Intervention in Mexico Inevitable in Opinion of United States Senators

Conservative Senators Believe Situation Has Reached Deadlock Between Huerta in South and Carranza in North—Duty of the United States to Humanity Is to Put End to Anarchy in Northern Mexico, and to Force Huerta to Retire.

Washington, March 7.—Senators familiar with the foreign affairs of the United States today advanced the opinion that the ultimate destination of the present Mexican policy is intervention. Believing it is inevitable, they are in favor of intervention in the northern states of Mexico now.

It is not bombast. In view of the policy of President Wilson, the above outline of the plan in the minds of conservative Senators sounds like bombast. The fact is, the suggestion is seriously entertained in the minds of many conservative statesmen, and it has been discussed in the executive sessions of the Senate.

Foreign affairs, the situation appears to be at a deadlock. Interested citizens of Mexico, that is, interested both Carranza and Huerta, have told the senators that there is no hope of a solution of the problem by either of the forces now in the field in that country.

Three German Newspapers Are Charged With Libelling the Crown Prince

Berlin, March 7.—Ernest Meyer, "jail editor" of the Socialist newspaper "Vorwaerts," was brought up for trial today on charges of libelling Crown Prince Frederick William.

While Huerta is maintaining a semblance of order in the south, anarchy in Northern Mexico is admitted to be the cause of the chaos, for the reason that the Constitutionalists have been unable to control independent bands of marauders, who, while operating with them for purposes of personal salvation, are not co-operating with them for law and order.

Three Months' War. The senators believe such an intervention could be made successful in three months and peace and tranquility restored in Northern Mexico.

Edmonton Will Have To Fight For Fort George Business When Vancouver Line Is Completed

Chas. Rush, Fort George Business Man, Says Trade Is at Present All With This City, But Edmonton Must Fight to Retain It—Predicts Big Development for B. C. Point

"Fort George another Edmonton" is how Charles Rush, a business man of "the three towns," interprets the rapid strides which have been made during the last two or three years at the junction of the Fraser and Nechako rivers.

"Vancouver being a sea-port it is obvious that lumber and grain will be shipped down to the Pacific coast by the Pacific and Great Eastern, and the grain to Europe by way of the Panama canal."

Looks For Big Development. Mr. Rush predicts great development in the Fort Georges and Prince George this year. He says that the G.T.P. is figuring on an hotel, and is going to put up a big freight house, 300 by 50 feet at the foot of Dominion street, in Prince George.

The City Express and Cartage company of South Fort George is operated by Mr. Rush and his brother. The firm handles most of the freight for the steamship companies whose boats ply on the Nechako between Fort George and Soda Creek.

Effort Being Made to Have Fancus Hunters Shown Here Next Month. Hon. Duncan Marshall, minister of agriculture for the province of Alberta, has accepted the invitation of the directors to officially open the spring horse show.

Mr. Marshall's opinion is that the show will have a population of 20,000 or 25,000 in three years. He says that the show is being organized by South Fort George, but that jealousy between Fort George and South Fort George has delayed incorporation.

Will Have To Fight. Of interest to Edmonton are his remarks upon the sources from which Fort George will draw its supplies.

Edmonton Horticultural Society Joins Industrials

Decision at Meeting Is to Have Representative in Edmonton Industrial Association—City Beautiful Plans Outlined by W. J. Magrath—Address on "Gardens" Heard

The Edmonton Horticultural society had an exceptionally good meeting in the civic block on Tuesday evening with an attendance of over 75 members, and from the discussion which was held, it was readily seen that this society is certainly out to do good work with a view to the advancement of horticulture and city beautification.

Magistrate Downes, president of the society, took the chair and the industrial association was represented by Messrs. Magrath and Milne, with a view to securing the representation of horticulture and city beautification in the industrial association.

Mr. Magrath thought that better work could be done by the industrial association with the two societies co-operating and any work that the Horticultural society undertakes should have the backing of the Edmonton Industrial association with a membership of over 600, and the Industrial association could obtain assistance and advice of the Horticultural society.

Mr. Magrath stated that his association was considering the possibility of beautification of the city in many ways such as improving the river banks, and the Industrial association could take steps to procure legislation whereby owners of lots situated located be requested to clean up their property.

Highland Liberals Hold Organization Meeting

Hear Speeches by Hon. Charles Stewart, W. J. Magrath, Wm. Res and Others.

"Let us see that there are no factions in that party," said W. J. Magrath, who was one of the principal speakers at the organization meeting of the district of the Highlands in the Gifford Block, Friday, which was also addressed by Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of public works, and Wm. Res, H. H. Parlee, president.

Alderman Joseph A. Clarke was elected president of the district association; H. H. Parlee, 1st vice-president; R. G. Dunsmuir, 2nd vice-president; Alfred Kemp, secretary-treasurer, and the following to serve on the executive, with power to add to their numbers: W. J. Magrath, James Houston and H. Falconer.

Having dealt first with matters of organization, Hon. Mr. Stewart turned to provincial affairs. He said that the government had come in for considerable criticism in connection with the unearned increment tax, but that if the administration had erred in matters of detail he did not believe that any Liberal objected to the principle of the measure.

The minister regretted, however, that Mayor McNamara had taken such drastic action of local taxes. It was to be feared that the Tory faction would make much of his protest. He was willing to carry out the measure as possibly put into effect too suddenly. A sliding scale might have been made use of in order that business could have had time to adjust itself to the new conditions.

Then, dealing with Dominion affairs, Hon. Mr. Stewart said that in his travels through the southern portion of the province he had found the people increased anxious for the government to keep election pledges, and an account of legislation passed. The farmers in that part of the province were only awaiting for an opportunity to put the Dominion government out of office.

Turning again to organization, the minister of public works said: "We must organize along legislative lines. Do not be afraid of machine politics. Machine is a mighty nasty word, but there is a vast difference between strong organization for purposes of good, and a political machine operated from ulterior motives. Men come into office for some purpose, and it is impossible to take an interest in politics and remain straight. I would say with Hon. A. G. MacKay that a good citizen cannot afford to keep out of politics."

"Liberalism," said William Res, first vice-president of the Liberal Association, who spoke next, "is very broad. It is not customary to read members out of the Liberal party because they do not see eye to eye with the rest. A proper instance of this is the present British government of the day, the premier, a safe and sane Liberal; there are Radicals and Progressives in the party led by David Lloyd-George; and Imperialists of the type of Winston Churchill. Yet that cabinet has stood together on great public questions for the last half dozen years."

"I am not ashamed of being a Liberal," said W. J. Magrath, "and of following such leaders as George Brown, Mackenzie Bowell, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and our own provincial leader, Arthur I. Sifton. There is no danger of drifting, but not, I hope and believe, in this section of the city of Edmonton."

"See that there are no factions. That is one thing that will kill the party—will kill any party. Keep the party united. There has been somewhat of a drift in the past, men have been getting together again. Let us put these things to one side. If there is anything I can do for Liberalism that is right I will do it, but I don't mind telling you that I am not going to do anything wrong. Let us place all our cards on the table. There should be no secret candidates at the next provincial election, and that the nomination had been promised to him in return for his retirement from the national contest. "I put it up to the Journal," he said, "to take it back, or give proof." As far as I am concerned I am not going to do anything to try and get into the field. I will support any candidate nominated by the organization.

CATTLE ARE CASH

The Swift Canadian Co. at their packing plant at North Edmonton, have during the winter, been feeding a herd of 1000 head of cattle for spring killing. They are fed in open yards with feed racks and water troughs around the fence. Shaker sheds are also connected with the feeding yards. Swifts have also a chopping mill where grain and green feed are crushed and chopped by the wagon load. This mixture is then packed in large hoppers with openings that the cattle can feed themselves.

Most of these cattle come from the mixed farms of Alberta and are quite tame so that it is possible for men on foot to walk unharmed among the cattle who only stand and stare.

The picture shows one of Swift's corrals full of cattle. Besides the feed that is being fattened other corals are used for cattle that come in from time to time by the train load. Grass and grain are plentiful in Alberta yet cattle are getting to be scarce. Cattle are cash now even more than in days of the big cattle ranches.

For varying reasons the old order throughout the commission campaign made no effort to justify themselves or the old order of things. Had they chosen to do so they could have made some of the orators of the commission controlling interests, or some of the latter certainly had "little knowledge of civic affairs." However, they had no particular reason to justify the old order. They were leaving the city in an excellent financial position, with its bonds commanding a price second to no in Canada.

Most of the promoters of the commission movement were so fascinated by the idea of "consolidation" government and so assured that the city was going to rack and ruin that they would not take the time to study the facts. For instance they issued a pamphlet in which the people were given to understand that the city authorities controlled a revenue of some million a year, and were invited to consider how small were the results they got from the expenditure of such a sum. The city does raise about that amount for public purposes, but nearly three-quarters of the sum is expended by the school board, the municipal home commissioners, the public hospital commissioners, and various other independent bodies, or some to bond interest or to meet other statutory obligations. Shortly after their election the commissioners, Messrs. Agar were expressing astonishment that the expenditure actually under their control was only about a quarter of a million. And instead of effecting economies, the commissioners, as soon as they got in office, added over $50,000 to the annual appropriations.

The commission government in St. John has fulfilled the intention of its promoters. All the city's business, except matters of a legal nature, was to be transferred to the commissioners. The commissioners have met in private every day and practically all their decisions have been arrived at in secret. At the public meetings held once a week about all that is done is to formally ratify the proposals of the secret sessions. Under the old regime every matter was discussed in committee meetings open to all, and the members of the council to the full council; the people had an opportunity to learn the considerations which influenced the alternative proposals, and to give their own information and new points of view before they made their final decision.

Under the new system the people have an opportunity of learning what the commissioners do, but it is not an opportunity to give their own views on a question at these public meetings. According to its advocates, the commission form of government would make for continuity of policy. But so far the commissioners have not mapped out any new and important policies; and under the new regime the ordinary routine of procedure has been marked by greater vacillation than ever characterized the course of the old council. Just because the commissioners decide many matters in secret before the people know what they are doing, they sometimes find it convenient to change their minds. They have rescinded many of their own orders, and the old council did in a similar period, and have been obliged to take back water on quite a number of things.

Another system used in support of the commission form of government was that it would tend to stimulate the civic spirit, and increase interest in civic affairs generally. But so far that prediction has not been fulfilled to any noticeable degree. Since the proceedings at the public meetings of the commissioners are dull and dried, they lack the interest of the old council. The old council, because they have previously been agreed to in private meetings, they had a better understanding of the points of view, the frequent change of complacency, which featured the proceedings of the old city council, and kept up an interest in
