Little 'Known in German Capital of the Retreat of its Army.

By Special Wire to The Courier.]
BERLIN, via Copenhagen, via London, Sept. 15.—6.30 a.m.—Another day has passed without news of the great battle near Paris, concerning which no reports or details have been available since a week ago. The general staff in response to a query characterized that general situation as "favorable," but refrained from any comment whatever over the course of events since the first days of the British-French attacks and the withdrawal of the German right wing on September. Reports committees of small battles with scattered French contingents in southern Alsace contingents in southern Alsace near Thann, Gebveiler and Sulz, but with the exception of these but with the exception of these there is no news from the front. The Germans presumably are pushing reinforcements forward, and the announcement that their armies with a united front have resumed the offensive, may perhaps be expected in two or three days. Much probably depends upon the rapidity with which the army under the crown prince completes the isolation of Verdun and shakes itself loose from this obstacle in order to be in a obstacle in order to be in a French General is No Longer Subject to Any Criticism in France.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Sept. 15 .- The Paris corespondent of The Daily Mail explaining General Joffre's success says: "The reward of praise must be chiefly Joffre's. It was not always kindly that the name of Joffre was mentioned during the retreat from the frontier, though the chorus of praise now would make one think that confidence had never wayered. He has had had never wavered. He has had the courage to expose himself to the danger of contempt and the criticism of his country to realize his plan of final victory. Gen. Joffre recently said:

There are two methods of making war; one to employ troops in masses, and the other to fight in extended order. The former is the German method. It is immensely costly in life, but they can afford it for two reas-ons—the immense superiority in ons—the immense superiority in numbers, and the fact that their men are disciplined to mechanical obedience; that they fight best when closely held together under the personal command of their of-

"The extended order is the French way. The French soldier does not fight well wedged together and he becomes impatient under constant command and mechanical discipline.

"One thing is certain. In the open country I cannot meet troops in a mass and of greatly superior numbers with extended troops. To have the best chance for success I must fight in such a position that the battlefield is limited to the extended for the succession of the succes bosition that the battleffield is limited to the strong fortresses which will support the extended lines of the French and by limiting the front will hamper the moevments of the Germans.

"This is what Joffre has done, retired to the narrowest part of France between Paris and Verdun. The success of his strategy.

FRENCH CASUALTIES

PARIS, Sept. 15.—In a late list of casualties made public is the announcement of the death of General Charles Roques, who was killed by being struck in the head by a bullet near Bar-Le-Duc, and of Captain Raoul Ducouedic De Kergoualer. The latter, was a grandson of General De Montholon and a great grandson of "Brave" Ducouedic, a celebrated Breton sailor who commanded La Surveillance in 1799 in the famous fight with the British ship Quebec. General Roques had just been promoted on the field to be a general of division when he was killed.

incident concerning a . al Field Artillery pictured above, the artist, Christopher Clark, of the London Sphere and this paper, says: "A half battery in rather an exposed position was galling the Germans by the accuracy of its aim. Several of their batteries made a combined attack on it. It was a fight between a David and half a dozen Goliaths. One by one its guns were silenced. The men who had been serving them lay dead around. At last only one man was left. He went on doing his best, working steadily and, to all appearance, calmly He would have gone on until he dropped, for, although the Germans ceased fire for a few moments, they would have begun again and finished him off in spite of their admiration for his pluck. But an officer called him away. 'And you can bet,' the narrator ejaculated to Mr. Fyfe, 'that he was mighty sorry to go.' The four men who work the guns of the Royal Field Artillery are ordinarily protected from rifle fire by the shield of the gun. It may be observed that the limbers are now drawn close up to the gun to facilitate rapid firing. The motto of the Royal Field Artillery is 'Quo fas et gloria ducunt.'"

Capture German Army of Von Kluck, Allies Take 25,000 Men and Supplies

LONDON, Sept. 15, 2 p.m.—The correspondent of the Central News at Dieppe, under date of Monday, September 14, transmits a report that the German army under General Von Kluck has been forced to surrender.

"A report has reached Dieppe that the extreme left of the Allies, after making an encircling movement by way of Roye and Ham and joining a force from the Boulogne district, has compelled General Von Kluck to surrender with, according to one statement, 14,000 men, and according to another statement with 25,000 men and a quantity of guns

General Von Kluck has been operating on the German right wing, and has consequently been opposed to the left wing of the Allies, composed principally of British troops. His army has been retiring before the Allies for several days. Roye and Ham are located to the southeast of Amiens, and were occupied by the Germans two days ago. Recent reports show that these towns are now in the possession of the Allies.

British Submarine's Daring Work in Entering Mined Harbor.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] BERLIN, via Copenhagen via London, Sept. 15 .- 6.39 p.m., It is officially announced that on the morning of September 13, the small cruiser Hela, was sunk by a torpedo from a hostile submarine. Almost the whole of the crew was saved. The German Cruiser Hela was a small protected cruiser of 2,040 tons. Sne was 328 feet long and carried a crew of 178 men. Her armament was not heavy, consisting chiefly of light guns. The Hela was laid down in 1893 and finished in 1896.

It is not announced where the Hela was sunk, but it is possible that it is the work of a British submarine, which a few days ago, was reported to have daringly run into the harbor at Wilhelmshaven and fired torpedoes towards the vessels in the harbor.

TERRIBLE ATROCITIES ARE PROVEN FACTS

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON Sept. 15, 1.30 p.m. The official press bureau acting for the Belgian legation in London has made public the second report of the Belgian commission appointed to inugire into the al-leged German trocities at Loucvain and in the district surrounding Malines.

This report reviews incidents heretofore generally reported, but it adds the documents and evidence on which its conclusions are to be established in due

"The commission finds that on entering Louvain the Germans requisitioned food and lodgings. Germon troops took possession of the cash in all the Louvain banks, burst open houses and pillaged and committed other excesses. The report then relates with considerable detail, two alleged instances in which women were outraged by German soldiers, and asserts that there are instances where women and child-ren have been stabbed with bayonets and their legs cut off. One case is cited where a workman, covered with kerosene was thrown into a burning house. Of the burning of Louvaine

the report says:

To spread the fire in Louvain the report charges that Germans entered houses and threw hand grenades. The commision con-tends that from several places in Belgium the male population has been sent to Germany and forced to work at harvesting, as if they were slaves.

Dr. George Kennedy; Toronto, aged 7, joined the St. Andrew's rifle club.

Germany's armies to the north and the east of Paris, after retreating for a distance of upwards of 50 miles in the direction of the Belgian frontier, are to-day making a determined stand along the munition.

Reports regarding the operations in East Prussia contradict each other. From Petrograd it is said that General Rennenkampf still is in progress. Berlin advices, however, are to the effect that the Russian general has suffered defeat nearly as severe as that of the Russian disaster at Allenstein.

Further Petrograd despatches estimate the casualties of the Austrians in Galicia to a total of 300,-

RETREAT OF GERMANS WAS PANIC---MILES OF SUPPLIES

Will Go Down in History as Another Moscow, a Crowning Catastrophe---Terrible Punishment Inflicted by the Pursuers.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The Times correspondent from a point near Velun, Sunday, wires a vivid description of the rout and retreat of the Germans during a hurricane and torrent of rain which turned the roads into river way so that the wheels of the artillery sank deep in the mire. He describes how the horses strained and struggled often in vain to drag the guns away and continues:

and continues:

"I have just spoken with a soldier who has returned wounded from the pursuit, that will go down with the terrible retreat from Moscow as one of the crowning catastrophes of the world. They fled, he declares, as animals flee who are cornered and feel it.

"The retreat rolls back a train load after train load of B ish and French are swept to we points of the retreating he This is the advantage of the b tle ground which the allies he chosen. The network of real ways is like a network of species web. As all railways cere troops upon the foe at any point with almost incredible speed and food and ammunition are within arms' reach."

CROWN PRINCE AND HIS ARMY FACING DIFFICULT SITUATION

LONDON, Sept. 15—The cor-respondent of The Times at Bor-deaux dealing with what he terms the precarious position of the German Crown Prince who is

German Crown Prince who is threatened with complete envelopment if he seeks his fortune in the Plains of Chalons, says:

"It is possible that if he is strong enough to hold the Argonne forest that the Germans may complete a change of front and swing their armies on the pivot of Argonne round to the Meuse Valley, in which case General Von Kluck's army will find itself in the position of outside running, such as at the bend of a railing track and might be unable to get around in time.

"It looks at present as though the whole German army is withdrawing to make a stand on the Peronne-St. Quintin-Vervins-Mezeries line which would give them eries line which would give them a line of retreat through Luxemburg. This is known to have been prepared by the sappers for a determined defence."

IS PRECARIOUS. The position of the German Crown Prince's army which forms the pivot of the change of front forced upon the enemy by the allies success, is precarious, according to the opinion expressed in official and military circles

The French forts to the east of Argonne, it is said, have made retreat in that direction impossible. This army is, therefore, probably moving northward, it is figured here in the hope apparently of joining the other German forces along the Mezeries-St. Quentin-Peronne line, but the French are already pursuing the Germans to the north of Rheims and military men here think there is a chance that the Crown Prince's army may be cut off.

SAY THE BELGIANS Fate of Von Kluck May be Settled

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Sept. 15 .- A despatch from the German general staff on the battle of the Marns staff on the battle of the Marns received in London to-day, suffered at the hands of the censor. In its truncated form the only claim made for German arms is that of having successfully defeated the French endeavors to break through the German lines. This apparently is quite true, unless the report from Dieppe this afternoon, alleging that General Von Kluck's army on the German right had ben forced to surrender, turns out to be correct. Up to the present there has been no confirmation of the story.

In any case from the estimate given of the numbers of the troops surredered which, according to one report was 14,000, and according to another 25,000, it would be a misnomer to call it a surrender of General Von Kluck's army which must total in the neighborhood of 100,000 men.

That General Von Kluck's position is a difficult one seems to be unquestionable, if, as reported, the German line is swinging its extreme right back on the Meuse in the vicinity of Mezeries, the intention being to make a stand on the line of Mezeries, Vervins, St. Quentin and Peronne.

Bourassaism Now Great Reproach to All Canadians

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.-A special despatch to the Star from Quebec to-day says it is rumored that next Wednesday will be held a meeting of the Catholic archbishops and bishops of the province of Quebec for the purpose of discussing whether or not it is necessary that a pastoral letter be addressed to the faithful indicating the duty of French-Canadians during the war. It is known that the Catholic authorities are very much annoyed at the anti-British campaign of one French newspaper in Montreal.

The clerical newspaper of Quebec, L'Action Sociale, is publishing a series of strong articles in contradicton of those written lishing a series of strong articles in contradicton of those written by the editor if the Montreal paper. The conclusion of Cardinal Begin's organ is that, as a matter of duty, French-Canadians should support the cause of Britain as strongly as they can.

No doubt, the line referred to in the latter communication is that from Laonto Sissons, which is the most favorable position from a rally this side of the Meuse. Standing supremely unique among the figures who are making history in the great war, which will mark a new era for Europe, is Albert, King of the Belgians, newspaperman, expert engineer, lover of mankind and most democratic of all rulers.

Nobody ever heard much of Albert Leopold Clement Maria Meinrad before that eventful day when he sent word to his soldiers at Liege to "hold out" against the Germans massing the trial to such a specific process of the throne possible. In 1898 he came to America and spent much time in New York, Washington and the East, went West and stayed for months in St. Paul, Minn. While there he studied about every conceivable industry in the country. On his return he wrote a bok about America, which evidenced the fact that his idea of an ideal government was the one this country had adopted having been a reporter for a long time, he saw things keenly and clearly, and being the only reporter who is now a king, he has developed a sense of humor which is said to be the dread of his prosaic cabinet ministers and his enemies, none of whom ever acquired that trait to such a considerable where the dread of his prosaic cabinet ministers and his enemies, none of whom ever acquired that trait to such a considerable where the dread of his prosaic cabinet ministers and his enemies, none of whom ever acquired that trait to such a considerable where the dread of his prosaic cabinet ministers and his enemies, none of whom ever acquired that trait to such a considerable where the dread of his prosaic cabinet ministers and his enemies, none of whom ever acquired that trait to such a considerable where the dread of his prosaic cabinet ministers and his enemies, none of whom ever acquired that trait to such a considerable where the dread of his prosaic cabinet ministers and his enemies, none of whom ever acquired that trait to such a considerable where the dread of his prosaic cabinet ministers and his enemies, none of whom ever acquired that trait to suc

Has Crown Prince Invested Fortress? -News is Conflicting---All Experts Agree That Key to Situation is Found in Crown Prince's Army.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Sept. 15, 10.15 a.m.

For once during the progress of the war, the military critics on both sides agree on the the-ory that the outcome of the campaign waging in the western war area depends on the result of the operations of the crown prince's army before Verdun, but on the question of accomplished facts the divergence is as wide as ever. Berlin maintains that the investment of Verdun is now complete and therefore expects that within two or three days there will be a resumption of the of-fensive along the whole German On the other hand the latest official communication issued on behalf of the allies states that the crown prince has been driven back and has removed his headquarters from St. Menehould south of Rheims to Mont Faucon, about 15 miles northeast. Berlin admits that the weakened German right wing has been turned back, but discounts the reverse by maintaining that it will have no effect on the general forward movement to be iniciated when Verdun falls.

The very candid statement of General Joffre regarding the sort warfare his troops are capable waging indicates that the French are now in a position to take up the gage of battle on their own terms and in a country of their own choosing. General Joffre is now a national hero, after conducting the great retreat that caused him to be called many hard names. He declares that the strict discipline of the Ger-man soldier made him an ideal instrument for a crushing onslaught of the superior numbers, while the French soldier without adeugate fortified bases and in generally level country could not assure that extended order under which they make the best show-

As far as the morale effect goes the recapture of Rheims probably means more to the French army than the rolling up of the German left wing beyond Verdun so that the battle line on the Aisne already the scene of sanguinary fighting is undoubtedly to-day the arena of stubborn struggles of the fiercest description.

Petrograd reports that although lacking entirely in news of damage from General Brus-siloff's army and with part of General Ruzsky's forces still to be heard from, it is estimated that the Austrian forces have lost onethird of their available personnel and two-thirds of their artillery. It is evident that the Russian generals now hope to bottle up the Austrian and their German contingent in Przemysł, which is an Austrian Metz. No hope is expected for the early capture of his fortress, but it is expected that the remnants of the Ausro-German forces will be kept with-in its walls until the end of the Reports of operations on the East Prussian frontier are contradictory. According to Petro-grad General Rennenkampf has resumed the offensive after winning an engagement on the bor-der, while the same Russian sources report that the investment of Koenigsberg is continuing. On the other hand Berlin states that Rennenkampf's defeat is almost as great as the preceding Russian disaster in this region

Interest in the naval phase of the war has been somewhat stirred by the news from Berlin of the destruction of the German light cruiser Hela by a submarine and the unofficial story from The Scotsman that the loss of the British Cruiser Pathfinder has been avenged by the sinking of her submarine which went down under a hail of shots from seven British warships.

Outside the zone of military operations the chief interest tres in the efforts of the Ger-man, Dutch and French governments to forestall the possibility of famine among their people by regulating the use of certain staples. These regions not only forbid the use of more than a certain amount of these staples for purposes other than for fod, but instruct the people in the most economical way to use them.

The story that Russian troops had been landed on the continent, after coming via England from Archangel has met with formal and specific denial both from the English official press bureau and Belgian official sour-

The military stronghold of Przemysl, where the Russian gen-erals are endeavoring to beat the Austrian and German Galician armies, is regarded by military experts as the last important fortification guarding the way to the interior of Austria-Hungary. Przemysl is situated on the River San, 51 miles west of the evacu-ated capital of Galicia, Lemberg, and is the headquarters of the tenth army corps.

The Russian contention is that the capture of Przemysl would allow a free passage of the Russian army in the direction of Vienna or would permit a swinging movement to the northwest to effect a junction with the Russian army in East Prussia.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 15, via London—Col. Shumsky, the military correspondent of The Bourse Gazette, in a long criticism of what he terms the joint mistake of the Austria-German strategy, the effects of which, he says are now being revealed on both fronts, considers that the Galician victory was obtained at an opportune moment and that an opportune moment and that the transfer of German troops from the western to the eastern rontier has not yet attained its

He says it is fair to conclude He says it is fair to conclude that the Russian successes on the Austrian front, and the Russian movement in East Prussia were the primary causes of the victories of the Anglo-French army. The shocks administered by the Russian army, he declares, have been so powerful that the Germans were obliged to recall a mans were obliged to recall a portion of their troops from France, thereby facilitating the French task.

Colonel Shumsky thinks that the Germans will attempt to seek consolation in a useless blow which they are striving to deliver in East Prussia, where there are no serious military objectives for aggressive operations.

He says that German strategy is revealing symptoms of a strange anaemia which has always had a fatal issue. The Germn fleet hitherto has distinguished itself in empty places where there was nothing to fight and the army in East Prussia he says, is now engaging in a similar operation.

Critic Says Army is Huge Machine With No Initiative.

Major George T. Langhorne of the U. S. Army at present the American Military Attache in Berlin, is the author of "Military Observations Abroad," an interesting narrative of an extended tour he made of Europe, in the course of which he studied the armies of most of the leading powers. Unfortunately he did not visit Russia and Austria, and so it is that the great military organizations of those two nations do not figure in his narrative. The German, French and British armies, however,, are described.

Company is 250, that is a necessity. They frequently precede their commands and do a lot of nearby recommoditering.

The trenches dug by the infantry would have afforded no protection, and in many cases attracted the eye of the opposite side to the lines of defence. Twice we saw the defence place their infantry in tiers, one above the other, in such manner that those in the front or lower lines on the slopes of the hill would surely have been seriously affected by the fire over their heads from behind.

Neat in Appearance.

Major Langhorne, when he wrote

Strassburg. The Germans have since 1871 spent large sums of money building handsome public edifices fine forts and erectin statues in Alace-Lorraine. They have endeavored to Germanize them com-pletely. All streets and towns have German names, and German is insisted on in the schools. Children can be registered at baptisms only with Ger-man names. Thus every effort is made to create a spirit af loyalty to Germany.

"The general idea of the manoeuv "The general idea of the manoeuvres was the advance of a hostile Red Army from the frontier north of Metz, met and repulsed by a Blue Army hastily concentrated from Strassburg and vicinity, reinforced by the Third Bavarian Army Corps.

Ride into "Enemy's" Lines. "The two armies play the game according to rule, but apparently with an entire lack of individual responsibility. The whole spectacle seemed much prearranged. The cavalry screens covered well the advance and contact of the two armies and then were concentrated in each army, but on opposite flanks, so that on but one occasion did they afterward operate against each other, and that was so early in the morning that few be-sides the emperor witnessed the at-

"Hostile patrols would pass one another without compunction, Artillery and staff officers would ride through the lines of outposts of the enemy and carefully observe and determine—even under fire—the position of their guns, and while some would go back with the necessary orders or reports, others would remain to place the batteries as they came to place the batteries as they came up. We saw several lost troopers riding in the zone of the enemy. ometimes even at its rear and en-

"The German cavalry mounts are very good, the officers' chargers ex-ceptionally so. They have all been so carefully trained that the instruction of the troopers had attained a satisfactory standard as far as sitting on the horse and crossing somewhat difficult ground were concerned, aly though there was lack of that indicates the content of the vidual ease and grace which characterizes the true horseman. Divisions of cavalry were moved with ease in line of squadron column and by the flank and on one occasion a successful charge was made on the flank of battalion of Bavarian infantry, which would have succeeded in war.

Artillery Horses Balk. "I was disappointed in their artillery. Watching a pursuing regiment ascend a not very severe hill, we noticed at least one gun out of every battery, stall and the horses balk. The collars in many cases were too to be because were whenter and The collars in many cases were too tight; the horses were wheezing and choking; the drivers did not move their animals together, and beat them in an unintelligent manner. Had the limbers been filled with ammunition the climb would not have been made in some cases. In going into action for indirect fire they almost invariably exposed themselves in view of the enemy. In limbering up, the limbers never came nearer than a couple of metres to the train, thus requiring the cannoneers to move up the pieces by hand, which often in the heavy ground appeared difficult. They were evidently well supplied with range finders and other instruments, which they used on all occasions. The commanders preceded their pieces, but there was often impatient swearing when signalling them to come up. The first day there were many caissons with the batteries, while on the last day we saw none

The infantry advances were a series of heavy lines after the deployment from the last group, while the exposure of masses of troops to the fire of guns and rifles was quite the usual thing. The captains are mounted, but as the war strength of the company is 250, that is a necessity.

Major Langhorne, when he wrote his observations, was but an aide on the staff of Major General Leonard Wood, then returning from the Philippines to assume command of the United States army.

"The Imperial Section Inanocurves," says Major Langhorne, "were held in Alsace-Loraine, and, therefore the 'crack' corps of Metz and along the frontier took part. Soldier's Most Awful Test-Relief Comes When Word Change is Given Every one must have wondered how he would feel in battle for the first time. The order to adonets is then received as a release from agony. Movement, even into greater peril, distracts the mind and greatly reduces the mental anguish.

Soldiers are seriously affected by the trembling of their superiors. An officer who shakes in his shoes is a coward in the eyes of the rank and file, although the men know that many military heroes-Henri IV., Turenne and Frederick the Great, for instance-trempled on going into a

Colonel Mangiarotti says that officers must understand this feeling. THE STORY OF Waitstill Baxter

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN.

Copyright, 1913 by Kate Douglas Wiggin.

"He can't parcity perp it, inheritin' it on both sides," was Abel Day's opin-ion. "The Baxters was allers snug from time 'memorial, and Foxy's the snuggest of 'em. When I look at his ngly mug an' hear his snarlin' voice I thinks to myself, he's goin' the same way his father did. When old Levi Baxter was left a widder man in that louse o' his'n up river he grew wus an' wuss, if you remember, till he wa'n't hardly human at the last, and I don't believe Foxy even went up to his own father's funeral."

"Twould 'a' served old Levi right if nobody else had gone," said Rish Bix-by, "When his wife died he refused to come into the house till the last min-ute. He stayed to work in the barn till all the folks had assembled and even the men were all settin' down on benches in the kitchen. The parso sent me out for him, and I'm blest if the old skunk didn't come in through he crowd with his sleeves rolled upwent to the sink and washed, and then set down in the room where the coffin was, as cool as a cowcumber." "I remember that funeral well," corroborated Abel Day. "An' Mis' Day heerd Levi say to his daughter, as soon as they'd put poor old Mrs. Baxter int' the grave, 'Come on, Marthy; there's no use cryin' over spilt milk; we'd better go home an' husk out the rest o' that corn.' Old Foxy could have inherited plenty o' meanness from his father, that's certain, an' he's added to his inheritance right along, like the thrifty man he is. I hate to think o' them two fine girls wearin' their fingers to the bone for his benefit."

"Oh, well, 'twon't last forever," said Rish Bixby. "They're the han'somest couple o' girls on the river, an' they'l get husbands afore many years. Patience 'll have one pretty soon, by the looks. She never budges an inch but Mark Wilson or Phil Perry are follerin' behind, with Cephas Cole watchin' his chance right along too. Waitstill don't seem to have no beaux; what with flyin' around to keep up with the deacon an' bein' a mother to Patience, her hands is full, I guess."

"If things was a little mite difrent all round I could prognosticate who Waitstill could keep house for," was Peter Morrill's opinion.

"You mean Ivory Boynton? Well, if the deacon was asked he'd never give his consent, that's certain, an' Ivory ain't in no position to keep a wife anyways. What was it you beerd bout Aaron Boynton up to New Hampshire, Peter?" asked Abel Day.

"Consid'able, one way an' another, an' none of it would 'a' been any com fort to Ivory. I guess Aaron 'n' Jake Cochrane was both of 'em more interested in savin' the sisters' souls than the brothers'. Aaron was a fine appearin' man, and so was Jake for that matter, 'n' they both had the gift o' gab. There's nothin' like a limber tongue if you want to please the women folks. If report says true, Aaron died of a fever out in Ohio somewheres. Cortland's the place, I b'lieve. Seems 's if he hid his trail all the way took half of the troop to make a de- from New Hampshire somehow, for as like him would be remembered wherever he went. Wouldn't you call Aaron Boynton a turrible l'arned man, Timothy?" Timothy Grant, the parish clerk, had just entered the store on an errand; but, being directly addressed and judging that the subject under discussion was a discreet one and that it was too early in the evening for drinking to begin, he joined the group by the fireside. He had preached in Vermont for several years as an itinerant Methodist minister before settling down to farming in Edgewood, only giving up his profession because his quiver was so full of little Grants that a wandering life was difficult and undesirable. When Uncle Bart Cole had remarked that Mis' Grant had a little of everything in the way of baby stock nowblack, red an' yaller haired, dark and light complected, fat an' lean, tall an' short, twins an' singles-Jed Morrill had observed dryly, "Yes, Mis' Grant kind o' reminds me of charity."

"She beareth all things," chuckle

most adhesive larnin'," agreed Timothy, who had the reputation of the largest and most unusual vocabulary in Edgewood. "Next to Jacob Cochrane I should say Aaron had more ence as an orator than any an we've ever had in these parts. It don't seem 's if Ivory was goin' to take after his father that way. The little feller, now, is smart 's a whip an' could talk the tail off a brass monkey." "Yes, but Rodman ain't no kin to the coyntons," Abel reminded him. "He

"That's so. Well, Ivory does for cer-ain, an' takes after his mother, right nough, for she hain't spoken a doz en words in as many years, I guess Ivory's got a sight o' book knowledge though, an' they do say he could talk Greek an' Latin both, if we had any of 'em in the community to converse with.
I've never paid no intention to the dead languages, bein' so ockerpied with "Dead an' gone they be, lock, stock and barrel; yet there was a time when Latins an' Crustaceans an' Hebrews an' Prooshians an' Australians an' Simesians was chatterin' away in their own tongues, an' so pow'ful that they was wallopin' the whole earth, you might say."

"I bet yer they never tried to wallop these here United States," interpolated Bill Dunham from the dark corner by

"Is Ivory in here?" The door open and Rodman Boynton appeared on the

"No, sonny, Ivory ain't been in this evenin'," replied Ezra Simms. "I hope there ain't nothin' the matter over to your house?"

"No, nothing particular," the boy answered, "only Aunt Boynton don't seem so well as common, and I can't find Ivory anywhere."

"Come along with me, I'll help you look for him, an' then I'll go as fur as the lane with yer if we don't find him." And kindly Rish Bixby took the boy's hand and left the store. "Mis' Boynton's had a spell, I guess!" suggested the storekeeper, peering through the door into the darkness "Tain't like Ivory to be out nights and leave her to Rod." "She don't have no spells," said Abel Day. "Uncle Bart sees consid'able of Ivory, an' he says his mother is as quiet as a lamb. Couldn't you git no kind of a certif'cate of Aaron's death out o' that Enfield feller. Peter? Seems 's if that poor woman oughter be stopped watchin' for a dead man: tucker in' herself all out an' keepin' Ivory an'

the boy all nerved up." "I've told Ivory everything I could gather up in the way of informatio and give him the names of the folk in Ohio that had writ back to New Hampshire. I didn't dilate on Aaron's goin's on in Effingham and Portsmouth cause I dassay 'twas nothin' but scandal. Them as hates the Cochranites 'll never allow there's any good in 'em,

"We wa'n't alludin' to no Husshons, retorted Timothy Grant. "We was dealin' with the misfortunes of Aaron Boynton, who never fit valorously on the field o' battle, but perished out in Ohio of scarlit fever, if what they say in Enfield is true.' "Tis an easy death," remarked Bill argumentatively. "Scarlit fever don't seem like nothin' to me! Many's the time I've been close enough to fire at the eyeball of a Hussbon an' run the resk o' bein' blown to smithereen calm and cool I allers was too! Scarlit fever is an easy death from a warrior's p'int o' view!" "Speakin' of easy death," continued Timothy, "you know I'm a great one for words, bein' something of a scholard in my small way. Mebbe you noticed that Elder Boone used a strange word in his sermon last Sunday? Words air cur'ous things sometime as I know, hevin' had consid'able less ure time to read when I was joggin bout the country an' bein' brought into contack with men o' learnin'. The way I worked it out, not wishin' to ask Parson any more questions, bein' some thing of a scholard myself, is this: The youth in Ashy is a peculiar kind youth, 'n' their religion disposes 'em to lay no kind o' stress on huming life. When anything goes wrong with 'em an' they get a set back in war or business, or affairs with women folks, they want to die right off, so they take a sword an' stan' it straight up wherever they happen to be, in the shed or the barn or the henhouse, an' they p'int the sharp end right to their waist ine, where the bowels an' other vital organisms is lowcated, an' then they fall on to it. It runs 'em right through to the back an' kills 'em like a shot, and that's the way I cal'late the youth in Ashy dies, if my entomology is correct, as it gen'ally is." "Don't seem an easy death to me," argued Ezra, "but I ain't no scholard, What college did you attend to, Tim?" "I don't hold no diaploma," res Timothy, "though I attended the Ware ham academy quite a spell, the same time as your sister was goin' to Wareham seminary where eddication is still bein' disseminated though of an awful poor kind compared to the old times.' "It's live an' larn," said the store keeper respectfully. "I never thought of a seminary bein' a place of dissemination before, but you can see the two words is near kin." "You can't allers tell by the sound,"

"I should hope not," interpolated Abel Day piously. "Entomology must be an awful interestin' study, though I never thought of observin' words my self, 'cept to avoid vulgar language an appearant."

"Husshon's a cur'ous word for man," interjected Bill Dunham with last despairing effort. "I rememb seein' a Husshon once that"—

"Perhaps you ain't one to obsclosely, Abel," said Timothy, not ng note of any in ising the time to direct a stream bacco juice to an incredible distan-but landing it neatly in the exact si he had intended. "It's a trade by he had intended. "It's a trade by it self, you might say, observin' is, an there's another sing'lar corraption. The Whigs in foreign parts, so the say, build stone towers to observe the evil machinations of the Tories, an' at the word 'observatory' come into general use! CHAPTER XVIII The Rod That Blossomed

VORY BOYNTON had taken the horse and gone to the village on to do after dark, so Rod was thinking as he sat in the living room rning his Sunday school lesson on the same evening that the men were rossiping at the brick store. His au had required him from the time w he was proficient enough to do so to read at least a part of a chapter in the Bible every night. Beginning with Genesis, he had reached Leviticus and had made up his mind that the Bible was a much more difficult book than "Scottish Chiefs" notwithstanding the fact that Ivory helped him over most of the hard places. At the present juncture he was vastly interested in juncture he was vastly interested in the subject of "rods" as unfolded in the book of Exodus, which was being studied by his Sunday school class. What added to the excitement was fact that his uncle's Christian Aaron, kept appearing in the chronics as frequently as that of the great law-giver Moses himself, and there were many verses about the wonder working rods of Moses and Aaron that had a strange effect upon the boy's ea when he read them aloud, as he lo to do whenever he was left alone for time. When his aunt was in the room for the mere mention of the name o Aaron, he feared, might sadden his aunt and provoke in her that danger ons vein of reminiscence that mi Ivory so anxious.

"It kind o' makes me nervous to be named Rod. Aunt Boynton," said the boy, looking up from the Bible. "All the rods in these Exodus chapters do such dreadful things! They become serpents, and one of them swallows up all the others, and Moses smites the waters with a rod, and they become blood, and the people can't drink the water and the fish die! Then they stretch a rod across the streams and ponds and bring a plague of frogs over the land, with swarms of flies and horrible insects.' "That was to show God's power t Pharaoh and melt his hard heart to obedience and reverence," explain Mrs. Boynton, who had known the Bible from cover to cover in her youth and could still give chapter and verse for hundreds of her favorite pass

"It took an awful lot of melting, raoh's heart!" exclaimed the boy Pharaoh must have been worse than Deacon Baxter! I wonder if they ever tried to make him good by being kind to him! I've read and read, but I can't find they used anything on him but plagues and famines and boils and ilences and thunder and hall and ire! Have I got a middle name, Aunt Boynton, for I don't like Rod very

"I never heard that you had a middle name; you must ask Ivory," said his

Consequently Troops Had to be Taken From France Awful Carnage Reported.

[By Special Wire to The Courier.] PETROGRAD, Sept. 15.-An official communication by the chief of the general staff says:

The rapid and energetic advance of General Rennenkampf's army in East Prussia and our decisive successes over an Austrian army numbering more than 1,000,000 men have forced the Germans to send back a considerable portion of their troops from the western of their troops from the western frontier.

From August 28 to September 7, the Germans were continually bringing reinforcements to their eastern frontier. They then began an attack across the Mazur Lakes, in a region which was well-known to them. As they advanced their right wing threatened to develon great strength on the front great strength on the front Nordenburg to Goldap and

The manoeuvre which threatened to place General Rennenkampf's troops iin a serious situatioin, encountered ressitance on the wings from our covering troops which, in a most self-sacrificing manner held up the enemy's pressure. enemy's pressure.

Eventually after fighting which cost the enemy dearly, our entire troops extricated themselves from this difficult situation and occupied positions with a view to later operations.

THOUSANDS SLAIN LONDON, Sept. 15.—A despatch to The Chronicle from Petrograd says:

Petrograd says:

"The fiercest fight of all that which preceded the Russian victory at Lublin and a gorge near the village of Mikolaieff, which the Russian soldiers reverently named the "Valley of Death." The gorge was full of dead men lying iin heaps, according to a soldier who reached here to-day. "When we attacked at 3 o'clock in the morning," he said, "the gorge contained fifteen thousand Austrians, a large proportion of gorge contained fifteen thousand Austrians, a large proportion of which were mowed down by the artillery fire which ploughed all through the vailey in the darkness. The Austrians surrendered and we entered the gorge to receive their arms, while their general stood quietly on a hill watching the scene. Eight of his standards being turned over to the Russians was more than he could Russians was more than he could pear, for he drew a pistol and shot himself instantly."

SERVIANS SUCCESSFUL NIH, Servia, Sept. 11, (delayed intransmission)—A great battle was fought Sept. 8 and 9, on the whole of the northwestern frontier of Servia. The Austrians who were trying to invade the country at different points were everywhere repulsed and suffered heavy casualties. It is estimated that they lost more than 10,000 men in dead or wounded. The military authorities consider the rictory a decisive one.

The success of the Servian army is said to be due to the precise artillery fire and the quick manoeuvring of the Servians, and especially to their brilliant charges, which it is stated the resist.. The Austrians are said to have directed machine gun against their own troops in order to prevent their retreat. In northen Servia, the offensive by the Servians is said to be progress-ing successfully.

Andrew Bonar Law Only Speaker and He Supports Government.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—11.50 a.m.

Lord Lansdowne, the opposition leader in the House of Lords tion leader in the House of Lords introduced his bill to suspend until after the war, the proceedings on the Home Rule bill and the Welsh disestablishment bill. It was read for the first time. Lord Lansdowne declared he would continue to support the government loyally in the present crisis. At a meeting of the Unoinist party held yesterday, it was decided that the only speaker on the Asquith Bill in the House of Commons to this same end, will be A. Bonar Law, the Unionist leader. His address probably will be made to-day. The leaders present at the Unionist meeting were of the opinion that in the present crisis, it is indispensable that the

of the opinion that in the present crisis, it is indispensable that the government should be supported on questions of internal politics.

In a speech at a Unionist meeting yesterday afternoon, Mr. Law declared however bitter the Unionist resentment might be, they had to remember that country came before party, and nothing the government had done would change in any respect their action with regard to the war and everything connected with the war. When the war was over, how-When the war was over, however, Ulster could depend upon bill and deal with it before Home Rule became operative.

The Conservatives held a meeting at the Carlton Club and decided to accept the government's program from patriotic motives. The principal reason that the Liberals desire to have the Home Rule measure passed is that it will encourage recruiting in the south of Ireland. Eight thousand Ulster volunteers have joined Earl Kitchener's army.

Great service was rendered to Anglo-French armies by the British Army Flying Corps.

German Submarine Bobbed Up Near the British Fleet.

LONDON, Sept. 15 .- 5.05 a.m. The Scotsman to-day states that the German submarine which sank the British Cruiser Pathfinder, as itself been sunk. On Wednesday last, accrding to the account, a part of the British fleet on the lookout for German submarines, became aware of the near presence of one. The British vessels divided when the submarine appeared with only its periscope showing. With grim patience, the British cruisers waited for the reappearance of the submarine, which occurred in a dramatic fashion. By some miscalculation probably in a final effort to escape the cruisers, the submarines conning tower and upper structure suddenly appeared in the midst of the English vessels. The conning tower had hardly broken the surface of the water when the first British gun marked it. The doomed vessel was within range of seven British cruisers and from every one of them guns crashed out. In ten seconds seven shots entered the frail shell of the submarine. -The Scotsman to-day states
