"Safety First"

Some men, sometimes, can board the flying street car or "monkey with the buzz-saw" in a mill or factory, and get away with it. But that's how accidents happen. Some men, sometimes, can shave with an open blade razor and avoid cutting themselves. But thousands agree that the chances are against it.

THE Gillette Safety Razor

was the practical forerunner of to-day's "Safety First" movement. What engineers are doing now to safeguard tools and transportation, King C. Gillette did ten years ago for that much used tool, the razor. And while he made the razor safe, he also made it keener, harder and handier than the old open blade. That thin, electrically tempered blade, gripped rigid in the adjustable holder, gives the cleanest, smoothest and quickest, as well as the safest shave man has ever enjoyed.

his choice. We Comynghams are not secretive, whatever our faults. This concealment was purely unavoidable." Mrs. Alwyn felt as though, if denied retort, she must die of spleen. Rashly she answered, "Unavoidable! Possibly. Some people might—I don't say I do—consider it dishonorable."

It is dangerous to attack a woman's son. Lady Comyngham swiftly brought an unexpected weapon to the front. Drawing her inches to their fullest height, and looking from top to toe the countess, spite of her tumbled muslin gown, "Mrs. Alwyn," she said, "according to what I hear through my friend Lady Wynne, in Worcestershire, you can scarcely claim to be an acceptable critic on what is or what is not honourable. Allow me"—her fingers on the bell—"to wish you good-day."

Cowed out of ready speech for once, John Alwyn's clever widow was in another minute gone from Oakleigh Place, never to return.

"Give me a fan!" cried Lady Comyngham to her reappearing daughters. "Open all the windows. That woman has poisoned the place with frangipane. I hate frangipane. I'm afraid I hate her. By her own showing, girls, she lured Edward to her house, and had the effrontery to imagine she had secured him for her daughter, Leonora! I told Edward he was foolish to praise that Miss Villiers's complexion, even before me. He said it was like Mary's, so he couldn't help the compliment. This is what comes of it. Your father is right; we must draw the line closer. From this day forth, that woman from The Dale goes off our list."

The countess need not have troubled to make this amendment. The "woman from The Dale" speedily betook herself beyond the range of the most noble Comyngham circle.

From that day's disastrous drive Mrs. Alwyn went home so exasperated with this fresh stroke of ungracious fortune that, had she been a South Sea Islander, badgering her blessings out of a wooden idol, the probability is, in her last access of downright rage, she would have had that idol off its pedestal and thrashed it soundly for its baneful contrariness. Denied that consolation, she took best that circumstances permitted. Leonora, her vanity smarting most poignantly, was only too ready to quit the scene of her unsuccessful youth. Preparations for lengthened absence were hastily made. A stack of cards, pour prendre congé, went forth by post; and almost as soon as these reached their destinations, the senders were gone from the dwelling they had graced so many years.

Later, Mr. Russell and railway-vans put in an appearance. The Dale was dismantled. From the earl's agent it eked out that the property was in process of purchase for the Comynghams, negotiations being carried on through the late owner's brother. Having long before risen on the village, from no one knew where, they disappeared none could tell whether, but henceforth St. Clair's knew nothing more of state Mrs. Alwyn and her handsome daughter, Miss Villiers.

A Canada Life Endowment.

New Glasgow, N.S., February 28th, 1914.

J. I. FLICK, ESQ., District Manager, Canada Life Assurance Co., New Glasgow, N.S.

Dear Sir,—

I wish to state that I am well satisfied with the results which your Company have given me in connection with my Endowment Policy No. 47,775, which matures on the 17th of March.

I find that the returns give me over $424.00 more than I have paid in premiums, in addition to the protection that I have had during the Policy term. I consider this all the more satisfactory taking into account the fact that the dividends were applied as a Bonus every five years. I, therefore, received a return beyond Bank interest, in addition to the protection.

Yours very truly,
JOSEPH STEWART.

CHAPTER XX.

"And might have remained so had she taken my advice," replied Mrs. Alwyn, vastly relieved to find no idea of the truth concerning Sydney existed at Oakleigh; "but," going on more confidently, "my younger child is not like my elder, and she must abide by her own independence. Some day, dear lady Comyngham—but not now—I do go wish to tell you part, at least, of my last month's vexations" (the countess just bowed, without any appearance of being charmed at the prospect). "To-day it is pleasanter to dwell on my Leonora's trust in her mother. She, dear girl, leaves all things, her closest hopes, in my hands."

"Very becoming," said the countess, dryly.

"And to be very, very frank, it is this confidence my child puts in me which brings me here now."

"Indeed!"

The ejaculation was cold. Mrs. Alwyn felt the ground terribly delicate, the sympathetic atmosphere not exhilarating. She endeavored to impart warmth into the situation by a touch of sentiment, and with her diaphanous square of lawn at her eyes, murmured,

"Mothers will do anything for their children, dear Lady Comyngham."

"Of course they will," answered her ladyship, wondering why in the name of fortune such a truism was launched at her just now.

"And—I was most unfortunately prevented seeing Mr. Duvesne when he called at The Dale." (Her hearer's eyes suddenly shot forth appreciation, then contracted with a dangerous sparkle). "So when I saw my dear little anxious, dispirited, reluctant to leave St. Clair's, though her health is suffering, I took my resolve for her sake. I said to myself, 'Don't let false delicacy stop you. Elders may set everything right easily.' So I came straight to you."

"Oh, really!" said Lady Comyngham, upright, and about as yielding as a post. "And pray, Mrs. Alwyn, what is it you wish us elders to set right?"

Unpromising this; but Mrs. Alwyn rallied her forces round Mr. Duvesne's many remembered attentions, and pushed on.

"Your son has been our frequent guest, Lady Comyngham, as you are aware."

"Your guest, I believe, Mrs. Alwyn, some five or six times during the past year. I have begged him often not to intrude. He has told me he has found it difficult to decline your frequent invitations."

"We were most delighted to see him, dear Lady Comyngham." ("Why so often 'dear'?" thought the countess getting restless). "Only too delighted. Had you been with him you would—you must, I believe, have put the same construction on his visits as we did."

"The construction I should have put," said the countess, in a very business-like manner, for she saw now what impended, and resolved to nip it in the bud, if practicable, "would have been that you made much of my son, and that, consequently, he relished your entertainment. Edward always liked ladies society. Young clergy enjoy that sort of thing. But I am sorry he imposed himself on you so much."

"Sorry! Oh, we need not be that. If all ends well!" said Mrs. Alwyn, her handkerchief at play again. "I assure you we felt him, we treated him, as one of ourselves." (The countess had some ado to repress an indignant interjection.) "He consulted us continually on all connected with his 'new house. He took my dearest Leonora's opinion on every arrangement. What could I think but that he desired to—"

"Get his rectory as pretty as possible for his wife?" (The countess had made up her mind that the sooner further confession stopped the better.) "And you were right, Mrs. Alwyn. That is my son's aim. He gave you, I fancy, since you showed such politeness to him, many hints on the subject. More than were wise. For only within the last month he has been at liberty to speak out—"

"That," interposed Mrs. Alwyn, "is why I came."

"—And say that for years he has been engaged to a daughter of General Lermitt." (Poor Mrs. Alwyn's 'onyx beads jingled with her start.) "They are just returning from India, and my son is at Southampton, waiting to meet Miss Lermitt, whom he is to marry next month. The General is peculiar, and begged no engagement should be made public till close on their return. Of course we had to respect his wishes. Dear me, how warm this room is!" walking off without a glance at her listener, to fling a window open. "There, that makes it better."

Mrs. Alwyn wanted air. A chagrin, intensely real, displaced her well-acted smiles and sentimentalism. Mortification nigh choked her. As for that ill-dressed earl's wife so loftily ignoring her semi-confession—fool that she had been to make it!—if fate ever gave her the chance of repaying the slight, shouldn't that debt be wiped out with compound interest? There was battle within her bosom to fetch a syllable of decent courtesy to her twitching lips. But after brief silence she contrived to say, with emphasis as little bitter as might be, for acquaintance with the nobility must not be lightly resigned,

"I regret that Mr. Edward Duvesne gave us no chance of congratulating him earlier. Of course, we do so now—"

"Much obliged," said the countess, frostily.

"And beyond this I say no more. It is useless to dwell on the unfortunate concealment he adopted."

"Kindly remember," said the countess, nettled, "his reticence was not wealth, felt prisoned in the small house at Capel Moor, with its prim furnishing and garniture, when the sense of having no other claimable shelter appalled her. A panic of this sort was on her to-day, which had brought her tidings that her mother and Leonora were leaving England for months, and her isolation seemed complete; when in her hand she held the coins that represented thirty days' hire, and felt staggered at the fact that she was in humbly paid service.

But she was sorry for her utterance when she saw Miss Hurst took it as a complaint.

"Mistress!" the lady repeated, reproachfully. "Now, Miss Grey, is it fair to use a word that insinuates I have given myself airs? when I've been so careful to speak of you as a friend who found it convenient to share our home; and I'm sure I have always treated you as such. I would not even let Mrs. Preece, the other day, call you my companion, for I said, 'No; 'lady's companion' always reminds me of those nasty little work cases, with scissors too small to get your thumb in, and thimble too large, and nothing that fits anything, and that's the very reverse of Miss Grey.' But if it's as a mistress you regard me, why, I should be sorry to detain you in a situation which, of course, I can see is far beneath you."

Sydney grew repentant as this speech proceeded.

"Dear Miss Hurst," she said, "please forgive me. It sounded ungrateful, but I did not mean to be so. I am thankful to be here, and I am not likely to go till you send me away."

"Which won't be in a hurry, then," said Miss Hurst, as easily mollified as moved, "and as for being down sometimes, why, every one is that. I am. I've things to grieve over that won't bear looking back on. Perhaps you have the same. Very likely, as you are younger, things seem harder; though, indeed, Miss Grey, neither the teens nor the twenties have a monopoly of very tender sorrows—A-h!"

A deep sigh courted invitation to confidential disclosures, but Sydney, conscious that her own story must remain sealed, kept silence, with a blush so deep that Miss Hurst drew therefrom her own conclusions, and with self-denial carried the conversation to other channels.

Putting Things Into Writing.

By RUTH CAMERON.

and you can't make up your mind between two desirable candidates. You like some things about one house and some things about the other. Then of course there are certain objections to both. When you try to think the thing over you soon find yourself between all the advantages and disadvantages in a morass of confusion. The beautiful, big living room in the first house appeals to you greatly, and then you remember that the second has a lovely garden and a place for a tennis court. The first is near to the station, but the second has a much finer outlook. The first has open plumbing, but the second has open fireplaces, so your mind is pulled this way and that by each new consideration which pop into it.

Now take a piece of paper and write down on one side of a line the advantages which you think are equal and see to which side the balance tips. In any case you have the thing in black and white and can get a much better idea of it.

To many people I suppose this idea will seem fantastical. To my mind it is a great deal less fantastical than trying to decide any important question without marshalling all the pros and cons clearly before you. Of course there are a few people with such clear, logical minds that they can do this in their minds just as well, but I'm free to confess that I'm not one of them.

Nothing in the world clears the mind on a subject like putting one's thoughts into writing.

When we think upon any matter we usually slur over a good many points especially those points on which we are all confused or which for any reason we do not like to consider.

If we put a thing into writing we cannot slur. The dim neutral grays in which we shrouded confused or unpleasant details must needs vanish when we set the thing down in black and white.

Did you ever try this method when you had some important decision to make?

I have, and I find it invaluable.

Suppose for instance, you are thinking of buying or renting a house

Divorced Life

By Helen Hessong Fuesde

An Offer With a String Attached

Marian timidly pushed through the half open door of the booking office of the Eclipse Vaudeville Circuit, and entered.

A pale, plain-faced girl, seated at a desk in the corner of the office-like room, looked up from the pages of "The Clipper" with a tired "How do you do?"

Marian asked for the booking agent, and was ushered into a private office where sat a dark, well-groomed young man, with alert eyes and clean-cut features. He rose, and listened attentively to her inquiry regarding work, and to her frank reference to nothing but a bit of amateur experience.

"I see," he replied thoughtfully. "Would you mind reading something for me, so that I can get an idea of your dramatic style?"

Though she had not expected a request of the sort, Marian pulled herself together and recited part of Portia's famous speech, the only thing she could remember on the spur of the moment. She surprised herself by doing it as well as she did, and felt that she was interesting her listener.

"Billey!" he exclaimed when she had finished. "That's mighty fine work. You've got a beautiful and effective speaking voice. With just a little more training, you'll be great."

"Do you think so?" she asked, flushing with satisfaction at his praise.

"No question about it," he assured her. "You have the makings of a very competent actress."

"But how am I to find an opening?" she demanded.

"Leave that to me. It's my business to find openings for promising players. I was instrumental in getting Billy Burke her first engagement, to say nothing of a dozen other bit-players I might mention," and he recited the names of a string of actresses, many of whom Marian was familiar with. "Why, I've won the confidence of theatrical managers throughout the country. When I send a person to them, they know it's not a lemon. This is a small time vaudeville circuit, as you know, but it is the stepping-stone for dozens of real artists into the big time, and into legitimate drama."

"I'm just crazy for a chance," declared Marian, who had listened to the straight-forward recital with absorbed attention.

"I think you'll get it," was the answer. "I happen to be making up the casts right now for a one act vaudeville sketch, and I need a competent incense. If you'd consider a proposition to join such a troupe for a few months, I believe I could give you cleared Marian, who had listened to the straight-forward recital with absorbed attention.

WALT MASON'S DAILY STORY.

DISCOURAGEMENT.

"People shouldn't permit themselves to be discouraged," remarked the retired merchant. "There's no excuse for it, since the right sort of philosophy is free to all and easy to acquire."

"You've been reading some of those doggone sussing books," commented the hotelkeeper. "It's easy for you to talk that way. You have a bundle stowed away, big enough to keep you in comfort all the rest of your life, and then some, and you haven't anything to worry about. You can dance and sing all the livelong day, but life isn't such a soft snap for everybody."

"A few minutes ago Mrs. Magpie went past this hotel, and I was just thinking of what a hard run of luck she has had, when you began twittering about the right kind of philosophy. Mrs. Magpie has been married four times and hasn't a husband to show for it. She's never been through the divorce mill. Everything she got married she thought she had a husband who would be a stayer, yet we find her a chronic widow, just when she needs a husband the most way, for she is waxing old and needs a companion to lean on."

"Her first husband was Tom Tantrum. They were married in Kansas, and went to housekeeping on a quarter section of land Tom had bought on time. He was a worker from Workerville, and if he had lived would have been a rich man, but when they were married a year he was wiped out. One day Mrs. Tantrum, while washing dishes, heard a roaring sound as though a freight train was approaching the house. She looked out doors and saw Tom lifting for his life across country, pursued by a funnel shaped cloud. Just imagine the emotions of that poor woman as she saw the tornado gaining on her husband at the rate of a mile a minute. Finally it overtook him, and she had a last glimpse of him protruding around about three miles high. They

The Spirit of Compromise.

According to the account given in the cable despatch of Lord Lansdown's speech at a Primrose League gathering, the Unionist leader of the House of Lords goes to the round table conference in a spirit which is little commendable in view of the gravity of the outlook. It would be futile to hold a conference if all the members of it should lay down in advance a position from which they will not recede. The very fact that such a statement is made in public before entering on the conference shows a spirit which leads itself little to a general desire for a settlement and disposal of the vexed issues. The exhibition of such a spirit and a practical pleading not to be accommodating may please unrecalculating. But if such exhibitions become general and such a spirit became rampant, politics would be impossible, and statesmanship would reduce itself to anarchy. The underlying idea of every parliament is to find a compromise that makes legislation by a majority possible. It is the foundation of all parliamentary government and is the basis on which every executive of every popular government works. Committees of men of diverse views and different interest meet together to find a way out which will make action practicable. Compromise is the spirit of parliamentary government. It is a pity that Lord Lansdowne has so committed himself at a time obstinacy is perilous and the salvation of the country is being sought.

AN EDITOR'S LOT.

An editor's lot at times like a policeman's is not a happy one. Such is the experience of Mr. W. R. McCurdy, the news editor of the HX. Herald, who is reported in the cable despatch to have been summoned to the bar of the Nova Scotia House of Assembly, and sent to jail for forty-eight hours for contempt. The contempt arose out of certain proceedings which have been instituted by that legislative body on account of matters published in the Halifax Mail, which is an evening paper published by the Halifax Herald Company. The application of certain city franchise from the Legislature has excited much acrimony and led to the publication of bitter articles and letters. One of these letters was sent to the Herald, received by Mr. McCurdy, but left over and taken up and published in the Mail on April 16th. The letter was signed "Ian McLeath." The matter was brought up in the House of Assembly, which resolved that the article was an insult to the House, and an attempt to intimidate the members. A special committee was appointed to investigate, and the

When he succeeded in getting the body out of the water life was extinct.

Japan Put an Official to Death For an Insult to the U.S.

Washington, April 20.—The search for precedents as to international salutes which have been forced by or upon the United States by mistakes of judgment and other offences against international comity resulted to-day in the discovery in the files of the navy department of a report to Gideon Welles, secretary of the navy, in the cabinets of Lincoln and Johnson, from Commander J. Blakeley Creighton, U.S.N., commanding the United States steamship Quelda, who witnessed Japan's atonement for an offence committed against blue-jackets of the United States navy.

The following is Commander Creighton's letter to Secretary Welles, which is copied from the report of the operations of the Asiatic squadron from October, 1867, to December 1868, made by Admiral J. C. Rowan, commanding:

"Higo, Japan, March 4, 1868.
"Hon. Gideon Welles,
"Secretary of the U. S. Navy,
"Washington, D. C.
"Sir,—I have the honor to communicate the particulars of the execution of the Japanese official Tani Zanutaru, retainer of Matsudaira Bizen, No Kami, who ordered his troops to fire on the foreigners at this place on the 4th ultimo.

"This execution was witnessed by me at the request of our minister, Gen. R. B. Van Valkenburgh, and is as follows:

"I left the legation about 9 p.m. in company with the officers attached to the foreign legations and proceeded to Higo, where we were met by a guard, who escorted us to the temple, where the execution was to take place.

"There was a large number of people on each side of the street leading to the temple and quite a number of soldiers drawn up inside and about the temple. We were shown into a room adjoining the Japanese officials, where we were asked if we wished to question the person about to be executed, to which we answered in the negative. They also took the names of every official present.

"After waiting about half an hour we were conducted by the Japanese officials into what appeared to be the principal room of the temple, which was lighted with candles, and in front of the altar was a raised platform of about a foot in height which extended across the room and which was placed on the right of the altar, within a few feet of where the execution was to take place, with the Japanese officials on the left.

"In front of the altar was a green cloth and in front of that a red one. We were informed that the execution would take place on the red cloth. Seating ourselves upon the mats on the platform we waited the execution.

"In a few moments the prisoner came in, dressed in the usual Japanese dress of a person of rank, accompanied by the executioner, who was his pupil and most intimate friend. He walked with a steady, firm step in front of the altar, where he knelt in prayer. He then arose and went to the red cloth, where he knelt and made the confession that he was the officer that ordered the troops to fire upon the foreigners and also to fire upon them when they were trying to escape, and that he was sorry for what he had done.

"He then disrobed himself to his waist and reached out for a knife that was near him, which he thrust into his bowels and drawing it toward his right side, and leaning forward at the same time the executioner, with one blow from his sword, severed his head from his body. This occurred at about 10.30 p.m.

"The Japanese then bowed to the floor, on which we all did the same. We were then asked if we were satisfied with what we had witnessed, when we replied in the affirmative.

"After the lapse of a few moments, we were then asked if we were satisfied when we arose and took our departure. The whole scene was one of great solemnity and very impressive.

"Very respectfully,
"Your obedient servant,
"J. BLAKELEY CREIGHTON,
"Commander."

WOMEN CURED AT HOME

Women's disorders always yield from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild, but effective, action of Orange Lily. Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is an applied or local treatment, and acts directly on the womanly organs, removing the congestion, toning and strengthening the nerves, and restoring perfect circulation in the diseased parts. In order to convince all suffering women of the value of this remedy, I will send a 25-cent box, enough for ten days' treatment, absolutely FREE to each lady sending me her address. MRS. FRANCIS E. CURRAN, Windsor, Ont.

Special to Evening Telegram.—

WASHINGTON, To-day. General Carranza telegraphed Secy. Bryan from Chihuahua that the Constitutionalists would not enter into any formal agreement for the establishment of a neutral zone around the oil wells at Tampico. He said so far as his forces were concerned the Oil Companies could resume operations without fear of molestation.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Assurances of peace with a steady abatement of war is the dominant feature in the Mexican development here. Attention still centers on the work of the South American mediators, who report steady progress and avoidance of any deadlock between parties; in other quarters, however, the failure of Carranza thus far to accept the mediators' proposal for a suspension of hostilities against Huerta causes a doubt over the outlook for broadening the scope for the mediators' work to a settlement of the whole Mexican situation.

LONDON, To-day. Although politics are ruled out at the annual dinner of the Newspaper and Press Fund, over which Asquith presided last night, the Premier was not allowed to get through the opening sentence of his speech without an interruption, apparently from a male suffragette. The Premier, at the outset, explained that he would have hesitated before accepting Lord Burnham's invitation, when it was received several months ago, had he foreseen the course of history. At this juncture, a guest rose and began "How Dare You." The remainder was drowned, as he was promptly ejected. Asquith's speech was devoted to a tribute to Journalists, both parliamentary and other-wise. He declared that his wide personal experience had led him to conclude that the power of the British Press was in the main exercised with characteristic national love of fair play and generosity. Lord Monton, speaking for the House of Lords, said that if the public wanted to appreciate eloquence they would do better to read reports rather than attend debates.

LONDON, To-day. Lansdowne, speaking at a Primrose League gathering made it clear that he enters the conference with the Government and Nationalists with a firm determination that any time limit to the execution of the Act is an impossibility. He has observed that three years working of Parliament that the nation was beginning to realize what he under that Act meant. The Act was so constructed as to render amendments after the first session impossible and consequently the Commons' Committee stage was omitted. Finally, it is now suggested that the United Kingdom be split into an unspecified number of fragments under a federal scheme. It was intimated that when the constitution of the country was practically under suspension, the Government would not raise its finger to fulfil a solemn pledge given three years ago, when it, deprived the country of the protection of a Second Chamber, that it would couple the Parliament Act with a reconsideration of the powers and composition of the House of Lords. The result would be civil war if the Home Rule Bill was passed and grave trouble if it was not passed. The Government said Lord Lansdowne, had made two colossal blunders, one being its capitulation to Nationalists, the other its vacillating treatment of Ulster. To allow the creation of an efficient force in Ulster and then order naval and military movements was calculated to provoke collision. When the plot failed, the Government charged the Unionists with having corrupted the army, but the only corruption here was when the Government interdicted officers with regard to their behaviour, if they were ordered to fight Ulster. He described the Ulster Bill as a grotesque proposal. The only exclusion which Ulster would desire was one not terminable without Ulster's consent.

Pleasing Presentation.

Mr. J. S. Waterfield, who has recently resigned the position of foreman with the Rennie Co. to take a similar position with the F. B. Wood Co., was waited upon by the employees of the former company at his residence last night and presented with a handsome silver testimonial accompanied by an address testifying the appreciation of his many kindnesses while in charge. Mr. Waterfield sincerely thanked the donors for their gift and the expressions of good will embodied in the address, after which a pleasant evening was spent.

Minard's Liniment Co. Gentlemen.—I had my leg badly hurt the pain was very severe and a large swelling came above the knee. Brave Lady Babby.

An instructive and very interesting Subject in Three Reels, at the Crescent.

On next Monday and Tuesday, at the Crescent Picture Palace, one of the finest three-reel photo plays ever seen in St. John's, will be shown when "Brave Lady Babby" will be presented as the headliner of a strong bill. This great story is written from the customs that prevailed in America when the Republic was a Crown Colony under the reign of King George the Third of England. The picture is comprised of many startling situations in which are involved the nobility of the one-time colony and the remarkable bravery of Lady Babby, a character which is impersonated by the famous actress Barbara Tennant. It will be shown on Monday and Tuesday afternoons and evenings. Good pictures will follow it and the vocalist Mr. Sidney Earnshaw has prepared a special song which will no doubt make a hit with the crowd that will attend the Crescent. The House of Features.

A HAMILTON MIRACLE

Whole Country Amazed at Wonderful Cure of Mr. John Herman

573 JAMES ST. NORTH, HAMILTON, ONT.

Gentlemen,
Four years ago I was taken down with inflammation of the bladder. During the attacks, which occurred more and more frequently, the agony was unbearable, and I became so weak I could not walk across the floor. The doctors could do nothing to relieve or cure me.
My wife sent for a box of GIN PILLS to try and see if they would help me. From the first they did me good—the pain was relieved at once, and the attacks began to come at longer intervals. I continued taking the pills for six weeks, and then, to my surprise and delight, the stone I sent you some time ago came from me and my pain stopped. It is now three years since GIN PILLS cured me. I have had no return of the trouble, and I have not lost a day's work on account of it since.
There is not the slightest doubt that GIN PILLS saved my life.
Yours gratefully,
JOHN HERMAN.

GIN PILLS are wonderful in their action on the Kidneys and Bladder. They neutralize Uric Acid, soothe the irritated Bladder, and completely cure suppression and incontinence of the urine. They are also mildly laxative and help to regulate the bowels.
If your dealer does not handle GIN PILLS, do not take substitutes, but order direct from us, enclosing the regular retail price—50c for one box or $2.50 for six boxes. Money cheerfully refunded if GIN PILLS do not do all that we claim for them. Sample free if you mention this paper. National Drug and Chemical Co., of Canada Limited, Toronto.
If your stomach and bowels are out of order and you need a stronger laxative, take a few NATIONAL LAXATIVE PILLS. 50c. a box.

Collected by Messrs. G. M. and J. P. ...
Mr. Thomas Wakeley, of Haystack, P.B., was in town on Wednesday making arrangements for docking his schooners here. Mr. W. left for St. John's by the afternoon train.
Nurse Archibald, of the General Hospital, St. John's, is now in town visiting her numerous friends, who are all pleased to see her. Miss Archibald will remain a couple of weeks.
Potatoes are now very scarce in town and it looks as if we will have to depend upon the imported article for seed this season.
Mr. Nichols Shanahan, of Riverhead, and Miss Nellie Ryan, of Spauld's Bay, were married at the latter place on Wednesday by Rev. Fr. Walker. The happy pair arrived in town about 10 p.m. May the groom and his fair bride have abundance of happiness and prosperity.
Mr. Thomas Walsh, of Riverhead, was in St. John's during the week on a business trip.
Mrs. A. Yetman leaves by to-morrow's train for Montreal on a visit to her daughter.
The entertainment given by Mr. Collins on Wednesday night, was a grand success. Mr. Collins's concert is always given but his present effort seems to eclipse them all. The different numbers were well rendered, while Miss Dixon's recitation was a delight to all present. Half the proceeds will be devoted to the Disaster Fund.

Hospital Filled.

Just now there is not a single cot unoccupied at the General Hospital and despite the great demand for admission by scores of patients, who are here from the outports, there is no room for them at the Institution. Mr. Eli Whiteley is a busy man looking after these people and placing them in boarding houses, etc.

The Diana.

Yesterday, May 1st, was the last day that the law allows to kill seals, and the s.s. Diana, Capt. Barbour, should arrive here in a day or two. It may be remembered that not many years ago the Diana while coming home about the close of the voyage, practically empty, struck a patch of old seals between five and ten miles off this port and got a load.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland.—ap17.1

STRANGE SICKNESS REPORTED.

A disease, which is apparently infectious, has broken out at Woody Island, P.B., recently, and two persons have already died, whilst some others are seriously ill. A doctor has been despatched there to investigate and report to the authorities.

Salaried People and Their Savings

As a rule the smaller the amount to be invested the more anxious is the owner to obtain a high rate of income, and the greater is the risk he willingly assumes. This willingness to assume risks in order to "get rich quick" makes many salaried people anxious for the selling of worthless stocks. With the advent of the Partial Payment Plan, however, a decided improvement has set in.

This plan discourages speculation by enabling salaried men and women to buy the highest class of investment securities on such easy terms as $10 down and $100 per value purchased.

We would appreciate an opportunity of sending our explanatory booklet and of suggesting suitable securities to select on this plan. Address our Halifax office, please.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS MAKING A REPUTATION IN THE WEST
Saskatchewan Man Tells How They Cured Him, After Four Months' Suffering from Backache and Other Forms of Kidney Disease.

St. Phillips, Sask., May 1st. (Special)—In a new country where changes of climate and impure water are among the difficulties to be surmounted, kidney trouble is prevalent. It is the kidneys, the organs that strain the impurities out of the blood, that first feel any undue strain on the body. Consequently, Dodd's Kidney Pills have been well tried and tested in this neighborhood.

They have stood the test. Many settlers tell of backache, rheumatism and urinary troubles cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Otto Oshewski is one of these. In speaking of his cure he says:

"I suffered from kidney disease for four months. My back ached. I had heart flutterings, and was always tired and nervous. My skin had a harsh dry feeling; my limbs were heavy; and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"I consulted a doctor, but as I did not appear to improve, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used six boxes, and now I am all right."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always stand the test. Ask your neighbors.

Pantomime Troupe For Benefit.

On Friday, May 8th, is the date set apart for the Big Benefit. The Levenson Stock Company now engaged at the Rossley Theatre will give their services free of charge. Mrs. Rossley's pantomime troupe, those clever little girls of St. John's, put own talents to the test in the beautiful production Snow-White, as many patrons will enjoy seeing them again. Bonnie Rossley, Jack and Marie Rossley and the Rossley orchestra, will all appear and work hard on that occasion. So friends rally round the good cause and help swell the fund.

Fakes.

There are so many fakes a mortal's bosom aches, and he to grief gives tongue, so often is he stung! He buys a box of pills to cure his grievous ills, the which they fail to do, and he is sad and blue, when comes the good old doc, and says they're made of chalk. He takes his roll and goes to buy a suit of clothes; then says the merchant "These duds are strictly right! Of value they are full, and every thread is wool!" And then the poor gaiety takes home the all wool suit, and when it's worn a week it has become a chink. The trouser legs are shrunk, the coat and vest are punk, and all the cotton shows throughout the all wool clothes. Most everything he buys, from pickles down to pies, from jam to jam, from honey to ham, from caramel to cake, is but a dizzy fake. The ketchup's made of squash, the clothing will not wash, the hair dye's on the blink, and makes his whiskers pink, the horse he bought to drive imagines it's alive, but it's been dead three years—and so he sheds his tears, and sounds his bitter wail, which is of no avail. And when at last he dies he finds to his surprise, his box, which should be oak, is pine—another joke!

Knee Joint Stiff Three Years

CURED BY NERVILINE.
Anyone would marvel at my recovery, writes Mr. Leonard Lotham, a young man well known about Chatham. I had inherited a rheumatic tendency through my mother's family, and in my early days suffered frightfully. About three years ago the pain and stiffness settled in my left knee joint. I was lame and walked with a very distinct limp. Nerviline was brought to my notice and I rubbed it into the stiff joint four or five times a day. It dispelled every vestige of pain, reduced the swelling, took out the stiffness and gave me the full use of my limb again. I don't believe there is a pain-relieving remedy, not a single liniment that can compare with Nerviline. I hope every person with pains, with sore back, with lameness, with numbago, with neuralgia—I do hope they will try out Nerviline which I am convinced will quickly and permanently cure them.

"If Nerviline wasn't a wonderful painless remedy, if Nerviline didn't quickly relieve, if Nerviline wasn't known to be a grand cure for all rheumatic conditions, it wouldn't have been so largely used as a family remedy for the past forty years. No better, stronger, or more soothing liniment made. Get the large 50c. family size bottle; small trial size 25c.; sold by any dealer, anywhere.

The Show at Rossley's.

Last night there was a very good attendance at Rossley's to see the College Widow, and everyone got the worth of their money in laughs. It is a screamingly funny act. To-night begin the last night all should see the fun. There are some very interesting pictures. Friday, May 8th, is set aside for the Big Benefit performance in aid of the sealing disaster. There will be one continuous show, and we hope all will attend who can. It will be the biggest affair ever given for a benefit.

Are We Living Out the Sermon on the Mount?

If we accept Jesus as the Christ, the Son of God, and therefore perfect and infallible, then we must accept His words as the true message to us and by which we must be guided.

Then the Sermon on the Mount becomes the voice of God, and if we deviate from its principles we work against God and consequently against the perfected man which is the ultimate aim of the mysterious forces now known as soul and body. There are some phrases in the Bible to which we do not attach a literal meaning, and when we consider the difficulty of translating from another language and finding exactly the same meaning, it is justifiable in some instances to do so. For instance we read "Blessed are the meek." Now it seems to me that Christ's original expression did not convey the same meaning to His hearers as the word meek does to us. It does not seem probable that He meant "Blessed are they who go around with their eyes on the ground, and have no opinions, and accept good and bad alike." Rather He would mean "Blessed are they of gentle disposition, who do their work honestly without thought of reward and who don't want to be always in the limelight and don't seek credit for any good deeds." But as to the question whether we are living out the Sermon on the Mount to-day I am afraid that very few will answer "yes." We try, and many fulfil some of the precepts, not because they think of the Sermon, but because the Divine which is in all of us and which has been in us from the beginning prompts us to act rightly. We do not think of Seneca as a Christian, yet notice the resemblance between his words and Christ's. In the Sermon on the Mount Christ says "Pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly." Seneca in one of his letters says "What advantage is it that anything is hidden from man? Nothing is closed to God: He is present to our minds, and enters into our central thoughts."

Christ has made articulate principles that man, deep down in the recesses of his heart, feels to be right. But man has been very chary of disturbing these depths and has contentedly left them alone for the most part, while he has followed his own devices, and prided himself on what he calls the "progress of civilization."

Then there are those who say that it is not expected of us to reach Christ's standard of living; that it is practically impossible for us to do so; that we may aspire to His example but can never reach it.

I cannot reconcile this idea with the words of Christ, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father" (John XIV. 12).

And again there are others who say that conditions to-day are different to those in the days of our Lord, and that we cannot apply His actions to the twentieth century. If that is so, then we shall have to alter Paul's words: Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, and to-day, and forever. To my mind the force of Christ's teaching lay in His life and that His death was the result of that life. The world crucified Him because as He told His brethren "Me it (the world) hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil."

If we cannot follow Him "all the way," then surely His example, as an example, must lose some force; why should we strive if we had no goal to reach? But the very fact that my thought can conceive the higher plane on which Christ lived is proof enough to me that it is possible for all of us to reach that higher plane, and in this world. To many of us it depends too much on worship, not thinking enough of the fact that true worship implies service, and that we are not Christians if we are not endeavouring to live His life. And further, did not Christ say "Be ye perfect, as your Father in heaven is perfect?"

In this first letter I have endeavoured to establish the ground work which, in the discussion of this question, must be a first consideration, namely: Can we live Christ's life?

I hope I have stated my conclusions fairly clearly and in such a manner as will cause no misunderstanding. I hope auber pens that mine will take the subject up, for to my mind it is one of vital importance.

THEOBALD.

Take heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them; But when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth: that thine alms may be in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret himself shall reward thee openly.

—From the Sermon on the Mount.

Tom Hood.

Died May 3rd, 1845.

The epitaph Tom Hood chose for himself was "He sang 'The Song of the Shirt,' and he could not have chosen a better; for while he still keeps us laughing even in his grave, it is indeed by that masterpiece of tears that his immortality is secure. He first struck the note of that fantastic humor by which he was destined—one might say, doomed—to earn his living, in 1826, when he published his two series of "White and Oddities," illustrated by himself. His next volume, of poems, though it contained much exquisite work met with little or no recognition. The public wanted Tom Hood, the lyric poet, though later he was to win it as a tragic balladist of great, even, unique, power.

"The Dream of Eugene Aram" was published in 1829, but it was not till 1843 that "The Song of the Shirt" appeared in the Christmas number of "Punch," when Hood was within two years of his death. Meanwhile in spite of poverty and ill-health, he had been laughing bravely for his living in the pages of his "Comic Annual."

The annals of literature record no more heroic fight against circumstances than that of Hood, a fight which he sustained not only with courage, but with such invincible cheerfulness. Some of his most famous witticisms were made on a bed of suffering, and against a background of that sadness which we know he felt at his inability to earn his living by that more serious artistic work for which he rightly felt himself gifted.

He could twist our language into every comical shape of pun and quibble; but he could always move the best feelings of our nature by genuine tenderness and compassion. What impressive simplicity is in the following, a fitting companion to Dickens' "Little Nell!"

THE DEATH-BED.

We watch'd her breathing through the night,
Her breathing soft and low,
As if she were a child,

The Song of the Shirt.

With fingers weary and worn,
With eyelids heavy and red,
A woman sat, in unwomanly rags,
Plying her needle and thread—
Stitch! stitch! stitch!
In poverty, hunger, and dirt;
And still with a voice of dolorous pitch
She sang the "Song of the Shirt!"

"Work! work! work!
While the cock is crowing aloof!
Work! work! work—
Till the stars shine through the roof!
It's O to be a slave
Along with the barbarous Turk,
Where woman has never a soul to save,
If this is Christian work!"

"Work—work—work!
Till the brain begins to swim!
Work—work—work—
Till the eyes are heavy and dim;
Seam, and gusset, and band,
Band, and gusset, and seam—
Till over the buttons I fall asleep,
And sew them on in a dream!"

"O men with sisters dear!
O men with mothers and wives!
It is not linen you're wearing out,
But human creatures' lives!
Stitch—stitch—stitch,
In poverty, hunger, and dirt—
Sewing at once, with a double thread,
A shroud as well as a shirt!"

"But why do I talk of death—
That phantom of grisly bone?
I hardly hear the buttons I fall asleep,
It seems so like my own—"

—Thomas Hood.

Advertising Churches.

(The News, Baltimore.)
[A group of men interested in making manifest the Social Implication of the Gospel arranged and paid for the following advertisement in the Baltimore News. They asked Mr. C. F. Higham, of London, to write it for them, and it appeared with his signature.]

The Church has many functions. On its social side it is the most significant fellowship in the world. It is the oldest and the biggest, and in its twentieth century spirit it is as new as wireless and the Hertzian wave. The Church, in its new relationships, is as human as man. It has come through purgation of fire. It has fought—and won.

A man's own ideas may be right enough. He may be a good citizen, a theoretical optimist, a believer in humanity, in his country and in himself. Yet the strongest man needs at times a stimulus. His spiritual forces need to be reinforced with new ideas. The right man in the pulpit comes with a message of inspiration and hope. He gives new tone to the listener.

If a man goes to Church, and receives something there that sends him out with more courage, makes him feel better disposed towards his fellows, and stirs him to ambition to dignify his service to other men, he will go back to that Church again. He will go because he has been benefited. Multiply that man by the million and you have an idea of the possibilities of the Church.

There are in America about one hundred million people, and fifteen times that many people in the world. Many of them are despairing. Millions need new hope. Their earth is ashes, their heavens turned to brass. They are entitled to know that by natural right they are inheritors of health, happiness and infinite love. They are entitled to be shown the way back to the Kingdom where they belong, and from which they have strayed.

As a business man I believe in the Church, because it is practical and progressive, and because it is in touch with all the new discoveries, or rather re-discoveries, regarding the power of the mind and soul. I see in the Church the scientific method for conveying the greatest power known. It is bringing man into complete accord with the infinite. It is giving man dominion and power-dominion over himself and power to do lasting good.

Not only is the Church addressing thousands and hundreds of thousands with the message formerly discussed by two or three gathered together in His name, but in its emphasis upon the constructive side of religion it has banished fear. It is casting out evil with good. Instead of showing man how to grope in the darkness it turns on the Light!

The Churchman is no longer a spiritual mendicant. He asserts his divine right! And the idea that to be righteous we must be miserable has passed. The anchorite in his cell and the saint on his pillar were picturesque, but their ministry is no more. The Church to-day is an institution of action. It not only preaches, it practises. The Crusaders fought for ancient tombs; the Church to-day fights for life and happiness on the social plane.

The world, Montaigne said, needed simply to be reminded. The Church is reminding man of his Great Estate.

Henry Drummond rightly called love the greatest thing in the world. This the Church proclaims anew. Every one can share in the new service of Man by attending Church. It may benefit him, it may benefit his neighbour. It can do neither harm. He will become a part of a movement pledged to a spiritual quickening of mankind. The man who hears the right sermons on Sundays will likely carry the Golden Rule with him throughout the week.

If a man knew a source which would double his strength, double his self-respect, double the esteem in which he was held, double his influence, and double his usefulness in the world he would find his way to it. Religion in its contemporary application shows the possibilities of incalculable increase along all these lines.

Getting back to God is getting back to the sources of supply! The greater your need, the greater is the Church's opportunity to do you good. I believe in the Church because love is its new litany. Its waters are Living Waters; its paths, the paths of peace. As a practical man I advise every business man to go to Church to-morrow.

Walt Mason.

Walt Mason, humorist, poet and newspaper paragrapher, though now looked upon as an American, was born at Columbus, Ont., a little village in Ontario county some miles back from Oshawa. He went to the United States in 1880. He has been connected with different newspapers in the United States, and since 1907 has been associated with William Allan White on the Emporia (Kansas) Gazette. His rhymes and prose poems have been widely copied in the United States and Canada. He has published "Rhymes of the Range." His address is Emporia, Kansas.

A Bit of Royal Discipline.

The following story is related of a bit of insubordination on the part of King Edward VII., when a child.

One day, at Windsor Palace, he stood at a French window looking out upon the gardens, when he should have been studying. His governess remonstrated with him, but to no avail. Finally she told him that if he did not learn his lessons, she would have to put him in a corper.

"I won't learn," answered the youngster; "and I won't stand in a corper, for I am the Prince of Wales!"

At this he kicked vigorously at the window, and broke two panes. The governess at once sent for his father, the Prince Consort, and told him the whole circumstance.

"Sit down there," said Prince Albert to his son, pointing to an ottoman, "and wait until I return." When he came back, he carried a Bible. "Listen now," he admonished the boy, "to what the holy Apostle Paul says to you and other children in your position." He then read Galatians 4: 1-2:

"Now I say, That the heir, as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be lord of all; but is under tutors and governors until the time appointed by the father." "It is true," continued Prince Albert, "that you are the Prince of Wales; and if you conduct yourself properly, you may become a man of high station, and even after the death of your mother, you may become King of England. But now you are a little boy who must obey his tutors and governors. Besides I must impress upon you a saying of the wise Solomon in Proverbs 13: 23—"He that spareth his rod hateth his son; but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes." At this he gave the heir to the British throne a tingling chastisement, after which he stood him up in the corner, saying: "You will stand there and study your lesson till Miss Hillyard gives you leave to come out. And never forget that you are now under tutors and governors, and that hereafter you will be under a law given by God."

School Health Hints.

Here are some pointers from the Bulletin of the Department of Health, Chicago, which might well form part of the teacher's private code of laws, and which really ought also to form part of the school teaching:—

Dry dusting moves dust; it doesn't remove it.

Closed windows are open avenues to consumption.

If your milk is not safe your life is not safe.

Breathe fully and freely; the more you expand your chest the less you will contract colds.

The digestive tract is about thirty feet long. The combined length of the blood vessels of the body is many miles. If you want your food to go a long way, chew it thoroughly.

Your lungs can't be washed but they can be aired.

You wouldn't offend your stomach with dirty water; then why offend your lungs with dirty air?

Too much fresh air is just enough.

Can You Laugh?

"How could you rob the nest?" she continued. "No doubt the poor mother is even now grieving for the loss of her eggs."

"Not she, mum!" came the cheeky reply. "She's part o' yer hat!"

Then the fashion-plate proceeded rather faster on her weary way.

The lady was attired in the height of fashion—dressed to kill, in fact—and she strutted majestically through the main street of the village of Wurzeleton.

Suddenly her eye became fixed upon a small boy and she bristled with anger. The boy was bareheaded and shabby, and in his hand he shamelessly carried a bird's nest full of little brown eggs.

"You're a bad, wicked boy!" snapped the lady, without the slightest preliminary introduction.

The bold, bad boy was not one whit abashed nor alarmed.

What You Need is What is Beautiful.

The first thing to consider when you read any book or article on house furnishing, when you study other people's houses and analyse your own, is your own need.

Ask yourself: "What sort of home is suitable to me, to my husband, to my children? What furnishing do I actually require in my house—not my neighbour's house, but my own house? What things have I that will grow more beautiful the longer I live with them? What things have I that are worth leaving to my children?"

And, having worthy things, what sort of house have you to place them in? Are its walls pleasant in color? Are they real backgrounds for the life that must be lived in your rooms?

Are your floors made to walk on, or are they piled with rugs upon rugs?

Are your windows fulfilling their object of giving light and air, or are they draped and redraped with dusty curtains of no utilitarian or artistic value?

Is your woodwork grained to imitate some wood, or is it real wood, waxed to a soft glow? And if it isn't real, why haven't you given it a coat of honest white paint?

Are your fireplaces real, or shams? Are your mantel shelves simply furnished with a few useful things, or crowded with fly-specked photographs and cheap vases?

Is your piano a piano, or is it a catch-all for fringed velvet and motley bric-a-brac? Is anything of yours worth it pretends to be?

Happy the woman who has a few good things to build upon, for a good thing is always good—you may be sure of that. It may not be always suitable. For instance, a spinning-wheel that was both beautiful and useful a hundred years ago is not at home in a city flat now-a-days, but it is the usefulness that has passed. The beauty lives always.

What you need is what is beautiful.

In Chicago recently an ordinance regulating the length of hat pins created much outcry, though the reason for objection is not clear to mere man. But Chicago women would doubtless start a revolution if they lived in Lucerne, where a law forbids women wearing hats of more than eighteen inches diameter or the wearing of foreign feathers and artificial flowers. If one wishes to wear ribbons of silk and gauze a license must be procured which costs eighty cents a year.

Norway not long ago passed an act to the effect that any woman wishing to wed must first present to the authorities a certificate showing that she is competent in the art of cooking, sewing, knitting and embroidery.

Germany has an intelligent and practical method of dealing with men who illustrate themselves. Instead of sending them to jail for a continuous period, as is done in this country, and thus depriving the family of the man's wages for that time, the German offender is arrested on Saturday afternoon as he leaves his work and held in prison until he has worked on Monday morning. This plan is followed with he has served the number of days of his sentence. During the period in which the German offender spends the week-ends away from his home his earnings are handed over to his wife.

In Belgium they place a premium on marriage by allowing a married man two votes at an election as against the single man's one. In Madagascar one must be a father or pay for the default. If a man is unmarried or childless at the age of 25 he must contribute annually $3.75 to the support of the State, and each woman who has remained single or is childless at 24 is taxed $1.80 per year.

In Austria a heavy fine is imposed upon any actor who wears a military or ecclesiastical costume on the stage. In Germany such costumes may be worn, but the actors will find themselves in a serious situation if they are not absolutely correct down to the last loop and button.

THE STOWAWAYS.—Two of the new stowaways, who were up before the court yesterday, paid the fine and the other five were taken to the Penitentiary yesterday afternoon.

ENQUIRY WAS PERTINENT.

Some years ago a certain candidate, a relative of one of the present New Brunswick Senators, was running for the House of Assembly for the province.

One canvass against him was that he was an infidel, and in the course of his nomination speech an opponent, who possessed a rather shady business reputation, shouted: "You don't believe there is a God."

"Do you, Mr. B.?" asked the candidate.

"Of course I do."

"Then why have you served the devil all your life?"

ENQUIRY WAS PERTINENT.

A London lawyer, who has been prominent in both municipal and fraternal circles, boasts of being a self-made man and confirms his claim by lapsing occasionally into atrocious infractions of the rules of grammar. One day in the police court he began his cross-examination of a witness with these words: "Then you was walking down the street when you seen the defendant was you?"

The witness, who happened to be a public school principal, paused as though giving the question due reflection, and then ejaculated solemnly and portentously:

"I were!"—Toronto Saturday Night.
