MARY LEE.

Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Saturday, January 21, 1854.

MARY LEE.

"Pemer, dear Percy, take back those bitter words! As Heaven is my witness, they are undeserved by me. See, my eye qualls not beneath yours; my check blanches not. I chand before you, at this moment, with every vow T made you at the altar unbroken in letter and spirit," and she drew closer to him, and laid her delicate hand upon his broad breast. "Wrong me not, Percy, even in thought."

The stern man hesitated. Had he not wilfully blinded himself, he had read truth and honour in the depths of the clear blue eyes that looked so unflinchingly into his own. For a moment their expression overcame him: then, dashing aside the slender fingers that rested upon him, he left her with a muttered oath.

Mary Lee had the misfortune to be very pretty, and the still greater misfortune to marry a jealous huckand. Possessing a quick and ready wit, and great conversational powers, a less moderate share of porsonal charms would have made her society eagerly sought for.

As soon as her eyes were opened to the defect alluded to in her husband's character, she set herself studiously to avoid the shoals and quicksands that lay in the matrimonial sea. One by one, she quietly dropped the acquaintance of gentlemen who, from their attractiveness or preference for her society, assened obnoxious to Percy.

Mary was no coquette. Nature had given her a heart; and, superior as she was to her husband, she really loved him. To most women his exacting unreasonableness would only have stimulated to a finished display of coquety; but Mary, gentle and yielding, made no show of opposition to the most absurd requirements. But all these sacrifices had been unavailing to propitiate the floud of jealousy; and there she sat, an hour after her husband had loft her, with her hands pressed tightly together, pale and tearless, striving in vain to recall any cause of offence.

Hour after hour passed by, and still he came not. The heavy tramp of feet had long since coased beneath the window—the pulse of the great city was allowed, and here the suit

A NIGHT-WATCH WITH A DEAD INFANT.

Moorest thou thy bark so soon, little voyager? Through those infant eyes, with a prophet's vision, sawest thou life's great battle-field, swarming with fierce combatants? Fell upon thy tinid ear the far-off din of its angry strife? Drooped thy head wearly on the bosom of the siniess, fearful of earth-taint! Fluttered thy wings impatiently against the bars of thy prison-house, sweet bird of Paradise?

God speed thy flight! No unerring sportsman shall have power to ruffle thy spread pinions, or main thy searing wing. No sheltering nest had earth for thee, where the chill wind of sorrow might not blow! No garden of Eden, where the serpent lay not colled beneath the flowers! No "Tree of Life," whose branches might have sheltered thee for aye! Warm fall the sunlight on thy grassy pillow, sweet human blossom! Softly fall the night dews on the blue-eyed violet above thee! Side by side with thee are hearts that have long since ceased hoping or aching. There lies the betrothed maiden, in her unappropriate loveliness; the bride, with her head pillowed on golden tresses, whose rare beauty even the Great Spoiler seemed loth to touch; chilhood, but yesterday warm and rosy on its mother's breast: the loving wife and mother, in life's sweet prime; the grey-haired pastor, gone to his reward; the youth of crisped locks and brow unfurrowed by care: the heast-broken widow, and tearful orphan—all awaiting with folded hands, closed eyes, and silent lips, alike with thee, the resurrection morn.

And, obeying a sweet maternal impulse, she passes out at the door, takes those little benumbed fingers in her daintily-gloved hands, and leads the child, wondering, shy, and bewildered, into fairy-land.

A delightful and novel sensation of warmith crosps over those frozen limbs; a faint colour tinges the pale cheeks, and the eyes grow liquid and lovely, as Meta raises them thankfully to her benefactress. The lady's little girl looks on with an innocent joy, and learns, for the first time, how "blessed are the merciful."

And then Meta passes out, with a heavy busket and a light heart. Surely the street has grown wider and the skybrighter? This can scarcely be the same world! Meta's form is erect now, her step light, as a child's should be. The sunshine of human love has brightness he should be walk the earth. Sweet voiced Pity and heaven-eyed Charity sometimes stoop to bless. God's image is only marr'd, not destroyed. He who feeds the ravens bands to listen. Look upward, little Meta!

"Navara Look a Girr Horse in the Moure."—The origin of this saying is said to be as follows—"Two farmers who had been neighbours for many years, and who had lived upon very friendly terms, mutually agreed that whichever died first should leave to the other a valuable consideration, not specifying however, what it was to be. The one was called Martin Timson, and the other David Dean. David Dean was called away first, and bequeathed to Martin a favourite horse. When it was communicated to the latter, he manifested a great deal of disappointment, and observed that "he did expect something better than an old horse." "Not so old, neither," said the party who had brought him the information. A dispute now arose about the age, and it was agreed to go to the stable and examine it. Martin went up to the horse shead, and, in the act of opening its mouth to look at its teeth, the horse made a match and bit his nose off. A mortification in a few hours ensured, and, strange to say, Martin followed David to the grave." Hence came the saying, "Never look a gift horse in the mouth."

GLEANINGS FROM LATE PAPERS. ENGLISH TRAVELLER—THE COMPORTS

ENGLISH TRAVELLER—THE COMPORTS OF THE AGE.

The following is an account of an English travaller, by Henry L. Tuckerman, in his recent work published by Redfield:
"The most comfortable of English drudges are the intermediate class; they who act for the producer as brokers and agents. A certain bluff self-importance and shrewd knowledge of the art of getting along, reveals at once the commercial traveller. I remember one entered the car at Derby just at night-fall and the guard pitched into his lap a compactly strapped bundle, which, after seating himself in the best vacant place, he began to unloose. With the woolen shawl it contained he thoughtfully swathed his lower extremities; then hanging his hat above, he douned a cosy little skull-cap, from the pocket of his huge overcost; he then drew out a small lantern, and attached it by a hook to the side of his cushioned seat; having ignited the lamp by means of a lucifer match, he spent some time in arranging a little shade affixed to the machine, so as to accommendate the reflection to his eyes; then with an air of the most cool satisfaction, he took from another deep pocket "The Times" and "Punch." wet from the press, and comthe most cool satisfaction, he took from another deep pocket "The Times" and "Punch, wet from the press, and com-posed himself to read for an hour, at the posed himself to read for an nour, at me expiration of which time he extinguished the lamp, and after several preparatory cloagations of arms and legs, laid his red face against the stuffed leather, and no-thing more was heard from the dark heap for the rest of the journey but an occasio-nal somniferous grunt of animal content.

AMERICAN STEAMSHIPS .- On the Pacific AMERICAN STEAMSHIPS.—On the Pacific side of South America, steamships are making good progress in the affections of the people. The Chilian Congress has lately closed its sessions, and one of its important measures was to adopt, with only one opposing vote, a project of the Government establishing a line of steamers between their coast and Europe. The proposul as set forth by the Minister of the Interior, is to make an appropriatism in aid of a line of vessels, "with applicant attemengine," which is to be established between Caldera and Liverpool, touching at Valpaof a line of vessens, wan assume, engine," which is to be established between Caldera and Liverpool, touching at Valparaiso, in the Straits of Magellan, and at Rio Janeiro; one vessel to sail every six pa-sage. The Company is granted a bonus of $60,000 per annum for ten years, an ex-clusive privilege for the same term, and on from anchorage duties. company is made up entirely of people from the United States.

An Imperial Bedroom.—The Paris correspondent of The Mirror of Pashion gives the following account of the bedroom of the Empress Eugenie, at the Tuileries, having seen it previous he her Majesty's recent return from Fontainbleau. We copy it by way of a suggestion for those who cultivate imperial aplendor and luxury in the rich materials of the new worlds.

We copy it by way of a suggestion for these who cultivate imperial aplendor and luxury in the rich metropolis of the new world:

"The upholsterers have furnished it with a magnificient sky-blue silk tenture along the walls, which is fixed by gold frames, in the style of Louis XV. The arm chairs, chairs, sofas and lounges are of the same style and like silk. As for the bed, all made with gilt carved wood, it is covered with a course piece of Meline lace, and the curtains, of blue silk and lace, are hung down all around it, in the same manner as the old beds of our grandmothers. The carpet is also of a blue color, and so thick that one would take it for a bear skin. It was made at Aubusson, expressly for the place in which it lays. The ceiling of the room was painted by Mr. Bresson, and it represents a group of geniuses throwing flowers from rich baselets. The painting is so well done that no one could believe that the figures are not vive. In short, this magnificent bedroom is the replus ultru of riches and elegance. But what are the dreams under those laces?"

DONALD McKAY.—The enterprise of our esteemed fellow-citizen, Donald McKay, and the deep feeling of regret which exists at the misfortune which has befallen the noble monument of his mechanical genius, induces us to give a few facts in his personal history, which, are of public interest. Mr.: McKay is about 45 years of age, and is one of a family of eighteen children, fourteen of whom with both parents, still survive The senior Mr. McKay is a Scotchman by birth. me resides at East Boston, and is a fine, hearty gentleman, able now to perform as much manual labor as either of his seven sons, all of whom are practical ship carpenters. He has seven daughture living, all of whom are married.

Donald McKay was born at Shelburne, Nova Scotia. He went to New York at an early age, and first, worked as a day laborer in a ship yard. From a short sketch of Mr. McKay's life, furnished to a journal in another city by our mantical friend of the Atlas, we learn that he learned his trade as a shipbuilder with Mr. Bell of New York, by whom he was afterwards recommended to work in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Here he was selected from among nearly a thousand men, as the foreman of a gang who had some particular work to perform. But a strong Native American party feeling prevailed among the mechanics, and the noble and skilful foreman was not able to retain his humble station.

Mr. Bell, his former employer, sent him to Newbory-port, to draught and superintend the beilding of a number of ships for New York merchants. In this new field of labor he found an opportunity to display that genius which is now universally awarded to him. He noon set up in business, and the fame of the excellence of his vessels, in established a ship-yard in East Botton, from which he has sent forth some of the finest peaket ships and asteste clippers now affort. Mr. McKay is one of Nature's notlemn. He unites extraordinary, natural endowments as a mechanic with a most persistent energy. The history of such a man teaches what can be accomplished by a mechanic under our republican institutions. May the day be far distant when such a man shall fail to find a generous welcome from all walls-wishers to our Great Republic. "Labor Truz Garar Republic of the first performent of the first performent when any hall fail to find a generous welcome from all walls-wishers to our Great Republic."

ome! The spectacle of two eminent na-tions, foremost in civilization and christian-ity, employing the energies which religion and peace have developed within them, for purposes of frattricidal war, would be one of the most accursed that time could look up-on. The wounds which the original rupture produced are healed; the ammosity of the produced are healed; the animosity of the war of 1812 died with the echo of the cannon on the deep, and sank to the bottom of the sea. Since then kinder councils have presea. Since then kinder councils have prevailed. The parent is becoming proud of her child. The child is proud of paternal honors. They call our Washington theirs. Cromwell, and Vane, and Pym, and Hampden are ours. Ours too, is an honour in their history—the Magna Charta, the English Reformation—the ejecting of tyranny are theirs; the establishment of constitutional liberties. Ours are their names of genius; our Chaucer it is; our Spencer; our Shakspeare; our Bacon; our Newton; our Milton. We will do by their libraries, unreproved, what they did by our ships; we will board them; we will question and claim their authors; we will impress and bind them, and send them forth to serve our youth. and send them forth to serve our youth.

And if the printers of Great Britain are fierce to make reprisals, and send forth fierce to make reprisals, and send forth armies of compositors to seize our Irving, and Prescott, and Bancroft, and Hilliard; our Emerson, and Byrant and Dana, and Willis; our Tyng, and Bethune and Edwards—why, we will not go to war for that; but we will thank God that Old England has yet got a people who love good reading, and know where to look for it.—Nay, never—never let our flags be interlocked again in the fierce fray of battle;—or, if in God's mysterious overruling of human affairs, the English and American flags shall again stream out over the battle field, let their bittle be on one side, and on the great field of the world's liberty, when tyrants are finally taught men shall be free and nations protected in their right of self-government. In such a conflict as that—if it must come—God has again hardened the heart of Pharoah, that he will not let the people go, and he decrees that the people shall come forth from the land of bondage by the gate-way of war—then let Great Britain become Moses; France and America as Aaron and Hur; and while they hold up the venerable hands, let it be again, as when it was written, "And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand, Israel prevailed.

The deceased Marianne, Marchioness Wellesley, was a daughter of Mr. Richard Caton, and when the late Marquis Wellesley married her she was widow of Mr. Robert Patterson. She was the Marquis's second wife, to whem she was united on the 29th of October, 1825.

THE HOUSE OF ROTHSCHILD .- The membe The House of Rothscalld.—The members of this house are to meet at Paris the present month to consult tugether, probably upon what course to pursue in case of hostilities in Europe. Between March and December, 1848, their lesses, it is said, amounted to £5,000,000, the result of the sudden depreciation of all Funded Railway property in Europe. This was the first heavy loss the house ever experienced, but it did not effect their credit, and it is more than probable than brighter skies have since enabled them to retrieve a portion of this loss.

Ever vigitant—ever active—there would be no getting on the blind side of an administration composed of such characters, even supposing it had a blind side. — No! so! We would advise Mr. Whelan to show us that we have been misinformed,—that the thing is not as we have been told it is,—that it is impossible that one of the apostes of reform should so far forget himself as to sink into the vices of those whom he has all his life been labering to hold up to public execution. In a word, we would counsel him to take the beam out of his own eye, before he meddles with the mote he funcies he sees in his neighbor's.

New Baunswick.—We are gratified to learn that the Executive Government have made urrangiments to devote the surplus revenue of this year to the payment of the whole debts of the Province, funded and floating, and that the year 1854 will open upon us entirely free of debt. We learn that yeaterday a check for Tweny-five Thousand Pounds, the balance of the funded debt, being all borrowed from the Banks, has been met long ago by the amount of revenue deposited.

While we do not presume, of course, to give credit to the Government for the general prosperity which has brought about this agreesible state of things, they are entitled to the thanks of the community for having wisely determined to appropriate the aurplus Funds on hand to free the Province from debt, instead of leaving it to be aquandared by the Lagislature.—N. They hold the chief civil, milliary and judicial offices: are the Car's creatures, and manage all public affairs. The middle classes are comparatively few in Russia. These, which in Britain, or the United States, France, Germany, from such a large and important element in the population, do not abound in this empire. The plant of liberty, so favorable to their increase, is but of stunted growth in Russia.

The next class which we shall mention, consists of the free pensants; which comprises the serfs who have been made free. There are various ways in which they may obtain their iberty. They may be emancipated by their lords, or obtain their freedom by purchasing it, or by military service for a certain length of time. These free peasants form a population of about 16,000,000; and are formed into villages; and these villages into districts having a chief over them of their own selection, that they may be protected against the encroachments of the Coyards, who look upon them with a jealous eye. a jealous eye.

The side grey manine looks upon the woods, The Iswas lie green beneath the mellow fight; I hear the olden cong of fillen floods.

That fills the silent hollow of the night. That is the chamber-window whence I sprang; These the old cake of many conteries, in whose great leafy boughs I loved to hang. And make extrange playmates of the mighty trees. The strang I leapt in boyhood dashes down in falls and measy windings, as of yore; Still aloops the sunlight on the hill's dense crown, Whose base is coens swept with ceaseless rear. And once that year assessed music—once I lay in the rich orchard, underscath the sky, is childing visions all the summer-day. It seemed the whisper of eternity. All the long aclitary years of life. Forgotten all the carnest toll and strife, Behold me wilful, petulant, and wild. Again a child! On, were it true in deed, With a poor happiness which may not hast. Again a child! On, were it true in deed, With a poor happiness which may not last. Again a child! These wavening branches then, Where the hast cohoes of the stream rejoice, Might yield that undergetten form again, A and I might once inere hear my mother's voice. Where southern seas under bright heavens lie That voice has hausted of the summer air. Oh, come thou row, beneath no alien sky, And teach thy sorrowing child another prayer.

HOGARTH'S RED SEA.-Hogarth was once applied to by a miserly old noble-man to paint on his staircase a representa-tion of the destruction of Pharoah's hosts in the Red Sea. The miser, however, would not agree to to give more than half the value of the work, which at last Hog-arth agreed to take. Within a day or two the picture was ready. The nobleman was surprised at such expedition, and called to examine it. The canvass was all over red. "Zounds!" said the purchaser, "what have you here? I ordered a scene of the Red Sea." "The Red Sea a scene of the new Sea-you have," said Hogarth, still smarting at having his talents undervalued. "But where are all the Israelites?" "They have all gone oper." "And where are the Egyptians?" "They are all drown-ad." The miser's confusion could only be equalled by the haste with which he paid his bill.

STITCHES IN A COAT .- There are, ac cording to a statement made by a tailor in Boston, 25,243 stitches in a coat, viz., basting 782; in the edges of the coat, 4.590; felling the edges, faces, &c., 7.414; out of sight, in the pockets, &c., 1.982; in the collar alone, 3,056; seams, 5.359; holes, 1,450. The cont was made in two days, journeyman's hours.

A HINT TO PARENTS.—The prison clearly indicate that the cause of so many being brought up before the judge, is owing to their being so badly brought up before they arrive at maturity

ONE BUTTON WANTING.-In the late news from China a story is told of a re-bel who, having killed an Imperalist sol-dier, dressed himself in his coat, to which he had added some buttons that were wanting, and went into the imperialis camp to ask for some ammunition. But the wretch having sown on one more button than the regulation allowance, was found out and decapitated instantly.

A wag who was standing in State-street, Boston, saw a man rolling a king of specie from his cart to the institution for which it was intended. "There, said he to the old fellow, who was stand ing by him, "there you see the benefit of our institution; there is a man who came to this country six months ago as poor as poor could be, and now you see he is rolling in riches."

The gentleman who inadvertently took onr new beaver, and left an inferior ar-ticle in its stead, will do us an infinite ticle in its stead, will do us an infinite kindness by returning our own, and he shall receive our warmest thanks, and two apologies—an apology for the trou-ble we have given him, and the "apology for a hat" he left us.

Mr. Nailrod, who prided himself upon knowing almost as much about his neighbours' affairs as they did, put the question point blank to Cloots, the executor of the late. Mr. Snodgrass. "Mr. Cloots,' says he, "if it is not improper—I wouldn't wish to ask the question if it is the least improper, nor expect you to answer it—will you inform me how much my particular friend Snodgrass has left?" "Certainly," said Cloots, "I don't see the least impropriety in your mking, and am perfectly willing to snawer it. PATENT ARTIFICIAL SLATE. This PATENT ARTIFICIAL SLATE. This composition has been spwards of, three years extensively used in New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, the Canadas and Nova Scotia, principally for covering shingled roofs, as yon will perceive by the accompanying circulars of certificates. It has been soverely tested, and proved most successfully its fire proof qualities under most extraordinary circumstances; so much so, that I am of opinion that Fire Insarance Companies should encourage its general application to all kinds of wood building (where the color would be no objection to its being used, such as be back walls of dwellings in the city, out touses. he back walls of dwellings in the city, out houses, ware-houses, &c., as well as the roofs) by lowering the premium of insurance on such buildings as are

GLEASON'S PICTORIAL.

GLEASON'S PICTORIAL.

On the first of January next, Gleason's Pictorial will commence its sixth volume, and will appear reastly improved in all respects, with a saperh new heading, new type and dress throughout, and will be printed upon the finest paper. As the proprietor of the Pictorial has purchased the entire good will of Baramn's New York Illustrated News, and has merged that journal in the Pictorial, the public will reap rhe advantage of this concentration of the strength of the two papers upon one, both in the attength of the two papers upon one, both in the attength of the two papers upon one, both in the attength of the two papers upon one, both in the attength of the two papers upon one, both in the attength of the two papers upon one, both in the attength of the two papers upon one, both in the attength of the two papers upon one, both in the allest and namber. The most liberal arrangements have been completed, and such as will, enable the Proprietor to produce by far the finest illustrated in the complete of the paper. The columns of the Pictorial will constantly be beautified by, all that can please and instruct in art and nature, and its literary department will fully sustain the high reputation it has so long enjoyed.

The pages of Gleaton's Pictorial will contain the portraits of every populous city in the known world, of all buildings of note in the eastern or western hemisphere, of all the principal ships and steamers of the naty and merchant service; with fine and accurate portraits of every noted character in the world, both male and female. Sketches of beautiful scenary, taken from life, will also be given, with numerous specimens from the animal kingdom, the birds of the air, and the fish of the sea, and will present in its mechanical execution an elogant specimen of art. It will contain fifteen hundred and stry-four square inches, giving a great amount of reading matter and illustrations—and forming a mammoth weakly paper of sitteen octawo pages.

The "Philadelphia Salurday Gazetle," says of Dr. Hogland's Geraen Bitters.

"It is seldom that we recommend what are termed Patent Medicines, to the confidence and patronage of our readers; and therefore, when we recommend Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, we wish it to be distinctly understood that we are not speaking of the nestrans of the day, that are noised about for a brief period and thus forgotten after they have done their guilty race of mischief, but of a medicine long established, universally prized, and which has met the hearty approval of the faculty itself."

"Scoti's Weekly," said, dug. 25—
"Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, manufactured hyp. Lackson, are now recommended by some of the most prominent members of the fisculty as an article of much efficacy in cases of female weakness. Persons of debilitated constitutions will find these Bitters advantageous to their health, as we know from experience the salutary effect they have upon a weak system.

"ORE EVIDENCE.

J. G. Most, Esq., of the Daily News said, October 31st.—
"Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters.—We are trying this renowned medicine for a stubborn disease of the bowels, and can with truth testify to its efficacy. We have taken the contents of two bottles, and we have derived more benefit from the experiment than we derived previously from years of allopathic treatment at the hands of our first physicians."

Hon. C. D. Hineline, Mayor of the City of Gamden, N. J., says:

"HoopLand" German Bitters.—We have seen many flattering notices of this medicine, and the source from which they came induced us to make inquiry respecting its merits. From inquiry we were persuaded to use it, and must say we found it apocific in its action upon diseases of the liver and digestive organ, and the powerful influence it exerts upon nervous prostration, is really surprising it to calms and strengthens the nerves, bringing them into a state of repose, making sleep refreshing.

If this medicine, was more generally used, we are actisfied there would be less sickness, as from the stomach, liver and nervous system, the great majority of real and imaginary diseases emanate. Have them in a healthy condition and you can bid defiance, it to epidemics generally. This extraordinary medicine we would advise our friends who are at all indisposed, to give a trial—it will recommend itself. It should, in fact, be in overy family. THE GERMAN MEDICINE STORE,

In this mammon-worshipping Age, it is rare to find a man place his usefulness to the public, before his interest. During a late visit to the 'City of Spindles,' we were presented by a professional friend, to the celebrated Chemist, Dr. J. C. AYER, whose name is now perhaps, more familiar than any other, at the bed-side of sickness, in this country. Knowing the unprecedent popularity of his medicines, and the immense sale of them, we had expected to find him a milliouare, and relling in wealth. But no, we found him in his laboratory, busy with his laborar, among his crucibles, alembics, and retorts—giving his best personal care to the compounds, on the virtues of which, thousands hang for health. We learned, that notwishstanding his vast business, and its prompt returns in eash, the Doctor is not rich. The reason assigned is, that the material is costly, and he persists in making his preparations so expensively, that the nett profit is small,—American Furmer, Phil.

Among the numerous discoveries Science has made in this generation to ficilitate the business of life-increase its enjoyment, and even prolong the term of human existence, once can be named of more real value to mankind, than this contribution of Chemistry to the Healing Art. A vast trial of its virtues throughout this brand country, has proved beyond a doubt, that no medicine or combination of medicines yet known, can so averly control and care the numerous varieties of pulmonary disease which have hitherto sweet from our midst thousands and thousands every year. Indeed, there is now abundant reason to believe a Remedy has at length been found which can be relied on, to cure the most dangerous affections of the lungs. Our space here will not permit us to publish any proportion of the ourse effected by its use, but we would present the following:—and refer further enquiry to my American Alumanc, which the agent below named, will always be pleased to farnish free, wherein are full particulars, and indisputable proof of these statements.

Office of Transportation, Laurens R. R., B. C., Aug. 4, 1853.

J. C. Avan. Dear Sir,—My little son four years old has just recovered from a severe attack of analysmant Scarlet Fever, his throat was rotten, and every person that visited him, pronounced him a dead child. Having used your CHERRY PROTONAL in California, in the winter of 1850, for a severe attack of Bronchits, with entire succes, I was induced to try it on my little boy. I gave him a tes-spoon-ful every three hours, commencing in the morning, and by fan o'clock at night, I found a decided change for the better, and after three days use he was able to eater drink without pala.

Its use in the above named disease will save many a child from a pranature grave, and relieve the anxiety of many a fond parent.—For all affections of the Throat and Lungs, I believe it the bean medicine extant. A feeling of the deepstg patitude, prompts me in addressing you these lines, but for your important discovery, my little hoy would now

J. D. POWELL, Supt. Trans., L. R.R. Rock Hill, (Somerest Co.,) N. J., July 21, 1882.

Dr. J. C. Avra, —Since your medicine has become known here, it has a greater demand than any other cough remedy we have ever sold.—It is spoken of in terms of unmeasured praise by those who have used it, and I know of spome cases where the best they can easy of it, is not too much for the good it has done. I take pleasure in sulling it, because I know that I am giving my customers the worth of their money, and I feel gratified in seeing the benefit it confers. Please send me a further supply, and helieve Yours, with respect,

JOHN C. WHITLOCK.
