As Sure as Shooting

But shooting is not always sure. It's mighty uncertain if the gun isn't right or if the ammunition is poor. Poor ammunition will keep the best gun from shooting, sure. Poor guns have the same effect upon good ammunition. You must have both of them right. Good guns, good ammunition, are what we want to sell you. Good revolvers, too, good powder and shot.

Rioting in the French Churches.

Writing from Paris under date of May 19, the special correspondent of the New York Evening Post says:—

The late storms of the tardy spring hang on the air ready to let drop cold, sudden showers on the heads of Parisians pouring forth to enjoy their weekly holiday. In the great city of wealth and fashion there is no unusual stir, only mild discontent with the weather. It is in the working men's quarters—in Belleville, which was Gambetta's stronghold in 1870, where the rioting has been a cavalry officer—that agitation is in the air.

A Sunday ago in the working men's suburb of Aubervilliers, three leaders of Socialist "action"—an ex-abbé, an ex-university man, and a Radical agitator—entered the parish church, ordered the preacher to shut up and come down, and, after hustling the women and knocking the men about until the police came, withdrew, breathing loud threats of what they would do to-day. Their action, which they boasted would extend to all France, was professedly to help the Government, which has forbidden any priest of the suppressed congregations to preach. Now the Cardinal Archbishop and many of the parish priests, denying the right of the Government to interfere with services held inside the church, have engaged such preachers. At Aubervilliers the volunteer supporters of Government policy had an easy triumph. The police took a few names at the request of a few indignant churchgoers, and the Government promptly suspended the cure's salary. Today they were to continue their victories over Catholics, whom they have been calling of late, not without reason, "sheep." Alas! the sheep have gone mad—moutons enragés.

From Belleville word was passed round to the butcher boys of La Villette. These have never taken any stock of militant Socialism. They are wrongly charged with Nationalism; they do not trouble their heads about party names. They are the men of the Comte de Sabran-Pontevès, a Royalist himself and member of one of the very oldest French noble families, with two canonized saints among his ancestors. He is more of a soldier that saint, and his dashing ways of fraternizing with his constituents of La Villette have quite won over the lads of the quarter! They followed his lead along the Boulevard during the Dreyfus riots, and did valiant work enough to win hard names from English correspondents. In reality they are not a bad lot; assault and battery is the chief crime attributed to their trade, and this is not as frequent as defalcation of funds among French lawyers. They are expert and faithful workmen, earn a good living, and take care of the members of their corporation who get into troubles. They may not be plaster saints in practice, but they are respectful of religion in theory, and, most of all, what the Count says goes.

The Count was not in town, but it was understood that he was on the side of order and the Church. So when the hour for Mass came, a few dozen butcher boys of La Villette, dressed in their Sunday best, and solemn and respectable as deacons, dropped into the church at Belleville. They ranged themselves carelessly in a triangle, with the point at the pulpit, leaving plenty of space for intruders to come in by the broad end and be caught handily between their lines. Then they waited decorously for whatever might happen.

Just before the sermon was to begin, eight men with a number of women, whose fiery and manner were scarcely adopted with a view to churchgoing, made their way among the audience and found places in front of the pulpit. They did not seem to suspect anything wrong from being placed so easily, having no fear of the sheep around them. The preacher gave out his text, when the leader of the new comers jumped to his feet, and called out loudly: "What authority have you?" He did not finish his question. The hand of the butcher boy at the apex of the triangle swept down upon his head, crushing him to the floor, while willing hands along the line seized him by the nape of the neck and other convenient points of his back clothing and promptly threw him out of the church door. They followed performed the same operation on the remaining seven men of action, who were sorely astonished, while their women, whom they had brought to see the fun, peep mournfully as they tried to pull hair and gouge eyes in the melee. Before the police could intervene the church was cleared.

A few feathers and ribbons from women's hats and some generous pools of blood from broken jaws and crushed noses gave color to the floor and the chairs for the worshippers were sadly thrown about.

The police officer, who seemed astonished as any one at the way things had gone, now came in from the street and demanded of the man before the pulpit, and so, to their apparent astonishment, got the benefit of the sermon, which proceeded without further trouble. At Aubervilliers the police commissary had insisted on the preacher leaving the pulpit when the trouble was over; but this he had no legal right to do, and orders had been given not to interfere. When the sermon was over at Belleville the cure rose in his place and addressed the preacher: "You have been asked by what authority you speak here? It is by that of the Cardinal Archbishop of Paris and of myself, the parish priest, the only authorities who have anything to say in such a matter."

Then the voices of the faithful-butcher boys and all—rose in a well known chant, which was answered by the angry cries of the Anarchist mob outside. At the close the police formed a solid squad around the preacher and marched him to a place of safety. The butcher boys, radiant from work well done, eclipsed themselves. But the Socialists, as much injured in their feelings as in their bodies, pointed out various men of the congregation issuing from the church, and the police officer ordered their arrest, as guilty of violence. One was a professor in a college, another a member of the University Catholic Club. Against these and three other Catholics and against one Socialist, police charges were made. The leader of the Socialist eight, who took it on themselves to help the Government, is the head of the Ward Committee of the Dupuytrot, Clovis Hugues, which vaguely condemns the haphazardly with Parliament.

At Plaisance the rumor had got around that the cure would profit by his military experience to organize his own service of order. The Socialists prudently refrained from entering the building, and waited in the street to catch the cure should order his flock to steal out quietly by the back door of the church into a side street. The cure delivered his message, and added: "Of course, you are free to do as you choose." With one voice came the reply: "We shall go out by the French door, which is the front!" The outraged officer had no choice but to range his men in long lines so as to keep the hostile crowds separate. "Walk shoulder to shoulder!" called out the warlike cura. The exit was made without too much bloodletting.

The First Good Friday.

From the London Daily Chronicle. Researches conducted by Professor Hans Achelis, of Konigsberg, on the basis of a series of most exact calculations made by the Royal Astronomical Institute in Berlin, have established with what seems to be a high degree of historical accuracy the fact that the date of the Crucifixion was April 6, in the year 30.

How Professor Achelis arrived at this result he explains in a paper published in the proceedings of the Royal Scientific Society of Gottingen. The four Evangelists, it is pointed out, agree that Our Lord died on Friday, and according to St. John the day was the 14th of the month Nisan, when the Passover lamb was being prepared; but according to the three other Evangelists Christ had already partaken of the Passover meal, and was crucified on the first day of the Passover, that is the 15th of the month Nisan.

The year is nowhere mentioned, but was during the governorship of Pontius Pilate, who was appointed in the year 26 and removed just before Easter in the year 36.

From the material supplied to him by the Astronomical Institute, Professor Achelis found that during these ten years the 15th of Nisan never fell on a Friday, but that the 14th of Nisan fell on a Friday twice, namely, according to our reckoning on April 6, in the year 30, and April 3, in the year 33. The precise date given in Luke iii., and the fact that the statement in John ii., 20, could only have been made in the year 27-28 prove that our Lord's ministry ended in the year 30. From this agreement of astronomical calculations which the Bible record we have, concludes Professor Achelis, good grounds for accepting April 6 of the year 30 of our era as the date of the first good Friday.

Religious Events Briefly Recorded.

The determined attitude of these men belonging to each congregation seems to have brought to a speedy end the bawling of Messrs. Charbonnel and friends, writes a Paris correspondent. When there were only a few women to frighten and a few priests to insult, these three valiant gentlemen showed their courage in numerous skirmishes, but as soon as they perceived that the men were not going to stand their nonsense and were quite prepared not only to expel them, but to give them sound thrashings, they wisely kept away.

In connection with the recent visit of the German Emperor to Monte Casino, the following from the "Messager de St. Benoît" is of interest: "Those who have been admitted into the presence of the Emperor have noticed with no little surprise that His Majesty wears a small medal of St. Benedict on his watch chain. It may be interesting to relate the origin of that predilection which the Kaiser so manifestly seems to entertain of recent years towards the great Benedictine Order and its illustrious founder. A few years ago, in one of his tours of the Rhenish provinces, the Emperor visited the Abbey of Maria Laach. The abbot, now Bishop Bouzier, of Metz, entertained his imperial guest. During the Emperor's visit and while admiring the imposing grandeur of the sacred edifice and deeply moved by the edifying piety and the nobleness of soul of the monks he learned that good abbot was desirous of restoring to its former beauty the magnificent abbatical Church of Maria Laach, a historical monument of the twelfth century, and generously gave a considerable sum of money to help them on. When the work of repair was completed the Emperor again visited the Maria Laach and its beautiful church, and it was on this occasion that the Lord Abbot, as a token of gratitude, begged His Majesty to accept a medal of St. Benedict. From that day forward William II. never ceased to interest himself in the welfare of the Benedictines. To a person who respectfully remarked to him that the liberal attentions bestowed on the monks might be criticized by his Protestant subjects, the Emperor replied: "Let them talk. I know the good these good men do; the influence they wield over their surroundings is great indeed; therefore I do respect them and wish them to be respectful."

"I purchased a bottle of Dr. Low's Worm Syrup for my little girl 2½ years old, and gave her the medicine. The result was she passed fifteen round worms in five days."

Government Tricks Exposed.

The public meetings addressed by Mr Mathieson, Leader of the Opposition, Mr McLean, M. L. A., Mr Arsenault, M. L. A., and others, that have been held in Prince County during last week, and are continued this week, have been an eminent success from the start, and enthusiasm is becoming more and more intensified as the meetings progress.

Ottawa Weekly Letter.

THE WEEK IN PARLIAMENT.

In Parliament last week the consideration of Hon. Sidney Fisher's estimates called forth a test of strength between the Opposition and Government forces. The ministers endeavored to suppress full investigation of an item for the census, but after sitting until 6.20 Saturday morning the Government backed down ignominiously.

A motion in favor of increasing the protection of market garden produce was voted down by the Liberals. Hon. J. Israel Tarte submitted a resolution calling upon the government to at once revise the tariff so as to fully protect Canadian industries.

Mr R. A. Pringle, Conservative M. P. for Cornwall and Stormont, moved in the house an amendment to the Grand Trunk Pacific bill to compel the company to use materials made in Canada.

Estimates of the Marine and Fisheries department brought out some things which are away off color. In purchasing supplies a recent change was made by which the tender system was abolished.

The government's proposal to guarantee railway bonds for the Canadian Northern was discussed, but no progress was made.

Mr McCreary, the Liberal member for Selkirk, Manitoba, complained of the number of diseased persons suffering from repulsive maladies that are allowed to enter the country.

Hon A. G. Blair, against his will, was forced to promise relief to the farmer in cases where railways prevented farms from being drained.

TRANSPORTATION BEING NEGLECTED.

The Government is still lagging behind with its transportation policy. Terminals are cropping up on all sides and a railway is being subsidized here and another there. But apart from that nothing is being done to formulate a comprehensive policy of transportation.

OUR INCREASING EXPENDITURE.

That the expenditure of Canada is growing apace is evidenced by the estimates submitted to the House this session. The main estimates amounted to $59,109,974. Two batches of supplementary estimates have since been added, one for $320,000 and the second for $5,090,968, making a total of $64,462,902.

The Conservative meetings in Prince County are an unqualified success. Everywhere the Leader of the Opposition and his associates are enthusiastically received, the meetings are largely attended and the arraignment of the Government is complete.

THE RULERS OF CANADA.

Marvellous is the new statesmanship of the present school of Liberalism which has grown up under new leadership and on the ruins of every principle held dear by Liberals prior to 1896. It is not a matter of surprise, when one looks back over the history of the party during the past seven years, that staunch journeymen who supported Wilfrid Laurier declare that should a Liberal of the old school return after an absence of some years, he would be unable to recognize the policy of the person now known as Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

WILL HAVE NO FAST LINE.

Those who imagine that the negotiations for a fast Atlantic service would result in anything will be disappointed. The government has announced that neither of the tenders received for such a line will be accepted. This is largely due to the impracticable conditions imposed by steamship owners, who were invited to bid for a service which would be neither fast nor slow.

GEORGE III BLAMED BY ROSS GOVERNMENT.

The Attorney-General of Ontario furnishes an explanation of the political deals which have disgraced that province during the past five years. The people are told that, an arrangement, by which Sheriff Dana of Leeds and Grenville bound himself to pay an annuity of $1,200 to his predecessor on the latter agreeing to relinquish office, was legalized by an old statute enacted in the reign of George III.

MONEY FOR FOREIGNERS.

Canada consumed 800,000 tons of iron and steel last year the direct products of blast furnaces and rolling mills. Of this 544,548 tons, valued at $17,537,108, were purchased abroad. The home manufacturers supplied 255,452 tons worth $8,320,072. In the case of the home products the country secured the iron and steel but in the process $17,537,108 was sent to foreign factories to be distributed among their employees.

CANADA'S DEPLORABLE CENSUS.

From all parts of the country complaints are coming to Parliament as to the inaccuracy of the schedules compiled. In New Brunswick the Free Baptist denomination was almost entirely ignored, and whole congregations have gone unrecorded, simply because of clear stupidity and incompetence.

The old British Monitor Scorpion, which for years was used as a target for British warships in the West India Station off Hamilton, sunk off Gorges Shoal while in tow of the tug Powerful on her way to St. John. The tug reached Boston Wednesday night when the master reported the loss of the Monitor. Fifteen men who were on the Monitor were rescued by the crew of the Powerful, after a struggle. The weather was very heavy at the time.

SENAIOR BEIQUE has introduced in the Dominion Senate a bill respecting free labor. It is intended to prevent intimidation. It makes any gathering of three or more persons, from which emanates any manifesto in times of strike unlawful and imposes penalties upon those present, unless they can prove that they were not consenting parties to any act. It also makes illegal, and provides penalties for the use of opprobrious epithets, such as "Scab," etc.

STEAMER Harland arrived at North Sydney on Wednesday last from some of the wreck of the Norwegian, Leckin's Point, N.E.I. The Harland had on board 110 head cattle, 600 sacks flour, besides a quantity of lumber and other goods saved from the stranded steamer. She reports the Norwegian in the same position with fourteen feet of water in the forward hold. Divers went down and ascertained that the bottom was not damaged. All the cargo has been taken out except some bulk corn in the after hold.

The shrubs brought from France in order to stop the drifting and changing of the sands on Sable Island, have proved a failure. Eighty thousand of these plants were brought from France, where they flourish in a soil that is largely sand, binding it together. They were set in Sable Island in the hope that the same thing would happen there. But the plants are all dying. The experiment has failed. The shrubs will not subsist in the almost pure sand of Sable Island, where the action of the wind and sea are constantly changing the location of the bars and shoals. Forces are over-running the island and causing considerable damage. Strawberry blossoms are now general all over the island.

At latest accounts he was resting easy.

The battleship Massachusetts, which left Boston Friday afternoon for New York, was in collision that night 21 miles southeast by east of Boston Lightship with sch. Martha T. Thomas of Thomastown, Me., Apalachicola with lumber. Capt. Wadsworth of the Thomas says the battleship struck his schooner a glancing blow on the starboard side abreast the mainmast, tearing off the main chain plate, carrying away rails and damaging some planking about the hull, causing her to leak about two inches an hour. The captain says the weather was clear and he could see four miles away. His vessel, having fair wind kept a clear course, thinking the battleship, which was headed out the bay, would give them a clear way. Immediately after the collision the Massachusetts put about and followed the schooner into the bay, but on reaching the lightship Capt. Wadsworth decided that assistance was unnecessary. The Massachusetts then put to sea.

JUNE ROSES.

BY AMADREUS, G. S. F.

O roses, let your fragrance tell Of hope and longing, peace and trust, And every tender joy that must Absorb the heart where love doth dwell!

Rev. Father Crinion Worthily Remembered.

The Star-Transcript of Paris, Ont., in its issue of the 10th, inst., contains the following account of the reception tendered Rev. Father Crinion, on the occasion of his promotion from Danville to Paris.

Rev. J. E. Crinion, who, as was announced some weeks ago, was appointed to the Parish of the Church of the Sacred Heart here, arrived at Paris on Thursday last to take up his new duties.

On the occasion of his leaving Danville, where he labored for the last seventeen years, he was presented with an address and a purse of gold by his congregation there as well as addresses from the children and from Branch 123, C. M. B. A.

As a speaker Father Crinion ranks among the foremost of the clergy of the diocese. He is a lecturer of note, and will be remembered by many Parisians who had the pleasure of hearing his address in the town hall some three years ago, on the occasion of the anniversary of St. Patrick.

His assiduous work on behalf of the C. M. B. A. has resulted in great benefit to that association throughout Western Ontario. Father Crinion is now one of the Grand Trustees of the whole association.

so much solicitude and anxiety, until it is to-day our pride and one of Danville's ornaments. The new house, suitably furnished, entirely free of debt, with its trim lawn and beautiful shady trees planted by your own hands, bear testimony of good taste, financing and management.

Nor have you forgotten our beloved dead. You have provided a suitable resting place for them. The new cemetery has been reclaimed by underdraining it with tile and raising it with hundreds of loads of earth, and the sinking of an artesian well for the two-fold purpose of drainage and flower culture.

By your care and attention to the sick and afflicted you have enabled them to accept their sufferings with resignation, consoled and fortified them in their last decisive hour by the administration of the last sacraments, and soothed and healed the breaking hearts of the living bereaved ones.

You have been with us, heart and hand, in prosperity and adversity alike, in joy and in sorrow. We may be pardoned then, whilst bowing obediently to the will of our bishop, for feeling the separation keenly.

We feel that the accompanying purse of gold is a poor offering to make you, but we beg your acceptance of it as a token of the high esteem, respect, affectionate good will and sincere gratitude of a faithful and devoted congregation whose cordial co-operation you have always enjoyed and appreciated, and whose hearty, good, kind wishes and humble prayers will follow you wherever you go.

WILLIAM BARRY, JR., Secretary, St. Michael's Congregation.

To Rev. J. E. Crinion.—We are very sorry you are going away. On the day of our Confirmation when the Bishop announced his intention of promoting you to Paris, we felt inclined to ask him to allow you to remain with us, but we know that we owe him obedience, and that he does all things for the best. We shall miss you very much. We acknowledge we tried your patience, very often, and we thank you for your forbearance with us.

How gratifying it is to us as Catholics mingling with the good people of this community in the every-day affairs of life, to be in touch with a common feeling and hear on every side, from representative citizens of all religious denominations, all classes and conditions of life and society, the same heartfelt expressions of regret which we ourselves experience at your departure.

To you we owe the foundation of the O. M. B. A. in this parish, and since your election to the important office of Grand Trustee, you have labored assiduously on the platform and otherwise to organize and increase the membership in other parishes throughout the Dominion. We thank the Grand Council of the C. M. B. A. of Canada for the honor done our Branch in electing you one of the Grand Trustees of the whole Association.

We beg your acceptance of the accompanying gift as a souvenir from Branch No. 123, Dunville.

companion gift as a souvenir from Branch No. 123, Dunville. If your earnest prayers avail, then your future will be one of happiness, peace, and success in the parish of Paris, where the seeds of the Catholic faith were early sown by saintly and devoted men.

Catholic Monks Compiled the Early Dictionaries.

Dr. J. A. H. Murray, editor of the "New English Dictionary," told his hearers a great many interesting things about dictionaries in the course of a recent lecture. The word dictionary, he said, appeared first in 1295; and, though "dictionary" was used in its modern sense in 1542, it had not then ousted either the more correct word "vocabulari" or the fanciful titles which early compilers like to employ.

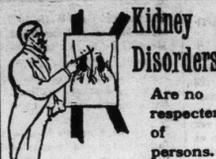

The average person seems somehow to think of dictionaries as the invention of Dr. Johnson, and an altogether modern product. Dr. Murray corrected that idea. They were not the work of one or of several men, he told his audience, but a growth developed through the ages. They began with the glosses—that is, the explanations in easy Latin or English—of hard Latin words, written by the monks between the lines of the manuscripts.

The first book with the title of "An English Dictionary" was published in 1623. Such works were mainly compiled for the use of "women and other unskillful persons." In the year 1721 appeared the first attempt at a complete dictionary of the English language, remarkable also for the introduction of the etymological treatment of words—that of Nathaniel Bailey. His folio edition, published in 1730, was the working basis of Dr. Johnson's Dictionary.

The London Daily Chronicle recalls the fact that May 15 was the centenary of the establishment of the Catholic Church in Australia. Three Catholic Priests and a Protestant minister had been transported to Sydney for their connection with the rebellion of '98. Mr. Fulton, the Protestant clergyman, was on his arrival at Sydney allowed to continue his clerical functions, but the Catholic priests were restrained. The Rev. James Dixon, however, one of the priests, who was residing at Sydney, was on May 15, 1903, allowed to celebrate Mass. The chalice, made of tin, was fastened by a convict and vestments designed from curtains.

The great commercial school, as it may be justly called, of the Irish Christian Brothers on Via Firenze 10, Rome now counts almost three hundred students on the lists of evening attendance only. Thus the desire of the late Cardinal Jacobini to combat the disgraceful methods of proselytism is being crowned with a full success, and it is to be hoped that the Brothers will receive that measure of support which they deserve for having created the best institution of the sort in Italy.

English exchanges announce that the Trappist Fathers from Cherbourg, France, have, through an agent, bought an estate of some six hundred acres at the village of Martin, near Fordingbridge, Wilt. A large monastery is to be erected and about forty monks will take up their abode there. Amongst other industries the Trappists make a famous cheese which is largely sold all over the world.

MISCELLANEOUS. There's one consolation about insomnia," remarked the sufferer. "What is that?" "While I lie awake I don't have nightmares."

Severe headaches. "For some time I was troubled with very severe headaches. I tried Milburn's Sterling Headache Powders and got immediate relief."

Patient.—Doctor, I am very short of breath. Doctor.—Oh, well, we'll soon stop that.

Hagyard's Yellow Oil reduces swelling, allays inflammation, takes out pain, and cures cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, stiff joints, etc. more effectually than any other remedy.

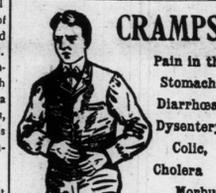

Tomkins.—That's a handsome umbrella you've got, Bibb. "Yes, Tomkins." "About what does it cost to carry an umbrella like that?" "Eternal vigilance."

Summer Coughs. Are often hardest to shake off, and frequently lead to consumption. Better have them cured promptly by Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, the best remedy for healing the lungs and curing all kinds of coughs and colds.

Life. The poet's exclamation: "O Life! I feel thee bounding in my veins," is a joyous one. Persons that can rarely or never make it, in honesty themselves, are among the most unfortunate. They do not live, but exist; for to live implies more than to be.

"Biffins didn't enjoy his hunting trip up in Maine a little bit." "What was the trouble?" "Why, after he started into the woods he found out that his guide's life is insured in the very company of which Biffins is present, and he didn't care to shoot a thing after that, for fear it might be the guide."

CRAMPS. Pain in the Stomach, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Cholera, Morbus, Cholera Infantum, Seasickness, and all kinds of Summer Complaint are quickly cured by taking Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry.
