dominions in North America shall be repealed from the time, when His Majesty's consent shall be signified to Acts of the Provincial Legislatures imposing the same or other rates of Postage, and making such regulations for the management of the Post Office by the Post Master General or his Deputies, as to the Legislatures may seem expedient.

You will observe, that in order to give effect to this Act, certain Bills must be passed by the Provincial Legislatures, and receive the Royal Assent and I need scarcely add, that to establish a practicable system, it is essential that a uniformity of views should pervade these Bills.

It was found impossible to devise any practicable plan for keeping separate the accounts of the Post Office Revenue and Expenditure in each possession in North America; and where the accounts were blended, no mode of distributing the surplus Revenue, appeared to be free from serious objection, except to apportion it according to the gross amount of Postage collected within each Colony; a provision therefore to this effect has been made in the Imperial Act of Parliament. In order, however, to admit of any other plan, which might be preferred by the Provincial Legislatures, a power has been left to them to alter this clause by Local enactments. I should scarcely anticipate that at the present time any more eligible expedient is likely to be suggested, than the one adopted by the Imperial Act: and as any alteration of it could not be carried into effect, until agreed to by each separate Legislature, it is perhaps to be wished, that at any rate for a period sufficient to try the remainder of the proposed measures, the provision made by Parliament on this point should remain untouched.

It is of course necessary that all the Acts passed by the several Legislatures on the present subject, should take effect on the same day—the first of January, 1836.

AN ACT passed in the Imperial Parliament, relative to the future Appropriation of the Post Office Revenues in the British Provinces in North America.

ANNO QUARTO

GULIELMI 4, REGIS.

CHAP. VII.

AN ACT to repeal, at the period within mentioned, so much of an Act passed in the fifth year of the Reign of His late Majesty, King George the Third, intituled, "An Act to alter certain rates of Postage, and to amend, explain, and enlarge several provisions in an Act made in the ninth year of the reign of Queen Anne, and in other Acts relating to the Revenue of the Post Office," as authorises the taking of certain rates of Inland Postage, within His Majesty's Dominions in North America. [26th March, 1834.]

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the fifth year of the reign of His late Majesty King George the Third, entitled An Act to alter certain Rates of Postage, and to amend, explain, and enlarge, several Provisions in an Act made in the ninth year of the reign of Queen Anne, and in other Acts relating to the Revenue of the Post Office. His Majesty's Postmaster General was authorised to take and receive certain rates of Postage in the said Act specified for the postage and conveyance of Letters and Packets within the British Dominions in America; And whereas the said rates have been collected in the British Colonies and Provinces in North America by His Majesty's Postmaster General or his Deputies, and the surplus thereof, after payment of the charges of Collection and Management, have been remitted to the General Post Office in London, as part of the General Revenue of the Post Office: And whereas it is expedient that henceforward the British Colonies and Provinces in His Majesty's Dominions in North America having local and independent Legislatures should be enabled by the authority of such Legislatures to levy, for the inland Postage of Letters and Packets within such Colonies and Provinces, such rates as to the said Legislatures shall seem meet, and also to make such Regulations for the management of the Post Office within such respective Provinces and Colonies, by His Majesty's Postmaster General or his Deputies, as to such Legislatures may seem expedient, and that the surplus revenue arising from the collection of such rates should be applied and appropriated for the use and benefit of such respective Colonies and Provinces.

Be it therefore enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same,—That from and after His Majesty's consent shall in the usual form be signified by the Governors, or Deputy Governors, of His Majesty's Colonies or Provinces in North America, to Bills or Acts of the Legislatures of such respective Colonies or Provinces, authorising the demanding and taking within such respective Colonies or Provinces, by His Majesty's Postmaster General, or his Deputy or Deputies, the like rates of Postage as are authorised to be received and taken by the said recited Act of the fifth year of the Reign of His late Majesty King George the Third, or such other rates of Postage as in and by such Bills or Acts respectively may be mentioned and authorised, to be received and taken, and for making such regulations for the management of the Post Office within such Colonies and Provinces by His Majesty's Post Master General or His Deputies, as shall be therein directed, then the said Act passed in the fifth year of the reign of His late Majesty King George the Third, so far as the said Act authorises the demand and receipt of any rates for the inland carriage and conveyance of Letters and Packets within such Colonies or Provinces respectively, shall thenceforth be absolutely repealed, and be no longer of any effect.

II. And be it further enacted, That from and after His Majesty's consent shall be so signified to such Bills, or Acts of Colonial or Provincial Legislatures as herein before mentioned, all the revenue which may arise from the collection of the rates of inland Postage within the said respective Colonies or Possessions, (after deducting the expenses of collection, and of the establishment and management of the Post Office within and throughout the said respective Colonies or Provinces under the direction of His Majesty's Post Master General or his Deputies,) shall and may, instead of being remitted, as heretofore, to the General Post Office in London, as part of the General Revenue of the Post Office, be appropriated, applied, and distributed to and among the said respective Colonies and Provinces, in proportion to the gross amount of the rates and duties of postage which shall be raised, collected and received, within each and every such respective Colonies or Provinces, unless and until the said Colonies or Provinces shall, by Bills or Acts of their respective Legislatures, to which His Majesty's consent shall in the usual form be signified, unite and agree in directing any other mode in which such surplus shall be applied and disposed of.

III. And be it further enacted, That this Act may be altered, varied, or repealed, by any Act or Acts to be passed in this present Session of Parliament.

After His Majesty's assent shall be signified to Acts of the Legislatures of the Provinces of North America, authorising certain rates of Postage to be taken therein, the provisions of the recited Act as to the collection of Postage within such Provinces, shall be repealed.

Appropriation of Inland Postages in the North American Provinces.

Act may be altered.

B I L L

For the management and regulation of the Post Office in Upper Canada.

WHEREAS it is expedient and necessary to make provision for the future management of the Post Office, and payment of rates for the Postage and conveyance of Letters and Packets by the Post within this Province: Be it therefore enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, and it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority of the same,—That from and after the First day of January 1836, this Act shall come into and be in full force and operation for the management of the Post Office within this Province, and for regulating the rates to be paid on the Postage and conveyance of Letters and Packets by the Post.

And be it further enacted, That there shall be one General Post Office in the City of Toronto, from whence all Letters and Packets to or from places within this Province, and to or from places out of the same, may be sent, received and dispatched; and that His Majesty's present Postmaster General of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the person to be from time to time hereafter appointed by His Majesty, His Heirs and Successors, Postmaster General of the said United Kingdom, by Letters Patent, under the Great Seal of Great Britain, shall have the entire controul and management of the Post Office within this Province, with full power and authority to settle, establish and keep Letter Offices in any place or places within this Province, where he in his absolute discretion may deem expedient; and to appoint a Deputy Postmaster General under him, and other Deputies, Agents and Officers for better managing the said Post Office, and collecting, ordering and improving the Revenue hereby granted, at such annual salaries, and making and paying to them out of the said Revenue all such annual allowances and compensations, as he shall in his absolute discretion from time to time think fit.

And be it further enacted, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the Postmaster General of Great Britain and Ireland for the time being, by any instrument in writing already or hereafter to be signed by him and sealed, with his Seal of Office, from time to time to appoint any person whom he in his judgment may think fit and proper to be the Deputy Postmaster General for this Province; and also, from time to time, of his sole authority, to remove and displace any such person from his said Office; and on death, resignation or removal of any Deputy Postmaster General, or on any other vacancy of the said office, to appoint any other person to fill the said office.

And that for more readily authenticating and proving the appointment, powers and authorities of the said Deputy Postmaster General, an office copy of the Letters Patent, enrolled in some Court or Office of Record in

And be it further enacted, That if any collector or Receiver, Ferryman or other person whatsoever, within this Province, appointed, entrusted, or employed to take or receive the tolls, or rates at any Turnpike, Gate, or Bar, erected upon any high way, Bridges, or Post Roads, or at any Ferry, shall demand and take any Toll or rate for the coachman, Post Boy, Express Boy, or Rider, Guard, Servant, or other person, horses, or carriages, conveying or employed to carry any mail or Bag of Letters, passing through, over, or across the same, or shall not permit and suffer the Horses and carriages together, with the coachmen, Post Boys, express Boys, or riders, Guards, Servants, and other persons so employed to pass through such Toll Gates, Bars, or Gates, and across such Ferries without delay; or if any Ferryman shall not immediately, and without any delay, after demand made, convey the coachman, Post Boy, Express Boy, Rider, Guard, Servants, and other persons, together with the Horses and Carriages employed as aforesaid, across such Ferry, to the usual landing-place, such offender, or offenders, being convicted thereof by the oath of such Coachman, Post Boy, Express Boy, or Rider, or other credible witness or witnesses, before any Justice of the Peace within the District wherein such offence shall be committed (which oath every Justice is hereby authorised and required to administer,) shall, for every such offence, forfeit the sum of Five pounds, to be paid to the Informer; and if the same shall not forthwith be paid upon such conviction, it shall and may be lawful for every such Justice, and he is hereby required, to commit the offender to the Gaol or House of Correction, there to remain until the said penalty or forfeiture, shall be paid, or for any time not exceeding the space of twenty one days, nor less than fourteen days, from the time of the commitment, unless such penalty or forfeiture shall be sooner paid.

Provided always, and Be it further enacted, That the exemption from toll, hereinbefore contained, shall not affect nor be deemed or construed to affect any existing charter or grant under which Tolls at any Turnpikes or Bridges are now demanded and paid, all which tolls shall continue to be paid and payable until the expiration or determination of any such existing Charter or Grant, but no longer, any thing hereinbefore contained to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

And to the end that all letters and packets may be charged with postage, according to the distance they are respectively carried by the post, and for preventing disputes touching the same: Be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful to and for such person and persons as the Postmaster General for the time being or his Deputy shall appoint, to measure or cause to be measured by the wheel or otherwise, all the post roads which are now settled and established, or which shall hereafter be settled and established in any part of this Province: Provided always, that all such person or persons who shall be so appointed as aforesaid to measure the said distances, and every of them, shall be sworn to perform the same according to the best of his and their skill and judgment, which oath shall and may be administered by any Justice of the Peace who is hereby authorised and required to administer the same, and to make Certificates thereof in writing, to be entered without fee or charge in the Chief Post Office within this Province; and moreover, such person or persons so to be appointed by such Postmaster General as aforesaid, shall, and he and they is and are hereby required to cause fair Surveys or Books to be made out, one of each whereof shall be left at the Chief Post Office established or to be established within this Province with the Deputies or Agents of the Postmaster General, there to remain in the said post Office, each of which said surveys, or Books, shall be signed by the Person or Persons making the same, who shall, and are hereby respectively required to make Oath of the truth of such surveys which Oath or Oaths shall and may be administered by any Justice of the Peace who is hereby authorised and required to administer the same and a certificate of his or their having been sworn to the truth thereof shall be signified by the Postmaster General for the time being, or by His Deputy in such chief Post Office as aforesaid, which Books and Surveys shall determine the distances on all the said Post roads, and in case of any suspicion of error or wrong admeasurement, it shall and may be lawful for the Postmaster General if he shall deem the same expedient to cause new surveys to be made and the last survey which shall be made and be verified and attested as aforesaid shall in all courts of Justice be evidence of the distances on such Post Roads and all rates granted by this Act for the Post or conveyance of Letters and Packets shall be paid and taken according to such surveys.

And be it further enacted, That where any person shall be convicted of any offence punishable under this Act, for which imprisonment may be awarded, it shall be lawful to sentence the offender to be imprisoned with or without hard labor in the Common Goal or House of Correction, and also to direct that the offender shall be kept in solitary confinement for the whole or any portion or portions of such imprisonment.

And be it further enacted, That no action or suit shall be commenced against any person or persons for any thing done in pursuance of this Act, unless within Six Calendar Months after the right of action shall have accrued, and the defendant or defendants in such action or suit shall and may plead the general Issue, and give this Act and the special matter in evidence,

And in order to avoid the frequent use of divers terms and expressions in this Act, and to prevent any misconstruction of the terms and expressions used therein—Be it enacted, That whenever in this Act with reference to any person, matter, or thing, any word or words is or are used importing the singular number or the masculine gender only, yet such word or words shall be understood to include several persons as well as one person, females as well as males, Bodies Politic or Corporate as well as individuals, and several matters or things as well as one matter or thing, unless it be otherwise specially provided, or there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such construction; and that wherever the terms and expressions following occur in this Act, they shall be construed respectively in the manner hereinafter directed: (that is to say,) that the term and expression, "His Majesty's Dominions or Provinces in North America," shall be construed to mean and include the Provinces of Upper Canada, Lower Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward's Island, and their respective dependencies; and that within the meaning and for the purposes of this Act, every person who for the time being shall be in the lawful administration of the Government of this Province shall be taken to be the Governor thereof.

Second Report of Select Committee on Grievances.

TO THE HONORABLE THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.

The Select Committee on Grievances respectfully Report :

That one of the complaints made by the agent of the petitioners to His Majesty, to whose memorial Viscount Goderich's Despatch, referred to this Committee, is in part an answer, was concerning the secret and irresponsible character of the Post office Department; by which the people were taxed without their consent, and the proceeds remitted to London to be applied to the purposes of the Nation, while an extravagant income was allowed to the head of the Department at Quebec, and in some cases insufficient remuneration given to his deputies.

The agent of the Petitioners, a member of this Committee, having had the honor to call the attention of Lord Viscount Goderich at various times to this important question, received, on the 27th March, 1833, the official communication from Lord Viscount Howick, marked A, and appended to this Report, in consequence of which, on the 29th of March, in that year, he addressed a letter to his Lordship, for the reference of his Grace the Post Master General, and enclosing the various reports, debates, and proceedings, of the House of Assembly in the Canadas on the Post office in these Colonies.

The Department considered these documents, and concluded to send for Mr. Stayner to London, where he arrived in June 1833.

The Agent for the petitioners from Upper Canada, carried the memorials to the House of Commons to be presented to that Honorable Body, who, in consequence addressed the King for the information which is contained in the annexed returns.

It is a grievance of magnitude, that the abuses shown to exist in the Department are continued, and that the Revenue raised from the Colonists is misapplied. Your Committee have also reason to believe, from the evidence given before them by Thomas Dalton Esq. that the return of monies appropriated by the Deputy Post Master General to his own use from the tax levied on the transmissions of newspapers included in the annexed documents is defective; and they consider it an object of importance to obtain the various items of information concerning the Department and its operations, which are enumerated in the address to His Excellency herewith submitted to the House.

Chairman.

[A]

Letter from Lord Howick to W. L. Mackenzie Esq., No. 2 Poland Street.

Downing Street 27th March 1833.

SIR,

I have laid before Viscount Goderich your letter of yesterday's date, and I am desired by his Lordship to acquaint you that he is disposed to think that much advantage might be derived from a personal communication from yourself and Mr. Viger either to his Grace the Post Master General, or to the Secretary to the Post office, on the questions which have been agitated in Upper and Lower Canada respecting the Post office in those Colonies. But before his Lordship sends a recommendation to the Post Master General, founded on this opinion, I am directed to request that you will inform me whether you have not put into a written form your views on the present subject, and to observe that, if that be the case, Lord Goderich would deem it the most convenient course to place the Post Master General in possession of any such written statements before an interview should take place on the matter to which they relate. I am therefore to request that you will transmit any documents of this nature to me in order that Lord Goderich may communicate on them with the Duke of Richmond. In making this communication I am aware that you purpose to leave town in a few days; and that therefore, unless you have a very early opportunity of waiting on the Duke of Richmond, it may be necessary to postpone for some time the interview you desire. But if the postponement should not be productive of inconvenience to yourself or to Mr. Viger, it would probably not form a sufficient reason for foregoing the advantage of considering a written statement on the Post office in Canada, before the proposed conference with you and Mr. Viger.

I am Sir,
Your obedient humble servant
HOWICK.

A RETURN

A RETURN of the Gross Amount of Postage in Upper and Lower Canada, distinguishing each, during each of the years 1827, 1828, 1829, 1830, and 1831; distinguishing also the amount of Newspaper and Pamphlet Postage Charge from the amount of Letter Postage received at each Office, and shewing in what manner the proceeds have been applied under the several heads.

The Letter Postage includes the British and Sea Postage, as well as the internal rates in the Provinces.
 The net proceeds, after defraying the expenses of the establishment in the Provinces and the conveyance of the Mails, &c., is remitted to the General Post Office, London.
 The sums received for the transmission of newspapers and pamphlets by Post have, ever since the establishment of the Post Office in British North America, been the emolument of the Deputy Postmaster General, out of which he allows to his sub-deputies a commission, for collecting, of from 10 to 20 per cent, which allowance is in addition to their salaries or commission as Postmasters.
 For 1827 and part of 1828, materials cannot be found for making up a perfect statement of the sums received for the transmission of newspapers, &c., but the above is the most correct return that can be made.

FIRST REPORT,

FROM THE

SELECT COMMITTEE

Appointed to inquire into the state of the

TRADE AND COMMERCE

OF THE

PROVINCE OF UPPER CANADA.

MEMBERS OF COMMITTEE:

Mr. JAMES WILSON—Chairman.
Mr. MACKENZIE,
Mr. SHAYER,
Mr. McMICKING, and
Mr. DURAND.

The Select Committee appointed to inquire into the condition of the Trade and Commerce of this Province with other parts of the world, and to consider whether any, and if any, what alterations and improvements should be made therein, and to whom was referred His Excellency's Message sent down with Mr. Secretary Rice's Despatch on grain and flour, and the petitions of certain Inhabitants of this Province, complaining that at a time when a great part of the population are involved in debt to an alarming extent for lands they have purchased, a great and unexpected depression has taken place in the prices of agricultural produce, and praying for such relief as it may be within the power of the Legislature to extend—have made some progress in the investigation of the matters referred to them, and agreed to the following as a first report:—

The case submitted to your Committee by the petitions of the proprietors of the soil, is one of severe distress, affecting those interests of this country which are of a fixed and permanent nature, as compared with the usual objects of commercial enterprise, and which would require the early and careful consideration of the House, and the efficient co-operation of the Government to lessen and alleviate.

With a view of ascertaining the extent of the depression under which wheat and flour, the chief staple commodities, raised for exportation, have fallen in the Montreal market, your Committee put the following question to fifteen of the Members of the House, practical farmers, residing in various parts of the Province.

“What is the average cost of production of twenty bushels of merchantable wheat in your county, (without taking into consideration, or making a charge for interest on capital invested in the land)?”

The result of these calculations was as follows:

	Halifax Currency.
Mr. Gibson, York County ,	£ 2 12 6
Mr. Wilson, Prince Edward ,	3 0 0
Mr. Alway, Oxford ,	2 0 0
Mr. Gilchrist, Northumberland ,	3 0 0
Mr. Cook, Dundas ,	2 15 0
Mr. Shibley, Frontenac ,	2 17 6
Mr. Woolverton, Lincoln ,	2 10 0
Mr. Hopkins, Halton ,	3 10 0
Mr. Smith, Wentworth ,	2 0 0
Mr. Chisholm, Glengarry ,	3 0 0
Mr. Roblin, Prince Edward ,	3 0 0
Mr. Waters, Prescott ,	3 15 0
Mr. Shaver, Dundas ,	£ 2 15 0
Mr. Yager, Hastings ,	2 10 0
Mr. Perry, Lennox & Addington ,	2 15 0

The average result is £2 15s. 11½d., or two shillings and nine pence halfpenny per bushel.—On the shores of Lake Ontario, it ranges from half a dollar to three shillings: Eastward, in Glengarry and the Ottawa, it rises from three shillings to three shillings and nine pence; and Westward, in the Gore and London Districts, falls to between half a dollar and two shillings of our currency.

The price paid by the merchants in Toronto and the County of York, during the present winter, is from 2s. 6d. to 3s.; and the cost of conveyance of a bushel of wheat from hence to Montreal, in summer, is from fourteen to fifteen pence. The prices there have ranged between 4s. and 4s. 6d. during the last half year, and there is very little prospect of improved prices. The cost of conveyance is increased from the London District, so as to counterbalance the superior productiveness of the soil; and although there is less expense of freight and charges between Montreal the Ottawa and Glengarry, yet the natural disadvantages of climate under which the Eastern Districts labor, seem to place them but on a level as to prices, with the country near Lake Erie.

Mr. Cawthra, a merchant of extensive dealings here, stated in evidence before your Committee, that the expense of conveying a bushel of wheat from Cobourg or Toronto to Montreal, was 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d.; from Prescott to Montreal 9d.; and from Kettle Creek, on Lake Erie, 1s. 7d.

The immediate cause of distress is thus shown to be an inadequacy of return; the chief product of the soil does not now obtain, in any market, foreign or domestic, a price which replaces to the producer the cost of production, nor is there a return of interest on the capital originally invested, either in buying and clearing of waste lands, or in the purchase of improved estates.

Your Committee have not made a very minute inquiry as to the values of ashes, beef, pork, and other staple exports, although it is a well known fact, that they do not bring to the agriculturist a remunerating price for his capital and labor.

The average last season, at Quebec, for pearl ashes was about 25s. 6d. the cwt., and for pots, 24s.; pork was met in that market by a supply from Ireland, and the prices fell in consequence.* Lumber appears to have been the only staple which commanded favorable prices, but there are many sections of the Province which receive little or no benefit from it as an export to places abroad.† Although 1122 vessels, measuring 315, 803 tons, arrived last year at Quebec, the greater number being for cargoes of lumber, yet there is such an uncertainty as to the course the British Government may pursue with regard to the discriminating duty in favor of American timber, that the disposition to embark capital in that very precarious article of traffic is much lessened of late years.

Another cause of distress is to be found in the restrictions laid on the trade of the Colony, and the disadvantages under which the land owners and merchants labor, as compared with the same classes on the opposite frontier.‡

Laws for the regulation of our trade and commerce are enacted in the Parliament of the United Kingdom,|| and continually changed and varied without our being consulted for our interest, although the value of our labor and property is unduly affected by this ever varying system of Legislation.§

In the United States, the different sections of the several States are fairly and equally represented, according to their numbers, in the body which regulates their commerce, and thereby raises or depresses the value of their industry and estates.

By the fiscal regulations of Great Britain, affecting the commerce of Upper Canada, customs duties are ordered to be levied at our shipping places, of 7½, 15, 20, and even 30 per cent. on the value of imported articles of the first necessity to an agricultural community, if those articles are not imported from England or some of her Colonies; but if imported from England or her Colonies, they are only subject to 2½ per cent. on the £100. value, and in some cases are duty free.*

Some articles of general utility are prohibited to be imported unless in British ships, or from a British port.†

Our trade by sea is carried on almost exclusively in British shipping, and for the advantage of capitalists residing in Europe.

Although it is obviously the most convenient and suitable for us to raise a revenue for state purposes, by customs duties levied on articles of foreign growth, or manufacture of a like kind with those which form the staple commodities produced and manufactured in this Province; and although England regulates our trade so as to protect her manufactures‡ against all foreign competition in our markets, yet it is declared by the Imperial Acts of late years, that heavy duties shall be charged on the importation of those foreign articles which we require but do not produce, while the importation of the staple commodities of the neighboring Republic, being the same as ours, shall be duty free.

England claims an exclusive monopoly in our markets; she allows us none in hers; [See Note to page 49.] Our beef and pork are prohibited in her home dominions, and our pot and pearl ashes subject to the same rates of duty at London or Liverpool as the pot and pearl ashes of the south shores of Erie and Ontario. The shipping of Great Britain, at Quebec, give no preference to timber, live stock, flour, beef and pork, brought from Upper Canada, over the same articles brought from the United States:—if we sell cheapest they buy from us, not otherwise.§

By the ninth section of an Act of the Imperial Parliament, passed on the 28th of August, 1833, which has not been placed on our Statute book,|| and which, it is probable, that not one in a hundred of our population ever heard of (the 3rd and 4th of Wm. the 4th, chap. 59,) it is enacted, that United States wheat, wheat flour, beef and pork, may be imported into the Canadas either by sea or inland navigation, free of duty; as also, that the wheat, wheat flour, beef and pork, thus brought into competition with ours, may be shipped at Quebec, in British ships only, to any part of the British West Indies, there to be admitted on the same terms as the like produce of Upper Canada is admitted. United States flour may be sent to Halifax or St. Johns in British ships; there it is warehoused duty free for exportation to the British West Indies. The monopoly is all in favor of England and the United States.

By an Act of Congress passed in July 1832, wheat, wheat flour, beef and pork, ashes, and all other articles, the staple produce of the Canadas, are subject to a tax of £15. on every £100. value, if imported into any port of the United States;

Congress choosing to levy duties for the purposes of revenue rather on those foreign articles of which the United States produce an abundance, than on articles of necessity, which come not in competition with the industry of their citizens. Adhering to this principle, the same act authorises the importation into the ports of the Union free from duty, of tea, coffee, pepper, ginger, mace, nutmegs, currants, raisins, camphor, flax, tin in plates and sheets, drugs, dye-woods, grapes, &c., and the consequence is, that tea and such other articles of general use, as are cheaper beyond the lines than in this Colony, are, in many instances, imported clandestinely, by a population who never assented to the Legislative Acts whereby tea was prohibited to be bought at the cheapest market.*

We are necessarily confined to the markets of the United Kingdom and its Colonies, as the markets for our produce, for were we to attempt to extend our trade with other countries, the protecting duties imposed by England in favor of her own merchandise, would prevent the importation of foreign goods in exchange.†

In the documents appended to this report, your Committee have taken considerable pains to show the actual state of the trade of Canada, the extent of the tariff and prohibitions and protections here referred to, and the arguments adduced on behalf of their respective theories, by those in America and in England who advocate the doctrines of free trade,‡ as well as those who give a preference to the Colonial system,|| with its chain of monopolies; reference has been had to Legislative proceedings and official accounts, made up in the Colonies, Great Britain, and the United States, in order that parties interested might, by having placed before them a collection of facts bearing on the important questions before your Committee, be able to arrive at just conclusions.

But although a depression of prices and the restrictions which injuriously affect our commerce are, perhaps, the more immediate causes of the agricultural embarrassment which now prevails, and which is bringing many persons within the vortex of a tedious, costly, and ruinous series of lawsuits, with very little hope of being able to extricate themselves from the meshes of the Courts of civil jurisdiction, there are other causes of commercial and agricultural distress equally deserving of the notice of the Legislature, and perhaps more fully within its power to remedy.

Unless the taxes and rates which are raised from the people are laid out with care and prudence for their benefit, that advantage which good government would confer, is not shared by the community. In Upper Canada, a large sum is annually raised by district rates, fees, assessments on uncultivated lands, and other local taxation, which is not well accounted for, and in many instances not judiciously expended.

Again, the proceeds of the sales of Clergy Reserves paid into the military chest, and incorporated with the finances of Great Britain, serve to impoverish the farming classes here. If one farmer sell land to another, the parties being both resident among us, the public wealth receives no diminution, but the proceeds of the sales of the Clergy Reserves are very unjustly taken out of the country altogether, while the clergy of a few are thrown upon the protection of the whole population, and a large sum annually, illegally, applied to their maintenance.

Another injurious and unconstitutional scheme, whereby a vast sum is annually drawn from the labor of the hard working farmer, is, the Canada Company, an association of European mercantile speculators in those waste lands of the Colony to which the industry of the settled population had given value, but which had been constantly refused when they applied to the local authorities as intending purchasers. We are of opinion, that this monopoly is one of the greatest drawbacks upon the agricultural and commercial prosperity of the Colony—that its formation was an act of injustice and oppression—and that every possible legal effort should be made to root it out of the country.

Our commercial prosperity is retarded, and emigrants of wealth, talent and enterprise, induced to avoid our shores, by the knowledge they have, that men in whom the public would have confidence, cannot, and will not be placed in those situations of power and trust, where they might check misrule and punish the authors of it. Unless the Legislature is enabled to assume the control of the whole public revenue, from whatever source derived, and unless the nature of the Government is such, that all public officers can be made accountable, on this side the Atlantic, for their official conduct, those principles of economy and retrenchment, on the operation of which the whole fabric of domestic prosperity and successful competition in foreign commerce would safely rest, cannot possibly prevail. There is no question but that under a better order of things, the expenses of our canals and public undertakings, and of the Government itself, would be greatly diminished, the difference would go back among the agriculturists to encourage them to new exertions, and our public debt, like that of Lower Canada and the United States, would be annihilated.*

The Legislative Council of this Colony have greatly augmented the difficulties with which the British and Colonial Governments have to contend, by the obstinacy with which they have thrice refused to agree to the proposals, first made by Lower Canada, under the Government of Sir James Kempt, that Commissioners should be appointed on the part of Upper Canada, to meet Commissioners who had been appointed by law in Lower Canada, to consult on the state of trade, and other matters of mutual interest to both Colonies.† Thrice was a bill sent up by the Assembly, in different sessions, and different Parliaments, word for word with that which had received the royal assent in the Sister Colony; but the Council would pass no bill whatever, unless it contained a clause that (while the Assembly had nominated the Commissioners in Lower Canada) the Lieutenant Governor should select the Commissioners here. Had the bill passed into a law, the joint deliberation of Commissioners possessing the confidence of the two Canadas, would have most probably resulted in the recommendation of measures to the British and Canadian Legislatures of great importance to our commercial welfare;—as it is, the country remains comparatively poor, and the land-owners, whether resident or non-resident, suffer severely.

Having called the attention of the House to some of the causes of the distress complained of by the farmers, your Committee proceed respectfully to submit to its consideration some practical measures for their relief.

Until England shall give to her colonists a monopoly in her markets, she cannot be held entitled to a monopoly of ours. If she resorts to the United States for those articles she finds to be cheapest there, why should not we do so also?

Our consumption of foreign and British Colonial merchandize is far greater, in proportion to our population, than that of those northern States of the Union whom she admits to equal advantages with us in her markets.* Compare the duties imposed on British, and British Plantation rum, raw and refined sugars, wollens, cottons, silks, hardware, cutlery, &c. in the ports of Boston, New-York, Buffalo, or Oswego, with the charges levied on their importation at Quebec or Montreal,—they are in some cases four-fold—in very many instances, ten-fold greater in the former.

In what do we receive an equivalent?—We receive none.

Your Committee submit a resolution, which is, in substance and effect, to follow the example set us by Great Britain, and to allow the distressed agriculturists of this Colony to buy in the markets of the Union, free of duty, those articles which do not come in competition with their industry; are of immediate necessity; and cheaper than at Montreal.

To repeal so much of the Imperial Act of 1833, would perhaps be the most direct way of attaining this object; but to this course, some may entertain objections. That we have the power, however, to appropriate the monies raised in taxation, is not doubted;—it is a sacred trust reposed in us, to apply the public revenue in the way that would be most conducive to the general welfare.† The resolutions reported herewith embody the opinions of your Committee on this subject.

The article of salt is manufactured in small quantities in the Province, but the chief supplies are from Onondaga. A bounty is granted on the exportation of this necessary article by New York State; and your Committee submit resolutions for the repeal of the Provincial Act under which salt is taxed, and the farmers on this side the great lakes obliged to compete on unequal terms in Montreal and Quebec with their brethren across the lines, whose salted beef and pork enter these markets duty-free.

Another means whereby the payment of the debt due by Canada might be ensured, is the taxing of the stock of joint stock Banks. It is evident that these institutions are making great annual profits in the midst of the general distress; and it appears unjust to allow capital invested in the transient concerns of Banking, to augment, without contributing to the expense of the government which protects its operations, while the houses and lands and cattle of the agriculturist, and even his salt, are taxed.

The advantages that would be conferred by the adoption of the course suggested by your Committee, on the families settled in this Province, and employed in agriculture, are plain and obvious. They would be enabled to purchase much cheaper than they do now, those articles of comfort and necessity which few families can do without.—It would be as if two rival stores had been opened in a township where there was but one before. After carefully considering the consumption of the articles proposed to be admitted free of duty, your Committee estimated that £5 to £20 would be saved yearly to a large number of the families in this Province, by following the example of England and buying in the cheapest market. The Lower Province would scarcely complain of an experiment intended to relieve Upper Canada, and to enable her population to increase those surplus products, the outlet for which is the St. Lawrence; or if she did complain, the remedy would be for her to follow our example and take off the duties on the same articles, whether imported from England, the West India Colonies, or the United States. It cannot be shewn that British commerce would suffer by such a course of Legislation.

Another remedial measure would be the passage of a law for raising a revenue by imposing moderate duties on imports from the United States, of flour, wheat, ashes, pork, beef, live stock, lumber, horses, and such other articles as come directly into competition with the staple products of this Colony; said duties to continue, at least until Congress shall remove the restrictions which have hitherto prevented the exportation, to the United States, of Canadian wheat, flour, provisions, lumber, &c., when that country would have afforded the best market for these articles. The sum likely to accrue from the passage of such a law, would, in part, prevent that decrease of revenue which might by some be brought forward as an objection to the proposition for the removal of certain other duties which injuriously effect the Colonists. The question of the expediency of raising a revenue from United States imports of wheat, flour, live stock, &c., has, however, been referred to the consideration of another Committee.

* See Appendix, page 8, 9.

† The proportion of revenue paid by Lower Canada to this Province in 1833, was £53,466, currency; and in 1834, it was £54,393,—there is an increase of £925.

The system of bonding merchandize, and making up assorted cargoes of foreign and domestic goods, duty free, for foreign countries, if it were permitted at Quebec and Montreal to the same extent and in the same way in which it is authorised at New York and Boston, would greatly increase the trade of these ports, and add to the commercial prosperity of both Canadas.*

The cost of collecting the duties levied on imports from the United States, is unreasonably high; the system under which £100 can be retained for collecting another £100 being united to the powers vested in the Government to increase the number of collectors and ports of entry at pleasure, requires revision. From the official returns to the House, it appears that twenty Collectors of customs collected last year £2117 and kept back £1059 out of it, for their trouble.

The appointment, by resolution, of three Members of this House to proceed to Montreal, after the session has closed, and confer with any three Members whom the House of Assembly of Lower Canada may in like manner appoint, to consult on matters of trade,† and other matters of mutual importance to both Provinces, would be a very useful measure.

Although more than a million sterling, has been expended in the construction of an uninterrupted inland navigation, by the way of the Rideau, between this Province and the port of Montreal, it was the opinion of the House of Assembly, that another route had already become necessary; and at great expense and with borrowed funds the Province has commenced the improvement of the navigation of the Saint Lawrence upon a very extensive scale; a steam boat canal 100 feet wide at bottom, 200 feet at the surface, and 9 feet deep, with locks 200 feet in length, and 50 in width, is in progress; 11 miles are under contract; upwards of £30,000. have been expended, but no part is finished.‡ If this canal shall be completed on the scale on which it was begun, it will involve Upper Canada far deeper in debt, although the advantages will be shared by the sister Colony, and especially by her grand commercial emporiums, Quebec and Montreal. Lower Canada has contributed a very small part of the expenditure of the canal navigation of this Colony, although she is entirely out of debt, and possessed of a vast and greatly increasing revenue. The Commissioners whose appointment has been suggested, might do much towards bringing about a better understanding between the two Provinces in matters of this kind.

Another means of alleviating the existing distress is already adopted by the House, in the disposition, its votes have sanctioned, of the proceeds of the Clergy Reserves.

The extension of the trade of a country is not a true test of its happiness. Britain has a foreign commerce greater than any other nation, yet, owing to a long continuance of bad government and oppressive taxation, millions of her population are in poverty and want: Ireland exports immense quantities of her domestic products; † yet is she grievously impoverished, and coercion bills and thirty thousand armed men are found necessary to prevent her population from rising against the authorities, even in a time of profound peace. The documents appended show that one of the chief causes of that commercial and agricultural distress by which the British West Indies have so severely suffered, can be traced to the folly and extravagance of their Local Governments, too long sanctioned by the Colonial Office.‡

The abolition of the Canada Company, an illegal and injurious association, if at all practicable, or the taxation to the full extent of the lands so unjustly placed at its disposal, would be of great importance, as a means of lessening that perpetual drain upon the amount of cash circulating in the Colony, of which the people continue to complain.

Above all, it is essential to the welfare of Upper Canada, that the House should insist, that the whole public revenue raised within it might be henceforth at its disposal, to be applied only according to law; and that those Officers, whose duty it is to preside over the several departments of the Government, should be the responsible advisers of the Lieutenant Governor, and hold their offices only for such periods as their proceedings might obtain for them the confidence of the representatives of the people.

3rd.—Resolved. That if the duties now charged on the above articles when imported by sea, and on salt imported at Quebec, were remitted during the year, commencing in May next, a very seasonable relief would be obtained for the Agriculturists of Upper Canada.

4th.—Resolved. That a copy of these resolutions be communicated to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, with a request that he would transmit them to the Governor-in-Chief, for the purpose of being laid before the Legislature of Lower Canada.

APPENDIX TO THE REPORT ON TRADE.

Arguments used in favor of protecting and discriminating duties, by the friends of the Colonial system in the United States and British America.

In favor of the United States tariff of 1828, they allege:

The uncertainty of distant foreign markets, and the certainty of that at home.

The violence and caprice of foreign powers, who sometimes commenced a war suddenly, and swept the seas of American merchantmen.

The great expense of fitting up and upholding a navy like that of England, for the protection of foreign commerce.

The uncertainty of the demand for United States staples in the European markets—sometimes, while at war, opening their Ports and demanding American Flour at ten or fifteen dollars a barrel—and at other times, as in the event of a peace, ruining thousands of American farmers, and those connected with them, by reducing the price of that article to three or four dollars.

Cases like the following were cited:

A supposed scarcity of cotton, or some other American staple, is stated as existing in England—large supplies are sent from America—the market over-stocked—prices reduced; and shippers ruined.

A war takes place between the United States and England, and the supply of foreign manufactures thereby receives a check—domestic workmen are employed; capital expended on machinery, and apprentices indentured—the return of peace recalls the foreign competition, and proves ruinous to the domestic manufacturer.

It is argued:

That if a cultivator in the Western States obtains a good coat, good furniture, or education to his children, for so much of the produce of his fields, it is of little consequence what proportion the price paid bears to the prices in Europe; it must be fair whatever it be; he cannot send his grain to England to buy cloth or furniture.*

That, as a Nation is a political community, where a number of persons unite for their mutual advantage, it is unjust for the farmer to say "I will buy my clothes or shoes from abroad, because they are cheaper," as it would be foolish for a shoemaker to propose to purchase his flour from abroad because it was dearer.

That it is better for the American farmer to pay twenty shillings for a yard of cloth wove in Massachusetts than to allow a person from Yorkshire to import and sell cloth of the same quality at fourteen. The English landlord uses the same argument to the Yorkshire weaver in favor of monopoly in corn, high rents, and domestic agriculture.

That free trade is opposed to the opinions of most countries—unapproved by long experience of any people—and that the United States created their marine by the old system of protection; and, were also creating, by the same means, distilleries and plantations sufficient for their supply in sugar and spirits.

That, by the old system, the Canadas have been enabled to exchange their wood, corn, and fish, for the manufactures of Great Britain, and the produce of the West Indies; that by the old system, therefore, a country which would otherwise have been uninhabited, or remained in poverty and want, has rapidly grown up into all the comforts and conveniences of life, and now teems with the industry and happiness of a million of British Subjects. That the Northern Colonies, and the Southern also, cleave, as to the very charter of their existence, to the old system of protection. †

That the United States Tariff of 1828 was imposed to balance the burthens imposed on native industry by the operation of foreign laws, but not to burthen one class of persons in the union, or one section thereof, at the expense of another. That all England meant by free trade, was merely to obtain a monopoly of other markets by means of her superior skill in manufactures, and thereby to prevent foreigners from her soil from establishing manufactures, or else to ruin and undersell those already established. That England could afford to begin the system of free trade, because, her manufactures are now so well established, that free competition would place them in no danger.

* This argument would possess the same weight if applied to the produce of a Canadian farmer, who might desire to export it to the United States—the duties would prevent him.

† Sir Howard Douglas affirms, that the British Emigrant first finds employment in lumbering, and that the lumberman clears the ground for the agriculturist.

That Washington, Jefferson, Madison, and Munroe, had all advocated the principle of protection.

That Britain had given birth to the tariff system, by persisting in her corn laws.

That the American tariff and English corn laws had brought to America many thousands of the capitalists and first-rate mechanics of Britain, whose industry must now be protected from the competition of their half-starved brethren in Europe, whose labor would be kept down, under the most favorable circumstances, by an unfeeling, but all-powerful aristocracy.

That the price of the great staple of cotton, and of all the chief productions of the agriculture of the United States, has been sustained, and a decline averted, by the protective system.

That objects within the scope of the policy of protection have greatly fallen in price; that the benefits of the close system would be still more extensively felt in time of war; that free trade would subject America to foreign legislation, regulated for foreign interests, and would prove ruinous to the nation.

That the power of invention would never be exerted if it had no confidence in the promise of support.

That capital would never come to the aid of skill and enterprise if it had no security for investment.

That America ought not to wait until surrounded by invasion, and then beg blankets from invaders to warm a shivering army engaged in national defence.

That if protection must be general—not local, the nation, with its various soils, different climates, and diversified objects of industry, could never provide a protecting tariff.

That duties upon foreign goods secure the market to the home manufacturer, and that the tax is not paid because the article is not imported, domestic competition among the manufacturers having reduced the cost to the lowest possible price, while at the same time that competition has improved the quality.

In the report of the committee on iron, in the New-York convention of "Friends of Domestic Industry," held in October 1831, it is urged that an impost may operate on the importer, and not on the consumer—1st. Where the importing country is the principal market for the article, and that article one which the exporting country unavoidably produces in the manufacture of some other of greater value. 2nd. Where there is an increasing surplus of production in the exporting country, and an extensive and growing manufacture of the same article in the country where this surplus has heretofore sought a market. Of the first class, they offer molasses as an example, and affirm that the duty on its importation into the union was exclusively paid by the planter, who was obliged to sell it there at what it would bring. Of the second, they give iron as an illustration, affirming that, after the intelligence of the United States new duty on iron by the tariff of 1828, reached England, iron fell one pound a ton, immediately, and next year was still further reduced in price; and that the United States manufacturer, feeling increased confidence, extended his operations and increased the supply, without raising his price. As the English manufacturer could only reach the domestic markets of America by paying the additional impost, it is contended that American competition compelled him to diminish his profits, and thus prevented the extra duty from falling on the consumer. "If," says the American manufacturers, "domestic ingenuity had not been thus protected, the price in England would have continued as before, because the foreign manufacturer, supplying the article exclusively, would have dictated his own terms, including a large profit to himself."

With reference more immediately to the British Colonial system, it has been argued, (see a letter of Mr. H. Bliss to Sir Henry Parnell,) that "the first general principle in the Colonial system of Great Britain, has hitherto been a mutual preference of all her Provinces in their intercourse with each other, and with the Mother Country. This has been the basis of that confederacy, the security of that connexion, which has held together for so many years her immense Dominions, in spite of all the differences and divisions of situation, laws, language, and religion. This has proved the main support of the power and wealth and independence of the whole Empire."—that to admit United States produce into the Ports of the Canadas, for domestic consumption or exportation, on the most favorable terms, while the United States prohibit Canadian produce from passing to a foreign market through their Territories, or from being consumed by their people (see Law of April 1831) is unjust to the Canadians; that it is calculated to raise the value of real Estate on the Northern and North Western Frontiers of the Union; and when taken into consideration with the advantages of Self Government, an independent judiciary, the absence of an established church, and the more equal distribution of real estate, will induce British Capitalists to prefer, in many cases, the Southern to the Northern banks of the Saint Lawrence, and great Lakes—that to alter the duties on American and Baltic timber would throw 1000 British Ships out of employment immediately—and that it would injure the Canadians.

Mr. Clay endeavoured, in February 1834, to persuade Congress to continue the tariff of 1828, by reading the following extracts from a work entitled, "The Trade and Navigation of Great Britain, considered by Joshua Gee, 1750."*

"The advantages to Great Britain from keeping the Colonists dependent on her for their essential supplies."

"If we examine into the circumstances of the inhabitants of our plantations, and our own, it will appear that not one-fourth part of their profit redounds to their own profit, for out of all that comes here, they only carry back clothing and other accommodations for their families; all of which is of the merchandise and manufacture of this Kingdom."

After showing how this system tends to concentrate all the surplus of acquisition over absolute expenditure in England, he says,—

"All these advantages we receive by the plantations, besides the mortgages on the Planters estates, and the high interest they pay us, which is very considerable, and therefore very great care ought to be taken in regulating all affairs of the Colonists, that the Planters be not put under too many difficulties, but encouraged to go on cheerfully.

"New England and the Northern Colonies have not commodities and products enough to send us in return for purchasing their necessary clothing, but are under very great difficulties, and therefore any ordinary sort sell with them. And when they have grown out of fashion with us, they are new fashioned enough there."

The friends of the protective system in England and the United States use the same arguments. "The Working Man's Advocate," a paper printed in New York, reasons thus:

"And what advantage would be to the laboring man, if he gain twenty or thirty dollars a year in the purchase of food and clothing, and lose double or treble the amount by low wages, we leave it to the enemies of protection to decide.—The manufacturing and mechanical laborers of the United States could not work against the starving workmen of England and other countries, unless they worked as cheap, consequently would be in as miserable a condition. Do the enemies of protection want such a state of things? If they do, they are the real enemies of the country, and particularly of the laboring class."

President Jackson, in one of his messages, had laid it down as a maxim, that "objects of national importance alone ought to be protected." On this text Mr. Mallory speaks in Congress as follows:—

"The farmer who grows wheat, asks the aid of Government to protect that article. He knows that Poland, Russia, the Barbary States, and France, may furnish at times, wheat cheaper on the seaboard than he can afford. When he asks protection, an objection is made—some portions of the Union do not produce wheat—its production is not general—it must be rejected. Butter and cheese are presented for protection. Our farmers can produce them in abundance. The Irish tenant, who subsists on the humblest fare that unfeeling oppression deals out, may furnish them cheaper than the cultivators of our soil: yet, it is discovered, that portions of our extended country are unable to produce butter and cheese.—They cannot be protected; they are "local," and not general."

As to protecting particular branches of trade, and upholding American manufactures against British competition, Mr. Cambreling is of opinion, that—

† The arguments of Mr. Clay and Mr. Gee, in favor of fostering particular branches of manufacture, and in favor of protecting the industry of one part of an Empire or Nation at the expense of the industry of other parts, may be met by a perusal of Governor Hamilton's message to the Legislature of South Carolina, of which an extract is appended to this report.

"We (meaning the United States of America) cannot make our Merchants of yesterday rival in skill and economy, the Englishman, who is a manufacturer by inheritance. We cannot make one man perform more than the labor of three; nor can we make one capital equivalent to two. We may, as we have done, for fifteen years, force capital into particular manufactures, and drive our people into wild and speculative competition with each other. We may, for a time, crowd our markets, and sell the produce of our labor at less than the costs of the raw material: we may continue to waste our millions in such experiments, but when the phrenzy is over, our manufactures are as far as ever from being placed on a permanent and prosperous foundation. Although fabrics may be cheaper than before the competition, they are comparatively as much dearer than British manufactures, as they were—the permanent relative prices in the two countries depending not on temporary competition, but on the comparative advantages of capital, labor, skill, and duties on raw materials; our joint stock companies, and our mercantile manufactures, with all our short lived Legislative creations, must, under our artificial system, inevitably perish, with every re-action in trade, as they have done for twelve years past. The millions invested under the act of 1816, were swept away in 1818 and 1819: those under the act of 1824, by the revulsion of 1825 and 1826; and the investments under the act of 1828, by the tremendous shock of 1829. The oldest cotton manufacturer in America, one who came from England in 1788, and who had, under our ancient free trade system, accumulated a fortune by manufacturing; even that manufacturer trembled for a week on the verge of bankruptcy."

Mr. Huskisson, in his speech on the effects of free trade on the silk manufacture, laid it down as a principle, that it was to increasing industry, and not to artificial regulations for creating high prices, that England would have to look for relief. "It is to the increasing wealth of the manufacturing population, and the progress of industry, and not to artificial regulations for creating high prices, that this country must look, not only for relief from her present burthens, but for the power of making fresh exertions, whenever her situation may demand them. It is not in the power of any artificial measures to give that real relief to agriculture, or to any other mode of occupation, which can only flow from the increasing activity and increasing industry of the people."

Mr. Neilson, in his Quebec Gazette, appears to think that a low tariff is the most suitable for promoting the interests of the mercantile class in Canada. In March 1832, he wrote as follows:—"Our duties on the whole of our imports do not, perhaps, average one-sixth of those paid by the United States;—the effect is felt in the annual increase of our trade, and the increasing wealth and comforts of our population. Our low duties could not, however, give to our trade and industry the impulse which they have lately received, without the aid of the American tariff. It proves nearly as beneficial to these provinces as the American Embargo of 1810; and we shall, without being very solicitous of discovering the cause, be happy to find that the majority of the people of two neighbouring countries continue to be satisfied with a system of duties on importations so very different."

By the fiscal regulations on the trade between Great Britain and her West India Colonies, the Jamaica sugar planter is prohibited from refining the sugar produced on his estate,—that process or manufacture being confined to England. The steam millers of Manchester, not long since, petitioned the Imperial Parliament for protection against United States and Canadian grist-mills, propelled by water power. A Manchester (steam) flour miller, thus advocates the doctrine of protection to domestic industry, in the Manchester (England) Guardian, of March 24th, 1831:—"If it shall appear possible from war, or any other adverse cause, nonintercourse with America may at some future time recur; if it shall appear possible that from a bad harvest in America, or from superior demand from other States, supplies may not be spared, or diverted into other channels; and if it shall appear that whilst our sources of supply of foreign wheat are numerous, and generally abundant, our supplies of foreign flour are derived, almost entirely, from America; if it appear that peradventure at some future time we may have again an abundant harvest of our own; that in consequence, foreign flour would not be required, and that if required, it would be excluded by low prices of wheat, and consequent high duties; if it shall appear that under such circumstances, having abundance of wheat but not sufficient means for its conversion into flour, the country would be thrown upon the mercy of those millers, with whom all the surviving means of supply would remain; if, in short, it appear possible, that, with abundance of home and continental wheat, the inhabitants of this country may at any time, or times, be driven by a want of mill machinery, to pay a famine price for the flour they consume, then surely it must appear, that, next to an abundant supply of wheat, an abundant supply of machinery, to convert that wheat into flour, is of paramount importance to the whole community. It will appear that it is expedient for the general good that we continue within ourselves the power to manufacture flour sufficient for the whole population;—that, therefore, it is expedient that the means of conversion increase with our increasing population, and, of course that it is not expedient that a single existing establishment be driven to extinction for want of protection. For the sake, then, of every public as well as private interest, protection by the miller should be sought by all." Under the existing law of averages, direct prohibition, or a prohibitory duty, is necessary.

The friends of monopoly assert, and perhaps with reason, that Salt could not be brought so cheap to Lower Canada if the ships which come for timber to Quebec were discouraged by an equalization of the lumber tariff in England; they think the freight of other goods would also be augmented. To this it is replied, that many of the ships would continue to come for timber and other produce, and that by allowing a competition not now permitted the probability is, that freight would fall.

In Maine, the friends of the tariff of 1828, endeavour to uphold the principle of protection to particular branches of industry, by stating such facts as the following—(we quote the Portland Advertiser):

"Few persons, we apprehend, are sufficiently sensible how much the Mechanics of the country are protected by the tariff laws. Let us look at a single trade, by way of example.—Formerly a vast amount of Boots and Shoes were imported into this Country from Great Britain. In 1829 the whole amount imported was only $ 310,943; and this is the largest amount imported for several years past. Now the proportion this bears to the boots and shoes made in the Country, we can form some idea of, when we find that the value of those made in the single State of New York, is estimated, in returns made by the State authorities, at five millions of Dollars. If the repeal of the tariff would enable us to bring English boots and shoes cheaper, so it would throw thousands of men out of employ, sinking many millions of capital, depress the price of agricultural produce, and, of course, land, and cause a revolution which would affect the business of every man in the Country. Hats afford us an example nearly as striking; many other mechanics are protected in like manner; and all are protected in some degree."

Ireland affords a very different example of the effects of the monopolising system, which ought not to be lost on the people of Upper Canada. Taking an average of three years, (1824; 1825; 1826,) Ireland exported to other Countries, but chiefly to England, each year, 57,427 Oxen; 62,929 Sheep; 73,913 Swine; 2,533 Horses; 38,070,368 pounds of Bacon and Hams; 189,931 barrels of Beef and Pork; 55,200,656 pounds of Butter; 3,020,664 bushels of Wheat, (and wheat flour); 10,443,624 bushels of Oats, (and Oatmeal); 531,907 gallons Irish Whiskey; 51,947,413 yards of Linen manufactures;—also, £23,412 value of ditto. We quote the official returns by Mr. Irving, the Inspector General of Exports, whose return is dated 15th January, 1831. In what condition do we find the majority of the population of this industrious community, notwithstanding its vast export of surplus produce!

*In support of the principle of Free Trade, the abolition of all the taxation laid on Foreign Commerce with a view to the protection and encouragement of domestic manufactures, or of particular branches of home industry, and the imposition of few and light duties, cautiously apportioned, for the purposes of Revenue, it is alleged,—*That there cannot be any more industry in the world than when every body is employed; that this industry is in the best condition when devoted to those employments which yield the most profits, payable in the Universal Currency, gold and silver; that for an American (for it is in the United States that the question has been most canvassed) or a Canadian, to commence making pins and needles under a protecting tax, when he would be more profitably employed in raising grain, pigs, or cattle, or in manufacturing pearl or potash, if no such protective impost (whatever it might be) had an existence, is to apply the money of the community to induce the citizens to leave the sort of labor for which their country is naturally adapted, and to follow trades and professions for which it is not naturally adapted: that a proposal to levy taxes on Foreign Commerce in support of Domestic Manufactures, which would yield no returns without taxation, is about as wise a project as if the Legislature were to grant a bounty to the people of Quebec, for raising the grapes in hot-houses, in Canada, for making all their wines, instead of purchasing as they do now, in France or Portugal: that when a country is ripe for a manufacture it will be soon introduced, by private persons for their own advantage, unless the character of the Government or the instability of the Laws, deter them from trusting their capital in it: that great establishments of manufactures require great numbers of very poor persons to do the work for small wages; that these poor persons are to be found in Europe in great numbers, but that they will not be so found in North America until the lands are all taken up and cultivated, unless unnatural laws should be framed to prevent the cultivator from being supplied from the cheapest market: that whenever the Canadians or other Americans find it more advantageous to make the articles they now import, they will do so; and that the chief means they now have of importing goods, is by selling in exchange those articles which it is more advantageous for them to make or produce, to other countries, who, in their turn, find it suitable to be the purchasers: that trade between Foreign Countries, when not conducted on the principles of barter, regulates itself, in some degree, by raising the exchanges; that it is no good reason why English cotton or silk goods should be heavily taxed at New York, because the English choose to lay a prohibitory duty on American corn, exported from that City to London—for that, unless the corn finds a purchaser elsewhere, or unless the English consent to take some other commodity in exchange for their silks and cottons, be it money, bullion, tobacco, cotton, wool, or any other article in the possession of the American, as the fruit of his industry, whether of domestic or foreign origin, the exchange will soon be at an end, as a country cannot long continue to import that which it has not the means to pay for: that every one who is able and willing to work may be profitably employed in North America, there being no such class of persons there as Mr. Stanley described in the House of Commons in 1826, working fifteen hours a day for five or six shillings a week, and starving their families on a meal a day, rather than ask parish relief; nor any such class as Mr. Hume described in 1832, at Enfield, who receive thousands per annum for doing nothing, and allow their parents to take three, six or nine hundred pounds a year as State paupers: that the laborers to be employed in large establishments (which a country is taxed to keep up, by being prevented from purchasing at the cheapest market, in order that the Capitalists who own these establishments, may be supported) are not taken from an idle class, for there are no idle persons, but from labour, in which they were profitably employed, without the aid of a tariff to support it, and which labor will be injured by the operation of that tariff: that the whole art of gaining national wealth lies in producing the greatest public value from the least labor: that the western part of the State of New York, with the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, &c., had risen up under the hand of agricultural industry, previous to 1810, when America had no tariff or manufactures in the modern style, farms in these countries, having generally increased in value 100 per cent. per annum, on the original investment: that Adam Smith and Mr. Malthus, gave a preference to Agriculture over every other modification of industry.—They perceived, in some degree, the superior importance of the primary means of subsistence over all other kinds of wealth.—Food is the first of indispensable necessities, and where the people have enough of that, they will, by their own exertions, supply clothes and fuel: their toil gives a zest to their food, and a pleasure. The aggregate happiness of a community is not increased in proportion to its wealth, indeed the latter may be augmented at the expense of the former; (the same proposition holds good in Upper Canada, except in so far as the absence of a frugal domestic Government has retarded its prosperity): that to employ a Manufacturer in the New England States, to weave sixty yards of cloth for one hundred and fifty dollars, which cloth could be purchased in England or France, of the same quality, for ninety dollars, freight and insurance included, is to draw American labor into unproductive channels: that many thousands of American Farmers saw their farms increase in value from a hundred dollars to two, ten, fifteen, and in some cases twenty thousand dollars, besides subsisting the Proprietor, while there was no protecting tariff to aid their efforts; and that on the other hand, had each of them become Manufacturers, he would have been compelled to tend a cotton or woollen Mill, with its spindles and reeds, and unwholesome smells, and with the aid of wife and children, and a tariff to boot, ten to one but he would have been an unfortunate Bankrupt, instead of being an opulent educated Freeholder: that a protecting tariff is introducing a set of miserable pauper operatives, establishing a privileged order in North America, and undermining that happy equality which has hitherto prevailed in that country; and that the great factories both of Europe and America, are the nurseries and hotbeds of vice and infamy. Thus, say the enemies of tariffs, "is our wealth checked, our population degraded, and the principles of our free and happy Government threatened to be subverted, by a miserable attempt of a combination of avaricious monopolists."

It is also urged in favor of free trade, that the advocates of the protective system have cunningly contrived to make it a party question; and by mixing it up with other questions, such as those of internal improvement, state rights, &c. they have obtained many partizans, who only advocate a high tariff as a political party measure; that the tariff laws tend to build up a rich and powerful general government; that they accumulate capital into great and permanent masses; that they offer many temptations to illicit trade and make the smuggler a partner in the spoil; that the duties on iron, a material of universal necessity, and principally used by the productive classes, are perhaps, of all others, the most obnoxious; that every branch of American industry ought to be equally protected, which cannot be the case while freedom of trade is interdicted and the farmer prevented from choosing his goods in the cheapest market;—but nevertheless, the taxation of imports for the purpose of raising a revenue, would be objected to by no one, as long as it might be found necessary for the public service. That no civilized nation in Europe is now so unnecessarily burthened with taxes as the American States, which, when not one quarter their present population, rose in arms, as one man, against the most powerful nation on earth, rather than submit to a tax of two pence per pound upon the important article of Tea!

It is asserted by Mr. Niles, of Baltimore, that the tariff law of 1828, of which that of May 1832 may be considered a modification, "was the result of a political bargain, and passed on principles disreputable to a Congress of the United States." Henry Lee, of the Massachusetts permanent Free Trade Committee, fears that the law was enacted by a compromise between various individuals who went to Congress for the promotion of their own ends, and those too, in many instances, of the most sordid and selfish character. They went to that Assembly pledged to promote other objects than that of the great interests of the people, and utterly devoid of that elevation of sentiment, and purity of purpose, which ought to characterize men entrusted with the Government of a great nation. That the revolutionary war was entered into in order to relieve the nation from monopolies, and unequal, unjust and burthensome taxation. That while the chief objects of duties should be revenue, they may be so adjusted as to encourage American Manufactures—of which the products of the soil, mines and workshops, essential to national defence, occupy the first rank. That, where, by giving a temporary encouragement, by means of duties, to certain species of domestic industry, a good and reasonable expectation may be had that these articles will soon be able to compete with foreign labor, on equal terms, so that the tariff would be no longer a tax, moderate duties may be properly imposed; but that (as in the case of tea, on which the duties are directed to be abolished) it would be of no use to establish a tariff to promote in America the culture of cinnamon, pepper, tea, coffee, or peruvian bark. That to take off entirely the duties upon these and other foreign products or manufactures which come not into competition with the funds of the labor of America, and from which a large revenue has been derived, would, in fact, be protecting American labour, by enabling the laborer to live cheaper, and the manufacturer to compete easier with foreigners. That as in America the market is far beyond the natural price of labor, much of the benefit on the reduction on necessaries would accrue directly to the poor, while the remainder would go to the aid of the capitalist.

That if unfortunately for the interests of the public, a partizan of the close protecting colonial system should be placed in the chair, the Union might expect a defective tariff to be made worse; every corruption to be cherished; every abuse encouraged; taxation to be still further increased; and the monies expended in rewarding followers, pensioning dependants, and purchasing friends,—that in due time, (European fashion) taxation would be made to reach every article of food and clothing, lands, houses, fuel, hearths, and the light of Heaven itself. That in return for these last stated miseries, America might reasonably look for splendid projects and magnificent structures, honored and adorned by the gorgeous equipages of the rich; liberty annihilated; property concentrated in the hands of a few, on whose darkened souls no ray of patriotism would ever shine, and the great mass of the people oppressed, poor, starving, desperate and rebellious.

Such results, however, will not be permitted in the United States; they have the example of the national debt and expenditure of Great Britain and Ireland continually before them; every day brings them fresh tidings of the evils of monopoly where it prevails;—they will therefore take heed.

It is further urged, that a free trade in iron would be highly advantageous, the effect of the high duty being to induce the people of America, with a fuel comparatively unfitted to the preparation of iron, to create a sum nearly equal to the whole duty, (as it stood in 1831) in endeavouring to compete with a country where bituminous coal may be procured by the mere act of appropriation. That a more careful discrimination in favor of necessaries, and higher comparative duties on luxuries, would best promote accumulation of capital where wanted, and best uphold the wages which reward labor. Dr. Johnson was of opinion, that much of the prosperity of a trading nation depends upon duties properly apportioned, so that what is necessary may continue cheap, and what is of use only to luxury, may in some measure atone to the public for the mischief done to individuals. Duties may often be so regulated as to become useful even to those that pay them; and they may be likewise so unequally imposed, as to discourage honesty, depress industry, and give temptation to fraud and unlawful practices. That the wealth of America does not depend on the poverty and depression of Europe; but is intimately connected with its industry, opulence and comfort. That a free trade with all the world formed one of the leading objects of that compromise of interests which produced the union of the States in 1789; "that the people of the United States were fed, clothed and lodged, before the tariff laws were passed; that converting Farmers into Manufacturers does not add to the consumers of food, and thereby create a demand for the surplus previously exported; it merely takes from the number of producers of food for exportation; and that if in their new employment they produce a less value, as Manufacturers, than they procured previously, when they were Farmers, in exchange for the products of their farms, a loss to that amount is sustained by the community." That to tax the imports of the Agricultural Countries of the Union heavily, is to cut off the means by which Foreign Nations purchase American surplus products; that it is taxation, (as in the case of South Carolina) virtually without representation. "Has one single voice of this entire section of the South, from the Potomac to the Alabama, said Mr. Haynes, been given in favor of a taxation whose uncompensated burthen falls exclusively upon this very section? Is not the tribute exacted altogether by the votes of the representatives of those who share the booty?" that "the principles of free trade are the principles of human liberty; next to worshiping our God according to the dictates of our conscience, is the privilege of directing the labor of our hands, with unrestricted freedom, to an industry of our own choice; a right no less sacred than the freedom of the press"; that peace is an enemy to speculation, and a bad time to force the establishment of new manufactures, because increased industry gives more diversified employments to the mass of the population of every country, and cheap rates of transport lower the prices of the products of Agriculture, Manufactures and Commerce. [Mr. Cambreling affirms, that the price of manufactures, whether in Europe or America, are generally not more than a third of their value in 1815]; that free trade is a saving of labor, and restriction a waste of it: that for a Government to attempt by taxation, to prescribe the occupations and direct the labor of the community, and control their private pursuits, is repugnant to the spirit of freedom: that all customs duties have the same effect as if the amount were levied on domestic productions, because these productions must sell both for consumption and for exportation, at rates proportioned to the additional price which the duties imposed upon the imported merchandize, render necessary: that the system of free trade is in accordance with the principles of Christianity, and calculated to unite all nations in harmony and peace; and that a protecting tariff is calculated to enrich one section of the Union at the expense of the industry of another section, and will, if continued, gradually alienate the affections of a section of the United States, from a Government founded solely on the love of the Citizens, and invested with no other than a moral force.

Mr. Albert Gallatin, Chairman of the Committee appointed by the Free Trade Convention, held in Philadelphia, in September and October, 1831, enclosed to the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States, in January 1832, a memorial setting forth the evils of excessive and unequal duties on imported goods. The Committee urge on the consideration of Congress, such arguments as follow:—

Every individual in every community, without exception, will purchase whatever he may want, on the cheapest terms, within his reach. The most enthusiastic restrictionist; the manufacturers most clamorous for special protection, will each individually, pursue the same course, and prefer any foreign commodity or material to that of domestic origin, if the first is cheaper, and the Law does not forbid him: all men ever have acted, and continue under any system, to act on this principle: it is impossible that they should universally act in that manner unless it was evidently their interest so to do. The tariff system is founded upon the principle, that what is true of all men, individually, is untrue, when applied to them collectively; Laws which do not trust the common sense of the Citizen, which do not permit him to seek what he thinks the best market for the products of his industry, or which compel him to receive in exchange for these a less quantity of the objects he wants, than without those laws he might have obtained, are evidently destructive of domestic industry. By Free Trade, we mean that trade which we may carry free of any restrictions imposed by our own Government; it is synonymous with free industry, and it is only because and so far as it promotes domestic industry that we object to those restrictions: when, in order to justify that system, it is said, that Nations are adverse to each other, and that a free trade between them would contravene the arrangements of Providence, when it seems to be forgotten, that it is Commerce which unites the several Nations of the Civilized World, and that next to Christianity, it is principally to Commerce that we are indebted for modern civilization; we can but lament the extremes to which enlightened, patriotic, and philanthropic men may be carried, by adhering to a favorite theory, and losing sight of every other consideration. We are not called upon to discuss the abstract question, whether another mode of taxation would be more eligible than the impost, or whether an unrestrained intercourse between all Nations, free of the payment of any duties on imports, would be best calculated to promote the industry and prosperity of all; on that subject the experience of forty years is conclusive, so far as relates to the United States. The people prefer, in time of peace, duties raised on the importation of foreign merchandize, to any internal tax, direct or indirect. Whether for good or for evil, that system affords an encouragement to domestic manufactures, not less efficient for being incidental, duties on imports amounting, on an average, to about 20 per cent. on the value, appear necessary to the support of Government. If the price at which a commodity can be afforded by the person who undertakes to produce it, is higher than that at which it may be, or might have been purchased from others, the difference of price is the measure of the National loss incurred by his misapplication of capital and labor, to the production of that commodity. "The whole amount of imports equalizes itself with the whole amount of exports. It is not at all necessary that this equality should exist; it never does exist in the trade of any Country with every other Country: every one purchases what it does want from that Country which affords it on the cheapest terms; and sells its products to those Countries by which they are wanted, and which give the highest price: a sufficient capital, and a certain density of population are necessary requisites; and Agriculture will, in preference to Manufactures, attract labor in Countries or Districts where virgin land is abundant, and within the reach of all: but a single glance at the map of Europe will satisfy every intelligent observer, that the great superiority of some over other Countries, in other respects equally fitted for manufactures, is due to the nature of the Government, to Laws, which at least secure to men the proceeds of their industry, to liberty, or at least comparative liberty, and to the diffusion of knowledge and superior intelligence, skill and activity, the infallible offspring of unrestrained industry, and political, religious, and civil liberty."

Mr. Gallatin assumes, that the greatest mass of comfort and happiness is to be found always where the remuneration of labor is the highest; and adds, that after two centuries of Free Commerce with Great Britain, and fifty years of a similar intercourse with the rest of the world, the price of labor continues, without alteration, to be higher in the United States than in England, or any foreign country. A Manufacturer, a Mechanic, a Farmer, an Artist, or a Legislator, may be brought into Canada duty free, although his value to the community among whom he is to reside, may be thousands of pounds; but the materials with which he is to labor, whether of iron, steel, cotton, wood, colors, dyes, paper, quills, may not be imported, nor provisions he may require while in the exercise of his skill, whether tea, coffee, sugar, the products of the sea or of the land; on these there must be a tax—a tax to support extravagant Government, and to repress industry. When Americans wish to influence their population to support a high tariff, in order to exclude English competition, they continually quote the example of the Governments that have flourished in England in the midst of oppression.—In no country has the Government exerted itself with greater system to banish comfort from the cottage of the Peasant and the dwelling of the Artizan. In Russia, leaf Tobacco is taxed, on importation only three half pence per lb.: in Britain, it is taxed three shillings, or about 1200 per cent. on the cost price. In Russia, tobacco, manufactured for smoking or chewing, pays eighteen pence duty: in Britain it is taxed nine shillings; and a violation of the Law, in the least degree, subjects the offender to cruel and ignominious punishment. In the United States tea is duty free; in England it is nearly 100 per cent. on the cost price. The wife of the American laborer will be drinking her choice Old Hyson, at 3s. 6d. per lb. while the English mechanic will be condemned to quaff Congo, at 5s.

Mr. Henry Clay recommends to the Americans, that they should tax the woollens and cottons, and hardware, which are the fruit of the labor of the working classes in England, because the land owners of England will not admit American corn, duty free, from every part of the United States. The Duke of Wellington is in favor of high taxation on the corn of Prussia and Russia, because Russia and Prussia might refuse to take articles of British manufactures in return: the Duke would keep many industrious Englishmen unprofitably occupied in cultivating a bad soil; and Mr. Clay would fain persuade his fellow Citizens of the Union to abandon the cultivation of the finest lands in the world, and bid good-bye to the sight of green fields and pure atmosphere, to waste their health, strength and substance, in the midst of the noisome effluvia of a cotton or woollen mill! The objects of these Senators are the same—to build up, uphold and maintain an idle and luxurious class, to consume the Revenues of their Country.

England is the only country in which the prohibitory system and complete success in establishing manufactures, generally superior in cheapness and quality, are found united; she affords the only proof that both may subsist together; and it would not be difficult to show, that they thus submit to the aid of a vast Military force, at the expense of the happiness and comfort of millions of her population, the victims of a cruel oligarchy. Her staple manufactures, though firmly established, are not, however, exempt from those fluctuations which affect the flour and ashes manufactured in America; they "are exposed to evils of over production, as foreign trade to that of excessive importation. This partial and occasional evil is inseparable from foreign commerce, and cannot be prevented unless that commerce be altogether proscribed: so long as the protecting duty is not prohibitory, and the corresponding foreign article is not entirely excluded, it may occasionally be imported to excess."

So far back as 1820, the free trade principle had obtained, in England, many able and efficient advocates; in that year, in May, a memorial of Merchants and Traders of the City of London, was presented to the House of Commons, in which the subscribers set forth—

"That foreign commerce is eminently conducive to the wealth and prosperity of the country, by enabling it to import the commodities, for the production of which the soil, climate, capital, and industry of other countries are best calculated, and to export in payment, those articles for which its own situation is better adapted.

"That freedom from restraint is calculated to give the utmost extension to foreign trade, and the best direction to the capital and industry of the country.

"That the maxim of buying in the cheapest market, and selling in the dearest, which regulates every Merchant in his individual dealings, is strictly applicable, as the best rule for the trade of a whole Nation.

"That a policy founded on these principles, would render the commerce of the world an interchange of mutual advantages, and diffuse an increase of wealth and enjoyment among the inhabitants of each State.

"That, unfortunately, a policy the very reverse of this has been and is more or less acted upon by the Government of this and every other country; each trying to exclude the productions of other countries, with the specious and well meant design of encouraging its own production; thus inflicting on the bulk of its subjects, who are consumers, the necessity of submitting to privations in the quantity or quality of commodities, and thus rendering what ought to be the source of mutual benefits and of harmony among states, a constantly recurring occasion of jealousy and hostility.

"That the prevailing prejudices in favor of the protective or restrictive system may be traced to the erroneous supposition, that every importation of foreign commodities occasions a diminution or discouragement of our own productions, to the same extent; whereas it may be clearly shown, that although the particular description of production which could not stand against unrestrained foreign competition would be discouraged, yet, as no importation could be continued for any length of time without a corresponding exportation, direct or indirect, there would be an encouragement for the purpose of that exportation, of some other production to which our situation might be better suited; thus affording at least an equal, and probably a greater, and certainly a more beneficial employment to our capital and labor.

"That of the numerous protective and prohibitory duties of our commercial code, it may be proved, that while all operate as a very heavy tax on the community at large, very few are of any ultimate benefit to the classes in whose favor they were originally instituted, and none to the extent of the loss occasioned by them to other classes.

"That among the other evils of the restrictive or protective system, not the least, is, that the artificial protection of one branch of industry, or source of protection against foreign competition, is set up as a ground of claim by other branches for similar protection; so that if the reasoning upon which these restrictive or prohibitory regulations are founded were followed consistently, it would not stop short of excluding us from all foreign commerce whatsoever.

"And the same strain of argument, which with corresponding prohibitions and protective duties should exclude us from foreign trade, might be brought forward to justify the re-enactment of restrictions upon the interchange of productions (unconnected with public revenue) among the kingdoms composing the Union, or among the counties of the same Kingdom."

Home or domestic manufactures ought to be protected at the outset, say the friends of high tariffs, in the same way as books and maps, and new inventions are for a series of years protected:—others urge, that like as young plants of trees in a field are protected by a paling, until they acquire strength, should the cotton Spinner and iron Master of America be environed; but we do not think the cases apply. Patents are given only to the original discoverers of something new, or to the authors of new publications; and to give patents for American editions of British works, or for American imitations of British cloths, would be taxing one part of a community to enrich the other, and turning productive industry out of its natural channels into new directions less advantages to the general interests.

In 1793, Mr. Jefferson proposed two remedies for the restrictions placed by foreigners on the commerce of his country; namely: countervailing measures, and friendly arrangement. In a report on trade, he says,—There can be no doubt, but that of these two, friendly arrangement is the most eligible.—Instead of embarrassing commerce under piles of regulations, duties and prohibitions, could it be relieved from all its shackles, in all parts of the world, and every country be employed in producing that which nature has best fitted it to produce, and each be free to exchange with others mutual surpluses for mutual wants, the greatest mass possible would then be produced of those things which contribute to human life and human happiness; the numbers of mankind would be increased, and their condition bettered.

Mr. Booth, of Liverpool, in his celebrated Pamphlet in favor of the principle of Free Trade, considers the following axioms as established and indisputable.

1st. That if imports are prevented by prohibitory duties, exports are prevented to the same extent.

2nd. That a business or manufacture protected by high duties on importation, will not, on that account, yield more than the ordinary rate of profit, otherwise every one would engage in it, which is an absurdity. The public therefore suffer by being compelled to purchase a protected article at a high price, while the manufacturer does not receive any benefit from the high price.

3rd. That food is the basis of population, of life and all its enjoyments: population is limited only by the limitation of food; for manufacturers and workmen of all descriptions, will increase and multiply, if food be furnished in return for their labor.

4th. That to enable a whole community to obtain the greatest possible quantity of the conveniences and comforts of life, the Merchant must be at liberty to make his purchases wherever he can procure farm produce and commodities of the best quality, at the cheapest rate.

Mr. Booth says, that a certain amount of labor and capital is more beneficially employed in manufacturing an article for exportation in lieu of one imported, than in manufacturing a protected article for home consumption: that importations from Foreign Nations must be paid for by the produce of the industry of Great Britain, and therefore must afford employment to the laboring people: that as to England's being placed at the mercy of those Foreign States from whom her supplies would be drawn; commercial experience shows, that the selling party is the party obliged, and generally the more dependent of the two; that Holland had long and pre-eminently been an importing country, and had suffered as little from fluctuation in price as any country that could be named; that with free trade, instead of no employment, there would be much more employment than at present; not a bushel of corn would enter the harbors of the United Kingdom that would not be paid for by some commodity, the produce of the industry of the people; that under the free trade system, money and land would each find their proper level in value; that if the cost of the absolute necessaries be diminished, a larger amount of income is thereby set at liberty to be expended on the luxuries of life; that the law which regulates wages by the ratio which subsists between the supply of labor and the demand for it, is fixed and immutable; it can neither be evaded nor successfully opposed; that with reference to the affairs of trade, what the people of every community should say to their Government, is, "LET US ALONE;" that a spirit of peace and universal good feeling, of candour and liberal consideration, is best promoted by the freest and most enlarged intercourse between different nations. It is Governments alone which prevent their subjects becoming citizens of the world.

The celebrated advocate of Free Trade, Albert Gallatin, in an argument against the tariff of the United States, brings forward Switzerland, as an example of the good effects of the commercial system.

"Switzerland is one of the few European Countries to which the restrictive system has not extended, and is, nevertheless, that which, in proportion to her population, is next to England, the first manufacturing country of Europe; exposed like her, to the same revulsions, and to periods of distress, when the channels of superabundant manufactured products are obstructed.—Switzerland, unprotected by any duties whatever on foreign merchandize, besides certain branches belonging particularly to her, rivals England in the cotton and France in the silk manufacture."

From the table of Official Values* of Imports and Exports,

* Official Value means a fixed value, assigned by Law as far back as 1694, to each article exported or imported, and may, therefore, be considered as denoting quantity, rather than value, and may or may not have a relation to the current value of the present time. By the declared value, (or as we have in some places rather incorrectly called it the actual or real value,) is meant, the value at which the goods are entered at the Custom House, by sent down to the House of Commons of the United Kingdom, from the Inspector General's office, on the 12th May, 1832, it appears that during the year ending 5th January, 1831, produce and manufactures were imported from the British Northern Colonies into the United Kingdom, of the official value of £1,265,850.

APPENDIX TO THE REPORT ON TRADE.

British and Irish produce and manufactures were exported to the said Colonies, of the official value of £2,315,716.; the real or declared value of which was £1,857,133.

Also Foreign and Colonial merchandize of the official value of £303,798.

Making the official value of the whole exports £2,619,563.

The same table shows that the official value of Foreign and Colonial merchandize exported in that year to the United States, did not exceed the value of the same description of exports to the Northern Colonies, by so much as one-fourth.

It also shows that the value, at the Custom-house, of the British and Irish produce and manufactures, exported in that year to the Northern Colonies, was something more than two-sevenths of the value of the same description of exports to the United States.

From returns made to the House of Commons, in May 1833, moved for by Mr. Whitmore, we have ascertained that there were entered at the Custom-house, during the year 1832, for domestic consumption, in Great Britain, 164,982 quarters of Foreign wheat, on which a duty was paid of £193,249. varying from 23s. 8d. to 34s. 8d. duty, on the quarter: also, of Colonial wheat 160,453 quarters, paying a duty of 5s. per quarter, or 7½d. per bushel, equal to £39,536. on the quantity imported.

In the same year, (we quote the same returns) there were imported into Great Britain, for home consumption, 56,135 cwts. of Foreign wheat flour, on which an import duty was charged of £22,867.; also, 105,132 cwts. of Colonial wheat flour, on which England exacted for duty £9,052. The rates of duty on wheat, meal and flour, are regulated by the price of wheat, and are equal in amount per barrel, of 196 lbs. to the duty payable on 38½ gallons of wheat.

An attempt was made, and with good reason, by the House of Assembly, in April last, to obtain the remission of the duty charged in the Ports of Great Britain and Ireland, on wheat, grain and flour, the growth of the Colony; but it failed. Mr. Spring Rice replied, that Government did not think it advisable to make any change upon the duties of Canadian corn, apart from the consideration of a general change of the duties of corn. While Great Britain legislates so as to secure to herself a full monopoly on the foreign purchases we might otherwise make at first hand, she neglects to assure to Upper Canada any similar advantages in return.

From returns moved for by Mr. Burge in the House of Commons lately, it is shewn that during the year ending the 5th January 1831, there were exported from Great Britain to the United States, 7,307 gallons of rum; to the British Northern Colonies, 85,589 gallons.

In the same year, Great Britain exported to the United States, of raw and refined sugars, only 487½ cwts.; and to the British Northern Colonies, 4,750 cwts. of raw, and 16,513 cwts. refined sugar.† (16,513 cwts. of refined, is equal to 28,072 cwt. raw.)

From other official returns laid before the House of Commons, it is ascertained that—

In 1831, there were exported from the United Kingdom to the United States, 15,003 tons of British bar iron; to the Northern Colonies, 5,406 tons.

Of British bolt and rod iron, to the United States, 464 tons; to the Northern Colonies, 520 tons.

the exporter or importer, and which is, of course, an approximation to their real value, although it may be presumed rather below than above it. The averaged declared value of British produce and manufactures, exported from Great Britain and Ireland, during the three years ending 5th January 1830, was £35,920,670. Ster., while the official values was as high as £52,925,440.; of course it requires a careful calculation to reduce the official to the declared value. Mr. Irving, Inspector General, in a note to a return of British imports and exports, dated 1st August, 1832, mentions that the Law had made no provision for ascertaining the real value of Foreign commodities, either on their importation into, or exportation from the United Kingdom: he was unable to state the true value of imports, or of Foreign goods exported.

† Of these 4,750 cwts., 1,794 were from the British West Indies; 754 from the Mauritius; 1,602 from the East Indies; and 600 from the Plantations of Foreign Nations.

Of British nails, to the United States, 192 tons; to the Northern Colonies, 1,622 tons.—Also:

That 2,272,417 qrs. of wheat, (and wheat flour) were imported into Great Britain and Ireland from the following places during the year, ending on the 5th January 1832, viz.: from—

The total export from Quebec in 1831, was 81,609 barrels of flour, and 1,326,834 minots of wheat, to all countries. Of the flour, about 22,483 barrels were from the United States.

It is estimated by some statistical writers, that the people of the Canadas, on an average of five years, ending in January 1832, with a population averaging during that period 800,000 souls, employed as they have been, partly in the lumber trade, have raised nine millions of bushels of wheat annually; and that allowing each individual nine bushels a-year for domestic consumption, there was, one year with another, an annual surplus for export in the shape of wheat and flour, of 1,800,000 bushels. This, however, is mere guess work.

The official value of corn and meal imported into Great Britain in the following years, was as follows:—

In 1830, there were imported into Great Britain, and retained for home consumption, from the British Northern Colonies, 61,916 cwts. wheat, meal and flour; from the United States, 623,745 cwts.

Also from the Colonies, 58,963 qrs. of wheat.

From valuable and accurate returns by the Inspector General of Imports and Exports, to the House of Commons, dated Custom House, London, 30th April, 1833, we ascertain that in the year ending 5th January, 1833, there were imported into Great Britain, 98,764 quarters of barley, and barley meal, chiefly from Denmark and Germany; 24,231 qrs. of beans; 1,303 qrs. of indian meal and corn, chiefly from Portugal and the Azores; 29,350 qrs. of oats and oat meal, chiefly from Russia and Denmark; 17,329 quarters of peas, chiefly from Prussia; 4,629 qrs. of rye and rye meal, from Russia; 1,520 qrs. of buckwheat, from France and the Netherlands; also, of wheat and wheat flour, in quarters, 463,592, from the following countries:—British North American Colonies, 103,700; United States, 39,117; Guernsey, Jersey, Alderney, and Man, 16,619; Russia, 91,305; Denmark, 33,549; Prussia, 119,323; Germany, 43,199; the Netherlands, 71; Spain, 1,789; Italy, 2,305; Ionian Islands, 1,062; Turkey and Egypt, 10; Cape of Good Hope, 1,642; East India Company's Territories, 9,579; VanDieman's Land, 26; British West Indies, 1; Chili, 180. The average price of wheat in that year in Great Britain, was 58s. 8d. sterling.

In 1832, there were imported from Ireland into Great Britain, 3,091,202 quarters of grain of all sorts, (equal to 24,729,616 bushels) of which 802,430 qrs. were wheat and wheat flour, and 2,104,992 oats and oatmeal.

APPENDIX TO THE REPORT ON TRADE.

In 1831, there were imported from Ireland into Great Britain, 2,319,947 qrs. of grain, meal and flour, of all sorts—(equal to 18,559,576 bushels)—of which 479,053 qrs. were wheat and wheat flour, and 1,605,723 quarters of oats and oatmeal.

These accounts were made up by Mr. Irving, at the Custom House, on the 30th of April, 1833, and may therefore be relied on as perfectly accurate. They shew that nearly double the quantity of wheat and wheat flour imported from Ireland into Great Britain in 1831, was imported in 1832; that nearly 500,000 qrs. more of oats and oatmeal were so imported in 1832: and that upwards of six millions of bushels of grain, meal and flour, were imported from Ireland into Britain in 1832 more than in 1831. There is no duty charged on grain between the countries since the union; and these facts, which shew the manner in which England obtains her supplies of our principal staple commodity, are important to be known in Canada.

From returns made up at the India House, to 1st May, 1882, we find that the remittances from the North American Colonies, on account of the tea sold by the East India Company's Agents there during the year then ending, amounted to £136,552.

And that they estimated the probable receipts from the same trade during the year, up to 1st May 1833, at £141,000—or, about a thirty-third part of all their commercial receipts estimated for 1832-3.

In 1831, the duty on coffee imported at Quebec into the Northern Colonies from the United Kingdom, was 2d. per pound; if imported from another British Colony, 2d. per pound, and 7s.* per cwt. additional; and foreign coffee paid the 2d, the 7s.* and also another 5s. per cwt.!! The effect was to increase the smuggling from the United States, chiefly of Cuba coffee. Only 119,464 lbs. of coffee appear to have been imported into the two Canadas from all parts, in 1831, a quantity wholly inadequate to the wants of the population. If Cuba coffee, via. New-York, found a market in Canada in 1831, how must it be now that the 5 cents a pound are taken off in the Union, and the trade supplied duty-free?

The official report of the Lower Canada Customs, and the Quebec commercial lists, for the year ending the 31st December 1831, shew the following results:—

Also, 77 vessels to Gaspé and New Carlisle—14,321 tons, and 774 men.

In this trade in 1831, were employed 12,766 seamen, and a tonnage of 278,243 tons, besides the seamen and shipping on the great Lakes, and on the Rivers Ottawa and St. Lawrence, above Quebec.

Only one foreign ship entered the Port of Quebec in 1831; she was from Columbia. Were trade free, there would be a change in this respect.

We have paid some attention to the mode and manner of entering merchandize at Quebec, subject to 2½ per cent, and have made some inquiries: perhaps if 20 per cent. were added to the official currency value at Quebec, the amount of the real value in sterling money would be nearly attained, independent of a large value in goods brought by passengers, which is passed over as part of their luggage; there is a carelessness of entry, owing perhaps to the lowness of the duties.

We have calculated the real value, at Quebec, of the imports for 1831, at nearly two millions, sterling, which is probably about the true worth of the goods.

Mr. Neilson has made out an estimate in detail, for 1829 and 1830, by which he shows the value of the exports for 1829, at Quebec, to have been £870,840. sterling, and the exports in 1830, £1,184,400., also British money; in this he includes new ships built at Quebec, for exportation, peltries, lumber, ashes, everything.

A return made to the House of Assembly of Lower Canada, and printed in the appendix to their Journals, 1832-3, gives the following official information on importations.

There were imported at Quebec, in 1830, of Muscovado sugar 4,400,951 lbs.; in 1831, 5,923,908 lbs.; in 1832, 5,495,976 lbs., besides 267,058 lbs. imported in 1833, at Montreal, now a separate Port.

And at Quebec, of loaf sugar, in 1830, 561,969 lbs.; in 1831, 1,084,889 lbs.; in 1832, 373,334 lbs.; and at Montreal, (in 1832) 688,638 lbs.

Also, at Quebec, of coffee, in 1830, 210,085 lbs.; in 1831, 118,137 lbs.; in 1832, 123,024 lbs.; to which add (1832,) 48,005 lbs., at Montreal.

In 1830, there were imported at Quebec, 82,108 gallons of molasses; in 1831, 97,813; and in 1832, 123,024.

In 1830, at Quebec, 234,196 minots of salt; in 1831, 277,120; and in 1832, 226,696; besides 17,832 minots landed at Montreal.

On referring to a schedule of importations of tea and coffee, published with a report of the Legislature of Upper Canada, on tea in 1824, we find, that in 1815 a million and a quarter pounds coffee were imported by sea into Quebec, which fell to 335,441 lbs. in 1816, while in 1814 it had been 168,962 lbs., allowing for the demand for smuggling into the United States, then it must be evident, that our chief supply of coffee is from the States now. The import of coffee into the United States in 1831, was 81,757,386 lbs., value of upwards of six millions of dollars.

The difference between a trade in barter, like that we carry on with the British West Indies, Great Britain, and the British Lower Provinces of North America, and a trade which must be paid for in bills of exchange or in specie, is this, the latter raises the exchange with other Countries, it makes money scarce amongst ourselves, and thereby gives an interruption to the traffic within this Province.

In his evidence given February 16th 1832, before the Select Committee of the House of Commons, on the state of the West India Colonies, Peter Rose, Esq., a Planter, of Demarara, who had been sent to England to state the grievances under which the Colonists labored, mentions, that American (U. S.) cargoes of produce purchased in Demarara, were usually paid for by bills drawn on Great Britain. On being asked—

“Would you still continue to barter your produce for lumber brought from British North America, even though the protecting duties on lumber and other articles from the United States were taken off? He replied,—“I should say, in Demarara, certainly, because at this moment we have very few Planters who can draw bills on England; their credit is gone.”

Mr. Rose gave in a statement, from which we learn, that the official value of imports into Demarara, from the British North American Colonies, was £147,022, in 1828, in 288 ships, 27,037 tons; in 1829, £139,150., in 299 ships, 30,266 tons; and in 1830, £125,168., in 319 ships, measuring 31,632 tons. The imports from the United States were comparatively trifling in amount. The exports of rum, coffee, sugar, &c. from Demarara to British North America, in these years, were conveyed as follows:—

In 1828, in 331 ships, measuring 26,504 tons; in 1829, in 355 ships, 30,380 tons; and in 1830, in 379 ships, 35,872 tons. A trade like this, carried on exclusively in British shipping, must be of immense importance to the Naval superiority sought to be maintained by England. The official value of a year's exports to all places, from Demarara, is about £1,800,000. sterling.

The dependence of the West India resident Planters, on their English Commercial Agents, when under embarrassment, is shewn in the clearest light, by the evidence of Mr. James Aikin, of the firm of Aikin, & Hughes, Ship Brokers, Liverpool, given before the Committee, 20th February, 1832.

You resided in Demarara for some time, did you not? I did.

How long ago is that? I went to Demarara about twenty-one years ago.

How long did you remain there? For about twelve months: I have been there three times, for about twelve months each time.

Are you intimately acquainted with the mode of doing business in Demarara? I was at that time; I do not know that it is much altered since.

Have you been able to form any estimate of the rate per cent. per annum, which it costs the Planter to raise money on his estate, by way of mortgage? I have frequently made those calculations, and it has always occurred to me, that the party (including interest) must have been paying at the rate of about 20 per cent, for any money he borrowed.

In what way do you make that estimate? He pays, in that Colony, six per cent. interest, in the first instance: he pays to the generality of houses 5s. freight, when a ship owner would contract to bring it at 3s. and 2s. per cwt. upon the produce of the estate; I would calculate to be equal to more than the interest upon the loan, generally speaking.

Is that independent of the six per cent? Yes.

How is that? The six per cent. is the legal interest; the freight which the Merchant who has a mortgage charges, is 5s. to the Planter, when in reality he pays only 3s. to the Ship Owner, that is a difference of two-fifths.

How much per cent. is that? I should suppose that 2s. per cwt. would be about six per cent. upon the sum generally lent them: the Merchant lending the money, has other benefits,—the commission in effecting the insurance, and the commission upon the sale of the produce, and other advantages.—I think, moderately speaking, the whole cannot be estimated at less than 20 per cent.

APPENDIX TO THE REPORT ON TRADE.

You are aware, that whether a Planter is under incumbrance or not, he must pay a certain commission on the transit? Yes, but Planters who are free from mortgage, manage, in some instances, to save the Merchant's commission altogether; there are Brokers in Liverpool who receive consignments direct from different parts of the West Indies, and charge only one per cent, so that he would save, in that instance, one and a half, without looking to the guarantee commission.

The witness added, that (while Planters whose estates encumbered, were paying 5s.) he would undertake to bring home sugar from Jamaica to London, at 3s. 6d. per cwt. in British built ships!

The great depression of the West India trade, may be inferred from the facts stated in an official return from the Inspector General, London, 31st March, 1832, by which it appears, that while the declared value of British and Irish produce and manufactures, exported to the British West Indies in 1814, was seven millions of pounds, it gradually declined, until in 1818 it had fallen to six; in 1820 to four; in 1826 to three; and in 1830, to little more than two millions and three-quarters of a million of pounds, sterling. In proportion as West India produce fell in the markets of Britain, does the quantity and value of British manufactures appear to have fallen in the West Indies.

In the trade carried on between the British North American Colonies and the British West Indies, in 1828,-9, & 30, there were employed, on the average, 738 ships, measuring nearly 100,000 tons. In the same years, the average number of United States vessels employed in the direct trade between the British West Indies and the United States, was about 117.

The policy of England in founding, conquering, and maintaining Colonies, is thus described by Wm. R. K. Douglass, Esq. M. P., a member of the West India committee, and an extensive West India Proprietor, in his evidence given before the committee, February 2nd, 1832.

"Will you explain how the commercial policy of this country (England) imposes expenses upon the Colonist, which disable him from competing successfully with the grower of Foreign produce?"

"As I have already said, in an answer to a former question, the policy of this country, and every other country holding Colonies, is to hold them as dependencies, entirely subservient to the interest of the fixed commerce of the Mother Country; they are held entirely as an engine for that purpose, and the Colonists have no will of their own in regulating their own commerce. Every Act of Parliament, from the time of Charles the Second, downwards, has fully recognised that principle. If the Committee will refer to the 12th of Charles 2, Chap. 18. they will find that it is enacted, that no goods should be exported from the plantations but in British vessels, and that such ship should bring such produce only to England, for the sole benefit of our navigation and people. The 15th Charles 2, Chap. 7. is in the same spirit. The 25th of Charles 2nd, was passed, requiring, that unless bond were first given for bringing the Colonial produce to England exclusively, that produce, before the landing, should be subject to certain duties of customs; in fact, any person who will look at the whole Colonial policy of this country, will find, that it has been entirely for giving a fixed and certain trade to this country, and for the employment of its shipping. Various Acts of Parliament also have been passed, allowing a high rate of interest for monies lent on the security of Colonial property, all enacted under the same spirit as that general policy which regulates the possession of our Colonies: the consequence is, that at the peace in this respect, as I have before said, the effect of a competition in the sale of our Colonial produce on the Continent, became then fully felt, for Foreign Countries had the free'st mode of obtaining their various supplies, and selling their produce to all comers: our Colonist on the other hand, estimating the probable consumption of his estate, within a year, (the necessaries for the supply of the people) sends to this country a list, probably of a hundred various articles, that he estimates as really to be consumed upon the estate, within the coming year, from clothing down to the most minute articles; all these are therefore supplied on estimate; and, from the statement, it does not appear that the strictest economy can be observed, when there must be more of expense attending a system of that kind.

The Colonist also is not allowed to sell his produce; it has been the old system not to sell any of his sugar and other produce in the Colonies.—His trade is entirely restricted here; there are none of those persons come to buy in our Colonies that go to purchase produce in the independent Colonies; and there are expenses certainly that do necessarily attend that system, because, every man, when he is receiving supplies of this kind, in this estimated quantity, from his own country, must send all the produce he raises to the Mother Country; it must be sent and converted into money here, before it can be made changeable for those commodities supplied in the manner I have described. I mention this, not with any view on my own part to recommend the alteration of that system exclusively, for I conceive, if a country is to hold Colonies, it holds them for the specific advantages of maintaining a constant permanent trade, and giving employment to its shipping and navigation; and I believe, that has been the principle of our trade; but no man can avoid seeing that there are some expenses which are imposed upon the Colonist who is placed in this situation."

In page 240, of the fourth edition of Sir Henry Parnell's Work on Finance, he quotes the following opinions of the House of Assembly of Jamaica, on the monopoly under which the British West Indies suffer.

"By the Colonial system, established by England, for her own aggrandizement, British shipping and British seamen are exclusively employed in our commerce; no article of European growth or manufacture can be purchased unless imported from the Mother Country, which obtains the benefit of the carrying trade for our supply, and double freights; the Colonies being burthened with the increase of charge. The whole of our produce is, by the same system, sent in British shipping to the markets of the Mother Country."

On a reference to the official returns by the customs, of imports and exports, at the several seaports of Lower Canada, in 1832, recorded in the Appendix to the Journals of the House of Assembly of that Province, for 1832,-3, we find, that there were exported from Quebec, Montreal, Gaspe and New Carlisle, in 1832,—

This statement of imports is exclusive of the cargoes of 76 vessels imported into Gaspé and New Carlisle, which chiefly consisted of salt, rum, gin, sugar, flour, and molasses, with nearly £15,000 value of merchandise, paying advalorem duties.

The real value of the goods imported into Canada, in 1832, by sea, inclusive of the imports into places below Quebec, appears, on a careful calculation, to fall very little short of eight and a half millions of dollars, or about a twelfth of the imports into the ports of the United States.

1008 vessels arrived at the port of Quebec, in 1832;—

From Great Britain, 337 vessels, (96,555 tons, and 4,394 men) with cargoes; and 274 vessels (94,161 tons, and 3,615 men) in ballast. Among the imports direct from Britain, were—

173,351 gallons.....	Brandy.
56,632 do.....	Gin.
33,846 do.....	Rum.
276,046 do.....	Wine.
1,051,872 lbs.....	Refined sugar.
245,226 do.....	Muscovado sugar.
221,409 minots.....	Salt.
51,593 lbs.....	Coffee, and
34,748 packs of playing....	Cards.

From Ireland, 47 vessels, with cargoes, (12,793 tons, 588 men) and 156 in ballast, (40,982 tons, 1,855 men.

From Jersey, in one vessel, 113 tons, 8 men, wines, and merchandise.

From Gibraltar, in six vessels, 975 tons, 51 men, merchandise, brandy, salt, and 99,924 gallons wines.

From Portugal, in four vessels, 694 tons, 34 men, 14,387 minots of salt, 12,005 gallons of port wine, &c.

From Teneriffe, in one vessel, 106 tons, 6 men, 15,606 gallons of wine.

From Sweden, in one vessel, 155 tons, 8 men, merchandise.

From France, two vessels, 411 tons, 20 men, wine and brandy,

From Messina and Leghorn, one vessel, 180 tons, 9 men, wine, &c.

From the other Colonies in British North America, 75 vessels with cargoes, 8,321 tons, 452 men; and in ballast, 28 vessels, 4,393 tons, 214 men. Among the imports are 220, 523 gallons rum, 585,603 lbs. of sugar, and 14,756 lbs. coffee.

From the British West Indies, 55 vessels, (8,150 tons, and 460 men) of which 54 are with cargoes. Among the imports are 345,718 gallons of Jamaica rum, and 489,370 gallons of Leeward Islands rum, 98,398 gallons molasses, 46,810 lbs. of coffee, and 4,711,834 lbs. Muscovado sugar.

From the Netherlands, Brazil, the Azores, and Madeira, six vessels, 1,927 tons, 87 men, in ballast.

From the United States, six vessels with cargoes, 1,406 60 men; also ten vessels in ballast, 3,917 tons, and 162 men. All the imports, by sea, from the United States, were 119,539 lbs. leaf tobacco, 132,624 lbs. manufactured tobacco, 3,941 lbs. coffee, 355 lbs. segars, and £4,874 value of miscellaneous articles.

From Columbia, one vessel, 145 tons, 6 men; cargo 205, 663 lbs. Muscovado sugar, and 57,436 lbs. coffee.

And from China, two vessels, 1,327 tons, 99 men, with 968,057 lbs. teas.

[On a reference to the minutes of evidence given before the standing Committee on Trade, of the House of Assembly of Lower Canada, 21st January, 1833, we find—

William Finlay, Esq. was of opinion, that the East India Company could not import their teas, on quite as advantageous terms as the Merchants of the United States, "as the voyage is longer and the freight higher;" that the American vessels generally charge lower rates of freight; that the transport of teas between New York and Niagara, and Quebec and Niagara, could not be very different, and that, therefore, the amount of duty payable in Canada, would be the premium for smuggling into Upper Canada, supposing the cost at the two seaports nearly alike: witness would prefer a free trade to China, to a legal importation from the United States.

Jeremiah Leaycraft, Esq., thought that the abolition of the Colonial duty on tea would increase the consumption of sugar.

William Walker, Esq. (an Agent to the East India Company), said, that the extensive establishments of the Company in China, their causing their teas to be conveyed in large valuable ships, and under two decks, the greater length and intricacy of the voyage, the examination of the teas at Quebec, and the illicit trade carried on by the merchants of the United States, when on their way to China and which is said to have been very profitable, appeared to be the principal causes why the Company could not import teas at Quebec on as favorable terms as they were sometimes imported into the United States.

The Committee reported, that in case it were found that the contraband trade in tea were continued, "the remedy would be, the opening of the intercourse with China, and legalizing the importation of teas from the United States, on the same scale of duties as are now levied." (Journals House of Assembly of Lower Canada, 1832,—3, page 466.)

The China trade is valuable to the United States, on account of the tonnage it employs on long voyages, and the profitable commerce carried on in exporting to places beyond the Cape of Good Hope, cotton and woollen goods, beaver, otter, fox and other skins, tobacco, lead, iron, ginseng, copper, quicksilver, &c. The imports from China, India, &c. are tea, indigo, pepper, nutmegs, cloves, cinnamon, cassia, silk, and East India sugar.

Of the exports from Quebec, in 1832, there were shipped for the United Kingdom, all the ashes save one barrel, all the wheat, 26,395 barrels of the flour, 3 barrels of pork, 200 of beef, a million of deals, 24,968 oars, nearly four-fifths of the staves, 20,662 tons of oak, 192,946 tons of pine, and 18,654 tons of elm.

For the British West Indies, only 4,901 barrels of flour, 470 barrels of Indian meal, 4,631 barrels of pork, 2,455 barrels of beef, nearly a million of staves, 5,775 lbs. of soap, 4,366 lbs. candles, and a large proportion of the codfish.

For Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and the other Northern Colonies, 3,505 barrels of pork, 19,761 barrels of flour, 2,321 barrels of beef, 190 m. staves, 4,661 cwts. biscuits, 6,380 lbs. of butter, 18,790 lbs. of soap, and 6,596 lbs. of candles.

For France, 665 tons of pine timber, 127 tons oak, 11 m. staves, and nearly 2 m. deals. A small part of the imported goods is re-exported.—The value we can only guess at.

A large share of the exports from Quebec and Montreal is made up of United States produce; the exact proportion it would be difficult to ascertain.

By a reference to the laws regulating the customs, it will be seen, that while England gives no preference whatever in her ports, to the ashes and lumber of the north shores of the Saint Lawrence, over the like articles brought from the United States frontier; and while the wheat and flour of the Canadas are refused even an imaginary protection in the British and West India markets, against United States competition, the Canadians are compelled, by means of heavy discriminating duties, penal statutes, and orders in council, to confine their regular trade almost exclusively to British shipping, British home or Colonial produce and merchandise, and those foreign articles which are re-exported from England—tea, is now, in some degree, an exception.—The share we have of the West India trade, as compared with the United States, is trifling; and our staple articles of produce are shut out of the United States markets, by the operation of their tariff. The discriminating duty in England, in favor of lumber from Canada, and the other Colonies, is more in favor of United States lumber taken down to Quebec;* the advantage to the Canadian is comparatively limited, and such as it is, is interfered with by the absurd tax at the Chaudiere.

The unanimous resolution of the House of Assembly, in February 1831, that the tax of a penny in the foot on the Canadian timber passing down the Ottawa, was not the least of the many discouragements by which the lumber trade was blighted; and the address for its removal, in which the Legislative Council refused to concur, and which the Colonial Office declined to approve of, have remained unnoticed by the Board of Trade; and the proceeds of the tax are applied without the concurrence or approbation of the Legislature.— Whether the tax is equally collected on all timber, or only on the rafts of certain individuals, there would be difficulty in ascertaining.

* This differs several thousand minots from another return by the customs; also a variety of articles stated in the official returns, of which the quantities are less, considerable; and £1,294,338. declared value at the Custom Houses, of merchandise from Great Britain and Ireland, chargeable with a duty of 50s. on the £100. value; £33,038. value in merchandise, from various countries, chargeable with different advalorem duties; and £27,460. value of goods that may be imported duty free.

* The duty on timber imported from British North America into Great Britain, whether of the produce of Canada, Novascotia, New Brunswick, Maine, New York, or Vermont, is 10s. per load; the duty on Dantzic, Memel, or Riga timber is 5s. per load.

The Finance Accounts of Great Britain for 1832, show, that there were built and registered in the British plantations, 367 new vessels, 32,719 tonnage; 376, tonnage 34,290, in 1832: and 221, tonnage 25,470, in 1833. The whole number of vessels registered in London, as belonging to the several ports of the British Empire, on the 31st December, 1832, was 24,435, measuring 2,618,068 tons, and navigated by 161, 634 men: of these 4,771 vessels belonged to the British plantations, measuring 356,208 tons, and employing 23,202 seamen.

Mr. McGregor, in the second edition of his "British America," has made a computation of the ships, tonnage, and seamen, employed in the trade between the United Kingdom and British North America, on an average, of the five years before the 5th January, 1833.

The difference of 62 ships on the average, inwards, greater than outwards, arises from that number, besides new ships, proceeding to Newfoundland with naval stores, and loading with fish, either for the continent of Europe or the West Indies: and the difference of tonnage from others, entered from the United Kingdom, being large ships, which load with lumber in the ports of New Brunswick, for the West Indies.

The following statement, computed by the same author, from the customs returns, shows the number of vessels, tonnage and men, employed between the British Northern Colonies in America, and the West Indies, and other Countries.

Mr. McGregor found it difficult to ascertain the tonnage, and seamen employed in the northern intercolonial trade. The official returns for the year ending 5th January 1832, give (he says) the following statement, which does not include the vessels employed in the fishery, Inwards, 3,068 vessels, 211,471 tons, 9,991 men.

Outwards, 3,260 do. 227,197 do. 10,035 do.

The tonnage &c. employed between British North America and all other countries, for the year ending 5th January, 1832, Mr. McGregor computes to be—

Total inwards, 6,239 ships, 814,380 tons, 39,584 men.

Total outwards, 6,366 ships, 836,668 tons, 40,070 men.

† The Halifax Novascotian published in 1831, gives an interesting detailed statement of the trade of Novascotia for 1830, showing that that Province imported, in that year, to the amount of £1,320,228. in 2,085 vessels, 151,382 tons, and 8,621 men; and that it exported to the value £645,542. in 2,330 vessels, 179,596 tons, and 9,440 men. The exports of Cape Breton, in 1830 were of the value of £67,620. sterling, and the imports £85,026.

The trade of New Brunswick with Canada, and other countries, is shown by a statement made to the House of Assembly of that Colony, containing the exports and imports for 1832, and certified to be correct by the Collector of customs at St. Johns.

Out of this large amount, exceeding as it does, half a million, it appears by the return, that only £8,558. value was of the produce or manufacture of the Canadas. The following was the value of imports of the produce or manufacture of some other places.

Of the United States, £97,142. a part having been conveyed via Canada, &c.

The value of the imports exceeds that of the exports,

The value of goods thus exported, of the growth, produce, or manufacture of the following countries, was as follows:

The Canadas,	£ 726
New Brunswick,	294,741
Novascotia,	8,915
British West Indies,	13,822
United States,	20,839

The quantities of the staple commodities of New Brunswick, exported in 1832, were 208,227 tons of square timber; 30,962, 000 superficial feet of deals; 5,091 m. shingles; 289,581 staves; 622 barrels, and 2,947 kits of pickled salmon; 1,499 barrels mackerel, 18,502 quintals cod; 18,335 bbls. salted herrings; 14,167 boxes, and 42 barrels smoked herrings; 4,510 bushels oysters; 6,695 gallons fish oil; 3,176 tons gypsum; 12,978 lbs. butter and cheese; 598 tons limestone; 11,355 grind stones, &c. Of native grain, the whole export is 60 bushels of oats.

The value of the trade of New Brunswick, in a great measure, arises out of the bulky nature of her staple products. From the returns of the Custom-house of Saint Johns to the House of Assembly, it is ascertained, that in the year 1831, there cleared out to sea, from the several ports of the Colony, 1,710 vessels, measuring 212,734 tons, and navigated by 10, 319 men; and that in 1832, there cleared out 1,758 vessels, 239,732 tons burthen, manned by 11,683 seamen.

In 1832, 471 vessels, 138,318 tons, 6,281 men, arrived in Saint Johns and the other ports of New Brunswick; and 536 vessels, 162,842 tons, with 7,186 men, cleared out for the United Kingdom. The same year, 1,039 vessels, 56,925 tons, 3,670 men, entered the ports of New Brunswick, from Canada, Newfoundland, &c.; and 935 vessels, 48,635 tons, and 3,095 men, sailed from the ports of New Brunswick for other parts in British North America.

In 1831, there were also employed in the trade of New Brunswick, Coastwise, at the port of Saint Johns, alone, 600 vessels, measuring 33,646 tons, and manned by 1,436 seamen; also 28 vessels cleared out for the fisheries, with 720 men, for bounty, and 38 vessels for ditto, with 120 men, not for bounty. The number in 1832 does not greatly differ from that of the year before.

APPENDIX TO THE REPORT ON TRADE.

The appendix to the General Assembly of Novascotia, Journal for 1834, page 11,—furnishes an abstract of dutiable goods imported into that Province, in the year 1833, for which the duties had been paid or secured to the Colony, namely,—the duties had been paid or secured to the Colony, namely,—113,671 gallons of wine; 887,352 gallons of rum, brandy and gin; 41,990 cwt. (equal to 4,702,880 lbs.) sugar; 6,016 barrels of beef and pork; 32,263 barrels of flour; 186,690 lbs. of tobacco; and of merchandise, subject to advalorem duties, £347,389. Duties collected on all these articles, £105,386.

We are indebted to an official tabular statement, in page 14 of the appendix to the same volume, for the following important information concerning the import and export of Novascotia, in the article of flour. Novascotia imported from the United States, in 1832, of flour 56,507 barrels, and from the British Colonies, in North America, only 6,564 barrels.

Of the 63,071 barrels thus imported, 7,432 were exported to the West Indies, and 13,164 to other parts.

9527 barrels of United States flour were entered for the British fisheries, and subjected to no duty.

In 1833, there were imported into Novascotia, 85,752 barrels of flour, of which 67 barrels were from Britain, 16,000 from the British North American Colonies, and 69,685 from the United States. In the same year, Novascotia exported 14,271 barrels to the West Indies, and 18,526 to other parts; in all 32,797 barrels.

That high duties give rise to smuggling in Novascotia, the following extract from the report of the "Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, appointed to obtain information respecting the illegal introduction of dutiable and prohibited articles" into that Province, will serve to show:*

Your Committee, in pursuing their inquiries, have ascertained, from sources on which they can rely with the utmost confidence, that an illicit trade is now carried on in this Province, to a much greater extent than has heretofore been known; they have reason to believe that it is not confined to any particular section of the Province; but it is doubtless conducted on a much larger scale in those parts where the facilities and inducements are known to be the greatest.

Halifax, 2nd Dec'r. 1833.

We do not find the official return of the shipping belonging to the great port of Halifax, among the Novascotia returns, but in an abstract from the Custom-house, Halifax, dated 17th February, 1834, it is shown, that the number of vessels owned at the out ports of that Colony, were 8 ships, 76 brigs, 550 schooners, in all 634 vessels, 36,696 tons.

The value of the imports from the United States, by way of the rivers, the sea coasts, and the numerous roads, cannot be correctly ascertained; but their is a Port of entry and Custom-house at Saint Johns, on Lake Champlain, at which the imports into Canada, in 1832, appear to have been very considerable. We select some of the principal items, on the authority of the official returns, for which, see the Assembly of Lower Canada's Journals.

Articles imported from the United States into Saint Johns, Lower Canada, in the year ended the 5th October 1832, inclusive.

Ashes, 2,598 bbls.; salted beef, 1,675 barrels; butter 192 597 lbs.; 4,298 buffaloe robes; cheese, 396,622 lbs.; 5,811 head of cattle, (value on the Custom-house books, £26,442.); 6,450 packs of playing cards; 111,800 lbs. fresh codfish; 12,255 lbs. coffee; 5,219 raw calves skins; £1,494. value of drugs; £4,646. value in fancy goods; 32 barrels flour; 170 boxes glassware; 8,783 hat bodies; £1,119. value in hardware; 2,410 live hogs, value £4,573.; 252 horses, value £3,646.; 130 bales hops; 49,390 lbs. lard; leather, value £3,364.; 45 lots machinery, value £1,217; pork, salted, 4,400 barrels, value £11,953.; fresh pork, 731,378 lbs., value £5,507.; 36,815 raw hides, value £21,957; Rice 313,845 lbs. value £2,356.; 104 barrels spirits of turpentine; £1,382. value in silk goods; 5,407 sheep; 435,845 lbs. tallow, value £7,724.; leaf tobacco, 91,213 lbs.; tobacco manufactured, 252,773 lbs., value £6,541.; 127 boxes of French wines; wheat, 50 bushels; specie, £79,110. These and other imports at that port, that year, amount to £225,917. sterling money, and will serve to indicate to the Upper Canadians, the true source from whence the inhabitants of Lower Canada and the 1,000 ships of England, annually frequenting Quebec, derive their supplies.

* Sir H. Parnell, in his treatise on Financial Reform, mentions, that the annual revenue collected in the West Indies, by the imposition of duties on certain articles of necessity, is about £75,000. of which, about £68,000. are allowed up in the charges made for collection!

The articles imported (specie exclusive) at the port of Saint Johns, are valued at £146,807. sterling, while the exports from thence to the United States, (exclusive of £96,803. in specie) are valued only at £8,197. Some of the exports are 108 horses; 17,984 bushels of salt; 242 bales of rags: merchandise, value £3,338.; a few skins, seeds, fish, &c.

At another port in Lower Canada, named Saint Marie Nouvelle Beauce, the customs give £7,480. sterling, as the value of the imports from the United States, in 1832; and £4,569. as the exports; all of which consist of goods which had been imported by sea, into Canada.

No part of the revenue collected on imports, at any other ports in Lower Canada, save Quebec and Montreal, is paid to Upper Canada; nor is any part of the Upper Canadian customs revenue, derived from imports from the United States, accounted for to Lower Canada.

In the Quebec commercial list, 7th March, 1832, the value of all the lumber shipped from that Port in 1831, is down at £373,386; the ashes, at £334,128; flour and grain, £591,806; provisions, tobacco, &c. £49,322, (of which, Pork, £26,919; beef, £8,158, chiefly of United States origin); furs and peltries, £85,910; new vessels, £32,500;—in all, £1,467,052, or within about £400,000 of the estimated value of the imports. Of the lumber, a very considerable part was of United States origin; of 32,335 tons of hewn timber, this year exported by the United States, 29,967 tons were sent to the British North American Colonies; * and 150,795 barrels of flour, and 24,159 bushels of corn, were shipped by the same, to the same; * also, (says Niles) 100,382 barrels to the British West Indies, * and 91,915 bushels of corn. † The principal imports into Quebec, Gaspé, and New Carlisle, Lower Canada, in 1831, are estimated in the Quebec commercial list, at £52,835 for wines; £218,962 for rum, brandy and gin; £10,216, molasses; £126,058, sugars; £85,714, teas and coffee; £4,887, tobacco; £13,502, salt; and of merchandize, paying 2½ per cent. duties, £1,343,728;—total, £1,855,903; these in 1,111 ships, (calculating at one voyage each)—277,480 tons, and 12,766 men. Nine of the vessels which cleared from Quebec in 1831, were built there that year.

Iron is a most important commodity, and large quantities are annually imported into the Canadas. For many purposes, Swedish iron is preferred to English; but the Canadians are, in some degree, discouraged from using it, by the penalty of £7 10s. per cent duty, while English iron is subject only to the third of that tax.

The Quebec Gazette, in its remarks on the business of the year 1834, mentions that, in consequence of the heavy stock of Pork in hand last July, prices fell half a dollar a barrel, and that "about this time an unusual quantity of Irish Pork began to arrive, which was offered at auction, and prices again fell 2s. 6d. to 3s. 9d. per barrel, leaving a large stock still in the market, from which it is expected that prices will open rather lower than usual in the spring (of 1835) say 51s. 3d. to 52s. 6d. for prime, 60s. to 62s. 6d. for prime mess, and cargo 42s. 6d. to 43s. 9d."

England has passed a law to say that Pork, Flour, Wheat, Live Stock, Ashes, Beef, and Lumber shall be imported from the United States, England, or Ireland, into Canada, duty free. Ireland thus sends Pork to Quebec, and lowers prices. Suppose the Canadian to send a cargo of Pork to Ireland or England, in order to pay for the cotton or linen manufactures he uses, he will find that by the 6th, George 4th, cap. 117, Beef, Lamb, Mutton, Pork, Sheep, and Swine, are prohibited to be imported into the Home Dominions of Great Britain, from Canada or any other places whatever. Cattle and Malt are also prohibited to be imported: Butter pays an import duty of £20 per ton; Beer, 53s. per 32 gallons; Cheese, £10 10 per ton; Apples, 5s. per bushel; Clover or Hay Seeds, 20s. per cwt.; Potatoes, 2s. per 112 lbs. The price of all these articles is thus raised to consumers for the benefit of one class, the land owners, who have an interest very distinct from the farmers and laborers.

It will be seen from the British official returns, that the quantity and declared (or nearly the real) value of the following articles exported from the United Kingdom to British North America, in 1830, was as follows :

Beef, and Pork, 10,976 barrels, £29,012 ; Beer and Ale, 397 tons, £7,294 ; Butter and Cheese, 3,958 cwts. £13,265. These articles must have chiefly gone to Newfoundland and the other lower ports.

England pursues a different course with regard to the Canadas : she declares it lawful for the United States to import into these Provinces duty free, Live Stock, Wheat, Flour, Ashes, Pork, Beef, Hams, Bacon, and other produce required by her shipping, and buys as readily the produce of Maine and Vermont, as of Upper and Lower Canada.

The United States steadily exclude the dealer in Canadian produce from a choice of markets, by duties so high, as in most cases to amount to a prohibition.

The Legislature of this Colony addressed the King in March 1833, praying that a lower duty might be charged on Cotton and Tobacco of United States growth, when imported into the United Kingdom through Montreal and Quebec, than when shipped from the countries of their growth and manufacture : the answer as to Cotton, justly declared that it would be highly inexpedient to create an artificial interest which might prevent the manufactures of Great Britain from being supplied with Cotton at the cheapest rates, and remarked that the duty on Tobacco was laid on, purely for the purposes of revenue, and that Government declined to recommend any modification of that duty which might impair its productiveness without benefitting the British consumer.

The information contained in the Appendix to the Assembly's Journal, for 1833-4, page 94 to 101, throws much light on the trade of Upper Canada, and is of a nature on which dependence may be placed.

The Secretary of the La Chine Canal's Returns shew, that the imports via the Canal, in 1826-7-8, were, of merchandize and liquors, 17,085 tons; and that in 1830-1-2, they had increased to 30,323 tons; that although no salt was imported via the Canal in 1826, it soon became an important article of trade; the number of tons in the six years ending in 1832, being, 76, 66, 365, 405, 334 and 406 tons. The average number of barrels of Ashes exported by the Canal exceeded 20,000 yearly, in the seven years: the Flour exported ranged in 1826 to 1832 from 55,000 bsrrels to 130,000 yearly; of Grain there were exported 330,379 bushels in 1826-7-8, and in 1830-1-2, upwards of 1,002,382 bushels; the Hogs sent down increased in number from 187 in 1826, to 2576 in 1832.

Mr. Simpson, Collector of Customs, at Coteau du Lac, estimates the quantity and value of Canadian produce passing downwards in 1831 and 1832, at 337,100 tons; value, £1,123,232, Sterling. He sets down 464,413 bushels of Wheat; 12,764 barrels of Pork, and 98,520 barrels of Flour, of the growth, produce, or manufacture of Upper Canada, either for sale abroad, or domestic, in Lower Canada.

In the year ending October 1st, 1832, there passed downwards through the Coteau du Lac, (according to Mr. Simpson,) of foreign exports, 12,989 barrels of Flour; 3,106 of Pork, and 3,500 barrels of Ashes. Of exports, consisting of articles the growth, produce, or manufacture of this Province (flour being such if manufactured from the U. States wheat,) there were in that year 12,160 barrels of Ashes; † 65,458 of † Tait's Edinburgh Magazine October, 1832, has the following paragraph on Flour, and shewing that it is possible we may be supplanted in the trade carried on in Ashes :

"A new article of commerce, namely, East India Flour, is coming extensively into use for the making of Size and Starch; it is chiefly imported by the Calcutta Flour Mills Company, and is found to answer better than American Flour, which has hitherto been considered the best for this purpose. The manufacture of Soda from common Salt, for the purposes of bleaching and making Soap, is now carried on to a considerable extent in Liverpool; and this article is likely to compete with, if not to supersede, Pot and Pearl Ashes, for the above mentioned purposes, as it can be sold for about £30 a ton, whilst Ashes of equal strength cost £28 or 29, a ton. This new manufacture will be beneficial to England though injurious to the Canadas, whence we now obtain so large a quantity of Ashes."

On this statement, Mr. Niles, in his Baltimore Register, thus remarks : "The preceding states a fact of much interest to the grain growers of the United States."

"Except in years of scarcity, a large part of our exports of Flour to England was for the purpose of making size, or paste and starch; and some Flour; 6,718 of Pork; 510 of Pease; 302,841 bushels of Wheat; 1482 boxes of Starch; 19 barrels, 725 kegs of Tobacco; 642 M. Standard and 832 M. West India Staves, &c.

In the Report of Congress by Mr. Woodbury, Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, on the finances of the country, made in December, 1834, he thus sums up the vast amount of the commerce of the Union :

"The imports during the year ending September 30th, 1834, are estimated in value at $123,093,351; being compared with the preceding year, an increase of $14,101,541. Those during the three past years have, on an average, been about $11,038,142.

The exports during the same year are estimated at $97,318,724; of which $74,444,429, were in domestic, and $22,874,295, in foreign products; being compared with the preceding year, an increase of $6,655,321; of which $3,802,399 were in articles of domestic, and $2,852,922, in those of foreign products. The average exports, during the last three years, have been about $91,719,690; of which $69,407,976 are the average in articles of domestic products, and $22,311,714 in those of foreign.

It will thus be seen that the imports of the last year varied in amount $12,055,209 from the average of the three past years, and those paying duties are believed to have varied much less. It is, therefore, in connexion with the reasons before named, considered safe to infer, that the imports of the ensuing year may not differ materially from that average. Should they not so differ, the revenue from customs will probably correspond in substance with that of the past year, except so far as it may be changed by the whole amount of all the importations, when compared with the above average; because the classes and value of articles paying duty, for aught which is known, will probably be similar, and the rate of duties on them will not, by existing laws, be essentially altered till the 31st December, A. D. 1835."

The power of the United States may be more readily conceived when it is known that on the 1st day of January, 1835, the national debt was extinguished: an excess of half a million of dollars remained in the Treasury over all existing claims; and that seven millions of Bank Stock, on hand, with a large available balance of unexpended appropriations, were among the extraordinary features of their present financial condition.

The tariff of foreign taxation is greatly reduced; and in Tea, Coffee, Spices, and many other articles of necessity, the principle of perfect freedom of trade, has been introduced; the vexatious regulations by which an additional 10 per cent used to be added to the cost in estimating the duties on imports is done away, and instead thereof, it is provided that the actual charges on exportation, exclusive of insurance, shall be added to the invoice, in estimating the value of goods subject to ad valorem duties. In estimating British Invoice values the £1 Sterling is to be considered as being worth 480 cents, its value up to 1833, was fixed at 444 cents.

The official value of the United States exports of domestic produce and manufactures, for the year ending September 30th, 1830, was stated by the Secretary of the Treasury, as follows :

Of the Sea.....	$1,725,270
Of the Forest.....	4,192,047
Of Agriculture.....	46,977,332
Of Manufactures.....	6,567,583
Exports of foreign produce and manufactures during same period.....	14,387,479
Exports of the Union for the consecutive year, 1829-30.....	73,849,511
The imports from foreign countries same year.....	70,876,920

The aggregate tonnage employed in exporting for the same year, was 1,105,196 tons.

The real amount of the tonnage of the United States is not easily ascertained, many United States vessels trading under foreign flags, and therefore not appearing in the account. On flour had a fair market in that country when sweet could not be sold at all, because of the prohibitory duty upon it; the first, as a raw material, being moderately taxed. The amount of the consumption of flour for these purposes may be partially apprehended from the fact, that the Cotton manufacture of the United States, only, requires 2,070,000 lbs. starch, and 18,200 bbls. of flour. Perhaps from 80,000 to 100,000 bbls. of flour are used in the United States for sizing, and in paste and starch."

By the 4th and 5th, William 4th, chap. 82, (1834) "Census powder or Starch," the produce of any British Colony in America, may be imported therefrom into Britain, on payment of 1s. per cwt. of duty.

APPENDIX TO THE REPORT ON TRADE.

the other hand, it is well known that many ships which according to American owners, are in reality the property of British Capitalists. The great improvements made of late years in ship building, has enabled the shipping of the Union to combine the advantages of large burdens and fast sailing, and thereby to do more business than could be performed by the same tonnage of any other country.

The steam-boat tonnage of the Union, is estimated at 75,000 tons; and on a rough calculation, we should be inclined to set down that of the British North American Colonies at from 12,000 to 14,000 tons. These packets effect the transfer and the exchange of merchandize with great celerity, and, with the canals and rail-roads, powerfully aid in bringing together the most distant parts.

The annual report of the Treasury department of the United States, on commerce, for the year ending 30th September, 1831, is an octavo of several hundred pages; and the following brief statement of some of the most important results, are interesting:

The imports into the United States in the above year, amounted to 103,191,124 dollars; and the exports from thence, to 81,310,583 dollars value, of which above 25 1/2 millions were cotton; 10 millions flour; 5 millions (nearly) tobacco; 2 millions rice; about 2 millions fish and oil; 1 1/2 millions staves and lumber; 1 million of ashes; 1 1/2 million pork; 3/4 of a million of skins and furs; and 1 1/4 millions domestic cotton manufactures; upwards of half the export trade of the Union appears to be made up of the products of the Southern States. Previous to 1790, the United States did not send a pound of cotton to England; now, more than half of the cotton used in Great Britain comes from the United States.

So far is war from being an effectual barrier to prevent trading, that some of the greatest importing years ever known in the American Union, were those immediately after the termination of the last contest between Great Britain and the United States; and, as usual, the greatest trade was between the two countries which had just ceased fighting.

The value of the United States imports in this year, (1830-31) from the Canadas and other British Northern Colonies, was 864,909 dollars; and of the exports of the said Northern Colonies, 4,062,838 dollars: of which latter the whole was of the domestic productions of the Union, except 35,446 dollars. A late Colonial Trade Act, by making a distinction between British American vessels, in this trade, makes it appear that a great quantity of United States goods, intended for the West Indies, are consumed in the Canadas and other Northern Provinces.

Of the tonnage which entered the United States from the Canadas and other Northern British Colonies, 92,672 tons were American, and 82,557 tons British and Colonial. Of the tonnage which departed from the United States for said Colonies, 79,364 tons were American, and 94,776 British and Colonial.

There is a valuable inland trade carried on between the Colonies and the Union; * in some places along the imaginary dividing frontier, the traveller will see shops, or stores, as they are called, built with one door in the United States and the other door in the Canadas, and American native or imported goods on the shelves of the southern division, and British or Colonial on the northern. The principle on which they are constructed, is truly ingenious, and shews that man, when left to himself, will purchase in the cheapest market, while politicians are consuming the midnight oil to prove that it is bad policy for him to do so.

It would be very difficult to ascertain the extent of the trade of Upper Canada with the United States; the contraband commerce carried on in defiance of fiscal regulations imposed by the United Kingdom Parliament, and of the United States tariff laws, is very extensive, and can be guessed at by refer-

* A nominal advantage is given to Canada in this—that flour ground on this side the St. Lawrence is subjected to a less duty in England than if it were ground in the United States;—to render this preference useless, it is a practice at Montreal and Quebec, to collect of Canadian flour as much as possible, for shipment to England, when the prices are high, and to import flour from the United States for consumption in the Provinces, in its stead. Thus the flour of the Western States and New-York supplies the place of that which is admitted into England on payment of the least duty, and gives to the adjoining States, in reality, the same privilege as the Canadas. United States wheat is subject to a discriminating duty in England, but may be imported into Canada, ground there, and shipped as Canadian flour to England, or consumed in the Colony. Hence no preference in price is usually given to Canadian flour in the Montreal market.

Merritt, McDonell, Creighton, Butler, Chisholm, Elliott, and Doctor Charles Duncombe, Directors of that work.

Coal is found in abundance adjoining the Ohio Canal; this is the first attempt to introduce it on the shores of Lake Ontario.

The amount of toll on the Welland Canal in 1832, was.....£2,432
 In 1833, 3,618
 And in 1834, 4,300

Although the income of the Canal, during the present season, does not present the same ratio of increase with the former, the difference is chiefly to be ascribed to the early close of the navigation, and decrease of business in the months of June and July, owing to the total interruption in the navigation of the Ohio Canal; notwithstanding which our staple articles have been greatly increased, viz:—

The Directors, in their report, state that—

"The difficulties and expense of navigating the St. Lawrence, are far greater than is generally supposed. The amount of trade or commerce through that channel, is a mere bagatelle, compared to what is directed to the New-York market. It appears that 264,919 bushels of wheat were conveyed through the Welland Canal last season, of which only 18,464 bushels came from our ports on Lake Erie, and 22,170 from American ports, destined for Montreal market; and the remaining 224,285 were conveyed to Oswego; whereas, if the St. Lawrence were made navigable, it would be difficult prescribing bounds to the quantity which would be directed by this channel to foreign markets, or the quantity of merchandize in return for the supply of the western country. It is supposed that merchandize from London would be conveyed to Cleveland for £2 10s. per ton, which now costs £3 to £4, from Montreal to Prescott, a distance of 180 miles."

It would have been satisfactory could we have presented our readers with official details of the commerce of Oswego, in like manner as we have of Cleveland. In the absence of all such documentary evidence, however, we have had recourse to the following statement, which appears to have been compiled with care by the Editor of the Oswego Palladium, a respectable American Journal, and in the habit of watching the commercial movements on the Lakes.

Progress of Oswego, and Business of 1834.

"One of our principal commercial establishments has taken the trouble to prepare, from accurate statements rendered by the several flouring mills and forwarding houses, an abstract of so much of the business of our village as is in immediate connexion with the Lakes and Canals. Having been favored with a copy of the abstract, (for which we feel ourselves greatly indebted,) we are enabled, with a few facts furnished from the Custom-house, to lay before our readers, an accurate summary of the principal business of the village and of the port during the past year. The increase over the business of the preceding year is found to be very great, and considering the pecuniary distress prevailing during the early part of the year, is in some particulars most extraordinary: we are particularly gratified to observe the augmented amount of tonnage, which has increased in less than two years considerably more than 100 per cent.

For New York,—Flour,..... barrels, 26,697
 For Montreal,..... do. 9,293
 Whole quantity of flour manufactured,..... do. 112,000
 Comparing the above with the exhibits of the preceding year, we find the—

Increase amount of Salt received is.....barrels, 21,622
 Increased amount of Goods received is..... tons, 216
 Increased amount of Goods received for Ohio,..... do. 256
 Increased amount of flour sent to New York,..... barrels, 13,353
 Increased amount of Wheat received,..... bushels, 60,794

The above statement, it will be perceived, does not include a quantity of flour received from Ohio, nor a considerable amount of lumber, ash, post and red cedar from Lake Ontario.

The amount of tonnage owned at the port of Oswego, in 1833, was..... tons, 1,645
 The amount at the close of the navigation in 1834, do. 2,699
 This is exclusive of three fine vessels on the stocks, to be launched in the Spring.

The editor adds, that six or seven years ago the whole tonnage of Oswego consisted of four schooners, three of them old and abandoned; but that now Oswego owns 34 vessels, including steam boats, and exclusive of vessels on the stocks. The Canadian ports on Lake Ontario carry on an important and increasing trade with Oswego, and through it with New York and Albany. If the Oswego report is to be depended on, the greater part of the wheat that came down the Welland Canal passed into Oswego, and thence to New York. The Oswego account of Salt shipped for Lake Erie, via the Welland Canal, exceeds the whole quantity officially reported by the Directors of that work, by 1,963 barrels.

Ship Canal from Lake Ontario to the Hudson River.

An extract from a report made to the inhabitants of the City of Utica, New-York, by a committee appointed to survey the route of a contemplated ship Canal between Utica and Oswego, &c. with some of the resolutions agreed to by the meeting.

APPENDIX TO THE REPORT ON TRADE.

[FROM THE ALBANY ARGUS.]

At a meeting of the inhabitants of the City of Utica, held, pursuant to adjournment, at the Court-Room, on the evening of February 5th, 1835, the Honorable Joseph Kirkland, Mayor of the City, was appointed President; and John C. Devereux, and Alvin Stuart, Esqrs. Vice-Presidents; and William Crafts, and William C. Noyes, Esqrs. Secretaries.

Alexander B. Johnson, Esquire, Chairman of the State Central Executive Committee upon the proposed ship Canal from Lake Ontario to the Hudson, stated the objects of the meeting to be to hear the report of the Engineer appointed to survey the route of the contemplated work between Utica and Oswego, and to take such measures as should be deemed necessary in presenting the subject to the Legislature; and in behalf of the Committee, he presented and read the following report:—

About two years ago, some few enterprising and intelligent citizens of Oswego became convinced that New-York was destined to lose the great inland trade of the western lakes, unless some facility was furnished beyond that produced by the Erie Canal.

The citizens of Oswego, therefore, convened in public meetings, and extensively diffused over the State the information that the Canadian Government, and others interested in the Canadas, were proceeding rapidly in removing the obstructions which prevent vessels from descending the St. Lawrence to the Ocean.

This descent is unquestionably the natural channel for the commerce, not only of Lake Ontario, but of the chain of lakes which stretch so extensively, from east to west, across our continent. They form one continuous and immense sheet of water, and the whole is precipitated by nature down the St. Lawrence. Nature has placed some barriers against the progress of man in this descent, but the Falls of Niagara, which constitute the greatest barrier, are already surmounted by the Welland Canal.

When New York commenced the Erie Canal, the state fondly imagined it had accomplished all that was necessary to insure to itself the commerce of the Lakes. The Canadas had made no efforts to remove the obstructions which impede their participation in this commerce; and the commerce itself was but just in embryo. Now, every thing is reversed. The Canadas are not only active in removing the obstructions of nature; but the commerce is grown to a size as disproportioned to the Erie Canal, as the cradle of an infant is disproportioned to the accommodation of a man. On Lake Erie alone, are 31 American Steam-Boats, 234 American Schooners and 3 Brigs, the whole constituting a tonnage of 31,000 tons; these are only the American vessels; how many Canadian vessels navigate the lake, I have not ascertained.

But even the present commerce of the lakes, large as it may be, is nothing in comparison with the commerce which at some period (and not remote,) is there to be congregated. Experience teaches us that the enterprise of man is constantly and steadily directing itself to the full occupation of every theatre on which enterprise can be employed. The Hudson River was not made to accommodate the cities and villages on its borders, but the river is the mother which has produced those cities and villages. It has produced all the commerce which floats on its surface, and it is entitled to the honor of having produced even the noble and almost superhuman Steam-Boats which traverse it. The river stimulated Fulton's inventive powers; and had the river not existed, we should not, at this day, have possessed Steam-Boats.

Looking then at the western lakes, and at the fertile territory of which they are the centre; and at the enterprize of our citizens; we may safely predict that the lakes are to become the scenes of a mightier inland commerce than the world ever before witnessed.

In view of the efforts which were in progress at Oswego, a meeting was held last winter of the citizens of Utica. From that meeting various resolutions emanated, and also a memorial to the Legislature, praying for the survey of a Ship Canal from Lake Ontario to the Hudson. In the present position of the commerce which we desire to share, nothing short of a Ship Canal to the Hudson can enable us to compete successfully with Canada. When we can furnish to lake vessels an outlet from the lakes to New York, we may hope to direct the commerce to that port; but while a trans-shipment must be made from lake vessels into some other, before the freight can reach New York, we may steal from the lakes a little of its trade; we may catch the crumbs that fall from the table, but we can never partake of the solid dishes that compose the feast. Even for these crumbs we must scramble with Pennsylvania, with Maryland, and with States still farther south, and they even, bid fair to surpass us in this comparatively small competition.

Providence has, however, placed within our grasp the means of producing an outlet which shall enable us, not only to leave far behind all the efforts of our sister States, but which shall enable us to furnish an outlet superior, even to that by the St. Lawrence; superior by being more accessible during a portion of the year, and by leading to, generally, a better market.

Upon motion, portions of the Report of Edwin F. Johnson, Esquire, the Engineer who had explored the route, were read, and listened to, with great interest.

The Committee appointed at a previous meeting to prepare a memorial to the Legislature, and Resolutions expressive of the views of the city relative to the work, reported, by their Chairman, a memorial, and the following Resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That in view of the unparalleled increase in the population and productions of the Western States and Territories, and the consequent necessity of greatly enlarging the facilities of communication between the western portions of our country, and particularly in view of the spirited and wisely directed efforts making in our sister States and the Canadian Provinces, to divert the trade of the western country from its accustomed route, through the Erie Canal, to the City of New York, to new channels leading to the seaports of other States, it is incumbent on the State of New York, if she would secure herself from a rivalry which may cost her the inheritance purchased for her by the wisdom of her Clinton, and his coadjutors, to adopt some measures which may render available the natural advantages she possesses for furnishing the commercial outlet of the western country.

Resolved, That this meeting regard the immediate construction of a Ship or Steam-Boat communication from Lake Ontario to this City, and its extension to the City of Albany, at an early day, indispensably necessary to prevent a competition with the Canals and Rail Roads of the Canadas, Pennsylvania and Maryland, which will prove destructive to the carrying trade between the western country and the City of New York, and highly prejudicial to the interests of the whole State.

NEW YORK CANALS.

In a Report made to the Senate of the State of New York, by the Commissioners of the Canal Fund, there are a number of tables exhibiting the trade of the Canals from 1820 to 1834.

The quantity of flour cleared from Buffalo, sent, in 1834, via the Erie Canal, was 79,324 barrels; of provisions 14,590 barrels; of tobacco, 1,009 tons; of pig iron, 1,128 tons; of staves, 2,400,000; of butter and cheese, 257 tons; of wool, 73 tons. Of merchandize, &c. destined for the west, there arrived at Buffalo, by the Erie Canal, 17,401 tons; of furniture of Emigrants, 4,144 tons; salt, 84,101 barrels.

One of the tables exhibits the quantity of property passing to Whitehall, on the Champlain Canal, from 1820 to 1834; and also the quantity of merchandize arriving at or passing Whitehall, from tide water to the north. There has been an increase in the quantity of sawed lumber cleared at Whitehall, from 22,426,067 in 1823, to 77,863,247 feet in 1834; of wool, from 9,660 to 252,000 lb.; of butter and cheese, from 27,776 to 1,954,000 pounds; of glass, from 3 to 18,000 boxes; of iron and nails, from 153 to 2,631 tons; and of marble, from 44 to 1,167 tons. The merchandize passing Whitehall north, has increased no less than 1,000 tons, comparing 1834 with 1829. Flour has increased from 5,064 barrels in 1829, to 61,247 in 1834; and during the last season, 20,406 bushels of wheat passed Whitehall to the north. The quantity of Onondaga Salt sent to Lake Champlain through the northern Canal, amounted the last season to 123,337 bushels, being more than the average amount for the four preceding years.

Among the commodities coming down the Champlain Canal, during the last season, there were 210 tons of copperas, and 304 tons of manganese. These articles came from the State of Vermont.

APPENDIX TO THE REPORT ON TRADE.

The whole amount of tonnage arriving at, and passing Whitehall, on the Champlain Canal, in the season of navigation, 1835, was 198,928 tons.

The Erie Canal was finished in the fall of 1825. In 1826 this Canal was navigable from Albany to Buffalo, and the tolls for that year amounted to the sum of $677,466 75, being less by $602,278 22, than the amount collected in 1834. The following statement exhibits the increase in some of the principal commodities transported on the Canal, comparing 1826 with 1834, viz :

	1826.	1834.	Increase.

It appears that the whole amount of monies received by the Commissioners of the New York State Canal Fund, from all sources, from the date of the organization of the board, in 1817, until the 30th of September, 1834, was upwards of twenty-three millions of dollars ; of which nearly ten millions were for Canal tolls ; upwards of three millions for duties on auctioneers, and nearly two millions for duties on salt ; upwards of $73,000 have been also realized from a tax on Steam Boats. The payments during the same period have exceeded twenty millions, and the Commissioners have now on hand three millions loaned out to the State Banks, &c. on interest, to be applied to the payment of the Canal debt when it shall become due.

These statistical facts, obtained from the official Report of the Commissioners will, in part, explain to the Canadian reader, why it is that the amount of duties collected at the port of New York alone, on importation by sea, exceeded in 1834, ten millions of dollars.

An Extract from the Message of Governor Hamilton, to the Legislature of South Carolina, dated at Columbia, the 22d October, 1822.

The Tariff Act of 1832 is, in point of fact, a law by which the consumption of the manufacturing States is nearly relieved of all sort of burden on those articles which they consume and do not produce, and under the provisions of which they are secured by a bounty on an average of more than fifty per cent on the productions of their industry, whilst it taxes our consumption to an equivalent amount, and the exchangeable value of our products in a much more aggravated ratio. The law bears the impress of the Legislation of an independent Sovereignty to a feeble and distant Colony, and establishes the revolting discrimination that the labor of the South is less entitled to the paternal regard of this Government than that of a more favored section of the Union. The provisions of the act are, moreover, at war with every acknowledged principal of wise and beneficent taxation, which has ever existed among any people on the face of the earth, having the shadow of a claim to civilization or a just knowledge of finance. Articles of luxury are selected as the objects of comparative exemption from all burden, whilst those of necessity bear nearly the whole brunt of the imposts. The great staples of the industry and consumption of man, which purchase seven-tenths of our agricultural products, iron, cotton, and woolen fabrics, salt, and sugar, are burthened with a tax quite equivalent to an average of seventy-five per cent. on their prime costs ; whilst the teas, the coffee, the silks, and the wines of the rich, which are principally exchanged for the productions of manufacturing or northern labor enjoy, as it regards these articles, a most unjust discrimination in their favor. Operating thus heavily on the exchangeable value of our products, the Act provides for nothing short of the monstrous injustice of levying, at least, three-fourths of the whole amount of the federal revenue on the industry of the Southern States. Nor does the gross inequality of the law stop here. It affects, after all the subtle artifices of exaggeration, respecting a diminution of our burdens, have been dispelled, a reduction from the amount of duties levied under the Act of 1828, as modified by that of 1830, of three millions seven hundred thousand dollars on the unprotected articles, and only the pitiful sum of somewhere about eight hundred thousand dollars on the protected, (which purchase the staples of the South,) making, in all, a reduction of only four millions and a half, instead of twelve, which last reduction was essential to the accomplishment of the desirable and highly conservative object of bringing the revenue down to the standard of the legitimate wants of the Government. As it is, nine millions of surplus revenue will, in all probability, result from the imposts of this Act, over and above the necessary and constitutional expenses of the country, to be distributed by a majority responsible to us, in corrupt, largesses or unconstitutional appropriations to those States which, without possessing an interest in the tariff, are made to feel that they have an interest in high taxation, when by an unjust provision of the Government they receive more than they are made to pay.

Repugnant as this Act thus is, to every principle of justice, we cannot indulge even the humiliating consolation, that designed as it was, in some respects, to subserve the periodic struggle for the executive power of the country, it will be tem porary in its duration, and will at last yield to that returning sense of justice so long promised, and whose advent has been so long and so tardily postponed. No, we have the authentic and solemn declarations of both the great dominant parties in the union, who are now contending for its power, and who conjointly form an overwhelming majority, that the system is as fixed as fate, except in those particulars that are yet to be modified more beneficially for their interests, as cupidity may be instructed by experience. That the system, if we think proper to submit to its injustice, is the fixed and settled policy of the country, so far as the majority can will it to be such, we have much more solid reasons for believing, than even these declarations however authoritative. This belief is founded on the indisputable fact, that it is impossible for the wit or wisdom of man to have contrived a scheme for raising the revenue of the country in a mode more essentially and exclusively beneficial to their own interests; for it is a process by which taxation operates correlatively, as a bounty to their industry; and that whilst three-fourths of the public revenue is to be raised on articles in the production of which they enjoy a premium of more than fifty per cent.; all the articles necessary to perfection of their arts and manufactures, and many essential to the accommodations and luxuries of life, are comparatively untaxed. It is not a cold abstract sense of justice, or what are insultingly called the metaphysics of constitutional liberty, that will induce a people, rioting in such a high and palmy state of prosperity, to surrender these advantages, if they can find four millions of consumers, willing to submit to their exactions, who happen to be territorially separated from them, and who exercise a species of industry, in no degree competing with, but on the contrary subservient and tributary to their own. We shall, indeed, have read the history of the world to very little purpose, if we cherish so idle and senseless a conjecture. If the Southern States had been subjugated provinces, and after a war of exhausting desolation, had surrendered at discretion under the sword, I ask, what other bill "for the regulation of trade with the Colonies," our conquerors would have desired but this very tariff act of 1832? Of the ruin which this measure will bring upon us, we are not left to speculation; the signs of our decaying prosperity are around us.

Informed as you are, gentlemen, of all the details of this Act, I am conscious how unnecessary it is to press this view of the subject any further, but there is one consideration which cannot be overlooked, and that is, the solemn and abiding conviction of the good people of this state, that the right to pass a tariff of protection is not to be found in the constitution of the United States; that in the act of 1832, the principle of protection is distinctly and triumphantly recognised, and that neither in expressed terms, or by authorised implication, does any such power exist in the compact of union. To submit to an infraction of the constitution, involving the great right of human industry and property, is to acquiesce in voluntary servitude. To meet this vital truth, the lessons we have been taught by our ancestors contain an instructive and salutary moral. He must be a very ingenious casuist who can discover any difference in principle, between taxation without representation and taxation with a nominal representation, but in violation of the constitution. The result of both is, seizing and taking away money without legal right. But grievous as may be the pecuniary loss arising from this wrong, it is mere dust in the balance, in comparison with the shock which the public liberty of the country sustains, if the people, by a relaxation of public spirit through sloth, servility or cowardice, are prepared to submit to an infraction of their rights; for it overthrows, if I may so speak, that love and reverence for the authority of the general principles of liberty, so essential to the preservation of the institutions of free States.

An extract from the speech of General Smith, of Maryland, in the Senate of the United States, January 1832, during the debate on the question, whether the nomination of Martin VanBuren, as Minister to England, should be approved.

The senator from Kentucky (Mr. Clay) has charged Mr. McLane with having done injury to the navigating interests, by the opening of the Saint Lawrence and the northern ports, to our free intercourse, thus transferring, as he said, the carrying of the produce of Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, New York, Vermont, and Maine, to British Ships, which would otherwise have been carried by our own ships. I believe the farmers of those States do not complain. They know that their produce sold in Montreal is received there free of duty, and is carried to England, Ireland, and the West Indies, as if it were the produce of Canada. It is of little importance to them who is the carrier, provided they get an additional market, and a better price for their produce. I regret, Mr. President, that I cannot give the credit of that important act to Mr. McLane: he, however, had nothing to do with it: it formed no part of his arrangement. The opening of that intercourse, for certain articles of our produce, had been done gratuitously by the British Government in 1826, prior even to the attempt at negotiation by Mr. Gallatin. Now that act must have been known: it could not fail to have been known to the senator, [Mr. Clay] then the Secretary of State. Why then does he now charge it as a fault committed by Mr. McLane, who had no more to do with it than the man in the moon? Nor had Mr. McLane any thing to do with the Act of Great Britain, passed subsequently to the arrangement made by him; by which Act, other articles of our produce are admitted free of duty into the Northern Colonies, and from thence are received in England and the West Indies, as if they were the produce of the Canadas. The senator (Mr. Clay) complains, that the produce of our farmers bordering on Canada, is received in England on equal terms with those of Canada, thus giving a new market to a part of their articles, without which other markets might be overstocked. The senator (Mr. Clay) has truly said, that the wheat of the States bordering on the Canadas, passes into Canada, is their ground, and the flour shipped to British ports, as if it were the produce of the wheat of Canada. This has been the spontaneous act of Great Britain, adopted for her own interest, and is most certainly highly beneficial to our farmers. An immense number of sheep, hogs, horses and cattle, are driven annually from Maine to Quebec, and New Brunswick. The farmers and graziers of Maine differ in opinion with the senator from Kentucky, (Mr. Clay) and are really so simple as to believe, that their free intercourse with Lower Canada and New Brunswick, is highly beneficial to them:—whether the intercourse with the British North American Colonies be beneficial, or whether it be injurious, the present administration, nor Mr. McLane had little part in it. It had been effected, in part, before the arrangement was concluded, and soon after for another part. It formed, as I have previously said, no part of the arrangement with Great Britain, and this fact must have been known too by the senator (Mr. Clay,) for he then acted as Secretary of State. We have for nearly half a century been claiming the free navigation of the Saint Lawrence, as a natural right: it has at length been gratuitously conceded to us by Great Britain; and now the senator from Kentucky, (Mr. Clay,) complains of it as a grievance.

The senator, (Mr. Clay,) also complains, that the instructions state, "that the late administration had abandoned certain pretensions." The senator admits, that these pretensions had been waved. The senator from Georgia, (Mr. Forsyth,) has contended that there is no difference in substance, between these words. I leave this grave question to be settled by those learned senators, and will proceed to show what those pretensions were, and which I can hardly restrain myself from pronouncing, were puerile in the extreme.

During the Session of 1822, Congress was informed, that an Act was pending in Parliament, for the opening of the Colonial Ports to the commerce of the United States. In consequence, an Act passed authorising the President, in case the Act of Parliament was satisfactory to him, to open the Ports of the United States to British vessels, by his proclamation. The Act of Parliament was deemed satisfactory, and a proclamation was accordingly issued, and the trade commenced. Unfortunately for our commerce, and I think, contrary to justice, a treasury circular issued, directing the Collector to charge British vessels entering our Ports, with the alien tonnage and discriminating duties; this order was remonstrated against, (I think) by Mr. Vaughan. The trade however went on uninterrupted. Congress met, and a bill was drafted in 1823, by Mr. Adams, then Secretary of State, and passed both Houses, with little, if any debate.—I voted for it, believing that it met, in a spirit of reciprocity, the Act of Parliament. This Bill contained, however, one little word, "elsewhere," which completely defeated all our expectations. It was noticed by no one. The senator from Massachusetts, (Mr. Webster,) may have understood its effect.—If he did so understand it he was silent. The effect of that word, "elsewhere," was to assume the pretensions alluded to in the instructions. What were they? "That the produce of the United States should be received in the West Indies, on payment of the same duties as were payable on the produce of the North American Colonies." The British Minister said, "as well might we ask that our sugar should be received free of duty, as is the sugar of Louisiana."

The result was, that the British Government shut their Colonial ports immediately, and thenceforward. The act of 1822, gave us a monopoly of the West India trade: it admitted, free of duty, a variety of articles, such as—Indian corn, oats, Indian meal, peas, beans, &c. &c. &c.

The British Government thought that we entertained a belief, that they could not do without our produce, and by their Acts of 27th June, and 5th July, 1825, they opened their ports to all the world, on terms far less advantageous to the United States, than those of the Act of 1822; and these are the pretensions which the instructions say had been abandoned by the late administration. They were abandoned, Mr. President, by the following words in the instructions to Mr. Gallatin:—

 "That the United States consent to wave the demand which they have heretofore made, of the admission of their productions into British Colonies, at the same and no higher rate of duty, as similar articles are chargeable with, when imported from one into another British Colony, with the exception of our produce descending the Saint Lawrence and the Sorel." Now, sir, whatever difference there may be between the words "waver" and "abandonment," in common parlance, it is in this case, a complete abandonment in diplomatic language. What a simple truth, is after all, the great ground of objection? It is this—Mr. McLane has made an arrangement conformable to the preceding instructions from Mr. Adams to Mr. Gallatin.

PROVINCE OF UPPER CANADA.

THE SECOND REPORT of the COMMITTEE on TRADE.

To the Honourable the House of Assembly.

The Select Committee on Trade respectfully report the evidence of Mr. Markland, Inspector General; Mr. Jameson, Attorney General; Mr. Hagerman, Solicitor General; Mr. Gillespie, a Merchant of this city; Mr. Cawthra, ditto, ditto; and Messrs. Dutcher, Norton, and Charles Powers, Iron Founders; Also, a statement of the quantity of the articles seized at the several Ports in Upper Canada,—An account of the imports at the Port of Queenston in 1834,—A return of the inland imports into the Port of Montreal, from the opening to the close of the navigation, 1834,—And a letter from Mr. Savage, Collector of Customs at the Port of Toronto, to the Inspector General, in which he states his inability to furnish any detailed accounts, either of the imports or exports for the preceding year. It appears very remarkable, that at a Port so much frequented as Toronto, no regular system has been adopted for keeping an account of the exports and imports, whether dutiable or free.

Your Committee herewith report a Bill to require the Officers of the Customs to keep an accurate account of the imports and exports, quantity and value, and whether dutiable or not.

JAMES WILSON,
CHAIRMAN.

COMMITTEE ROOM, HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY, }
12TH MARCH, 1835. }

EVIDENCE.

Saturday, 7th March, 1835.

The Honourable GEORGE H. MARKLAND, Inspector General of Public Accounts.

1. To what extent is smuggling carried on in Upper Canada, as far as you have been able to form an opinion?—See Return of Seizures herewith transmitted.

2. What articles are chiefly smuggled into the Colony? See idem.

3. What checks have you established to ensure correct returns from the several Collectors of Customs, seeing there are no comptrollers?—The Collectors are obliged to make oath to the accuracy of their accounts.

4. What system of checks would you propose?—I am not aware that any other checks are practicable.

5. What remuneration is made to Collectors over and above their per centages?—Fees on Reports and Permits for landing merchandize.

6. In whose hands are bonds outstanding for duties placed if not duly paid, and what bonds are now due and unpaid, the same having been given during the last year?—Collectors are not authorised in any case to accept bonds for duties. (See extract from Circular of 2nd April, 1833.)

7. May not tea be imported from the United States on payment of 15 per cent duty, under the order in Council of the 16th July 1827, and the provisions of the Imperial act of August 1833; and if not what is the ground of objection, now that the prohibition on account of the East India Company's Charter is at an end?—Reference may be had to the Attorney General.

8. By a late Act of Congress, Coffee, Cocoa, Currants, Prunes, Figs, Raisins, Black Pepper, Ginger, Mace, Nutmegs, Cassia, Pimento, Flax, (undressed) Tin (in plates and sheets,) Lemons, and Limes, Almonds, Opium, Gum Arabic, and Camphor and Dye Stuffs, and most kinds of Drugs and Medicines are imported into the Ports of the United States, free of duty, while most of these articles are subject to taxation if landed at Quebec—What was the gross quantity imported from the United States (at all the ports, or if it be inconvenient to ascertain as to them all,) at the three principal ports of each of these articles (or of such of them as an account can be obtained of) in the years ending the—day of—1832, 1833, and 1834, respectively?—Fresh Fruits, Drugs, and Medicines, Dye Woods, are not subject to duty in either Province.

9. Are you authorised to allow any drawback on any imported article when exported to the United States?—Drawbacks are not allowed on any articles imported from the United States.

10. Should the Legislature of Upper Canada be of opinion that the interests of the Province require a reduction of the duty imposed by the Imperial Parliament on certain articles of Import from the United States, is there any legal objection to the passage of a measure in Upper Canada to appropriate, as a bounty or drawback on such articles being imported, the whole or any part of the duties imposed by any act of the United Kingdom Parliament?—See Section 49 of Imperial Act, 6th Geo. 4th, chap. 114

11. What allowances have been made to Collectors or others off the gross proceeds realized in each case of seizure which happened within the last year—state the particulars, and the authority under which any deductions or allowances were made?—Collectors are allowed one half of the nett proceeds of seizures of the value of £40 and under, and one third of the net proceeds of those above that value.

12. With respect to our trade and revenue—what disadvantages do you consider this Province laboring under, and what means would you point out to this Committee whereby the Colony would more effectually obtain her proper share of the trade of the Canadas; and by what means would the expenses on our imports and exports be lessened, and what course would you recommend for a further and more equitable adjustment of our trade with Lower Canada and the United States?—The disadvantages under which the trade of Upper Canada labors are chiefly owing to its local situation, to remedy which I am not aware of any practicable mode—I do not consider that the adjustment of the financial relations of the two Provinces could be put upon a more equitable footing except that the arbitration should take place more frequently.

Extract from a Circular to Collectors, dated 2nd April, 1833.

“It has been intimated to me that a custom has prevailed of taking bonds for the payment of duties, for the accommodation of Importers; I have to observe that such a proceeding is no where authorised in the Imperial Act of 1825, which expressly says they must be paid down within three days. However desirable it may be to afford a reasonable accommodation the power of doing so does not exist, and should only be assumed by the head of the Government, with whom alone so much responsibility should rest, unless at the risk of the party affording it.”

Tuesday, 10th March, 1835.

C. A. HAGERMAN, Esq. M. P. P. Solicitor General, called in and examined.

13. Would you not consider that the present duties imposed on articles from the United States should be abolished? Decidedly not.

14. Do you consider that the article of tea can come into this Province from the United States duty free?—I do not.

15. Do you consider the passage of a law desirable, which would direct the Collectors of Customs, to keep a register of the Imports and Exports from the United States?—I think it would be of advantage.

16. Do you think it would be of advantage to import tea from the United States duty free?—It would be of advantage to the consumer, but a disadvantage in point of revenue.

17. Should the Legislature of Upper Canada be of opinion that the interests of the Province require a reduction of the duties imposed by the Imperial Parliament on certain articles of import from the United States—is there any legal objection to the passage of a measure in Upper Canada, to appropriate as a bounty or drawback on such articles being imported the whole or any part of the duties imposed by any act of the United Kingdom Parliament?—All duties collected by law within this Province, or to which this Province is entitled, may be disposed of in such manner as the Legislature may direct.

SECOND REPORT ON TRADE.

18. Is the present scale of the remuneration to the Collector of Customs a fair one?—I do not think it a fair one. There should be but one principal port in every District, the duties at others should be performed by deputies, under the superintendance of the principal port, and the Collectors should be paid by a stated per centage.

19. With respect to our trade and revenue, what disadvantages do you consider this Province laboring under, and what means would you point out to this Committee whereby the Colony would more effectually obtain her proper share of the trade of the Canadas; and by what means could the expenses on our imports and exports be lessened; and what course would you recommend for a further and more equitable adjustment of our trade with Lower Canada and the United States?—The only and effectual mode by which Upper Canada can obtain the controul of the revenue is, by having a sea port, and this can only be attained, in my opinion, by the annexation of the Island of Montreal to Upper Canada. I think this Province has an undeniable right to a sea port, and that such provisions for the protection of our trade may be made by our own Legislature as may be thought most beneficial, and that we should in that respect not be liable to interference or controul on the part of the sister Colony, having no greater rights than ourselves. Should the Island of Montreal be annexed to Upper Canada, the Legislature would be clothed with the power of regulation of its own trade, and collect its own revenues without the interference of any other party. The Imperial Parliament excepted. The Province ought not to be subject to any other controul.

20. Were not the interests of the Province seriously injured by the refusal of the Legislative Council at several sessions, to pass a bill appointing Commissioners to meet Commissioners appointed by act of the Lower Canada Parliament, to treat of matters of mutual interest to the two Canadas respecting their trade?—I do not feel at liberty to question the propriety of any measure of any branch of the Legislature. Commissioners appointed by the Government to meet Commissioners appointed in like manner in Lower Canada, to deliberate on specified subjects of mutual importance, would, if conducted with reference to these objects, be attended in all probability with much benefit.

21. What check would you propose against sudden, ill advised, and injurious Legislation in the Imperial Parliament on matters affecting the trade and commerce, and through them the agricultural and general interests of the Province? It would in my opinion be of advantage to the Province if a person of enlightened and dispassionate judgment, with whom the Secretary of State for the Colonies could hold free communication, were appointed as its agent to reside in London.

22. In what way can the popular branch of the Legislature influence the Government so as to secure the appointment of proper persons as Arbitrators to decide on the proportion of revenue, coming to Upper Canada from duties levied at the port of Quebec?—It can only be done by act of Parliament. The act of the Imperial Parliament points out the manner in which arbitrators are to be appointed, and until that act be repealed or altered, the course it points out must be followed.

[The witness withdrew.]

ROBERT S. JAMESON Esq. Attorney General, called in and examined.

23. May not tea be imported from the United States, on payment of 15 per cent duty, under the order in Council of the 16th July 1827, and the provisions of the Imperial Act of August, 1833—and if not, what is the ground of objections, now that the prohibition, on account of the East India Company's Charter, is at an end?—I do not consider that tea can legally be imported from the United States at all. The cessation of the East India Company's exclusive right to the China Trade, has not in any way altered the law as to the introduction of tea into this Province, except as regards the privilege which that company or persons licensed by them enjoyed; while the charter subsisted, of importing tea direct from China. By the Imperial act 3 and 4 Wm. 4 c. 59, Tea is "prohibited to be imported except from the United Kingdom, or from some other British possession in America, unless by the East India Company, or by their licence during the continuance of their exclusive right of trade." The words "during the continuance of their exclusive right of trade," I understand to refer solely to the exception in favor of the East India Company immediately preceeding—and not to the general prohibition with regard to tea not imported from the United Kingdom &c.

24. Should the Legislature of Upper Canada, be of opinion that the interests of the Province require a reduction of the duty imposed by the Imperial Parliament on certain articles of import from the United States; is there any legal objection to the passage of a measure in Upper Canada, to appropriate as a bounty or drawback on such articles being imported, the whole or any part of the duties imposed by any act of the United Kingdom Parliament?—The duties imposed by the Imperial Act being entirely at the disposal of the Provincial Legislature, I do not know of any objection to their appropriating the proceeds, when received, in such manner as to them may seem just and expedient.

ROBERT GILLESPIE Esq. Merchant, Toronto, called and examined.

25. With respect to our trade and revenue, what disadvantages do you consider this Province labouring under, and what means would you point out to this Committee whereby the Colony would more effectually obtain her proper share of the trade of the Canadas—and by what means could the expenses on our imports and exports be lessened; and what course would you recommend for a further and more equitable adjustment of our trade with Lower Canada, and the United States?—I consider that these objects would be best attained by this Province having a port of entry of its own.

26. What is your opinion as it regards the expediency of importing our tea from the United States?—I think it would be expedient because it appears that the country cannot be supplied as cheap from any other quarter—I think the quality of the teas are quite as good as those imported by the East India Company for the last two years.

27. Should the Legislature be of opinion that it was expedient to impose a duty on cattle and produce, imported from the United States, do you see any objections to that duty being immediately imposed?—I am not aware that it would effect any individual in this Province in regard to any contract.

28. What is your opinion as regards the expediency of imposing a duty on articles imported from the United States, for the purposes of a revenue, such being the staple articles of this Province?—I think it is inexpedient as being directly contrary to the principals of free trade. I am under the impression also that the country cannot in many articles raise sufficient for its own supplies—for instance—horned cattle—I think it would be better to adopt measures to get the produce of this country admitted into the United States on a reciprocal duty.

29. Do you think it would be expedient to repeal the duty now imposed on salt imported at Quebec from Europe? I think it would be expedient, because that salt is requisite for packing provisions for exportation.

30. Have you any suggestions to propose to the Committee relating to our trade?—I would suggest the expediency of an alteration in the inspection laws of Lower Canada, particularly in the article of flour.

31. You are aware of the delay and expense attending our imports and exports between Upper Canada and Quebec?—I am, particularly in the fall season of the year. They are very expensive and attended with great delay and sometimes loss.

[The witness withdrew.]

SECOND REPORT ON TRADE.

Wednesday, 11th March, 1835.

JOSEPH CAWTHRA, Esq. Merchant, Toronto, called in and examined.

32. Whether would you prefer to purchase your teas for the Upper Canada market in New York or in Montreal?—I should most certainly give the preference to Montreal.

33. Why do you prefer that place?—Because Montreal is in a British Province, I should however think it an advantage to have the choice of the two markets, in that case the consumer would have the advantage of getting the article at the lowest rate it could be imported at.

34. Do you think that the repeal of the duty on Salt imported from the United States would benefit the Canadian Farmer?—I think it would, because the duty on that article is paid almost exclusively by the farmer, who gives large quantities of it to his cattle, and uses it in curing provisions, &c. I would at the same time remark that salt is sold at a very low rate in summer, say 10s. to 11s 3d. per barrel of 280 lbs. and that the farmers of this District think it is sold to them at as low rates as they can expect.

[The witness withdrew.]

Mr. WILLIAM A. DUCHER, Iron Founder, Toronto, called in and examined.

35. It is proposed by the Committee that Iron in Pigs, Printers Presses, Brass castings for Steam Machinery, Machinery for Grist Mills, Saw Mill Irons, Machinery for Paper Mills, Machinery for Oil Mills, Scythes, and Fanning Mill Irons, should be imported duty free from the United States; what is your opinion of the intended measure?—I think pig iron should come in free, until the Province can supply the iron founders, as yet there is not enough of Canada Pig-iron manufactured to supply more than two foundries. We manufacture all Brass castings at half a dollar per lb. which is but a small advance on the price in the United States, ($2 or so). We have machinery for manufacturing Iron castings for Grist Mills, and Fanning, and Saw Mills, which we sell for cash at 27s 6d currency per 100 lbs. At Black Rock the price is about $5. I think there ought to be a specific protecting duty placed on the Canada made article. In the United States, a manufacturer can always obtain whatever of capital he may require, and the cash from the farmer, which is not the case here. There is a great deal of mill gearing brought from the United States. I think that Threshing Machines should pay a duty of about $30.

[The witness withdrew.]

Mr. AMOS NORRIS, Iron Founder, Toronto, called in and examined.

[The question was put to this witness which had been answered by Mr. Dutcher.]

Answer. As it respects Brass castings, I think that old Copper and Brass may be admitted (but not Brass castings to order,) free of duty. There are but two establishments where Pig Iron is made in Upper Canada, Van Norman of Long Point, and Field and Calhoun of Gosfield, Western District. The Marmora Works have ceased operation for a number of years, after about £60,000, as it is said, had been expended. The Gosfield Iron is the strongest I know of, I think it surpasses both the Scotch and Welsh pig iron, No. 1. We could get pig iron a little the cheapest from the United States. I would recommend that it should be allowed to come in duty free from the United States. As to mill castings, I think a better article can be furnished here than in the United States, at not more than 2s 6d. per 100 lbs. higher than they charge there. Threshing machines and ploughs and some other articles come in very cheap. We make good ploughs here. I would recommend that castings should be charged on importation, a specific duty, the same as on the other side, namely $20 per ton, and the entries to be on oath. We sell ploughs without the wrought irons at $6. By far the greater majority of those persons who have embarked capital in the iron trade in Upper Canada have failed. I am unable to say how many establishments there are in the iron founding business. There are 3 here, 1 at St. Thomas, 1 at St. Cathrines, 1 at Gosfield, 1 at Prescott, 1 at Niagara, 1 at Chippawa, 1 at Grimsby, 1 at Ancaster, 2 at Long Point, 1 at Cramahe, 1 at Hallowell, 1 at Napanee, 1 at Belleville, 1 at Bath, 1 at Adolphustown, 1 at Demorestville, 1 at Kingston, 1 at Perth, and 1 at Bytown.

As an argument in favor of making instead of importing Threshing machines, I would say that very bad ones are made in the States, which break.

[The witness withdrew.]

Mr. CHARLES POWERS, Iron Founder, Colborne, called in and examined.

[Same question as the last.]

Answer. There ought to be a protecting duty to Brass and Iron castings; we cannot otherwise compete with the United States. I think it would be the best way that pig iron should come from the United States duty free. I do not think that in the end protection would have any bad tendency, it would produce a better article than that made for this market in the United States.

[The witness withdrew.]

House of Assembly 26th of February, 1835.

SIR,

The Special Committee on Trade and Commerce of Upper Canada, have requested that I should enclose to you blank forms to be filled up at your office; or if that cannot be done, at the offices of the Collectors of the several ports, shewing the imports and exports from the United States and the seizures that have taken place in the last year, for which returns have been made up. So much of that information as can be obtained from documents in your possession, will it is hoped, be transmitted as early as possible, and the other returns severally sent in as soon as they can be obtained. That for this part might perhaps be had from Mr. Savage in a day or two.

The Committee have also directed me to request answers from yourself to the questions herewith enclosed, and that you would transmit any other documentary or other evidence, which, in your opinion, would aid the labors of the Committee in ascertaining whether any, and if so, what alterations and improvements are practicable in the laws and usages by which our Commerce and productive industry are now regulated.

I am,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

JAMES WILSON,
Chairman.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY,
March 9th, 1835.

Sir,
If the separate returns in the form enclosed to you cannot be obtained until after a few days have elapsed, by reason of the distance of the parties from this place, the report required from the Collector for this Port might, in the meantime, be of service, and if that can be obtained without delay, I am directed by the Committee to request that it may be enclosed to my address, and that if you cannot obtain it immediately, you would inform me—the House having fixed Thursday for the consideration of the report already made to it.

I am, Sir, &c.
JAMES WILSON, CHAIRMAN,
Committee on Trade & Commerce.
To THE HON. GEORGE H. MARKLAND,
Inspector General.

INSPECTOR GENERAL'S OFFICE,
9th March, 1835.

Sir,
I have the honor to enclose a communication from the Collector of the Port of Toronto, also one from the Collector of the Port of Queenston; from the former it will appear that there is little prospect of any satisfactory returns being made, as the Collectors are not in the habit of making entries of articles which may be imported duty free.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,

Your most obedient servant,
GEORGE H. MARKLAND,
Inspector General.

CUSTOM HOUSE OFFICE,
Toronto, 5th March, 1835.

Sir,

I beg leave to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 3rd instant and am sorry it is not in my power to furnish the return required by a Committee of the House of Assembly.

A return of Articles not subject to duty, never having heretofore been required, no account of them has been kept for that purpose.

If it is intended that such returns as that now called for shall be furnished annually in future, it will be necessary

ROBERT GRANT,
Collector.

Collector's Office,

PORT OF KINGSTON,
Custom House Office, 9th March, 1835.

Sir,

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 2nd instant, inclosing me the form of a return which I have filled up as correctly as possible, and now return it. I would beg to remark that I have never required the value of articles imported into this port and not liable to duty.

I am unable therefore to fill up that part of the return, but have stated the quantities so far as they have been reported at the office. The exact value of some other articles, I am also unable to state as the importers in many cases have entered them with other goods liable to the same duty. I have, as directed, added the quantity and value of several other articles not mentioned in the return and have omitted some, of which nothing was imported during the last year. I am unable to state the value of exports, as no entries outwards are ever made at this port.

I am also desired to add my suggestions for the improvement of the system under which the custom duties are collected, on the trade carried on between Canada and the United States. To enter upon this subject as fully as it deserves, would far exceed the limits of a letter, and it would be necessary to know upon what points particularly the Committee of the House of Assembly required information. I will therefore confine myself to a few points which I think require attention.

The present method of declaring the value of imports subject to an ad valorem duty, is, in my opinion, liable to many objections, and numerous frauds are no doubt practised on the Collectors and their deputies, by the production of false invoices, and in most cases, the value at the place from whence the articles were imported is undervalued, and it is totally impossible to discern the truth. The method formerly practised under the Provincial Act, 2nd Geo. 4th, chap. 1st, is I think far preferable. The next point which I think deserves attention, is the establishment of a ware-housing system at the principal ports, and the re-enactment of that clause of the Provincial Customs Act, allowing importers to the amount of £20 and upwards, a short credit, on furnishing security. Ware-houses or Custom-houses are, I think, absolutely necessary at some ports, for the reception of goods forwarded to persons who perhaps are temporarily absent, or who have not received the invoice, or from some cause or other are unable to make full entry at the time of importation. This happens in many cases, and it is not to be expected that the importing vessel is to be detained until the duties are paid as is at present required by law. There are also other points which I mentioned in a former communication to you and to which I beg here to refer, which I think require the immediate attention of the Legislature, the adoption of which would, I think, greatly facilitate and increase the trade between Canada and the United States.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,

Your most obedient humble servant,
THOMAS KIRKPATRICK,
Collector.

Inspector General.

ALLAN McLEAN, Collector,
Per THOMAS EVANS, Dep'y Collector.

PORT OF PRESCOTT, U. C.
March 9th, 1835.

Sir,

As required by your circular of the 2nd inst, I have with as little delay as possible made out my return of Imports from the United States; commencing 1st January and ending 31st December, 1834, which I now hand you.

I cannot furnish you with a list of Exports, no clearances being required by the masters of American vessels, my instructions from you being such as to leave it optional with the masters of vessels to take them or not, as they see fit, the natural consequence is, that none are required. The truth is, whatever articles are exported from this port to the United States, leave here in the night and are smuggled into that country.

You request me to add my suggestions for the improvement of the system under which the Custom Duties were collected, &c, &c. &c.

It is a subject that requires a good deal of consideration, and to be well digested before giving an opinion. I will however, suggest the propriety of some definite law or instructions to the different Collectors in regard to their fees of office; their instructions and the law on that head, are conflicting; consequently there is a want of uniformity in the charges for fees at the different ports on vessels and imports from the United States, which makes it very unpleasant; the public very justly complaining.

Persons have frequently applied to me to ascertain what duty I would charge on particular articles, which they wished to import; after informing them how the law prescribed the method of ascertaining the duties to be paid on ad valorem goods, they have replied, they could do better at other ports, which generally was the last I saw of them. It has the appearance of a competition in business, on the part of the Collectors, like that of persons engaged in the mercantile business, which if possible should be avoided, as it gives one Importer an advantage over another.

I do not attach blame to any particular office; Jonathan's tact at driving a good bargain is well known.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your obedient humble servant,
A. JONES,
Collector.

To the HON. G. H. MARKLAND,
Inspector General.

CUSTOM HOUSE OFFICE,
Cornwall, March 9th, 1835.

HON. G. H. MARKLAND,
Inspector General,

SIR,

Herewith I forward the return filled up as required in yours of the 2nd instant, which return is only made by me since the date of my commission, 13th August, 1834. I have also to state that many imports have been made of articles duty free at this port without any report being made, the persons importing, contending there was no necessity of reporting, as the article was duty free, backed by the opinion of some of the Commissioners of Customs for this Port. When my brother was in Toronto in February last, I wrote him to call on you for a Writ of Assistance;—having done so, he informs me you were pleased to say it would be ready in a few days. I beg you will forward it by the earliest convenience.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,

Wm. J. CRYSLER, Collector,

CORNWALL, 9th March, 1835.

NIAGARA, March 10th, 1835.

SIR,

In compliance with your letter of the 2nd instant, I send enclosed a return of Imports at this Port for the year 1834.

There are various articles, the value of which have not been extended. I beg to mention, that I have no means of compelling persons to furnish the value of articles not subject to duty, or to report the quantity or description of Exports. It would be very desirable, for the purpose of having a correct knowledge of the trade of our country, that Masters of vessels should be compelled to give a correct account of their cargo and destination before leaving Port; as also of imports, whether subject to duty or not.

I am under the impression that there is a loss of revenue in consequence of the want of a uniform system of valuation of Imports from the United States, which might in some measure be remedied by carrying the provisions of the Imperial Statute into effect, in providing for the appointment of appraisers at the different Ports.

It may be a matter for consideration, whether many of the articles now prohibited might not be advantageously admitted on the payment of duty, as their admission through the United States could not materially affect the shipping interest; indeed it may admit of a doubt, whether removing the prohibition would be the means of increasing the quantity introduced in the Province.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient humble servant,
T. McCORMICK, Collector Customs.

Inspector General, Toronto.

T. McCORMICK,
Collector of Customs.

In the annexed Report is shown the value of such articles as are therein mentioned. The precise value of the salt imported it would be somewhat difficult to state, no value being declared on it when entered. The duty being 6d. per bushel, I have however estimated it at £550 currency. With regard to the exports from this Port, I am unable to furnish any accounts of them—the Masters of American vessels, when leaving this Port for the United States, do not apply for clearances; and there is no report made to the Collector of their outward bound cargo. I have added to the items required by the Inspector General, 45 barrels plaster of Paris, 19½ tons mineral coal, and also 1708 barrels of salt, being the only articles imported of any consequence not previously included in the Report.

SIR,

In compliance with the requisition of the House of Assembly, conveyed to me through you, I have the honour to transmit an account of imports at the port of Port Hope, from the 1st of January to the 31st December, 1834.

I have added Salt and Plaster, articles which come from the United States in large quantities.

I beg to suggest the necessity of a Custom House being provided at this Port, as extreme inconvenience arises from the want of a place to deposit goods when found necessary to detain them.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

W. KINGSMILL,

JOHN BURWELL, Collector.

COLLECTOR'S OFFICE,
PORT OF PORT BURWELL, 25TH MARCH, 1835.

COLLECTOR'S OFFICE, PORT OF PORT BURWELL,
25TH MARCH, 1835.

The Collector of the Port of Port Burwell has no remarks to make on the manner of collecting duties on imports; but in being enabled to ascertain any thing of the export trade, which from this port is very considerable in the valuable article of lumber, no estimate can be accurately made, unless the masters of vessels are required, in taking an export cargo, to call at the Custom House, make entry outwards, and take a clearance, the same as is required by the Canada Trade Act on the sea coast, which is said not to apply to the lakes.

SECOND REPORT ON TRADE.

The value of property exported from Port Burwell in the year 1834, in lumber, spars, masts, shingles, and shingle bolts, cannot fall short of £5000; on which is paid a duty in the States of not less than £1500, contrary to the received opinion of the treaty of commercial reciprocity—American produce and lumber being admitted free of duty in Canada. This sum extracted from His Majesty's subjects in this part of the country, which lessened the profits of their labour to that extent; and greater, in fact, from the circumstances, that these duties being to be paid down, great sacrifices is the consequence of being obliged to raise the duties on landing the articles at an American port; while the American trader can come to this country with lumber, beef, pork, hams, flour, corn, rice, biscuit, bread, and live stock, free of all duties, which operates much against the inhabitants dealing in the export of lumber; and the farmer, who can be met at home with foreign flour, pork, beef, &c. without any duty whatever, in support of his own government.

All which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN BURWELL, Collector.

To
The COMMITTEE OF TRADE
Of the Hon. the House of Assembly.

Custom House Office,
TORONTO, 21st March, 1835.

SIR,

In reply to the enclosed Letter from the Chairman of the Committee on Trade, I beg leave to state, that from the great variety of articles imported hither from the United States, it is impossible at once to furnish a statement in the form required, unless the articles were classed under some head at the time the entry is made, and such must necessarily form a separate account from that now kept for the Collector of the duties. With reference to the enquiry, whether I have preserved a statement of the value and qualities of the imports of dutiable articles, I beg leave to inform the Committee, that I have a copy of every invoice of dutiable articles entered during the past year, as also a copy of the returns sent to your office.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,

Your most obed't humble serv't.

I am of opinion that if, instead of the duty of one shilling sterling, a duty of 15 per cent advalorem was imposed upon whiskey that the revenue would be increased, as merchants could then import and sell it at a reasonable profit, after paying the duties; whereas at present the duty amounts to nearly the value of that article.

SUGGESTIONS for the improvement of the system under which Custom Duties are collected.

As every means is generally used by Importers to evade paying the full amount of duties required by the spirit of the law, they evidently contrive to have almost everything greatly undervalued, and it often becomes very difficult, sometimes hazardous, delicate, and, under some circumstances, impossible to detect fraud. I believe it is the general practice to obtain false bills. I would therefore suggest that a severe punishment be the consequence of any one's presenting a false bill; also, that duties be exacted on the pound, measure, or price of articles, (and not according to invoice price, &c.) as far as can be, which will obviate the chance of deception in that way, and would be the means of better articles being imported. I would also recommend, that Masters of vessels should be obliged to make out a report of all articles on board, particularizing where and when shipped, and specifying what and where any thing has been landed both from our own ports as well as from foreign ports, to be presented to the Collector at each port, where she may land any thing, under oath that it is correct, and nothing more or otherwise on board than therein stated. This would prevent a great deal of smuggling; for any vessel may now say she is from one of our own ports; she may have the chief of her cargo from hence; she may touch at an American port or have a boat sent on board with foreign goods; as the law now stands, we cannot oblige him to report; the only way to detect the fraud is for the Collector to go on board and search, and examine articles, and take a great responsibility to himself to judge between home or foreign goods, which renders the course very impracticable and almost impossible to be enforced along the shores of the lakes. It is certain, that for the want of something of this kind, smuggling is greatly promoted. The fact is, that as the British Act of Parliament now stands, it is the next thing to impossible to be strictly complied with, and Collectors have greatly to be governed by instructions from the Inspector General.

THIRD REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON TRADE.

To the Honourable the House of Assembly.

The Select Committee on Trade beg leave to report some information received from the Honourable James Buchanan, British Consul at New York, relative to the trade at the port of New York with the British West Indies and the British North American Colonies.

COMMITTEE ROOM,
HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.
4TH APRIL, 1835.

JAMES WILSON,
Chairman.

TORONTO, U. C. HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY,
MARCH 10TH, 1835.

SIR,

I beg you would endeavour at your earliest convenience to inform the Committee on Trade what are the quantities and value of United States' produce which have been shipped from the port of New York during the last year for the British North American Colonies and West Indies respectively, distinguishing the part shipped in American ships from that shipped in British vessels, and stating the duties payable on such produce in the said Colonies under Imperial Acts; as also, that you would give the committee any other information or suggestions which may be in your power relative to the intercourse between the United States and Canada, and concerning the mode to be taken to remove the restrictions which exist to the importation of Canada wheat, lumber, flour, &c. into the United States.

I am, Sir,
Your Obedient Humble Servant,
(Signed) JAMES WILSON,
Chairman.

HIS MAJESTY'S CONSULATE,
NEW YORK, 23RD MARCH, 1835.

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge your letter of the 10th instant, requiring certain returns in relation to the trade of this port with His Majesty's possessions therein mentioned, as also further observations bearing on trade.

THIRD REPORT ON TRADE.

I regret your letter was so long on the way, lest you should attribute the delay to inattention to the wishes of the Committee on Trade. I have put clerks to work, and hope in a few days to forward an answer, as far as practicable, in accordance with your letter.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your Obedient Servant,

JAMES BUCHANAN.

To

JAMES WILSON,
Chairman Committee of Trade,
&c. &c. &c.

HIS MAJESTY'S CONSULATE,
NEW YORK, 31st MARCH, 1835.

SIR,

I have the honour, in reply to your communication as Chairman of the Committee of Trade of the Parliament of Upper Canada now assembled, to inclose herewith a return of the quantities and value of United States' produce which have been shipped from this port during the last year; as also for the years 1826 and 1832 for the British North American Colonies and West Indies, respectively distinguished; but what proportion thereof was carried in British vessels, or those of the United States, I have no means of ascertaining that important information, for want of authority to require it. The duties payable thereon, upon being imported into New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward's Island, is, on flour, five shillings, and on salted provisions, twelve shillings the cwt., which duties are a premium in favour of Canada, as exporting from thence these articles are free. The small amount of provisions exported was quite unexpected by me.

As to my views concerning the means to be adopted to remove restrictions which exist as to the exportation of Canada wheat, lumber, flour, &c. into the United States, the answer is obvious, namely, to allow the wheat, flour, &c. of the United States to pass into our colonies, and there is little doubt a measure so much to the advantage of the United States would lead Congress to remove the obstructions; but I speak without authority, and offer no opinion thereon.

In your letter, you have done me the honour to require any other information as to intercourse with the United States, bearing on the interests of Canada. The committee will pardon my observing, that above twenty of my family are settled in the Canadas, and several of my children in the Upper Province, since I have adopted it as my country, and we are all identified with the agricultural interests; at the same time I deem the propriety of the agricultural, commercial, and mechanical, so united, that whatever efforts are pursued to benefit the one, or to injure the one, must bear upon all; therefore I lament the disposition (no doubt well meant) of those who aim at leading the agriculturist to think restrictions essential to their prosperity, as a long and intimate acquaintance with the bearing of commercial regulations has convinced me, all measures of restraint recoil on those who adopt them; and of all countries, Canada is adapted to benefit by unfettered trade, abounding with capabilities beyond that of any part of the great American continent. If the enterprise of these adjoining States should tend to rouse Canada to exertion, we shall have occasion to rejoice at the prosperity of our neighbours. Pardon my asking what effects would result to Canada did the same spirit of enterprise prevail as is manifested by the States of Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York, in expending millions of dollars to draw the trade of the great Western Lakes, or inland seas, to their shores, from the natural outlet which Canada possesses? I hesitate not upon the present occasion to submit the view I took in relation to this subject, in answer to queries submitted to me two years ago, among which was the following:

“What measures would you recommend to extend British commerce?”

After offering various measures for consideration, I observed, in relation to the St. Lawrence, “There are other considerations peculiarly connected with the St. Lawrence, which, with its tributary rivers and lakes, washes above four thousand miles of boatable shores, all of which may be rendered subservient to promote British commerce, while no other part of the earth furnishes so many real advantages as may be derived from the cultivation of those arising from that mighty river."

THIRD REPORT ON TRADE.

Sir, while I contemplate the blessings and important advantages arising to Canada in forming a part of the British Empire, I would strongly urge the adoption of all the means calculated to call forth the vast capabilities of the Province, so as by one great river to send forth food to supply the wants of the Parent State and the British Colonies, and this will be but promoted by an encrease of working agriculturists, and the creation of capital to effect the drawing forth the unlimited but stagnant resources of wealth and prosperity with which your country abounds. Look at your enterprising neighbours; what, I may ask, has pushed on Buffalo and many other places I might name?—has it not been the erection of a circulating medium? I have, in a report in relation to the banking institutions of the State of New York, collected data to shew that previous to 1828, the State Legislature had authorised, by various acts of incorporation, the issue of above one hundred millions of dollars; yet the state, if called on, could not have paid two millions without resorting to neighbouring States. I confess, previous to such investigation I had viewed all capital based on any other source than such as was convertible into cash, ruinous; but my ignorance was corrected by viewing the prosperity of the State, founded upon such acts of legislation. I beg leave to forward a copy of such my report, and to which I beg leave to refer: in fact, the energy of a community is, as it were, dead, until animated by the vivifying influence of a circulating medium. While speaking of money, I beg leave to bear my testimony against the baneful influence of limiting the rate of interest any man is disposed to pay for money. In this state, seven per cent is allowed; in Canada, only six; yet here it is abundant, and in Canada scarce. To limit the sale of money, while the disposal of all other property is free, and that such constraint should be continued, is one of the most extraordinary proofs of the influence of ancient opinions, which continue to chain down the march of enlightened principles which so universally prevails in this our day. I therefore, sir, venture to submit, that the prosperity of Canada will be accelerated by increasing monied incorporations, based upon property, promoting the freedom of trade by the great outlets, and cherishing every effort to open communications by rail-ways, which are found preferable to canals; at the same time aiding the improving of the various natural communications which the numerous chains of lakes and rivers point out, in connecting Lake Huron, Lake Simcoe, and Ontario. So strongly am I impressed with the importance of drawing the trade of the west by the St. Lawrence, that were the two provinces united, the Welland Canal should be purchased and thrown open, save such charges as alone would sustain repairs and superintendance; and while my son is a farmer in Adelaide, I feel I promote his prosperity by that of Quebec, Montreal and all the forwarding craft on the lakes and rivers. I see the germ of a mighty empire, more within the grasp of a few years and with less expenditure, than any portion of the earth can furnish, compared with Canada; keeping in view, in addition to its soil, climate, and capabilities, the adaptation of the climate to the people of the United Kingdom. I have the most confident anticipation of the unexampled prosperity of our country, seconded as all your measures for the general benefit of the Province has been by His Majesty's government, and devoted as the present and now justly appreciated Governor is, with untiring solicitude, to forward all measures deemed beneficial, the fault must rest with the people if they do not profit by His Excellency's zeal for the prosperity of the Province.

I fear I have gone much further than was looked for, and certainly beyond what I proposed, but my interests are so identified with Canada, that I conclude with observing, poor laws, state prisons and universal suffrage, stand so in array against all the many advantages the state of New York possesses, (being wens which the citizens in their legislative and individual capacity know not how to cut off) that I earnestly entreat these evils may not be entailed on the land of my adoption.

In conclusion, Sir, permit me to observe that I shall feel honoured to adduce data in support of every sentiment I have advanced, to all who may favour me with their views in opposition to the various suggestions I have had the honour to submit, but to all anonymous writers I shall pay no attention. My views are open: I may be mistaken; and those who think differently should not be ashamed or afraid to avow their opinion, and set forth the ground on which it rests. I am truly anxious the community would reflect and think, and not be

I pray you, sir, to assure the Committee, that they may at all times command my sincere services in all matters bearing on the prosperity of Canada.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your Obedient Humble Servant,

JAMES BUCHANAN.

The following Letter was addressed, by the Chairman of the Committee, to Churchill C. Cambreling, Esqr. a Member of Congress for New York, who takes an active part in the public business in matters relating to trade and commerce:—

TORONTO, U. C. HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY,
MARCH 10TH, 1835.

SIR,

I am directed by this Committee to enquire, whether it is probable that any measure will be introduced into Congress this season for conferring reciprocal advantages on both sides of the St. Lawrence? We have hitherto allowed the importation of United States produce duty free; but the opportunity of taking the advantage of a favourable market for our overplus lumber, &c. is denied us, owing to the heavy protecting duties imposed by congress. The precise amount and nature of the duties you impose on grain, flour, lumber, &c. we are not aware of, nor whether the importation of grain and flour would receive a draw back on its being conveyed to the sea-board for exportation. To allow the Canadians to sell their lumber, if cheap and good, in the United States, would be enabling them to buy other articles of which you have in the union enough and to spare. Is there a hope that a relaxation of the present system may take place ere long, or is the peculiar local situation in which we stand to the United states to continue as hitherto, an obstacle to the introduction of a principle that would make our roads and rivers free channels of commerce?

Any information you can convey, relative to the improvement of the commercial relations in which this country and the United States are mutually connected, will be thankfully received by this Committee.

I am, Sir,

Your Obedient Servant,
JAMES WILSON,
Chairman Committee of Trade,
&c. &c. &c.

THIRD REPORT ON TRADE.

NEW YORK, 8th APRIL, 1835.

SIR,

An answer to your esteemed letter of the 10th ult. has been delayed by my absence in Carolina.

No measure of the character referred to was adopted at our late Session. Those who favour liberal views have been trying for some years past to remove the restrictions on our intercourse with Canada. We have, however, only succeeded so far as it respects the reciprocal duties on navigation. Under an Act passed in 1833, our duties on merchandize are under a gradual (triennial) process of reduction; and in 1842 we shall retain no heavy or prohibitory rates. We have endeavoured to obtain for the benefit of the interior commerce of both countries, the right of drawback on one whole frontier for merchandize in transitu for the consumption of Canada, and on the produce of the latter, when exported from our ports, on the Atlantic; but although this policy is manifestly for the interest of this Country and of Upper Canada, it has been, hitherto, opposed, from an idle apprehension that it would facilitate frauds on the revenue. When our duties are reduced this argument will have less weight, and I am not without hope that our drawback system will be extended to all cases of transportation of foreign produce by land to be exported for foreign consumption. There never should have been any distinction between these cases and those of transportation coastwise. We have also made many attempts to remove our vexatious frontier restrictions on travellers, and on the daily intercourse across our rivers affecting small quantities of produce for our Mills or Market, &c.; but it has been found so difficult to frame a law, our officers have been compelled from necessity to give a liberal construction to existing laws, which were originally designed for the Atlantic border, and are wholly inapplicable to the small traffic on rivers. It is to be hoped that the manifest interest of both countries, and the evident necessity of the case, will induce both governments to adopt, at no distant day, more liberal measures for facilitating our mutual intercourse.

I am,

With great respect,
Your Obedient Servant,

C. C. CAMBRELLING.

To

JAMES WILSON, Esq.
Chairman of the Committee of Trade,
HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY UPPER CANADA.

THURSDAY, 12TH MARCH, 1835.

MR. JOHN EASTWOOD, of the firm of EASTWOOD and SKINNER, PAPER MAKERS,—EXAMINED.

Does your establishment receive that assistance by way of discounts from the Bank of Upper Canada, which would facilitate your operations as a Manufacturer.—Do they invariably discount good paper? The Banks do not invariably discount good paper. It has frequently happened, at a certain season of the year, in summer, that the Banks stopped discounting good paper; and when this happens, Manufacturers, whose business paper is refused, are unable to pay their hands; this throws their affairs into confusion. The following is a case of frequent occurrence in both the Banks: Paper, for which we have given value in the regular course of manufacturing, and which is well and fully secured, has been refused to be discounted, on the ground that the Banks were not discounting at the time, notwithstanding this, the Banks would at these times discount to friends and favourites as I have understood. I would not augment the monopolies of the present Banks, but would leave Banking open, like all other trades, to find its own level. the paper-makers in the United States, in general, do not labour under the same difficulties as we labour under. There, a paper-maker can easily find Banks who will be glad to discount all business paper known to be good. I think we never owed all the Banks at any one time for paper drawn by us, £200.

What extent of business have you done in any one year?—We manufactured paper last year to the value of 9000 dollars and upwards.

THIRD REPORT ON TRADE.

COMMITTEE ON TRADE.

PRESENT,—MESSRS. JAMES WILSON, (Chairman) DURAND, McMICKING, MACKENZIE and SHAVER.

SATURDAY, 14TH MARCH, 1835.

James E. Small, Esquire, Member of the House of Assembly, called in and examined.

You brought in this bill for extending the stock of the bank of Upper Canada from £200,000 to £500,000?—I did.

By whom was you requested to introduce this bill?—By the Cashier, Thomas G. Ridout, Esq. who more than twice spoke to me to do so. I perfectly understood him to say that it was the desire of the President and Directors that I should bring in the bill.

There was a petition?—Yes, last session; and Mr Ridout said I could refer to it and see what was done on it last session. On this by the leave of the House, I brought in the bill.

J. COLBORNE.

The Lieutenant Governor transmits to the House of Assembly the accompanying copy of a despatch from His Majesty's Secretary of the State for the Colonies, with reference to an address to the King from the House of Assembly, praying that the duty now imposed on wheat, grain, and flour, the growth and produce of the Province, may be remitted.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE,
26th January, 1835.

(COPY No. 22)

DOWNING STREET,
6TH AUGUST, 1835.

SIR,

I have had the honour to receive your despatch, No. 20, of the 4th of April last, accompanied by an address to the King from the House of Assembly of Upper Canada, praying, that His Majesty would be pleased to recommend to Parliament, that the duty now imposed on wheat, grain and flour, the growth and produce of the Province be remitted. In reply I have to inform you, that his Majesty's government does not think it adviseable to make any change upon the duties of Canadian corn apart from the consideration of a general change of the duties of corn.

I have Honour to be, &c.

T. SPRING RICE.

To His Excellency SIR JOHN COLBORNE, Knight Commander of the Most Honorable Military Order of the Bath, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General, commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

THE Trustees appointed by an Act of the Legislature passed in 1833 to make and improve the three principal approaches to the then Town of York, now the City of Toronto, considering it desirable that the whole of their proceedings, embracing 1833, as well as 1834, should, at one view, be brought before the notice of the Legislature, for the purpose of exhibiting the necessity for, and nature of, the undertaking, the authority given the Trustees, their proceedings under it, together with details of their principal difficulties, and also of their ultimate success :

RESPECTFULLY REPORT,—

THAT at the period when the Act was passed, Yonge Street was in an almost impassable state, while many thousands were principally dependent upon it as their road to Market, and that it could not have remained much longer in use without Legislative interference into which state the Eastern and Western Roads are at present hastening.

The Trustees, for many reasons, determined that Yonge Street should be the first one commenced, a principal one being that stone was abundant. The Act granted £10,000 to the Trustees to enable them to Macadamize, or otherwise improve the three principal approaches to the Town, and which authorised them to establish Toll Gates thereon respectively, as fast as one mile should be perfected on each. They very soon encountered a difficulty not anticipated, which was that of obtaining the means; for although the Receiver General was authorised to issue Debentures, which he did as fast as the Trustees required them, they were, according to the terms of the Act, secured only by the tolls to be raised at such gate or gates as the Trustees might erect on such roads after the completion of the mile; and as not only strangers, but inhabitants also, were in doubt as to the adequacy of the security, the Debentures could not be sold until the Trustees entered into Bonds, which they did to secure the holders against every contingency, being well assured that the risk could not be a serious one in any event, while the certain benefit to the country was undoubtedly great.

The anticipations of the Trustees have been more than realized, for although they have expended nearly £6,000 completing two and one half miles only, including about £600 for the expense of lowering and otherwise improving two very bad hills, and further sums on several small ones, together with drains and culverts, &c., including also the toll house, gates, &c., their receipts, which at this time amount to between £700 and £800 per annum, is sufficient to enable them to pay the interest of £10,000—the expense of keeping the gate, and also enough for the probable amount of repairs. The tolls have also proved far beyond the anticipations of the Legislature, which, when the Act was passed, prudently set apart one-fourth of the grant of £10,000 to guard against contingencies, and secure the interest to the public creditor, until the tolls should prove adequate to the charge, not one shilling of which appropriation has been found necessary for that purpose.

The Trustees have annexed to their report for the information of the Legislature a statement of their receipts and expenditures from the commencement in 1833 to the end of 1834, by which it will appear that their liabilities for services of different kinds, outstanding, amount to £316 7s 2d.

They also drew upon the North Toll Gate fund to the amount of £317 7s 10d., which sum will be paid out of the next Debenture sold; amount in all to £634 5s., their total expenditure having amounted to £5,866 13s 10d., the above sums inclusive.

The Act only allotted £3,500 for that road; but when the Trustees knew that the £2,500, set apart for the payment of interest, would not be required for that purpose, they did not hesitate to employ such part of it as was necessary to enable them to effect so important a service to the surrounding country as they have done, having passed beyond the greatest obstacles in the way near town, and which has been completed in a manner most satisfactory to themselves, and they believe to the public also. They considered that they would undoubtedly be justified in expending for the public good all that could be saved out of the public grant.

Exhibit No. 2, is a statement of the amount of what they have been compelled to pay to a contractor, who had engaged to perform one mile for £1,500, (and that for laying about two-fifths of the mile only,) £1,780 6s. 4d. which exceeds £4,000, the mile. The Trustees regret exceedingly that they should have been compelled so to do; but, having had an award, a Report of the House of Assembly, and a verdict on the award rendered against them, they were under the necessity of complying, although they are still most perfectly convinced of the injustice that has been done to the public by the award and report also.

The details of the transaction follows:—

In the spring of 1833 the Trustees met; and from the labors of John McAulay, Esq., of Kingston, (whose long report on road making had been published,) together with the aid of Macadam's work on the same subject, they soon became tolerably acquainted with the nature of the work. The first person who, after public notice, made application to them for employment was Mr. James Cull, who professed to be a Civil Engineer, and to understand Macadamizing both scientifically and practically; and, moreover, brought a letter of recommendation from John Wilson, Esquire, then a Member of the House of Assembly, which stated Mr. Cull to be in advance of any pretensions he made of himself. Mr. Cull laid before the Trustees a minute detail of the expense of Macadamizing one mile of Yonge Street next the Town, estimating it at less than £1,250, or 13s. 3d. the yard, running measure. He shortly after proposed to the Trustees to undertake it by contract, for £1,500, or about 16s. 6d. the yard. The Trustees cautioned him as to the undertaking, and after his professions of knowledge, reluctantly contracted with him; none of the Trustees having much faith either in his knowledge or success.

They entered into the contract with him however, considering themselves bound to accept the lowest tender.

Early in September, when by his contract 1,200 yards should have been done, he had only laid 737; and even that small proportion was never finished by him; had it been, that quantity would have entitled him to a little more than £600, and including two culverts, and materials, &c. delivered over to the Trustees, to £770, at a period when he had received from the Trustees £1,200. He then required to be paid what he asserted he had expended upon the work, being no less than £1,532 9s. 7d., in which were included several items of charge too exceptionable for serious consideration; among them the following:

£170 for tools, which the Trustees credited as they were valued by judges at £17 16s. 6d. before the Committee when he said they were overrated;—£40 for stone, supplied for two culverts, built by him when 10½ toise only were used, the value of which was 50s. the toise;—overcharge £13 15s.;—£25 for hauling 21 toise of Kingston stone from the wharf, being 24s. the toise, when 5s. and 7s. 6d. were the extreme charges;—overcharge £17;—Whiskey for men, £20; and others equally exceptionable. The Trustees could not therefore comply with his demand.

On the 20th September, Bonds were executed, in order that Arbitrators might investigate the matter fairly.

The agreement, although recited in the bonds, the Arbitrators seem to have lost sight of, for on the 20th October they made an award, allowing him £1675, or, nearly £150 more than he had asked of the Trustees, when he gave up the work, being at the rate of £4'000 the mile, or 44s. 2d. the yard, instead of £1,500 or 16s. 6d. the yard. His charge before the Arbitrators amounted to £1738, but the Trustees have not been able to obtain a copy of that account to the present day, although often asked for, they cannot therefore comment upon its contents.

The matter was afterwards brought before a committee of the House of Assembly, of which committee Mr. John Wilson was Chairman. The Trustees being conscious of the great injustice of the award, as also of the report of the Committee (and which report was not allowed to be placed upon the Journals, by the House,) suffered an action to be brought against them, by the contractor, being aware that upon a verdict being given for the sum awarded, the Arbitrators would not obtain the £25, which they were liberal enough to allow themselves for so trifling a service—and which, together with the interest on the sum awarded, would amount to about the same as the costs of the prosecution; they therefore decided that they would not comply with the award unless compelled.

Exhibit No. 2. will also shew, that it gives the contractor several hundred pounds beyond his fair deserts, and above £1,000, more than double beyond his contract.

The Trustees conceive that they only do justice to themselves, when they beg, which they most earnestly do, that a fair enquiry into the whole matter may still be made, particularly, as some gross and unjust remarks have appeared in one or two of the public prints, which upon enquiry will prove to have been without foundation. Considering it important that the public should know the actual necessary expense, the Trustees can most easily and satisfactorily shew, before any impartial tribunal, the great injustice done to the public by the decision of the Arbitrators—obvious from the testimony of Benjamin Thorne, Esquire, of Yonge-street, recorded in the report of the House of Assembly, which proves that 737 yards only, were claimed, as finished by Mr. Cull, whose Arbitrator he was, notwithstanding which himself, and Mr. Chisholm, the umpire, thought the whole demand made before them, of £1,738, should have been given him, being £238, beyond his contract for the whole; but they consented, for the sake of unanimity, to give him £1,675, only—beyond which the Committee recommended allowing him 22s. 6d. a day or £92 in all, for his services, although he was a contractor, and not an overseer.

(Exhibit No. 8, will shew the impossibility of their conclusions being just.)

Delicacy alone, prevented the trustees from laying the whole matter before the public until after the trial of the cause; and they still feel unwilling to do so, as long as there is any probability of its being investigated by dispassionate individuals, but, if that fails, they must do themselves justice.

They will now turn to a more pleasant part of their duty, the representation of facts, more satisfactory to themselves, because, in their consequences they will prove more beneficial to the public.

Watson and Bell, two plain unassuming men, were employed, on Mr. Cull's surrender, to proceed with the work, and between 7th. September, 1833, and the 1st. May, 1834, (the worst season of the year both on account of the shortness of the days, and state of the weather,) they completed the mile, being 1,023 yards, at an outlay, as per exhibit No. 3 of £1,400 only, excluding the Toll House Gate &c. or £1,547 including them, being at the rate of 27s. 6d. the yard, instead of 44s. Mr. Cull's average—and exhibit No. 5, will shew most plainly, that the charge of 27s. 6d. the yard, is far more than is necessary when the whole season is occupied in the progress of the work, instead of merely the spring and fall months.

Exhibit No. 4, shews that 2640 yards 16 feet wide, instead of 20, with the same depth of metal, have been perfected with advantage to all concerned, for 15s. instead of 44s, Mr. Cull's average, and, that, notwithstanding the known prevalence of Cholera during the last season.

The following recapitulation will shew at one view, the total expenditure, what it was made for, and to whom made—the average expense of doing each separate part per mile and yard; which the Trustees hope will be found perfectly plain, intelligible, and satisfactory to all.

The total expenditure upon macadamizing 5,550 yards, but called only 4,400 yards, above 2½ miles, paid the following persons :

The Trustees have also the satisfaction of reporting a statement of their daily receipts from the first until now, as per exhibit No 5, and the yearly statement in exhibit No 6, which will enable an attentive observer to judge as to the certainty of the security, and of its being sufficient to justify the Parliament in authorising the Receiver General to borrow on the security of the Province, particularly when it is taken into consideration that the Trustees have the power to increase the Tolls, should it ever become necessary so to do; at present the Receipts are most ample notwithstanding the very low rate at which they are established.

(See same Exhibit.)

The present Tolls, after paying the keeper of the Gate, will discharge the interest of £10,000, and also the expense of the annual repairs, which for the past year, amounted to less than £20, the repairs will however, in all probability, be provided for by the statute labour collectable from those living on the road, in case the Parliament should authorise its collection in money, and its payment to be made to the Trustees.

Should the Parliament see fit to authorise the Receiver General to borrow from time to time such sums as the Trustees may require of him, to be limited in amount as they may deem necessary and prudent, either on the general credit of the Province, or under the security of an Act which might be passed, to authorise the Justices in Quarter Sessions assembled, to add an increased rate on the Inhabitants of the District, to make up any sum that the Tolls might fall short in paying—for although there is not the slightest reason for supposing that it will be required, except for the purpose of satisfying strangers as to their security, the present Tolls being more than adequate to their present charge, and there is no doubt but that the other roads will pay as well in proportion to what is laid out upon them as the North road—yet strangers require an unlimited security for their advances—a second sum of £10,000, will be sufficient to complete the road to Hogg's Mills, on Yonge-street, Small's Mills on Dundas-street East, and a good distance Westward, during the ensuing season; and when all the benefits which proceed from the work is taken into consideration, it will be recollected how vast the benefit has already proved, and will continue to be, to those Emigrants who are not possessed of farms of their own, and who find it difficult for the first few months to support their families. The Trustees confidently hope and believe that the Parliament will see the propriety of authorising further loans. The Trustees have little doubt but that a toll of 2s. 6d. upon each team would suffice to pay the interest of money that would be sufficient to macadamize Yonge street, as fast as necessary, from time to time, from Toronto to Lake Simcoe, and that would enable the farmer and teamster to bring double the weight they do at present with far less wear and tear both to their cattle and carriages, materially advancing the value of all the adjacent country, and also bringing more distant lands nearer market, as the facilities of approach increase.

All which is respectfully submitted,

D. BOULTON, CHAIRMAN,
 JESSE KETCHUM,
 G. T. DENISON,
 CHARLES THOMPSON,

EXHIBIT No. 8.

STATEMENT which will shew the total expense of Macadamizing one mile, according to Mr. Cull's claim, as upheld by the Committee also, and which proves the impossibility of Mr. Cull having done one-half instead of two-thirds of a mile.

His statement (taken from his books) made it appear that all the labor he had performed (breaking stone only excepted) came at the close of the work to £321, that being £93 9s. more than he had estimated the labor on the whole mile at £321 - -

Plank, £68; carpenter laying, £16 2s.	84 2 -
Bridges estimated by workmen at (with 10 per cent profit)	55 - -
Drawing Kingston stone,	7 17 6
Stone blasted, &c. in fields,	15 - -
Tools delivered over,	17 16 6
Breaking Kingston stone,	31 10 -
	£532 6 -

Committee allow 440 toise the mile, which, at 42s. 6d. for the stone, and 35s. for breaking, is 1,705 - -
Laying the 1,015 yards, that Mr. Cull did not lay, at 3s. the allowance they approved of, . . . 152 5 -

Shewing the value of the whole mile,	£2,389 11 -
Mr. Cull claimed having done two-thirds of the whole, being	1,593 1 -
Watson and Bell did half the labor, at least, but give Mr. Cull credit for what he says he did,— allow Watson and Bell nothing, and Mr. Cull could not have done more than all; which, call, } Allow Mr. Cull for 192 toise, being the quantity necessary for 737 yds, and the 8 toise which Cull } stated was left by him broken on the road when he left the work, at the price the Committee set, } being 42s. 6d. and 35s.—77s. 6d., although Watson & Bell, at the worst season, only paid 67s. }	532 6 -
	£1,276 6 -

The remainder of the 2-3rds. Watson and Bell must have performed, as Mr. Cull did not do it, 316 15 - £1,593 1 -

Watson & Bell did all Mr. Cull left undone, being 1015 yards, which required 248 toise, a 77s. 6d.	961 - -
They laid the 1015 yards, which, at the allowance of the Committee of 3s. make	152 5 -
They must have performed all Mr. Cull did not perform, and brought over, is	316 15 -
	£1,430 - -

Which shows they must have done more than half without the labor of shaping and preparing Road and making side paths, which probably cost them 170 - -

The amount thus would come to Mr. Cull's rate of charge,	£1,600 - -
They only expended upon the same 1015 yards,	1,400 - -

This balance shews his expense unreasonable, £200 - -

Mr. Cull's part is proved, at the most exorbitant rate, not to come to more than	£1,276 15 -
What can the Arbitrators and Committee have allowed the difference for,	553 5 -
	£1,830 - -

The Arbitrators and Committee both approved of allowing his whole claim, as laid before the Arbitrators of	£1,738 - -
The Committee recommend an addition for his services, of	92 - -
	£1,830 - -

It should have been remarked, that Watson and Bell did all Mr. Cull left undone whether it was $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{1}{3}$, or $\frac{2}{3}$, and shaped all they did or nearly so; they furnished and laid down a great deal of plank, they levelled a great deal, and they formed and perfected all the side paths, for the whole of which no charge is made in stating the expense of the mile, which militates so much in Mr. Cull's favor, and against Watson and Bell.

A STATEMENT shewing the discrepancy between all Mr. Cull's statements, on asserted facts, by those who have stated, reported, or proved their assertions, shewing that they all differ.

The only one that is apparently worthy of credit, is that of Watson and Bell's, which has been acted upon without any change from the first, and has given satisfaction to all parties:—the following is made to caution other persons engaged in superintending other public works of the same kind, how they proceed.

First, as to the quantity of stone for a mile.

Mr. Cull professed to understand macadamizing, both scientifically and practically, and estimated the quantity at 407 toise per mile, for 20 feet wide, and ten inches in depth, proof that he considered that it held out measure.

The Engineer Officer who reported upon his work stated in his report that Mr. Cull had used 93 toise on quarter of a mile, being at the rate of 372 toise the mile—proof of bulk increasing.

The Arbitrators had no proof of what was used, except Mr. Cull's statement, which shewed it took at the rate of 528 toise the mile, or upwards.

Watson and Bell have always paid for it as measured in the road, all parties being satisfied that it held out measure.

Price of stone per toise.

Mr. Cull estimated them at 20s.

Watson and Bell, have generally given 30s. they paid 35s. for a few only, when the roads were at the worst.

Mr. Cull stated to the Trustees, that his cost on an average 37s. 8d.

The Committee state Mr. Cull's average to be from 8 to 9 dollars, say 42s. 6d.

Breaking Stone.

Price given in the States, 15s.

Mr. Cull's estimate, 20s.

Mr. Cull stated to the Trustees that it cost him 32s.

The Committee state, that from Mr. Cull's evidence, it cost him 34s. to 36s.; say 35s.

Watson and Bell have paid 32s.

Labor for Shaping, Laying, &c.

Mr. Cull's estimate was for taking up stumps,	£2 8 -
For digging for draining,	37 10 -
For levelling and forming,	80 - -
For spreading,	82 10 -
For filling up holes,	26 - -

Total for labor, £228 8 -

The above makes the spreading exceed in expense, the leveling and forming, can that be correct.

At the close of Mr. Cull's labor, he shews by his books that the labor cost as follows, for the part he did: (possibly one half of the labor.)

Labor for preparing, forming, leveling, taking up old cross-way, backing up bridges, removing earth, cutting drains, and laying down metal,	£228 7 -
Carts and wagons, removing and drawing earth, stone for the bridges, &c.	93 2 -

£321 9 -

The report of the committee states, that they agree with the arbitrators, that no charge attaches to Mr. Cull for extravagance or want of skill, but recommended he should be remunerated beyond the award, for his trouble, particularly when it is recollected that the country will have derived the benefit of his experience.

The Trustees submit the following remarks:—

Should not an Engineer who professed to understand macadamizing, practically as well as scientifically, when reporting or stating facts that were to guide a body authorised to perform such service for the public good have known whether stone, the principal material used would cost 20s. or 42s. 6d.

Should he not have known whether the breaking would cost 20s. or 35s, the toise.

Should he not have known whether the metal would increase or fall short of measure on being broken.

Should he not have known whether the expense of preparing the road for the metal, including the laying down would cost £228 8s. for the whole mile or £321 9s. for one half or less.

Should he not have known whether the Culverts when finished, were worth £55 or £200.

Should he not have known whether the hawling 21 toise of stone, was worth £7 17s. 6d. or £25

Should he not have known whether the stone for the bridges were worth £26 5s. or £40.

Should he not have known, whether the tools delivered over, were worth £17 16s. 6d. or £170.

Must he not have known that his most exceptionable charges were such when he made them, when in his first rendered account, he did not make them. His first rendered account was £1,200—his next 1,500—and his last, 1,738? All rendered, after he had closed his work, from his books.

His experience, the Trustees will not remark upon, but they must, in justice to Watson and Bell, declare that their part has been equally well done at a much worse season of the year, at two-thirds of the expense,—they being plain laboring mechanics only.

It is also worthy of remark, that their part has been vastly more difficult to perform than Mr. Cull's.

No. 13.

WHEREAS His late Majesty, George the Fourth, was graciously pleased, by letters patent at Westminster, on the 15th day of March, in the eighth year of his reign, to establish at or near the Town of York, now City of Toronto, a College, with the style and privileges of an University, for the education and instruction of youth, and students in arts and faculties, to be called "King's College;" which Charter is in the following words:—

"GEORGE THE FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c. &c. &c.

"To all to whom these Presents shall come—GREETING :

"WHEREAS the establishment of a College within our Province of Upper Canada, in North America, for the education of youth in the principles of the Christian religion, and for their instruction in the various branches of science and literature which are taught in our Universities in this Kingdom, would greatly conduce to the welfare of our said Province: AND WHEREAS humble application has been made to us by many of our loving subjects in our said Province, that we would be pleased to grant our Royal Charter for the more perfect establishment of a College therein, and for incorporating the members thereof for the purposes aforesaid. NOW KNOW YE, That we, having taken the premises into our Royal consideration, and duly weighing the great utility and importance of such an institution, have, of our special grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, ordained and granted, and do by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, ordain and grant, that there shall be established at or near our Town of York in our said Province of Upper Canada, from this time, one College, with the style and privileges of an University as hereinafter directed, for the education and instruction of youth and students in arts and faculties, to continue for ever, to be called 'King's College.'

"And we do hereby declare and grant, that our trusty and well beloved the Right Reverend Father in God, Charles James, Bishop of the Diocese of Quebec, or the Bishop for the time being of the Diocese in which the said Town of York may be situate, or any future division or alteration of the said present Diocese of Quebec, shall for us and in our behalf be the Visitor of the said College; and that our trusty and well beloved Sir Peregrine Maitland, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, or the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or other person administering the Government of our said Province for the time being, shall be Chancellor of our said College.

"And we do hereby declare, ordain, and grant, that there shall at all times be one President of our said College, who shall be a Clergyman in Holy Orders of the United Church of England and Ireland; and that there shall be such and so many Professors in different arts and faculties within our said College as from time to time shall be deemed necessary or expedient, and as shall be appointed by us or by the said Chancellor of our said College on our behalf, and during our pleasure.

"And we do hereby grant and ordain that the Reverend John Strachan, Doctor in divinity, Archdeacon of York, in our said Province of Upper Canada, be the first President of our said College, and the Archdeacon of York in our said Province, for the time being, shall, by virtue of such his office, be at all times the President of the College.

"And we do hereby, for us our heirs and successors, will ordain and grant that the said Chancellor and President, and the said professors of our said College, and all persons who shall be duly matriculated into and admitted as scholars of our said College, and their successors for ever shall be one distinct and separate body, politic and corporate in deed and in name, by the name and style of "the Chancellor, President, and Scholars of King's College at York, in the Province of Upper Canada," and that by the same name they shall have perpetual succession and a common seal; and that they and their successors shall from time to time, have full power to alter, renew, or change such common seal at their will and pleasure, and as shall be found convenient and that by the same name they the said Chancellor, President, and Scholars, and their successors from time to time and at all times hereafter shall be able and capable to have, take, receive, purchase, acquire, hold, possess, enjoy and maintain, to and for the use of the said College, any messuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments of what kind, nature, or quality soever, situate and being within our said Province of Upper Canada, so as the same do not exceed in yearly value the sum of £15,000 above all charges; and moreover to take, purchase, acquire, have, hold, enjoy, receive, possess and retain, all or any goods, chattels, charitable or other contributions, gifts or benefactions whatsoever.

"And we do hereby declare and grant that the said Chancellor, President, and scholars and their successors by the same name shall and may be able and capable in law to sue and be sued, implead and be impleaded, answer and be answered, in all or any court or courts of record within our United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and our said Province of Upper Canada and other our dominions ; in all and singular actions, causes, pleas, suits, matters and demands whatsoever of what nature or kind soever in as large, ample, and beneficial a manner and form as any other body politic or corporate, or any other our liege subjects, being persons able and capable in law, may or can sue, implead or answer, or be sued, impleaded or answered, in any manner whatsoever.

“And we do hereby declare ordain, and grant that there shall be within our said college or corporation, a council, to be called and known by the name of “The College Council ;” and we do will and ordain that the said Council shall consist of the Chancellor, President for the time being, and of seven of the professors in arts and faculties of our said College, and that such seven professors shall be members of the Established United Church of England and Ireland, and shall previously to their admission into the said College Council, severally sign and subscribe the thirty nine articles of religion, as declared and set forth in the book of common prayer. And in case at any time there should not be within our said college seven professors of arts and faculties, being members of the Established Church aforesaid, then our will and pleasure is, and we do hereby grant and ordain that the said College Council shall be filled up to the requisite number of seven exclusive of the Chancellor and President for the time being, by such persons, being graduates of our said college and being members of the Established Church aforesaid, as shall for that purpose be appointed by the Chancellor for the time being of our said College ; and which members of Council shall in like manner subscribe the thirty nine articles aforesaid, previously to their admission into the said College Council.

“And whereas it is necessary to make provision for the completion and filling up of the said council at the first institution of our said College, and previously to the appointment of any professors or the conferring of any degrees therein. Now we do further ordain and declare that the Chancellor of our said College for the time being shall upon or immediately after the first institution thereof, by warrant under his hand, nominate and appoint seven discreet and proper persons, resident within our said Province of Upper Canada, to constitute jointly with him the said Chancellor, and the President of our said College for the time being, the first or original council of our said College, which first or original members of the said council shall in like manner respectively subscribe the thirty-nine Articles aforesaid previously to their admission into the said council.

“And we do further declare and grant that the members of the said College Council, holding within our said College the offices of Chancellor, President or Professor in any art or faculty, shall respectively hold their seats in the said Council so long as they and each of them shall retain such other offices as aforesaid and no longer ; and that the members of the said Council not holding offices in our said College, shall from time to time vacate their seats in the said Council when and as soon as there shall be an adequate number of Professors in our said College, being members of the Established Church aforesaid to fill up the said council to the requisite number before mentioned.

“And we do hereby authorise and empower the Chancellor for the time being of our said College, to decide in each case what particular member of the said council not holding any such office as aforesaid shall vacate his seat in the said Council upon the admission of any new member of Council holding any such office.

“And we do hereby declare and grant that the Chancellor, for the time being of our said College, shall preside at all meetings of the said College Council, when he may deem it proper or convenient to attend, and that in his absence, the President of our said College shall preside at all such meetings ; and that in the absence of the said President the senior member of the said Council present at any such meeting shall preside thereat, and that the seniority of the members of the said Council, other than the Chancellor and President shall be regulated according to the date of their respective appointments : Provided always that the members of the said Council being Professors in our said College, shall in the said Council take precedence over and be considered as seniors to the members thereof, not being Professors in our said college.

“And we do ordain and declare that no meeting of the said Council shall be, or be held to be a lawful meeting thereof, unless five members at the least, be present during the whole of every such meeting ; and that all questions and resolutions proposed for the decision of the said College Council, shall be determined by the majority of the votes of the members of Council present, including the vote of the presiding member ; and that in the event of an equal division of such votes, the member presiding at any such meeting shall give an additional or casting vote.

“ And we further declare that if any member of the said Council shall die or resign his seat in the said Council, or shall be suspended or removed from the same, or shall, by reason of any bodily or mental infirmity, or by reason of his absence from the said Province, become incapable for three calendar months or upwards, of attending the meetings of the said council, then and in every such case, a fit and proper person shall be appointed by the said Chancellor to act as, and be a member of the said Council in the place or stead of the member so dying or resigning or so suspended or removed, or incapacitated as aforesaid ; and such new member succeeding to any member so suspended or incapacitated shall vacate such his office on the removal of any such suspension or at the termination of any such incapability as aforesaid, of his immediate predecessor in the said council.

“And we do further ordain and grant, that it shall and may be competent to and for the Chancellor for the time being of our said college, to suspend from his seat in the said Council, any member thereof, for any just and reasonable cause to the said Chancellor appearing ; provided that the ground of every such suspension shall be entered and recorded at length by the said Chancellor in the books of the said Council, and signed by him ; and every person so suspended shall thereupon cease to be a member of the said Council, unless and until he shall be restored to and re-established in such his station therein, by any order to be made in the premises by us or by the said visitor of our said College, acting on our behalf, and in pursuance of any special reference from us.

“And we do further declare that any member of the said Council who, without sufficient cause to be allowed by the said Chancellor by an order entered for that purpose on the books of the said Council, shall absent himself from all the meetings thereof which may be held within any six successive calendar months, shall thereon vacate such his seat, in the said council.

“And we do by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, will, ordain, and grant that the said Council of our said College shall have power and authority to frame and make statutes, rules and ordinances, touching and concerning the good government of the said College, the performance of Divine service therein, the studies, lectures, exercises, degrees in arts and faculties, and all matters regarding the same, the residence and duties of the President of our said College, the number, residence, and duties of the Professors thereof, the management of the revenues and property of the said College, the salaries, stipends, provisions and emoluments, of and for the President, Professors, Scholars, Officers, and Servants thereof; the number and duties of such Officers and Servants, and also touching and concerning any other matter or thing which to them shall seem good, fit, and useful for the well-being and advancement of our said College, and agreeable to this our Charter. And also from time to time, by any new statutes, rules or ordinances, to revoke, renew, augment, or alter all, every, or any of the said statutes, rules and ordinances, as to them shall seem meet and expedient: Provided always, that the said statutes, rules and ordinances, or any of them, shall not be repugnant to the laws and statutes of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or of our said Province of Upper Canada, or to this our Charter. Provided also, that the said statutes, rules and ordinances, shall be subject to the approbation of the said Visitor of the said College for the time being, and shall be forthwith transmitted to the said Visitor for that purpose, and that in case the said Visitor shall for us and in our behalf, in writing, signify his disapprobation thereof within two years of the time of their being so made and framed, the same or such part thereof as shall be so disapproved by the said Visitor, shall, from the time of such disapprobation being made known to the said Chancellor of our said College, be utterly void and of no effect, but otherwise shall be and remain in full force and virtue.

“Provided nevertheless, and we do hereby expressly save and reserve to us, our heirs and successors, the power of reviving, confirming, or reversing, by any order or orders to be by us or them made in our or their Privy Council, all or any of the decisions, sentences, or orders so to be made as aforesaid by the said Visitor, for us and on our behalf in reference to the said statutes, rules and ordinances, or any of them.

“And we do further ordain and declare that no statute, rule or ordinance, shall be framed or made by the said College Council, touching the matters aforesaid, or any of them, excepting only such as shall be proposed for the consideration of the said Council by the Chancellor for the time being of our said College.

“And we do require and enjoin the said Chancellor thereof to consult with the President of our said College, and the next senior member of the said College Council, respecting all statutes, rules and ordinances, to be proposed by him to the said Council for their consideration.

“And we do hereby, for us, our heirs and successors, charge and command, that the statutes, rules and ordinances aforesaid, subject to the said provisions, shall be strictly and inviolably observed, kept and performed from time to time in full vigor and effect, under the penalties to be thereby or therein imposed or contained.

“And we do further will, ordain and grant, that the said College shall be deemed and taken to be an University, and shall have and enjoy all such and the like privileges as are enjoyed by our Universities of our United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, as far as the same are capable of being had or enjoyed by virtue of these our letters patent; and that the students in the said College shall have liberty and facility of taking the degrees of Bachelor, Master and Doctor in the several arts and faculties at the appointed times, and shall have liberty within themselves of performing all scholastic exercises for the conferring such degrees, in such manner as shall be directed by the statutes, rules, and ordinances of the said College.

“And we do further will, ordain and appoint, that no religious test or qualification shall be required of or appointed for any persons admitted or matriculated as scholars within our said College, or of persons admitted to any degree in any art or faculty therein, save only that all persons admitted within our said College to any degree in divinity, shall make such and the same declarations and subscriptions, and take such and the same oaths as are required of persons admitted to any degree in Divinity, in our University of Oxford.

“And we do further will, direct and ordain, that the Chancellor, President, and Professors of our said College, and all persons admitted therein to the degree of Master of Arts, or to any degree in Divinity, Law or Medicine, and who from the time of such their admission to such degree, shall pay the annual sum of Twenty Shillings, sterling money, for and towards the support and maintenance of the said College, shall be and be deemed, taken, and reputed to be the members of the Convocation of the said University, and as such members of the said

Convocation, shall have, exercise, and enjoy all such and the like privileges as are enjoyed by the members of the Convocation of our University of Oxford, so far as the same are capable of being had and enjoyed by virtue of these our letters patent and consistently with the provisions thereof.

“And we will, and by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, do grant and declare, that these, our letters patent, or the enrolment or exemplification thereof, shall and may be good, firm, valid, sufficient, and effectual in the Law, according to the true intent and meaning of the same; and shall be taken, construed, and adjudged in the most favorable and beneficial sense for the best advantage of the said Chancellor, President, and Scholars of our said College, as well in our Courts of Record as elsewhere, and by all and singular Judges, Justices, Officers, Ministers, and other subjects whatsoever, of us, our heirs, and successors, any mis-recital, non-recital, omission, imperfection, defect, matter, cause, or thing whatsoever to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.”

AND WHEREAS his present Majesty, WILLIAM THE FOURTH, has been graciously pleased to signify through His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, Earl Ripon, by his despatch of the 8th of November, 1832, communicated to the Legislature by His Excellency, by message, that so far from any anxiety having been felt by His Majesty's Government to maintain the said Charter against the wishes of the great majority of the people, every possible measure has been taken to refer to their representatives the decision of the question in what form and upon what principles the said College should be founded.

Be it, &c., That from and after the passing of this Act the said University shall be upon the principle and in the form hereinafter provided, any thing in the said charter to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided always, That the said Charter shall be and continue in force except so far as it is altered and varied by the provisions of this Act.

Report of the Select Committee on the subject of War Losses.

The Committee to whom was referred His Excellency's Message of the 26th January 1835, upon the subject of the Losses sustained by certain inhabitants of this Province during the late War with the United States of America, find, that

His Excellency "the Lieutenant Governor acquaints the House of Assembly, with reference to an Address on the subject of the War Losses, that as the payment of £57,412, contemplated by the Provincial Act, passed in the 3rd Session of the last Parliament, has been actually made, His Majesty's Government has directed that £20,000 may be reserved out of the Casual and Territorial Revenue, to be applied to the liquidation of the War claims; and that he is authorised to appropriate this sum of £20,000, provided a similar sum shall be raised and appropriated in like manner by the Legislature to the satisfaction of the War claims; and that if such joint payment of £40,000 be made in the Province, application will be made to the Imperial Parliament for the means of discharging the amount of £17910, requisite in order to effect the complete satisfaction of the whole of the War claims.

"His Majesty's Government trusts that the Assembly will be disposed to receive favourably a plan of which, instead of adhering to the original scheme of equal contributions by the Provincial Legislature and by the Parent State, it is proposed, that out of a sum of £57,910, twenty thousand pounds only shall be raised by the Province, and that on that condition the remaining amount of £17,910 shall be provided either from the Crown Revenues or from a grant by the British Parliament."

Your Committee beg leave respectfully further to report that they are of the opinion that the long deferred time of payment of the losses sustained by the persons herein described is a subject worthy the consideration of your Honorable House. They find that at the close of the late war with the United States of America, in which the sufferers complained that they sustained the losses for which they claim relief: that the whole male population of Upper Canada able to bear arms did not exceed ten thousand men, and that they were scattered over a frontier of at least eight hundred miles in extent; nearly half of these men were embodied for the whole of the first, and a very considerable portion of them for the greater part of the last campaign, and that they composed the principal part of the force which successively captured the fortresses of Machilimackanac and Detroit, with the army of General Hull; which carried by assault the batteries of Ogdensburg; which fought and gained the battles of Queenston, River Raisin, and Fort M^orges; and which repulsed the enemy under General Smith, near Fort Erie; and in the disastrous affair near Fort George, they were warmly engaged with the enemy, and actually suffered as severely as His Majesty's regular forces. The provisioning and transporting the Forces in Upper Canada fell upon the Militia, and wherever they were visited by the enemy, desolation, waste and ruin marked their path; their property was plundered and destroyed, and themselves and families driven from home often in beggary and want, or made prisoners. Still they persevered in their attachment to their King and Country, and their services contributed largely to the security of this Province. Numbers died by the sword of the enemy, others from fatigue and sickness induced by their privations while in the field; their properties have been destroyed, and hundreds reduced to beggary and want without ever a murmur; animated with the hope and firm belief that their exertions, their fidelity, and their sufferings, would be considered by their King and Country, and duly appreciated. Twenty years have elapsed since these losses have been sustained and yet they have not received a sum much exceeding the interest of their claims. In 1815, a joint address of both Houses of Parliament was presented to the Prince Regent, earnestly praying His Royal Highness to grant them relief. In August 1815, His Excellency Sir Frederick P. Robinson, K. C. B., Major General commanding His Majesty's Forces in Upper Canada, directed a Board to assemble at York for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon all claims that might be submitted to them for investigation for damages done by our troops or the enemy, during and in consequence of the war.—The investigation took place but the money was not paid, excepting so much as was received from the sales of confiscated estates. In April 1821, both Houses of Parliament addressed His Majesty, representing that in answer to their address to His Majesty, then Prince Regent, in 1815, that he had been graciously pleased to direct that the proceeds of the sales of certain forfeited estates in this Province should be appropriated towards the remuneration of the sufferers during the late war, but as the amount of those sales was but about fifteen thousand pounds, that would not meet the necessities of the case, they therefore humbly prayed His Majesty to lay their claims before the Imperial Parliament.

In answer to this address, Earl Bathurst caused a new commission to be appointed, and those claims to be again investigated, and which last Commissioners reduced the claims at their pleasure, so that the whole amount of losses admitted by them to be just did not exceed £200,000.

His Majesty was pleased to propose the payment of half the interest on £100,000 upon condition that the Province would pay the other half of the amount, and both Houses of the Legislature passed a Bill providing for the payment of the interest in the manner recommended by His Majesty's principal Secretary of State for the Colonies. This Bill was reserved for the Royal Assent, and in the February following, 1823, the Lieutenant Governor received another Despatch from Earl Bathurst, authorizing His Excellency to cause Bills to be drawn upon the Lords of His Majesty's Treasury, for £57,412 10s., at the same time desiring His Excellency to communicate to the Legislature of Upper Canada, that according to the spirit of the proposition of the original Loan which was assented to by His Majesty's government, it must be distinctly understood that no further payment would be made by the Lords of the Treasury until this Province shall have raised an equal sum of £57,412 10s. exclusively on its own security, applicable to the further liquidation of claims which may be awarded by a second commission, and directing him also to explain to the Provincial Legislature that should an additional sum be still found necessary after the payment on the part of Upper Canada of a like sum of £57,412 10s. the British Government will consent to contribute towards the sum in the same proportion as the Legislature of Upper Canada agree to advance upon the exclusive security of the Colony.

In 1826, a joint Address of both Houses of the Legislature was again sent Home, praying for aid from the British Government; and in 1827 and 1828, in answer to Addresses from the House of Assembly to His Excellency, requiring information upon the subject, they received for answer, that he had received no communication from His Majesty's Government on the subject,—thus, according to the last report or award of the Commissioners, after the payment of the grant of the British Government of £57,412 10s., and the avails of the sales of forfeited estates, there still remains due £131,575, of which £57,512 10s. have been provided, which, together with the duty on salt, leaves a balance due of £57,919 to be provided for.

The Despatch accompanying His Excellency's Message, before recited, says, that if this House will provide for the payment of £20,000 of the £57,910, the remainder of the principal will be paid by £20,000 out of the Casual and Territorial Revenues, and £17,910 to be provided either from the Crown Revenues or from a grant by the British Government.

Your Committee therefore respectfully represent to your Honourable House, that in their opinion the War was a war of principle, to establish certain maritime rights—a war professedly waged by a jealous enemy with the hope of establishing certain principles of national policy affecting the whole empire, in defence of which, on all occasions, His Majesty's Colony of Upper Canada will ever aspire to participate with sentiments of proud devotion to the interests of the Parent State;—at the same time, the sacrifices made, and the loyalty evinced, by the inhabitants of this Province during that war, saved to His Majesty a Province of which His Majesty is justly proud, and which will long afford an asylum to our fellow subjects of Great Britain, whose circumstances may induce them to emigrate hither. The reports of the Commissioners appointed to investigate the claims for losses during the late war, are satisfactory proof that the claims are just, and that they ought to be liquidated; but your Committee are of opinion that they ought to recommend the payment of the interest of these claims out of some other fund or source of revenue than that of the Provincial Treasury, while the revenue is small and the debts of the Province large; especially as those debts have been incurred, in a great measure, in consequence of the liberal expenditure from the public funds for payment of pensions to those of the Militia of this Province who, during the war, suffered such injuries as to incapacitate them from earning a livelihood by their labour, and the families of those who died or were killed on service, and in the construction of internal improvements, as canals, roads, and bridges.

Your Committee therefore humbly beg leave to recommend to your Honourable House, to Address His Majesty, representing the facts as they are, and praying His Majesty to place at the disposal of the Provincial Legislature a portion of the waste lands of the Crown, sufficient to pay the interest on the same. If debts due from one individual to another should be entitled to draw interest after the claimant is ready to receive the money, or rather after the money has become due; and if a debt due to the Government is upon interest against the subject after it becomes due, ought not a debt due from the Government to individuals to draw interest in the same manner?

Your Committee are of opinion that the claims should draw interest from the time the losses were sustained—they find there will still remain, unprovided for, £57,910 principal, and upwards of £100,000 interest. For the payment of the sum of £57,910 they recommend your Honourable House to provide by a grant of £20,000 for that purpose, under the authority of the Despatch accompanying His Excellency's message of the 26th ult. and the interest will still remain unprovided for; but as your Committee are of opinion that this claim of the sufferers is just, they respectfully recommend to your Honourable House to address His Majesty to place such a portion of the waste lands of the Crown at the disposal of the Provincial Legislature as shall be sufficient to meet the payment of the said sum of £100,000 to be applied to the liquidation of the interest of the said losses, which should be divided among the several claimants in proportion to the amount of principal awarded to them by the last arbitrators upon the subject of War Losses.

Your Committee most respectfully submit that the British Government, upon being reminded of the real loss, utter ruin, and total destruction of many of His Majesty's loyal subjects who have, in many instances, voluntarily came forward, sacrificed their time, their health and substance in support of the defence of this portion of His Majesty's Dominions, by the long deferred payment of their just claims, by which means they have been reduced from affluence, peace and comfort, to beggary, imprisonment, want and death, will grant a portion of the waste lands of the Crown sufficient to meet the payment of the interest of the sum due the said sufferers. Thus will be perpetuated the devotion and attachment of His Majesty's loyal subjects of this Province; and if unfortunate circumstances should require them again to sacrifice their all for their love of King and Country, they will glory in being among the foremost to evince their gratitude to their Most Gracious Sovereign for his munificence on this occasion.

All which is respectfully submitted.

No. 19. Estimate of the Civil Expenditure for the year 1835, and so much of the same as remains unprovided for by the Legislature for the years 1832, 1833, and 1834, exclusive of the appropriation by Statute 1st Wm. 4th, cap. 14, amounting to £13,271. It is to be observed, however, that the following items form part of the above sum:—

Your Committee cannot but express their surprise that these items, after having been repeatedly rejected by your Honorable House, should again be included in the estimate. An error is noticed in the estimate of the Surveyor General's Department, in the salary of Mr. Ridout, one of the Clerks, being £50 less than the amount voted last year. By a supplementary estimate, addressed to the Chairman of the Committee of Finance, from the Inspector General, the following should be added:—

Improvement of the St. Lawrence,.....

Your Committee beg leave to call the attention of your Honorable House to the present state of the Revenue of the Province; for although there has been a falling off in the Revenue collected at the Port of Quebec during the last half year, which is added to the current year, yet the year ending July, 1834, is £64,781 3 5½, which, being compared with that of the year ending July 1833, £55,213 18 7, shews an increase of £9,567 4 10½.

The Committee beg leave to call the attention of your Honorable House to the subject of borrowing money in England to meet the demands upon the Revenue for former grants, and for the sums that may be granted during this session. They are convinced that the system of borrowing money in England is a saving to the Province, and one that it would be expedient to follow for the purpose of raising all future loans. They find that with the £200,000 sterling borrowed in England, all the public debt has been redeemed that is now due, and all the grants to the various objects made the last session, viz: £46,000 to the Roads, £35,000 to the St. Lawrence Navigation, £1,500 to the Paris Bridge, £1,240 to the Dunnville Bridge, &c., saving the sum granted to the Welland Canal Company for the purchase of stock, no other debentures were issued during the last year in this country. There remains still to be raised upwards of £300,000 for the St. Lawrence improvement, and which the act authorizing the issuing the debentures redeemable in 20 and 40 years, puts it out of the power of Parliament to take advantage of any favorable change in the monied market either in this Province, in England, or any where else, to raise, on favorable terms. Your Committee find that the debentures issued in London are quoted at 5 per cent. premium. One per cent. was paid for negotiating this loan, so that Messrs. Wilson and Company must have made a profit of six per cent., and this six per cent may be saved to the Province by sending to London a competent Agent. It is therefore earnestly urged upon your Honorable House to authorize some person to proceed to England to raise all the money they may require. They are decidedly of opinion that it is in vain to carry on a negotiation by correspondence from this country, (vide Messrs. Baring & Co's. letter addressed to the Receiver General.) An Agent is required to be on the spot to consult the merchants, to exhibit documents and to answer questions, as well as to take advantage of the money market. The Agent could take with him the debentures, which might be prepared and made out at once; and he lodging the debentures in some safe place of deposit in London, they could be issued to whoever might contract for the loan, as money may be required in this Province. It appears from the public accounts, that the Province saved, after paying one per cent. and all the other charges, on the single transaction of the £200,000, more than pays the whole expense of the Receiver General's department, including his own salary, contingencies, &c. It is presumed that instead of paying a premium, a handsome one might now be got to the Province which will greatly increase the advantages of the recommended loan over that of last year. No time should be lost, as the St. Lawrence improvement will require money very soon if the work proceeds; and your Committee recommend that no debentures should be issued here, either for that or any other purpose. If any of the St. Lawrence debentures are issued, the period of redemption is so far distant that the Province will be precluded from taking advantage of the benefit and gain of transferring this debt, the period being fixed by law at 20 and 40 years. Your Committee would therefore recommend the altering and amending the St. Lawrence improvement debenture Act, so as to make the debentures redeemable by giving six months' notice at any time, so that in case the monies are required for that work before the loan can be arranged in London, the debentures may be issued here and afterwards redeemed when the loan shall have been made. Your Committee beg to remark that British Sovereigns have been made a legal tender in the United States at about 24s. 3d. currency, which makes the exchange something more than 8 per cent.; and as the exchange market in Canada is ruled entirely by that of New York, it is presumed that future negotiations in London will average about that rate. Every advantage should be embraced to turn the transaction to the best possible account; and it might occur that the value of gold in the United States were such as to make it more advantageous to import a sum in Sovereigns than drawing bills of exchange, in which case the Agent might avail himself of it or any other circumstance likely to produce a good and profitable result. The London money market is at this moment most cheering to the borrower. On the 28th January last consols for account 91½ to 91 7/8ths, Exchequer Bills 41 shillings to 42 shillings premium, accompanied with the following remark: that "the abundance of unemployed capital seems, if any thing, to be on the increase, from day to day; some of the leading brokers who were accommodated with loans at the rate of 2½ per cent. having difficulty in placing the money well at such a rate above that as would compensate for the trouble of management. This state of things gives a support to all public securities, which almost makes their value for the time independent of political events, at least of the common incidents of the day which, under other circumstances, would not fail to make some impression. The affair of the mutiny of the Spanish troops at Madrid is a case in point; it made but a very slight and very temporary impression." The next day, January 29th, the following is the report of the money market: "The unusual abundance of money, and the difficulty of placing it out, has caused the different securities, both English and foreign, to improve. Consols for account are now 92½." With this prospect before them, your Committee feel that they ought to recommend to your Honorable House to lose no time in authorizing the sale of Provincial debentures in London for Four Hundred Thousand Pounds, and to send an agent to London to transact the business. To illustrate the advantages of the measure before mentioned, they beg leave to call the attention of your Honorable House to the following synopsis of that transaction:

"Statement of the actual saving to the Province of Upper Canada by the loan contracted for in London at 5 per cent. per annum.

£178,366 0 0 sterling.

Interest paid in London on £178,366 sterling, at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, amounts to £8,918 sterling annually.

To remit this sum of £8,918 sterling to London at the same premium as above, say 6 per cent., will cost the Province	£10,503	0	0	C'y.
--	---------	---	---	------

To which add 1 per cent. agency on the £8,918 sterling to Messrs. Thomas Wilson & Co. for paying the half yearly interest by commission, . . .	99	0	0
--	----	---	---

£10,602 0 0 C'y.

£208,466 4 11 c'y. if raised in this Province at 6 per cent. interest, would cost £12,508, making an actual and positive saving to the Province of £1,906 currency.

Admitting that the premium on the annual interest of £8,918 sterling were to be remitted to London at 8 per cent. instead of 6, there would still be a saving of £1,708 currency annually on the transaction as it now stands in reference to the £176,600 sterling.

To exhibit at compound interest on the annual saving £1,906 similar to a sinking fund for twenty years, at which time the principal is payable, will produce the sum of £74,320 c'y., and admitting the sum of £178,366 sterling to be returned at the expiration of twenty years at an advanced premium of 2 per cent.; i. e. 8 per cent. instead of 6 per cent. it will still leave the Province a gainer of £70,357 c'y. Taking into consideration the saving of £74,320 c'y. will reduce the interest on the original sum of £178,366 sterling to about 3½ per cent. per annum, and on the latter saving of £70,357 c'y. to something less than 3½ per cent. per annum.

The credit of the Province is now established in London, where any amount of money may be got in future, it is supposed that 5 per cent. may be obtained as a premium instead of paying one per cent. to Messrs. Thomas Wilson & Co., which, of course, will greatly add to the advantages.

It has been urged, that sending so large a sum as the interest on this loan annually out of the Province is a strong objection to borrowing money in London, but let it be borne in mind that by these means a large foreign capital is brought into it at a much cheaper rate than it could be got on this continent, and it leaves the capital already in the Province, and that which may be introduced by emigrants, &c. for private purposes. It is well known that a very considerable portion of debentures issued here at 6 per cent. are held by and belong to persons in London, to whom the interest is remitted.

It has also been urged, that negotiating loans in London, however favourable the terms may be, is detrimental to the interest of the Province, by deterring individuals from emigrating with capital for investment in public stock; but it would be absurd to suppose that any individual would come to Upper Canada expressly for the mere object of investing in public debentures. If persons of capital do come, they will find as advantageous security can always be had on real estate.

Public loans within this Province absorb all its disposable capital, or, all that is likely to be brought into it. Let the public then in future, by the example of the United States, contract loans in London, and leave the domestic capital to individual enterprise, particularly as private securities are not available in a foreign market.

Debentures issued in Upper Canada, bearing an interest of 5 per cent per annum, are at a discount.

Your Committee beg leave to submit, that they have recently been favoured by the Honorable the Receiver General, with the following extract of a letter from Messrs. Thomas Wilson & Co. to him, dated London, 30th January 1835.

"I observe that you expect further loans will be required by Upper Canada.

"You may take it for granted, if necessary, without further reference to us, that we will take any amount not exceeding £200,000 at par (100) the debentures the same as before, and allowing for accrued interest, though we have no commission. The market for debentures is however very dull—the last sale that was made was about 5 per cent premium, exclusive of interest, accrued since October, should any new circumstances arise through which others are enabled to offer more than the above, give us an opportunity of considering them, the chance is, that we shall be able to do for you at least as well as others."

All which is respectfully submitted.

CHARLES DUNCOMBE, Chairman.

JOHN H. DUNN, R. G.

RECEIVER GENERAL'S Office, Toronto, 15th January, 1835.

REPORT OF COMMISSIONERS ON TORONTO HARBOUR.

REPORT of the Commissioners on the Improvement of Toronto Harbour.

To HIS EXCELLENCY SIR JOHN COLBORNE, Lt. Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

The Commissioners for the improvement of Toronto Harbour, beg leave to report to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, and for the information of the Legislature, that they have so far finished the pier at the entrance of the channel, as to have carried it out the distance originally intended, covered it in and partially filled it with stone.

The Commissioners have of necessity expended the sum of £424 14s 10d over and above the sum of £2000 granted by the Legislature for that purpose; an expenditure indispensable to the safety of the work; as when the funds placed at their disposal by the Legislature were exhausted, the pier was yet unfinished, and in a state of such insecurity, that so to have left it might have been attended with disastrous consequences to the whole.

The Commissioners beg to observe, that the pier as at present projected, although of infinite service to the navigation, yet witnessing the extreme lowness of the lake waters this last season, they deem it inefficient for the purposes originally intended.

The bottom of the channel for a distance of 200 feet beyond the extremity of the pier, is composed of broken, uneven, and stony ground, with large boulders here and there; one in particular having upon it two and a half feet less water than around it; and many steamers that approached too near the pier last season, grounded or struck among this foul ground. The United States, the St. George, the Wm. IV., the Canada, and other steamers of a certain draught of water that came within the limit herein mentioned, casually struck and received more or less injury.

The principal motives for projecting this pier were, to cover this broken ground to a certain depth of water, to indicate more clearly the channel, and facilitate entrance to the harbour by night, and also to enable vessels to land goods and passengers at times when the port was otherwise inaccessible from ice.

These objects, from the present lowness of the lake not being attained, and being so essential to the safety and protection of the many valuable vessels that frequent the port, the Commissioners deem it an imperative duty to suggest the expediency of carrying the pier a distance of 200 feet farther out, by which the whole of this broken ground will be covered, and a depth of at least nine feet water obtained at the present very low state of the lake waters.

To accomplish this, the sum of £1200, over and above that already expended, will be required. The Commissioners also suggest the necessity of provision being made for maintaining a light at the end of the pier, and also for buoys in the channel—this latter operation having been, up to the present time, undertaken and maintained at private expense, although the benefit was deemed public and indispensable.

FIRST REPORT of Select Committee on Grievances.

To the Honourable the House of Assembly,

The Select Committee on Grievances, respectfully submit the following Report :

In the course of their enquiries they find it necessary to refer to the documents enumerated in the addresses herewith presented, for the consideration of the House.

In Lord Viscount Goderich's Despatch, reference is made to the annual official returns of the Civil Establishment of the Colony, commonly called "The Blue Book," and from those returns inferences are made which appear to be erroneous. The committee are desirous to compare the originals in the Secretary's office, with the statements made to this House.

In reply to a communication from the agent to the petitioners, to whose complaints Viscount Goderich's despatch was in part an answer, Lord Howick's letter annexed to this Report, promises that the consideration of His Majesty's Government would be given to the state of the Jury laws. No information has since been sent to this House on that important subject.

Several witnesses examined before your committee complain of the appointments of Commissioners of the Peace—we report an address requesting information on that subject.

In a return to an address to the House of Commons, moved by Mr. Stewart McKenzie, printed by that House, and herewith reported, a balance is shown of £32,139 St'g, as being in the hands of a public accountant in June 1833, from the Canada Company's payments. This committee is desirous to ascertain the amount of the balances in the hands of the several public accountants in this city—the Banks where such balances are deposited and whether any interest is accruing to the Province for the use of the public money so deposited.

The accounts of the Territorial Revenue are classed and kept in two divisions, viz. All warrants marked (K) are charged against that part of the Casual and Territorial Revenue (independent of the Canada Company Instalments;) and the warrants marked (D) are charged against the Canada Company Instalments.

Thus many salaries and charges, although authorised by His Majesty's Government to be paid out of any funds under the control of His Majesty, have been charged on fund (K), amounting together to £12674 13 3 more than actually received into that fund; and which together with the sum of £10487 10 4¾ expended from funds (D) and (K) since the 30th June, for the service of the last six months, must be deducted from the above balance, leaving the true balance therefore but £8977 11 6 sterling; viz. from balance as above,

I am

REPORT ON PROVINCIAL PENITENTIARY.

REPORT of the Commissioners on the Provincial Penitentiary.

To His Excellency Sir JOHN COLBORNE, Knight Commander of the Most Honourable Military Order of the Bath, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major-General commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

The Commissioners appointed by an Act passed in the 3rd year of His Majesty's reign, entitled, "An Act granting to His Majesty a sum of money to defray the expense of erecting a Penitentiary in this Province," most respectfully beg leave to submit the undermentioned papers and documents, namely:

- A. General statement of receipts and disbursements.
- B. Abstract of disbursements for labour since last report, with pay lists No. 18 to 64, inclusive and supplementary, pay lists from a to k.
- C. Abstract of disbursements for materials purchased since last report, with vouchers.
- D. Abstract of contingent disbursements, with vouchers.
- E. Set of drawings, representing the plan of the whole prison, workshops, yard, &c. as at present designed, with explanations of the same.
- F. A particular and complete inventory of the property in the hands of the Commissioners, consisting of land, buildings, tools, materials, &c.
- G. Abstract of the work done at the Penitentiary, from the 13th July to the 2nd November, 1833, inclusive, under distinct heads.
- H. Abstract of the work performed at the Penitentiary, from the 4th November, 1833, to the 1st December, 1834, inclusive, exhibiting the various kinds of labour under distinct heads.
- I. Statement, classifying sundry expenditures since the commencement of the building, under the head of contingencies, which, when deducted from the gross amount of the appropriation, exhibits the net cost of materials and labor applied to the construction of the prison, and also of the cottage occupied by the Superintendent and Master Builder.
- K. Estimate of probable disbursements for the support of the prison by the Board of Inspectors in the year 1835, calculated for 50 convicts, exclusive of the salaries already provided for by statute.
- L. Estimate of the sum required to prosecute the building of the north wing of the prison, and for enclosing a temporary yard.

The Legislature, at its last Session, having considered it expedient to place at the immediate disposal of the Commissioners the remainder of the grant for the Penitentiary, which was in the first instance designed to be advanced them by equal instalments, they have thus been enabled to prosecute the work during the past summer with increased activity and advantage.

Early in the month of September, the south wing was carried up to its proper height, covered with a shingle roof, and rendered fit for the reception of prisoners by the preparation of two galleries in the eastern block or division. These cells, amounting to forty-four in number, are plastered and fitted with grated doors and locks, and are in all respects completed. The bedding and other furniture, still to be supplied, it is no part of the duty enjoined on the Commissioners to provide.

The south wing is considered capable of accommodating as many convicts as will probably be sentenced to the Penitentiary during the next ensuing six or seven years. It contains two blocks or divisions of cells, five stories in height, each story contains twenty-two cells, making one hundred and ten cells in each block, and a total in both blocks of two hundred and twenty. This number is independent of fifty cells belonging to this section of the prison, which, being within the proposed central building, have not yet been begun, but which make up the full number of two hundred and seventy, stated in last year's report, as contained in the south wing. When the time shall arrive for providing more accommodation, it may be obtained by constructing one hundred and fifty cells in the centre part of the building, according to the manner set forth in the plans. There will thus be room in the prison for three hundred and seventy convicts, a number that it is hoped the Province will not very speedily furnish. When crime shall unhappily increase to such an extent as to demand still further space for the confinement of prisoners, the east and west wings, as specified in the plans may be successively erected. These additions when wanted, may be undertaken and completed by means of the prison labour, without any outlay of public money or any other cost to the Province, except the application of the surplus earnings of the convicts to the purchase of materials.

A reference to the document marked F. will show the exact condition and quantity of the building materials on hand at the present time. Sixty-seven locks have been manufactured, besides those already placed on the finished cells, and a quantity of iron has been purchased on advantageous terms, nearly sufficient for all the grated doors, fastenings, and other iron-work of the wing. There is also on hand a considerable supply of lumber. Such progress has in fact been made in providing and preparing materials, that the whole wing may be finished with very little additional delay or expense. It is probable that the unfinished cells in the eastern range or division (sixty-six in number) could be fitted up in the course of a few weeks by labour solely of the criminals convicted at the first general circuit of the Judges. Indeed, the object of the Commissioners in hastening the progress of the work, was to ensure accommodation for such culprits as it was supposed would have been sent to the Penitentiary during the recent assizes. Impressed with a belief that the prison would be wanted this year, they spared no effort to provide as many cells as would probably be occupied. It, however, appeared that no provision had been made at the last session of the Legislature for the maintenance of convicts at the prison. Its cells have consequently been untenanted, and they must remain so until the Legislature shall make the needful appropriations. In order to facilitate the consideration of this matter in Parliament, the Commissioners have prepared the paper marked K.

It is proper to state, that the Superintendent, Master Builder, and Clerk, are still retained in their service by the Commissioners, until the pleasure of Parliament shall be declared respecting their ulterior proceedings. Mr. Mills, who was first employed as Master Builder and Foreman, having resigned in consequence of differences which had arisen between him and the Superintendent; an English mechanic (Mr. Wm. Coverdale) was engaged in his place, who has afforded great satisfaction, and to whom a salary has been assigned, less in amount by one-fifth than that which the Commissioners had been under the necessity of giving to his predecessor. The plans accompanying this Report (marked E.) which have been executed by Mr. Coverdale, will perhaps be regarded as exhibiting no unfavourable evidence of the qualifications which he possesses for his present situation.

Upon those plans it is here necessary to offer a few remarks. In order to contract the public expenditure within the narrowest compass, it is proposed to make sundry alterations in the original plan of the north wing. By the present plan, excellent accommodation is provided in that wing for the Deputy Warden, whose residence it was at first proposed to build in a line with that intended for the Warden in front of the prison. It, however, is unnecessary to erect either of those buildings at present. The Deputy Warden may be for many years, if not permanently, accommodated (and that notwithstanding an eye to his convenience and comfort merely, but also to the better enforcement of discipline) within the walls of the Penitentiary, while the cottage built last year for the temporary use of the Superintendent and Master Builder employed by the Commissioners, and for the subsequent use of the keepers employed at the prison, may answer as the dwelling-house of the Warden until it shall become convenient to construct a house for him on a better plan, by means of convict labour; and when this is done, the cottage may be turned to account according to the original design.

Since the date of their former report, the undersigned have been deprived of the assistance of their late associate in the commission, Hugh C. Thomson, Esq., whose premature death has been generally lamented. It is believed that the Commissioners were led to introduce the Penitentiary system into the Province, in a very great measure, by the zealous and persevering exertions of that gentleman; and that if it should prove highly useful, (which few can doubt) in the punishment and repression of crime, no slight share of the honour of its adoption will rest upon his name.

The names of the undersigned having been included in the recent appointment of a Board of Inspectors, and of a Warden made by your Excellency, in conformity to the statute passed for the maintenance and government of the Penitentiary, the expediency of transferring to those officers the further prosecution of the work assigned the Commissioners, is now suggested and respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM POWERS, Superintendent.

KINGSTON DECEMBER 17th, 1824.

To the Commissioners for erecting the Penitentiary

GENTLEMEN,

In answer to your note of enquiry respecting the number of Keepers and Watchmen, beside the head Watchman, that will be required at the Penitentiary when there are 25, 50, or 100 convicts, I would remark, that if a yard should be enclosed with plank 12 feet high (which would serve very well a number of years and till a wall could be built by the labor of convicts) I think for 25 convicts, three keepers will be necessary; four for 50, and six for 100. Of Watchmen. (exclusive of the head or chief Watchman) I think seven will be required to commence with, and the same number will answer for any number of convicts. The Commissioners are aware that the number of keepers required for few convicts will be much greater in proportion than for many. The necessary increase of keepers will bear no proportion to the increase of convicts. When there are only twenty-five convicts, it would not be proper there should be less than two keepers present at all times when the prison is open.

The keepers require to be relieved twice every day to get their meals; by taking their meals at different hours, one keeper can get his own meal and relieve two others. One third of the keepers will be necessarily absent at a time during the hours they take their meals. In case of sickness or necessary absence of a keeper, the head watchman might be called to relieve. The number of Watchmen I have stated will be necessary to attend to the different posts and duties; to wit, one at the gate, one to attend the doors in keeper's hall, two as sentinel, and four including the head watchman, to relieve the others, wait on visitors, send on errands, &c. After the discipline becomes established, the wall made around the yard and keepers increased, I think one watchman on duty as sentinel will be sufficient. I believe eight watchmen will be as few as will answer, considering the night duty which they will have to perform. If it would not be deemed officious and impertinent in me, I would beg leave to make a few remarks in regard to the wages of the keepers. It will be admitted that the duties of keepers are arduous. They are obliged to attend at the prison as soon in the morning as there is day light sufficient to commence work, and to remain there while the day light lasts, except in the longest days; and during the long days the prison will still have to be opened at an early hour.

They are necessarily confined to the shops the whole day, except barely time sufficient to get their breakfasts and dinners. Such constant confinement is not only very irksome; but the perpetual unabatable vigilance and watchfulness required while on duty in the shops, to see that the convicts have no intercourse with each other by word or sign, that they are industrious and perform their work well, and that they have no opportunity (if they should be so inclined) to injure or destroy any tools, stock or materials belonging to the prison or contractors, is indeed very arduous. It will be readily perceived that the qualifications necessary to perform the various important and responsible duties of Keeper, in maintaining that system of discipline essential to that security, economy and reformation contemplated and certainly attainable under the management of proper officers, are of no mean or ordinary stamp. The Keeper must not only have sufficient learning to keep the books and accounts of the shops, but it is also necessary that he should be a mechanic, and a man of undoubted integrity—a man of courage, presence of mind, and equanimity of temper, possessing that weight of character and dignity of mien and deportment, that shall be calculated to inspire fear and respect in the convicts under his charge. As the law has given to Keepers the power of chastisement, it is indispensably requisite that they should be men of sound judgment and discrimination to direct them when and what amount of punishment to inflict; they should be persons of ready discernment and observation, quick to see and detect any disorder or deception, committed or attempted by the art, invention, shrewdness and perseverance which generally characterize that description or class of men they have in charge.

In a word Keepers should be smart men, intelligent, discreet, prudent, courageous, humane, faithful, prompt, vigilant, and efficient, possessing that peculiar tact which is necessary for commanding and governing men, a qualification perhaps more rare than is generally supposed. A strict enforcement of the rules adopted by the board of inspectors for the government of the Penitentiary, is indispensably necessary to the prosperity of the Institution, not only as it respects its financial concerns but more especially as it regards the reformation of convicts which next to the public peace and safety is the grand object of the institution. To insure the enforcement of these rules, faithful and competent officers must be employed. It will be impossible for the Warden, let his own personal abilities and exertions be ever so well adapted and active without the aid of competent subordinate officers, to commence establish and maintain that system of discipline from which such important results (as the maintenance of convicts by their own labour and the reformation of many) are anticipated.

It is not to be expected that the permanent services of men possessing these rare and necessary qualifications can be obtained without the allowance of a liberal salary—such a salary as will not only enable a Keeper, with proper frugality, to support his family and lay in store something for future exigences after his hard services, but such as also shall confer proper dignity and respectability on the office. The duties of the Watchmen, although not so arduous, nor requiring qualifications so important as those of Keepers, are by no means slight. They will have to be on constant and active duty the whole of the day; they will also be required, each in his turn, to remain at the prison on night duty, in the areas around the cells, constantly traversing the galleries and inspection avenues, to discover any disorder or communication that may be attempted by the convicts in their cells during the night. It is necessary that they should be perfectly trustworthy; for although they are not to have any intercourse with the convicts through the day, they will have access to their cell doors while on watch in the night when they can (should they be so inclined) hold improper communication with them.

When the prison at Auburn first commenced operations, the salary allowed Keepers was only $350 per annum, and the Watchmen $18 per month. These allowances were found to be inadequate to command the services of proper officers; accordingly, the salary of Keepers was raised to $450 a-year, and the wages of Watchmen of guard to $25 per month. After several years experience with this allowance, it was thought the salary of Keepers was still too low. It was found that this sum was barely sufficient with prudence and economy to support a family, and that Keepers (those, too, generally who were most competent) finding they were saving little or nothing, and growing weary of the confinement, and the rigid and strict watchfulness and attention which their duty required, frequently resigned their places, which had to be supplied with others not acquainted with the service, and less competent. Accordingly, a petition was presented to the Legislature at its last session, by the Inspectors and Agent of the prison, to allow the Keepers a still more liberal salary. I believe, however, this has not yet been done, and the Keeper's salary still remains at $450.

Yours very respectfully,

King, James. [Analysis of his evidence].—Recollects the Reverend W. Fraser, of St. Andrew's having complained that he had not received the royal allowance for years; witness understands that the matter was afterwards compromised with Bishop McDonell, 228....the Catholic laity, generally petitioned the House of Assembly for an enquiry into the alleged misapplication of monies granted to the Clergy and Schools, and prayed for the abolition of all pensions and sinecures granted to the clergy, 231....Evidence of misapplication of monies before a committee appointed at a meeting called by Bishop McDonell: Rev.
Mr. Dempsey had been obliged to sign receipts to the Bishop for monies he never received; Mr. Gordon of Niagara said the same; Cardinal Weld presented for gratuitous distribution a quantity of sacred vestments and church plate which Bishop McDonell sold to the Clergy, took their notes, and stopped the amount out of the government appropriation, 233.

[Second examination]—The government Pensions convert some of the Catholic Clergy into politicians, and as Bishop McDonell is a pensioner and independent of the people he is less anxious to promote the religion of which he is at the head....witness believes the disputes between the Bishop and Doctor O'Grady had their origin in politics....the Bishop was displeased with Dr.
O'Grady for not endeavouring to insure success to an exclusive meeting of the Catholics called for political purposes by Mr. Baby the Inspector General....witness refused to go with the Bishop to a similar meeting, 514.

The Council have no desire to become acquainted with the contents of the statements submitted to them by His Majesty's command; the statement had been made in a spirit of wanton and intemperate hostility to the Legislative and Executive authorities, p. 94. . . . his Lordship accused of having received in a condescending and respectful manner representations evidently "outrageously insulting to the constituted authorities," and which the Legislative Council view "with the most unqualified contempt," p. 94. . . . the people have pursued their avocations contentedly from the day when the author of these abusive papers left Upper Canada. . . . papers which cast unmerited insults upon the Lieutenant Governor and Legislature, and some most worthy individuals, papers strung together with little order, bearing the marks of a reckless mind, and unscrupulously thrown before the government in disregard of high authority and in violation of official decorum, p. 94. . . . the Council regret his Lordship's manner of speaking of the complaints against the Government and its officers, p. 95. . . . the Council deplore the supposed necessity on the part of His Majesty's Government that it was necessary to quicken the attention of the Colonial authorities to their duty of promoting the religious and moral instruction of the people, by enforcing the suggestions of Mr. Mackenzie, who employs his education in sowing discontent among a happy and loyal people—his Lordship is reminded that the Council is not accurately described by him as "a board," but that the members hold their seats for life, that their duties are exclusively Legislative, that all their discussions are open to the public, and that for years, and but with one interruption, they have preserved a perfect harmony with the House of Assembly, p. 95. . . . the confidence of the Council in the prudence of the Parent State was in some degree impaired a few years ago, when they found a committee of the House of Commons "proposing to such individuals as happened to be at hand," questions "really pressing upon them as it were, to give a sanction by their voice to the opinion, that the [Legislative] Councils should be rendered elective," a change not then contemplated by the people and one of the last which a friend to the colonists would wish to see adopted. . . . His Lordship is told that his injunction that Archdeacon Strachan and Bishop Macdonell would best consult their convenience and spiritual usefulness by leaving the Council was altogether uncalled for, p. 95. . . . and the Council remonstrate against this assumed right of influencing the conduct of its members. . . . they trust that the "political unions," which threaten alike the peace and liberty of the people would not be introduced under Mr. Hume's recommendation, p. 95 & 96. . . . the course pursued by His Majesty's Government seems to the Council to evince a departure from all former usages. . . . they request that their address may be forwarded to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, p. 96.

SEVENTH REPORT

COMMITTEE

GRIEVANCES.

To the Honorable the Commons House of Assembly.

The Select Committee on Grievances, to whom were referred the Despatch of Lord Viscount Goderich, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, of date the 8th of November, 1832, with the Message of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, and several letters, petitions, and other Documents which had been addressed by William Lyon Mackenzie, Esquire, to the Secretary of State, accompanying the same—the Message of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in reply to the address of the House of Assembly for information concerning the dismissal and re-appointment to office of Mr. Solicitor General Hagerman, the appointment of Mr. Jameson as Att'y General in the room of Mr. Bolton, and relative to the expulsion of the said William Lyon Mackenzie from the House of Assembly in a former Parliament—and certain other messages, petitions and documents on various subjects of grievance and public and private wrong—have, in obedience to the orders of the House, made some enquiry on the several subjects referred to them, and agreed to the following Report :

In 1828, a Select Committee of the House of Commons enquired into the causes of those embarrassments and discontents which had for many years prevailed in the Canadas. This Committee conclude their report by stating their anxiety “to record their complete conviction that “neither the suggestions they have presumed to “make, nor any other improvement in the Laws “and Constitutions of the Canadas, will be attended with the desired effect, unless an impartial, conciliatory and constitutional system “of government be observed in these loyal and “important Colonies.”

Last summer another Committee of the House of Commons entered upon an investigation of the causes of Canadian discontents, but confined their enquiries to the Lower Province, the Right Honorable E. G. Stanley having under great misapprehension assured the House that the utmost harmony prevailed between the Lieutenant Governor and the Council and Assembly of this Colony.

Your Committee respectfully submit the results of their enquiry, together with the evidence. If it shall appear to the House that there is just cause of complaint, and that the government has not exerted its Constitutional powers to remedy the evils from which the people desire relief, the course to be pursued is to address the Throne, stating their grievances and praying redress. If, on the other hand, the House shall be of opinion that the government is administered impartially, with sound discretion and a single eye to the general welfare; that its officers and ministers enjoy the public confidence and worthily discharge their various duties, there can be no doubt but that the Representatives of the people will mark their approbation of their conduct by cheerfully placing in their hands the small Annual Grant, which in name, more than reality, indicates a popular influence in the government.

The almost unlimited extent of the patronage of the Crown, or rather of the Colonial Minister for the time being and his advisers here, together with the abuse of that patronage, are the chief sources of Colonial discontent. Such is the patronage of the Colonial Office that the granting or withholding of supplies is of no political importance unless as an indication of the opinion of the country concerning the character of the government, which is conducted upon a system that admits its officers to take and apply the funds of the Colonists without any legislative vote whatever.

Some years ago the people of the County of York held a meeting and petitioned for the redress of Grievances; their memorial was transmitted by W. W. Baldwin, Esq. the Chairman of the meeting, to the Right Honorable E. G. Stanley, and his advice requested as to the means of redress, which he most willingly gave. His autograph letter in reply, from which the following is an extract, is appended to Dr. Baldwin's evidence given before Your Committee.

[Extract.]

“Upon the subject of the Legislative Council, “(which I do not hesitate to say, without any disrespect to or reflection upon the individuals who “compose it, is at the root of all the evils complained of in both Provinces)—upon the exclusion of the Judges, with the single exception “of the Chief Justice, from all interference in “political business—and upon the necessity of “introducing some alteration into the present “Jury system—the three most important points “of your petition, you will find that the opinion “of the Committee entirely concurs with yours, “and that opinion I am disposed to support to “the utmost of my power.”

Mr. Stanley adds that the Constitutional remedy is “open to the people of addressing for “the removal of the advisers of the Crown, and “refusing supplies.”

Seventh Report of Committee on Grievances.

The patronage of the Crown, as now exercised in this Province, includes the payments of gifts, salaries, pensions, and retired allowances to the Clergy of the Methodist, Presbyterian, Protestant Episcopal & Roman Catholic orders, and to nearly the whole of the civil officers of the government, including Sheriffs, Collectors of Excise and Customs Revenue, Coroners, Justices of the Peace, Commissioners of the Court of Requests, the heads of the several departments and all in subordinate stations under them; to Judges of the District and Surrogate Courts, Registrars of Conveyances, Wills, &c., Commissioners of Customs, Clerks of the Peace, &c. &c. These officers hold their several situations only during the pleasure of the Crown. The Royal patronage also embraces the judicial establishment, many pensions, the nomination of one branch of the Legislature, by the name of the Legislative Council, and the appointment of its speaker and other officers,—the selection of the officers of the House of Assembly—the control of the Indian Department, of King's College, and of Upper Canada College—the appointment of the twelve District Boards of Education, and the direction of the expenditure of public monies in aid of Emigration—the selection of the Executive Council—the uncontrolled management of millions of Acres of public Lands—the appointment of 1500 commissioned Militia Officers—the sole control of the Military and Naval Forces—and (subject to the votes of the House of Commons in this case) the regulation of the whole Military and Naval expenditure.

The Crown also controls the expenditure of a large annual amount of local taxation by its power of appointing the District Magistracy during its pleasure—the justices thus appointed select the District Treasurers and a large number of subordinate officers, and exercise varied and extensive civil and criminal jurisdiction. The refusal of the bench of Magistrates of the Eastern District during the present Session, to render to the House an account of the receipt and expenditure of the local taxes and revenues raised from the people, and entrusted to the charge of these functionaries, under the authority of several acts of the Legislature, affords another proof that the system under which they are appointed requires instant revision; more especially as the complaints of the people of that District against magisterial peculation, as recorded on the journals, are of long standing.

The Crown appoints the members of the Court of King's Bench, and the Judges of that Court regulate at their discretion the tariff of fees to be paid therein by suitors. These judges are dependent on the Crown for such retiring pensions as it may see fit to award them, if any, and enabled to look forward with hope and expectation to the enjoyment of other offices and situations within its gift, by themselves and their families.

The Canada Company, the several incorporated establishments for Banking, Canalling and other purposes, and the Harbour, Dock & Wharf Companies, in nearly all cases, unite their patronage with that of the local government, and steadily strive to increase the influence of the Crown.

The Post Office Department, with about a hundred Deputy Post Masters, is under the sole control of the Crown—contracts are made, and all appointments held during its pleasure; the surplus revenue is transmitted to England. No detailed accounts of receipts and expenditure, have ever been laid before the Colonial Legislature. The rates of letter postage between the different places in the Colony, between this Colony & the others—and between Upper Canada and England, are very extravagant. The correspondence with Europe is chiefly carried on via: New York, which is at once the cheapest and most expeditious route.

Representations were made to the British Government that the Post Office system required revision, and a law was passed in consequence to authorise the several Colonies to establish Post Offices. The form of a law, such as the government would approve, is before the House, but its provisions are so inapplicable and absurd that no benefit would be derived from their enactment. A change for the better must be that which will give the Colonists the entire control of this Department in Upper Canada.

Salaries, Fees, &c.

By the tables of salaries, fees, emoluments, &c., it will be seen that the patronage of the Crown, arising from civil and judicial offices and places within its gift in the Colony extends at least to £50,000 a year (exclusive of the Clergy Grants) the whole being raised from the people themselves and not one farthing derived from England.

Up to 1827 an annual sum of £10,800 Sterling, or thereabouts, was voted by the Imperial Parliament towards the payment of the Civil list of this Colony, and it was not till April 1834, that the £4472 allowed yearly to Clergymen of the Church of England from the funds of Great Britain was withdrawn. Now, however, the whole expense is thrown upon the Colony, the inhabitants of which can exercise but little influence over a government which disposes of their property at its discretion.

Of these annual salaries, fees and emoluments, 117 persons receive, each under £100:—40 persons receive each from £100 to £200; 29 persons receive, each from £200 to £300; 23 persons receive, each from £300 to £500; 10 persons receive, each from £500 to £750; 6 persons receive, each from £750 to £1000; 10 persons receive, each from £1000 to £1500; 2 persons receive, each from £1500 to £2000; 1 person receives, £2,066, and 1 person receives £4,953.

On a reference to the table of offices, salaries, &c., it will appear evident that many officers there named could be dispensed with, and that, of the others, the greater part receive incomes which the services they are required to render, and the state of the finances of the Colony, do not warrant.

Upwards of £33,000 have been paid from the Colonial Revenues within the last eight years to the Lieutenant Governors, the greater part of which it is probable they save and carry to Europe. The incomes of Governors in the northern parts of the States vary from £100 to £1500 a year, and the incumbents are taken from among the resident inhabitants.

The salary of the present Lieutenant Governor, Sir John Colborne, with his other public sources of income or emolument, is about £5631 a year.* Formerly the amount of this income was less objectionable for it was chiefly derived from Europe and the Lieutenant Governors transmitted thither the surplus on their return.

£398 is the amount of the income of the Private Secretary to the Lieutenant Governor.—It appears to us that this office ought to be done away with, and the duties performed by the existing public departments which are abundantly sufficient for their discharge.

The Honorable Peter Robinson appears to have received of salary from the Colony within the last 7½ years £12587. His annual income is now £1721.

The Honorable Duncan Cameron has received since January 1827, £8624 12 besides a variety of other payments for fees, &c. There can be no pretext for paying this officer at the rate of £1033 a year, and then paying Mr. Jarvis £200 as a deputy to do the business of his office.

The Honorable John H. Dunn has received £11,534 of public money since 1827. His office is a very responsible one, and to it might be conveniently added the offices of several bursars, treasurers, commissioners and other public accountants in this City, with a proportionate saving to the public.

Mr. Robinson is the "Surveyor General of Woods," the "Surveyor General" is S. P. Hurd, Esquire, with an income in fees and salary of £742 a year or thereabouts. The history of this gentleman's appointment may be ascertained from his evidence annexed to this report.

Mr. Hurd was appointed Surveyor General on the 1st of November, 1829, and was ordered to be paid his salary and fees from that date in full for the first six months; then the Colonial office ordered that he should receive half the income of his office until the time when he should think fit to enter upon its duties.

Between 2 and 3 years after he was appointed he came into the Province and began to fulfil the duties of the Surveyor Generalship, and was paid nearly at the rate of £400 a year for the period in which he had neglected the office; while Mr. Chewett, the senior clerk, was also remunerated in full by the Province as the Surveyor General, for acting as his deputy, and has since obtained a pension of £400 a year out of the Province revenue by an order from England, and retired. Mr. Chewitt with his pension has the Registrarship of the Surrogate Court at £104 fees last year,

The multiplication of offices in the land granting Department creates great and unnecessary expense and much confusion.

Archdeacon Strachan's income cannot be easily ascertained. The application of the House of Assembly to be allowed to look into "the Blue Book" or official statement of the pecuniary affairs of the Colony sent to England, for the years 1824, 1825, 1826, 1827, 1828, 1829, 1830, 1831 and 1832, the Lieutenant Governor declines to comply with; and every effort of the Committee to obtain the particulars of the Archdeacon's income for a few years back, by questions put to himself, has proved unsuccessful.

Since the 1st of January 1826, Dr. Strachan appears to have received of public money, as Archdeacon, senior Executive Councillor, Rector of York, President of the Board of Education, &c. £7977; and for his journey to England in 1827, in cash and lands, other £4351. In all £12,828. Details and explanations are placed in the appendix, but we presume that the sum named falls far short of the gross amount.

It might have been expected that the offices of Clerk of the Executive Council, and first Clerk in that office, would have been consolidated into one at about £300 a year, and no fees, on the death of the late Mr. Small. There are very few duties to perform, and these not generally of an important nature, yet Mr. Beikie's name appears in the Blue Book for 1834, as Clerk of the Council at about £725 a year, together with a first and second Clerk at £250 and £200 a year respectively.

* This income will have been increased since the accession of the present ministry by His Excellency's promotion to the Colonelcy of a regiment.

The Honorable John B. Robinson's services for the last eight years have been repaid with about £18,000, nearly all of which is from the Colonial Revenue. He has obtained £400 a year for services as Speaker of the Legislative Council, over and above his other salary of £1666 per annum as Chief Justice. The situation of presiding member of the Legislative Council and Chief Criminal Judge of Upper Canada never ought to have been united in the same person. The Speaker of the House of Assembly receives only £200, or half the salary claimed by the Speaker of the Council for services far less important, arduous, and fatiguing.

Mr. Grant Powell, in his various capacities, appears to receive £835 a year, or thereabouts. The extra allowance of £200 over and above his salary of £200, as Clerk of the Legislative Council ought not to be continued; and his office of Judge of the Home District Court should not be held along with an office, which requires his services elsewhere at the same time as Clerk.

Mr. Ruttan's fees, as sheriff of the Newcastle District, amounted to £1040 in 1834, & to £1180 in 1833; such incomes indicate the expediency of some Legislative action on the fees of Sheriffs.

Mr. Jones's fees, as Clerk of the District Court for the same District, appear to have equalled £473 in 1834; very large sums were realized in some other Districts. In an office like this where neither talent nor legal acquirement is requisite, competent and respectable men would gladly act for incomes of £100 or £150, and justice be rendered at less cost to the unfortunate.

The absurd system under which the Collectors of the Customs are remunerated has already obtained the attention of the House.

Mr. Samuel Ridout receives £500 as Registrar, and £222 as Agent to the Land Granting Department; the latter office is a sinecure and ought to be abolished. Many of the Registrars perform their duties by Deputy, and it is believed that if their fees were reduced nearly one half, enough would still be paid for any services they are called on to render, while the expense to the public in conveying real estate would be greatly curtailed.

The salary and allowances of the Attorney and Solicitor General, at £1200 and £600 a year respectively, are unreasonably high. The Speaker, for three months in the year, is required to give his attendance daily, for many hours a day, and his income is but £200. The official services of the Crown Lawyers do not certainly require more talent, nor are they more difficult or arduous than his.

The Crown Office is a grievance of magnitude. The incumbent is required to fulfil duties which any gentleman with an ordinary education could perform, aided by a few clerks, at a slender annual salary; rumour had declared his income from fees alone to be within a trifle of £2,000; his own statement in the Blue Book for 1834, gives £1257 of fees that year, and £111 in salary, in all £1368. These fees are regulated by the judges, who have thus the power to remedy the evil.

In the detailed returns Mr. Jonas Jones' income as Judge of the District Court in three Districts, and other offices is shewn to be £916. In addition to the varied duties of these situations, Mr. Jones is the President of the Board of Commissioners for Improving the Saint Lawrence.

The Adjutant General of Militia receives £449 as salary and allowances, (besides his half pay as an ensign of the regular forces.) He is also allowed an assistant adjutant general to do the work at £200 a year, one of these salaries ought to be abolished.

Pensions.

Within the last eight years there have been paid to eleven individuals, in the form of Pension, out of the Province Revenues, but without the consent of the Legislature, about £30,500—of this vast sum of money nearly £4,000 have been paid to Colonel Talbot;—£4,000 to the late John McGill; £3,856 to Bishop McDonell; £5,998 to the late Sir Wm. Campbell; £3,333 to the late D'Arcy Boulton, Esq.; £5,555 to the late Hon. D. W. Powell; also £1,776 to the Hon. William Allan, to be by him transmitted to Sir D. W. Smith, Bart Northumberland. Had this sum of £30,500 been applied under a frugal Government, to the improvement of the Roads and Bridges, it would have done the country a great deal of good.

The civil pensions of the United States amounted in 1817 to $1,460; in 1821 to $1,500; in 1825 to $2,100, and in 1827 to $2,000.—This is the effect of having the management of their own money.

Ecclesiastical Establishment.

This consists of four classes—the Methodists,—two Conferences, not in connexion with each other. The Church of England—the Presbyterians, two Synods, not in connexion with each other; and the Roman Catholic Church. The Church of England has been upheld by the Crown since the first settlement of the colony. The Churches of Scotland and Rome received but a miserable pittance, until within the last six or seven years. The Seceders from the Scottish Establishment, began to receive a bounty for their spiritual services some three or four years ago; and the Methodist conferences had grants extended to them for the first time in 1832 or 1833. The Independents, Baptists, Congregationalists, Quakers, Lutherans, Tunkards, Menonists, Primitive Methodists and other sects do not receive any part of the public money, and several of the Presbyterian and Methodist Ministers refuse to accept any portion of it.

The House of Assembly, in several successive Parliaments, has expressed its entire disapprobation of the conduct of the Government in thus attempting to uphold particular religious sects by money grants; and in the 10th and 11th Parliaments, has declared that it recognized no particular denomination as established in Upper Canada with exclusive claims, powers or privileges.

The ministers of these Ecclesiastical establishments derive their official pensions entirely from the public revenue raised within the Province, and receive besides an income from their congregations; England pays no part.

There were paid out of the Provincial chest, without any vote of the Legislature, in 1832, 1833 and 1834, to the four Established Churches £40,441, of which £15,284 were paid in 1834.*

Methodists.

The "Canadian Wesleyan Methodist Conference" received £800 in 1833, and £389 in 1834; these sums were to be applied to the building of Chapels, &c.

The "British Wesleyan Methodist Conference" formerly the Methodist Episcopal Church received £1,000 in 1833, and £611 in 1834, to be applied (as is stated to the Lieutenant Governor by the Rev. Joseph Stinson,) "to the erection or repairing Chapels and School-houses, and in defraying the general expenses of the various Missions in our charge."†

Your Committee were unable to obtain an account of the expenditure of these monies in detail; It appears indeed that no such accounts had been transmitted to the Government Office in either of these years.

This appropriation to the Methodists as an Ecclesiastical Establishment, is very singular. In the year 1826 the opinion entertained of them by the Executive, is given by Dr. Strachan, who informed the Colonial Minister in England that the Methodist Ministers acquired their education and formed their principles in the United States; and they felt the suspicion attempted to be thrown on their loyalty so strongly, that they appealed to the House of Assembly, which enquired into and reported on the matter in the year 1828.

* £15,284 paid to the Clergy of 4 particular denominations in one year, is rather at variance with a portion of Viscount Goderich's despatch, that shewing undue preference to the Church of England was at variance with his whole course of policy, more especially as £9,602 of that sum was given to that denomination.

Upon another occasion they received a rebuke from His Excellency Sir John Colborne, as will appear from the document in the appendix containing His Excellency's answer to the Address of the Conference, requesting him to transmit to His Majesty their Address on the subject of the Clergy Reserves. Since, however, a share of the public money has been extended to, and received by them, there seems to have been established a mutual good understanding.

The Church of England.

To the Ministers of this denomination, as salary, &c., the government has paid out of the Province chest, within the last three years, the sum of £27,321, of which £9,602 were paid in 1834. For details we refer to the appendix.

Within the last eight years £3,559 have been paid to Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, for his services as Archdeacon and Minister of the Church of England. All this money was paid out of the Province revenues without a grant of the Legislature.

Presbyterian Clergy.

This christian denomination has received £5,541 within the last two years; part of which was to the Synod in communion with the Scotch Church, and the lesser share to the other Synod.

The detail of this expenditure, so far as it has been obtained, will be found in the appendix.

Roman Catholic Clergy.

Within the last two years £4,910 have been paid to the Catholic Bishop; a part for himself; a part for his clergy; a part for repairing and building Catholic Chapels and Churches, and a part for Educational purposes—the payments have all been made from the colonial revenues.

It will be seen, from the evidence annexed to this Report, that some exertions have been made by Your Committee to obtain the accounts and vouchers of the payments made by the Bishop to his clergy and others, and for building churches. The Lieutenant Governor has also directed an inquiry to be made as to the details of this part of the Ecclesiastical expenditure, but, hitherto, without success.

Glebes.

Between the years 1789 and 1833—23,905 acres of public lands were set apart by the Crown as Glebes to clergymen.

Of these there were given to the Church of England	22,345 Acres.
To the Scotch Church,	1,160 do
To the Roman Catholics,	400 do
To all other Denominations,	0 do

Land Granting Department.

Viscount Goderich's Despatch shews that this grievance, for such it was, has been in part removed. To what extent, however, the documents Nos. 7. and 8. of the Appendix do not very clearly shew.

King's College and U. Canada College.

The former institution is not yet in operation, although much required for the instruction of the youth of the Province in those branches of education not usually taught in Common Schools.

The latter is upheld at great public expense, with high salaries to its principal Masters, but the Province in general derives very little advantage from it. It might be dispensed with.

Viscount Goderich had His Majesty's commands to express the Royal desire, that the opinion of the people of the colony might be consulted with respect to the constitution of King's College. A Bill has accordingly been sent to the Legislative Council, sanctioned by a large majority of the House of Assembly, for the establishment of that seminary, but there is not much reason to expect that the Council will coincide in opinion with the representative branch of the Legislature on this important question.

Expenditure on Emigration.

Accounts of an expenditure of £31,728 18s 11d under the Crown Land Commissioner, in aid of the Emigration from Europe, were referred to your Committee, who, being unable to examine into all the details, sent for the Vouchers for the late Mr. Mount's expenditure of about £7,500 of the money in Adelaide, Warwick, and Carradoc. Their statements, No. 56 and No. 57 of the Appendix, will show the opinion they entertain of this mode of expending the provincial revenue.

Audit of the Public Accounts.

The present system is altogether inefficient for ensuring the application of the revenue to the purposes for which it is intended to be applied. The House of Assembly, acting by one or more of its committees in a session, cannot examine the accounts and vouchers of the several public accountants, owing to the very complex, obscure and unsatisfactory manner in which they are furnished; and as for the Executive Council, the law recognizes them not as auditors of the revenue, nor do they merit the public confidence as a board of audit.

Of the grant for the roads in 1833, paid about a year ago, nearly £12,000 entrusted to Commissioners remain yet unaccounted for.

The grants to Canals, many thousand pounds in amount, are in general very imperfectly accounted for.

The payments of Casual and Territorial Revenue, fines, forfeitures and seizures, are also very imperfectly accounted for, either to the country, or to the Crown or its ministers.

The remedy would be a Board of Audit, the proceedings of which to be regulated by a well considered statute under a responsible government; such a Board might save the country many thousands each year, but it is difficult to believe that any efficient means of auditing the whole provincial revenue can be provided by Legislative enactment, while the Legislative Council is constituted as at present.

Returns of Accounts, &c.

Many items of information required by the House and its Committees from the Government with respect to the public accounts, the receipt and expenditure of public monies, college and other funds, monies placed in the hands of individuals for the payment of clergymen or the building of churches and chapels, &c. have as yet been withheld, and the receipts and expenditure of the post-office department have been very unnecessarily delayed. In most cases the parties whose duty it was to compile these returns have had ample time to do so. In many other cases the statements required have been furnished to the house. The remedy for neglecting to supply returns in most cases, would be by a statute providing the time and manner of making them, and naming the officers who should render them to the Legislature; but it is well known that such an enactment would fail in the Council, which has an interest in preventing the enforcement of practical accountability to the people.

Little respect is paid, even in subordinate matters, to the wishes of the House of Assembly. In the year 1828, the late Francis Collins was convicted of an alleged libel for imputing to the present Chief Justice Robinson, then Attorney General, "native malignancy." This language was induced by the irritation Mr. Collins felt at the wrongful denial, by Mr. Robinson, of his right to traverse to the next assizes. He was, however, sentenced to a fine of £50, to be imprisoned in the common jail for twelve months, and to find securities to keep the peace for three years, and to remain in prison till he did so.

The whole proceedings of the first session of the tenth Parliament on that subject are full of interest, and exhibit a faint and imperfect specimen of the spirit with which the government was carried on, and the criminal justice of the country administered. It ended in a simple request from the Assembly, that the residue of the punishment might be remitted, Collins having already been immured in the prison for several months. This reasonable request was flatly refused by Sir John Colborne. It is, however, humiliating to notice, that a similar request was readily granted to a few favored individuals for the release of the Farmersville rioters, who had in the most shameful, premeditated and unprovoked manner, assaulted and beaten the chairman of a public meeting, held simply for the purpose of returning thanks to Lord Goderich for his Despatch.

Under the same disregard of the views of the House of Assembly, measures were adopted by His Excellency for the second Leeds Election, quite at variance with their known wishes. The Returning Officer, in his evidence under oath, before the Grenville Committee, declared Beverley, where the first election was held, to be an unsuitable place. It had already been the scene of disgraceful riots, destructive of the freedom of election, was in the vicinity of those violent partizans of Messrs. Gowan and Attorney General, who were the authors of the former riots, and remote from the district town where any rioters could be confined.

The Returning Officer also stated, that the time of six days, limited by the existing law for the election, was insufficient for polling all the votes in the county; and that without an extension of time the next return might depend on which could get their votes first polled. The Returning Officer was also judged and reported by the Committee, acting as they were under the sanctity of an oath, deficient in firmness, and the defence was declared frivolous and vexatious. Yet the same Returning Officer, and the same place were selected by Sir John Colborne for the new election, which was ordered to take place within so short a time that it was scarcely possible to give the notice required by law in the different townships so as to apprise the freeholders.

Under these circumstances it is not surprising that renewed riots occurred at the second election, which has by another Grenville Committee been set aside.

The Despatch of 8th Nov. 1832.

The Despatch from Lord Viscount Goderich to Sir John Colborne, dated November 8th, 1832, and specially referred to your Committee, is an answer to the representations of about 24,500 of His Majesty's subjects of this Province, transmitted to England by Mr. Mackenzie, a member of this Committee and the agent deputed by the Petitioners to urge their claims on the consideration of Government.* There is an error in the Despatch, which states the number of Petitioners by Mr. Mackenzie at 8 or 10,000, below the true number; a subsequent letter to Mr. M. from the Colonial Office, appended to this report, corrects that mistake.

Mr. Mackenzie also went to England as the Agent of about 10,000 Petitioners of the several religious denominations, whose claims Mr. George Ryerson was sent home to advocate in 1830.

The documents referred to your Committee are very voluminous, instead, therefore, of reporting them, some extracts have been made to which the Despatch has reference; these selections and other correspondence with the Colonial Office are appended to this report.

The Despatch itself recommends many very valuable measures that His Majesty had been graciously pleased to suggest to the Government of this Province, and which are eminently calculated, if acted upon, to render the people more happy and contented, viz:—

1. The passing of a Bill for the amendment of the Election laws.
2. The alteration of the Charter of King's College, in such a manner as shall agree with the wishes of the people—[acted on this year by the Assembly.]
3. The placing the Town Members of the Assembly on the same footing in respect to wages as the County Members—[acted on this year.]
4. Allowing all the members of religious denominations, who cannot conscientiously take an oath, the privilege of the elective franchise—[acted on.]
5. The interdiction of the disposal of Crown Lands to favourites, and rendering them the subject of competition—[partly acted on.]
6. The repeal of the law which excludes British subjects from voting at elections and being elected, until the expiration of seven years after their return from their residence in a foreign country—[acted on by the Legislature.]

7. The non-interference of all persons holding official situations in the Province at elections.

8. The strong recommendation of His Majesty for a universal diffusion of Education, especially among the poorest and most destitute—[acted on by the House of Assembly this year.]

9. The desire expressed, that the most ample and particular information should be given to the House of Assembly of the avails and disposition of the Casual and Territorial revenue.

10. The disposition expressed by His Majesty that the Ministers of religion should resign their seats in the Councils, and that no undue preferences should be given to the preachers of the Church of England—[to this recommendation, the Address of the Council hereto appended, was the answer.]

11. The reducing the costs of Elections.

12. The passing of a Bill for the independence of the Judges—and

13. The passing of a Bill limiting the number of persons holding offices to seats in the House of Assembly.

Mr. Mackenzie, in his efforts made in England for the attainment of a redress of grievances, was generously assisted by Mr. Hume, (who has always taken an active part on behalf of the people of Canada), and by Messrs. Warburton, Ellice, O'Connell, Grote and Roebuck, Mr. Viger, Lord Howick and other Gentlemen of liberal principles.

Among other subjects of complaint embraced in the Petitions referred to your Committee, were the neglect of general Education—the delays, costs and partialities exhibited in the administration of Justice—defective Jury laws—inconvenient polling places at county Elections—an imperfect state of the representation in the House of Assembly—the Primogeniture laws—the Crown and Clergy Reserves, and the large Provincial debt.

Upon these and other matters of Grievance, your Committee have taken the evidence of individuals of various religious and political creeds which they herewith submit to the consideration of the House.

The Legislative Council.

This body forms a part of the patronage of the British Government; they are the nominees of the Minister of the colonies, who can add to their numbers at his discretion. In continually rejecting the many valuable measures earnestly prayed for by the people, they may be fairly presumed to act in obedience to the power from whence their appointments were derived. Your committee examined some of the members of the council holding offices of emolument under the government, and from their answers it will readily be seen whether they are or are not under the influence of the Lieutenant Governors for the time being.

Capital may be brought into any country, but under an arbitrary, imprudent, and irresponsible government it will be impossible to retain a large share of it. Notwithstanding the encouragement given to emigration, as stated in Mr. Robinson's accounts; it appears by No. 5 of the Appendix, that the population of the colony has not increased much beyond the natural rate in an agricultural settlement of great extent, fertile soil, and spare population. The emigration at Quebec in these four years, as also at New York, has been very extensive. The more wealthy class of emigrants pass through Canada to the United States.

Justices of the Peace.

These officers are appointed by the Lieutenant Governor alone, during his pleasure. Their powers severally and collectively are very extensive. By a reference to the returns appended to this report it will be seen that they consist chiefly of persons of a particular bias in politics, and are a means of extending the power and influence of the colonial system.

Several witnesses were examined as to the mode of appointing Justices of the Peace, the character of the Magistracy, &c. Their evidence and returns of the present magistrates of the colony are submitted herewith.

A Responsible Government.

The Governors of colonies, like other men, are individually liable to all the infirmities of human nature, and in their political capacity, when left to act without restraint, they, no doubt, sacrifice occasionally the interests and happiness of the people, to the gratification of their own passions and caprices. One great excellence of the English constitution consists in the limits it imposes on the will of a King, by requiring responsible men to give effect to it. In Upper Canada no such responsibility can exist. The Lieutenant Governor and the British Ministry hold in their hands the whole patronage of the Province; they hold the sole dominion of the country, and leave the representative branch of the Legislature powerless and dependent.

Mr. Elmsley, a member of the Legislative Council, (the son of a late Chief Justice of the Province,) and formerly member of the Executive Council, retired from that body lately, and advertised in the newspapers that he could not retain his seat and act independently at the board. The Archdeacon of York, Mr. Markland, and Mr. P. Robinson, three of the present members of the Executive Council, have given a different testimony before Your Committee. Mr. Stanley, in his letter already adverted to, expresses his opinion of the Executive Council with great candour and frankness, as follows:

“I do, however, think that something might be done with great advantage, to give a really responsible character to the Executive Council, which at present is a perfectly anomalous body, hardly recognized by the Constitution, and effective chiefly as a source of patronage.”

In the Royal Instructions to Governor Sir Thomas Cochrane, dated the 27th of July, 1832, signed by Viscount Goderich, and printed by order of the House of Commons, your committee find the following passage:

“In accordance with the uniform course of precedents, your Commission constitutes a Council which will participate with the Assembly in the enactment of laws. It is not, however, to be denied that this part of the established system of Colonial Legislation has been practically found to be attended with some serious difficulties. The members of Council, deriving their authority from the Royal Commission, have not seldom been regarded with suspicion and distrust by the great body of the people. Their elevation in rank and authority has but too often failed to induce a corresponding degree of public respect. Even the most judicious exercise of their powers has occasionally worn the resemblance of harshness when opposed to the unanimous or the predominant opinions of those to whom the Colonists looked with confidence as their representatives. The Councils, it must be confessed, have not uniformly exerted themselves to repel, or to abate, this prejudice. The acrimony engendered by such disputes has sometimes given occasion to an eager assertion of extreme rights on the part of the Council, and to a no less determined denial of their necessary and constitutional privileges on the part of the Assembly. The Councils have also been employed as instruments for relieving Governors from the responsibility they ought to have borne for the rejection of measures which have been proposed by the other branch of the Legislature, and have not seldom involved them in dissensions which it would have been more judicious to decline. The effect of the institution therefore, is too often to induce a collision between the different branches of the Legislature, to exempt the Governor from a due sense of responsibility, and to deprive the representative body of some of its most useful members. Yet the compensation which might atone for these evils is not obtained, and the Council does not assume in the colony a position or an influence analagous to that of the House of Peers, because entirely destitute of that hold on public opinion which the property and independence of its members, as well as the antiquity of the institution itself, confers upon the Peerage of this country.”

In Upper Canada, where society doubles its numbers every twelve years, (while in Lower Canada it does so every twenty years) where new towns and counties start every year into existence, acting more on government than acted upon by its directions—obliging it to abandon schemes of improvement begun in one direction because population has by chance suddenly accumulated in another—requiring new laws and tribunals every Legislative Session—coming from several counties and bringing hither their peculiar affections, feelings, and prejudices: in such a country the government ought to follow incessantly the changes that work on public opinion—it should be cheap; because population and capital spreading constantly in the wilderness, there is no great accumulation of capital in a few hands, though there is a rapid one in the country; the people are above want but cannot indulge in luxury and ostentation—their display will therefore ever make highly salaried officers disliked by the community at large.

In Upper Canada the efforts of the Legislature have been directed towards improving the Executive Council; yet it appears on enquiry that that body affects to have done neither good nor harm*—some of its individual members may, (as is asserted by Bishop Macdonell †) have acquired influence near the Lieutenant Governors and misled them, but the body has few if any definite attributes, other than in the Land Granting Department, and, there, nothing but ministerial acts to perform. It is shewn in evidence by Colonel Rowan and others that the Lieutenant Governor may or may not shew the Executive Council his despatches, and may or may not ask their advice, and may or may not follow that advice after having asked it, except there be an instruction from Europe to the contrary. They are occasionally called on to report on special matters for the information of the government at home, which is often seriously and intentionally misled by them.

In the appointment to offices, and concerning the accepting or rejecting Legislative Bills, it does not appear that they have ever been consulted. Their power in the Land Granting Department has been done away in this Province by the appointment of Mr. Peter Robinson, and in Lower Canada by that of Mr. Felton, with whom the respective Governors (alone) are supposed to consult and determine on all applications for land. The Canada Land Company monopoly too, necessarily, renders applications for grants to the government less frequent. It appears to Your Committee that the Executive Council is a nondescript with which it is folly further to contend.

There have been three classes of persons examined before Your Committee—the first, of whom the Venerable Dr. Strachan is one, are of opinion that the Government is well enough as it is, and that as to responsibility it is as responsible as other Governments.

The second class desire a responsible Ministry—some heads of departments well paid, to direct the government, to prepare bills and most of the business of the session, and to hold office or lose it according as they may happen to be in the minority or majority in the House of Assembly. This system was never attempted in any of the old colonies, but Your Committee have asked many questions with a view of ascertaining what is the public opinion concerning its practicability here; and it appears that Mr. Mackenzie, in his letters to Lord Goderich, expressed a belief that with some modifications it might be productive of a greater share of good government and public prosperity than is at present enjoyed by the people.

A third class contend for elective institutions,* and affirm that while Governors come from without, and Judges are commissioned from without, favoritism towards their connexions will prevail to an extent that would destroy the influence of any set of "Ministers," constituted upon the principle desired by the second class; that the influence of Downing Street will continue to prevail as hitherto; and that the favourites of the Secretary of State will, as at present, be placed in important offices to the exclusion of better qualified men.

The facts connected with the cases of Mr. Jameson, Mr. Boulton, and Mr. Hagerman; the dismissal of the Crown Lawyers by one Colonial Minister, and the unexplained re-appointment of one of them to his former office, and of the other to the highest judicial situation in Newfoundland, a short time after, by another; the assertion by Colonel Rowan, to Mr. Boulton,* on the authority of the Lieutenant Governor, that the cause of his and his colleague's summary dismissal, was the part they had taken in the House of Assembly to promote the repeated expulsions of Mr. Mackenzie, after they were (it was presumed) made acquainted with the opinion of the Home Government on that course of proceeding; and the prompt and ready refusal of His Excellency to inform the House, in answer to its Address, of the reasons which had induced the Colonial Department to pursue the course it did in these matters, (although even Sir Peregrine Maitland has admitted in his despatches to Mr. Stanley on the Falls Outrage, that it had become the usage in the colonies, unreservedly to submit such correspondence to the Colonial Assemblies,)—these circumstances clearly prove that there is no responsibility to public opinion in Upper Canada, and it may be inferred from His Excellency's reply that he has instructions from England to withhold from the Legislature the official correspondence of the Colonial Department concerning their affairs.

The cause of the removal of the Crown Officers can only be learnt by Your Committee from the Despatch of Lord Goderich,* who expressly says it was done because they opposed the avowed policy of His Majesty's Government; the truth of which charge is abundantly notorious; nor does His Lordship seem at all to notice the personal indignity they had offered to himself even as a Minister of the crown. It is difficult to imagine on what ground His Excellency Sir John Colborne qualified the language of the Colonial Minister, and limited it to the case of Mr. Mackenzie's expulsion, unless it was to furnish the excuse which Mr. Boulton is known to have offered, that the views of His Majesty's Government had never been communicated to him as they had been to Mr. Solicitor General.† But although His Excellency has given this limited view without any known authority, yet we have heard Mr. Solicitor General publicly declare that his removal had not the remotest connexion with Mr. Mackenzie's expulsions and pretended disqualification by the late Provincial Parliament. The declaration therefore of His Excellency on the one hand, and of Mr. Solicitor General Hagerman on the other, are in direct contradiction; and His Majesty's government at Home can alone tell where the truth lies. It appears probable they were dismissed for opposing the views of His Majesty's Government, not only in the expulsions of Mr. Mackenzie but also from their treatment of Lord Goderich and of His Despatch, embracing a variety of matters of general interest and policy, and that they have since been restored upon irreconcilable representations and excuses the nature of which this system of concealment prevents our ascertaining.

The unexplained reappointment to office of the Crown Officers, Messrs. Boulton and Hagerman, men whose conduct and character were always particularly obnoxious to the people, created great dissatisfaction and distrust in the colony.

If reference be had to the British Constitution, as settled during the reign of King William the Third, it will be found that there are securities provided in it against Kingly or rather aristocratic encroachments. On that occasion the system of Government in England was remodeled, and the "Annual Assembly" of Parliament was rendered necessary in the "first place by the strict appropriation of the "revenue according to votes of supply. It was "secured next by passing the Mutiny bill, un-

I have ever been of opinion that the only way by which you can give to that body the weight and responsibility which they ought to possess is by introducing the principle of Election."

No such system of checks and balances to protect from Executive usurpation of popular rights can be found in Upper Canada.

The class of persons who are in favor of elective institutions contend, that they were found to work well in the old North American colonies while in a colonial state—that the people of Upper Canada are entitled to the enjoyment of institutions equally free with those enjoyed by the old colonists during the time they were colonial, and under British protection—that few politicians are now found contending that these continental colonies, capable of containing a large population, will for a long series of years be required to submit to the inconveniences resulting from perpetual interference by the Home Government in their internal concerns—that in the House of Assembly many useful bills are proposed and carried for many successive sessions which are continually thrown out in the Legislative Council, of which the return moved for in the House of Commons by Mr. Hume and appended hereto gives particulars up to the year 1832—that it is the wisdom of the aristocracy to try to make the people fearful of themselves, by raising idle cries about loyalty, republicanism, jacobinism, and revolution—that birth, office, or peculiar privileges ought not to give to a few superiority over the many—that the legislative council neglect and despise the wishes of the country on many important matters which a council elected by the freeholders would not —that the people, if united in claiming their privileges to constitute the second branch of the legislature, would obtain it, and that it is weakness and wavering among their representatives which alone can make them timid as to claiming the enlargement of their liberties—that the prejudices of early education, borrowed from books written by or under the authority of pensioners and salaried lawyers who have with one voice endeavoured to lull the people into the very erroneous belief that the union of church and state and the wisdom of former ages in devising great privileges for the peerage are the causes of the greatness of England, while in truth it is owing to what she has saved of popular institutions—that elective institutions are the only safeguards to prevent the Canadas from forming disadvantageous comparisons between the condition of the colonists and the adjoining country—and that the crown of England, by its ministers, exercised no patronage in Connecticut and Rhode Island; none in the other New England States, save the appointment of a Governor; none in the proprietary governments; and that hence there is no disloyalty in freely and calmly discussing which of these modes of government that have been granted to British subjects and countries will best suit Canada.

When Sir John Colborne assumed the government of this province, in his reply to the address of the legislative council in answer to his speech at the opening of the session, he expressed to them his opinion of the deficiency of independence in that loyal body. His Excellency's communications with the Colonial Department convey the same sentiment.

“With respect to the constitution of the executive and legislative councils, on which subject you require information, it is evident, that whatever persons may be appointed members of the executive council, there will be a considerable degree of jealousy existing in this limited community of their influence and authority; they must necessarily reside at York, and will seldom be able to accept the charge without holding other offices under the crown. On many accounts it is very desirable that the Chief Justice should retain his seat in the executive council; but there can be no doubt that occasionally he must, as a judge, be led too deeply into the political affairs of the colony.

“Composed as the legislative council is at present, the province has a right to complain of the great influence of the executive government in it. The legislative council consists of seventeen members, exclusive of the Bishop of Quebec; of those, from accidental causes, not more than fifteen ever attend to their legislative duties. Thus, out of the number generally present, six are of the executive council, and four hold offices under the government; I have therefore intimated my intention of recommending to His Majesty's government to increase the legislative council.

“It is exceedingly difficult to find persons qualified for it; but if about eight or ten more can be selected from different parts of the province, and the majority be considered

“ independent, there can be no good reason assigned for excluding the executive council.”

In the return to the house of commons from which the above extract was taken, it is noted that “ Since the date of the despatch, the Right Reverend Dr. Macdonell, Roman catholic bishop, and John Elmsley, Esquire, two additional members, have been added to the “ legislative council.” Of these the first named has a pension or allowance during the pleasure of the colonial department, and the last left the executive council, declaring that an independent minded man could not be there.

The dependence of the legislative council is strikingly manifested by the facts stated in the evidence of the Honorable Colonel Clark, and the Honorable William Dickson, members of that body, before a select committee of the house of assembly during a late parliament.* It appears that several legislative councillors had objected to a measure strongly urged by the executive, and its failure was inevitable. To ensure its passing, coercive means were adopted, and those members who were dependent on the government were told either to vote directly contrary to the opinions they had thus publicly expressed, or be dismissed from their offices. After this disgraceful attempt to coerce men to disingenuous and inconsistent conduct, those unacquainted with the threats which had been used were astonished at the sudden, unexpected, and unexplained change in the conduct of several members; and when this surprise was expressed to the late Honorable James Baby, (who was also an executive councillor, and the senior member) he shed tears at his humiliation, and only exclaimed “ my children!” “ my children!” and the late Honorable Chief Justice Powell replied to a similar enquiry of surprise, “ I have received a new light within the last ten minutes.”

It also appears that the last named gentleman was on another occasion obliged to have a protest he had entered on the journals erased, and the erasure can be seen. The protest of Chief Justice Powell was against a school bill, passed the House of Assembly, then uninformed of its bearing, under the ambiguous phraseology of which it was intended to give Dr. Strachan £300 a year. The bill passed, and Dr. Strachan for many years received this sinecure salary, till it was done away with on the address of the House of Assembly.

We have already adverted to the circumstance of the Chief Justice being introduced into the Legislative Council, of which he is Speaker; and altho' the House of Assembly have repeatedly pointed out to His Majesty's Government, the inexpediency, in a limited community like this, of blending the judicial and political duties together, yet the same injurious system is continued. Its impropriety has been lately manifested by the result of a pecuniary negotiation likely seriously to impair the independence of the judiciary and increase the distrust of the people.

The House of Assembly voted £200 a year to the Speaker of the Legislative Council, being the same as is allowed the Speaker of the Assembly, whose duties, as we have already stated, are far more arduous and laborious—but since the acts making the judges independent and providing for them, even undue salaries, a negotiation has been carried on which has ended in giving a further £200 a year out of the Casual and Territorial Revenue to the Chief Justice of the King's Bench.

As long as these pecuniary inducements and bonuses can be held out to those occupying the judiciary we cannot consider it practically in a better or safer condition than it used to be: and Your Committee would suggest the propriety of addressing His Majesty's Government on the subject of thus exercising undue influence on the judiciary or even countenancing negotiations derogatory from its presumed independence and purity, which ought to be above suspicion. This additional salary ought to be disallowed.

It appears therefore that the Legislative Council, as at present constituted, has utterly failed, and never can be made to answer the ends for which it was created; and the restoration of legislative harmony and good government requires its re-construction on the elective principle.

The opinions of Mr. Fox, Mr. Stanley, Earl Grey, Lord Erskine, Mr. Ellice, Mr. Hume, Sir James Mackintosh, Mr. O'Connell, Mr. Warburton, and many other eminent British Statesmen, have been expressed in favour of elective institutions as the most suitable for the Canadas; and it appears to Your Committee that Mr. Stanley correctly describes the Legislative Council as being “ at the root of all the evils complained of in both Provinces.”

The affairs of this country have been ever against the spirit of the constitutional act, subjected in the most injurious manner to the interferences and interdictions of a succession of Colonial ministers in England who have never visited the country, and can never possibly become acquainted with the state of parties, or the conduct of public functionaries, except through official channels in the province which are illy calculated to convey the information necessary to disclose official delinquencies and correct public abuses. A painful experience has proved how impracticable it is for such a succession of strangers beneficially to direct and control the affairs of the people 4000 miles off; and being an impracticable system, felt to be intolerable by those for whose good it was professedly intended, it ought to be abolished, and the domestic institutions of the province so improved and administered by the local authorities as to render the people happy and contented.

Such appears to have been the constitutional liberty conferred upon us by the 31st Geo. 3rd ch. 31, by which the British legislature enables us to preserve "the peace, welfare, and good government of the province," reserving to His Majesty, as the head of the empire, the power of disallowing any colonial act incompatible with national treaties, with the rights of any other colonies, or with the commercial or general interests of the empire. Such a system of government, securing to the people inestimable blessings, would rather durably enlarge than impair the commercial relations with the parent state, in exchange for which we receive protection; and could in no wise prejudicially affect any benefits now yielded to her, except the loss, if loss it can be called, of that patronage the partial and impolitic distribution of which has ever proved unsatisfactory and injurious to the colony.

It appears to your Committee that it is more important than legislation, rendered fruitless as it is by the Legislative Council, to adopt such measures as are likely to ensure such an alteration in the system of our public affairs as seems indispensable for the peace, welfare, and good government of this important part of His Majesty's dominions. The history of all colonies shew that there has been too much inattention in the British government in the selection of Governors, it being considered a matter merely of patronage with the colonial minister, in Downing Street. Men, from the too long possession of lucrative power, whatever at first might be their relative stations soon acquire a community of interests, and thus identified in the purpose of sustaining each other in office, they have in this province made common cause against that redress of our grievances, and that conciliation of the public mind, and that economy of the public wealth, which are equally dictated by justice and wisdom.

Although the members of the Executive Council seem from their own account to render no benefit to the country, receiving however a salary from it, yet a very different duty is imposed upon them by the 31st Geo. 3rd, chap. 31, called the constitutional act, from which it appears they are appointed expressly to advise His Excellency upon the affairs of the Province. This they have never done satisfactorily. As far back as the first Session of the 10th Provincial Parliament, the House of Assembly expressed their dissatisfaction to His Excellency Sir John Colborne, in the most constitutional mode of doing so, at the opening of the Session of the Legislature; and in the following year the same sentiments were again frankly conveyed to His Excellency in the answer to His Speech from the Throne, by a solemn declaration that the Executive had long and deservedly lost the confidence of the country. In the hope of their just and constitutional wishes being attended to, the people patiently waited for relief, but the relaxation of their vigilance, which some remaining confidence in His Excellency unhappily produced, has only served to bring disappointment, and to afford a farther opportunity for the accumulation of the abuses which pervade all our institutions.

The growing condition of this part of the Empire, in population, wealth and commerce, requires there should be an entire confidence between the Executive and the Commons House of Assembly; and this confidence cannot exist while those who have long and deservedly lost the esteem of the country are continued in the public offices and councils. Under such a state of things, distrust is unavoidable, however much it is to be deplored as incompatible with the satisfactory discharge of the public business.

When, in the year 1831, His Majesty was graciously pleased to suggest a further provision for the civil list, which the Colonial Minister required to be made either for seven years or for the life of His Majesty, the terms of the proposition were not candidly submitted to the Assembly, and notwithstanding the strenuous exertions of those who desired to make no provision at variance with the spirit of our constitution, the executive influence in the Assembly succeeded in carrying a measure for a permanent and extravagant supply, popularly called "the everlasting Salary Bill," while the liberal and gracious terms proposed by His Majesty on the subject were concealed and known only to those who feeling themselves to be above responsibility consummated a measure which has spread universal dissatisfaction and distrust. If this undue and impolitic concealment was practised from any pretended apprehension that a just provision would not be made for His Majesty's Government by His Faithful Commons, there is nothing in the history of the country to justify it, and as it encroached upon the constitutional privileges of the Legislature, there is no language of censure too strong against it.

It is not this act alone of which we complain, though it may serve to illustrate our condition, but the whole system has so long continued virtually in the same hands, that it is little better than a family compact. Abuses have grown up so as to be interwoven with every thing; and these abuses are concealed, or palliated, excused and sustained by those who are interested to uphold them as the means of retaining office for their private, and not for the public, good.

Hence it happens that the most gracious intentions emanating from His Majesty's government at home are frustrated by an interested opposition in the colony; an opposition which seldom reaches the knowledge of His Majesty, or His Majesty's Ministers in England, although felt most injuriously by the people. It did indeed lately come to His Majesty's knowledge from the unprecedented conduct of the whole executive and official departments towards His Majesty, when they received, during the late Parliament, the plainest and kindest manifestations of His Majesty's justice and liberality, conveyed in the most gracious manner through the Despatch of Lord Viscount Goderich, now Earl of Ripon; which illustrious statesman His Majesty had wisely placed at the head of Colonial affairs. This highly important document, connected with Mr. Mackenzie's negotiations in England, containing His Majesty's pleasure upon many important subjects, and making many valuable concessions to the wants and wishes of the people, was publicly treated in our Provincial Parliament, by men in office, with an indignity as ungrateful as it was unbecoming, and they even attempted by their votes, happily outnumbered, to suppress the despatch by returning it to His Excellency who was directed by the Earl of Ripon to make it public. On the 24th day of January, 1833, in the House of Assembly, it was moved in amendment to a motion for printing the despatch and documents, (in accordance with the wishes and instructions of the noble Earl,) that it be

"Resolved, that it is expedient to address His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, thanking him for His Message of Saturday last, and assuring him that this House is duly sensible of His Excellency's anxiety to communicate whatever information he may consider important to the welfare of the Province, and informing His Excellency, that this House, for the reasons set forth in the foregoing resolutions, is unwilling to place on its Journals the documents sent down by His Excellency; and requesting him to allow this House TO RETURN THE DESPATCH OF LORD GODERICH, and the accompanying documents to His Excellency."

The House divided on this amendment, and the Yeas and Nays were taken as follows:

From this it appears, that the two Crown officers, and other public officers, were in a minority of five in an attempt to send THE DESPATCH of Lord Goderich back to his Excellency. The same conduct was pursued by them upon all the divisions upon that question, as will be seen by a reference to the Journals of that date.

The Crown Lawyers and other officers had directed their objections both against the despatch and the documents which accompanied it; nor was Lord Goderich personally spared. All the members of the present Executive Council joined in an unanimous vote in a similar expression of censure against this communication of His Majesty's pleasure. Nevertheless they still continue in the service of His Majesty over his Canadian people, who have on various occasions utterly renounced and disclaimed these indecorous and impolitic proceedings. Thus was exhibited in the Provincial Legislature the political phenomenon of men repelling in an insulting manner the gracious concessions of their Sovereign and presumptuously interposing between him and his people as an insurmountable barrier to his royal benefactions.

On another occasion, the same disregard of the views of His Majesty's Government was openly practised by the repeated expulsions of one of the members for the County of York; and altho' the latter expulsions were effected against the case of Mr. Wilkes in the British House of Commons, against the well established law of the land, and against the well known judgment of His Majesty's Government, officially communicated by a Despatch to His Excellency, and by His Excellency communicated to Mr. Solicitor General Hagerman; yet in this open and unconstitutional invasion were found the Law Officers and various persons favoured with His Majesty's confidence, by holding offices of honor and trust during pleasure. And on a late occasion when the present Parliament voted the above proceedings, by a vote of 28 to 7, to be expunged from the Journals as subversive of the liberties of the whole body of the electors of the Province, Mr. Hagerman was found, with others, in the minority against their obliteration, altho' the only retribution that could be made to the injured constituency of the country. We, by all means, concede the undoubted right of the members of both branches of the Legislature to vote independently as they please, but we deny the expediency of allowing the justice and executive duties of His Majesty to flow through such unworthy channels, and thereby weaken the confidence of the people in the sincerity of His Majesty's Government.

His Majesty's Government, after much consideration, procured the passing of a law in Lower Canada, for the purpose of raising a fund for the relief of destitute emigrants; after which, all the Executive functionaries in this Province were active in getting up addresses at public meetings against the measure as impolitic and unconstitutional. And while His Majesty was anxious to preserve harmony between Upper and Lower Canada, the same public characters agitated questions and measures, (such as the annexation of Montreal to Upper Canada,) which threatened the dismemberment of the sister Province against her consent, and to engender between the two Colonies ruinous animosities.

This is a state of things which, the British nation, it is presumed, cannot desire to perpetuate against us. After the right was conceded to the present United States, at the close of the Revolution, to form a constitution for themselves, the loyalists took refuge in this Province; and, by an act passed in 31st year of Geo. 3. they received the charter of their liberties, conferring upon them a constitution for their peace, welfare, and good government. His Excellency, Governor Simcoe, was entrusted with the duty of putting it into operation, and in the first speech delivered by him from the throne, he made the following memorable declaration:—"I have summoned you together under the authority of an Act of the Parliament of Great Britain, passed last year, which has established the British Constitution, and all the forms which secure and maintain it, in this distant colony." And upon closing the same session he said "I particularly recommend to you to explain that this Province is singularly blest, not with a mutilated constitution; but with a constitution which has stood the test of experience, and is the very image and transcript of that of Great Britain."

It is reasonable for the people to desire to see these declarations from the throne, recorded on our Journals, faithfully observed by those in the confidence of His Majesty, and that these institutions may be made such as will secure to them their civil and religious liberties to their just extent. This country is now principally inhabited by loyalists and their descendants, and by an accession of population from the mother country, where is now enjoyed the principles of a free and responsible government; and we feel the practical enjoyment of the same system in this part of the empire to be equally our right; without which it is in vain to assume that we do or can possess in reality or in effect "the very image and transcript of the British Constitution."

The House of Assembly has, at all times, made satisfactory provision for the civil government, out of the revenues raised from the people by taxation, and while there is cherished an unimpaired and continued disposition to do so, it is a reasonable request that His Majesty's adviser in the province and those about him should possess and be entitled to the confidence of the people and their representatives, and that all their reasonable wishes respecting their domestic institutions and affairs should be attended to and complied with.

Your Committee would respectfully recommend that, besides the usual number for the Journals, a large edition of this report, with the evidence and other appended documents, should be printed in a portable form, as early as possible, and distributed among the members of the House, for general circulation throughout the colony.— And, as the affairs of the Canadas will probably occupy a large share of the attention of the Imperial Parliament during its present session, it might perhaps be advisable to transmit to London a certain number of copies for distribution among those members of the Legislature who take an active interest in Canadian affairs.

ORDERS

Of the House relative to the foregoing Report and other Documents to be printed in this form.

“Ordered—That, besides the usual copies for the Journal, two thousand copies of the Report on Grievances this day presented to the House, together with the Evidence, and the Report and Evidence in the case of William Forsyth, with the address and answer, be printed in pamphlet form for the use of Members and that the Clerk be directed to address them to the Members, with the Bills on Trade, &c. formerly ordered to be printed during the recess.”

JAMES FITZGIBBON,
Clerk of Assembly.

Mr. MACKENZIE, seconded by Mr. YAGER, moves that the Clerk be directed to prepare at the close of the present Session, lists of the titles of all Bills, which having originated in this House during the last or present Sessions of the Legislature, were rejected or declined to be acted upon by the Legislative Council; or which, having been so sent up were altered by the Legislative Council so as to cause their subsequent rejection in this House; or which having originated in, and been passed by the Legislative Council, were afterwards rejected by this House; stating also the titles of any Bills which being passed in the Legislative Council and Assembly, are refused the Royal assent or reserved for the consideration of His Majesty; and that such lists of titles be annexed to and printed with the last Report of the Committee on Grievances, as ordered by the House to be printed in pamphlet form, as also the Leeds Ballot Bill, with the votes at its passage; the Bill to amend King's College Charter, with the votes; and the General Education Bill from the Select Committee on Education, with the votes.

Mr. ROBINSON, seconded by Mr. MORRIS, moves in amendment, that all after the word “moves” in the original motion, be expunged, and the following be inserted:

“That the order for printing two thousand copies of the last Report on Grievances be rescinded, and that the said Report be not entered on the Journals of this House.”

APPENDIX

TO 7th REPORT ON GRIEVANCES.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE THE

Select Committee on Grievances,

To whom was referred Lord Goderich's Despatch of the 8th November, 1832.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 5th, 1835.

WILLIAM LYON MACKENZIE, Esquire,

In the Chair.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL WILLIAM ROWAN, Secretary to the Lieutenant Governor, called in and examined.

1. Whose business is it to make out this return? [The return of the names and the offices held by members of the Legislative Council and Assembly of Upper Canada shewn to witness.]—It was made out under my superintendence.

2. The first name of a member holding office is that of Mr. Boulton, then Attorney General,—Why are his salary and allowances set down at £300, when it was well known they amounted to four times that sum?—I would rather not answer that question, without seeing the original returns from the different officers. Additional Remark.—I now find that no further provision was made by the Legislature for the Attorney General until the 13th February, 1833.

3. If a member of the House of Assembly, holding office, makes an incorrect return to the Government, does the Government office correct the error?—Certainly, if known to be incorrect. The case of Mr. Boulton was an error and discovered after the returns were printed.

4. Can you inform the Committee why these returns were so long delayed?—I cannot tell why, except that it took a very considerable time to collect the returns from the different officers. They were transmitted on the 28th March, 1833.

5. Have Mr. Boulton and his children never received more than one acre of land in Upper and Lower Canada?—I cannot say, except by referring to his own return.

6. Did not Mr. Burwell hold the office of Deputy Post Master at Port Talbot in 1832-3?—I cannot say. I believe he did.

7. Mr. Richard D. Fraser's emoluments as collector of customs at Johnstown and Brockville are set down at £152 6s. 6d.—Do you know on what data that return is made out?—On his own return, I believe. No collector can receive more than £100 a year per centage.

8. Was not the office of Custom House Officer conferred on Mr. Van Koughnet, while he yet remained a member of the Assembly, and continued to sit and vote therein?—It was—he was appointed in October, 1832.

9. Lord Goderich refers to the annual returns of the official establishment of the Colony, as a proof of the smallness of the incomes of the public officers and the impossibility that it should interfere with the freedom of elections—can you produce these returns to the committee?—I cannot produce any returns without permission of the Executive Government. I do not think there is any wish to withhold them.

E

10. Are not the late elections in the city of Toronto, and the efforts made by Mr. Sheriff Jarvis, a high salaried officer, a proof of the justness of the complaint alluded to in Lord Goderich's despatch "that public officers are enabled, by their superior influence to overpower, by a lavish and corrupt expenditure, those who have no other recommendation than their own personal characters?"—I am not prepared to say.

11. Does the Governor alone, or the Governor in Council, appoint the Collectors of Customs, and Excise Officers of the Colony?—The Lieutenant Governor alone appoints these officers, generally upon the approval of the Inspector General.

12. Did Mr. R. D. Fraser petition or apply for the Office of Collector of Customs, or on what grounds was it given him?—I cannot say; he was appointed long before I came to the province.

13. Was not Mr. Fraser a member of the Assembly for a county when he received the appointment of Collector of the Customs?—I do not know.

14. Is it no part of the instructions of the Government to the collectors of customs that they shall personally attend to the performance of their duties?—I am not aware of what instructions are given; they receive their instructions from the Inspector General.

15. It is stated that Mr. Hagerman performs the duty of Solicitor General in person,—he was absent a year in England, was his salary and income the same as if he had been here, and who performed his duties?—Mr. Hagerman was on leave of absence—it is not usual to suspend or discontinue the salary of a public officer under such circumstances. Mr. Draper performed the duties of the office.

16. Mr. Sheriff Jarvis returns £100 salary as part of his emoluments—is that income still continued?—No, he has received no salary since the House ceased to provide the funds. In the case of Mr. Cameron, the salary is continued by a recent order of the Secretary of State.

17. Mr. William Chisholm is put down in this return as holding the office of Deputy Post Master; has he not lately been appointed Collector of Customs at a place distant from his post office?—He has lately been appointed Collector of Customs at Oakville.

18. Is he not a merchant trading at that place, and importing goods?—I do not know that he is a merchant.

19. Is it fit that a merchant should be his own Collector of Customs?—I am not prepared to give an opinion on that subject.

20. When appointed Collector, was not Mr. Chisholm a known candidate for the office of member of the Provincial Parliament in conjunction with his Post Office?—I cannot say.

21. In what manner are Justices of the Peace appointed?—By his Excellency alone, and not with the advice of the Executive Council. I am not aware whether he takes the advice of the Executive Council upon that subject.

22. Why is it that petitions of the inhabitants for the appointment of Justices of the Peace, are often unanswered and neglected?—I cannot say.

23. What mode is adopted for the selection of Returning Officers for counties and towns?—I cannot say.

24. As Civil Secretary to the Lieutenant Governor, do you take an oath of office?—No.

25. As such have you a Commission, or in what way are you recognized as a public officer, except by the charge transmitted for salary?—I am considered merely as a private confidential Secretary to the Lieutenant Governor, I hold no commission as such, at the same time all communications pass through me. The appointment is notified in the Gazette.

26. Under what authority are your duties regulated?—By the order of the Lieutenant Governor.

27. When was the office of Civil and Private Secretary established?—I do not know.

28. Are all the despatches of the Home Government duly enregistered in your office when received?—They are not registered in any way—they are all kept either in the office or in the Lieutenant Governor's possession.

29. Were there not other Despatches following those of the 8th November, 1832, recommending certain changes in the Executive Council?—I am not prepared to say, I only see such despatches as His Excellency thinks fit.

30. Is all the correspondence of the Secretary for the Colonies, with the Lieutenant Governor, submitted to the Executive Council or only such parts of it as he may think proper?—Only such parts of it as he may think necessary.

31. How would you act if required to give evidence before the House of Assembly, or to depose in any of the inferior Courts respecting Despatches which you had seen?—From the confidential situation I hold, I should not feel warranted in giving any information relative to Despatches or parts of Despatches passing through my hands.

32. The House of Assembly addressed the Lieutenant Governor for full and detailed accounts of the Casual and Territorial, Canada Company's Revenue, &c. for the years 1826, 1827, 1828, 1829, and 1830, after Sir P. Maitland sent an account, and were told by His Excellency that if he got permission from the Home Government he would furnish the accounts. Permission of the fullest nature has been long given, yet the accounts are withheld—why is this?—I cannot possibly say why they have not been sent; I do not think there is any wish to refuse such information, when applied for in the usual manner.

33. The House of Commons twice addressed His Majesty for a statement in detail, shewing what payments had been made in 1831 and 1832, to Bishops, Rectors, Missionaries, or other religious teachers in Upper Canada, whether of the Churches of England, Rome, Scotland, or any other denomination. Why are these returns still kept back?—They were transmitted to England on the 19th September, 1833.

34. Have the returns required by the House of Commons respecting the clergy of the different denominations of christians for 1831 and 1832 been sent to England?—(See answer to last question.)

35. We see, in the Canada Company's returns, a pension entered of £400 Sterling as payable to Mr. Chewett of the Surveyor General's Office—a pension of £400 to Colonel Talbot—a pension or allowance of £500 to the Bishop of Regiopolis—a pension to Sir D. W. Smith in England of £200—a pension to the family of General Shaw of £100—a salary to an agent here for the service of paying these pensions and other sums. These payments are made from the public revenue of this colony. By whose authority are they so made?—No pension or allowance is paid by warrant without the authority of the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

36. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the Judges to a large amount by order of the Colonial Office, out of the Upper Canada revenue, & without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive of the independence of the Bench in a great measure?—I am not prepared to answer that question.

37. Is not the appointment of Public Officers and Magistrates by an irresponsible Executive Government, destructive in a great degree of the power of the people in the constitution?—I am not prepared to answer that question.

38. How can a Bench of Judges, dependent on the Colonial Office for their customary retiring pensions, and independent of the House of Assembly, act impartially between the parties in cases where a collision may arise between the Legislative and Executive Departments in this Colony, or between the British Statutes and the Provincial Laws?—I cannot say.

39. What number of clerks and servants are employed in your office, and under what authority are they so employed, and their incomes regulated?—There are three regular clerks and two messengers, appointed by the Lieutenant Governor and provided for by the Legislature, and one extra clerk, on account of the increase of public business in my office.

40. Who made out the return to the Home Government of the Civil Expenditure for the year 1830?—I cannot say.

41. Where are public balances in the different departments deposited, and what may be the average amount deposited, paying no interest?—I have no means of answering that question—probably the public accountants could give the information.

42. Is the government in the habit of authorizing the sale of large blocks of land to individuals?—I am only aware of one instance in which authority was received from the Colonial Secretary.

43. In what office is the "BLUE BOOK" made up?—For the last two years it has been made up in the Office of the Secretary and Registrar of the Province, who is responsible for its correctness.

44. What are your emoluments and salary?—Salary £208 6s. 6d.—Fees for 1834 about £600 currency.

45. In the return made by His Excellency to England, Mr. D. McDonald is returned as Treasurer of the Ottawa District—Mr. Burnham a member of the Legislative Council, and Treasurer of the Newcastle District, is reported in His Excellency's return as having no office. Why is the fact as to Mr. Burnham not stated?—The return prepared for the House of Commons was made out from returns furnished by each member of the Legislative Council and House of Assembly—on reference to these returns it appears that Mr. McDonald stated that he was Treasurer of the Ottawa District. Mr. Burnham did not mention that he was Treasurer of the Newcastle District. The appointment does not rest with the Executive Government.

46. In the Blue Book for 1830, the salary of the civil or private Secretary is set down at £182 10s. and no other fees and emoluments. In the account sent to the Assembly for the same year, £347 of fees and emoluments are added to the £182 10s. Who compiled that book, or from what sources of information was it compiled—and can the above difference be explained?—The amount of fees of the private Secretary for one year can never be ascertained for some months after the expiration of the year, when the returns are collected from the different issuers of marriage licences throughout the Province; thus the returns sent to the House of Assembly at the commencement of 1831, could only contain an estimate of the amount to be received for 1830. In consequence of the sudden death of the Private Secretary in June 1831, while the Blue Book for 1830 was in preparation under his direction, the amount of his fees for that year could not be ascertained, but the amount for 1829 was inserted in the Book for that year.

47. In the Blue Book for 1830, the income of Thomas Kirkpatrick, Collector of Customs at Kingston, is set down at £282, and no more. In the account signed by Mr. Kirkpatrick himself, and sent to Lieutenant Governor Colborne to be laid before the Assembly for that year,* his income is set down at £506, stg.—Whence arises this difference? In the account transmitted by Mr. Kirkpatrick, Collector of Kingston, to the Government office in 1831, he stated the amount of his per centage, fees and portion of seizures for the year 1830, at £562 2s. 4d. the sum stated in the journals of the Assembly is £562 0s. 6d. The mistake can only be accounted for by an error of the Clerk in copying the figures.

48. The Blue Book, 1830, mentions £936 11s. 4d. as salary and fees of the Secretary and Registrar, Mr. Cameron—are not £258 12s. of additional fees omitted?—The amount of the Secretary and Registrar's contingent account for 1830, viz. £258 12s. was omitted in the Blue Book for that year, probably from its being considered that that sum did not properly come under the head of salary or emoluments. (See the note to the return in the Journals of Assembly, for 1831.)

49. Why is it omitted to be stated in the Blue Book for 1830, that Mr. Wm. Hands, in addition to the offices of District Judge, High Sheriff, Collector of Customs and Inspector of Tavern and Still Licenses, held the other offices of Treasurer of the Counties of Kent and Essex, Surrogate Judge, and Post Master of Sandwich?—Mr. Hands has not at any time been Judge of the Western District Court, but of the Surrogate Court, which it is presumed was inserted in the Blue Book for 1830. The offices of Treasurer and Post Master being appointments held under the District Magistrates and Post Master General and not notified to the Executive Government are not required to be returned by the Secretary of State.

50. Why were the Sheriffs of the Niagara, Western, and Bathurst Districts, allowed to charge fees on land sales, higher than those authorised by law? [We refer to Mr. Attorney General Boulton's Report, Assembly's Journals, 1831, page 144, printed copy.]—It is not in my power to answer that question.

51. Who compiled the return of the Civil Establishment for 1830, and from what sources was it compiled?—The Blue Book for 1830 was compiled by the Clerks in the Office under the direction of the late Secretary, from returns furnished by the different officers.

52. In the Blue Book, for 1830, Mr. Dunn, the Receiver General, is reported to the Home Government as being in the receipt of £200 and no more. His own return sent to the Assembly through your office for the same year, is upwards of £1000; why this difference?—It appears that in the year 1829, the amount deducted by the Receiver General for his per centage, was inserted in the Blue Book for that year, but in the book for 1830 the column under the head of fees was left blank. This accidental omission may have arisen, either from a second return not having been sent in by the Receiver General in 1831, or from a supposition that the Bill introduced into the House of Assembly in January, 1831, for commuting the per centage and increasing the salary of the Receiver General might make an alteration necessary in the form of the return of his income. It may be observed, with respect to this omission, that in the returns of 1829 and 1831, the income of the Receiver General is stated, and that about the period when the Blue Book for 1830 was transmitted a memorial was forwarded to the Lords of the Treasury by the Lieutenant Governor from Mr. Dunn, in which all the circumstances relative to the amount of his income and the loss of the per centage were stated.

[The witness withdrew.]

ELIAS MOORE, ESQ., M. P. P. FOR THE COUNTY OF MIDDLESEX, called in and examined.

53. Does not the inequality of the system of taxation of rateable property, cultivated and uncultivated, afford just grounds of complaint on the part of the people?—I think it affords just grounds for complaint.

54. Are the unsold lands of the Canada Company subject to taxation or road dues?—I cannot say.

55. Have not the resident settlers, by the improvements they have made, and the House of Assembly, by its liberal grants for roads and bridges and in aid of inland navigation, given to the public lands their greatly increased value as compared with 1792?—Yes.

56. Ought not the revenue arising from these lands to have been applied to the liquidation of the war less claims, instead of increasing the public debt and duties on imports for that purpose?—Yes, that has always been my opinion.

* 57. Is it just to the Baptists, Quakers, Menonists, Tunkards, Independents, Seceders, and other classes of Christians, whose spiritual teachers receive no share of the public revenue for their religious services, that the clergy of the Kirk of Scotland, the Catholic Bishop and Clergy, and the Methodist ministers should, without the sanction of the Legislature, have a bounty paid for the performance of their religious duties?—No, I think not.

58. Would not the British Constitutional system, by which the head of the Government is obliged to choose his councillors and principal officers from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the Legislature, be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible mode of government?—I think so.

59. Why have you formed this opinion?—Because under the present system the people have no means of checking misgovernment.

60. Was not the refusal of the Legislative Council of this Province to assent to the Assembly's bills, in several parliaments, for appointing commissioners to meet those appointed by Lower Canada to consider of matters of mutual importance to both provinces, a proof of the necessity of a change either in the composition or constitution of the Upper House?—It appears to me that it was.

61. The undue preferences and exclusive privileges granted to certain religious denominations are much complained of—Would it not tend to strengthen good government if they were altogether abolished?—I feel confident it would.

62. Would not it be desirable that the Clergy and Crown Reserves, and all reservations of land otherwise than for education, were disposed off or public purposes, under the control of the Legislature?—Yes, in my opinion.

63. Would it not be better that the sale and disposal of the public lands and other public property were in all cases regulated by law?—Yes, I believe it is the general wish of the County of Middlesex.

64. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the exchequer or treasury of the Colony, and the proceeds applied only according to law?—That would be my wish.

65. Another subject of complaint by the people, is the continual stoppage of the bill for the more equal division of intestate estates—is the passage of that measure desired in your County?—Yes, it is.

66. Many complaints are made that the Judges and Clergymen of the Churches of England and Rome hold seats in the Legislative and Executive Councils—are not such seats incompatible with their spiritual and judicial functions?—I think so.

67. In what manner are justices of the peace appointed in your district?—They are appointed in a manner very unsatisfactory to the people; many of them are men in whom we can place no confidence.

68. Do you consider the Canada Company a benefit or an injury to the Province?—Are not the grants or sales of lands to this Company of speculators residing in Europe an improper transfer of the functions of the Government?—I have always thought the Canada Company one of the greatest curses ever entailed upon the Province.

69. A very large sum of money collected by direct taxation is annually entrusted to the Magistrates, they being irresponsible to the people, either directly or indirectly, would it not be more in accordance with the genius and spirit of the constitution if these monies were placed under the control of persons appointed by the qualified electors?—It certainly would.

70. What are your objections to an elective Legislative Council?—I am in favour of an elective Legislative Council, and I believe a majority of my constituents think as I do on that subject.

71. Did not Mr. Burwell hold the office of Deputy Post Master at Port Talbot in 1832-3?—I believe he has held the office ever since 1826.

72. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the Judges to a large annual amount by orders from the Colonial Office out of the Upper Canada Revenue, and without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive of the independence of the Bench in a great measure?—I do.

73. Is not the appointment of public officers and magistrates by an irresponsible Executive Government destructive in a great degree of the power of the people in the constitution?—I think it is.

74. How can a Bench of Judges dependent on the Colonial office for their customary retiring pensions, and independent of the House of Assembly, act impartially between the parties in cases where a collision may arise between the Legislative and Executive Departments in this Colony, or between the British Statutes and the Provincial Laws?—It appears to me, that they could not act independently under such circumstances.

75. Ought not those persons who advise His Majesty in his appointment of fit persons to fill the Judicial Bench to be responsible to the country?—I think they should.

76. Are you of opinion that the Chief Justice or any of the Judges ought to sit in the Legislative Council?—May not the Judge be called on in his Legislative capacity to pass opinions and enact measures of severity against the individual whom afterwards he may be called upon to try, as a judge, in the Courts?—I think none of the Judges ought to have a seat in the Legislative Council.

77. Would not an active agent representing the wishes of the people of Upper Canada in London, be likely to be of great importance to the Commercial and Agricultural interests of the Colony?—I think he would, if we could get one.

78. Is there a hope that the Legislative Council and Assembly, as now constituted, would unite in the choice of such a person?—No—I do not think they would, as now constituted.

79. Are you of opinion that the misapplication of the public Revenue is one grand cause why hundreds of thousands of acres of wild lands had to be sold, of late years, by Sheriff's sale, for arrears of taxes?—It is my opinion that it is.

80. Does not a vast annual additional expense fall on the Province owing to the continual rejection of Bills of a general character sent up by the House of Assembly rejected in the Legislative Council, and again introduced, debated and sent up by the House of Assembly?—It does.

81. Do you think that if the magistrates of each district had been responsible to the people, instead of the executive, that the monies collected from the sale of absentees' lands, would have been more advantageously expended?—I certainly think they would.

82. Do you think the local knowledge possessed by the Lieutenant Governors of this colony generally, sufficient to enable them to nominate independent men otherwise well qualified to the office of legislative councillors?—I think not.

83. The vote by ballot in elections is prayed for in many petitions both to the Assembly and to His Majesty. What is your opinion of this mode of voting?—I think it would be more congenial to the minds of my constituents.

84. Has any inconvenience resulted in your district from the selection of voting places at elections, and what places would you recommend for your county?—There is great inconvenience felt in the present mode of holding elections—I would recommend St. Thomas' and London as the best polling places—I think it would require four days polling at each, the county is so very large.

85. Do you think the Lieutenant Governors, of themselves, possess a sufficient knowledge of the inhabitants of the several districts to enable them to select judicious persons as Justices of the Peace?—I think not, judging from past experience.

(The Witness withdrew.)

JAMES WILSON, Esq. M. P. P. (FOR PRINCE EDWARD,) called in and examined.

86. Has any inconvenience resulted in your District from the selection of voting places at elections, and what places would you recommend for your County?—I think it would accommodate the people of the District of Prince Edward if the Elections in future were to be held at Hallowell and Demorestville, three days at each place.

87. Have the monies arising from the sale of wild lands for assessed taxes, or from payments on such assessments on these lands, been prudently expended by the Magistrates in your District?—I cannot speak particularly as to my own District, but in the Newcastle District the proceeds from wild lands sales have been illegally applied towards the erection at Amherst of a Court House and Gaol.

88. Do you think that the Lieutenant Governors of themselves, possess a sufficient knowledge of the inhabitants of the several Districts to enable them to select judicious persons as Justices of the Peace?—No, I do not. I think a system of favoritism prevails in regard to such appointments. I do not think His Excellency is acquainted with the character of those who are recommended to him. I think unfit men in several cases are appointed and very worthy men neglected.

89. Does not the inequality of the system of taxation of rateable property, cultivated or uncultivated, afford just grounds of complaint on the part of the people?—I think it does; the industry of the country is highly taxed, while the Canada Company Reserves escape taxation.

90. Have not the resident settlers, by the improvements they have made, and the House of Assembly, by its liberal grants for Roads, Bridges, and in aid of Inland Navigation, given to the public lands their greatly increased value as compared with 1792?—I have always thought that it was the industry of the people of this country that has given value to the waste lands of the Colony.

91. Ought not the revenue arising from these lands to have been applied to the liquidation of the War Loss claims, instead of increasing the public debt and duties on imports for that purpose?—I think they ought—I do not think the inhabitants of the country, who did not provoke the war with the United States, ought to have paid the war losses out of their hard labours.

92. Are the Lands granted to the U. E. Loyalists as the reward of their services, of which the first Governor of this Province makes honorable mention, free from taxes and road dues?—No.

93. Is not the natural depravity of the human disposition such, that every Government, unless its measures are subject to the controlling ordeal of public opinion, has a tendency to despotism?—I think it has.

94. Would not the British Constitutional system, by which the head of the Government is obliged to choose his councillors and principal officers from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the Legislature, be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible form of Government?—I have not the smallest doubt of it.

95. Why have you formed this opinion?—I have long been of opinion that men have been appointed in this Province to give counsel to His Excellency who were not properly acquainted with the wants of the inhabitants of the country.

96. Is it just to the Baptists, Quakers, Menonists, Tunkards, Independents, Seceders and other classes of christians, whose spiritual Teachers receive no share of the public revenue for their religious services, that the clergy of the Kirk of Scotland, the Catholic Bishop and Clergy, and the Methodist Ministers should, without the sanction of the Legislature, have a bounty paid for the performance of their religious duties?—I never liked the plan of paying Clergymen money out of the public funds. I think it an erroneous plan altogether and a wanton expenditure of the public money.

97. The undue preferences and exclusive privileges granted to certain religious denominations, are much complained of—would it not tend to strengthen good government if they were altogether abolished?—I think it would—I also think that every good christian would support his own Clergyman.

98. What check would you propose on hasty, partial and injurious legislation in England, affecting the commerce and through it the general interests and prosperity in this Colony?—I think we should have an Agent in England near His Majesty's Ministers; and that, should measures be brought forward affecting our trade and interests, he would be enabled to remonstrate against whatever would operate to our disadvantage.

99. Do you believe that the Legislative Council, as at present constituted, would agree with the people in the appointment of such a person?—The Legislative Council generally have their eye on one class of persons, while frequently the House of Assembly have theirs on a different class. I frequently see a division in the House of Assembly on such subjects. One party being aristocratical in their views, while the other party are constitutional.

100. Would not it be desirable that the Clergy and Crown Reserves and all reservations of land, otherwise than for Education, were disposed of for public purposes under the controul of the Legislature?—If that plan had been adopted sooner it would have been of essential service both to England and Canada.

101. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the Exchequer or Treasury of the Colony and the proceeds applied only according to law?—I think it the most proper way. The Legislature ought to husband well the revenues, and be accountable for the same to the people.

102. What check has the House of Assembly on the other branches of the Government as a means of preventing Executive usurpations of popular rights?—The only check they have is in the imposition of taxes.

103. Another subject of complaint by the people is the continual stoppage of the Bill for the more equal division of Intestate Estates; Is the passage of that measure desired in your county?—It is a measure greatly desired by most of the inhabitants.

104. It is a complaint by many, that the business of Banking in this Province is an injurious monopoly; what are your sentiments on this subject?—My opinion is, that it is an injurious system, unsuitable entirely to the wants of the people—it is beneficial to the few, but injurious both to the agricultural and commercial interests of the Colony.

105. Many complaints are made that the judges and clergymen of the Church of England and Rome hold seats in the Legislative and Executive Councils; are not such seats incompatible with their spiritual and judicial functions?—I think they are—and I think the clergy would be better employed attending to their clerical duties.

106. In what manner are appointments in the Militia made in your district?—There has been a good deal of complaint; those who served in the militia during the late war, also sons of U. E. Loyalists, and other old respectable settlers, complain that persons were placed over them who have no claim on account of their services.

107. What are your objections to an Elective Legislative Council?—If the present system cannot be improved, I would have no objection to its being elective—but if an amendment to the present system could be effected I would stand by the present constitution.

108. Do you consider the Canada Company a benefit or an injury to the Province? Are not the grants or sales of land to this company of speculators, residing in Europe, an improper transfer of the functions of the Government?—I have thought the Canada Company would be an advantage to the country by bringing in a number of respectable settlers, but some objections have arisen in my mind respecting the way they obtained their contract for the large tracts of land from the Government. That they have had it in their power to monopolize and raise the price of the lands now in their hands to the injury of such as wish to settle in the country, and I have understood that they have rather infringed on the political rights of the country.

109. A very large sum of money, collected by direct taxation, is annually entrusted to the magistrates, they being irresponsible to the people either directly or indirectly, would it not be more in accordance with the genius and spirit of the constitution if these monies were placed under the control of persons appointed by the qualified electors?—I think that if the people had it in their power to appoint a number of discreet men, with the magistrates, to look at the district accounts, and direct, also with the magistrates, the expenditure of the same, that an improvement would be effected.

110. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the judges to a large annual amount, by orders from the Colonial Office, out of the Upper Canada revenue, and without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive of the independence of the bench in a great measure?—I do consider it to be an injurious and oppressive system.

111. How can a bench of Judges dependent on the Colonial Office for their customary retiring pensions, and independent of the House of Assembly, act impartially between the parties in cases where a collision may arise between the Legislative and Executive Departments in this Colony, or between the British Statutes and the Provincial Laws?—I think they cannot.

112. Ought not those persons who advise His Majesty in his appointments of fit persons to fill the judicial bench to be responsible to the country?—I think they ought.

113. Are you of opinion that the Chief Justice or any of the Judges ought to sit in the Legislative Council? May not the Judge be called on in his legislative capacity to pass opinions and enact measures of severity against the individual whom afterwards he may be called upon to try, as a judge, in the courts?—I think it improper that the Chief Justice or any of the Judges should sit in the Legislative Council.

114. Are you of opinion that the misappropriation of the public revenue is one grand cause why hundreds of thousands of acres of wild lands had to be sold of late years by Sheriff's Sale, for arrears of taxes?—I think there is a mismanagement in our policy somewhere—I think that the nature of our standing in the country at present, with regard to a depression or sale of lands, may be attributed to the nature of things at present with respect to various ways in which monies are gathered in the country; for instance, the sums going into the Canada Company—to the College—to the Crown—and to the Clergy Commissioner, have all a tendency to bring on a depression of business and lessen the circulation of money. The nature of our connexion in trade with Lower Canada and the United States, as also the system of Banking, tends to drain the country of its circulating medium. I lost 200 acres of land near this city, which went into the hands of the Hon. Wm. Dickson; and also many persons in the country lost their lands in the same way.

115. Does not a vast annual additional expense fall on the Province, owing to the continual rejection of bills of a general character sent up by the House of Assembly, rejected in the Legislative Council, and again introduced, debated, and sent up by the House of Assembly?—Undoubtedly it does.

115. When were you first a member of the Assembly of this Province?—I was first in the House of Assembly in 1808.

116. Do you think the local knowledge possessed by Lieutenant Governors of this Colony fully sufficient to enable them to nominate independent men otherwise well qualified to the office of Legislative Councillors?—I think not; they are generally recommended by other persons. I think there are in the Legislative Council a number of improper persons, particularly those holding office.

117. The vote by ballot in elections is prayed for in many petitions both to the Assembly and His Majesty—what is your opinion of this mode of voting?—I think it the most independent mode of voting, and that the majority of the country would like it.

118. Are the common schools sufficiently numerous and efficient for the wants of the country?—They are not. It is grievous and injurious to the people, the present system—the district schools have not suited the great majority of the inhabitants. The common schools ought to be more numerous by one half, and ought to be better supported.

119. What is the state of the roads in your district? It is indifferent, but better than in some sections of the country, owing to the nature of the soil.

[The Witness withdrew.]

VERY REVEREND DOCTOR Wm. J. O'GRADY,
called in and examined.

120. You are now connected with the press and the proprietor of a paper?—I am.

121. Do you know any law under which newspaper postage can be collected in Upper Canada, as a perquisite to a postmaster?—None.

122. Are not the letter postage rates, where they exceed one shilling and three pence, currency, on a single letter, (which is the maximum for the greatest possible distance in the United States) injurious to trade and unnecessarily burthensome on this community?—I think so.

124. Would not the British Constitutional system by which the head of the government is obliged to choose his councillors and principal officers from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the legislature, be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible mode of government?—I think no unprejudiced man can have a doubt on that subject. Persons filling office to advantage ought always to possess the confidence of the people—and when they have it not, I think, discontent must prevail.

124. Is it just to the Baptists, Quakers, Menonists, Tunkards, Independents, Seceders, and other classes of christians, whose spiritual teachers receive no share of the public revenue for their religious services, that the clergy of the Kirk of Scotland, the Catholic Bishop and clergy, and the Methodist Ministers should, without the sanction of the legislature, have a bounty paid for the performance of their religious duties?—I think it unjust and inapoltic. I have been always of the opinion that the ministers of religion should be supported only by the voluntary contributions of their respective congregations—and in my intercourse with the world, in various parts of it, in both hemispheres, I have invariably observed, that where religion or its ministers were connected with the state, its functions were carelessly and improperly discharged, and I have further observed that such a connexion had a direct and infallible tendency to demoralization, it made men, in their political creed, hypocrites, but not converts to any peculiar political system; the truth of this was well understood in Ireland, and hence it was that the catholic population in that country, in conjunction with almost the whole catholic hierarchy, have always opposed such a union, and often repudiated the proffered bounty of His Majesty's government.

125. The Committee understand that large grants of valuable cleared lands have been made of late, to clergymen of the Church of England for glebes. Is this within your knowledge?—I have heard it, but I have no knowledge of it.

126. Would not it be desirable that the clergy and crown reserves and all reservations of land, otherwise than for education were disposed of for public purposes, under the control of the legislature?—I am of opinion that all those reserves should be made available for the public welfare, and be under the exclusive control of the legislature of the province.

127. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the exchequer or treasury of the colony, and the proceeds applied only according to law?—Yes.

128. What check has the House of Assembly on the other branches of the government as a means of preventing executive usurpations of popular rights?—I do not believe it has any effectual check, nor do I believe it can have any such check as long as the revenues of the province are suffered to be managed and dissipated as they have been hitherto; my opinion is that the popular branch of the legislature should have the whole control of those revenues, and until it shall have become possessed of them, it is not the substance, but the mere shadow of a legislative body.

129. Many complaints are made that the Judges, and clergymen of the Churches of England and Rome hold seats in the legislative and executive councils, are not such seats incompatible with their spiritual and judicial functions?—I conceive that they are incompatible with the discharge of their respective functions.

130. You are requested to give your reasons for such a conclusion.—Amongst the many reasons that may be stated by me, I will only mention two, which in my mind are sufficient to sustain me in the answer I have given to the last interrogatory. In the first place it is essential, in my judgment, to the due administration of justice, that the judiciary of a country should be exempt from reproach, and even from suspicion. But I cannot conceive that they can be so exempt when they mix themselves up in the business of the legislature, and suffer themselves to be led by private and family feelings, and often times by the equally culpable motives of political partisanship. This is notoriously the case in this province, so much so, that as far as my observations extend, the judiciary have not that public confidence in the unbiassed discharge of their functions, which is so necessary for officers appointed by His Majesty to administer justice. As to the second part of the interrogatory, I think it must be quite clear to every man that ministers of religion may be more usefully engaged in the discharge of their sacred functions, but independent of this consideration, their previous habits of life, generally speaking, render them unfit for the development of the intricate science of legislation. I am fortified in this opinion, by the judgment of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor of this province, who intimated to the Venerable Archdeacon of York, some two or three years ago, that his services could be dispensed with, in both the legislative and executive councils, and I have reason to believe that his judgment was influenced by reasons similar to those I have already stated.

131. Do you consider the Canada Company a benefit or an injury to the province? Are not the grants or sales of land to a company of speculators residing in Europe an improper transfer of the functions of the government?—I think it highly improper and injurious to the best interests of the country, inasmuch as it tends to enrich a few land jobbers at the expense of the people, and inasmuch as it blocks up the country to the industrious, unless they may be willing to pay such sums of money, in purchase, as these land jobbers may think fit to demand.

132. What are your objections to an elective Legislative Council?—Considering the Legislative Council in the abstract, I have no objection to its present constitution, but viewing the materiel of which it is as at present composed, its dependence on the Executive, and its insufficiency for the purposes for which it has been constituted, I should certainly prefer the introduction of the elective principle. For the last seven years I have not been an inattentive observer of this branch of the Legislature, and I have no hesitation in pronouncing it a nuisance that ought speedily to be abated. It appeared to me that almost every popular measure originating in the elective branch of the Legislature met their disapprobation, and that they were hostile to any thing like innovation on the old system of abuses, against which the country has been so long and so justly protesting. From this and many other reasons, that may be enumerated, I am of opinion, that the constitution of the Council should be modified. Nor can I see any modification, that, in the present circumstances of the country, will give it usefulness or effect, save by rendering it elective. Indeed notwithstanding my attachment to what is good in the institutions of the country, I am quite clear that the people are the best judges of the capabilities of the men that are employed in Legislation for their benefit, and that to them alone should be entrusted their appointment. It is impossible, I should think, that a Minister four thousand miles removed from us, can understand the merits and capabilities of our Legislators better than we do ourselves, nor, judging from past appointments, can we be ever sure to find in the impartial representations of the Executive, to His Majesty's Government, a sufficient security against the appointment of unfit persons to that exalted office.

133. Can you give this Committee any information with respect to any bargains made between the Colonial Government and the Canada Company?—I would rather not answer that question.

134. The Committee has a right to the information it requires.—The only knowledge I have touching any transaction or bargain of the Company with the Government is derived from private conversation I have had with the head of the Executive. I do not know that this conversation was confidential, but certainly it was private, and, therefore, I should deem it an especial favour if this Honorable Committee would hold me excused from giving the required information.

(The Witness withdrew.)

FRIDAY, 6th day of FEBRUARY, 1835.

DOCTOR JOHN JOHNSON LEFFERTY, OF STAMFORD, called in and examined.

135. Has any inconvenience resulted in your District from the selection of voting places at Elections and what places would you recommend for your County?—I could not answer that question at present.

136. What is the most convenient polling place in the 3rd Riding of Lincoln?—I cannot tell, I am opposed to Riding Elections altogether.

137. Are the Common Schools sufficiently numerous and efficient for the wants of the country?—No they are not.

138. Do you think the Lieutenant Governors of themselves possess a sufficient knowledge of the inhabitants of the several Districts, to enable them to select judicious persons as Justices of the Peace?—No, I am certain they do not.

139. Does not the inequality of the system of taxation of ratable property, cultivated and uncultivated, afford just grounds of complaint on the part of the people?—I think so. A man owning 200 acres of land with perhaps 60 acres improved, will pay 7 days statute labor, while a poor laborer not worth a shilling, will be assessed 8 days.

140. Have not the resident settlers by the improvements they have made, and the House of Assembly by its liberal grants for roads, bridges, and in aid of inland navigation, given to the public lands their greatly increased value as compared with 1792?—Yes.

141. Ought not the revenue arising from these lands to have been applied to the liquidation of the war loss claims, instead of increasing the public debt, and duties on imports, for that purpose?—I think they ought. I think the government ought to have given us lands immediately after the war, to have paid off the losses.

142. Are the lands granted to the U. E. Loyalists, as the reward of their services, of which the first Governor of this Province makes honorable mention, free from taxation and road dues?—They are not.

143. Would not the British constitutional system, by which the head of the government is obliged to choose his councillors and principal officers from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the Legislature, be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible mode of government?—I think the Executive Council ought to be amenable to the House of Assembly, and that the Governor ought to be obliged to consult them.

144. The undue preferences and exclusive privileges granted to certain religious denominations, are much complained of; would it not tend to strengthen good government if they were altogether abolished?—Yes, I think it would.

145. Would not it be desirable that the Clergy and Crown reserves and all reservations of land, otherwise than for education, were disposed of for public purposes, under the control of the Legislature?—I think all these lands ought to be put under the control of the legislature.

146. Would it not be better that the sale and disposal of the public lands, and other public property, were in all cases regulated by law?—Yes, I think it would.

147. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the exchequer or treasury of the colony, and the proceeds applied only according to law?—Yes, I think so.

148. What check has the House of Assembly on the other branches of the government, as a means of preventing executive usurpations of popular rights?—Not any—the House of Assembly is a mere shadow.

149. Another subject of complaint by the people is, the continued stoppage of the bill for the more equal division of Intestate's Estates—is the passage of that measure desired in your county?—Yes, every where, as far as my knowledge extends.

150. What bank notes are chiefly circulated in the riding in which you live?—Chiefly the Agricultural Bank, they are three to one of the other Banks.

151. Many complaints are made that the Judges and Clergymen of the Church of England and Rome hold seats in the Legislative and Executive Councils, are not such seats incompatible with their spiritual and judicial functions?—I think they are.

152. In what manner are Justices of the Peace appointed in your district? By the Governor.

153. What are your objections to an elective Legislative Council?—I think we would not be doing right towards the mother county, to have the election of the whole of the Legislative Council—I think two thirds of the Council ought to be elected by the freeholders.

154. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the Judges to a large annual amount, by orders from the Colonial Office, out of the Upper Canada Revenue, and without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive of the independence of the Bench, in a great measure?—I think it a hardship that the Home Government should have the power to send us men 50 or 60 years of age, and pension them soon after, and employ others—I think they ought to be pensioned and provided for by the Legislature alone.

155. Are you of opinion that the misappropriation of the public revenue is one grand cause why hundreds of thousands of acres of wild lands had to be sold of late years by Sheriff's sale for arrears of taxes?—I do not know that this is the case.

156. Does not a vast annual additional expense fall on the Province, owing to the continual rejection of bills of a general character, sent up by the House of Assembly, rejected in the Legislative Council, and again introduced and debated and sent up by the House of Assembly?—Yes, there is no doubt of it.

157. Do you think the local knowledge possessed by the Lieutenant Governors of this colony fully sufficient to enable them to nominate independent men, otherwise well qualified to fill the office of Legislative Councillors?—No, I do not think they have sufficient knowledge.

158. The vote by ballot in elections is prayed for in many petitions both to the Assembly and to His Majesty, what is your opinion of this mode of voting?—A man that has not firmness and independence of mind to come forward and vote openly and decidedly, ought not to have a vote at all—but in the present state of things in this country, I think it would be better to vote by ballot, which I think would prevent a great deal of knocking down and picking up, and would save a great deal of time in trying contested elections.

(The Witness withdrew.)

WILLIAM DUNLOP, ESQ., WARDEN OF THE FORESTS TO THE CANADA COMPANY, called in and examined.

159. What was the original value of a share in the Canada Company?—£100.

160. Was that the nominal value?—It was the amount which the Company had the power of calling. The Company had an additional power of doubling the capital in case two-thirds of the subscribers agreed to it.

161. What sum has been paid on each share?—In 1824 there was £10 paid, between that and 1833 there was £7 more, and since that there was 10s.

162. What is the Exchange value in London?—The Stock Exchange value touched £53, latest information gives 42. This is not in any way connected with the operations of the Company, but is owing to the scarcity of bullion arising from the quantity exported to the United States, and the hoarding of bullion consequent on the unsettled state of Europe.

163. Another subject of complaint by the people is the continual stoppage of the bill for the more equal division of Intestate's Estates—is the passage of that measure desired in the country?—I do not know whether it is desired or not, but I think it would be a bad measure if it was passed. It has been tried in France, under the Code Napoleon, and in Lower Canada under the Norman Law, and its effect always is, by frittering down farmers, to degrade the farmer into a peasant; and in every part of Scotland where small holders, or, as they are there termed, "Bonnet Lairds," agriculture is in a most wretched condition, and they themselves in poverty and distress.

164. What are your objections to an elective Legislative Council?—Because I think it would do away with the power of the Crown entirely, and make us a Republic.

165. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the Judges to a large annual amount by orders from the Colonial Office, out of the Upper Canada revenue, and without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive of the independence of the bench in a great measure?—No, I think all public officers when they are past work should be liberally pensioned—and that in the case of the Judges a regulated sum on which they might retire should be provided by law.

(The witness is shewn the Post Office Return and asked.)

166. What mode would you recommend for the better government of the Post Office, and for allowing the control thereof to the colony?—Let the Governor appoint the Postmaster General, & let his accounts be audited as all other public accounts are.

167. What check would you propose on hasty, partial and injurious legislation in England, effecting the commerce, and through it, the general interests of this colony?—I can see of no good way unless by having an agent in England.

168. Do you think in the present state of the Legislative Council and House of Assembly that there is the least likelihood that they would agree upon the person to be the agent?—I cannot tell, it would be worth while trying.

168.* The Committee understand that large grants of valuable cleared lands have been made of late to clergymen of the Church of England for glebes—is this so within your knowledge?—I am not aware of it.

169. Would it not be desirable that the Clergy and Crown Reserves, and all reservations of land, otherwise than for education, were disposed of for public purposes, under the control of the Legislature?—I do not think so, for I think the Legislature have shewn themselves utterly incapable of managing their own matters, as witness the Welland and St. Lawrence Canals. I consider the St. Lawrence Canal not necessary in the present state of the country.

170. Would it not be better that the sale and disposal of the public lands and other public property were in all cases regulated by law?—The land I do not conceive to be public, but in the possession of the Crown, as much as Hyde Park, Windsor Park, the clergy lands are in a fair way of being alienated.

171. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the exchequer or treasury of the colony and the proceeds only applied according to law?—Certainly.

172. What check have the House of Assembly on the other branches of the government as a means of preventing executive usurpation of popular rights?—The same that the House of Commons has—they can withhold supplies.

173. Have many law suits been entered into with the Company's settlers?—One with Bergia for things he furnished to the Company's Clerks, and another now pending with Van Egmond respecting the balance of a road account. No settler of the Company has ever been ejected from a lot.

174. Are the Common Schools sufficiently numerous and efficient for the wants of the country?—Certainly not. The system of New England of taxing all for the support of schools and compelling by law parents to send their children to school appears to me the only way to ensure education in the present circumstances of the country.

175. Are not the letter postage rates, where they exceed one shilling and three pence currency on a single letter, (which is the maximum for the greatest possible distance in the United States) injurious to trade and unnecessarily burthensome on the community?—I think so.

176. Have not the resident settlers, by the improvements they have made, and the House of Assembly by its liberal grants for roads and bridges and inland navigation, given to the public lands their greatly increased value, as compared with 1792?—Certainly.

177. Ought not the revenue arising from these lands to have been applied to the liquidation of the war loss claims, instead of increasing the public debt, and duties on imports for that purpose?—To the best of my belief the Canada Company was formed for the express purpose of paying the War Losses.

178. Is it just to the Baptists, Quakers, Menonists, Tunkers, Independents, Seceders, and other classes of christians, whose spiritual teachers receive no share of the public revenue for their religious services, that the clergy of the Kirk of Scotland, the Catholic Bishop and clergy, and that the Methodist Ministers should, without the sanction of the Legislature, have a bounty paid for the performance of their religious duties?—I think it would be well if these payments were extended to all or to none—I was always of opinion that they would be better employed in educating the youth of the province.

179. The undue preferences and exclusive privileges granted to certain religious denominations are much complained of. Would it not strengthen good government if they were altogether abolished?—I think so—I have always been of that opinion.

180. Would not the British Constitutional system, by which the head of the government is obliged to choose his councillors and principal officers from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the legislature, be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible mode of government?—It would be more suitable to common sense, because it is an anomaly in legislation that a ministry should exist which neither the King nor the people can remove.

181. What are the prices at which the Company is now selling lands in the Huron Tract?—From 8s 9d to 15s.

182. Are the Company's wild lands subject to taxation, like other wild lands?—Yes, in the Huron Tract they are—the moment land is surveyed in that tract it is ours, we having paid for it; in the Crown Reserves it is otherwise, because, by the second agreement we obtained a pre-emption of the Crown Reserves, so that until we apply for them they belong to the Crown.

183. So that the effect of the bargain is, that these reserves stand in blocks and lots in the midst of the settled lands of the province, without being taxed in any way? Yes, had the first agreement stood it would have been ruinous to us; we would have had taxes to pay on two millions of acres. The moment a letter of licence passes from the Company to the settler the land is subject to taxation. The taxation to which the Company were subject on unsold lands in the Huron Tract amounted to about £1,800. That part of the Huron Tract, unsurveyed, pays no taxes.

184. What is the average price paid the Company for reserves in the unsettled townships?—The first year it was about 9s and the last about 11s 6d.

185. Do you sell to settlers chiefly for ready money or on credit, and if on credit is it with or without interest?—All on credit with interest. Occasionally a lot is sold for ready money—five years in six instalments is the general time allowed.

186. How has the increase of value on the stock been affected?—From the great increase of emigration, and the money brought into the country by emigrants, much more extensive sales have been made than were during the first three years. Money being more plentiful also has rendered the second payments on instalments more regular, and seeing a business steadily going on has inspired the shareholders with confidence.

187. What number of shareholders are there?—I do not know.

188. Where do they chiefly reside?—In London and the neighbourhood; I should think some in Scotland.

189. Will not this monopoly eventually draw several millions sterling out of the province without conferring on the settled population any adequate advantage?—I think that laying out £165,000 sterling will amply compensate the province for any sums that may be drawn from it.

190. What amount has been paid in of stock by the shareholders?—Say from £160,000 to £170,000 sterling, a very small part of which has been expended at home.

191. Could you produce to this Committee any detailed statements shewing the expenditure in this colony?—We have no printed copies in the office here shewing the expenditure—they are annually published in England.

192. Does the Company's charter confer banking powers?—I think so—but Serjeant Spankie and Sir John Campbell think not; it was decidedly intended that it should.

193. Are you aware of any loans having been made by the Company to the Colonial Government for improvements?—There never has; Serjeant Spankie and Sir John Campbell are of opinion that we have not the power to make such loans.

194. What sum has been allowed in the present agreement between the Government and the Company to be deducted from the purchase money, and expended in improving the lands?—Nearly £48,000 currency, to be expended in the Huron Tract, on Roads and Bridges, Harbours, &c.

195. How much of this allowance has been expended?—£26,000, within a fraction.

196. Have detailed statements of this expenditure with the vouchers been laid before the government here?—All but I think about £3,000 of the last summer's expenditure, which is now making up.

197. Who judges of the fact of the expenditure?—The governor alone—he appoints persons to inspect the works. The Company are to get no part of these townships unsurveyed prior to March 1834.

198. What price per acre was paid for the Huron Tract?—That I cannot tell, but I think it was about 2s 6d per acre. The bargains of the Company are, I believe, on the journals of the House, or among its papers.

199. What is the number of shares?—Originally one thousand. In 1826 there was a panic in the money market—during the mania that preceded that panic, the shares, though nothing had been done, though the charter had not been obtained, and though little was known in London about the prospects of the Company, arose to £37 premium; when the panic commenced in 1826, the credit of Joint Stock Companies fell, and that of the Canada Company with them; shareholders to the amount of £10,000 or 1,000 shares took advantage of a new arrangement that had been entered into with His Majesty's Government, by which the Huron Tract was given in lieu of the Clergy Reserves, and withdrew from the association, receiving the full amount of the money they had paid without the last term of interest, so that the number of shares held now is over 9,000.

200. Have the persons who have shares in that Company received dividends on the instalments paid in?—They have nominally received 4 per cent. interest, though in reality it can only be called a paying back of part of the principal, seeing, that during the whole period the Company have been drawing for instalments wherewith to pay the interest.

(The Witness withdrew.)

COLONEL A. G. W. G. VAN EGMOND, Ross, Hullet Tp. Huron Tract, called in and examined.

201. What price did the Canada Company pay for the Huron tract?—About two shillings and tenpence half-penny per acre, sixteen years credit, without interest, and £48,000 sterling, allowed off to improve their own land, which I believe would be equal about one shilling sterling per acre.

202. What are they selling the lands for?—From 12s. 6d. to 13s. 9d. per acre.

203. What is the extent of the tract?—They got one million two hundred thousand acres, from which one hundred thousand were deducted for a swamp.

204. How long have you been settled in the Huron Tract? Six years this Christmas. I am the oldest settler in that tract.

205. Have the company taken proper means to encourage and promote the settlement of the tract?—For the first year, in Goderich alone; since then they have taken no pains to assist the settlers. Last year, there was a steamboat employed to bring settlers from Detroit to Goderich. Instead of attending to that they went several times on pleasure trips up Lake Huron, once for three weeks or so at a time. By that trip the settlement lost 60 Scotch families. From the best information I can obtain, we lost from 250 to 300 families, who chiefly settled in Michigan, and the other states, because the Company neglected them.

206. Are the Agents to the Company kind to the settlers?—No—they are, with the exception of Mr. Wilson, very arbitrary; they are very tyrannical. I speak of the agents residing on the tract.

207. What magistrates and Court of Request Commissioners have you?—Charles Prior, Jno. Brewster, and Captain Dunlop. They do just what they please. There are, nineteen Townships in the Huron Tract, and only these three Magistrates.

208. Have the Company made any road in the tract?—Yes, one from Wilmet to Goderich, and one from Vandersburg to London village. These roads extend upwards of ninety miles, and will cost about £17,000, which is allowed them out of the purchase money. The Company have also laid out about £5000 for Grist and Saw Mills.

209. Have any settlers been ejected from their farms?—Yes, they are scared out of the tract and ejected without any form of law or justice. Many persons have been driven out of the Territory, there is no other law there except what the Company's servants make. We must be very polite to the Agents.

210. Are the Company empowered to impose on settlers such terms as they please?—Yes, they are.

211. Is there any difficulty in getting titles or letters of occupation?—They have sometimes to wait a little, but they get them. Public lands sell in the United States at 6s. 3d. per acre, and are likely to be brought down to 3s. 9d.

212. Do the Company take large sums out of the country?—Their profits in 1833, were £28,000, sterling, after paying all expenses—the Stockholders chiefly reside in England.

213. Do the European working settlers express themselves satisfied?—Dissatisfied in the highest degree, from whatever quarter they come.

214. Are there any Schools?—One in Goderich. The Company do not now support any other school that I know of.

215. Is money plenty?—Perhaps as much so as in any other place. Mr. Tayler keeps a private Bank, and issues notes from one dollar to a pound—they circulate among us.

216. In case Huron should be formed into a county where would be the best polling places?—One at Goderich, and one at the place where the big Thames River crosses the Huron Road, about thirty-three miles from Goderich.

217. Where do the magistrates lay out the monies they receive for wild land taxes?—I do not know.

218. What is the established religion in your Tract?—There are no ministers of religion of any kind in the Tract, nor is there any militia.

219. What is the population of the Tract or country?—Report says 2,000.

220. How do the Company pay for the work they get done?—For the first five years they paid two-thirds of the labor in land, at 7s. 6d. (which cost them not much more than one shilling an acre) and one-third in money.

[The Witness withdrew.]

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 7th, 1835.

THE VERY REV. DR. W. J. O'GRADY, again called in and examined.

221. The Committee informed the witness that as the conversation alluded to by him, on his previous examination, was not confidential, nor relating to private and personal affairs, they were desirous to obtain information as to the agreement with the Canada Company.

The only knowledge I have, regarding any transaction or bargain between the Executive of this Province, and the Canada Company, arises from the conversation alluded to in my previous answer, which I had had with His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor some three or four years ago. He stated to me that the Company threatened the resignation of their charter in consequence of the continuation of the sales of the Crown and Clergy Reserves in this Province. He further said that the Commissioners complained, that the Company sustained a serious injury from these sales, and that something should be done to stop their mouths. He then spoke to me regarding the Huron Tract and said that he was thinking of having it conveyed to them. I took the liberty of suggesting to His Excellency that it would be better for the interests of the country to accept the proffered resignation; he immediately replied, what in that case would we do for money? How, for instance, would we pay the different Churches? I understood them to mean by this, the Churches receiving pensions by order of His Majesty's Government. These Lands, or this Huron Tract, was shortly after conveyed to the Company. This is the substance of the conversation that passed between the Governor and me on that occasion.

222. Are you aware whether the grants by the Colonial Office to the Catholic clergy out of the Revenues of this Province, have been applied to the purposes for which the Government intended them?—I know they have not.

223. Have you any proofs of a misapplication?—The monies passed through my hands, as Vicar General of the Diocese, for several years, and it came within my knowledge that they have been misapplied. Its misapplication was frequently complained of by the Clergy and the laity. It was complained of in the first instance, I believe, some five or six years ago, by the Reverend Angus McDonnell, the Bishop's nephew, and the Rev. William Fraser, two officiating Clergymen of this Diocese, in a petition to His Excellency Sir John Colborne, and subsequently in a petition from the Rev. William Fraser to His Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, which was left in the Government office for the purpose of being transmitted. When those Petitions were laid before His Excellency he sent for me to inquire my opinion of the course it would be most prudent for him to pursue in such circumstances. I humbly suggested that copies should be forthwith furnished to Bishop McDonnell, with a view to obtain from him such detailed information regarding His Majesty's appropriation as would enable him to come to a just decision on the matter complained of. His Excellency did so, and shortly after the Bishop arrived in this town, and directed me to use my influence with Mr. Secretary Mudge to have the whole affair quashed. He said that he was not prepared to go into such an investigation, and desired me to make overtures to Mr. Fraser, to induce him not to press it. Others of the Clergy, namely, the Rev. Messrs. Cullen, Gordon, Dempsey, and Cassady, made frequent complaints to me in my official character of Vicar General, of the mal-appropriation of this fund on the part of the Bishop. The Rev. Mr. Cullen stated that he was obliged, against his conscience, to give the Bishop receipts for money he never paid him, representing himself to be a schoolmaster, though he never had been such; and further said that his conscience was so tortured on this subject, that he, on one occasion, walked from Glengarry to Montreal, to consult Rev. Mr. Roque, of Montreal, whether he could, under any circumstances, continue to grant the Bishop such receipts in future. A commission was appointed by the parishioners of this city, some three or four years ago, to enquire into this appropriation, together with other matters of Ecclesiastical polity. The Report of the commissioners is in my possession, and it appears there, from the evidence of the clergymen already named, that gross speculation has been committed on this fund. The Commissioners made a representation of this to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in January, 1829, but to no purpose. A subsequent representation was made to him, but inquiry was denied, and it was strangely assumed, in contradiction of the most positive testimony, that the Bishop had applied the whole according to His Majesty's benevolent intentions.—I then found it necessary to put myself in communication with His Majesty's Local Government, and with the Colonial Secretary, in Downing Street, on this subject; and though I stated that the monies passed through my hands, and that one fourth of the whole was usually reserved for School Masters, and that out of the residue large sums were occasionally paid, (on one occasion £212 10) to the Bishop's order, which was never accounted for, and that to my certain knowledge the Bishop was in the habit of applying portions of these monies to his own private purposes, and that upon one occasion I paid to him, therefrom, by a check on the bank of Upper Canada, the sum of £40. to pay his expenses to Sandwich, in the Western District; and other sums at various time, yet it was assumed against this proffered evidence, that the Bishop acted with the strictest integrity and propriety. I am in the position to prove, unequivocally, before any tribunal, that His Majesty's bounty, in this regard, has been most shamefully abused, and the Clergy already named by me, if called upon, can prove it, though, perhaps, not to the same extent. Not only did the Bishop misapply the monies, but he even went so far as to direct me to give 2½ per cent. to the Lieutenant Governor's private Secretary for the simple performance of the official duty of his office as such Secretary. The correspondence I here offer in evidence.

(The witness here gave in the following papers:—A Letter to Witness from Bishop M'Donell, and a note from Mr. Mudge.)

Kingston, 8th June, 1829.

Rev. and very dear Sir,

In the same envelop with this I send you a power of Attorney for Mr. Mudge to enable him (to enable him) to draw the salary of the Catholic Clergy-men and schoolmasters of this Province, from Government.

I authorise you to leave 2½ per cent of the money in the hands of Mr. Mudge as a small acknowledgment for the trouble and any expense that may attend the procuring of the warrant and drawing of the money. When drawn he will hand it to you for distribution, and you will be so good as to write to the different individuals to inform them that you have the money, what sum each is to receive, and how they are to draw for it.

I have been told that Mr. Fraser may prosecute me for the forty pounds I paid to you at York, because it would appear that he is in possession of a letter of mine authorising him to draw upon Mr. Baby to that amount, and he has been telling to others although not to myself that he will compel me to pay those forty pounds.

To save myself therefore from farther trouble from my friend on this score you must pay him the share that was put down for him in the distribution of the current half-year £35 in lieu of what was ordered to him in the preceding half-year, and it will be necessary to obtain his acknowledgment to that effect.

Query.

I shall write to Mr. Campion if you approve of it and order him to put himself under your directions for some time till his health be re-established. I think he might be of great service to you in carrying your plans into execution, and in paying occasional visits to the rear Townships attached to the Mission of York.

Mr. Angus has taken his departure for Bytown but Mr. Fraser is still here.

I feel anxious for the appearance of the pastoral letter which I have been expecting by every steam-boat for a week past. Also for the Theological Book, you were so kind to promise to lend to Mr. Chisholm and the Concordance to me. Please to give any parcel or letters you may have for me to the Clerk of the Niagara steam-boat or to the Captain himself and they shall be safely conveyed to me.

I beg you will be so good as to present my kind respects to Colonel Baldwin, to Mrs. and Mr. O'Grady, and my warm regard to the dear little fellows.

I remain with great esteem and sincere regard,

Rev. and dear Sir,

Your faithful servant and fellow-labourer in the Lord's Vineyard,

ALEXANDER MACDONELL, Ep. Rector.

P. S.—What progress do you make in your Catechistical Society? Have you got out the Patent Deed for the School Ground?

If you do not make your Rev. Brethren pay for their postage and your own trouble, it will be your own fault.

To Rev. Wm. J. O'Grady, }
M. Ap. York. }

Wednesday, 17th June.

Dear Sir,

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from Bishop M'Donell which you were good enough to forward to me, and in which it appears arrangements had been made that I should receive the money paid to the Roman Catholic Clergy in this Province, and transfer it to you; but as it would be incompatible with the duties of my office to become in any way a private agent, I have written to the Bishop by this post to inform him of this, and I have returned the power of Attorney which his Lordship enclosed to me.

I have the honor to be,

Dear Sir,

Your obedient and faithful servant,

Z. MUDGE.

The Rev. Wm. J. O'Grady.

224. What allowance was made in 1827 to Wm. P. M'Donald as a Catholic Priest?—There was no uniform allowance to any Clergyman—all depended upon the caprice of the Bishop.

(The witness gave in the following receipts from the present Vicar General.)

Parish of St. Andrews, County of Stormont, 20th October, 1827.

£78 15 0

Received from the Right Rev. Alexander M'Donell seventy-eight pounds fifteen shillings currency, being my salary as a Roman Catholic Priest from September, 1826, to June, 1827, in witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand this twentieth day of October eighteen hundred and twenty-seven.

JOHN M'DONALD, Priest.

WM. P. M'DONALD.

St. Raphael, Glengarry Upper Canada, Dec. 22, 1827.

Received from the Right Reverend Alexander M'Donell, eighty pounds currency, being my salary from September eighteen hundred and twenty-six, to the thirteenth of June, eighteen hundred and twenty seven.

WM. P. M'DONALD.

Received from the Honorable James Baby, the sum of forty pounds sterling, being my half yearly salary as a Catholic Priest, from the thirtieth of June to the thirtieth of December, one thousand eight hundred and twenty seven.

WM. P. M'DONALD.

225. Referring to your former answer respecting an Established Church, have you any proof that the Bishop exercised a political influence over his Clergy in conjunction with the Governor of this Colony?—He got up a petition against Mr. Mackenzie, attended a public meeting in Mrs. Jordan's Inn, and harangued the people; and by the most inexcusable misrepresentations, obtained signatures to said petition inducing the signers to believe, from Altars dedicated to the service of Religion, that the document to which he invited them to affix their names was intended solely for the advancement of the Catholic Church. Shortly after, he left here for Penetanguishene, accompanied by the Rev. Messrs. Gordon and Crevier; and Mr. Gordon told me that he stopped on his way, to perform Divine Service in the Catholic Church of the Township of Toronto, and that he did on that solemn occasion, instead of preaching the morality of the Gospel, inveigh in the most violent and unbecoming manner against William Lyon Mackenzie. He went from that to Adjalla, where he parted from the Rev. Mr. Gordon, having given him previous instructions to obtain signatures in the best manner he could to a blank paper, which he left him for that purpose. The Rev. Mr. Gordon told me that he was shocked and scandalized at the manner in which this political crusade was conducted. I myself have frequently heard the Bishop preach, before, and after the event here alluded to, and his sermons, invariably, as far as I have been able to judge of them, presented a strange and incoherent medley of politics and christianity. The following letter from the Bishop affords the best evidence.

(The Letter respecting Mr. Crevier and the Yankee Methodists was given in.)

St. Raphael, County of Glengarry, }
January 23rd, 1831. }

Very Rev. and Dear Sir,

We have begun and we must finish with the Rev. Mr. Crevier, Letters from the Messrs. Baby and from Sister St. Patrick, of which I send herewith copies, were brought here by the last post but one. Those letters prove the imperious necessity of removing Mr. Crevier from the parish of L'Assumption without further delay, and although it be with very great reluctance that I could think of giving you the fatigue and trouble of executing so disagreeable a commission, I find I have no alternative but to intrude once more on your good nature, and obliging disposition, by requesting that you would take a second journey to Sandwich and put the finishing hand to the work you have already begun in that parish.

You will receive along with this full and ample powers from me to deal with the Rev. Mr. Crevier as circumstances may require, either to remove him to another mission, and the one that would suit him best is that of Penetanguishine, because the greater part of his hearers there would be Indians; or withdraw his faculties, or if necessary suspend him at once. Should any part of his parishioners be seduced by him to resist your authority, and ferment the spirit of discord and dissension in the congregation, those must be dealt with as rebellious and schismatic; and even if the whole or a majority of them prove refractory, quod Deus avertat, we would rather you to put the parish under interdict and lock the door of the Church than allow the Divine authority invested in us to be thus despised and trampled upon.

The holy days being now past, I trust you will find it practicable to take a second jaunt to Sandwich, as soon as possible after the receipt of this letter, and as you are not accustomed to speak or preach in the French language, I empower you to take Mr. Cullen along with you in order to announce from the pulpit your orders and instructions to the Catholics of Sandwich. After dismissing Mr. Crevier you will leave Mr. Cullen in his place until I get that parish supplied with another Clergyman.

I have no doubt that you will find the Messrs. Baby and the well disposed part of the congregation ready to second your laudable efforts to bring the confused and mismanaged affairs of that parish into order and regularity, and to put the infant establishment of the female school in a train to continue its progress towards completion.

I would wish you to wait upon His Excellency and to submit to him my intentions and orders in reference to Mr. Crevier—for it has been always a principle of mine from which I would not wish to deviate on this occasion, whenever I found it necessary to resort to an extraordinary exercise of my spiritual authority to do so with the approbation and consent of the temporal power. From the uniform kindness and condescension which we have received from His present Excellency Sir John Colborne, I should hope that he would have the goodness of furnishing you with such recommendation as would procure you sufficient support from the Civil authority of the Western District, on the event of your finding any insurmountable difficulties on the part of Mr. Crevier, or his party, in the execution of our orders. I should, however, be extremely sorry to resort to the civil power, except in case of absolute necessity, at the same time I should not be very backward in giving a broad hint to Mr. Crevier that I was in possession of such a power and should not hesitate to make use of it in case of necessity.

I would advise you to take the Hon. Mr. Baby with you, when you wait upon His Excellency on the business above-mentioned as he is better acquainted than you or I with the characters and matters to be overhauled in Sandwich. From what has already come to the knowledge of His Excellency respecting Mr. Crevier's electioneering transactions, I should trust he would have the less objection that he should be removed from Sandwich, if necessary, and placed in a situation more suitable to his peculiar talents and qualifications, being tolerably well versed in the Indian language, and a thorough-bred voyageur, he would be admirably qualified to match the Yankee Methodists, and rescue the poor Indians of Penetanguishine and Lake Simcoe from the fangs of these reptiles.

I remain, with much esteem and regard,
Very Rev. and Dear Sir,
Yours, affectionately,

A. REGIOPOLIS.

226. Have you any other evidence to shew the committee that a baneful influence exists in this Colony injurious to its welfare and prosperity?—I think that the existence of a baneful influence to a great extent cannot be denied by any person acquainted with the circumstances of the Province.—It is notorious that all offices of honour and emolument in every department of the Government are monopolized for the most part by some three or four private families and their adherents, to the exclusion of superior talents and integrity, and it is equally notorious that even the meanest office in the patronage of the Executive is only conferred on persons of a particular political bias, and that the country, in consequence thereof sustains serious injury, and that its affections are alienated in a great degree from the local administration. As a corroboration of what I here assert, I give in evidence the following letters from a member of the Legislative Council.

[The witness delivered in evidence the following letters from the Right Reverend the Bishop of the Roman Catholic Church.]

St. Raphael's, Glengarry, }
30th Nov. 1830. }

Very Rev. and dear Sir,

Your favor of the 29th September from Sandwich, and your interesting and valuable communication of the 20th October from York, are both before me. A very severe cold which confined me to my room for several weeks, prevented me from replying to them till now. I shall take them in the order of their dates: Mr. Fluet's conduct in deserting his post at Amherstburgh, without the sanction or even the knowledge of his superiors both surprises and disappoints me very much: it is so contrary to the general tenor of his conduct since I have known him.—On reflection, and coupling this transaction with the circumstance of his going through Sandwich without waiting on you, I suspect that he imbibed no favorable impressions from his host and confere at Niagara, which makes me sincerely regret that he had been left exposed to the seduction of a character whom I now begin to think of a more designing and dangerous description than I was aware of at one time. I shall write to Mr. Fluet to hold himself in readiness to return to Amherstburgh, how soon His Excellency will have the goodness to restore his salary to him, and I request you will use your utmost exertion and influence with His Excellency to have that done as soon as possible. Do not fail to acquaint Mr. Fluet the moment you succeed with His Excellency.

The names I wish to be inserted in the Deed of Trust, for the glebe land in York, are my own name and that of my successor in office, and those of the Parish Priests of York, and of Kingston for the time being, and of the Honorable James Baby, and of Alexander McDonell of York, Esq.

I have been greatly disappointed at not having the honor of receiving His Excellency under my humble roof here as I had been given to expect. It was too late in the season when he arrived in Kingston, and he told Mr. Wm. McD. that he could not venture this length, but that he would write me soon. Thus have I been deprived of the opportunity of talking to His Excellency on the various subjects you were so kind to suggest. I beg, however, you will thank His Excellency for his great condescension in mentioning his reasons for not appointing the persons I recommended to him at Kingston for Commissions of the Peace. His Excellency must have come to a determination of withholding their appointments from those persons in consequence of private information received of their character. There are secret foldings in the magistracy of Kingston, which I could develop if necessary; for the present suffice it to say, that there is a knot or junta of Magistrates in Kingston, as exclusive and hostile to Catholics as any corporation in Ireland, who will never admit a Catholic into their body if they can, more especially an Irish Catholic—and of all the men on earth Mr. Walter McCuniff, for very substantial reasons which I could mention to you viva voce, but would not choose to commit to paper. You may present my humble respects to His Excellency, and say, that being personally acquainted with the major part of the Magistrates of Upper Canada, I do not hesitate to assert that one half of them, not to say more, are not better qualified to discharge the duties of Justices of the Peace than every one of those I recommended in Kingston, and you may add, that it is my full conviction that until a certain proportion of Catholics get into the Commission of the Peace there will never be peace and security in the province.

Mr. Campion called here on his route to his native country; I understand from him that he was to visit Montreal and Quebec. He wrote me previous to his departure from Niagara, that it was his intention to spend some time in England, and perhaps in France, and pressed me hard to send him an order on you for his quota, which I did on the terms we agreed on at Niagara, viz: that he should previously place the money he collected for building a Church at Niagara, in the hands of Mr. Cullen or the Elders, and that was a conditio sine qua non. When here, I told him he might as well leave his quota in lieu of the collection being nearly of equal amount. How he managed I do not know, but if I understand Mr. Micon right, he did not seem to act in Montreal to his satisfaction.

Your proceedings in Sandwich demand my most grateful and sincere thanks. On that subject I have much to communicate to you which will supply ample subject for more letters than one; the task we have undertaken is an arduous one, but we must go through with it; the able manner you began the work gives me great hopes that you will bring it to prosperous issue.

Believe me to be with high esteem and regard,
Most sincerely yours,

† ALEX. MACDONELL, Ep. R.

Glenarry, 1st December, 1830.

Very Rev. and dear Sir,

Along with this you will receive a copy of my mandate to the Rev. Mr. Crevier, and to J. Bap't Baby, Esq. approving of the resolutions entered into at the meeting held in your presence at Sandwich, of the Curate and Church Wardens of that Parish, on the 3d of October last, confirming the appointment of the Committee nominated on that occasion, and ordering them to proceed immediately to the discharge of their duty. If you think proper to forward it to Mr. Crevier to convince him that I entirely approve of what you have done, and that you continue to act under my authority I shall be well pleased.

A copy of it has been forwarded to Mr. Crevier and another to Mr. Bap't Baby.

A petition signed by a few of the Church Wardens and a number of the Parishioners of Sandwich, praying to overturn what had been done at the meeting of the 3rd October last, before you, and proposing another plan of their own, has been sent me. On the perusal of this petition, the first idea that occurred to me was to return an angry answer to it, but upon reflection I thought it better to treat it with the contempt it deserved, and to send no answer at all; My approval of the former meeting, and my orders to carry the resolution of it into execution being in my own opinion a sufficient answer. Mr. Crevier's conduct towards the religious women at Sandwich has been every thing but what it ought to be, or might be expected from his clerical character and situation as the pastor of a flock. If you get out a patent deed of the lands granted by the Huron Indians for the use of the Parish of Sandwich, in trust to the Bishop of the Diocese and his successors in office, and to the Parish Priest of York, for the time being, and to Francis and Bap't Baby, Esqrs., that ground may easily be cleared then of carpenters and blacksmiths shops, and every other nuisance that can prevent the premises from the use for which the donors intended them. It is indeed a matter of no small surprise that the business has been so long neglected, considering that there have been an Executive Councillor and a member of the Provincial Assembly both Catholics, and both natives of Sandwich; but a still greater matter of surprise and chagrin is that the lot given by the late Bishop Burke for the use of the York Mission should, for the saving of a few dollars, be sold for the taxes, when our friend the Honorable James Baby, our friend Alexander Macdonell Cullechie, our friend Mr. Bergin, and your friend Peter Macdougall, were on the spot. The speculative genius of the two last is too much upon the alert to allow such a chance as that to pass without their knowledge. Ever since I have come to Upper Canada I have invariably observed, that one Presbyterian or one Methodist would give himself more trouble to promote the interest of his religion than 500 Catholics; I am the more confirmed in the truth of this assertion, by the procrastinations and repeated suspensions of the decision of the Council respecting the grant of the lot at the mouth of the River Trent. Had proper energy been applied at first the matter might have been decided at once, but by delaying it, additional obstacles and difficulties have been daily conjured up. The English clergyman of Bellville has held meetings and conferences with the Church of England clergyman of the Carrying Place, &c. Those charitable and disinterested members of the Established Church, not satisfied with one seventh of the whole lands of the Province, must draw up a petition to their Bishop, now at Head Quarters to prevent the Catholics from obtaining a grant of this solitary lot at the mouth of the River Trent and His Lordship has assured those clergymen that there was not the least chance of our obtaining the Lot.—Hence all the changes and vacillating in the Council, and the important discoveries of its being one day a Church Lot, and another a site for a Town.

Since the death of General Brock till the arrival of his present Excellency I had invariably found an incessant secret influence undermining and counteracting my efforts and exertions to contribute moral and religious instructions to His Majesty's Catholic subjects of Upper Canada. After receiving the Prince Regent's thanks for my own conduct in defence of the Province during the late war; the Colonial Minister Earl Bathurst increased my own salary, and sent orders to the Executive Government of the Province to pay so much annually to a certain number of Catholic Clergymen and Teachers that I was to recommend; but notwithstanding that those individuals had entered upon the discharge of their duty by my directions, and that I produced the positive orders of Earl Bathurst that they should receive their salaries; yet Dr. Strachan and Justice Powell who under the nominal administration of Colonel Smith, Mr. Gore, and Sir Peregrine Maitland actually governed the Province till they quarrelled among themselves resisted the payment of those salaries in defiance of His Lordship's orders for seven years, and obliged me to take two journeys to Europe at no small trouble and expense.

The liberality and manly vigor of Sir John Colborne's mind has kept our enemies at bay since the commencement of his prosperous administration, but his great kindness to us is a sufficient cause for stirring the envy and the malice of those who would wish to keep us for ever in the back ground, and I am sure their secret machinations are in active operation in other matters as well as in depriving us of the lands at the mouth of the Trent, and I am very certain that if you are not upon the alert and do not proceed with both vigour and prudence our Penetanguishine Mission will fall to the ground, and the allowance made to the Missionary or Teacher of the Huron Indians at Amherstburgh will be lost. I however still depend much on your active zeal, and the good intention and justice of Sir John.

I have no words to express my indignation at the disgraceful conduct of the two Missionaries of the Western District towards Francis Baby, Esq. the most independent, the most upright, and I verily believe the most honest member that ever sat in the Provincial Assembly of Upper Canada since its first formation, and a Catholic; to oppose such a man, and lend their baneful influence to support a deep designing enemy of their Holy Religion and of every sincere professor of it!!! Such conduct appears to me not only mischievous, malicious, and disgraceful but down-right madness, and would lead a person to believe that they themselves are really infected with the very crime which they impute to Mr. Baby.

It requires however no great sagacity to perceive that Mr. Crevier's hostility towards that gentleman is because he conceives him a bar in the way of carrying into execution, his selfish views on the revenues of the Parish and the lands of the nuns. None can be more convinced of the injurious consequence of Mr. Crevier's very improper conduct throughout, nor more determined to let him feel the effects of it than I. Indeed it was my intention for some time past to remove him, and the only thing that prevented me was the difficulty of getting him replaced. The Bishops of Lower Canada are not much disposed to part with any of their clergy that they find useful for themselves, and those they would most readily part with would be the least useful to us. The tythes and casualties of the parish of Sandwich would be no doubt an inducement to a Canadian priest if those were found to be much greater than his own, but were they ten times greater than they are he would think himself perfectly justified, and even authorised to apply the whole of them in entertaining his friends and enriching his family who seldom turn out the more respectable or the better Christians for being pampered on the revenues of the church and the patrimony of the poor.

I would be extremely sorry that the conduct of Messrs. Crevier and Fluet should be exposed before His Excellency, the Lieutenant Governor, and still more so before the Provincial Assembly first because the mischief already done could not thereby be remedied; secondly because a recurrence of a similar evil may easily, and effectually be prevented without resorting to such a measure, and thirdly because very many of the members of the Assembly who are inveterate enemies to our holy religion and most anxious to be furnished with all the weapons they could against it would not fail to seize upon such transactions as took place at Sandwich at the last Election, and turn them to our discredit and disgrace, and it would be difficult to calculate on the consequences. You will be pleased to inform me how soon you will obtain the Patent Deed of the Church land in Sandwich and in the mean time I shall do what I can to procure a religious woman to join those already there. I applied to the Congregation Nuns some time ago but they would have nothing to do with that Institution without they got the land and the whole establishment for themselves without any regard to the poor individuals that had commenced it and had already undergone so much sufferings and privations. I shall hope however to be more successful in some other quarter and meet with more disinterested zeal for religion. What a pity we could not prevail on some of the noble hearted and heroic daughters of St. Patrick to cross the Atlantic and communicate a spark of the love of God, and holy zeal for the religion of Christ which filled their own hearts to the hard and selfish mind of some of our Canadians of both Provinces.

I request to know the time that the lot of land granted by the late Bishop Burke to the mission of York was sold for the taxes, and the person who bought it. Whatever documents I have or can procure to prove the legality of our right to that property shall be forwarded to you.

Please to accept of my most sincere thanks for your kind and friendly offer of quarters under your hospitable roof during my projected visit to York this winter. In truth I ought to be ashamed of all the trouble I have given you and your brother's excellent family all the times I have been at York since you came to it. If I be called thither ex officio, I shall go but not otherwise. For besides the fatigues of so long a journey, the precarious state of the weather, and want of accommodation in this inclement season of the year I find my funds so completely drained and myself so much involved by educating, boarding, and clothing seven or eight ecclesiastics for so many years at my own expense without the smallest assistance from any other quarter except the few pounds that you have been remitting to the two of them that have been teaching here, that I could hardly command to day what would defray my travelling expenses to and from York. I have been obliged to discharge the Canadian ecclesiastic that I had employed for five or six years back in teaching theology, and taking upon myself the task of giving lectures to my young people and of attending morning and evening Religious exercises.

If I cannot make them profound Theologians or highly educated Priests, I trust they will turn out by the grace of God pious and zealous Missionaries, with as much knowledge as will enable them to discharge the duties of their calling with credit to themselves and advantage to their flocks.

I sent up by Mr. Mican of Niagara three Missals one for Mr. Gordon one for Mr. Cullen and one for Mr. Brennan and I shall take up a couple of Chalicees and a Ciborium with me when I go up myself to be disposed of where they shall be wanted most.

I am thinking to call a meeting of my Clergy and to lay before them many matters that appear to me necessary for the propagation of our holy religion, the uniformity of church discipline, &c. &c. and I would be obliged to you by letting me know your opinion where such a meeting should take place who should be called to it, and matter that should be discussed at it?

The Post comes but once a week this way and this letter has been by mistake omitted to be sent along with the mandate to the Incumbent and Church-Wardens of Sandwich which I sent to you, but as two copies have been sent to that Priest I shall defer taking harsher measures until I learn what effect that instrument may have.

I beg you will be so good as to offer my kindest regard to your brother and Mrs. O'Grady, and the dear little Brazilians.

And believe me to be, with high esteem and sincere regard, Very Rev. and dear Sir, your very humble and devoted servant in our Lord Jesus Christ, † ALEXANDER, Regiop.

To the Very Rev. Wm. J. O'Grady, V. G.

Glengarry, 26th January, 1831.

VERY REV. AND DEAR SIR :

Your valuable and much esteemed communication of the 9th current came to hand by the last post. I am charmed and delighted with your successful exertions in promoting the sacred cause in which we are both embarked, and I never cease thanking the Divine Goodness who in the decline of my health and mental faculties has been graciously pleased to send me so zealous and so powerful a co-operator as you have already proved yourself to be, in this infant portion of Our Lord's vineyard. What you are pleased to call a mild sway others may perhaps call weakness and imbecility, but we have always made it a principle of action never to resort to extremities until the nature of the case rendered coercive measures necessary. There is a point beyond which indulgence and forbearance cannot be carried, without swerving from duty and betraying the sacred trust committed to our charge; the Rev. Mr. Crevier having at length driven us to that point shall find us as firm and determined in the execution of our duty as we had been reluctant to adopt harsh measures while there remained any hope of milder ones sufficing. In my last letter I trust you would find my orders and instructions regarding Mr. Crevier sufficiently ample.

When you get to Sandwich, and shall have arranged the most important part of your business there, you will send for Mr. Fluett and make such arrangements with him as you may find expedient, after having taken all the necessary informations respecting his different missions of Amherstburgh, the River Thames, and Baldwin. You are at liberty to fix his residence at either of the two first places where you will judge it most conducive to the good of religion, but I think Amherstburgh ought to be his principal residence.

It gives me heartfelt pleasure to find you so well satisfied with the few clergymen I have been able to send under your jurisdiction and control.

The greatest satisfaction that I can enjoy in this life and I may say the only one is hearing of the good conduct, and well doing of those ecclesiastics I have been struggling to educate and train up for the sacred ministry. Although not profound theologians nor deeply versed in abstruse sciences, I trust they will be guided by the influence of a true apostolic spirit and prove sufficiently capable to afford the necessary moral and religious instructions to those under their spiritual directions to secure their eternal salvation.

The zeal and activity of the Catholics in the townships mentioned in your letter in co-operating with the Missionaries in building churches, and diffusing the sacred principles of our holy religion is no small addition to my consolation and comfort on this occasion; but the credit of their conduct, and of the wonderful progress of the good work, is next to Divine Providence due to you whose judicious plans and wise regulations they only carry into execution. I have three more ecclesiastics now in the third year of their theology, one of these I find necessary to retain about myself, the other two I could spare and would be glad to send you one of them if you wished it, but Mr. Campion has taught us not to make them too soon their own masters, and, therefore, for the future no clergyman shall have charge of a mission until he be one or two years under the surveillance and command of an elder missionary.

I admit the justness of your observation in reference to the Rev. Mr. Fluett, but I trust you will do your utmost to preserve the pension for the teacher of the Indians of Amherstburgh whether it be Mr. Fluett or any other you may settle in that place.

I hereby give you full and ample powers to make the exchange required with our excellent friend Colonel Allan between the land in Wilmot and in Guelph, and I shall be ready to sign any instruments that may be necessary when I get up to York. I feel extremely happy and return you many thanks for obtaining the patent for the lands granted to the nuns and Parish Church of Sandwich. So far from accusing you of inertness, or inactivity that I feel indebted to you and give full credit for all the acquisition that this Diocess has made since you have been at York, which is more than was done for the whole time previous. Your Petition for the Let at the mouth of the River Trent I very much approve of as an energetic, respectful, and a very spirited one. From the shuffling and unmanly conduct of the Council in this affair, you will now be convinced of the truth of my assertion that a secret influence is constantly at work to arrest the progress of the Catholic Religion in this Province. It affords me much gratification that you have so wonderfully advocated the cause of our friend Mr. MacCuniff. It is true enough, that several of the Magistrates of Kingston are afraid of him and have good reason to be so, because were he to expose the very improper conduct of some of them which he has in his power to do, they should never sit upon a Magisterial Bench in Kingston or elsewhere, and His Excellency needs not dread a deficiency of as worthy and as able characters to fill the Bench of Magistrates in Kingston as those who threaten to resign in the event of McCuniff's appointment.

The truth is there is an Augean Stable to clean out in Kingston, and perhaps the sooner the work is done the better.

I return you my most grateful thanks for your kind and generous suggestion of applying the proceeds of the lot of land near York to the liquidation of my debts; but although upwards of five thousand pounds behind hand between the new Church of this Parish and other Churches with the expenses of supporting my Ecclesiastics and other outlays for religion I am unwilling to appropriate any of the small property given for the use of the Church as long as I can, in full reliance that his Divine Majesty for whose honor and glory I have involved myself in difficulties will in His Gracious Goodness extricate me out of them. I shall do every thing in my power to obtain as soon as possible the documents you desire in reference to the lot above mentioned.

I send you herewith the distribution for the half-year from the 1st of July to the 31st December, 1830 and give you permission to alter it to a certain extent if you think that by doing so it will afford more general satisfaction.

Our friend Mr. Fraser who has made a very decent competency by his savings and speculations in Kingston does not appear to me entitled to a quota. Your confere the V. G. of Kingston has been a good deal out of pocket in improving the Church and Presbytery without any prospect of being refunded, the Rev. Angus M'Donell's quota has been increased at your own recommendation; and for very cogent reasons. There will remain a small surplus of £20 sterling which you can keep in your own hands in the mean time,—there ought to be some fund established to meet contingencies. Your travelling expenses to Sandwich must be taken out of some place.

It is my intention to have a meeting of my Clergy at Kingston as soon after the Easter holy days as possible to put the affairs of the diocese on a more regular footing than they have been yet. We have much to arrange then, and it will require the united wisdom and experience of all to concert and adopt plans the best adapted to promote the interest of our holy religion.

I shall be much obliged to you by hearing from you on receipt of this, and informing me the precise time you will start for Sandwich, likewise if you are desirous that I should send you any of my Ecclesiastics, but you must not forget that I would not wish to entrust him with the charge of a mission, but only to serve under a Clergyman of greater experience for one or two years.

I expect to go to Montreal soon to procure the necessary documents respecting the lot of land bequeathed by the late Bishop Burke to the mission of York.

With most respectful compliments to your brother and Mrs. O'Grady, not forgetting my dear little Brazilians.

I remain with warm and sincere regard, and very high esteem,
Very Reverend and dear Sir, your most obedient,
And very humble in Our Lord J. C.

† ALEXANDER M'DONELL, Ep. Regiop.

To the Very Rev. W. J. O'Grady, V. G.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 10th, 1835.

JAMES KING, Esq., BARRISTER AT LAW, called in and examined.

227. Have you a copy of the petition of the churchwardens of the Roman Catholic Church in this city presented to His Excellency previous to Dr. O'Grady's departure for Rome?—I have not.

228. Have you any recollection of a petition by the Rev. Wm. Fraser of St. Andrews, to His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, complaining that he had not for some years received the allowance made to him by His Majesty as a clergyman of Kingston?—I copied the petition for him—it was afterwards signed by him and laid before His Excellency in Council. I understand that Bishop M'Donell and Mr. Fraser compromised the matter afterwards. The sum allowed Mr. Fraser, as he stated to me, was £100 per annum.

229. Do you know of a petition presented by the Rev. Angus McDonell and the Rev. Wm. Fraser, to the Lieutenant Governor, complaining of the undue distribution of the allowance from the Colonial Office?—In the memorial of the churchwardens to His Excellency we prayed for a copy of that petition, as we understood it to contain a charge of peculation against Bishop M'Donell.

230. Was it refused?—His Excellency's answer was, that the original petition was sent to Bishop M'Donell, and that it was not yet returned, but he had written for it. We never got the copy, nor heard of it since.

231. Were you a petitioner to the House of Assembly last Session complaining of the misapplication of the public monies granted to the Roman Catholic Clergy and School Masters?—I was. Upon a motion to refer it to a Special Committee of enquiry, the House refused to commit it. It was signed by the Roman Catholic Laity generally, at least by all who were applied to. The petition complained in the first place of His Majesty's supremacy over the Church—of tythes payable to the Roman Catholic Clergy—of the misapplication of £1000, sterling, granted for the support of the Clergy Schools—that no Roman Catholic School-house had been erected in this city. And very few, if any in the Province—the petitioners further requested immediate enquiry into the appropriation of £1000, and the abolition of all pensions and sinecures payable to the Clergy—an additional allegation was, that there were few, if any, Catholic Schools in the Province.

232. Do you know what Roman Catholic Schools have been established from the proceeds of the Royal bounty?—I have never heard of any in the Province.

233. What reason had you for believing that the £1000 was misapplied?—The Rev. Mr. O'Grady was parish Priest at this place. He had the distribution of a part, or the whole of the distribution, under the Bishop's order. He shewed me a check in Bishop M'Donell's favour for £40 on the Bank, which he said was to pay the Bishop's travelling expenses to and from Sandwich. I was aware that this was a misapplication of the funds. There was another case. I understood that Mr. Angus M'Donell the Bishop's nephew, got his share of the Government appropriation, (although it was refused to Mr. Crevier, whom the Bishop removed,) on the supposition that his tythes were sufficient for his maintenance. After Mr. M'Donell's removal to Sandwich—After Mr. Crevier was removed he spent the winter with Bishop M'Donell, who gave him a check for a portion of this money, although he, Mr. Crevier, was not in charge of any parish. With regard to the mal-appropriation, I was one of the Committee appointed at an adjourned meeting convened by Bishop M'Donell, to enquire into and report upon the state of the Roman Catholic Religion in Upper Canada. The Rev. Lawrence Dempsey gave in evidence before us, that he was obliged to sign receipts to Bishop M'Donell in the capacity of Schoolmaster, for monies he never received, and that he never was a schoolmaster. The Rev. Mr. Gordon's evidence was a corroboration of Mr. Dempsey's. Mr. Gordon is now officiating clergyman at Niagara. It was given in evidence that a quantity of Sacred Vestments and Church Plate had been presented by Cardinal Weld for gratuitous distribution amongst the Clergy of the Province, and that they were sold to those Clergymen by Bishop M'Donell, who took their notes and stopped the amount out of the Government appropriation. I was a member of the commission appointed by the Roman Catholic congregation of the Parish of this city, who enquired among other matters into the application of £250, sterling, paid by Government for Roman Catholic Schools, as a part of the annual grant to the Clergy. Doctor O'Grady gave the following evidence before us "that when the Rev. Mr. Cullen was ordained into the priesthood, he declared to him (Dr. O'Grady) his readiness to testify on oath, that he never acted in the capacity of a school master, and moreover that he was forced against his will and conscience by the Bishop to give him receipts for monies that were never paid him, either as being such alledged Schoolmaster or otherwise."

(The Witness withdrew.)

COLONEL ALEXANDER CHISHOLM, M. P. P.—called in and Examined.

234. How many Justices of the Peace are there in the County you represent, and how many in each Township?—A new Commission has been issued since I left Glengarry. When I left home there were nine Magistrates resident in Charlottenburgh—three in Lochiel, one in Lancaster, but none in Kenyon.

235. Are the Justices of the Peace resident in your County chosen exclusively from one party in politics, or indiscriminately from respectable men entertaining various political opinions?—I am not aware that the appointments were made with reference to the political opinions of the persons appointed.

236. Are men chosen to fill the Commission of the Peace, and the offices of the district who have been long resident in it, or are strangers more generally preferred?—I cannot answer that question positively.

237. What Bank notes have the greatest circulation in your district?—I cannot say; I expect there are as many Lower Canada Bank notes as any other.

238. What is the state of the roads in your District?—Bad.

239. Are the common schools in your District sufficiently numerous and efficient for the wants of the country?—They are numerous, but not efficient.

240. Do you think the Lieutenant-Governors, of themselves, possess a sufficient knowledge of the inhabitants of the several districts to enable them to select judicious persons as Justices of the Peace?—I should think not. I am rather of opinion that the new Commission was issued upon the recommendation of the late members of Assembly.

241. Has any inconvenience resulted in your district from the selection of voting places at Elections, and what places would you recommend for your county?—I am of opinion that two polling places would be best. The two most central places, in my opinion, are Williamstown and Alexandria.

242. Have the monies arising from the sale of wild lands for assessed taxes, or from payment of such assessments on these lands been prudently expended by the Magistrates in your District?—I rather think that such parts as the law requires to be applied on the roads has been prudently expended. I, as a Magistrate, recommended that the remainder be applied towards paying the expense of erecting the Gaol and Court-house, instead of which, it was applied to Government purposes.

243. Is it just to the Baptists, Quakers, Menonists, Tunkards, Independents, Seceders and other classes of Christians, whose spiritual teachers receive no share of the public revenue, for their religious services, that the Clergy of the Kirk of Scotland, the Catholic Bishop and Clergy, and the Methodist Ministers should, without the sanction of the Legislature, have a bounty paid to them for their performance of their religious duties?—My opinion of that is, that no particular sect should be required to contribute to the maintenance of any others—that all should be supported by contributions from their own particular Congregations. If this money be given with a view of facilitating our way to the other world, I think each denomination should pay for the salvation of their own souls.

244. The Committee understand that large grants of valuable cleared lands have been made of late to Clergymen of the Church of England for Glebes. Is this so within your knowledge?—No.

245. Do you know if the sum of £6000 of the public monies (in the hands of Bishop M'Donell) being lent to the House of Maitland, Gardner and Auldjo?—Only by report.

246. What Schoolmasters did the Bishop bring from Europe?—Four. Mr. Hammond, Mr. Murdock, Mr. M'Donald, and Mr. M'Pherson. I think the latter came from the West Indies.

247. From what funds were they paid?—I cannot tell. I understand that £100 is allowed for each of them by government.

248. Did they teach School?—Three of them taught school in Glengarry for some time. One of them taught a common school.

249. Are there any Catholic School Masters now in Glengarry, paid out of the Government appropriation to such teachers?—I am not aware that there are. Bishop M'Donell paid the Schoolmasters referred to in my former answer. It is more than five years since they left. I am aware that the Bishop has been occasionally giving the Common School Teacher at Alexandria some money. I know that he had paid him in all £18—this was about a year or two ago.

250. Out of what funds did the Bishop build the Church at St. Raphaels?—I have never seen the accounts, though a member of that Church—I have heard a good deal of entreaty made by the Clergy for persons to come forward and assist in getting up the building. I had no personal concern with the building of the Church myself.

251. Was there any government grants towards building that church?—I have no certainty that such was the case.

252. Does the Bishop exact tythes from the Catholics of Upper Canada?—In Glengarry, the clergy exact tythes, under the authority of the old French law.

253. Are there many members of the Church of England in Glengarry?—There are very few, I scarcely know a family, but there are 33,000 acres of land set apart for their clergy.

254. Are there many Catholics in Glengarry?—I think that the County is about equally divided between Catholics and Presbyterians.

255. Are you acquainted with Mr. Gillivray?—I was acquainted with him.

256. Are you aware that he was agent for the Bishop in the collection of notes due for tythes and marriages?—I saw a man pay him money on behalf of the Bishop. I do not know what the note was for.

257. What is the general charge for marrying?—Between two and three dollars.

258. Did you ever hear that the sum of £25 was ever charged for marriage?—No. Bpt during the building of the Church, I have heard instances of persons signing notes for £25 towards defraying the expense of the building.

259. Did it ever come within your knowledge that the cattle, cows, and chattel property of persons subscribing to the Church, were sold to pay their subscription?—Yes.

260. In what circumstances were these men who were called upon to give their notes for £25 towards building the Church?—Generally farmers.

261. Were any labouring men who were not freeholders, called upon to pay this sum?—I heard of several young men giving their notes, without any reasonable prospect of paying.

262. Was this £25 ever demanded except from persons getting married?—Yes. It was the general average towards paying for the building the Church.

263. Are you aware that Catholic School Houses have been erected, or Catholic School Masters maintained out of the funds provided by the Government?—There was a School House erected at St. Raphaels, but I cannot say from what funds. I am not acquainted with what has been done in other parts of the Province.

264. Does not the inequality of the system of taxation of rateable property, cultivated and uncultivated, afford just grounds of complaint on the part of the people?—I do not think it does, as far as Glengarry is concerned.

265. Have not the resident settlers by the improvements they have made, and the House of Assembly by its liberal grants for Roads, Bridges, and in aid of Inland Navigation, given to the public Lands their greatly increased value as compared with 1792?—I should suppose so.

266. Ought not the revenue arising from these lands to have been applied to the liquidation of the war claims, instead of increasing the public debt and duties on imports for that purpose?—I think that the wild lands should be at the disposal of the Legislature, to be applied to such purposes as they should consider best.

267. What has been the effect produced in your County by the sale of Wild Lands for arrears of taxes? Such as have lost their lands feel dissatisfied.

268. Has the effect been to divide property, or to accumulate it into the hands of a few individuals?—I could not say, until I could see how much each individual has.

269. Would not the British Constitutional system, by which the head of the government is obliged to choose his councillors and principal officers from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the Legislature, be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible mode of government?—I think if the Legislature and Executive would pull one way it would be best.

270. What check would you propose on having partial and injudicious legislation in England, affecting the commerce, and through it the general interests and prosperity of this Colony?—I think that such matters might be left to the wisdom of the Legislature of this Province.

271. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the exchequer or treasury of the Colony, and the proceeds applied only according to law?—I think so.

272. What check has the House of Assembly on the other branches of the Government as a means of preventing executive usurpation of popular rights?—I should think that the other branches care but little about the Assembly stopping the supplies while they exclusively have the control of the Casual and Territorial Revenue.

273. Another subject of complaint is the continual stoppage of the bill for the more equal division of Intestates' Estates. Is the passage of that measure desired in your county?—I do not know that the county have expressed any opinion on that subject except in the petitions of 1831. My own opinion is, that parents, if they have children, society looks for them to support them equally, and not leave them a burthen on society.

274. Many complaints are made that the Judges and Clergy—men of the Church of England and Rome hold seats in the Legislative and Executive Councils; are not such seats incompatible with their spiritual and judicial functions?—I think that with regard to clergymen they have enough to do in their spiritual department.

275. Do you consider the Canada Company a benefit or an injury to the Province. Are not the grants or sales of Land to this company of speculators residing in Europe an improper transfer of the functions of the Government?—I think so, I think it is better there should be no agent in the shape of a land company between the Governor and the Emigrant. I think the Canada Company injurious because whatever money is paid to the company is taken from the sum which might have improved his farm. I think it is better to raise taxes from improved property than to lay them as a weight upon the original settlers—that after persons have made themselves comfortable they are then to contribute to the necessities of society.

276. What are your objections to an Elective Legislative Council, and what are your objections to the Legislative Council as now constituted?—I have not given sufficient consideration to the subject to know how it could be improved.

277. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the judges to a large annual amount, by orders from the Colonial Office, out of the Upper Canada Revenue, and without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive of the independence of the bench in a great measure?—I should think it much better to regulate their retiring pensions by law, having reference to the extent of their services.

278. How can a bench of judges dependent on the Colonial Office for their customary retiring pensions, and independent of the House of Assembly, act impartially between the parties in cases where a collision may arise between the Legislative and Executive Departments in this Colony, or between the British Statutes and the Provincial Laws.—I think human nature has a leaning to the hand that feeds it.

279. Ought not those persons who advise His Majesty in his appointment of fit persons to fill the judicial bench to be responsible to the country?—I think so.

280. Are you of opinion that the Chief Justice or any of the Judges ought to sit in the Legislative Council? May not the Judge be called on in his Legislative capacity to pass opinions and enact measures of severity against the individual whom afterwards he may be called upon to try as a Judge in the Courts?—I think that a Judge having given his opinion once, should not sit a second time on the same case.

281. What fees were charged by Sheriffs on the sale of wild lands for taxes in your district?—Only seven shillings and sixpence currency, and free deeds afterwards given by the Sheriff.

282. What objection can be urged against a fair and equal representation of the qualified Electors in the House of Assembly?—Why should four townships in one part as a county, with 4,000 inhabitants send two members, and five or six in another part, as a riding with 15,000 send only one?—This arrangement being based neither on extent of territory, property, nor population?—Population and territory I think should be the basis.

283. Does not a vast annual additional expense fall on the Province owing to the continual rejection of bills of a general character sent up by the House of Assembly, rejected in the Legislative Council, and again introduced, debated and sent up by the House of Assembly?—I cannot say what bills have been sent but the tendency of continually refusing bills must create additional expense.

284. In what way can the popular branch of the Legislature influence the Government so as to secure the appointment of proper persons as arbitrators to decide each four years on the proportion of revenue coming to Upper Canada from duties levied at the port of Quebec?—They could only recommend an arbitrator by the resolution of the House of Assembly.

285. What becomes of the Clergy Reserve monies vested in the British funds?—I cannot tell.

286. Are Grand and Petit Jurors summoned with perfect fairness in your district?—I think so, for I have at different times been observing the Sheriff in cases when I supposed he had a feeling; and I could never discern the least appearance of partiality.

287. Do you think the local knowledge possessed by the Lieutenant Governors of this colony fully sufficient to enable them to nominate independent men otherwise well qualified to the office of Legislative Councillors?—I think that a good deal depends upon the information they get from others.

287. The Vote by Ballot in Elections is prayed for in many petitions both to the Assembly and to his Majesty—What is your opinion of this mode of voting?—I am in favor of that system of voting.

(The Witness withdrew.)

REV. ANGUS McDONELL, CURE OF SANDWICH, called in and examined.

288. Has there been at any time, within your knowledge, any one schoolmaster residing and teaching in this city, who received any salary, or portion of the appropriation given to Catholic teachers, for his services?—Yes, John Sawyer, or Seers; he received within my knowledge about £20 per year for teaching in this place.

289. How long since he taught in this place?—I cannot tell, but I saw the money paid to him last winter. I think there is another teacher now in his place who will receive the money.

290. Have you any knowledge of a person named John Butler having received any portion of it, under the pretext of his being a schoolmaster?—No, I do not know any thing of it. I know Mr. Butler, but do not know that he has received any government money. If he has received money, it was not received in the capacity of a schoolmaster.

281. Was he, Butler, bona fide a schoolmaster coming within the intention of Earl Bathurst's despatch authorising Bishop McDonell to apply one-fourth of His Majesty's bounty for the clergy to the payment of schoolmasters?—Mr. Butler might have received something at one period as a schoolmaster, because he taught school at one time here in this town.

292. Have you any knowledge of the Rev. P. McDonogh having at any time refused to receive his portion of the government appropriation, and if so, what were his stated reason or reasons?—No, I believe he always received his share of the government allowance.

293. Have you any knowledge of a sum of £900 sterling, or any other sum or sums, having been received by Bishop McDonell or any other person on his behalf, from His Majesty's Government or the Local Government, for any ecclesiastical or other public purpose; and if so, state how the same has been applied?—I understood there had been £900 received for the erection of churches. As to the manner in which it was appropriated I cannot give an exact account, but I know that £300 has been applied towards finishing the Church at Glengarry—£150 to put an addition to the Church in Kingston—£25 to the Church at Loughborough—£25 to the Church at Camden—I believe £40 to the Church at London—and about the same sum to the Church at St. Thomas—I think it was £100 to the Church at Niagara, and about the same amount to the Church at St. Catharines—and I believe it was £100 to the Church at Peterborough—£90 for the erection of the new Church at Amherstburgh—the rest has been divided between the different missions, but I do not know in what proportion.

294. In whose care was the money expended on the Church at Glengarry placed?—In the hands of commissioners nominated, I believe, by the Bishop—they were Col. Alexander Fraser, Hugh McGillis, Esq., and the Right Rev. Remigus Gaulin.

295. Was £100, expended on the Peterborough Church, received as a donation from Cardinal Weld?—The money has been subscribed but not drawn.

296. Did you ever present a petition either by yourself individually or in conjunction with any other, and with whom, to the head of the Executive of this Province, complaining of the mal-appropriation of certain monies placed at Bishop McDonell's disposal for ecclesiastical or other public purposes?—I never presented any petition myself, or in conjunction with any other person, complaining of mal-appropriation by Bishop McDonell of any sums of money received by him which could come under the control of the Provincial Parliament.

297. Did you present to the Lieutenant Governor any petition, at any time, complaining that monies which had been placed in the Bishop's hands for ecclesiastical purposes, had been misapplied?—No, I never did. The petition I presented was merely enquiring what sums of money had been paid by the British Government for me, from period to period.

298. Have you a copy of that petition?—I have not a copy here.

299. What was the reason that Mr. Crevier was removed from Sandwich?—I do not know.

300. Do you know of any sum of money lodged by Bishop McDonnell in the hands of Maitland, Garden and Auldjo, the appropriation of the Imperial Government for schools and for ecclesiastical purposes?—The Bishop, when in England, received a sum of from £2,000 to £3,000, which he lodged in the house of Maitland, Garden and Auldjo, because he was then on his way to Rome, which house failed before the Bishop's return to the country, and the Bishop has been compelled to pay this money out of his own private funds.

301. Are you aware that one-fourth of the annual appropriation made in England is for the support of schools?—No, but the Bishop has discretionary power to appropriate one-fourth of the annual appropriation to the support of schools. There are some schools in the Province partially maintained from this bounty.

302. Is it just to the Baptists, Quakers, Menonists, Tunkers, Independents, Seceders, and other Christians, whose spiritual teachers receive no share of the public revenue for their religious services, that the clergy of the Kirk of Scotland, the Catholic Bishop and Clergy, and that the Methodist Ministers, should, without the sanction of the Legislature, have a bounty paid for the performance of their religious duties?—It depends altogether upon the opinion of the Government.

303. Would it not be desirable that the Clergy and Crown Reserves and all reservations of land, otherwise than for education, were disposed of for public purposes, under the control of the Legislature?—I think it would be desirable.

304. The undue preferences and exclusive privileges granted to certain religious denominations are much complained of; would it not tend to strengthen good government if they were altogether abolished?—I am not aware of any undue preferences, except the Clergy Reserves, which are a real grievance in the country.

305. Are you of opinion that clergymen of any denomination ought to have seats in the Legislative Council, or that such seats are compatible with their spiritual functions?—I am decidedly of opinion that no clergyman of any denomination should hold a seat either in the Legislative or Executive Councils.

306. Are the Common Schools in your District sufficiently numerous and efficient for the wants of the country?—They are not, I think the sale of the Clergy Reserves, if appropriated to Education, would afford sufficient fund for the support of common schools.

307. What is your opinion of the system of District Schools in Upper Canada?—I believe in most cases they are a nuisance; I think that if the £100 would be divided among four common schools it would tend more for the benefit of the country.

308. What tythes are generally exacted about Glengarry or Sandwich?—The twenty-sixth bushel of grain only.

The Witness withdrew.

THOMAS DALTON, Esq. TORONTO, called in and examined.

309. Are you the proprietor of the Patriot newspaper?—I am; the series commenced in November, 1829.

310. What postage did you pay in 1830 and 1831?—I paid while I published in Kingston about £125, this was to the end of 1832.

311. Is the return correct which states you to have paid in 1829 £5; in 1830 nothing; and only £6 in 1831?—It is not correct.

312. What might be the amount paid during these years?—I think 70 or £80.

313. The Kingston Chronicle is entered in this Return as paying £10 a-year; is that a fair return?—I should not suppose that they ever sent so few as 50 copies.

314. Do you know any law under which newspaper postage can be collected in Upper Canada as a perquisite to a Postmaster?—No; I do not believe they pretend it is by law, but by an order of the Postmaster-General, and given as a perquisite to his deputy, as I understand.

315. Are not the Letter Postage rates, where they exceed 1s. 3d. currency, on a single letter, (which is the maximum for the greatest possible distance in the United States) injurious to trade and unnecessarily burthensome on this community?—I have always thought the postage from here to England as enormous.

317. How would you recommend newspaper postage to be collected?—I think it ought to be collected from the party receiving the newspaper.

318. Do you think that newspapers ought to be subject to postage?—I do for the reason that it is a valuable service performed to the person receiving the paper, with the expense of which, the public ought not to be burthened; because it would be taxing the poor to maintain the rich.

319. What rate of postage would you recommend on newspapers?—Not more than a half-penny per sheet.

(The Witness withdrew.)

WEDNESDAY, 11TH FEBRUARY, 1835.

JOHN BROWN, Esq., M. P. P. FOR THE COUNTY OF DURHAM, called in and examined.

320. How many justices of the peace are there in the county you represent, and how many in each township?—I do not know, a new commission has gone down lately.

321. Have you made recommendations to His Excellency for fit men to be placed in the commission of the peace?—No, I never did to my knowledge.

322. Are the justices of the peace, resident in your county, chosen exclusively from one party in politics or indiscriminately from respectable men entertaining various political opinions?—As far as my knowledge goes I do not see any difference. A gentleman by the name of Munroe, who went about with a petition for the removal of Sir John Colborne, has been since appointed a magistrate.

323. Are the common schools in your district sufficiently numerous and efficient for the wants of the country?—I think not.

324. Has any inconvenience resulted in your district from the selection of voting places at elections, and what places would you recommend for your county?—I think it would be better to have two polling places, Grimes' Inn, in Cavan, for the front townships of Durham, and for the back townships Cottingham's Mills,

325. Have not the resident settlers by the improvements they have made, and the House of Assembly by its liberal grants for roads and bridges, and in aid of Inland Navigation, given to the public lands their greatly increased value, as compared with 1792?—Decidedly so.

326. Ought not the revenue arising from these lands to have been applied to the liquidation of the war loss claims, instead of increasing the public debt and duties on imports for that purpose?—Yes, I think so.

327. Is it just to the Baptists, Quakers, Menonists, Tunkards, Independents, Seceders, and other classes of Christians, whose spiritual teachers receive no share of the public revenue for their religious services, that the clergy of the Kirk of Scotland, the Catholic Bishop and Clergy, and that the Methodist Ministers should, without the sanction of the Legislature, have a bounty paid for the performance of their religious duties?—I think not, but I think we ought to have an Established Church; I am for a union of Church and State, and I think that the Church of England ought to have the supremacy.

328. How would you provide for the Church of England?—I have no idea of giving them the one-seventh of the lands of Upper Canada, but would give them a respectable maintenance out of a part of these Reserves.

329. Would not the British Constitutional system, by which the head of the Government is obliged to choose his councillors and principal officers from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the Legislature, be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible mode of Government?—I am perfectly satisfied with the present mode of government, I think a change would be an injury to the country.

330. Why have you formed this opinion?—I form this opinion from having heard no proposed changes which would answer equally well.

331. What check would you propose on hasty, partial, and injurious legislation in England, affecting the commerce, and, through it, the general interests and prosperity of this colony?—I could not say.

332. Would not it be desirable that the Clergy and Crown Reserves, and all reservations of land, otherwise than for education, were disposed of for public purposes, under the control of the Legislature?—All, except such parts as might be reserved for the support of the Established Church.

333. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the exchequer or treasury of the Province, and the proceeds applied only according to law?—I am clearly of opinion that one deposit would be better, because it would be easier looked after.

334. Another subject of complaint is the continual stoppage of the bill for the more equal distribution of Intestates' Estates; Is the passage of that measure desired in your county?—I think not.

335. Do you consider the Canada Company a benefit or an injury to the Province; are not the grants or sales of land to this company of speculators, residing in Europe, an improper transfer of the functions of the Government?—I think the Canada Company have been a very great injury to the country.

336. What are your objections to the Legislative Council as at present constituted?—None, I should be very sorry to see the people put in the Legislative Council.

337. Will not the Canada Company eventually draw several millions out of the Province, without conferring on the settled population any adequate advantage?—I think they will be some advantage, the first settling of the country and opening the roads are advantages; but the monopoly will eventually be disadvantageous.

338. Are there many actions at the instance of banks in your district?—There are; each of the endorsers and also the drawer are prosecuted, and three suits and three bills of costs incurred for the recovery of one debt; if the debt to the bank is £41, the costs in some cases arise as high as £60 additional. The law ought certainly to be altered; it would be better to notify the endorsers in the first place, and commence an action against the drawer.

339. Have the grants of money for the improvement of roads and bridges been faithfully expended?—I think they have.

340. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the judges to a large annual amount, by order from the Colonial Office, out of the Upper Canada Revenue, and without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive of the independence of the bench in a great measure?—I am not prepared to say.

341. How can a bench of judges dependent on the Colonial Office, for their customary retiring pensions, and independent of the House of Assembly, act impartially between the parties in cases where a collision may arise between the Legislative and Executive departments in this Colony, or between the British Statutes and the Provincial Laws?—I am not prepared to say.

342. Ought not these persons who advise His Majesty in his appointment of fit persons to fill the judicial bench be responsible to the country?—I think so, certainly.

343. In case the House of Assembly, or large bodies of the people, should be of opinion that a public officer deserved impeachment, by what means could he be tried?—I think there is no public officer, who is guilty of any misdemeanor, who cannot be tried by the Court of King's Bench.

344. Would not an active agent representing the wishes of the people of Upper Canada, in London, be likely to be of great importance to the commercial and agricultural interests of the country?—If a person of that description could be found who would be free from politics, he might be very useful.

345. Is there a hope that the Legislative Council and Assembly, as now constituted, would unite in the choice of such a person?—I should think so.

346. Were not the inhabitants of the Province seriously injured by the refusal of the Legislative Council, at several sessions, to pass a bill appointing commissioners to treat with commissioners appointed by act of the Lower Canada Parliament, on matters of mutual interest to the two Canadas, especially their trade?—I would prefer having a port of entry in Lower Canada; I think the best way would be, to have the Provinces united.

347. Does not a vast annual additional expense fall on the Province, owing to the continual rejection of bills of a general character sent up by the House of Assembly, rejected in the Legislative Council, and again introduced, and debated, and sent up by the House of Assembly?—I think it a very necessary one, it would be a very hard case if they had not the same power to reject our bills that we have.

348. Are you aware that the members of the Legislative Council receive a far larger proportion of the taxes than they and their families contribute?—I am not aware of that.

349. Do you think the local knowledge possessed by the Lieutenant Governors of this Colony fully sufficient to enable them to nominate independent men, otherwise well qualified, to the office of legislative councillors?—I think so.

350. The vote by ballot in elections is prayed for in many petitions, both to the Assembly and to His Majesty; what is your opinion of this mode of voting?—I do not know a better way to cheat the public than by ballot.

Witness withdrew.

FRIDAY, 13TH FEBRUARY, 1835.

WILLIAM BUELL, Esq., of Brockville, called in and examined.

351. Are the common schools in your district sufficiently numerous and efficient for the wants of the country?—No.

352. Has any inconvenience resulted, in your district, from the selection of voting places at elections; and what place or places would you recommend for your county?—I think the last election for the County of Leeds was held at an improper place; I would require time for reflection.

353. Do you think the Lieutenant Governors of themselves possess a sufficient knowledge of the inhabitants of the several districts, to enable them to select judicious persons as Justices of the Peace?—I do not.

354. In what manner are Justices of the Peace appointed in your district?—They are mostly appointed from among persons possessing one set of political opinions—I mean opinions in accordance with the views of the Executive.

355. Are you a Justice of the Peace?—I am not.

356. How often have you been elected as a representative of the County of Leeds?—I have been elected to two Parliaments.

357. Was not your father a former member of the House of Assembly?—He was.

358. Was he in the Commission of the Peace?—He was in the Commission of the Peace at the early settlement of the County; his name must have been left out previous to his election, which was, I think, in 1800.

359. Who was your colleague in the last Parliament?—Matthew M. Howard.

360. Was not his father also a member of the House of Assembly?—I think he sat in three or four Parliaments.

361. Was either of the Messrs. Howard in the Commission of the Peace?—I do not recollect that either ever was. If Mr. Howard, sen. was in a short time, he must have been put out again.

362. Did you ever recommend to His Excellency any persons as fit to be put in the Commission of the Peace?—Yes I did, at the commencement of the tenth Parliament.

363. Were your recommendations attended to?—No they were not.

364. A very large sum of money collected by direct taxation is annually entrusted to the Magistrates, they being irresponsible to the people either directly or indirectly, would it not be more in accordance with the genius and spirit of the Constitution if these monies were placed under the control of persons appointed by the qualified electors?—I think the monies would be better managed under the control of persons selected by the qualified electors.

365. How many Justices of the Peace are there in the county you represent, and how many in each township?—I think there are about 70 in the Johnstown District.

366. Are men chosen to fill the Commission of the Peace and the offices of the district who have been long resident in it, or are strangers more generally preferred?—Latterly, I think, that there have been more persons not long resident in the county preferred to the offices of Justices of the Peace.

367. What Bank notes have the greatest circulation in your district?—The Upper Canada Bank notes I should suppose.

368. How many actions is it usual for the Bank to raise against a defaulter whose note has two endorsers?—I think three.

369. What is your opinion of the system of district schools in Upper Canada?—I think the system is a bad one as the law is now carried into effect.

370. What is the state of the roads in your district?—Not very good.

371. Have the monies arising from the sale of wild lands for assessed taxes, or from payments on such assessments on these lands, been prudently expended by the Magistrates in your district?—A portion of these monies were not prudently expended, particularly about £700 expended in the town of Brockville.

372. Does not the inequality of the system of taxation of ratable property, cultivated and uncultivated, afford just ground of complaint on the part of the people?—I think it does.

373. Have not the resident settlers, by the improvements they have made, and the House of Assembly, by its liberal grants for roads and bridges, and in aid of inland navigation, given to the public lands their greatly increased value as compared with 1792?—Yes.

374. Ought not the revenue arising from these lands to have been applied to the liquidation of the war loss claims, instead of increasing the public debt and duties on imports for that purpose?—I think the Imperial Government ought to have paid these claims. But if we have them to pay, these lands ought to have been taken in preference.

375. Are you the Proprietor of a public newspaper in Upper Canada?—I am.

376. How long has it been established?—Fourteen or 15 years. I have only been the Proprietor about 12 years.

377. Do you know any law under which newspaper postage can be collected in Upper Canada as a perquisite to a Postmaster?—I do not. I think it ought not to be given as a perquisite.

378. Would not the British constitutional system, by which the head of the Government is obliged to choose his Councilors and principal officers from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the Legislature, be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible mode of Government?—It is my opinion that it would. The irresponsible character of the Government is one of the principal difficulties under which we labor.

379. Was not the refusal of the Legislative Council of this Province to assent to the Assembly's bills in several Parliaments for appointing Commissioners to meet those appointed by Lower Canada to consider of matter of mutual importance to both provinces, a proof of the necessity of a change in the composition of the Upper House?—It proved that they did not do what they ought to have done.

380. The undue preferences and exclusive privileges granted to certain religious denominations are much complained of: Would it not tend to strengthen good government if they were altogether abolished?—Yes, I think so.

381. Is it just to the Baptists, Quakers, Menonists, Tunkers, Independents, Seceders and other denominations of christians, whose spiritual teachers receive no share of the public revenue for their religious services, that the clergy of the Kirk of Scotland, the Catholic Bishop and clergy, and the Methodist ministers should, without the sanction of the Legislature, have a bounty paid for the performance of their religious duties?—I think not.

382. Would it not be better that the sale and disposal of the public lands and other public property were, in all cases, regulated by law?—I think so.

383. What check has the House of Assembly on the other branches of the Government as a means of preventing executive usurpations of popular rights?—I do not think they have any real and substantial check.

384. Ought not the public revenue to be paid in the gross into the Exchequer or Treasury of the Colony and the proceeds applied only according to law?—I think that ought to be the case; were this done it would afford a check in the hands of the Assembly.

385. Another subject of complaint is the continual stoppage of the bill for the more equal division of intestate estates.—Is the passage of that bill desired in your county?—I think it is by a majority of the people.

386. You reside in Brockville?—Yes.

387. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the Judges to a large annual amount, by orders from the Colonial office, out of the Upper Canada revenue and without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive of the independence of the Bench in a great measure?—I think it may have a bad effect on the independence of the Bench.

388. Are there not too many dependant persons, and holders of office in the Legislative Council?—I should say there was, as far as my information goes.

389. Are you aware that the powers and duties of the Executive Council are defined by law?—I am not.

390.* The vote by ballot in elections is prayed for in many petitions both to the Assembly and to His Majesty. What is your opinion of this mode of voting?—I think it the mode that should be adopted in this Province.

391. Would it not be desirable that the Clergy and Crown Reserves and all Reservations of land, otherwise than for Education and Roads, were disposed of for public purposes under the control of the Legislature?—I think so.

VERY REVEREND DOCTOR Wm. J. O'GRADY, again called in and examined.

392. How long were you incumbent of the Parish of York?—Since the year 1829.

393. Did one John Sayer or Siers or any other Catholic School Master teach in York since 1829.—John Siers did not until the year 1833, when he opened a School on his own account, he did not within my knowledge, receive any portion of the Government appropriation—after he left here, I met him in Kingston, and he told me he received none.—Previous to Siers coming to the Parish, I engaged a School-master by the name of Harvey, who had a promise from Bishop McDonell of £20 per annum for the support of a school master but though he commenced his school on the faith of this promise, he was never paid one farthing, and after residing six months in this city, he was obliged to leave us.

394. Referring you to evidence given before this Committee of the Rev. Angus M'Donell respecting the appropriation for schools, can you shew that His Majesty's Government intended that £250 a year should be appropriated to the payment of Catholic School Teachers?—I think so. The Bishop shewed me the copy of a Despatch from Lord Bathurst authorising him to appropriate one fourth of the annual grant for that purpose, and that the Executive of the country was of the same opinion will appear by the following letter from Sir John Colborne to Bishop M'Donell.

York, 20th April, 1829.

MY LORD BISHOP,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Your Lordship's letter of the 2nd instant; and to return the inclosed document from Major Hillier, by which it certainly appears that you are authorised to apply, for the support of Schoolmasters, one fourth of the annual appropriation of His Majesty's Government.

The distribution of the salaries of the Clergy under your Lordship's charge must depend entirely on your opinion; but the claims of the Rev. Mr. O'Grady well deserve your Lordship's consideration.

I shall be most happy to see your Lordship at York.

I have the honor to be,

My Lord Bishop,

Your Lordships'

Most Obedient

Humble Servant,

J. COLBORNE.

The Right Rev.
DOCTOR M'DONELL,
Bishop of Resino.

395. Have you heard of any sum or sums of money being given to Bishop M'Donell for the purpose of erecting a Church or Seminary at Guelph?—I have—£1000 were sent to the Bishop by Cardinal Weld for that purpose—but these monies were otherwise applied by his Lordship—to prove which I put the following letter in evidence.

St. Raphael's, Glengarry,
Jan. 16th, 1830.

VERY REV. DEAR SIR,

I wrote you a letter on the 20th of November last to be conveyed to you by the Rev. Edward Gordon, but before his return from Lower Canada, where he had gone to see his brother, the Navigation closed, and the roads broke up, so that his departure has been delayed from day to day, in hopes that sleighing would commence in which we have been I may say hitherto disappointed—that letter as well as this one will be handed to you by Mr. Gordon.

The contents of your favor of the 16th of November are truly interesting. The remarks on the conduct of some individuals of our brethren are to me most distressing and call for immediate attention. I authorised you on a former occasion to take Mr. Compton under your surveillance, to examine strictly and minutely into his conduct, and I hereby repeat my injunctions and orders to you to the same purpose, and I charge you to exercise over him and over Mr. Gordon and over every other priest that is or may hereafter be employed in your district, the power and control of a vicar general until further orders. Regular powers may afterwards be given in due form as circumstances may require. In the mean time I beg and entreat of you to procure for me every possible information respecting the conduct of those individuals to whom you alluded in that letter.

I feel much obliged to you for suggesting the idea of holding conferences of the clergy, it is one that I long cherished myself when the state of the missions would admit of the clergy convening for that purpose, well aware of the great good which such an institution produced in Ireland in my time and is calculated to produce in this country. Hitherto however while two priests were not within the distance of hundreds of miles of one another, the thing was entirely impracticable, and even yet it is only in very few parts that it can be thought of, but please God to increase the number of our clergy I trust the practice may become general.

The kindness and attention which Sir John Colborne was pleased to shew to me during the time I had the honor of accompanying His Excellency last summer on his visit to Montreal and to the Rideau Canal, I shall ever remember with the most grateful feelings, and I shall ever consider it one of the most mortifying circumstances of my life, being deprived of the honor of seeing His Excellency under my humble roof: owing to my servants mistaking the time of his arrival in Cornwall, my horses and carriage were not sent, although I sent an express on purpose to inform them. I was most anxious that he would see these small establishments, and witness the struggles I have had to support them. My seminary alone in which I have been generally supporting for the last five years from seven to nine or ten young men has cost me at an average £300 per annum, being obliged to provide besides board and education, clothing and every other necessary for several of them who have not the means of procuring those things for themselves. This and the expenses of the buildings here which from first to last have amounted to upwards of £3,000 currency, without the aid of a single dollar from any human being, have subjected me to serious difficulties. Dr. Weld has indeed advanced me one thousand pounds towards building a church at Guelph which has gone partly to clear Mr. Fraser out of Kingston as you know and partly to purchase a piece of ground attached to the house bought for the use of the Bishop in Kingston and partly to defray expenses contracted by the building of other churches; and I am yet after all three thousand pounds more behind hand with the Parishoners of St. Raphael of money borrowed for the building of their new Parish Church, the greater part of that sum they will however be able to pay themselves in time. Of this long detail of my difficulties and embarrassment you are at liberty to communicate as much or as little to His Excellency as you may think proper. I shall petition His Excellency on behalf of the Indians of Penetanguishine or the Colonial Minister through His Excellency and to save postage shall enclose it under cover to Col. Fraser our Representative who will take an active part in any thing that concerns our holy religion. I wish most earnestly to visit York in the course of next month if the state of the roads will be such as to render my journey any ways comfortable, I send you enclosed the distribution of the Government money, and you may acquaint the Gentlemen concerned to draw upon you when their money is ready for distribution.

I request to be most respectfully remembered to your brother and family and Col'l Baldwin and to all inquiring friends, and believe me to be with sincere regard and esteem very Rev. and dear Sir,

Yours truly,

† ALEX. REGIOPS, Ep.

P. S.—You will be pleased to send me a check on the Montreal Bank, which Mr. Harper will give you, if you lodge the money with him for the quotas of the four schoolmasters and of the Rev. Mr. John McDonald of this parish, amounting in all to £75 16 4 Stg.

Yours A. McD.

The Very Rev. W. J. O'Grady.

396. Have you any other evidence to offer in proof of the misapplication of the public money by Bishop M'Donell?—I have the evidence of the Rev. Laurence Dempsey, and the Rev. Edward Gordon, taken before the Parish Commissioners, and also the evidence of Peter M'Dougall, Esq., regarding the repeatedly expressed opinions of the late Inspector General.

[The Committee decided not to receive in evidence the duplicate of an affidavit of Dr. O'Grady and Peter M'Dougall, Esq., nor the testimony given before the Parish Commissioners.]

I have repeatedly heard the late Hon. James Baby say that Bishop M'Donell never submitted to his inspection an account of the disposal of the Government appropriation, for the support of the Roman Catholic Clergy and Schoolmasters of this Province, and that he, the said James Baby was of opinion that he (the Bishop) annually abstracted a considerable portion of the sum for his own private purpose and uses, and also that the Rev. Wm. Fraser frequently assured him (the said James Baby) that to his knowledge, such was the case.

QUESTIONS

RELATING TO POLLING PLACES, WITH THE ANSWERS OF CERTAIN MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE.

Question First.

399. Would you recommend more than one place at which to take the votes of the qualified Electors, for the County or Riding you represent?

Question Second.

400. If so, what places would you propose as the most suitable at which to hold the poll three days alternately?

Question Third.

401. If one polling place would in your opinion be sufficient, what place would you recommend as the most central or otherwise suitable for the Election?

ANSWERS TO THE ABOVE.

DR. W. BRUCE, MEMBER FOR STORMONT.

Answer to 401.—The line between the towns of Cornwall and Osnabruck.

JOHN BOWER LEWIS, Esq., MEMBER FOR CARLETON.

To Question 1.—Yes.

To Question 2.—At Richmond, and the lower part of the Township of Huntley.

DENNIS WOOLVERTON, Esq., MEMBER FOR THE 1ST RIDING OF LINCOLN.

To Question 1.—In the first Riding of the County of Lincoln, which I represent, there is but four Townships, therefore I think one Polling place is sufficient.

To Question 3.—I would recommend Smithsville in the Township of Grimsby as the most central.

THOMAS PARKE, Esq., MEMBER FOR MIDDLESEX.

To Question 1.—I am opinion that taking the votes by Townships would be most accomodating and efficient, yet, dividing the County into four parts would be a great improvement on the present system.

To Question 2.—London, St. Thomas, Delaware, and Gardener's Mills, in Moša, would from my information be the most suitable.

To Question 3.—One polling place is not sufficient for the County of Middlesex; but if there must be only one, I think London would give the most general satisfaction.

JOHN A. WILKINSON, Esq., MEMBER FOR ESSEX.

To Question 1.—I would recommend the Committee to leave the measure as it now stands, if you wish to please the Electors of the County of Essex.

To Question 3.—At the District Town Sandwich, where it is situated in the most populous Township in the County or District.

NATHAN CORNWALL, Esq., MEMBER FOR KENT.

To Question 1.—I consider one place sufficient to hold the Election in the County of Kent.

To Question 3.—At the town of Chatham.

FRANCIS L. WALSH, Esq., MEMBER FOR NORFOLK.

To Question 1.—I would recommend that the County of Norfolk, including the Townships of Walpole and Bayham should be divided into two Ridings for the purpose of being divided into a separate District as well as to enable the Electors more conveniently in that case to hold Elections for that County.

To Question 2.—In the event of the said County being divided into Ridings, I should propose that the Elections for the East Riding should be held at the Post Town of Simcoe—and for the West Riding, until a more central situation can be established, at the town of Fredericksburgh in the township of Middleton.

To Question 3.—Should this County remain undivided into Ridings, in that case, I would be of opinion that the County Elections should be held at Vittoria, only; as the additional expenses of holding the Elections would, in my opinion, operate, with other reasons against their being held in different places during the same Elections.

THOMAS M'KAY, Esq., MEMBER FOR RUSSELL.

To Question 1.—No, the principal part of Settlers in Cumberland, Clarence, and Gloucester, are located along the Banks of Ottawa River. I believe they are not more than two miles back, Gloucester extending up River Rideau is tolerably well settled, so is Osgoode. It is difficult for me to say whether more places than one is necessary or not, should it be thought necessary, the line between Gloucester and Osgoode I think is the most proper place in that direction. On Ottawa between Clarence and Cumberland.

To Question 2.—Answered above.

To Question 3.—The place where it was held first at, is New Edinburgh in Gloucester, it was thought the most central and easiest place to arrive at by Steam Boat or otherwise, it being at the junction of Ottawa and Rideau Rivers, but that being my property, I beg to refer you to the maps.

HIRAM NORTON, Esq., MEMBER FOR GRENVILLE.

To Question 1.—I would recommend three different places for holding the Elections.

To Question 2.—Prescott, Merrickville, and Kemptville.

To Question 3.—If but one place should be thought best, I would recommend Prescott as the most suitable place, but Kemptville as the most central in point of territory.

HARMANUS SMITH, Esq., MEMBER FOR WENTWORTH.

To Question 1.—The County I represent is not so large, but the votes can readily be taken at one place of meeting.

To Question 2.—If the poll was kept open for three days alternately, at different places, I would recommend the villages of Stoney Creek and Ancaster.

To Question 3.—I consider Hamilton, the County Town, the most convenient place, and sufficiently central to hold the Elections.

JACOB RYMAL, Esq., MEMBER FOR WENTWORTH.

To Question 1.—The county I represent is not so large but that all the votes can be polled at one place in six days.

To Question 2.—If two places of polling of 3 days alternately I should recommend the villages of Stoney Creek and Ancaster.

To Question 3.—I think Hamilton, the county town, the most central place, and would meet the wishes of the inhabitants of the county.

WILLIAM B. WELLS, Esq., MEMBER FOR GRENVILLE.

To Question 1.—I would recommend three places.

To Question 2.—The town of Prescott and the villages of Kemptville and Merrickville.

To Question 3.—The village of Kemptville.

JACOB SHIBLEY, Esq., MEMBER FOR FRONTENAC.

To Question 1.—I would.

To Question 2.—At Waterloo, two days; at William Ash's, in the 1st concession of Loughborough, two days; and at Barrey's Field in Pittsburgh, two days.

PETER SHAVER, Esq., MEMBER FOR DUNDAS.

To Question 1.—I would recommend the poll to be held in different places of the County of Dundas, at least in four of its townships.

To Question 2.—In the township of Mountain, at the Widow Jackson's, one day; in the centre of Matilda, at the Widow Shaver's, two days; for Williamsburgh, at Philip Munroe's, two days; for Winchester and rear of Williamsburgh at Mr. Rosenbergen's, one day. I would wish the polls to be kept where the Courts of Requests are now holden.

D. A. E. McDONELL, Esq., MEMBER FOR STORMONT.

To Question 2.—I would propose that the poll be held three days at _____, in the township of Osnabruck, and for the first three days at the town of Cornwall, in the township of Cornwall.

I would beg leave to remark that the Committee are to take into consideration whether it would be prudent to remove the election from the county town where the district buildings are, for in case of disturbances as lately occurred at the county of Leeds election, a place of convenience could be had for troublesome characters.

(Signed)

D. A. E. McDONELL.

DONALD McDONELL, Esq., MEMBER FOR GLENGARRY.

To Question 1.—The County of Glengarry, which I represent, being one of the most populous counties in the Province and containing I should say 1,200 freeholders, I would recommend two polling places.

To Question 2.—The village of Williamsburgh in the township of Charlottenburgh, and the village of Alexandria, in the township of Lochiel.

To Question 3.—The village of Alexandria, being nearly the centre of the county.

GEORGE S. BOULTON, Esq., MEMBER FOR DURHAM.

To Question 1.—Yes, every township in the county.

To Question 2.—Every township, but for one day only.

To Question 3.—If only one place I should suppose the present mode adopted, the best.

GEORGE RYKERT, Esq., MEMBER FOR LINCOLN.

To Question 1.—For the Riding I have the honor to represent I think one place quite sufficient for polling all the votes.

To Question 3.—I conceive St. Catharines to be the most central both in territory and population, and therefore most suitable for holding the election.

EDWARD MALLOCH, Esq., MEMBER FOR CARLETON.

To Question 1.—Yes.

To Question 2.—Richmond and the lower part of the township of Huntley.

To Question 3.—If only one place thinks the 12th concession of Goulburn most central, but thinks Richmond the most suitable place for the convenience of the whole electors.

WILLIAM MORRIS, Esq., MEMBER FOR LANARK.

To Question 1.—I would recommend two places.

To Question 2.—I would propose Perth and Carleton Place.

SAMUEL LOUNT, Esq., MEMBER FOR SIMCOE.

To Question 1.—Yes.

To Question 2.—I would recommend the polling at all places to be going on at the same time. I recommend Holland Landing, Barrie, Narrows of Lake Simcoe, and somewhere on the township line between Tecumseth and Adjala.

JAMES DURAND, Esq., MEMBER FOR HALTON.

To Question 1.—Yes, I would recommend three places at which to hold the elections for the county I represent, I would also further recommend a prolongation of the time now fixed by law for that purpose, from six to nine days.

To Question 2.—I would propose for the first three days the village of Hannahsville, in the township of Nelson; for the second three days the village of Preston, in the township of Waterloo; and for the third three days the town of Dundas, in the township of West Flamborough.

WILLIAM McCRAE, Esq. MEMBER FOR KENT.

To Question 1.—I should not recommend more than one place to hold the elections in the County of Kent.

To Question 3.—The town of Chatham.

FRANCIS CALDWELL, Esq., MEMBER FOR ESSEX.

To Question 1.—I would not recommend more than one place at present.

To Question 3.—Sandwich as being the county town.

DAVID THORBURN, Esq., MEMBER FOR THIRD RIDING LINCOLN.

SIR,

The Circular letters signed by you as Chairman of the Committee on Grievances, relative to holding elections. The one you did me the honor to send for to fill an answer in, I have sent to a Committee of the electors of the 3rd Riding of Lincoln which I have the honor to represent, for the opinion of the freeholders, which has been had and is annexed, the wish of the freeholders is expressed therein.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

DAVID THORBURN,
M. P. 3rd Riding Lincoln.

To W. L. MACKENZIE, Esq. }
Chairman of Com. on Grievances. }

To DAVID THORBURN, Esq.

SIR,

After taking into consideration the question presented to the Committee for their consideration, relative to the place or places for polling the votes for the 3rd Riding, county of Lincoln. The Committee are of opinion that one place would be sufficient at or near the centre, viz: Matthew Seburn's, Innkeeper in Thorold.

GEORGE ROWE,
Corresponding Secretary.

By order of Committee.

WM. H. MERRITT, Esq., MEMBER FOR HALDIMAND.

To Question 1.—I have never given the subject much consideration, but think it would be a convenience to the inhabitants to take the votes at two places.

To Question 2.—At Dunnville and Stoney Creek in Rainham or Walpole.

HENRY W. YAGER, Esq., MEMBER FOR HASTINGS.

To Question 1.—I should recommend two places for holding the election in the county of Hastings.

To Question 2.—Three days in the village of Bellville, and three days at John McCoy's in Huntingdon, and but one Returning Officer.

FRIDAY, 6th day of MARCH, 1835.

THE HON. JOHN HENRY DUNN, RECEIVER GENERAL, called in and examined.

402. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the Exchequer or Treasury of the Colony, and the proceeds applied only according to Law?—That is the case. There are two distinct revenues, one under the control of the Provincial Legislature, and the other under the control of the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury.

403. Under what law do the Lords of the Treasury exercise a control over the Casual and Territorial Revenue?—I do not know.

404. Where are public balances in the different departments deposited, and what may be the average amount deposited, paying no interest?—The balances in the Public Chest are exceedingly fluctuating and uncertain, the deposits are made for the general convenience and benefit of the public; sometimes there are large balances in my hands, and sometimes none at all.

405. From all sources whatsoever, what may be the average balances of public monies in your hands?—I think the balance may average within these few years about £10,000.

406. Do you think any of the Banks in this Province, a proper and safe place for public deposits?—I think the Banks safe places for the deposit of public monies.

407. What security do you give the Province for public balances?—£80,000, viz: £10,000 Mr. Clark; £5000 Mr. Street; £5000 Mr. Wm. Dickson, Forsyth & Richardson; £20,000 Mr. Dunn of London (my father); £10,000 stg. and my own personal security £30,000.

408. The Legislative Council refused several times to assent to bills sent up by the Assembly for appointing Commissioners to meet Commissioners appointed by the Legislature of Lower Canada to consider of matters of trade, revenue, inland navigation, and other affairs of mutual importance to both Provinces, was not that refusal injurious to the interests of the two Colonies?—I think it would have been better if Commissioners had met to have decided on the improvements of the St. Lawrence, in which the two Provinces are so intimately connected. If such a Commission could be carried into effect, it would, I think, have a mutual good result in the intercourse of both Provinces.

409. Does the supervision of the Inspector General of Public Accounts, extend to all revenue raised and expended in the Province?—I think it does.

410. What check would you propose on hasty, partial and injurious legislation in England, affecting the commerce and through it the general interests and prosperity of this Colony?—I am not prepared to state any remedy.

411. Have not the resident settlers, by the improvements they have made, and the House of Assembly by its liberal grants for roads and bridges, and in aid of inland navigation, given to the public lands their greatly increased value, as compared with 1792?—Most unquestionably.

412. Mr. Wm. Chisholm is put down in this return as holding only the office of deputy postmaster—Has he not lately been appointed Collector of Customs at a place distant from his post office?—He has been appointed Collector of Customs for Oakville.

413. Is he not a merchant trading at that place and importing goods?—I really do not know.

414. We see in the Canada Company's returns a pension of £400 to Col. Talbot, a pension or allowance of £500 to the Bishop of Regiopolis, a pension to Sir W. D. Smith in England of £200, a pension to the family of General Shaw of £100, a salary to an agent here for the service of paying these monies and other sums. These payments are made from the public revenue of this Colony. By whose authority are they so made?—By the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury.

415. For what service do you receive £200 sterling out of the funds of the Canada Company?—For the large accumulated business connected with the Crown duties.

416. Do you not receive other £200 sterling as Receiver-General of Crown Lands?—I receive £400 sterling in all, besides £700 sterling per annum from the Province.

417. How often do you account to the Inspector-General for your intrusions as a manager of public funds?—Twice a-year—30th June and 31st December in each year.

418. Who made out the return of your income for 1830, placed in the Blue Book sent to England?—Mr. Turquand; it was correctly made out and embraced the different items of my income.

419. Can you point out to this Committee any Law of the Province, establishing the Executive Council a board to judge and audit the accounts of public officers and others?—No.

420. What Bank notes have the greatest circulation in this Province?—I think the Commercial Bank, at this moment, because I receive the most of their bills.

421. What is the amount of the debt due by the Province?—£180,500 currency, and £176,600 sterling, on the 15th January, 1835.

MONDAY, 9th day of MARCH, 1835

BERNARD TURQUAND, Esq. called in and examined.—

Is first Clerk in the Receiver-General's office.

[The return to an Address of the House of Commons of the receipts and payments of the Canada Company is shewn to witness.]

422. Is this document in the shape in which it was, when you signed it?—I believe it is.

423. Did it contain the sums of £324 and £540 paid to Dr. Strachan?—In the explanatory statement, I have no doubt it did.

424. Have the sums of £324 and £540 been actually paid to the Doctor?—These sums were not paid to the Archdeacon in this Province; but were with other monies mentioned in the statement allowed to the Canada Company (including the premium of exchange) as an offset from their first instalment in consequence of their having been paid to them in England as I presumed from a statement on that subject in the Receiver-General's office. The sums paid to the Archdeacon must have been £300 and £500 only; exchange at eight per cent. at that time.

425. It appears that an additional salary of £500 has been made to the Lieutenant-Governor, besides £2000 and £1000 before: Under what authority was this made?—Under the authority of the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury conveyed in a Despatch from the Colonial office: the £1000 is paid as an allowance in lieu of fees, which, heretofore, formed part of the emolument of the Lieutenant-Governor of this Province.

426. Are there outstanding monies now due to the Government?—It is unknown to our department.

427. Whose duty is it to keep an account of outstanding monies due to the Province by public accountants?—I believe the Inspector-General.

428. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the Exchequer or Treasury of the Colony, and the proceeds applied only according to Law?—I think all public revenue of every description should be paid into the hands of one public functionary.

429. Does the supervision of the Inspector-General extend to all public revenue received in the Province?—I have no doubt of it, as all the public accounts go to his office for inspection.

430. Where are public balances in the different departments deposited, and what may be the average amount deposited, paying no interest?—For several years past, I think the average in the Receiver-General's hands, has not exceeded £10,000, including all the public funds that of the provincial revenue, scarcely any thing; and if any, always appropriated; it is very frequently in advance: the great bulk of the revenues come into the Receiver General's hands about the close of each period, and although the balances may appear large in the accounts, they are immediately reduced by the demands of the preceding half-year.

431. In case the different public accountants neglect to send in their monies to your office regularly, what steps are you authorised to take?—The bonds of the different public accountants are lodged with the Receiver-General; and when any defalcation occurs they are sent to the Attorney-General for prosecution of the party concerned.

GILBERT McMICKING, Esq., M. P. P., FOR LINCOLN COUNTY, called in and examined.

432. Are men chosen to fill the commission of the peace and the offices of the district who have been long resident in it, or are strangers more generally preferred?—Latterly, strangers.

433. Are the justices of the peace resident in your county chosen exclusively from one party in politics, or indiscriminately from respectable men entertaining various political opinions?—They are principally half pay officers and strangers; I mean the late appointments.

434. Are the common schools in your district sufficiently numerous and efficient for the wants of the country?—I should think not.

435. Do you think the Lieutenant Governors of themselves possess a sufficient knowledge of the inhabitants of the several districts, to enable them to select judicious persons as justices of the peace?—I should rather think not.

436. Have not the resident settlers, by the improvements they have made, and the House of Assembly, by its liberal grants for roads, bridges, and in aid of inland navigation, given to the public lands their greatly increased value, as compared with 1792?—Certainly.

437. Ought not the revenue arising from these lands to have been applied to the liquidation of the war loss claims, instead of increasing the public debt and duties on imports for that purpose?—I should think so: I once dined with General Brown, in a canal boat, travelling to Rochester, when, speaking of the late war, I asked him what the United States could have had in view in invading Canada; his answer was, that the Crown and Clergy Reserves would in a manner have recompensed them for the expenditure.

438. Would not the British constitutional system, by which the head of the government is obliged to choose his councillors and principal officers from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the legislature, be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible mode of government?—Certainly, it would be better adapted to the wishes of the people.

439. Why have you formed this opinion?—Because an arbitrary government does not suit an enlightened community.

440. What check would you propose on hasty, partial and injurious legislation in England affecting the commerce, and through it the general interests and prosperity of this colony?—Only by a fair representation to the British Parliament.

442. The undue preference and exclusive privileges granted to certain religious denominations, are much complained of; would it not tend to strengthen good government if they were altogether abolished?—I think it would. There are 2,500 acres of land in the 4th Riding of Lincoln, that were surveyed and reserved between 1787 and 1789, in lieu of side lines; they are denominated on the surveyor's plan as glebes. Last summer, in June I think, through the interest of Mr. Anderson, the Episcopal clergyman and two of the Wardens of St. Paul's Church at Fort Erie and Bertie, there was a license of occupation granted for 1,500 acres to Westley Lewis and Alexander Douglass, as said Churchwardens of Mr. Anderson's church; we complain that this property belongs in common to the several townships as commons, in lieu of side lines.

443. Would not it be desirable that the Clergy and Crown Reserves and all reservations of land, otherwise than for education and roads, were disposed of for public purposes under the control of the Legislature?—I should think so.

444. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the exchequer or treasury of the Colony, and the proceeds applied only according to law?—Certainly, that is my impression.

445. What check has the House of Assembly on the other branches of the Government, as a means of preventing executive usurpations of popular rights?—In my impression, it has never had any.

446. Many complaints are made that the judges and clergymen of the Church of England and Rome, hold seats in the Executive and Legislative Councils; are not such seats incompatible with their spiritual and judicial functions?—I should think so,

447. It is complained to His Majesty that sheriffs hold their offices in abject dependence on the will of a government irresponsible to public opinion;—that they choose the grand and petit jurors without reference to their fitness, but often from political considerations;—what remedy would you provide to secure the subject a fair trial by jury?—Perry's Jury Bill.

448. In what manner are appointments in the militia made in your district?—Militia officers are recommended by the Colonel and commissioned by the Lieutenant Governor.

449. Would it not be an advantage to the people if a law were passed for the abolition of Militia trainings?—Yes, because Militia trainings are attended with many evil consequences and no good.

450. What are your objections to the Legislative Council as now constituted?—I think a majority of them are men who do not study the wishes of the people, nor the interests of the country.

451. In case the House of Assembly, or large bodies of the people should be of opinion that a public officer deserved impeachment, by what means could he be tried?—That I cannot answer.

452. Is it just to the Baptists, Quakers, Menonists, Tunkards, Independents, Seceders, and other classes of Christians, whose spiritual teachers receive no share of the public revenue for their religious services, that the clergy of the Kirk of Scotland, the Catholic Bishop and Clergy, and that the Methodist Ministers should, without the sanction of the Legislature, have a bounty paid for the performance of their religious duties?—I think it very unfair.

453. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the judges to a large annual amount by orders from the Colonial Office, out of the Upper Canada revenue and without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive of the independence of the bench in a great measure?—I do.

454. Is not the appointment of public officers and magistrates by an irresponsible executive government destructive in a great degree of the power of the people in the Constitution?—It tends very much to their dissatisfaction.

455. How can a bench of judges dependent on the Colonial Office for their customary retiring pensions, and independent of the House of Assembly, act impartially between the parties, in cases where a collision may arise, between the Legislative and the Executive Departments in this Colony, or between the British Statutes and the Provincial Laws?—I do not think they can.

456. What objections can be urged against a fair and equal representation of the qualified electors in the House of Assembly? Why should four townships in one part, with 4,000 inhabitants, send two members; and five or six in another part, as a Riding, with 15,000, send only one: this arrangement being based neither on extent of Territory, property, nor population?—I think the system of the representation unjust.

457. What mode would you recommend for the better government of the Post Office, and for allowing the control thereof to the Colony?—I should recommend the passage of a law by the Colonial Legislature.

458. Is not the tax on newspapers for the personal advantage of Mr. Stayner a strong ground of public complaint?—From what I have lately learned, it is.

459. Did not the Canada Committee of 1828 recommend that the whole public revenue should be under the control of the House of Assembly?—I have not seen that Report.

460. What Board of Audit is there in the Province?—I don't know of any.

460. Does not a vast annual additional expense fall on the Province, owing to the continual rejection of bills of a general character sent up by the House of Assembly, rejected in the Legislative Council, and again introduced, debated, and sent up by the House of Assembly?—There must be a great deal of expense and loss of time.

462. In what way does the sheriff of your district do his duty?—By deputy.

463. Has not the present irresponsible system of government in Upper Canada a tendency to discourage the emigration of the more wealthy and enterprising class of emigrants into the Province?—To my knowledge the most wealthy of the emigrants go to the United States and reside there; they allege that they like the management of that country.

JAMES DURAND, Esq., M. P. P., FOR HALTON COUNTY, called in and examined.

464. Has not the present irresponsible system of Government in Upper Canada a tendency to discourage the immigration of the more wealthy and enterprising class of emigrants into the Province?—I am fearful that it has that tendency, as a great number of wealthy emigrants settle in the United States, very many persons of large capital.

465. How many actions is it usual for the Bank to raise against a defaulter, whose note has two endorsers?—Generally three.

466. Have you made recommendations to His Excellency for fit men to be placed in the Commission of the Peace?—I never have.

467. Are the Justices of the Peace resident in your county chosen exclusively from one party in politics, or indiscriminately from respectable men entertaining various political opinions?—Most generally from men on the ministerial side, in politics, very frequently half-pay officers, and new comers not known to the people; which is a subject of complaint.

468. Are men chosen to fill the Commission of the Peace and the offices of the District who have been long resident in it, or are strangers more generally preferred?—Latterly I think they have been mostly new comers, and persons in whom the people have but little confidence.

469. What bank notes have the greatest circulation in your District?—I have an idea the Commercial Bank circulates as many as any, if not more in the District where I reside.

470. What is the population of the county you represent?—About 30,000 souls.

471. Have the monies arising from the sale of wild lands for assessed taxes, or from payment on such assessments on these lands, been prudently expended by the Magistrates in your District?—I am not sure; but think I have heard of some complaints.

472. Are the Common Schools in your District sufficiently numerous and efficient for the wants of the country?—I think not, generally speaking.

473. What is your opinion of the Canada Company?—I think they are a speculating body, who will yet do great injury by accumulating wealth; by draining the country of money and sending it to England.

474. Would not the British Constitutional system, by which the head of the Government is obliged to choose His Counsellors and principal officers, from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the Legislature be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible mode of Government?—I am decidedly of opinion that it would, and be in unison with the wishes of the people.

475. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the Exchequer or Treasury of the Colony, and the proceeds applied only according to law?—Certainly. I think so, by a well administered Government.

476. The undue preferences and exclusive privileges granted to certain religious denominations; are much complained of—would it not tend to strengthen good government if they were altogether abolished?—Yes, I think it would be well to abolish all invidious religious distinctions.

477. A very large sum of money, collected by direct taxation, is annually entrusted to the Magistrates, they being irresponsible to the public either directly or indirectly; would it not be more in accordance with the genius and spirit of the Constitution if these monies were placed under the control of persons appointed by the qualified electors?—I should think it would be more satisfactory to the people, to place the control in their hands.

478. What are your objections to the Legislative Council as now constituted?—I think the Members too often are regardless of the wishes of the people as appears by the frequent rejection of useful laws passed by the House of Assembly for their benefit, and if made elective, would be more likely to study the wishes of the country.

479. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the Judges to a large annual amount by orders from the Colonial Office, out of the Upper Canada revenue, and without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive to the independence of the Bench in a great measure?—I think the pensions allowed to superannuated, or retired Judges heretofore quite too large.

480. Are there not too many dependent persons and holders of office in the Legislative Council?—I think there are, to act independently, for the people.

FRIDAY, 27th MARCH, 1835.

The Hon. GEO. H. MARKLAND, INSPECTOR-GENERAL OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS, MEMBER OF THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL, AND MEMBER OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL, called in and examined.

481. In the return made to His Majesty's Government for 1834, upon information obtained, it is presumed from your office, we find that £550 sterling paid to the Methodists is withheld. Why has it been kept back?—It was inadvertently omitted in copying from the Warrant Book. As the authority for the payment was a despatch from Mr. Stanley and the money was accounted for by the Receiver-General in the accounts transmitted by him to the Treasury, there would be no want of information on the subject.

482. In cases where the different public accountants may have neglected to transmit their accounts periodically to your office for inspection, what steps have you taken?—I take whatever steps the law points out when they are controlled by the law. On other occasions, make it known to the Lieutenant Governor.

483. Would it not be desirable that the whole of your duties as Inspector General should be accurately defined by law?—It would be much more agreeable to me, provided it was consistent in every respect with my office, which of course is subject to the orders of the Lieutenant Governor.

484. What account have you to shew this Committee who are in arrear on leases, ferries, bonds, &c.?—The account, so far as I am concerned, has been transmitted with the public accounts, except in one or two instances where arrangements have been made with the parties, in order to save loss to the public.

485. Can you shew this Committee the detailed accounts and vouchers of the monies paid to the Methodists in 1833 and 1834, amounting to £2800?—The vouchers are the warrants in the hands of the Receiver General.

486. On referring to the Journals of 1833-4 (Appendix page 19,) it appears that £284 15s 5½d was due by Mr. Solicitor General Hagerman in a balance on his receipts as Collector of Customs several years before. How was that debt settled?—The Solicitor General claims a larger sum from government, which claim is now before the Council, and if allowed would be much more than a set off against that sum—it therefore would not have been accurate to state it as money likely to become available.

487. It appears by documents sent down to the House, that £795 18s 10½ and £143 13s 11½ £939 12s 8d sterling, were paid to Mr. Chewett (from the duties levied under 14th Geo. 3rd) in 1832 and 1833 because he had paid over that sum, or half his salary and emoluments from 1st November, 1829, to Mr. Hurd the present Surveyor General—why was this payment made, and when did Mr. Hurd commence his personal services in this country?—Reference to be had to the parties themselves.

488. Is the Lieutenant Governor obliged, in matters of state policy, to ask your advice as an Executive Councillor?—In some cases the law directs that he shall consult his Council, but not in others; with respect to the Land Granting Department he is required by the constitution to do so.

489. If he asks the advice of the Executive Council is he obliged to follow it? If he asks your advice and disagrees with you in opinion can he resist your suggestions and follow the dictates of his own judgment?—An answer to this question is contained in the reply of His Excellency to an address of the Assembly on that subject.

490. If the Lieutenant Governor sees fit may he not call for the opinion of any one, two, or three of the members of the Executive Council, without summoning the others?—The Lieutenant Governor is at liberty to take advice of any one of his Council when he pleases. When he takes their advice in Council, they are all summoned to attend.

491. If His Excellency receive Despatches from the Colonial Office, can he act on them as he sees fit without the advice of the Executive Council?—It depends upon the nature of the Despatches.

492. If he does ask their advice can he submit an extract of the Despatch to their consideration, or are all despatches and communications between the Lieutenant Governor and the Colonial Office, enregistered and open to the inspection of all the members of the Executive Council?—I do not answer that question.

493. Has the Lieutenant Governor the power of appointing honorary and ordinary members of the Executive Council?—No, the appointments are made by the King.

494. Have you read Mr. Elmsley's letter, advertised in the newspapers in resigning his seat at the Executive Council Board, and are the statements contained in it susceptible of any explanation?—I have read the letter and have nothing further to state on the subject.

495. If the Lieutenant Governor should be desirous of paying away the revenue on his own responsibility, or with the advice of the Executive Council, without the sanction of law, what check is there to prevent his doing so?—I think the question could be best answered by the Receiver General in whose charge the revenue is placed.

496. To whom are the Executive Councillors responsible for the advice they give the Lieutenant Governor at any time?—This question has been answered in the reply of His Excellency before alluded to.

497. In case the Executive Council had recommended a grant of land to be given to any person on petition, during the period when land was granted here, could the Lieutenant Governor refuse or confirm their decision, at his pleasure, or was he bound by their acts?—He could refuse or confirm as he pleased.

498. Referring you to the despatches of Sir Peregrine Maitland to Sir George Murray, printed by order of the House of Commons, and containing an account of certain circumstances arising out of a military outrage, alleged to have taken place at the Falls of Niagara, wherein the private character of Mr. Forsyth, the complainant, is assailed, a select committee of this House denounced as "conspirators," and the House itself described to His Majesty as "an unprincipled faction"—the Committee wishes to know by whose advice and on whose responsibility these despatches were written?—I do not desire to answer that question.

499. Would not the British Constitutional system, by which the head of the government is obliged to choose his Councillors and principal officers from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the Legislature, be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible mode of government?—I do not desire to offer an opinion on this subject.

500. What are your objections to an Elective Legislative Council?—I have no desire to give an opinion on any general subject where the reasons for that opinion cannot be understood and recorded.

501. The vote by ballot in elections is prayed for in many petitions both to the Assembly and to His Majesty. What is your opinion of this mode of voting?—I decline giving my opinion upon that question.

502. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the Judges to a large annual amount, by orders from the Colonial Office, out of the Upper Canada revenue, and without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive of the independence of the bench in a great measure?—I do not give any opinion on that subject.

503. How can a bench of judges, dependent on the Colonial Office for their customary retiring pensions, and independent of the House of Assembly, act impartially between the parties in cases where a collision may arise between the Legislative and Executive Departments in this Colony, or between the British Statutes and Colonial Laws?—I do not believe it would influence their decisions, and is certainly better than their being dependent on the people.

504. Do you think the Lieutenant Governors of themselves have a sufficient knowledge of the inhabitants of the several districts to enable them to select judicious persons as justices of the peace?—They may be possessed of it by making proper inquiries from the persons in those districts, and I have no doubt they do so.

505. In case the House of Assembly, or large bodies of the people, should be of opinion that a public officer deserved impeachment, by what means could he be tried?—The Governor might be addressed to remove him from office, and if it were just he could do so.

506. It is complained to His Majesty that sheriffs hold their offices in abject dependence on the will of a government irresponsible to public opinion; that they choose the grand and petit jurors without reference to their fitness, but often from political considerations; what remedy would you provide so as to secure to the subject a fair trial by jury?—They are now governed in their duty by the law, and the law may be changed whenever the three branches accede to it.

507. Have not the resident settlers, by the improvements they have made, and the House of Assembly, by its liberal grants for roads and bridges, and in aid of inland navigation, given to the public lands their greatly increased value, as compared with 1792?—Both circumstances have increased the value of those lands together with the increased demand caused by immigration.

508. Ought not the revenue arising from those lands to have been applied to the liquidation of the War Losses claims, instead of increasing the public debt and duties on imports for that purpose?—I have no reply to make to that question.

509. Do you know why the Province is paying £200 sterling a year to England as a pension to Sir D. W. Smith, a Northumbrian Baronet?—I take it for granted it is by an order from His Majesty's Government.

510. If £200 was considered an equivalent provision for a surveyor general, on what principle was £400 lately granted as a pension to Mr. Chewett who merely held the office of acting surveyor general?—It is by an order from the King's Government that pensions are assigned to the servants of the Crown.

511. Is it just that the Baptists, Quakers, Menonists, Tunkards, Independents, Seceders, and other classes of Christians, whose spiritual teachers receive no share of the public revenue for their religious services, that the Clergy of the Kirk of Scotland, the Catholic Bishop and Clergy, and that the Methodist Ministers should, without the sanction of the Legislature, have a bounty paid for a performance of their religious duties?—I have no opinion to give.

512. Would it not be desirable that the Clergy and Crown Reserves and all reservations of land, otherwise than for education and roads, were disposed of for public purposes, under the control of the Legislature?—I have no opinion to give this Committee on those subjects.

513. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the exchequer or treasury of the Colony, and the proceeds applied only according to law?—I give no answer.

514. What check has the House of Assembly on the other branches of the Government, as a means of preventing executive usurpation of popular rights?—The constitution is quite as well understood by every person present as by myself.

(The Witness withdrew.)

27TH MARCH, 1835.

JAMES KING, Esq., again called in and examined.

514. *What influence have the Government pensions on the the Catholic clergy of this Province?—These pensions convert some of them into politicians, and as Bishop McDonell is a pensioner himself and independent of the people, it makes him less anxious to promote the religion, of which, in this Province, he is at the head. I recollect on one occasion the Rev. Mr. Downey, an exceedingly intemperate man, was staggering through the streets, at noon day, intoxicated, coming from the hospital to Bishop McDonell's house. I called the Bishop's attention to it through the press; but nothing was done. I believe that the disputes between the Bishop and Doctor O'Grady had their origin in politics.

Prior to the Bishop's return from his political mission through the Colony in 1831-1832, he left directions with Dr. O'Grady to call a public meeting of the Catholic people of this place to address His Majesty on behalf of the local Government; the meeting was called by the Inspector General, (Mr. Baby) and others and the requirement met with no support. The Bishop, on his return, expressed displeasure that Dr. O'Grady had not taken active means to insure the success of the meeting; he then called one himself. The Bishop sent for me that morning and requested that I would join him; I told him that I would attend no political meeting exclusively of Roman Catholics, apart from the rest of the population of the place; when he took me by the arm to endeavor to get me to attend, but I would not. From that time forward the Bishop's manner was altogether changed, and I date from thence the commencement of all the hostility which has since existed between the Bishop and the Rev. Dr. O'Grady.

WEDNESDAY, 1st APRIL, 1835.

THE HON. and VEN. JOHN STRACHAN, D. D., ARCHDEACON OF TORONTO, A MEMBER OF THE LEGISLATIVE AND EXECUTIVE COUNCILS, called in and examined.

515. What offices and places of emolument and trust do you hold under the British and Colonial Governments?—President of King's College, no salary until the University shall go into operation—Archdeacon of York, and Senior Member of the Executive Council.

516. What sum is annually expended from public sources for education in this City? And how many children are there educated between 6 and 16?—There are about 1200 children in this town; but as to the expense of their education I have no knowledge.

517. What objections have you to the bill passed by the Assembly in the 10th Parliament, entitled, "An Act to establish Upper Canada College," and intended to give a more liberal constitution to that public institution?—I have no recollection of the provisions of the bill.

518. What Board of Audit is there in the Province?—I believe it is generally known to every body.
519. Is the Lieutenant Governor obliged in matters of state policy to ask your advice as an Executive Councillor?—I refer you to the Constitutional Act.
520. If he asks the advice of the Executive Council is he obliged to follow it? If he asks your advice and disagrees with you in opinion, can he reject your suggestions and follow the dictates of his own judgment?—I refer you to the Constitutional Act.
521. If the Lieutenant Governor sees fit, may he not call for the opinion of any one, two or three of the Executive Councillors without summoning the whole?—I cannot answer that question, because I do not understand its object.
522. If His Excellency receive despatches from the Colonial Office, can he act on them as he sees fit, without the advice of the Executive Council?—I have no answer to give to that question.
523. If he does not ask their advice, can he submit an extract of the despatch to their consideration, or are all despatches and communications between the Lieutenant Governor and the Colonial Office, enregistered and open to the inspection of all the Members of the Executive Council?—I cannot answer that question.
524. Has the Lieutenant Governor the power of appointing honorary and ordinary Members of the Executive Council?—The Mandamus of the King appoints, whether the one or the other.
525. Can he change an honorary into an ordinary Member?—No.
526. Have you read Mr. Elmsley's letter advertised in the newspapers on resigning his seat at the Executive Council Board, and are the statements contained in it susceptible of any explanation?—I have no hesitation in saying the statement was not correct.
527. If a Lieutenant Governor should be desirous of paying away the revenue on his own responsibility or with the advice of the Executive Council, without the sanction of law, what check is there to prevent his doing so?—I could not answer that question as it assumes a case of which I have no experience.
528. Sir P. Maitland gave a Warrant upon Mr. Dunn, on 27th March, 1826, for £141 14 8½ for expenses incurred for hiring horses for him and his suite in visiting the settlements in the month of February previous. The order was given on the Casual and Territorial Revenue; can the Lieutenant Governors grant Warrants for sums not authorised by law, upon that Revenue?—I have no answer to give.
529. To whom are the Executive Council responsible for the advice they give the Lieutenant Governor at any time?—I do not answer that question.
530. In case the Executive Council had recommended a grant of land to be given to any person on petition, during the period when land was granted here, could the Lieutenant Governor refuse or confirm their decision at his pleasure, or was he bound by their acts?—The Governor may or may not agree.
531. Referring you to the despatches of Sir P. Maitland to Sir George Murray, printed by order of the House of Commons, and containing an account of certain circumstances arising out of a military outrage, alleged to have taken place at the Falls of Niagara, wherein the private character of Mr. Forsyth the complainant, is assailed, a select committee of this House denounced as "conspirators," and the House itself described to His Majesty as "an unprincipled faction;" the Committee wishes to know by whose advice and on whose responsibility these despatches were written?—I have no knowledge of the circumstance.
532. When did your Patent as Archdeacon of York issue?—I was made Archdeacon in 1824, but owing as I believe to the death of the Bishop and the appointment of a new one, and the difficulty of dividing the Province into two Archdeaconries, the Patent was not issued 'till 1826 or 1827.
533. Why do you speak of your salary as Archdeacon of York for 1825 in your letter of 3rd of March, ulto. to Colonel Rowan?—I was considered to be entitled to my salary from the date of my appointment.
534. The sum of £300 sterling appears to have been paid you when in England out of the Canada Company's funds:—in one Return to the House of Commons, it is stated to be for services during the reference—in another to have been for expenses in attending the of agreement with the Canada Company:—in your letter of 3rd March you state that it was for your salary as Archdeacon of York in 1825—were two sums paid?—There was only one sum of £300 sterling, paid to me, and I understood it to be as I have stated in my letter.
535. Can you point out to this Committee any law of the Province establishing the Executive Council a Board to judge and audit the Accounts of public officers and others?—I believe that the Executive Council sat as a Board of Audit previous to the enactment of the Constitution and has continued to do so ever since.
536. Have your functions and salary as President of the General Board of Education ceased, and if so, under what authority, and who has succeeded to the emoluments and office?—I understood, that in consequence of an address of the House of Assembly that board was suppressed.
537. By what authority were the Statutes given out by contract in 1825, and after being well and cheaply done have ever since been given at a far higher price to Mr. Stanton?—I have no knowledge of that question.
538. [Witness is shewn the Official Return of bills from the Assembly lost in, or lost by amendments, from the Legislative Council, and asked] What change would you propose in the Legislative Council, so that it might better harmonize with the House of Assembly?—I cannot answer that question, for I do not understand it, unless it imply a change in the Constitution to which no loyal subject can consent.
539. Are there not, in your opinion, too many dependent persons and holders of office in the Legislative Council?—Certainly not.
540. What check would you propose against sudden, ill-advised, and injurious Legislation in the Imperial Parliament, on matters effecting the trade and commerce, and through them, the agricultural and general interests of the Province?—I do not feel competent to give any opinion on that subject. But this I know, that the parent state is ever ready to confer every benefit in her power upon her colonies, consistent with the general interests of the empire, and no colony can with justice expect more.
541. Was Mr. Appleton's application for his proportion of the public monies, as a teacher in this city, unfavorably reported on to the Lieutenant Governor by His Council?—I have no recollection.
542. When you were absent in England 22 months did your salaries, emoluments, and advantages from office continue to be paid the same as when you were at home doing the duty?—The duties were performed at my own expense.
543. Does not a vast annual additional expense fall upon the Province, owing to the continual rejection of bills of a general character, sent up by the House of Assembly, rejected in the Legislative Council, and again introduced, debated and sent up by the House of Assembly?—I beg leave to state that the Legislative Council reject no bills without good reasons, and that body has always appeared to me to have made the good of the Province much more its study than the House of Assembly, and need fear no comparison in true patriotism, wisdom, and ability.

544. In what way can the popular branch of the Legislature influence the government so as to secure the appointment of proper persons as arbitrators, to decide on the proportions of revenue coming to Upper Canada from duties levied at the port of Quebec?—I do not answer that question, not understanding why one branch of the Legislature should have more influence than either of the other two; but experience proves that the arbitrators of this Province have always conducted the business with success and ability. What more can be wished?

545. Would not the British Constitutional system, by which the head of the government is obliged to choose his Councillors and principal officers from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the Legislature, be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible mode of government?—I do not believe the government is an irresponsible one; the rest of the question is too vague to admit of a definite answer.

546. In what way is the government of this colony responsible to public opinion, as expressed by the representatives of the people in Parliament?—I could not answer that question otherwise than by saying, that the government is quite as responsible as any other government.

547. [The witness is shewn the Post Office Return, and asked] What mode would you recommend for the better government of the Post Office, and for allowing the controul thereof to the Colony?—I have not given the subject consideration.

548. In case public officers prove remiss in the performance of their duties, how or by what tribunal can they be tried?—I am not aware of any, but I think a court of impeachment, under proper regulations, would be of great use—I think the Legislative Council would be a proper tribunal for that purpose.

549. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the Judges to a large annual amount, by orders from the Colonial Office, out of the Upper Canada revenue, and without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive of the independence of the bench in a great measure?—The Judges are rendered independent by law; but the law is deficient, in as much as it does not provide for a retiring allowance to the Judges, if therefore there be any fault it is in the House of Assembly.

550. Do you think Lieutenant Governors, of themselves, possess a sufficient knowledge of the inhabitants of the several districts to enable them to select judicious persons as justices of the peace?—Certainly I do, for they have the best sources of information, and are quite independent.

551. It is complained to His Majesty that sheriffs hold their offices in abject dependence on the will of a government irresponsible to public opinion; that they choose the grand and petit jurors without reference to their fitness, but often from political considerations: what remedy would you provide so as to secure to the subject a fair trial by jury?—I cannot answer that question, owing to its assumptions, which I do not admit.

552. Have not the resident settlers, by the improvements they have made, and the House of Assembly, by its liberal grants for roads and bridges, and in aid of inland navigation, given to the public lands their greatly increased value as compared with 1792?—It is an incidental advantage which gives them no particular claim.

553. Ought not the revenue arising from these lands to have been applied to the liquidation of the War Loss claims, instead of increasing the public debt and duties on imports for that purpose?—I would not answer that question, for I do not admit its correctness, as the Government have given large sums for that very purpose.

554. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the exchequer or treasury of the Colony, and the proceeds applied only according to law?—I do not answer that question.

555. Does not the immense patronage of the local and general Government, uncontrolled as it appears to be by the House of Assembly, render nugatory in a great degree the efforts of the representative body to assert and maintain its constitutional independence?—Certainly not, for the members of the House of Assembly have been the chief office holders and the chief office expectants for the last thirty years.

556. The vote by ballot in elections is prayed for in many petitions both to the Assembly and to His Majesty; what is your opinion of this mode of voting?—Nobody would ask for the vote by ballot but from gross ignorance; it is the most corrupt way of using the franchise.

557. Is it just to the Baptists, Quakers, Menonists, Tunkards, Independents, Seceders, and other classes of Christians, whose spiritual teachers receive no share of the public revenue for their religious services, that the Clergy of the Kirk of Scotland, the Catholic Bishop and Clergy, and the Methodist Ministers should, without the sanction of the Legislature, have a bounty paid for the performance of their religious duties?—That question is not put in a way in which I could answer it.

558. The undue advantages and exclusive religious privileges granted to certain religious denominations are much complained of; would it not tend to strengthen good government if they were altogether abolished?—There should be in every Christian country an established religion, otherwise it is not a Christian but an Infidel country.

559. The Government of Upper Canada does not confine itself to maintaining one form of the Christian religion; it selects four particular denominations; and within the last two years appears to have paid them about £35,000, while the other sects received no part of the public monies: do you think this was a just course?—The Government does so little in support of the Christian religion, that I am thankful they do this much.

560. Do you consider the Clergy Corporation legal?—Certainly I do.

561. Are you aware that the Legislative Councillors receive a far larger proportion of the taxes than they and their families contribute?—I have not the means of answering that question, for I am not aware of their receiving any share of the taxes whatever.

562. Do you think the local knowledge possessed by the Lieutenant Governors of this Colony generally, sufficient to enable them to nominate independent men, otherwise well qualified, to the office of Legislative Councillor?—I think the information is very open to them.

563. Has not the present irresponsible system of government in Upper Canada, a tendency to discourage the emigration of the more wealthy and enterprising class of emigrants into the Province?—Certainly not; the Executive Government does every thing to encourage emigration, but the slanderous newspapers make people at a distance believe that there are difficulties in the Province, and produce a contrary effect.

564. In your letter of the 3rd of March, to Colonel Rowan, in explanation of a payment of £500 or £524 sterling, made to you in London from the Canada Company's fund, you state that it was to defray charges respecting King's College; we are desirous to ascertain for the information of the House, the way in which this money was expended, and the particular items of expense incurred by you, for which this was your remuneration?—I have no further explanation to give than what my letter contains. The Colonial Department, under whose direction it was expended, was satisfied, and no part of the £500 remained with me.

565. On referring to public documents within our reach, we find that £324, and £524 sterling, and £712 16s 2d, and £678 6s 8d, and 2000 acres of land in the Gore of Toronto, were given or paid to you when in London or since, on account of your journey to England, or on matters therewith connected. It also appears that since the 1st day of January, 1826, you have received £2,250 as President of the Board of Education, up to January 1833; £2700 as Archdeacon of York, and £1000 as an Executive Councillor; besides sums "for dilapidations on your living;" for the gaol ground; for the "small strip rents," Toronto; for the acre, formerly the Hospital Square, with other sums. For the information of this Committee, and in order to prevent misrepresentations and misapprehension we are desirous that you would furnish the Committee with a statement of all monies or grants, as payments made to you, for any purpose whatsoever, since 1st of January, 1826, whether from Colonial Revenue, Crown Lands, the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge, His Majesty's Government, rents of reserves, clergy grounds, glebe rents or uses, or from any other public source whatsoever, either here or in England?—For a complete explanation of the various matters contained in this question, I beg leave to refer to two letters addressed to Lieutenant Colonel Royan; one bearing date the 31st January, the other the 3rd February,* both are I believe in the possession of the Committee. In these will be found answers quite satisfactory to every honorable mind.

I must at the same time enter my protest against the manner of putting this question, which is evidently calculated to mislead the careless and ignorant, though I am willing to believe that such could not be the object of the Committee.

Various sums are mentioned, which were paid at different times, for great and important services, and items of annual income are multiplied by ten, as if I had received such large sums at once; whereas they are spread over the space of ten years, and ought, in common decency as well as in justice, to have been specified according to their annual amount, or one tenth part of that which the question makes them.

(The Witness withdrew.)

MONDAY, 6th APRIL, 1835.

THE HON. PETER ROBINSON, LEGISLATIVE AND EXECUTIVE COUNCILLOR, AND COMMISSIONER FOR THE SALE OF CROWN LANDS, &c., called in and examined.

566. How often do you account to the Inspector General for your intrusions as a manager of Public lands?—Half yearly for Crown Lands sold, and at the end of each year for the dues on Crown Timber.

567. Do you, as a Member of the Executive Council, audit your own transactions, in your several capacities of Crown Land Commissioner, Commissioner for the sale of Clergy Reserves, and Surveyor General of Woods; or are these accounts submitted to no supervision whatever on this side the Atlantic?—I do not attend to no supervision whatever on this side the Atlantic?—I do not attend to the auditing of my own accounts. In the first instance, they are sent to the Inspector General for examination, and by him submitted with his remarks to the Council, for audit.

568. Were the laborers under the late Mr. Roswell Mount's

* It is probable that the witness alludes to his letter of the 3rd of March, 1835, there being no letter of 3rd of February on the Records of the House of Assembly.

superintendence paid for Sunday work? Occasionally they were, as it was necessary that there should be no delay in preparing houses to shelter the Emigrants as they arrived, as well as to erect Store-houses, and an Hospital.

569. Could not the Surveyor General perform the duty you are paid £500 sterling for, under the title of "Surveyor General of Woods"?—I think the duties of the present Surveyor General occupy all his time.

570. Is the large number of Clerks in your office essential to the transaction of the public business entrusted to you?—They are all absolutely required. The House of Assembly having raised the salary of the Clerks in other public offices, the Clerks in my own petitioned the Governor in Council to be placed on the same footing; and I received an order directing me to make the additional allowance.

N. B.—The latter part of this answer was given in reply to a question respecting the increase of salary allowed to my Clerks.

571. Have not the resident settlers, by the improvements they have made, and the House of Assembly, by its liberal grants for roads, bridges, and in aid of inland navigation, given to the public lands their greatly increased value as compared with 1792?—Yes, no doubt.

572. Ought not the revenue arising from these lands to have been applied to the liquidation of the War Loss Claims, instead of increasing the public debt and duties on Imports for that purpose?—I decline answering that question.

573. Does not the immense patronage of the local and general government, uncontrolled as it appears to us to be, by the House of Assembly, render nugatory, in a great degree, the efforts of the Representative body, to assert and maintain its constitutional independence?—I decline answering that question.

574. Do you approve of the government paying, without the consent of the Assembly, for the religious services of four Christian denominations?—I decline answering that question.

575. Would not the British Constitutional system by which the head of the government is obliged to choose his Councillors, and principal officers from among men possessing the confidence of the popular branch of the Legislature, be more suitable to the wants and wishes of the Country, if adopted in Upper Canada, than the present irresponsible mode of government?—I decline answering that question.

576. Do you not consider the custom of pensioning the Judges to large annual amount, by orders from the Colonial Office, out of the Upper Canada Revenue, and without reference to the Provincial Legislature, destructive of the independence of the Bench in a great measure?—I am not prepared to answer that question.

577. Do you think the Lieutenant Governors of themselves possess a sufficient knowledge of the inhabitants of the various Districts, to enable them to select judicious persons as justices of the Peace?—The Lieutenant Governor has various sources from which to obtain information as to persons qualified to be Magistrates, among others, from the Members of the House of Assembly at their annual meetings.

578. In case the House of Assembly, or large bodies of the people, should be of opinion, that a public officer deserved impeachment—by what authority could he be tried?—I am not aware of any power vested in any tribunal here for that purpose.

579. It is complained to His Majesty, in petitions numerously signed that Sheriffs hold their offices in abject dependence on the will of a government irresponsible to public opinion, that they choose the Grand and Petit Jurors without reference to their fitness, but often from political considerations. What remedy would you provide so as to secure to the subject a fair trial by jury?—I have not given the subject sufficient consideration to enable me to suggest any better mode than the present.

580. Would it not be better that the sale and disposal of the public lands and other public property were in all cases regulated by law?—I see no objection to such a measure.

581. Ought not the whole public revenue to be paid in the gross into the Exchequer or Treasury of the Colony, and the proceeds applied only according to law?—I must decline answering that question.

582. Would not it be advisable that the Clergy and Crown Reserves and all reservations of land, otherwise than for education and roads, were disposed of for public purposes, under the control of the Legislature?—I must decline answering that question.

583. What check has the House of Assembly on the other branches of the government, as a means of preventing Executive usurpations of popular rights?—I think the sum annually required from the Assembly to carry on the public service, is a sufficient check.

584. Has not the present system of government in Upper Canada, tendency to discourage emigration of the more wealthy and enterprising class of emigrants into the Province?—I do not think it has, hitherto.

585. The vote by ballot is prayed for in many petitions, both to the Assembly and to His Majesty; what is your opinion of this mode of voting?—I have always been opposed to the vote by ballot.

586. Would you favour the Committee with your reasons why you are opposed to it?—I am opposed to it on the ground of its not being in accordance with the practice pursued in the parent state, and from the conviction I feel that the vote by ballot does not afford any additional protection to the individual in the exercise of his right, as it is notorious that it is always well known to which party he gives his vote and interest.

587. Do you know why this Province is paying £200 sterling a year to England, as a pension to Sir D. W. Smith, a Northumbrian Baronet?—I do not.

588. Is the Lieutenant Governor obliged in matters of State Policy, to ask your advice as an Executive Councillor?—Only in cases where the 31st of the King requires that he shall act with the advice of the Executive Council.

589. If he asks the advice of the Executive Council, is he obliged to follow it. If he asks your advice and disagrees with you in opinion, can he reject your suggestions, and follow the dictates of his own judgment?—I decline answering that question.

590. If His Excellency receive Despatches from the Colonial Office, can he act on them as he sees fit; without the advice of the Executive Council? If he does ask their advice, can he submit an extract of a Despatch to their consideration, or are all Despatches and communications between the Lieutenant Governor and the Colonial Office, enregistered, and open to the inspection of all the Members of the Executive Council?—I decline answering that question.

591. Have you read the Hon. Mr. Elmsley's letter advertised in the newspapers on resigning his seat at the Executive Council Board? The letter is as follows:—

HOLLAND HOUSE,
York, December 3rd, 1833. }

"SIR,

"In order to prevent any misconceptions as to the motives which have induced me to resign my seat in the Executive Council, I beg to be permitted to make your paper the channel through which my reasons for taking that step may be communicated to the public in their proper light. In the year 1830, His Majesty was graciously pleased, in compliance with the recommendation of His Excellency Sir John Colborne, to call me to the Executive Council of this Province. For that mark of His Majesty's Royal favour and of His Excellency's consideration, I feel highly proud and deeply grateful, but since I have assumed the duties of that high office, I find that I cannot fearlessly express my real sentiments and opinions, if opposed to the Government for the time being, without incurring the risk of dismissal from that Honorable Board, which constitutes my inability to advance the public good. I have therefore deemed it expedient, most respectfully, but reluctantly, to tender the resignation of my seat in the Executive Council.

"JOHN ELMSLEY."

Are these statements true?—A man may act quite independently, and retain his seat as an Executive Councillor.

592. What public accounts have the Executive Council been in the habit of examining and auditing of lat years?—All the accounts of expenditure within the Province, except the monies appropriated by the Legislature for roads or other purposes.

593. What is your opinion as to the establishment of a general board of audit in this Province?—I think it would be advantageous.

594. (Bishop M'Donell's letter respecting the character of the Government, shewn to witness, who is asked) "Can you explain this letter in any way to this Committee?—No, I was not a member of the government at the period the writer alludes to.

595. Is any part of the judicial, ecclesiastical or civil establishments of this Province, defrayed from funds raised out of Upper Canada?—I know of no other than the monies arising from the interest of the proceeds of Clergy Reserves, remitted to England, and vested by the Lords of the Treasury in the funds.

596. Considering that you have chosen to decline answering a number of political questions on matters of opinion, rather than of facts, it may be proper to ask you, whether the Legislative Council, would not be more likely to harmonize with the House of Assembly, and would not its members be more independent were they unconnected with offices and emoluments held during the pleasure of the Executive?—I beg to assure the Committee that in refusing to give my opinions on certain political questions, I have not been governed by any captious motive, but that I have done so from the conviction that the confidential situation I hold under His Majesty's Government, would make it improper for me to express such opinions in any other place, than where my duty requires I should.

MONDAY, 6TH APRIL, 1835.

THOMAS BAYNES, Esq. called in and examined.

597. In 1833, you are stated in the Blue Book, to have received £150 as Senior Clerk in the Crown Lands' Office, and £150 as Secretary to the Corporation for managing the Clergy Reserves. The same authority for 1834, shews, that in that year, both your salaries were raised—the first to £200; & the second to 300; is this the case?—Did you receive £500 in 1834 for services similar to those for which in 1833 you had £300?—In May 1833, I was appointed Sec'y to the Clergy Corporation with a salary of £150 per annum, at which period I held the situation of senior clerk in the Commissioner for Crown Lands Office, with a salary also of £150 per annum, making £300 per annum. In 1834 in consequence of the great increase of business in the Clergy Corporation Office, I found it impossible to attend properly to the duties of both offices, and upon my representing the circumstance, it was ordered in Council, on the 3rd April, 1832, that I should attend entirely to the duties of the Clergy Corporation Office, and that I should receive a salary of 300 per annum. My salary therefore in the Commissioner for Crown Lands Office ceased on the 31st March, 1834.

7TH APRIL, 1835.

MR. HENRY PANNEBACKER, FARMER, WATERLOO, COUNTY OF HALTON, GORE DISTRICT, examined.

598. You had a note in the Bank of Upper Canada?—Yes.

599. Was it paid regularly?—No.

600. What has been the consequence?—3 lawsuits were begun and carried down to trial on one note by Clarke Gamble, Esq. the Attorney for the Bank. The note was for £50, the interest came to £3 2s 2d, and the costs to £30, although the parties whose names were to the note, lived close together, thirty miles were charged upon the service of each paper.

The Witness delivered in an account as follows:

"The Bank of Upper Canada vs. Henry Pannebacker, John Gisgnik, and Abraham Pannebacker."

"30 miles charge upon the service of each paper."

"3 Suits and carried down to trial."

"Amount of note,..... £50 0 0

6th April, 1835.

C. GAMBLE.

SAMUEL P. HURD, ESQ. SURVEYOR GENERAL OF UPPER CANADA.

601. What is the date of your appointment to the office of Surveyor General?—1st Nov. 1829.

602. When did you enter upon the duties of that appointment in this colony?—22d May, 1832.

603. Did you receive any salary, fees, or other allowances as Surveyor General, for the time that elapsed between the date of your appointment and the period at which your personal services began in this colony, as head of your department?—And if so, what salary or allowance did you so receive, and by what authority?—I received six months pay in full for the first six months after my appointment; and subsequently, half salary and emoluments to the time of my arrival in Canada. The authority, was an order from His Majesty's Home Government.

604. It appears by documents sent down to the House of Assembly, that £798 18s 10½, and £143 13s 11½, sterling money, were paid to Mr. Chewett in 1832 and 1833, out of Fund A, otherwise known as the duties levied under the Act 14th Geo. 3d, without the knowledge or consent of the Legislature, because he had paid over those sums or half his salary and emoluments from 1st of Nov. 1829, to you; why was he called on to refund this money to you, and what were the services you rendered therefor?—The sum of £795 18s 10½d is the emolument as is stated arising to W. Chewett, Esq. as the pay of his official appointment as Principal Clerk, and senior Surveyor and Draftsman—with the half emoluments of the Surveyor Generalship. The £143 13s 11½d is similarly accounted for. The reason why that gentleman paid over the half of the salary to the Surveyor General, being the sum accruing during his absence from the Province, subsequent to his appointment, is explained by the despatch from the home government, already alluded to, expressing its pleasure and conveying its directions on that subject.

605. What was your income as Surveyor General in 1834, including all fees?—Six hundred a year, sterling, being a diminished income. Fees about £75 currency.

FRIDAY, 10TH APRIL, 1835.

W. W. BALDWIN, ESQ. TORONTO, called in and examined.

606. Some years ago a Committee of the inhabitants of this District held a correspondence through you (as chairman of a general meeting) with Lord Viscount Goderich, and other gentlemen of influence in England, and petitions were agreed to* and sent home. Have you preserved any of the letters addressed to you at that period concerning the affairs of the Colony?—I have the letters I received.

607. Would you have the goodness to lay them before this Committee?—I now present the same. [The Witness delivered to the Committee three autograph letters, one from the Right Honorable E. G. Stanley, one from Mr. Hume, and one from Lord Viscount Goderich, which are attached to this evidence.] as follows:—

WHITEHALL YARD, April 24, 1829.

SIR,

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt within these few days, of your letter of the 3rd of January, enclosing the Resolutions of a Public Meeting at York (which I had before seen in the Canada papers) and also of a Petition to His Majesty and the other branches of the Imperial Legislature. I have not yet received the original petition referred to, which the meeting have done me the honor of entrusting to my care for presentation to the House of Commons. I cannot therefore express any opinion upon the wording of that Petition, which must necessarily be in some degree varied from that of which I have received a printed copy, inasmuch as this, addressed to the King, contains recommendations and petitions upon various points intimately connected with the practical exercise of the undoubted prerogative. Replying therefore in some degree rather in the dark to the letter which I have had the honor of receiving from you, I may be permitted to say that you and the Committee do me no more than justice in supposing that whatever my ability may be, I shall always be happy to exert it to the utmost in the maintenance of the Constitutional rights of the Colonists, and in making known, and procuring the redress of any grievances of which they may have just cause to complain. In the exercise of that duty, on the other hand, I shall never shrink from expressing my opinion, when I think that their expectations go beyond those just rights, or when those supposed grievances are pushed beyond their proper limits; and in so doing I shall conceive that I best discharge my duty, not only as a Member of the British Parliament, but as a sincere friend to the real interests of the Colonists.

In the Petition of which I have received a printed copy, I am extremely happy to see that many of the evils complained of, and many of the suggestions for their remedy, had in fact been anticipated by the recommendation of the Committee of the House of Commons, of which I was a Member—a committee which received indeed very little evidence especially from Upper Canada, but which manifested universally as anxious a desire to come at the real truth, and to do impartial justice, as any committee upon which I ever had the honor of sitting.

With respect to the inviolability of the Constitution of 1791, and the limits of the respective jurisdictions of the Imperial and Provincial Legislatures, a point most delicate to touch upon, and most difficult to define, the Committee have, I think, expressed themselves (Report p. 8.) in a manner which must be satisfactory to the Canadas generally.

Upon the subject of the Constitution of the Legislative Council, (which I do not hesitate to say, without any disrespect to or reflection upon the individuals who compose it, is at the root of all the evils complained of in both Provinces)—upon the exclusion of the Judges, with the single exception of the Chief Justice, from all interference in political business—and upon the necessity of introducing some alteration into the present Jury system—the three most important points of your Petition, you will find that the opinion of the Committee entirely concurs with yours—and that opinion I am disposed to support to the utmost of my power.

The absence of the Judges, I am inclined to take upon somewhat different grounds. As a substantive proposition there cannot be a doubt of the propriety of the prayer of the Petitioners upon this head: and I should even go the length of saying, that it must not only be a "most reasonable" but a very urgent ground, which ought to be alleged for giving a leave of absence to a Canadian Judge. It is because I think the proposition in itself so undeniable, that I regret to find it mixed up with a peculiar case, involving much of party, and much of personal excitement—I mean of course the removal of Judge Willis. Upon the limited information which I have obtained of this case, chiefly however from parties favorable to the Judge, I cannot help thinking, without expressing any opinion as to the legal construction of the disputed Act, and even admitting him to be right in his interpretation, that his mode of giving that interpretation, and subsequent conduct, is open at least to the charge of indiscretion; and necessarily placed the Government in a situation to have at least a fair excuse for his removal, if they desired it; and feeling this very strongly, I cannot but regret that this personal case should occupy so much of the space devoted to the constitutional grievances of the Province.

With respect to the appointment of the Judges during pleasure, and not as in England, during good behaviour, giving also the power of impeachment before the Legislative Council, I must acknowledge my belief that the circumstances of the colony do not at present warrant such a step, however anxiously I may desire to see the time when they may do so—but at present I conceive such independence upon the Crown would practically be dependence upon the people, more especially unless they hold permanent salaries, of which nothing is said;—and the very terms of the Petition seem to limit a future time, when they speak of the Legislative Council, "being so modified as to become an independent branch of the Legislature"—to such a modification I fear time, as well as Parliamentary enactment, or recommendation, may be wanting. In the meantime I highly approve, as a general practice, of the appointment of Judges from the English Bar—but I think it could hardly be made a general rule, without too much discouraging the legal profession in Canada—nor is it properly a subject for the interference of the British Parliament. The same objection may be urged to the agitation of several of the minor grievances complained of.

On the last, and one of the most important topics, namely the appointment of a Local Ministry, subject to removal or impeachment when they lose the confidence of the people, I conceive there would be great difficulty in arranging such a plan—nor are the wishes of the Petitioners very clearly expressed—for in point of fact the remedy is not one of enactment but of practice—and a constitutional mode is open to the people, of addressing for a removal of advisers of the Crown, and refusing supplies, if necessary to enforce their wishes.—I do however think that something might be done with great advantage, to give a more really responsible character to the Executive Council, which at present is a perfectly anomalous body, hardly recognised by the Constitution, and effective chiefly as a source of patronage.

I ought not to conclude without acquainting you that as it is a breach of parliamentary forms to allude in any petition, to the speeches delivered by members in their places, the direct animadversions in your Petition upon the speech of Mr. Huskisson may, and probably will, be taken as a technical ground to prevent its reception: the debate however may equally be taken upon it, and I shall take an opportunity previously of communicating with Sir George Murray, that he may be prepared to state on that occasion the views of Government relative to the various points adverted to.

I have now, Sir, stated to you without reserve, though briefly, my general views of the different points of your Petition.—If I cannot entirely concur in all of them, I give you at least a pledge that I shall not be deterred by any considerations from expressing my real opinions, and from supporting your cause, when I can conscientiously do so, in Parliament, with whatever power I may possess.

I have only to express in addition my sense of the honor done me in confiding this Petition to my care, and my hope that nothing in my public conduct will forfeit the confidence reposed in me.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your obedient humble servant,

E. G. STANLEY.

W. W. BALDWIN, Esq. }
York, U. C. }

LONDON, 1st May, 1829.

SIR,

On the 10th of April I received your letter of the 3rd of January, inclosing a copy of the Resolutions of a Meeting of the People of Upper Canada, and of a Petition agreed upon by them to the House of Commons.

I have not heard of the arrival of the Petition, but when presented by Mr. Stanley I shall be happy to support it as I concur in the prayer.

I am confident that much oppression and misgovernment takes place in the Colonies by the Government at Home being kept in ignorance of the truth, and the best mode to obtain redress is to apply to the Secretary of the Colonies direct, and to send to some Members of the Commons copies in form of petition to be presented if the Secretary does not afford relief.

The present Secretary Sir George Murray has, in his place in the House of Commons expressed the best opinions and principles on which he intended the Colonies shall be governed, and we are anxious to know whether his orders are to enforce those principles.

The Assembly in Upper Canada should agree to nothing which is not for the interest of the community and the proper controul over every item of expenditure should be the first and most important object for them to attend to. We understand that orders have been sent out to make the College of Dr. Strachan open to all sects, and that it is to be also under a joint management of all sects of Protestants, and there is nothing the Canadians should be more cautious about than the encroachments of the Church of England to anything like a dominant religion.

I have endeavoured to cut off the supplies of money voted by Parliament for the Church of England missionaries, but as yet without success.—I shall not cease to repeat my endeavours in that respect as I consider it most important to the peace of all the North American Colonies. We expect to hear that some changes have been made respecting your Council, and I agree with you that until these are responsible, and removable on the call of the people for abuse of power you will not be right.

Wishing every success to your endeavours, and trusting you will persevere steadily and moderately in the course you are pursuing to establish your rights.

I remain

Your obedient servant,

JOSEPH HUME.

W. W. BALDWIN, Esquire, Chairman of a Public Meeting at York in Upper Canada. }

LONDON, May 7th, 1829.

SIR,

I have to apologize for not having acknowledged, at the time when I received it, your letter of January 3rd, communicating to me the intention of a large body of the people of Upper Canada to entrust to me a petition addressed by them to the House of Lords. But as the letter which I then had the honor to receive from you, was not accompanied by the petition itself, I thought it would be better for me to wait till that document should reach me, before I troubled you with my letter.

I have now received the petition, and shall not fail to present it at an early period, to the House of Lords. It is necessary however that I should state that I am not without some apprehension that there may exist a technical difficulty in the way of its reception, in consequence of its containing a direct reference to certain words supposed to have been used by Mr. Huskisson in the House of Commons during the last session. The Houses of Parliament are very particular upon this point, and I have known more instances than one where petitions have not been received in consequence of a similar reference to speeches made by members of Parliament. I shall however tender your petition to the House, which will of course decide whether it can be received or not. In the mean time I beg you, as well as those on whose behalf you have transmitted the petition to me, to believe that I am fully sensible of the honor which they have done me in selecting me as the channel of communication between so large a portion of the people of Upper Canada and the House of Lords. It cannot but be highly gratifying to me to learn that I owe this distinction to the manner in which, upon a particular occasion most interesting to that country, I discharged my duty as His Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies; and I assure you that I retain an anxious desire to see that portion of the King's dominions flourishing, contented and happy. It will be my duty to give my best attention to the various important particulars adverted to in the letter which you have addressed to me, and in the petition which has followed it; and if in some respects I may not concur in all the opinions entertained by yourself and the petitioners, I venture to trust that you and they will be disposed to ascribe it to anything rather than indifference to the feelings or the interests of the Province of Upper Canada.

I am of course not in possession of the sentiments of His Majesty's Government upon the various matters to which the petitioners wish the attention of Parliament to be called: but the Committee which sat during the last session have upon many important topics expressed opinions which appear to be much in unison with those entertained by the Colonists, and which have doubtless already attracted the notice and consideration of the Government. The appointment of that Committee, and the extent to which they carried their investigations, are strong proofs of the ready disposition of the government and the Legislature of the parent country to watch over the concerns of so important and valuable a dependency of the Crown, which requires nothing but a wise, just, and liberal administration of its affairs, to secure to its inhabitants that increasing prosperity which from its great natural resources it is entitled to anticipate; and if in any way I can contribute to the promotion of so interesting an object, it will always be a matter of great personal gratification for me to do so.

I have the honor to remain

Sir,

Your obedient humble servant,

GODERICH.

W. W. Baldwin, Esq.

PETITION

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty (and to the several other branches of the Imperial and Provincial Legislatures.)

WE, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, inhabitants of Upper Canada, are constrained by the most painful necessity to appeal to the justice of your Majesty against the mis-rule of the Provincial administration, and humbly to point out to your Majesty the alarming increase of our grievances, and the necessity of their redress, as they become more and more inveterate from the patience with which we have hitherto endured them. We offer our warmest thanks and gratitude to your Majesty for appointing to be a judge over your Canadian people, the Hon. John Walpole Willis, whose private virtues and acknowledged learning, blended with high and uncompromising principles, uniformly evinced in the impartial discharge of his judicial duties, have already endeared him to the country, as one of its greatest blessings, and as affording to the people the most flattering presage of a new era in the administration of justice—of this blessing we have been unconstitutionally deprived, and misrule has at length become so bold, and power so indiscriminate of its victims, as to spurn from the judgment seat the honorable Mr. Justice Willis, who there presented what has long been wished for but seldom seen, the stern and fearless integrity and independence of a British judge. Such judicial integrity and independence are alarmingly endangered when such a judge, without impeachment and even without a charge, can be so ignominiously removed from this high office.

Although we entertain the fullest confidence in your Majesty's desire to promote the happiness and protect the rights of British subjects throughout your ample and glorious dominions, yet our hopes of speedy redress are not a little discouraged, by a knowledge that while we, on our part, open to your Majesty the abuses and oppressions growing upon us, the very persons we accuse are pressing through other channels, affording a more favorable access to your Royal belief, those interested misrepresentations, which are designed both to promote misrule, and protect the authors of it; for it cannot be forgotten that misrepresentations from such sources have already recently endangered our civil and religious liberties and cruelly vilified and traduced the fair characters of the dissenting denominations of Christians in this Province. And the impending consequences of such secret misrepresentations are further apprehended from the tenor of the speech of the Right Honorable Wm. Huskisson, your Majesty's principal Secretary of State for the Colonies in the Imperial House of Commons, as reported in some of the public prints.

Notwithstanding defects in the law defining our Constitution, we are, nevertheless warmly attached to it, and view with just fear every attempt to amend it, without the intervention of our Provincial Legislature which is the constituted guardian of our rights and liberties, and which, considering the great distance of the Imperial Legislature, can best understand our necessities and apply the proper remedies. It has long been the source of many grievances, and of their continuance, that the Legislative Council is formed, not of an independent gentry taken from the country at large, but of Executive Councillors and placemen, the great majority of whom are under the immediate, active, and undue influence of the person administering your Majesty's Provincial government, holding their offices at his mere will and pleasure. Hence arises in a great measure the practical irresponsibility of Executive Councillors and other official advisers of your Majesty's representative, who have hitherto with impunity both disregarded the laws of the land, and despised the opinions of the public. From the impunity with which the greatest abuses have hitherto existed, and the difficulty in such a state of things of applying an efficient remedy, most of our grievances have taken their origin and growth.

First, The rejection by the Legislative Council, of the most salutary measures passed by large majorities in the House of Assembly, and much desired by the people.

Secondly, The frequent want of a casting voice in the Court of King's Bench in this Province, owing to the illegal absence of the judges, especially of the Chief Justices, as well on distant journeys out of the Province, as on attendances on the Legislative and Executive Councils.

Thirdly, The undue influence which the mingled duties of Legislative and Executive advice have on the judicial function.

Fourthly, The assumption of a power by the Executive to appropriate a large portion of the revenue and other monies, raised from the sale of land and otherwise in the Province, independent of the will or sanction of the Assembly.

Fifthly, The extravagant augmentation of salaries, offices and public expences, quite disproportioned to the state and circumstances of the Colony.

Sixthly, The confinement of public prosecutions of offences to the sole conduct of the Law Officers of the Crown in the Colony, embarrassing private prosecutors in this small community, where the influence of politics and family connexions, is so injuriously felt.

Seventhly, The retaining in public offices and the introduction into the same of persons who notoriously ought to be excluded.

Eighthly, The want of carrying into effect that rational and constitutional control over public functionaries, especially the advisers of your Majesty's Representative, which our fellow subjects in England enjoy in that happy country.

Ninthly, Our present imperfect Jury System.

Tenthly, That sheriffs, coroners, and other public officers hold their offices during pleasure, and not during good behaviour, or otherwise as in England.

Eleventhly, That the supreme judges of the land hold their offices during pleasure, and are subjected to the ignominy of an arbitrary removal.

Wherefore we humbly entreat for the interference of your Royal Prerogative to favor our exertions to correct the grievances under which we labor.

We humbly suggest that the Legislative Council should be increased in number, of whom, a small proportion only, strictly limited by law, to be permitted to hold or enjoy any place of emolument or profit under the Government, or to be members of the Executive Council.

Secondly, That the Judges of the Court of King's Bench, be not Legislative Councillors, nor Executive Councillors, nor Privy Councillors, in any respect in the Colony.

Thirdly, That the Judges shall not be permitted to absent themselves from the Province, but on the most reasonable cause and with leave obtained as prescribed in the British acts relative to Colonial Officers.

Fourthly, That the Judges be made independent as in England, holding their offices not as at present in this Province but during good behaviour to be inquired into, by impeachment alone, in the Provincial Parliament, before the Legislative Council, when that body is so modified as to become an independent branch of the Legislature.

Fifthly, That for some time, at least till the Province affords an adequate source of legal and constitutional education, the Judges be appointed from the bar in England.

Sixthly, That a Legislative Act be made in the Provincial Parliament, to facilitate the mode in which the present constitutional responsibility of the advisers of the local Government, may be carried practically into effect; not only by the removal of these advisers from office, when they lose the confidence of the people, but also by impeachment for the heavier offences chargeable against them.

Seventhly, That our present Jury System be amended by a new law whereby the jurors to be impanelled may be more equally selected from the country and less at the mere nomination of the sheriff or his officers; such new law to extend both to grand and petit jurors.

Having thus under the pressure of the present crisis hastily concentrated our most pressing grievances, and humbly prayed for the royal aid of your Majesty's prerogative in providing appropriate remedies, we your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects cannot omit again to bring under your Majesty's serious notice as indicative of the necessity of a change of men and measures, the recent violent and unconstitutional removal from office of the Hon. John Walpole Willis, a public wrong, calling more and more loudly for our most earnest remonstrance to your Majesty, and strongly elucidating the injurious character of the policy pursued by the present Provincial administration.

Such was the apprehension of the practical bad consequences of the King's Bench being without a casting voice, that previous to Easter Term last, a memorial was addressed to His Excellency, pointing out, in some respects, the failure of justice in such a state of things, and requesting His Excellency to suspend his leave of absence, to the Chief Justice, whose departure from the Province was at that time publicly spoken of, even until after the approaching term. His Excellency, however, did not think proper to do so, and the evil consequences anticipated have been realised. During the terms of Michaelmas and Hilary, last past, with a full Bench, there was not fewer than ten cases wherein differences in opinion arose amongst the judges on important points, and in Easter Term, during which the Chief Justice was absent, the two Puisne Judges were divided in opinion, in six several cases. In such a state of things, substantial justice cannot be said to be administered. The Provincial law wisely enacts that your Majesty's Chief Justice of this Province, together with two puisne Justices, shall preside in the Court of King's Bench. And as a diversity of opinion has, in many important points, unhappily prevailed among the judges of that Court, which is the only one of superior jurisdiction, and from which in the vast majority of cases, there can be no appeal, the importance of maintaining that Court, as organized by law, becomes the more urgent, and the violation of that law productive of the greater evils.

Under these circumstances, we feel that the Hon. Mr. Justice Willis deserves the approbation and confidence of all good men, for withdrawing from the Court House, under a conscientious conviction in his own breast, that he could not administer justice according to law, while the Court was not constituted as that law required.

Sensible as we are that the appointment of Judges, esteemed by the people for their learning, and beloved by them for their virtues, is in every Colony so blessed, the most conclusive evidence of the health of the great body politic, so do we feel that this deliberate, violent and unconstitutional removal of Mr. Justice Willis, depriving us of the benefit of his honourable and conscientious services, is a grievance of such magnitude as requires your Majesty's paternal interference; and this evil we feel the more serious, because it furnishes the present provincial administration, with an opportunity of placing upon the judgment seat, a man labouring under those prejudices of family connections and party feeling from which Mr. Justice Willis was necessarily and happily free, persons withal very inferior to that gentleman, in education, in talents and in legal knowledge. While strongly feeling this injury, your Majesty will, we beseech, hear our complaint of the conduct of the Hon.

Mr. Justice Sherwood, who, in the absence of the Chief Justice, and of Mr. Justice Willis, proceeded alone to exercise all the powers of your Majesty's Court of King's Bench; and yet abstained from offering any justification for such assumption, for the satisfaction of the Public, although requested to give to the Bar his legal reasons for such a course. He had at that time vacated his office, by absenting himself from the Province, without the leave prescribed by law.

We should omit a matter of the first importance to the happy conduct of our civil affairs, did we forbear to mention to your Majesty, with all the delicacy becoming us, when referring to the exercise of your Royal Prerogative, the total inaptitude of military men, for civil rule in this Province.

The almost constant absence of your Majesty's Representative from the seat of Government, where almost daily is required his assiduous superintendence over public affairs and public functionaries—his total unacquaintance with the inhabitants of the country, with the exception of those whose official occupations place them about his person, whereby he can be but ill-informed of the true state of the country, or of the condition or wants and wishes of its people—the charge of disloyalty against those who question the policy of the present administration—a system of espionage spreading from the seat of Government, over the face of the country—a threatened degeneracy in the state of society, endangering, by the insidious operations of those morbid causes, that public feeling truly British and yet happily alive in this colony—the undue influence over electors in many ways, but especially by the issuing of patents granting land, sent into the country, in profusion, to be distributed by candidates acceptable to the present Provincial administration—the acceptance of office by Members of the House of Assembly, without vacating their seats, as is the necessary consequence in England, and the almost mortal violence offered to the Constitution by the exercise of worse than military rule in the intimidation of the more dependent members of the Legislative Council into the views of the Administration, at the peril of their offices, as was exposed in the testimony of the Honorable Wm. Dixon and the Honorable Thomas Clark, in their evidence before a committee of the House of Assembly, during the last session of the Provincial Parliament. Wherein, we your Majesty's faithful and loyal subjects, being greatly aggrieved, most humbly, most earnestly, and confidently pray your Majesty, for redress as far as such redress lies within your Majesty's constituted power. And as an object filling us with peculiar solicitude, we do most earnestly importune your Majesty, that you will be graciously pleased to restore Mr. Justice Willis, to the honorable situation to which your Majesty had appointed him, and thus protect your Majesty's royal choice, your faithful Judge, and us, your loyal subjects, from the wrongs that arbitrary rule in the Provincial Authorities, unchecked, would assuredly inflict.

And your Majesty's Petitioners as in duty bound will ever pray.

W. W. BALDWIN,
Chairman.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY,
9th April, 1835.

SIR,

I am directed by the Committee on Grievances to request that you would send down a statement for its information of the balances that are now in your hands, on the following auxiliary Funds, viz. C, F, I, and W, as also what balance is now on hand on Fund G, and what payments have been made from that fund since the last account was sent down to the House, dated the 5th of October 1831, at which time there appears to have remained on hand £1,005 11 1/4.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient
Humble Servant,

W. L. MACKENZIE,
Chairman Com. on Grievances.

To

The Honorable
The RECEIVER GENERAL,
&c. &c. &c.

Toronto, 9th April, 1835.

SIR,

In reply to your letter of this day's date requiring the balance on the 31st December last, in accounts C and F, I beg leave to state that Fund C has no balance, it is a schedule containing a detail return of all the fees, on grants of land under all regulations made by the Executive Council and incorporated in account K, (Casual and Territorial Revenue) to which account I beg to refer you to its credits.

Account F has a balance of £540 3 4/4 (five hundred and forty pounds three shillings and four pence three farthings) auxiliary, or connected with the Casual and Territorial Revenue.

If it is the wish of the Committee to obtain the balances in the funds as they at present stand, it will take some time to prepare—the expenditure is about £20,000 over the whole of the receipts to this period.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

JOHN H. DUNN.

To

W. L. MACKENZIE, Esq.
Chairman, &c. &c.
Grievance Committee.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY, 10th April, 1835.

SIR,

On referring to the despatch of the Secretary of State, I find that the fullest information may be obtained of all Royal Revenue.

Your letter is silent with respect to the inquiries made by the Committee as to the application of the balance which remained of Fund G, after the last account was sent down to the House of Assembly, I think in 1832, the accounts then shew a balance but no subsequent account shews what became of it.

Your letter is also silent as to the balance now in your hands on Fund W, (War Losses) and as to what was done with any balances of appropriations to the War Losses, whether from British or Colonial Revenues, which were not called for by the parties, and the amount of such balances.

If you cannot give the information required on these points it will greatly oblige me if you would in a letter to the Committee state that it has been refused.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

W. L. MACKENZIE,
Chairman Grievance Committee.

Toronto, 10th April, 1835.

SIR,

In reply to your letter of this day's date I have the honor to acquaint you, that the balance alluded to in account C was transferred to Account A in October 1832, both of which funds being applicable to the same objects, viz. "The Administration of Justice and Support of Civil Government," and which became obsolete by the act granting certain permanent salaries—Fund C has therefore no balance, and account A has been furnished to the Honorable the House of Assembly.

The present balance in W (War Losses) amounts to about £300 (three hundred pounds) and there still remains to be paid to the sufferers, on the last dividend about £3,000.

The balance which remained on the two first dividends, was paid some years ago into the military chest by order of the Right Honorable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

JOHN H. DUNN.

† His salary was supposed to be only £300 sterling, with an allowance in lieu of fees, but it seems that last year an order came from England to pay him £600 sterling, and he has fees under Provincial Acts. It appears by the answers he gave to this committee that after he was appointed Surveyor General he was several years absent. Nevertheless he was paid many hundred pounds as salary for the years before he entered upon the performance of any of its duties.

‡ A part of the year his place was supplied by Mr. James Henderson, Mr. Baines now [1835] holds only the latter office.

§ It appears by his evidence that the British Government have stopped his salary of £300, as President of the Board of Education, and he mentions that his salary as President of King's College is not received.

Eight years as Receiver General of the Public monies, not under the public control, paid out of the Canada Company's Revenue at L.222..... £1,776

Eight years charge to the public for receiving and paying out that part of the public revenue not under its control, which accrues from the Canada Company..... 1776

(This was a sinecure formerly held by a Mr. W. Dacres Adams, under the title of Agent for the Colony.)

A parliamentary grant in 1833..... 600
 3 per cent. on Provincial Revenue, 1827..... 930
 3 do. do. do. 1828..... 1,248
 3 do. do. do. 1829..... 988
 3 do. do. do. 1830..... 1,118

Four years' second Salary from Public Revenue at L.777 per annum, for 1831, 1832, 1833, and 1834..... 3,108

Amount in eight years of the Receiver General's income..... £11,544

It appears that L.1776 of this money arises from the very objectionable mode of paying public officers by a sinecure; that is, an office with no duties attached. Mr. Dunn's Income, as a whole, however, is lower than that of officers having far less important duties to fulfil.

SIR,

With reference to your letter of the 28th ultimo, I am directed by the Lieutenant Governor to transmit for the information of the Committee on Grievances, the accompanying documents relating to the payments made to the Clergy of various Churches, and also for erecting and repairing places of divine worship for the years 1833 and 1834.

An explanatory letter from the Inspector General, respecting the omission in the Blue Book, of the sum of £550 paid to the British Wesleyan Methodists in 1834, is annexed for the information of the committee.

His Excellency desires me to mention, that the committee will observe from the accounts furnished by the Receiver General, that half yearly statements are transmitted by the Receiver General through the Lieutenant Governor, to the Secretary of State, of the receipts and expenditures of the Crown Revenues.

SIR,

I am directed by the Lieutenant Governor to forward to you the accompanying remarks from the Chairman of the Grievance Committee and two extracts from an address of the House of Assembly, and to request, that the committee requiring information on certain accounts may be afforded such explanations as will shew the statements, in which the sums granted to the Ministers and Churches of each denomination are to be found.

With the accounts of the Casual and Territorial Revenue were forwarded, a nominal list of the Clergy of the Church of England receiving salaries, and the amount of salary of each.

I am also to acquaint you, that as the committee complained, that they have not received all the information they required, His Excellency begs that you will report why you have not furnished the accounts applied for, as a copy of the address was transmitted to you.

RECEIVER GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
Toronto 31st March, 1835. }

SIR,

In reply to your letter of the 30th inst. transmitting a communication from the Chairman of the Grievance Committee, together with two copies of addresses to His Excellency on the subject of appropriation made from the funds of the Casual and Territorial Revenue, &c. to the various denominations of Clergy, and for building Churches, &c. for the years 1833 and 1834—I have the honor to state for his Excellency's information, that the accounts already furnished will shew the sums paid with all the information in my power to afford. In order therefore, that it may be more clearly understood, I beg to enclose statements of the amounts paid by me under his Excellency's warrants, authorised by his Majesty's Government in England during these two years, together with copies of such lists of the Clergymen of each denomination, and for building Churches.

As his Excellency desires me to report why I have not furnished the accounts applied for agreeably to the address of the Commons House of Assembly, I have to remark, that I forwarded on the 28th of February last, a full and complete set of accounts of the Casual and Territorial Revenue, together with the instalments from the Canada Company, from the years 1827 to 1832 inclusive,—and the Assembly were furnished previously with a statement of those funds for 1833 and 1834.—The warrants issued by his Excellency for and on account of the Catholic Clergy have always been in favor of the Bishop, and paid in one sum to that gentleman, with the particulars I am not acquainted, nor am I informed of the number of Clergymen who participate in the same—all public money of every description is taken from the Receiver General by warrants, whose duty it is to see that the demands are duly authorized,—and when the money is paid to the parties named in the warrants, the Receiver General has nothing more to do with the transaction, but to obtain such vouchers as will enable him to prove the payments and satisfy the rigid examination of the Board of Audit in London. I can assure His Excellency that there is no desire to withhold any information required from the department entrusted to me, and I have always used every exertion, with the assistance in my office, to compile from the Public Accounts as much information, and to supply statements, &c. with as much expedition and accuracy as in my power, and circumstances admit of.

I have the honor to be

SIR,

I am directed by Viscount Goderich to inform you, that in consequence of the strong objections which exist to the practice of making grants of public money in aid of the funds derived from private subscriptions by associations for charitable purposes, he has had under his consideration the propriety of discontinuing that which it has of late years been usual to make to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel.

His Lordship is of opinion, that it is desirable that the assistance thus given to the society by the Parliamentary Grant, should be withdrawn, and that in future it should be left to depend according to the intention entertained at the time of its original institution, upon the subscriptions received from private individuals. In consideration, however, of the extended field of the operations of the Society, and of the great inconvenience which might be experienced from the sudden loss of so large a portion of their income as that derived from the public, Lord Goderich is of opinion that it would be expedient that the change which he contemplates, should rather come into gradual than immediate operation; he has therefore directed me to request, that you will submit to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury the propriety of proposing to Parliament the following grants. In the year 1832 the sum of 12,000*l.* instead of 16,182*l.*, the vote for the present year; 1833, 8,000*l.* and in 1834, 4,000*l.* being the last year in which Lord Goderich conceives that it will be necessary to ask any thing from Parliament for the support of the Society.

I am directed to request that you will move their Lordships to favour Lord Goderich with their decision upon the proposal submitted to them, at their earliest convenience, as it is desirable that the Society should learn without delay the course it is intended to pursue.

I have, &c.

(Signed) HOWICK.

Copy of Minute of the Lords of the Treasury, of 25th November, 1831, on the foregoing Letter of the Secretary of State.

Write to Lord Howick, for the information of Lord Goderich, that my Lords concur in his Lordship's recommendation that the grant to be proposed to Parliament for the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, should be reduced to the sum of 12,000*l.* in the year 1832, to 8,000*l.* in the year 1833, and to 4,000*l.* in the year 1834, and that no further grant should be proposed after that year.

Downing Street, 18th January, 1832.

SIR,

In requesting that you will lay before the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury the accompanying Estimates for the different Colonial Establishments for the year 1832, I am directed by Viscount Goderich to request that you will call their Lordships' attention to the charge which now, for the first time, appears in a separate estimate for maintaining the Ecclesiastical Establishment of the North American Colonies. This Estimate includes: First, the salaries of the Clergy of the Church of England, of the Roman Catholic Bishop, and of two Presbyterian Clergymen in Canada; these amount altogether to 6,600*l.* 18s. 6d.; and have for a long series of years been defrayed by an advance from the Military chest, in aid of the expense of the Civil Government of the Province. Secondly, the salaries of the Bishop of Nova Scotia, and the Archdeacons in the several Colonies in his diocese which have been transferred from other estimates. Thirdly, the sum of 1,000*l.* which has annually been voted for the support of the King's College in Nova Scotia; and lastly, the sum of 12,000*l.* for the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts. Lord Goderich has directed the whole of these several charges to be included in the same Estimate, because, being all incurred for purposes connected with the religious instruction of the inhabitants of British North America, he is of opinion that it is convenient to exhibit, at one view, the whole expense incurred for an object, which, in the present state of these Provinces, he conceives ought rather to be provided for by the Colonies themselves, than by the Mother Country. In pursuance of this opinion, Lord Goderich would have been most anxious to have found, if possible, the means of dispensing with the present estimate; as, however, the Colonial Legislatures could not fairly be called upon to defray the expense of an establishment which has been formed without their concurrence or advice, whilst some of the individuals of whom it is composed have accepted their present situation on an understanding that they were permanently to be kept up, it has appeared to His Lordship that justice to the Colonies on the one hand, & to these individuals on the other, would not permit the sudden discontinuance of the pecuniary assistance hitherto afforded by this country. He proposes, therefore, that this assistance should be gradually withdrawn as soon as a due regard to existing claims will permit. With respect to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury have already sanctioned an arrangement which has been communicated to the Secretary of that body; upon the same principle Lord Goderich would suggest the propriety of making, in the present year, the usual grant of 1,000*l.* to the King's College in Nova Scotia, reducing this sum to 500*l.* in the year 1833; after which it might be altogether discontinued. With respect to the salaries directly paid by the public to the individuals by whom they are received, Lord Goderich conceives that they stand on somewhat different grounds, from the assistance given to corporate bodies having other and fluctuating sources of income. These salaries, forming the two first items of the estimate, having been accepted under the idea that they would be a provision for their lives by persons who have abandoned other prospects in their profession, his Lordship is of opinion that they should continue to be paid during the lives of the parties by whom they are received, or until they can be otherwise provided for. With this explanation I am directed to request that you will bring under the consideration of their Lordships the propriety of submitting to Parliament the accompanying estimate.

Seventh Report of Committee on Grievances.

I am, Sir,
Your Most Obedient Humble Servant,
HOWICK.

ADDRESS of the Canada Conference of the Methodists to Sir John Colborne.—Dated, September 8th, 1831, as published in the Conference Paper.

To His Excellency Sir John Colborne, K.C.B., Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, Major General commanding
His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY:

WE, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects the Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Canada, take the liberty to enclose to Your Excellency an address to His Majesty with accompanying documents, most respectfully requesting Your Excellency to transmit them to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, to be laid at the foot of the Throne.

Permit us to avail ourselves of this opportunity to express our best wishes for Your Excellency's spiritual and temporal prosperity, and to assure Your Excellency of our sincere desire and firm determination to second Your Excellency's exertions for the public good, by doing all in our power to promote the interests of morality and pure religion, the essential precepts of which are, Fear God and honor the King.

By order of the Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Canada.

(Signed) W. CASE, President.

(Signed) JAMES RICHARDSON, Secretary.

YORK, Sept 8th, 1831.

To which His Excellency was pleased to return the following answer:

GENTLEMEN:

I shall not fail to transmit to the Secretary of State your memorial addressed to the King.

In returning my best thanks to you for your good wishes, I may venture to affirm that the assurances of your desire and determination to promote the interests of pure religion, will afford general satisfaction; because a very unfavorable impression has been made from one end of the Province to the other as regards an imputed secular interference on the part of your preachers: an impression I am afraid, that must tend to counteract the salutary effects that ought to result from the active piety and zeal of your Society. I refer with reluctance to the public opinion formed of the doctrines inculcated by ministers of every denomination of Christians, or the principles which they are said to espouse; but on this occasion I think it right to acquaint you that although the character of your ministers is probably aspersed, and although they may not, as is said, take advantage of the influence acquired by their sacred office to conduct the political concerns of the people committed to their care, to be instructed only in the words of eternal life, yet, I cannot imagine that if there were not some grounds for the imputation, of their inconvenient attention to secular concerns a desire for the return of the Wesleyan Missionaries to resume their pastoral labors in this Province would not have been generally expressed. This conclusion may be erroneous, but I am in some measure led to it from the reports which I have received of the absurd advice offered by your Missionaries to the Indians, & their officious interference; if any reliance can be placed on the statements of the Indians themselves, the civilization of whom the Superintendents of the Indian Department are endeavoring to accomplish.

With our excellent Constitution in this Province, I trust we shall always find a sufficient number of supporters of Civil and Religious freedom, without the interference of the Ministers of the Gospel. Your Preachers, whether they are brought from the United States, or any other foreign country, will, I hope experience, while they act honestly and respect British Institutions, the same protection and encouragement, and freedom, which all Americans enjoy, who have found an asylum among us, and choose to live under the British Government in this Province, and securely enjoy the rights of our own Colonists—which are assured to every denomination, party sect or persuasion.

Your dislike to any Church Establishment, or to the particular form of Christianity which is denominated the Church of England, may be the natural consequence of the constant success of your own efficacious organised system. The small number of our Church is to be regretted, as well as that the organization of its Ministry is not adapted to supply the present wants of the dispersed population in this new country: but you will readily admit that the sober-minded of the Province are disgusted with the accounts of the disgraceful dissensions of the Episcopal Methodist Church and its separatists—recriminating memorials, and the warfare of one Church with another. The utility of an Establishment depends entirely on the piety, assiduity, and devoted zeal of its Ministers, and on their abstaining from a secular interference, which may involve them in political disputes. The labours of the Clergy of Established Churches in defence of moral and religious truth, will always be remembered by you who have access to their writings, and benefit by them in common with other christian societies. You will allow, I have no doubt, on reflection, that it would indeed (with the inconsiderable population of the Province) be imprudent to admit the rights of societies to dictate on account of their present numerical strength, in what way the lands set apart as a provision for the Clergy shall be disposed of. Ample information on the question has been laid before the Imperial Parliament, and no inconvenience while it is pending can arise in respect to the occupation of these lands: for there are more acres now offered for sale than purchasers can be found for them.

In a few years the Province will be peopled by millions of our own countrymen, and many of the arrangements of His Majesty's Government will have reference naturally to the population of the Mother Country, destined to occupy the Waste Lands of the Crown.

The system of Education which has produced the best and ablest men in the United Kingdom, will not be abandoned here, to suit the limited views of the leaders of Societies, who perhaps have neither experience or judgment to appreciate the value or advantages of a liberal Education. But the British Government will, I am confident, with the aid of the Provincial Legislature, establish respectable schools in every part of the Province, and encourage all societies to follow their example.

A Seminary, I hope, will not be termed exclusive, which is open to every one, merely because the classical masters are brought from our own Universities.

It may be mentioned, without giving offence to the members of any church or persuasion, that there are few individuals who think that Ministers of the Gospel can conduct political journals, and keep themselves unspotted from the world, and put away all bitterness and wrath, and clamour and evil speaking, which the attacks of their adversaries may engender, or that their avocation will not force them to spend their time like the Athenians in their decline, in nothing but "either to tell or to hear some new thing;" I am persuaded that the friends of religion will strongly recommend ministers of the Gospel to labour to increase the number of Christians, rather than the number of their own sects or persuasions, to close their Churches and Chapels against all political meetings, and indeed all meetings for the transaction of secular business, and never to permit their consecrated places to be profaned by the party spirit of the hour.

SIR,

For the information of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, as required by your letter to Daniel Breakenridge, Jun'r Esq., dated Government House, York, 28th June, 1833,—and by whose recent death, it now devolves on me to answer the said communication, being under cover to John Willson, Esq. of Saltfleet, I was early made acquainted with its contents, and communicated the same to Mr. Breakenridge, then in a distant part of the Province, and appointed an extra meeting of the Conference, for the purpose of submitting His Excellency's requirements; at which time a number of the preachers and delegates being present,—but the then sickness and subsequent death of the Reverend David Breackenridge, President of the Conference, is the sole cause why that required explanation has not been given sooner.

I beg to state that it was resolved, the grant made by His Majesty's Government to the Canadian Wesleyan Methodists should be applied particularly in building a Chapel in the town of Hamilton, and in rebuilding one recently destroyed by fire in Ancaster, and to aid in building such other places of worship as a Committee appointed by the conference might be enabled to apply the surplus means thereto, if any such there be.

And I am further directed to state that John Willson, Esquire, M. P. P. is fully authorised to receive the said sum of money for and in behalf of the Conference.

It will be perceived from this statement that there still remains in my hands a balance of £55, to be disposed of by the Synod. It is proper, however, to state that this balance was reserved, not because there were no application for it but because the commission at their meeting in January last, felt a difficulty in deciding on the competing claims of the different congregations applying for it.

I had hoped, before the meeting of Synod, to have been enabled to place in His Excellency's hands, a general report of the actual application of the monies paid to the several Presbyteries, grounded on the returns made by the Moderators of these Bodies, but as these returns have not been all made, and I find cannot, in some cases, be made until the meeting of the Synod, the furnishing of the report in question must form a part of the duties of my successor as Moderator of Synod.

I beg to state further, for His Excellency's information, that while I am at present unable to name the exact number of places from which there will be applications to the Synod this year, for assistance from the Government Grant for Church building, all the requisite returns not having been sent in to me, I am convinced from those reports of our Presbyteries, which I have seen, that the number of such applications will be considerably increased this year, and that the Synod with the funds at its disposal, will not be able to meet the demands that will be made upon it.

No. 50.

THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND CLERGY.

They received in 1833, from the Government of Upper Canada (see Blue Book, page 102). - - - - - £12,281
And in 1834, from the same, (see the same authority for 1834, page 102). - - - - - 9,602
£21,883

In 1832, the net sum paid by Government to this Clergy (from the revenues raised out of the people of Upper Canada,) was, £5,438.

In the return sent in 1833, to His Majesty's Government in England (see Blue Book) an account is given of 45 Parishes, in all of which there is at least one clergyman, and in some Parishes two. The population of each Parish is also set down, and the number of persons who generally attend the services of the Church of England. In a note it is stated that "they (the Clergy) derive no local benefit from their respective charges."

"Part of the salary of the Bishop of Quebec was allowed to be paid out of the proceeds of the Clergy Reserves, as a temporary arrangement, but it is now paid by vote of the Imperial Parliament, "Blue Book, 1833, page 102."

The salary of the Bishop of Quebec is 3333*l. currency, over and above his house rent at Toronto, for which the people of Upper Canada are charged 200*l.*

[We perceive a salary of 1500*l.* sterling directed by Lord Goderich to be paid the Bishop of Quebec from the casual revenue, but this was only a temporary expedient, for a part of his income, and the order has been since withdrawn.]

In the returns sent down to the Assembly, we find the following payments from monies raised in Upper Canada, 1833.

Appropriation to George H. Markland, Secretary to Clergy Corporation, to support ministers of the Church of England (from fund D.) - - - - - £3889
Payments from Clergy Reserves, for the support of Ministers of the Church of England, for 12 months, ending June 1833. - - - - - 8632
To Mayorhoffer for building Church in Vaughan - - - - - 55

IN 1834.

To sundry missionaries of the Church of England, and pensions to three Missionaries and two Widows - - - - - 2556

The payment of Archdeacons of the Church of England in this Province by vote of the Imperial Parliament ceased in 1826. In 1827 they were saddled on the Colonial Revenue; and from the 1st of January, 1827, to the 1st of January, 1835, the gross sum paid them out of the sale of the Crown Reserves to the Canada Company is 6000*l.* as follows:—

Archdeacon Stuart, 8 years at 333*l.* 13s 4d - - - - - £2669
Do. do. 8 years Minister of Church of England at 111*l.* - - - - - 888
Archdeacon Strachan, 8 years, at 333*l.* 13s 4d. - - - - - 2669
And to cash paid for the two patents obtained in England, raising them to that dignity - - - - - 147

It appears that 200*l.* a year are allowed the Bishop of Quebec for house rent in Toronto, out of the funds of Upper Canada, by authority of a despatch or letter of Sir G. Murray. [The Bishop has also an income of 3000*l.* sterling a year from the British nation.

In 1831, September 13th, Archdeacon Strachan was allowed out of the funds of the colony, by Sir G. Murray's order, 1000*l.* sterling, to aid in building the Episcopal Church in Toronto, on condition that accommodation be permanently provided for His Majesty's Troops therein."

* See Extracts from miscellaneous estimates of the House of Commons of England appended hereto.

It appears from the papers on Clergy Reserves that Adam Gordon of the Colonial Office, paid in England for a Patent to constitute two Archdeacons in York and Kingston, U. C., which was repaid him from the reserves—147*l.*

Out of Clergy Reserve rents, it appears that the Archdeacon of Quebec, Dr. George Mountain, was paid in 1826, for his expenses on a journey to England on matters connected with the Clergy of Upper Canada, the sum of 222*l.*

GLEBES.

The following reservations of land were made for Glebes in 1833 and 1834, by orders in Council:—One lot in Gore of Lochiel, one in Elmsley, one in London, one in East Camden, one in Hope, and one in the town of Woodstock. The Surveyor General reports that these were the only reservations in Upper Canada for Glebes in these two years.

By a return to the House of Assembly of lands set apart as Glebes in this Province, from 1787 to 1833, we find that of these lands so set apart 22,345 acres were for the Church of England Clergy, 1,160 acres for the Kirk of Scotland Ministers, 400 acres for the Roman Catholics, and none for any other denomination of Christians.

RETURN OF THE CLERGY OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND—1834.

Of these ministers we find, by reference to page 20 of No. 5, Sessions papers (1835), that 26 receive 111. 6s. 8d. each; 8 get 55l. 3s. 4d. each; 1 gets 152l.; 3 get 27l. 11s. 8d. each; 2 receive 82l. 15s. each; 2 receive 72l. each. In all, 3880l. 11s. 1d. currency, per annum.

The annexed Returns from the Receiver General's Office, since received, give somewhat different results.

It is to be regretted that in very few cases have the Vouchers for the expenditure of money for building churches, &c. been laid before the country.

By reference to the printed papers sent down with Mr. Spring Rice's despatch of 5th Aug. 1834, it appears that after the 1st of April, in that year, it was proposed by the Colonial Department that the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in foreign parts, or in other words the English Nation, should pay annually to the Church of England Missionaries in Lower Canada, 3794l., by a direct vote of the British Parliament 611l., and by the people of the Colony nothing; that no monies should be paid to the Church of England Clergy from England, but that 7229l. should be taken and paid them from Revenues raised from the people of Upper Canada themselves; that 4444l. should be paid to the Church Missionaries in Nova Scotia, by a vote of the Imperial Parliament.

No. 53. WESLEYAN METHODISTS.

In 1833, says the official Blue Book, page 102, they received of Government money, out of revenues raised here, £ 1,800

In 1834 (we quote the same authority, page 102) out of Revenues raised in Upper Canada they received of Government, as follows:

" Wesleyan Methodists for building places of worship," 389

In the Casual and Territorial Revenue accounts sent down to the Assembly, it is shewn that they received a further sum, to build Churches and Chapels of, 611

£ 2,800

This latter sum of £611, is altogether omitted in the return made up by Mr. Cameron and sent to England. Mr. Markland's letter explains the omission.

PRESBYTERIAN CLERGY.

In 1827, John Machar, John McKenzie, John McLawrin, George Sheed, Hugh Urquhart, and Archibald Connell appear to have commenced their labours as Kirk Ministers pensioned by the Crown, out of the Revenue of Upper Canada, (Fund D.) at £100 a year each. Alexander Gale was added to their number in 1829; Messrs. McGill and Ross in 1830. Subsequently they have become still more numerous, and now receive a certain fixed sum per annum.

In 1833, they received from Government (see Blue Book p. 102,) £ 3,058

In 1834, they received from ditto (See do. do. p. 102) 1,670

In 1834, " the Ministers of the Presbyterian Synod of Upper Canada," not in connexion with the Kirk, received, (as is shewn in the Blue Book p. 102,) 813

In the accounts sent down to the Assembly, the Ministers of the Kirk appear to have received in 1833, from Fund D., £1295, and from Fund K, Mr. John Machar, 100l.; and in 1834 from Fund D, 2,109l.

The Presbyterian Clergy salaried by Government and who receive 64l. each of " Government allowance" are stated in page 168 of the Blue Book for 1834, to be:

1. Alexander Ross,	Aldboro',	64
2. R. McGill,	Niagara,	64

ROMAN CATHOLIC CLERGY.

Besides the pension to their Bishop, £830 a year, was formerly divided among the Priesthood, this has been since increased to £1,111 per annum.

On our examination of the Honorable Peter Robinson's accounts of the expenditure of £31,728 18s 11d stated to have been laid out in aid of immigration, which accounts were referred to this committee, was expended, as it is said, by the following persons:

---	------	----	---

1834.

Road work in Simcoe, same quarter	934	15	0
	£31728	18	11

Of this sum £31,652 18 5 were paid out of the public revenue not raised from direct taxation; and £9 12 6, the proceeds of a yoke of Government oxen sold by John Corner; £45 18, the proceeds of Government property left by Roswell Mount; £2 for sale of emigrant shed; and £18 10 from John Hatch, for provisions sold to Petworth emigrants, = £31,728 18 11.

Of the expenditure by Mr. Billings, £21 15 were for the emigrant agency and allowance of James Wiskins; 115*l.* do. to Edward O'Brien; 197*l.* to Thomas McGrath for do. do.; 104*l.* for the contingencies of Cheeseman Moe; 89*l.* for agency by John Corner; and £138 15 for agency by F. T. Billings.

A very considerable proportion of the expenditure on emigration, is for articles or services not specified, and concerning which a Committee of the House of Assembly can know nothing unless they were to send for the detailed accounts and vouchers, which it would be impossible to examine at the late period of the session at which the Government sent down these statements. In Charles Rubidge's account for 1831, 35*l.* are charged for Joseph Talbot's office service, and Scanlan and Hutchinson received 40*l.* and 117*l.* 15 for medical aid; Rubidge gets 87*l.* 10 for agency, and nearly 29*l.* for his contingencies; and Charles Rubidge, jun. has 21*l.* 15 for issuing provisions.

Wellesley Richey's detailed statement of the expenditure of 2081*l.* in Oro, Orilla, and Medonte, 1832, is like that of Mr. Robinson himself, a specimen of the imperfect mode of accounting for public monies which prevails in Upper Canada. All monies paid to public accountants should be paid into the Treasury, so that the gross receipts and expenditure might be seen, instead of which, Mr. Richey retains and deducts the monies paid him by the Simcoe emigrants for provisions and implements £328 12 3¼, in the same manner as Mr. R. had retained and deducted the proceeds of the oxen, &c. He charges 333*l.* 10 for his agency over and above all allowances.

Roswell Mount's account is for 7558*l.*, but he deducts nearly 334*l.* for provisions sold to emigrants in Carradoc, Adelaide and Warwick, and nearly 39*l.* more paid him for labor done at the expense of the Government. The difference is £380 1 10½. His charges are as follow :

To amount paid for transport of emigrants' baggage, 517*l.* ; to paid for labor on the roads in Adelaide, Warwick, and Carradoc, 2,915*l.* ; to paid for supplies, 2,630*l.* ; to paid for the erection of houses in Adelaide and Warwick, 948*l.* ; for hospital expenses in Adelaide and Warwick, 218*l.* ; to himself as agent, 330*l.*, omitting fractions.

The Committee have called on Mr. Robinson to transmit the detailed statement of this account with the vouchers, for examination.

In the account of the expenditure of Mr. Alexander McDonell, M. P. P., Peterborough, (amounting to 715*l.* 19 5) 289*l.* are charged for his own services as an agent, besides his travelling expenses, and 182*l.* 10 for a salary to Joseph Talbot as a clerk.

Lieutenant Colonel Fitzgibbon claims 51*l.* 4 6 for his services as an emigrant agent, and for the forage of his horse.

No. 57.

The Committee had not time and opportunity to examine in detail, the nature of the charges made by the several accountants, whose expenditures compose the sum of £31,728 18s. 11d., but they sent to the office of the Inspector General for the vouchers and detailed statements which supported the account of Roswell Mount, late Member for Middlesex, and who acted, as it appears, as an Emigrant Agent. His charge is L.7558 6s. 11½d.

MONDAY, MARCH 23d, 1835.

The Committee met, and the Chairman was directed to address a Letter to the Inspector General as follows :—

In cases where baggage has been teamed, no mention is made whose baggage was so teamed, but Bela Brewster Brigham certifies occasionally that the work was done and that too correctly, at a fair price.

No. 6 is an account for labour done by persons under the superintendence of Mr. Mount, at various wages, such as 2s. 4d. and 3s. 9d. per day. The amount being £1,437 15s. 6d.

The Vouchers to No. 6, are pay lists of about 386 laborers. These pay lists are not weekly or monthly receipts, but include in one receipt or pay list each person's labour within the months of August, September and October, 1832. It would appear that the labourers were paid for seven-days in each week, for it requires in most cases that the Sundays be included to make up the days charged, from the beginning to the end of the periods charged.

In some cases the errors in computation of time have been corrected by the Venerable the Archdeacon of York, who presided in the audit of Mr. Mount's accounts, by the Executive Council. For instance, in one of the lists, fifteen pence is deducted for an overcharge in the time of Daniel McCaw, while no notice is taken of the following charge in the same list, viz :—

“ William Robins, from 19th September to 20th October—39 days at 2s. 4d....L.4 11s.”

An Audit which allows 39 days between the 19th September and the 20th of October is not much to be depended on.

In the Executive Council's audit 2*l.* 5 each is deducted from the teaming account of Jesse Cornwall and Wm. Vail, because the vouchers had not been signed, and 2s. 4d. is withheld from a laborer, being one day's work, for the same reason.

On the other hand 33*l.* 17 is allowed Thomas Gibbons in the account of supplies ; the 10th No. in that account, and instead of a voucher for that sum, a duplicate receipt of Robertson and Brothers is endorsed on the back No. 10, and placed in its stead among the vouchers.

As to the laborers' signatures, they are generally attested by Bela Brewster Brigham, who also acts in the capacity of an endorser on a variety of accounts, that services were performed and that the charges are just. To distinguish between those who can and those who cannot write, the latter are made to put crosses as their marks. The signatures of those whom the witnesses proffer to have seen sign their names are in many cases imaginary, for in some pay lists three, four or five of them are evidently written by the same hand, and occasionally what purports to be the signature of the laborer is evidently that of the person who attests that he saw him write his name.

Some of the signatures on the pay lists are certified to by John Burke and Edward Burke, the signatures to some other pay lists are not attested by any witnesses at all.

£218 8 3½ are claimed for Hospital expenses, of which Dr. R. N. Starr's bill is for "medicines and attendance furnished to 750 emigrants in camp and hospital," at 2*l.* per day, 96*l.*

Dr. Hawkins' bill amounts to 92*l.* nearly, and he names the various patients for whom he demands payment. The sickness must have been very great indeed.

Another account is for disbursements by Mr. Mount, as emigrant superintendent, amounting to 329*l.* 14 0.

£207 1 6 are for his wages at 15*s.* per day, and 1*s.* 6*d.* per day additional "for a ration;" 83*l.* 2 6 are for a daily allowance 7*s.* 6*d.* to Colonel Bela Brewster Brigham as assistant superintendent under Colonel Mount; 39*l.* 10 are to James Inches as clerk at 5*s.* a day.

These accounts were audited in Council on the 12th of September 1833, and are attested by "John Strachan, Presiding Councillor."

No. 58.

ON THE MANAGEMENT OF THE PUBLIC REVENUE.

The following Extracts from the Report of the Commissioners on Revenue in Great Britain, recommends the observance of principles of the utmost importance to the public welfare, for promoting economy and retrenchment, and particularly for ensuring strict accountability in every department of the public service.

Report on the Public Revenue of Great Britain, by Sir Henry Parnell, M. P., Lord John Russell, M. P., Sir James R. G. Graham, M. P., Sir James Kempt, and the Right Honorable Edward Ellice, M. P., E. Poulett Thompson, M. P., and Mr. F. T. Baring, M. P., dated War Office, October 8th, 1831.

EXTRACTS :

To accomplish with perfect security and efficiency these objects of safe custody, legal appropriation, and record, it is obviously necessary that all public monies whatever, should in the first instance be paid into the exchequer. But it appears from the accounts laid before Parliament, that the whole amount of the public income is not so paid, but that amounts derived from divers sources of revenue are received and disbursed without the intervention of this institution, or being in any way submitted to its control. It is also certain that considerable sums arising from taxes and other matters are deducted from the gross receipts, and retained and expended by several departments, which only account to the exchequer for the nett amount, after such deductions. We think this practice should be discontinued; and we recommend that the gross receipts of public money, whether arising from taxes in each part of the United Kingdom,* from the income or sale of Crown property under the administration of the Woods and Forests; from the sale of Old Naval Ordnance or other Stores; from unclaimed dividends; unclaimed prize money; deduction from pensions, loans or Exchequer Bills, or from any other sources, should be placed without deduction in the custody of the Exchequer, and be accounted for to Parliament, whose authority should be necessary for the appropriation of the whole.

We feel this principle to be one of paramount importance for the security of the public money in the two great branches of receipt and expenditure, we think that no portion of the public treasure, should be arrested under any plea or pretence whatever, on its way to the Exchequer, and that no portion of it should be issued from the Exchequer without previous Parliamentary sanction. Your Lordships will perceive that a really efficient and complete control can be introduced into the different departments of the public service only by the adoption and establishment of the principle we recommend—a principle, which we believe to be the necessary preliminary to all satisfactory financial reform; by which means, not only will the whole of the public treasures be made available for the public service, but the expense for collection will appear as a part of the public expenditure, and be consequently placed immediately under Legislative and official control.

* The duties of the Barons of the Exchequer in Scotland as far as relates to the management of the property of the Crown and the public, in Scotland, as a Board of Treasury are described in the Appendix (Y) p. 173. The duties of the Vice Treasurer of Ireland are described in the Appendix (Z) p. 181.

We may refer to the satisfactory effects which have been produced by the introduction of such a regulation into the administration of the public finances of France in justification and support of our opinion on this essential point. If difficulties should occur, or objections be started from peculiar circumstances to the immediate application of this rule in all cases, it appears essential to recognise the important principle on which it is founded, and to urge upon your Lordships the policy of admitting the smallest possible number of exceptions to its application, and of allowing those exceptions to continue for the shortest possible period. We feel confident that a short experience of this improvement will soon remove the impediments which may at first be opposed to its adoption.*

We recommend as an additional means of disembarassing the Exchequer of useless and complicated duties, the immediate abolition of fees. Not only the Exchequer, but every department of the public service would be greatly benefitted by their total suppression.

We now proceed in the further discharge of our duty to the consideration of what books will be necessary to introduce in order to establish an intelligible, plain and correct system of record and account at the Exchequer. We recommend that these books should be under the management of two departments, one of record and the other of accounts. In the department of record, all the royal orders for directing credits to be given for the service of the several public departments, should be entered in an abstract form, and in the same way all the monthly and other Treasury warrants for giving credits at the Bank of England. It should also record all Parliamentary Grants and Acts of Parliament connected with the expenditure of the public money. The business of record should have connected with it the duty of examining the legality of every order which is sent to the Exchequer, and of comparing all the special warrants of the Treasury, with the authority given by the Royal order; and it should have the power of stopping credits if not legal.

The department of accounts would have to register, in a business like form on the double entry plan, all the facts of receipt and credit as they occur. A cash book would be kept in which all the revenue specification papers or other analogous documents of payments made into the Bank of England, for account of the Exchequer, should be chronologically and daily entered, such specification papers or other documents, having been duly compared with the daily statement of receipts sent by the Bank to the Exchequer.

This department will also be required to enter in regular order an abstract of cash warrants sent by the Treasury to the Exchequer, shewing the date, service and amount and the particulars of the credits given in conformity thereto.

Accounts of the same kind as those which are now sent weekly, quarterly and annually by the Exchequer to the Treasury should be made up and sent there, with such improvements as the proposed alterations in the Exchequer system may suggest.

With the view of accomplishing a complete settlement of the annual accounts and of preventing all obscurity or mistake, arising from the mixing of the amount of credits for the service of one

* A regulation of this character was introduced into France, by an ordinance of the 14th September, 1832, and appears to have been eminently beneficial in its operation. It provides, that under no circumstances can any branch of administration receive or dispose of any other funds than those which have been voted for its service by Legislative authority—that in case of any sale of public property, the proceeds of such sale shall be paid into the Treasury, and shall not be at the disposal of the Department to which the property belonged. In order to accomplish this object, it decrees that the presence and sanction of an officer of the Treasury shall be necessary for effecting any such sale, and it prescribes the form under which the sale must be conducted. It declares, as a general principle, that all money received from the public shall go to the Treasury and be accounted for as a portion of the public revenue. The circulars of the different administrations also direct, that the amount of no sale of stores or other public property, in a word no payment of any description shall be received by any Department, to be disposed of by that or any other department, unless it form part of the credit granted by the Legislature. See Mr. Bowring's first Report, pp. 8, 9.

year, with the amount of credits for the service of another year, we propose that the Exchequer shall cease to give credits on the 1st of October of each year for money voted in the year ending with the preceding 31st of December, and that all credits not made use of by a day to be fixed, shall be cancelled; and that the funds not applied, shall revert again to the disposal of Parliament.

As we have not the slightest hesitation in advising the employment of the commercial system of Book-keeping in its purest and most simple form, in all the public departments, and as we consider its application as forming the necessary ground work of any really important improvement, we shall refer, somewhat in detail, to the reasons which have induced us to recommend it so decidedly and urgently to the approbation of your Lordships.

The peculiar excellency of what is denominated the Mercantile System of Book-keeping by double entry, consists in the facility with which it embraces accounts, however complex, various and extensive; giving to all their differences of detail a unity of result and concentrating them at last in the most condensed shape, while it enables the examiner to trace them without difficulty to their remotest ramifications. In the initiatory or auxiliary books of account, a correct system will admit of all the modifications suited to the particular service; but as soon as the principal or double entry books take possession of the facts of an account, however intricate and varied, they become subjected to its general and harmonious law. Its machinery is employed to obtain an ultimate balance sheet, which will present in a concise, correct and intelligible form all the centralized facts of receipt on the one side, and of expenditure on the other, under their special heads. Of the efficacy of this system the trading world, in its infinite variety of commerce and concerns, gives unanimous evidence.

Into every well regulated manufactory, into every extensive mercantile establishment, in every part of the civilized world, it has gradually but peremptorily forced its way. The Revenues of no Government have been safely administered; the accounts of no Government have been intelligibly kept; the business of no Government has been promptly and satisfactorily despatched, until the commercial system has been introduced, with its order and uniformity, into the different departments. Several of the Governments of Europe have adopted this method after repeated and vain attempts to accommodate by other means the dissimilar usages of their various public offices to one general system; and there is no instance of any Government having abandoned the mercantile practice after having once employed it. On the contrary every Government that has introduced it has borne testimony to its adaptation to national concerns, and its complete efficiency for all fiscal and financial operations and records. It is the system adopted by the East India Company, both at home and in their dependencies abroad, and we need only refer to Mr. Bouring's report on the public accounts of France for irresistible proofs of its value, practicability, comprehensiveness, clearness and efficiency. Indeed it appears from his statement, that a succession of ministers of France have borne unanimous and cordial testimony to the excellent workings of the commercial system of accounts, in all the departments of government; that the objections originally suggested against it, by persons who had not attentively considered its bearings, on the grounds of its not being adapted to public official accounts, have all given way before the evidence of its sufficiency and superiority. In the words of Count Chabrol (the late minister of France,) simplicity and rapidity, in the progress of the public accounts, have been accompanied with clearness and regularity of result,—incompleteness and delay have been succeeded by publicity and promptitude.

The system of accounts as adopted in France has afforded perfect security against default and delapidation; it has brought with it savings of expense to the amount of several millions sterling per annum; it has diminished the labors and anxieties of public servants, and has again and again been eulogized after elaborate and detailed examination by statesmen of all parties in both Houses of the French Legislature. Opposed to such facts, and to the admitted experience of the whole commercial world, we do not conceive the opinions hostile to this system of accounts have any considerable weight.

The late Board of Treasury in their minute of the 14th July 1829, recognize the plan of double entry; as the principle proper to be adopted, and state the propriety of substituting, for the numerous account books now in use, a regular Cash-book, Journal, and Ledger, as the foundation of a system of Book-keeping upon a plan of double entry; and again they declared that a thorough knowledge of Book-keeping by double entry is above all indispensable to the success of the new measures.

This is indeed the great principle of the best commercial accounts, and though in the auxiliary books of merchants, there are many varieties suited to their different concerns, there is no essential difference in the way in which all intelligent merchants keep their double entry journal and ledger. The ledger invariably represents concentrated, and not diffuse accounts, it is in a word the amalgamation of similar facts under their different heads; it is the volume of results and not of particulars; it is in fact, the tabular centralization of all the various auxiliary books, and the final instrument of the balance sheet. The plan of double entry is but the means of collecting in the ledger, the particular facts scattered thro' the elementary books in which they are recorded. A proper system of accounts will arrange all details in its progress, but while it arranges, it condenses at every step, till it brings all its topics under their principal and primary heads in the pages of the ledger; and when a reference is made from it to the journal and auxiliary books, it will readily supply all details with the greatest facility and accuracy.

We have said thus much in recommendation of this system, from the strong conviction we entertain that its general adoption in the public departments is the great prominent all important improvement, without which, every other will be necessarily and essentially imperfect.

This system properly understood leaves nothing to the caprice of the accountant; it subjects all the elements of an account to an undeviating self corrective operation, the result of which is, as we have said, their centralization under their appropriate heads. It provides against all confusion between contingent and positive claims, between payments ordered and payments made, in a word, compels the grouping together of all facts which are of a similar or homogeneous character.

In another report we shall suggest to your Lordships such plans for the payment of the public expenses as appear to us necessary to be adopted, in consequence of the alterations we have brought under your consideration, respecting the receipts and issues of the public money.

We have the honor to be, my Lords,

Your Lordship's most obedient humble servants,

H. PARNELL,
J. RUSSELL,
J. R. G. GRAHAM,

FOURTH SESSION, ELEVENTH PARLIAMENT.

Extracts from an Address by the House of Assembly of Upper Canada to His Majesty on the disallowance of the Bank Acts.

"MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN,

We, Your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects the Commons House of Assembly of Upper Canada in Provincial Parliament Assembled, in full assurance of Your Majesty's earnest desire to promote the welfare of Your people, beg leave humbly to address ourselves to Your Majesty upon a matter of the deepest interest to Your faithful subjects in this Province. * * * We humbly represent, that, although the disallowance of these acts may appear to be authorized by the letter of the Statute of the British Parliament, * * * yet it is contrary to its spirit and meaning, and to the principles of a free government. We believe that this provision was made to remedy the evil which might be occasioned by the Royal Assent being given in the Colony to a Provincial Act that should be found incompatible with the rights and interests of other portions of the empire, but we cannot think it was intended to give a power of interference with our internal affairs. Against such an interference, we respectfully, but plainly and solemnly protest, as inconsistent with those sacred constitutional principles which are essential to a free government; since it is manifest, that if Your Majesty's Ministers, at a distance of more than four thousand miles and not at all controllable by or accountable to Your Majesty's subjects here, and possessing necessarily a slight and imperfect knowledge of the circumstances of this country, the wants and habits and feelings of the inhabitants and the mode of transacting business among us can dictate a different course, in relation to measures affecting ourselves only, from that which the people by their representatives, and with the concurrence of the other Branches of the Provincial Legislature, have chosen, we are reduced to a state of mere dependance upon the will and pleasure of a ministry that are irresponsible to us, and beyond the reach and operation of the public opinion of the Province; and no one can rely upon our Provincial laws, although they may be constitutionally and deliberately formed, but the most unhappy uncertainty and want of confidence will prevail and extend their disastrous influence over all our business transactions. We respectfully claim the same right in behalf of Your Majesty's Subjects in this Province, to be consulted in the making of laws for their peace, welfare and good government, which our fellow subjects in Great Britain enjoy, in respect to laws to which their obedience is required; and although, from the necessity of the case, power must be granted to the head of the empire of preventing colonial laws being adopted and enforced which are incompatible with treaties between Your Majesty's Government and foreign States, or with the just rights of any other of Your Majesty's Colonies; yet with these exceptions, we humbly submit that no laws ought to be, or rightfully can be dictated to, or imposed upon the people of this Province, to which they do not freely give their consent, through the constitutional medium of representatives chosen by, and accountable to themselves.

The force of our humble and dutiful remonstrance against the principle of an interference of Your Majesty's Ministers with our internal affairs, we are not willing to diminish, by insisting upon the inconveniencies and evils likely to follow from the exercise of power which, &c. * * * *

We therefore respectfully and humbly pray that Your Majesty, taking these matters into Your favorable consideration, will be graciously pleased not to disallow these Provincial Acts and not to permit Your Majesty's Ministers to interfere with our internal affairs; but to leave the same entirely to the discretion and control of the Legislature of this Province.
