Niagara.

She had struggled to overcome her pride, nor deemed it longer a disgrace that she was not a Conway. Of Hagar, too, she often thought, pitying the poor old half crazed woman who for her sake had borne so much. Hagar was stiveled and bent, and old, while the image present in Margaret's mind was handsome, erect and young, like the gentleman riding by—the man whose carriage wheels, grinding into the gravelly road, attracted attention. Too intent was she upon a shadow to heed aught else around, and she leaned against a tree, nor turned her head aside, as Arthur Carrollton went by!

A little further on, and out of Maggie's sight, a fairy figure was seated upon the grass; the hat was thrown aside, and her curls fell back from her upturned face as she spoke to Henry Warner. But the sentence was unfinished, for the carriage appeared in view, and with woman's quick perception, Rose exclaimed: "This surely Arthur Carrollton!"

Striking to her feet, she sprang involuntarily forward to meet him, casting a rapid glance around for Margaret. He observed the movement, and knew that somewhere in the world he had seen that face before—those golden curls—those deep blue eyes—that childish form—they were not wholly unfamiliar. Who was she, and why did she advance toward him?

"Rose," said Henry, who would call her back, "Rose!" and looking toward the speaker, Mr. Carrollton knew at once that Henry Warner and his bride was standing there before him.

In a moment he had joined them, and though he knew that Henry Warner had once loved Maggie Miller, he spoke of her without reserve, saying to Rose, when she asked if he were there for pleasure: "I am looking for Maggie Miller. A strange discovery had been made of late, and Margaret has left us."

"She is here—here with us," cried Rose; and in the exuberance of her joy, she was darting away, when Henry held her back until further explanations were made.

This did not occupy them long, for sitting down again upon the bank, Rose briefly told him all she knew; and when with eager joy he asked "Where is she now?" she pointed toward the spot, and then with Henry walked away, for she knew that it was not for her to witness that glad meeting.

The river rolls on with its heaving swell, and the white foam is tossed toward the shore, while the soft summer air still bears on its wing the sound of the cataract's roar. But Margaret sees it not, hears it not. There is a spell upon her now—a halo of joy, and she only knows that a strong arm is around her, and a voice is in her ear, whispering that the bosom on which her weary head is pillowed shall be her resting place forever.

It had come to her suddenly, sitting there thus—the footfall upon the sand had not been heard—the shadow upon the grass had not been seen, and his presence had not been felt, till, bending low, Mr. Carrollton said aloud, "My Maggie!"

Then indeed she started up, and turned to see who it was that thus so much like him had called her name. She saw who it was, and looking in his face, she knew she was not hated.

In Dread of Something

You can scarcely tell what—it may be Hysteria, Insanity, Nervous Collapse.

You can only throw off this depression when the nerve cells are restored to health by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Your digestive system has failed to supply proper nourishment to the nerves and you are compelled to seek aid from other sources.

It will take some patience and persistent treatment, but there is no way by which you can so certainly restore health and vigor as by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

The best time to restore the nervous system is long before such a critical condition is reached. Such symptoms as sleeplessness, headaches, nervous indigestion, muscular weakness, loss of energy, failure of memory and power of concentration, irritability and discouragement tell of a failure of the nervous system and warn you of the approach of serious trouble.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food 50 cents a box, $ boxes for $2.50; all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Puts an End to Stomach Misery

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia vanish in five minutes.

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a distressed, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, or a sign of indigestion. Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there. Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery at any drug store, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure almost any chronic case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other Stomach trouble.

and, with a moaning cry, went forward to the arms extended to receive her.

Four guests, instead of one, went forth that afternoon from the International—four guests homeward bound, and eager to be there. No more journeying now for happiness; no more searching for the lost; for both are found; both are there—happiness and Maggie Miller.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Home. Impatient, restless and cross, Madam Conway lay in Margaret's room, scolding Theo, and chiding Mrs. Jeffrey; both of whom, though trying their utmost to suit her, managed unfortunately to do always just what she wished them not to do. Mrs. Jeffrey's hands were usually too cold, while Theo's were too hot. Mrs. Jeffrey made the head of the bed too high; Theo altogether too low. In short, neither of them ever did what Margaret would have done had she been there, and so day after day the lady complained, growing more and more unamiable, until at last Theo began to talk seriously of following Margaret's example and running away herself, at least as far as Worcester; but the distressed Mrs. Jeffrey, terrified at the thoughts of being left there alone, begged of her to stay a little longer, offering the comforting assurance that "it could not be so bad always, for Madam Conway would either get better—or something."

So Theo stayed, enduring with a martyr's patience the caprices of her grandmother, who kept the whole household in a constant state of excitement, and who at last began to blame George Douglas entirely as being the only one in fault. "He didn't half look," she said, "and she doubted whether he knew enough to keep from losing himself in New York. It was the most foolish thing Arthur Carrollton had ever done, hiring George Douglas to search!"

"Hiring him, grandma!" cried Theo. "George offered his services for nothing," and the tears came to her eyes at this injustice done to her husband. But Madam Conway persisted in being unreasonable, and matters grew gradually worse until the day when Margaret was found at the Falls. On that morning Madam Conway determined upon riding—"fresh air would do her good," she said, "and they had kept her in a hot chamber long enough."

Accordingly, the carriage was brought out, and Madam Conway carefully lifted in; but ere fifty rods were passed the coachman was ordered to drive back, as "she could not endure the jolt—she told them she couldn't at the time," and her eyes turned provokingly upon poor Theo, sitting silently in the opposite corner.

"The Lord help me, if she isn't coming back—so soon," sighed Mrs. Jeffrey, as she saw the carriage returning, and went to meet the invalid, who had "taken her death cold," just as she knew she should, when they insisted upon her going out.

That day was far worse than any which had preceded it. It was probably her last, Madam Conway said, and numerous were the charges she gave to Theo concerning Margaret should she ever be found. The house, the farm; the furniture and plate were all to be hers, while to Theo was given the lady's wardrobe, saving such articles as Margaret might choose for herself, and if she never were found, the house and farm were to be Mr. Carrollton's. This was too much for Theo, who resolved to go home on the morrow at all hazards, and she had commenced making preparations for leaving, when to her great joy her husband came, and in recounting to him her trials, she forgot in a measure how unhappy she had been. George Douglas was vastly amused at what he heard and resolved to experiment a little with the lady, who was so weak as to notice him only with a slight nod when he first entered the room. He saw at a glance that nothing in particular was the matter, and when toward night she lay panting for breath, with her eyes half closed, he approached her and said: "Madam, in case you die—"

"In case I die," she whispered, indignantly. "It doesn't admit of a doubt. My feet are as cold as icicles now."

"Certainly," said he. "I beg your pardon; of course you'll die."

The lady turned away rather defiantly for a dying woman, and George continued: "What I mean to say is this—Margaret is never found, you wish the house to be Mr. Carrollton's?"

"Yes, everything, my wardrobe and all," came from beneath the bedclothes, and George proceeded: "Mr. Carrollton cannot of course take the house to England, and as he will need a trusty tenant, would you object greatly if my father and mother should come here to live? They'll like it, I—"

The sentence was unfinished—the bunches in the throat, which for hours had prevented the sick woman from speaking aloud, and were eventually to choke her to death, disappeared; Madam Conway found her voice, and, starting up, screamed out: "That abominable woman and heathenish girl in this house, in my house! I'll live forever first!" and her round bright eyes flashed forth their indignation.

"I thought the mention of mother would revive her," said George aside to Theo, who, convulsed with laughter, had hidden herself behind the window curtain.

Mr. Douglas was right, for not again that afternoon did Madam Conway speak of dying, though she kept her bed until nightfall, when an incident occurred which brought her at once to her feet, making her forget that she had ever been otherwise than well.

In her cottage by the mine old Hagar had raved, and sung and wept talking much of Margaret, but never telling whether she had gone. Latterly, however, she had grown more calm, talking far less than heretofore, and sleeping a great portion of the day, so that the servant who attended her became neglectful, leaving her many hours alone, while she at the stone house, passed her time more agreeably than at the lonesome hut. On the afternoon of which we write she was, as usual, at the house, and though the sun went down, she did not hasten back, for her patient, she said, was sure to sleep, and even if she woke she did not need much care.

Meantime old Hagar slumbered on. It was a deep, refreshing sleep, and when at last she did awake her reason was in a measure restored, and she remembered everything distinctly up to the time of Margaret's last visit, when she said she was going away. And Margaret had gone away, she was sure of that, for she remembered Arthur Carrollton stood once within that room and besought of her to tell if she knew aught of Maggie's destination. She did know, but she had not told, and perhaps they had not found her yet. Raising herself in bed, she called aloud to the servant, but there came no answer; and for an hour or more she waited impatiently, growing each moment more and more excited. If Margaret were found she wished to know it, and if she were not found it was surely her duty to go at once and tell them where she was. But could she walk! She stepped upon the floor and tried. Her limbs trembled beneath her weight, and, sinking into a chair, she cried, "I can't, I can't."

Half an hour later she heard the scolding of wheels. A neighboring farmer was returning home from Richmond, and had taken the cross-road as his shortest route. "Perhaps he will let me ride," she thought, and hobbling to the door she called after him, making known her request. Wondering what "new freak" had entered her mind, the man consented, and just as it was growing dark he set her down at Madam Conway's gate, where half fearfully the bewildered woman gazed around. The windows of Margaret's room were open, a figure moved before them. Margaret might be there, and entering the hall door unobserved, she began to ascend the stairs, crawling upon her hands and knees, and pausing several times to rest.

What Culture Means.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

The other night I heard a young woman decline an invitation to a very noteworthy musical event. "I don't really enjoy music," was her explanation. "You know my tastes are rather artistic than musical. If I were a good picture exhibition, I'd go a hundred miles to see it, but I simply don't care very much for music."

of beauty in your possession, but just as soon as you grow to years of discretion, you can forge one. The well developed, really cultured person has eyes and ears and mind wide open to receive all the pleasure he can. That's what culture means—all-sided development. Instead of neglecting the less sensitive of his senses, he gives special effort to develop that one. If he does not naturally appreciate good music, he listens to it until he makes himself capable of receiving pleasure through that source. If he does not have a natural appreciation of good art, he makes determined efforts to develop that side of his nature. I once knew a young girl who had a good literary and artistic sense, but absolutely no ear for music. And what do you think this girl bought with the first money she earned? Not books or pictures, but a piano. "I want to learn to play," she said. "I want to have music in my home and see if I can't cultivate that part of me."

The Laundry

BY H. L. RANN.

The laundry is a carnivorous institution, whose mission is to breathe new life and hope into the soiled shirt. It is a place where people send things which nobody else can wash without using an emery wheel. The laundryman is a gloomy person who lives on bar soap and deferred dividends and becomes very expert in the reading of negligee shirt monograms. On Monday the laundry does a large business, which tapers off during the week until Saturday night there is nothing to have an orgy with except the pay roll. In our early history as a people there was no laundry work done except to drill a little XXX starch into father's Sunday shirt. After this article was worn once, it was laid away where the prolific moth could not coast upon its bosom, and sometimes it would go through a long cold winter without being dragged out to divine worship. As men became more particular, however, and demanded a change of shirt once a week, the laundry sprang up and entered upon its career of crime. It is a very poor day in a laundry when it cannot steal a few buttons off a new shirtwaist or sprinkle the American home with rip-saw wing collars. Many a man with a No. 13 neck has looked into his laundry bag on Sunday morning, only to be greeted by a collection of collars evidently intended for somebody with a buoyant goitre. When one thinks of the hemstitched tablecloths that have come home from the laundry bright with the duo-tone bluing and bearing the burnt-wood imprint of the electric ironer, he may well cry out, "O death, where is thy sting?" The most murderous piece of furniture in the modern laundry is the near-sighted operator who fits teeth into shirt-bands, so that a man can't turn his head either way without endangering his jugular vein. This practice is driving a great many of our leading citizens to the society of the decollete fannel shirt, one of the most humane articles of dress ever introduced to the male trousseau.

THE SECRET OF LONG LIFE.

Do not sap the springs of life by neglect of the human mechanism, by allowing the accumulation of poisons in the system. An imitation of Nature's method of restoring waste of tissue and impoverishment of the blood and nervous strength is to take an alterative glyceric extract (without alcohol) of Golden Seal and Oregon grape root, Bloodroot, Stone and Mandrake root with Cherrybark. Over 40 years ago Dr. Pierce gave to the public this remedy, which he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. He found it would help the blood in taking up the proper elements from food, help the liver into activity, thereby throwing out the poisons from the blood and vitalizing the whole system as well as allaying and soothing a cough. No one ever takes cold unless constipated, or exhausted, and having what we call mal-nutrition, which is attended with impoverished blood and exhaustion of nerve force. The "Discovery" is an all-round tonic which restores tone to the blood, nerves and heart by imitating Nature's methods of restoring waste of tissue, and feeding the nerves, heart and lungs on rich red blood.

Household Notes.

Sprinkle sugar on the sticky fly-paper and watch the flies gather. Copper trays, when dirty or spotted, should be cleaned with vinegar. This is the time of year to begin to clean the refrigerator more often—three times a week, at least. If you are out of meat skewers, use as a temporary substitute your grandmother's silver nutcrackers. If the vessel in which milk is to be heated is wet first with cold water, the milk will not scorch the surface. Dimly bedspreads, once so scarce, are now being shown in generous numbers at prices slightly less than formerly. The stores show a new wire cage for fly-paper that leaves it open to curious flies, and yet it prevents it from blowing about. Bedrooms that are little used need airing often; they must not be kept closed and darkened awaiting the occasional guest. The children's bedroom should have a tall screen in it; even in warm weather draughts are just as frequent and just as risky. An indispensable is a slender, stiff brush on the edge of a long, flexible wire handle for poking down the refrigerator drain. If each week's clean bed linen and towels are put underneath their respective piles, the whole supply will be used gradually and evenly. With the approach of fly-time, the food safe of screening should be brought for keeping such food as does not belong to the refrigerator. To bake potatoes quickly, clean and pour boiling water over them; let stand on the stove five or ten minutes. To remove sticky fly paper from clothing, saturate the spot well with turpentine, roll up and let remain overnight. In the morning wash the material with warm water and soap. If the soles of walking shoes are dipped in melted wax once every two or three weeks, they will last twice as long and will be waterproof. This has been thoroughly tested. Wax enough for a dozen pair will cost 5 cents. The shops are showing lovely new motifs of heavy lace in all sorts of shapes, which a woman may buy separately and sew on net for door panels. They cost from 15 cents upwards.

Privy Council Appeal.

Judgment of the Lords of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on the Appeal of The Reid-Newfoundland Company v. The Anglo-American Telegraph Company, Limited, from the Supreme Court of Newfoundland; Delivered the 23rd April, 1912.

Present at the hearing: Lord Macnaghten, Lord Shaw, Lord Mersey, Lord Robson. (Delivered by Lord Robson.)

This Appeal is from a Judgment of the Supreme Court of Newfoundland in an action brought on the 2nd November, 1905, by the Anglo-American Telegraph Company against the Reid-Newfoundland Company, wherein the Defendants had pleaded the Statutes of Limitations (21 Jac. I. chapter 16, and local statutes) as to so much of the Plaintiffs' claim as accrued prior to the 2nd November, 1899. The Plaintiffs had replied that the plea disclosed no defence because the action was taken on a speciality contract under which the period of limitation was 20 years. The issue thus raised was heard on the 1st February, 1911, before the Full Court, which decided by a majority of two out of three Judges (Mr. Justice Emerson dissenting), that the plaintiffs' replication was good.

The Respondents are a Telegraph and Cable Company, which, at the times material to the case, possessed certain privileges in relation to the construction and working of telegraph lines under the Newfoundland Statute, 17 Vict., cap. 2. The Appellants are the lessees of the Newfoundland Railways which they operate and manage by virtue of Statutory powers.

By an Agreement under seal made on the 11th August, 1888, between the Newfoundland Railway Company (the former owners of a portion of the Appellants' Railway system) of the first part, F. H. Evans, the Receiver and Manager of the said Newfoundland Railway Company, of the second part, and the Respondents of the third part, it was agreed, among other things, that the Respondents should erect and maintain along the lands forming the roadway of the Southern Division of the Railway Company's railway between St. John's and Harbour Grace, and between Harbour Grace and Carbonear, a "special wire" for the Railway Company, their successors and assigns, for use in and about the operation of the said Railway as therein defined, and the Newfoundland Railway Company agreed not to pass or transmit any commercial messages over the said special wire, except for the benefit and account of the Telegraph Company.

The Newfoundland Railway Company made default in completing the construction of the line, and on the 23rd July, 1897, that Company and its Receiver and Manager sold and conveyed the Railway to the Newfoundland Government, and the conveyance was expressed to be "subject to the subsisting contract with the Anglo-American Telegraph Company as regards the telegraph line along the said Railway."

The Government then undertook the completion of the Railway, as before defined, and further proceeded greatly to extend it to other parts of the island.

On the 3rd March, 1898, a contract was made between one R. G. Reid and the Government, which was afterwards duly confirmed by statute whereby the Government agreed to lease to the said Reid all the railways of the Colony for a term of 50 years, from the 1st April, 1898, and in the year 1901 a further Act was passed by the Colonial Legislature for the purpose of incorporating the Appellant Company and transferring to it all the rights and liabilities of Mr. Reid under the contract of the 3rd March, 1898.

Since the 1st April 1898 R. G. Reid and the Appellant have used the "special wire" in and about the operation of railways other than the railway between St. John's and Harbour Grace, and between Harbour Grace and Carbonear. In fact, they have used it for all the purposes of their business, including the new or extended lines of railway and their shipping business, and other commercial undertakings.

The Respondents accordingly brought this action against the Appellants for (1) an account of all telegraphic messages sent by R. G. Reid and the Appellant Company over the special wire since the 1st April 1898, other than messages connected with the operation of the railway as defined in the contract of the 11th August 1888, (2) payment of the amount found to be due, and (3) damages. The Supreme Court gave Judgment for the Telegraph Company on the general question of liability, and their Judgment was affirmed by this Board but the question as to what, if any, period of limitation applied to the Plaintiffs' claims was by arrangement between the parties themselves, left over for subsequent argument, and now comes up for final determination. The Supreme Court have held, by a Majority, that as the Agreement of the 11th August 1888, was under seal the Appellants were liable as on a speciality. In their Lordships' opinion it is not necessary to determine this question of which the learned Judges disagreed. The claim of the Respondents rests on sure ground. The Appellants took over the railway together with the "special wire" comprised in the Agreement of the 11th August 1888, with notice of the limitations and conditions attached to the use of that wire. It seems to your Lordships that when and as often as the Appellants used the special wire for the transmission of unprivileged messages, an obligation in the nature of a trust arose on their part, and it became their duty to keep an account of the profits accruing from such use of the wire, and to set those profits aside as moneys belonging to the Respondents. To such a duty, so created, the Statute of Limitations can have no application, unless by express statutory provision. The Appellants are accountable as trustees, and in giving to trustees the protection of the Limitation Acts, the Trustee Act, 1898 (Newfoundland), 61 Vict., cap. 38, to which reference was made in the course of the argument, withholds such protection from a trustee when the proceedings are taken to recover property, or the proceeds thereof, still retained by the trustee, and converted to his own use.

The principle is laid down in Burdick v. Garrick (L.R., 5 Ch. A. 233). In that case an agent was entrusted with property which he was authorized to sell and he was directed to invest the proceeds in the name of his principal. Under this authority he received certain moneys and paid them into his own account at his bank. Afterwards, in an action for an account, the agent pleaded the Statute of Limitations, but Lord Hatherley, L.C., said:—

"How a person who is entrusted with funds under such circumstances differs from one in an ordinary fiduciary position I am unable to see."

And the Court held that the Statute of Limitations had no application, Lord Justice Giffard followed in the same sense, and stated the principle broadly in these terms:—(afterwards cited with approval, by Lord Macnaghten in Lyell v. Kennedy (14 A.C. 493).—"I do not hesitate to say that where the duty of persons is to receive property and to hold it for another and to keep it until it is called for, they cannot discharge themselves from that trust by appealing to the lapse of time. They can only discharge themselves by handing over that property to somebody entitled to it."

In Lyell v. Kennedy, Lord Selborne, in deciding that the facts were sufficient to establish a fiduciary character against a manager of property who had received rents on behalf of a principal, said:—

"For the constitution of such a trust no express words are necessary; anything which may satisfy a Court counts referred to the Registrar he made up from the 1st April 1898, when the special wire began to be used for unprivileged messages, until the discontinuance by the Appellants of the use of such wire."

Financing Railway Building.

In the Daily News this morning appears the official report of certain financial matters which were under discussion towards the end of March last. The remarks of both the Prime Minister and the Finance Minister are remarkable for their incongruity. It is well known that in 1910 Mr. Kent's estimate of $7,000,000 was scouted, and the idea was widely circulated that the branch lines were to be built and fully equipped out of the proceeds of the £400,000 loan.

Last session, the Finance Minister found himself in a hole, as he had to introduce another Loan Bill in order to raise £200,000 sterling to pay for the branch lines already contracted for. His remarks in this connection should prove illuminating. Here they are:

"When we came in here two years ago, we put the estimate at 250 miles at $15,000 a mile. But then we found ourselves in this position that while we could build the road as surveyed at a mileage of 250 miles yet if we were to connect the various settlements and build the railroad to suit the needs of the people and the business of the country we would have to build 350 miles of road. And each and every man in this House and outside this House knows that while the road was to be built at $15,000 a mile, or in round numbers 250 miles of road, or $4,000,000, you could not build it perfectly for that; you could not put rolling stock, snow fences, etc., on it for that $15,000 a mile. It was stated in this House last evening by the Prime Minister that no railroad has been built less than $19,000 a mile. Now the Opposition members of this House are trying to make capital by saying we misled the people by promising to complete these railroads for $15,000 a mile. That is a mistake. We promised to do it as cheaply as possible. We promised to build these roads and put rolling stock on them and we promised to raise money to do that, and any business man or half business man knows you cannot do that for $15,000 a mile. What is the use of building these roads if you don't put rolling stock on and finish them right out. I think if we get them for $19,000, or $19,000 or $29,000 a mile we will be doing very well."

These remarks make it evident that the Finance Minister has but a hazy idea of what the branch lines will cost. The Prime Minister states that at best the loan of £400,000 will realize at best about half that sum and that the two loans together will give cash returns of about $5,500,000 or a million and a half less than the sum which the Finance Minister considers cheap or in the closing words of his speech: "I think if we get them for $19,000 (i.e. $29,000,000) or $19,000 (i.e. $6,650,000) or $20,000 (i.e. $7,000,000) we will be doing well."

But then, how does the Minister propose to pay bills in full of about $2,300,000 or $6,650,000 or $7,000,000 with $5,500,000.

It had been previously arranged that the Allan Line steamer Pomerian would make a few trips between St. John's and Liverpool via Glasgow and Philadelphia until the R. M. S. She left here at daylight yesterday for Philadelphia and on her return to Liverpool will be fitted with wireless telegraphy.

Son Did Not Return.

An aged woman named McCarthy called at the police station to-day to make known, as she thought, the loss of her son, who shipped in the barquentine Galatea for Oporto, but who did not return on the vessel when she arrived a few days ago. His clothes came back, hence the woman's belief that he had befallen him. Mrs. McCarthy was informed by the captain that the sailor stayed ashore in Barbados and refused to come aboard the vessel.

Warning to Mariners.

Mr. Cantwell, Light-keeper at Cape Spear, informs us that forty three icebergs were sighted from there yesterday. They extend from Cape Spear to Bay Bulls and are in close proximity to each other. At present there is also a berg near Cape St. Francis a mile long.

Struck Berg.

A couple of days ago as Capt. Delaney, of St. Mary's Bay, was running up the Southern Shore, before the crew were aware of it, the schooner ran on a "growler" of ice and was so badly stove that the men at first feared she would go down under them. This was off Todd's Cove, and the men with the grit of true Newfoundland seamen, would not leave the little banker, but anchoring shifted the cargo aft, working like trojans and getting her up by the head effected repairs enough to keep her afloat, and after pumping her out made all haste home. Had the accident occurred at night the men would have been compelled to abandon the vessel.

Men in Peril.

While trouting in a boat yesterday out in the middle of Cochrane Pond Peter Whittle, Mr. McGrath, Joe Power and another, were for an hour in great peril. It blew a gale after a while, with quite a sea, as the lake is a large one and while running for shore one heavy gust upset the boat. When she went over fortunately the four men at once grabbed the keel and held on for dear life until she drifted into shallow water.

Petty Larcenies.

Friday night last a deal of lumber and other material was stolen from the premises of the late Shaughton, Printing and Supply Co. When the parties who stole it were making their last haul the watchman saw and identified them, and they were prosecuted.
On the same night some thief or thieves visited a new and partly finished house on LeMarchant Road and stole a deal of roofing felt. The police are after them.

Rossley Star Theatre

It being Saturday night and things a little dull, a Telegram reporter strolled into Jack Rossley's Theatre, intending to leave about five minutes afterwards. He left in two hours and received a lecture from his barber for being late. He got the shave. Now, our little review of Saturday night's entertainment will not particularise. What our reporter saw he says was fine. Moving pictures of most interesting subjects, very catchy specialties on the part of Burkhardt and Orth and an orchestra which would do credit to a more pretentious place. Little Bonnie Rossley is a charmer in the very pretty songs she sings. They are illustrative and she throws expression into the pretty ballads she discourses. There are old-time theatre goers in this city who have been watching Jack Rossley closely, who are conservative and not liable to rush, but they say, and we agree with them, that for comicality Rossley is the peer of the celebrated Harkness, the Irish comedian, who was the first to play the Shaughton in St. John's. We have seen Harkness in the comic Irish sketch, McPhee, J.P. and Rossley really bettered him. He is a Scotch role in a Scotch role is a Larry Lauder, while as an Irishman he is excellent. His "Patsy McGinn," a which tuneful ditty the audience oiled in the chorus parts, should be heard to be appreciated. His talented wife in singing with him takes some very pretty notes, and their duets are lovely. The prettiest thing we have seen for years was the colored view of Irish and Scottish scenery, Jackville Street, the O'Connell monument, Queenstown Harbor and views in the County Cork. But the piece de resistance was the church with the moon gently rising over it, made famous by "Father Prout." Rev. Fr. O'Shaney, "where the bells of Shanamon they fell so grand on the placid waters of the River Lee. The Scottish scenes were equally as good and his oratorical and terse way like the Irish. Burns and his Highland Mary brought down the house. Rossley's rigidity was exemplified Saturday night in a comic dialogue with Mrs. Rossley, wherein he tells her that she is not the only tin can on the ump." Rossley's Theatre is deservedly patronized, and is a good, clean, air-tight, provoking show.

Improvements in Gas.

The Old Year is closed, and in looking back, the advocates of Gas have no cause for complaint; indeed, it has been a year of great progress in this industry.
Each year, Householders realize more and more what Gas (intelligently used) can do for them in Cooking, Heating and Lighting.
A great improvement in gas appliances is shown in all directions and the growth of knowledge as to how Gas may be used to the best advantage is one of the most satisfactory features of the past year.

Nurse Saunders has had a wide experience in the treating of consumptives. The Institution opens it will be a "pound day" and any one desiring helping the Daughters in the moment may send along a pound something for the patients.

Fine Business Premises.
 Saturday, Mr. Harry Brownrigg who was formerly in the liquor business, took a new departure and opened up his place at the corner of Water and Prince's Streets as a general wholesale store. Mr. Brownrigg deals in flour, pork, butter, hay, oats, bran, produce of all kinds, fruits, etc., and carries an immense stock. He has plenty of storage room as his premises is one of the largest of its kind on Water Street, running as it does away back to Prince's Street. Mr. Brownrigg is a shrewd, careful business man and we bespeak for him a highly successful career in his new venture.

A Narrow Escape
 At 2.30 p.m. Saturday while it blew a gale, a little girl passing up Water Street West had a narrow escape from death. A heavy skylight was wrenched from the roof of the building just west of Franklin & Co's, and fell on the sidewalk at the girl's feet and was beaten in pieces. The child almost collapsed from fright.
A Splendid Present.
 Saturday afternoon Mr. John S. Munn, of the firm of Bowring Bros., sent for one of the principal men of the C. L. B., and a splendid carman, and formally presented the Brigade with the beautiful race boat "Red Cross." This is undoubtedly a handsome present and needless to say both officers and members of the Brigade highly appreciate this handsome gift.

Mr. Seymour's Funeral.
 Yesterday afternoon the funeral of the late Mr. A. H. Seymour, M.H.A. took place from the residence of his brother, 59 Queen's Road, and was attended by a concourse of citizens of all denominations and of every walk of life, including the members of the Legislative Council and House of Assembly, and the visitors from Harbor Grace, whose names we print in a separate column. The principal mourners were H. J. Seymour, brother of the deceased; Mr. Jas. Mitchell, Rev. F. Smart and Capt. Noble. The remains were enclosed in a handsome casket and interment was at the C. of E. Cemetery. At the Mortuary Chapel the services were conducted by Revs. Canon White and Bolt and Rev. G. R. Godden.
Accident to Solway.
 When the S. S. Solway, which left here Saturday, was off Cape St. Francis the bracing was found to be started from the flange of the main steam pipe and it was decided to run back to port for repairs. The ship arrived here at 3 a.m., repairs were effected during the day, and she again sailed at 5.30 p.m. yesterday for Lewisporte and Bay of Islands. One of the firemen who was ill was discharged on the ship's arrival here and another man taken in his place.
An English Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair.
 In England the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing hats which is due entirely to this new discovery. It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.
 The Americans are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale. This preparation is called SALVIA and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. McMurdo & Co., your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into St. John's and a large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50c.

 HALIFAX, May 18.
 The schooner in collision with the steamer A. W. Perry, off Little Hope on Thursday night, was the Digby fisherman Albert J. Lutz, which arrived at Shelburne on Saturday, reporting the loss of mainsail and mainboom. No life was lost.

Another Vessel Gone.
DEVONIA BECOMES A TOTAL WRACK.
 Messrs. A. Goodridge & Sons were apprised Saturday of the total loss of their well known barque Devonia off Iscamlund, near Pernambuco. The accident occurred Friday and the vessel, which was commanded by Capt. Berg, struck on a reef at low tide and went to pieces in a short while. The crew landed safely and will be forwarded here the first opportunity. The ship had 5,100 drums of fish on board, and hull and cargo, which were insured, were worth over $70,000. Our mercantile marine the past two years has been greatly thinned down and few of the 12 or 14 vessels lost have been replaced by new ones. The Devonia was built in 1868, was originally the Peggy, and was practically rebuilt in 1901. She was a vessel of 204 tons gross.
Dangerous Accident.
MAN NEARLY ELECTROCUTED.
 Passengers who arrived from Harbor Grace by yesterday's special train tell of a terrible accident which befell Mr. Frank Archibald, at Harbor Grace, on Friday last. He had gone to his stable and laid hold of the electric wire near the bulb, the insulation was off and the man received a terrible shock from the 250 volts which ran through the wire. He could not drop it and fell on the stable floor. His brother, Herman, happening to pass near the stable heard a smothered sound and going in found his brother unconscious on the floor. He drew Frank away from the wire but at considerable pain to himself as he, too, received a violent shock when he laid hold of his brother. Frank was ill for some time afterwards, and but for the fact that his heart was strong he must have died. When he fell his head was near the hoofs of the horse and had he been able to stir it is probable that the beast would have kicked the man to death. Mr. Archibald will never forget the awful experience.
Runaway Causes Damage.
 Yesterday morning a horse belonging to Capt. Neilson, of Freshwater, ran away and did considerable damage. The animal was left standing near Devon Row in the East End while its driver was delivering milk. In the meantime a terrier dog came alongside the horse and dandrified it to such an extent that it bolted. Dashing past the Fire Hall at a furious pace, the wagon collided with Mrs. Coonan's fence and a general smash-up followed. The fence and vehicle were wrecked, while the milk cans and bottles which were in the vehicle were thrown out and smashed, the contents being strewn about the street. The horse was later brought to a halt on Cochrane Street. It was fortunate the driver was not in the carriage or he might have been badly injured.

Great Scotch Act

At Rossley Star Theatre to-night there is a treat in store for the patrons of this popular vaudeville theatre, when one of the very best Scotch acts will be presented. The people of St. John's know the Rossleys are unequalled in their presentations of the Scotch character, being Scotch themselves. This act has had Jack Rossley's attention for some time, and for pure fun and innocent amusement can't be beat and when we take into consideration that the comical Joe Burkhardt is the Blushing Bride and the imitable Jack Rossley the Groom, we feel sure that the wedding of Sandy McNab will be a scream. There will be some of the best dancing seen in a long time, and some fine new Scotch songs. There are also some splendid Scotch costumes. There is to be a little Scotch orchestra on the stage that will astonish everybody. Besides, the famous Millars who have the most delightful range and the greatest novelty act on the vaudeville stage to-day, and all entirely new. A great show.

The Casino.

TO-NIGHT'S BIG ATTRACTION.

The show which Manager Kiely offers at the Casino Theatre to-night has been carefully prepared and is calculated to please the taste of the most fastidious patron. The programme combines drama, comedy, motion pictures, music and vocalism. Mr. Selman's offering is a tabloid version of Blanche Bates' greatest dramatic achievement, "The Girl of the Golden West," is worthy of being featured in any bill. It is a thrilling, gripping story of life in California during the days of 1849, and is full of very interesting situations. Miss Ayden as the Girl, and Mr. Joseph Selman as the Gambler Sheriff, have two excellent roles, which they will fill with their customary skill, while Miss Kathryn Irving and Messrs. Harold Selman, Alton Thomas and J. J. O'Grady are also in the cast. Miss Alice MacKenzie, who has charmed our theatre goers on numerous occasions, sings a very fine vocal number, and there are also 3,000 feet of moving pictures. The show is a superb one, and should attract a packed house to the Casino to-night.

Obituary.

We regret to record to-day the death of Mrs. Walsh, widow of the late Capt. Samuel Walsh, who formerly commanded the Merlin, Virginia Lake, and other well known ships. Mrs. Walsh passed away yesterday evening at the residence of Mrs. T. Skinner, South Side. The deceased had been for years past Superior of the Women's Ward in the Penitentiary, but was retired last year on a pension. Deceased was well known and liked and to her many relatives here the Telegram extends its sympathy.

Being immensely stronger than gums or pastes, a much smaller quantity is required. It replaces glues and cements in the manufacture of small fancy articles.
The general uses of SECCOTINE are too numerous to mention.
A tube goes a very long way. It requires no heating or other preparation; keeps for years, and is always liquid and ready. It sticks, binds and cements all articles of all materials.

Rambling Notes for 1911

BY I. C. MORRIS.

CHAPTER XIII. WAITING AT BRIGUS JUNCTION.

The lessons we learn by waiting are usually worth while, but sometimes the delay is so long, and the suspense so great, that the price we pay for our experience is a steep one. That there is a good deal of unnecessary waiting is only too true, for some of us do not place much value upon either the time or the patience of our fellows. But there are instances when it cannot be helped, and the present instance comes under this list.

Having boarded the train at Carboneau regular time was made until we reached Brigus Junction. Everyone was as full of smiles as an August day is of sunshine; but when the news spread around that we had to wait for three hours, the smiles vanished and threats and mutterings and black looks took their place. But such is human nature the world over, and it seems a hard problem to get beyond its whims and fancies. While the wind is fair, and the sun shining, and we are having our own way of it, we are a pretty nice sort of people; but when our turn to wait comes, and our patience is being tested we don't always just display the best traits of character. And so at the Junction, the mutterings were deep, and it was a sort of surprising what some of the passengers would, or would not do, with the railway company if they only had their way. But the inevitable had happened, and even the "best concerted plans of men" could not have hindered the delay.

It was not the fault of the management, it was simply one of those unforeseen events that now and then happen, in spite of the greatest prudence. But some of us seemed rather slow to admit this fact, and because of being delayed, we wanted to rush to the papers, and tell the world what had happened; and we wanted to add a word or two in the bargain as to how railways should be run. Of course we knew (?) even though we never worked an hour at the business, we knew all about it.

With three hours to wait, some of us set about to make the best of it. There was much to be seen. We had the quiet of the spot, the leisure of an August evening, and the beauty of the occasion. We wouldn't even be disturbed by a telephone call.

Among the passengers there were some of our city vocalists, and in the dining room there was a piano. Soon the keys were in motion and rich songs floated over the house, and out over and beyond the whole station. Everybody was charmed, even those who just previously had been threatening the railway company, seemed to have lost all their ill-will, and joined in the general good feeling of the hour. We had read in poetry that "music hath charms to soothe the savage beast," but we saw it exemplified that evening in a most practical manner. Gone was all ill-will, our better nature was being moved, rich music was touching our souls, and sweet song had captivated us. Song followed song and applause was unstinted. Some of us who happened to be partaking of lunch, ate very slowly, and put in time enough at the table to make a double charge justifiable. Of course we were on the cheap. We were getting a free concert and didn't mind monopolizing the table, even though we were cheating the kindly proprietress by so doing. We had lost our displeasure at the railway company, but we still had a little bit of greed left, and though somebody else was waiting for the chair which we occupied, we held on to the very last. But we found that the loss was on our own side, for when we did get out on the platform and into the open we heard both singer and instrument to better advantage.

Thus half the delay passed by, and low in the west sank the dimmish orb of day. What a sunset! ay! what sunsets! who would not behold them? and who, beholding them could fall to be impressed?

And now for the fair singer. Who was she? We feel certain that our readers are by this time interested in her. She sang from, or had we better say with, her heart. She seemed at her best; and she did so without that irritating manner of refusing which some singers seem to indulge in. She did all with due modesty, and displayed the training of the lady, and the ability of an artist. She truly did her best. But when we give her name we at once and in one word explain it all, the singer was none other than our own respected and talented Miss Strang.

Prescription 'A.'

Is the one and only genuine preparation that cures Indigestion and Dyspepsia in all its forms.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear a person say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache. I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing."

I often have a pain in the pit of the stomach after eating, that is (if I am able to eat). My heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion, and I am just as tired when rising in the morning (even worse) than when retiring at night. I often awake in my sleep and imagine that I am going to suffocate, and very often afraid to go to sleep again. I have to take particular good care of what food I eat. All these symptoms make my life not worth living."

So, why do you insist on suffering from all these unnecessary symptoms when STAFFORD'S "Prescription 'A'" will do the work. This genuine preparation is manufactured by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Nfld. Price, small size, 25 cents, postage 5 cents extra. Large size, 50 cents, postage 10 cents extra.

Tim Shannahan on Parks and Tenement Houses

The Cute Man, Tucker and myself were sitting in the kitchen having an old fashioned chat on things in general when Mrs. Tucker arrived on the scene. She had travelled the town all day in search of a house and her mission proved fruitless. She wanted a house about fifty dollars a year, but though she travelled up and down, hither and thither, no abode could she locate. "Would put you in mind," said Mrs. Tucker, "of a sealing captain missing the main patch." Although she met many kind friends who directed her here and there, at the heel of the evening she realized that her day was spent in a fruitless search. Mrs. Tucker says that soon steps will have to be taken by our public men in solving the tenement question, for every one must admit that there are no houses being built to suit the workman who earns say nine or ten dollars a week. Property holders contented that it pays better to erect more expensive residences, and as soon as the cheaper tenements become dilapidated they are torn down and more expensive ones put up in their places. No one seems to take the least interest in this matter and the result is that the workman and his family have to bear the ill he now endures or fly to others a thousand times worse.

Mrs. Tucker says 'tis all very fine to talk about parks, but she is of the opinion that the money that is to be spent on this luxury could be devoted to the house building scheme and it would be hailed with delight by many of the poor women who trudge around town in search of a shelter at this time of the year. She says the workman who lives in a tenement through which the rain comes down in bucket-fuls is afraid to ask the landlord to repair them, for the reason that the landlord may tell him to get out if he doesn't like it.

The man who lives in an up-to-date dwelling has no idea of the conditions under which most of our working people live, and she feels that it only requires that the Press of the city take this matter up and give it ventilation when some of our liberal minded citizens who have money to invest will come forward and help their poorer neighbours out of this unbearable position in which they are forced to exist. We hear a lot of talk now and then about fresh air and ventilation, lectures are given on the prevention of consumption, but our people cannot become strong and healthy if they haven't decent homes to live in. Park talk sounds nice, but Mrs. Tucker says that making parks in a town with poor habitations allowed to remain for the toilers, is like giving a man with a moleskin suit a present of a beaver hat. There is a grand opportunity right here for the man who has money to spare to make a name for himself, for if he builds a couple of rows of good houses and rents them at a moderate rent to the workman, he will be after erecting a monument to his memory that will count a great deal more than if he had a six foot marble monument erected in his honour after he kicks the bucket.

Mrs. Tucker knows that rich people do not look on this suggestion with favor as a good paying investment. They say that 'tis hard to collect the rents from the people who live in such houses, but at the same time Mrs. Tucker believes that it can be made to pay, and in the event of any of our wealthy men intending to make donations to the city in order to perpetuate their memory, she knows no better means to accomplish it than by erecting houses suitable for the workman to live in.

Delancy says 'tis no use preaching all winter on fighting consumption if we do not pay attention to the housing of the poor, and 'tis no use talking all through the stormy winter about it, if when the fine weather arrives these men go automobiling and golfing and forget all about it till it starts in to freeze good and hard again. We are always going to do something big when the spring arrives, but the spring comes and would-be philanthropists go off on the continent and come back refreshed to give us another dose of lecturing in the winter evenings.

We are tired of listening to castle-in-the-air talk, what we want is the man with the money who'll put his preaching into effect.
TIM SHANNAHAN.

THE WAILING PLACE.

By WALT MASON.

I look around on this world so gray, and size up its stock of sorrow; there's nothing worth while in sight to-day, nor promise of good to-morrow. I make a howl that would raise the dead, and weep till the world is wetter, and all of the gallons of tears I shed don't seem to make things much better. This life's an expensive thing, I sigh, free rein to my anguish giving; and when man makes up his mind to die, it costs a lot more than living. And brooding over mournful things like these has made me a chronic weeper; but all the gallons of brine I squeeze don't seem to make things much cheaper. I look around on my busy friends who toil with their spades and axes, and weep for them; when their labor ends their bundles will go for taxes. I moisten well with my scalding brine the path of the smith and sower; but all my stunts in the weeping line don't seem to make taxes lower. I stand aghast when the sun's in sight, and groan when the rain is pouring, and have bad dreams both by day and night, and spend all my time deploring; I am chaffed about at the Wailing Place, the boss and the kicker; and all the rivers that streak my face don't seem to make things run slicker.

Pneumonia from a Cold

PNEUMONIA is second only to consumption in the number of deaths which it causes, and like consumption always has its beginning with a cold. Cold in the head, fever and chills, a cough which gradually becomes dry and more painful in the chest, rapid, difficult breathing, feelings of exhaustion and depression—these are symptoms of pneumonia. You can prevent and cure pneumonia by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, the greatest of all treatments for the throat and lungs. The only safe way is to regard every cold as serious. A CLEAN WATCH means good time to you for years to come. True economy in a time-piece lies in cleanliness. The delicate parts doing indescribable work will soon wear themselves to ruin, destroy their high finish and perfect fit when running in accumulating dirt and rancid oil. It will cost you nothing to let us examine it.
