Judge M-, a well known jurist living near Cincinnati, was fond of relating this anecdote. He had once occasion to send to the village for a carpen ter, and a sturdy young fellow appeared with his tools.

"I want this fence mended to keep out the cattle. There are some unplaned boards use them. It is out of sight from the house, so you need not take time to make it a neat job. I will only pay you dollar and a-half."

The Judge went to dinner, and, coming out, found the man carefully planing each board. Supposing that he was trying to make a costly job of it, he ordered him to nail them on at once just as they were and continued his walk. When he returned the boards were planed and numbered ready for nailing.

"I told you that this fence was to be overed with vines," he said, angrily. "I do not care how it looks."

"I do," said the carpenter, gruffly, carefully measuring his work. When i was finished there was no part of the fence so thorough in finish.

"How much do you charge?" asked the Judge. "A dollar and a half," said the man

The Cod took a circle around to show off, stood on his head, flourished his tail, and then asked:

"Can any of the Clam family do half that. "As I said before," replied the Clam, how it is looked at.

Bradlaugh, it is true, acted foolishly at first in the matter of the oath's test, but his after action, until Wednesday last, was that of an aggrieved person seeking justice. We have always contended that the test oath in our legislative halls is a mistake. The absurdity of the thing is easily seen, if we look at the complexion of the House of Commons or the House of Lords, as at present constituted. The majority of the members, although nominally Christian, are really as devoid of true Christianity, Bradlaugh, it is true, acted foolishly are really as devoid of true Christianity, as Bradlaugh professes to be. Bradlaugh remained some time in the Palace yard with his arms folded, three policement in front of him. Bearing the policemen in front of him, barring the way to the House.

In the House of Commons, Labouchere (Advanced Liberal) raised a question of privilege that the resolution of the House in regard to Bradlaugh only excluded him from the House, whereas he had been removed from the lobby. La-bouchere moved that the officials were therein exceeding their authority.

The Speaker replied that he consider went for a summons against the police.

When Bradlaugh approached the House of Commons this morning he looked pale, and evidently suffered from suppressed excitement. His black dress heightened the effect of his pallor, and it was remarked that he looked like an animated corpse. A rumor ran through the lobby that Bradlaugh meant to use actual force to obtain an entrance and resist his removal. An immense throng gathered outside, and the arrangements to prevent Bradlaugh's entrance were House stood two Deputy Sergeants-at Arms, flanked on either side by policemen picked for great bodily strength.

Two Boys Lost at the River's

Laurie Macara Browned While Valuty Attempting to Save a Companion.

The report that two boys had been drowned while bathing in the river was discredited when it first reached town yesterday evening. But the ill news turned out to be too true.

A number of young lads were bathing at the mouth of the river about five o'clock, and were amusing themselves by floating about on boards. One of them, named Chas. Henry a boy of nine years of age was carried into deep water by the current, and slipped off the board into the water.

A companion, named Laurie Macara, aged twelve, went immediately to his rescue, but notwithstanding his gallant endeavors, he failed to save him and lost his own life in the attempt.

An alarm was immediately given, nd a number of men working at the lumber docks ran to the scene, but the boys were lost to sight. The swift current had carried the bodies away from the spot where the accident first occurr-

Chas. Henry was from St. Louis, and was stopping at the house of Mrs. Fletcher with his parents, to whom the blow will be a very severe one.

Laurie Macara was well known, being son of our venerable townsman, John Macara, Esq. He was a lad of a very happy disposition, and was a great favorite with his companions and our townspeople generally. His bravery, though unavailing, showed the courageous disposition of the boy. His father arrived on the steamer from Manitoba only a few hours before the accident.

The grief stricken parents and rela tives have our sympathy in their terrible affliction.

The children attending Knox Church unday School, at which Laurie was a regular attendant, are requested to atend the funeral of their late comrade.

Snake Stories Discounted.

A queer story appears in the New York World, showing how a fly was tamed and made the constant companion of a desperate western horse-thief, who was sick and in prison. The fly at first annoyed the man daily, and he tried in vain to kill it. The man knew it was the same fly that visited him every day, this continual fighting, the poor prisoner began to enjoy the contest, for no matter how hard he tried to catch the fly, it continually eluded him. One night the horse-thief killed two guards in attempting to see a second seco tempting to escape, and was removed to a distant cell, heavily ironed. For some days he was left alone, and he sorely missed his companionship of the little fly with which he had formerly waged a deliv way. At learth, or product the state of the state ny with which he had formerly waged a daily war. At length one day the fly found out where the prisoner was confined, and immediately began to tease him on a particularly tender spot under the right eye. The manacled horsethief could not brush him away, and was forced to lie quiet. The fly, evidently noticing that something was wrong, because the man did not try to hit himself in the eye, retired a few wrong, because the man did not try to hit himself in the eye, retired a few yards. A glance at the manacles soon revealed the state of affairs, and ever afterwards the fly remained in the cell, but ceased to annoy the man. It spent to the try to the window, keeping most of its time by the window, keeping the other flies out of the cell. One day the prisoner was taken out and hanged. When the corpse was removed, the body of the dead fly with two spots on one of its wings was found at the foot of the scaffold. Safe Maxims for All.

The world estimates men by their success in life; and, by general consent, success is evidence of superiority. Never, under any circumstances, assume a responsibility you can avoid consistent ly with your duty to yourself and others Base all your actions upon a principle of right; preserve all your integrity of character in doing this, never reckon the cost. Remember that self-interest is the BEST AND CHEAPEST ARmore likely to warp your judgment than all other circumstances combined; therefore look well to your duty when your duty is concerned. Never make money at the expense of your reputation. Be neither lavish nor niggardly—of the two avoid the latter—a mean man is universally despised; but public favour is a stepping-stone to preferment—therefore a stepping should be subjusted. nerous feelings should be cultivated. Let your expenses be such as to leave a Let your expenses be such as to leave a balance in your pocket—ready money is a friend in need. Keep clear of the law; for when you gain your case, you are generally a loser of money. Never relate your misfortunes, and never grieve over what you cannot prevent. No man who owes as much as he can pay, has any moral right to pledge his credit by endorsing a bill for another.

FLY DOTS .- Flies are too familiar by half. They are more familiar than the festive mosquito, which is a blood relative. It loves to tickle tease and torment, having more playfulness than ten kittens and an army nule combined, according to its size. A single fly is such a little thing that a man of Mr. White's size would belittle himself by taking off his coat and challenging it to a fair and square stand up fight. And yet it deserves to be roughly used, being so con-temptible in its conduct. If you are at temptible in its conduct. If you are at your meals it will come around and make it quite lively for you. Kill one fly and forty-five or fifty of its relatives and friends will come to view the remains and make enquiries by picking at your bald head about the funeral. Then some of them will try to wade through the soft butter in the most disgusting manner, never asking whether you like it or nct. Others again will go swimming in your cup of tea or glass of milk without taking their clothes off, or even cleaning their feet. What they do this for is best known to themselves. Their inquisitive conduct is mysterious. inquisitive conduct is mysterious. The only sure way to get them out of a house is to close the windows and doors, catch the flies by the wings or hind legs and dip them into scalding hot water. That will be sure to take the activity out of them. This is fly time, and that accounts for this fly sketch. - [Ex.

The Poet's Corner.

The Highway Cow.

The hue of her hide was a dusky brown. Her body was lean and her neck was slim; One horn turned up and the other down, She was keen of vision and long of limb, With a Roman nose and a short stump tail, And ribs like the hoops on a home-made pa

Many a mark did her body bear: She had been a target for all things l On many a scar the dusky hair Would grow no more where it on

Many a passionate, parting shot Had left upon her a lasting spot,

Many and many a well-aimed stone. Many a brickbat of goodly size, And many a cudgel, swiftly thrown,
Had brought the tears to her bovine eyes;
Or had bounded off from her bony back, With a noise like the sound of a rifle crack.

Many a day had she passed in the pound, For helping herself to her neighbor's corn; Many a cowardly cur and hound
Had been transfixed on her crumpled horn Many a teapot and old tin pail Had the farmer boys tied to her time-worn

Old Deacon Gray was a pious man, Though sometimes tempted to be profane When many a weary mile he ran, To drive her out of his growing grain Sharp were the pranks she used to play To get her fill and get away.

She knew when the Deacon went to town: She wisely watched him when he wen He never passed her without a frown And an evil gleam in each angry eye; He would crack his whip in a surly way And drive along in his "one horse shay

Then at his homestead she loved to call Lifting his bars with crumpled horn; Nimbly scaling his garden wall, Helping herself to his standing corn Eating his cabbages, one by one. Hurrying home when her work was done.

Often the Deacon homeward came. Humming a hymn from the house of praye His hopeful heart in a tranqv'l frame, His soul as calm as the evening air, His forehead smooth as a well-worn plow To find in his garden that highway cow

His human passions were quick to rise. And striding forth with a savage cry, With fury blazing from borth his eyes, As lightnings flash in a summer sks, Redder and redder his face would grow And after the creature he would go.

Over the garden, round and ror id, Breaking his pear and apple trees, Tramping his melons into the ground Overturning his hives of be Leaving him angry and badly stung, Wishing the old cow's neck wa. wrung

The mosses grew on the garden wall: The years went by with their work and p'ay The boys of the village grew strong and tall, And the gray-haired farmers passed away, One by one as the red leaves fall.—
But the highway cow outlived them all.

All earthly creatures must have their day, And some must have their months and years. Some in dying will long delay; There is a climax to all careers; And the highway cow at last was slain In running a race with a railway train.

All into pieces at once she went, Just like the savings banks when they fail; Out of the world she was swiftly sent; Little was left but her old stump tail, The farmers' cornfields and gardens now Are haunted no more by the highway cow

A FREE PRESS Some of its Advantages Translated.

The beautiful idea of getting something

So much has been spoken, written and sung about a "free press," that peo senses althoughter too literal.

The Detroit, Mackinac, and Marquette Railroad Company NOW OFFER FOR SALE OVER 1,300,000 ACRES

Of the Choicest FARMING and TIMBERED LANDS in the Northern Peninsula of Michigan, of Michigan,

Destined to be the best wheat-producing region in the world. These lands are situated in the counties of Chippewa, Mackinac, Schoolcraft, and Marquette, and embrace many thousands of acres of the best agricultural lands in the State of Michigan.

Among those in the counties of Chippewa and Mackinac are tracts of what are known as the "burnt or cleared" lands. These lands offer many advantages over the prairie lands of the West, as the timber lands adjoining insure a supply of fuel at little cost. The soil being a rich clay loam of great depth. The timber remaining upon the land being generally sufficient for the settlers' use in building and fencing.

These partially cleared lands are now offered at the low price of from $4 to $4.50 per acre, one-fourth cash, and the remainder at purchasers' option, at any time within nine years, with interest payable annually at seven per cent.

Roads are being opened through these lands, and no better opportunity has ever been offered to men of small means to secure a good farm, and intending purchasers will be wise by availing themselves of this chance before prices advance, as the lands are heing rapidly taken and settled upon.

The lands more immediately on the line of the Detroit, Mackinac, and Marquette Rallroad araling themselves of this chance before prices advance, as the lands are heing rapidly taken and settled upon.

The lands nore immediately on the line of the Detroit, Mackinac, and Marquette Railroad from the Straits of Mackinac to Marquette are more heavily timbered, and are almost universally good agricultural lands, leaving splendid farms when the timber is removed.

The iron and lumber interests of the upper peninsula are of such magnitude as to call for all the charcoal and lumber that the timber and wood upon the lands will produce—this will enable the settler to make good wages while clearing the land.

Lumber Mills and Charcoal Kilns will be built at various points along the line, and Furnaces are now being erected along the line of the road at Point Bt. Ignace.

The great demand and good prices for labor, both in winter and summer, make these lands particularly desirable as homes for the poor man. The lands adjacent the Railroad are offered at prices from $5 upwards, according to location, value of timber, etc. The lands are at your very door, and are being rapidly settled by Canadians.

THE POETS LAUREATE.

origin of the System in England- A List

All-red parasols grow in popular favor. The custom of crowning a poet with laurel originated among the Greeks, and was adopted by the Romans, who bor-rowed this, as many other things, from their more cultured neighbors of the East. The poets who received the crown The return to polonaises is a fixed Queen's gray is a new shade of this were the ones who succeeded in the contests. In the twelfth century the custom was revived in Germany by the Emperor, who invented the title of poet-laureate. Petrarch was crowned in 1341 Grenadines in all colors and black and at the Roman capital, which event attached new interest to the title. The early history of laureateship in England is traditional. The story runs that Edward III., in 1367, emulating the coronation of Petrarch, granted the office to Chaucer, with a yearly pension of 100 marks and a tierce of Malvoisie wine. Ben, rare old Ben, Jonson, mentions Henry Scogan as the laureate of Henry IV. John Kay, or Cain, was court-poet, under Edward IV., and Andrew Bernard held the same office under Henry VII. and Henry VIII. John Skelton received from the control of the co ed from Oxford, and subsequently from Cambridge, the title of poet-laureate; and Spencer is spoken of as the laureate of Queen Elizabeth, because of his having received a pension of $10 a year when he presented her the first books of sadded, which was commuted in Southey's time for $27 a year. There was from that period a regular succession of laureates. The performance of the annual odes was suspended after the final

How to Get Rich.

The great secret of obtaining riches, is At Brussels on Wednesday, Listowel defeated the home cricked club by 41 days.

How the Queen Keeps House.

The highest priced servant Queen Vic toria requires to do her proper service around the house is a master of the horse, who cost the people $12,500; a lord steward, lord chamberlain and the keeper of the privy purse, who is in plan-English her majesty's private secretary at $10,000 each and a black rod, who whatever his duties may be, gets the performing them; $8,500 is the salary ... performing them; $8,500 is the salary the buckhounds, and the captain of the yeoman of guard is paid $6,000 which is likewise the salary of the he citary grand falconer, who is no less a persuage than the Duke at St. Albans. The master of the household's wages are $5,700 and the comptroller of accounts, secretary of the private seal of private secretary, captain of the gentleman-atarms and clerk marshal come in for $5,000 a year each.

The host of the smaller fry who figure on the same pay roll is beyond enumeration. There is a vice Chamberlain, price $4,620; a treasurer and comptroller of the land steward's department, price of the land steward's department, price $4,520 each; and a groom of the robes and a crown equerry at $4,000. The lord chamberlin's chief clerk receive $3,500, and his paymaster and the equerry in ordinary $2,500. The mistress of the robes comes in for the same sum, the examiner of plays for $2,000, the rope of the board of oreen so The same of the master of the same. There are can thus secured his services, In 1630 the laureateship was made a patent office in the gift of the Lord Chamberlain. The salary was increased from 100 marks to $100, and a tierce of Canary wine was added, which was commuted in Souther's time for $27 a year. There was personner of the board of green cloth for $1,500 and the master of ceremonies for the same. There are eight lords in waiting of $3,610 each, four grooms of the privy chamber at $855 each, the same number of gentlement ushers at $1,000, eight grooms in waiting at $1.570, three deputy gentlement ushers at $750, and some deputies adoptive at four thousand dollars in a lump. "By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.

RETURNED.—Mr. Thomas Govenlock returned from the old country on Wednesday evening last. After disposing of his stock, Mr. Govenlock took a week's holiday and visited aeveral points of interest in "Auld Scotia," and spent a very pleasant time among the friends and scenes of his youth. We regret to learn that his cattle speculation did not turn out as well as could be wished. The out as well as could be wished. The meat trade is very dull in the Old Country this season, and prices are unusually low. Many cattle exporters have lost large sums of money. This is much to be regretted, as men of the enterprise and means of Mr. Govenlock and others, who have ventured in this A cet cattle export business, have been productive of very great benefit to the people of this country, and it is to be regretted that while doing good for others their speculations do not turn out well for themselves. However, very likely they will have better luck the next time. Mr. Govenlock looks well, and judging from his appearance we should say that his trip has done him more good than will counterbalance the effect of the poor luck in his business speculation.

The great Chicago stallion, Piedmont, under Pete Johnson's supervision, had not the least difficulty in capturing both first and sec-ond money. The mighty Alexander was not himself at all, seeming to be without nerve and allowing the distance flag to fly in his face in the second heat. The evening before there was little variance in the amount of specie ventured on the two stallions. They brought $100 each where Lucy took $16. Even on the grounds before the first heat Alexander was preferred at $100, to $85
