"She is ill—very ill!"

"Very ill," replies Weston, with a dry sob.

"I will come," he says, just raising his hand as a sign for her to precede him; and Weston, drawing her shawl round her, leads the way up the road to the cliff and into the hall, with its rare draperies and choice flowers.

Without a word, she motions Sir Herrick to a seat in the hall; but he stands with his hands folded across his broad chest, his eyes watching the sea, now rolling out with a dull, slow, apathetic motion.

Though he has come to see Flossie Hamilton, his old, boyish passion, all his thoughts are of Paula, of her exquisite loveliness, of her dark eyes, with that strange, mystic light in them; of the touch of her soft white hand; and, lastly, of the strange look which she bent on him, as Stancy de Palmer, her future husband, carried her off.

"And that brute in human form will have the right to call her his own!" he mutters, as he stands with bent head and weary, haggard face—"to call her his own, to hold her in his arms, to kiss the lips I have kissed! By Heaven! I am tempted to pick a quarrel with him and shoot him out on the hills there! Oh, my Paula! my beautiful bird, so bright and happy as I found you only a year ago—only a year ago!"

Weston's respectful finger upon his arm recalls him to the situation.

"Will you come in now, Sir Herrick? You"—she hesitates, and a tear grows in her eyes—"you will find her much changed—"

"Is she up?" he asks.

"She has not been to bed all night. Sometimes she lies on the couch by the window all night long—it's so warm and soft-like here. She has been much worse for a week past, but easier in her mind and more resolute than a young lady called—a young lady she made acquaintance with."

Sir Herrick listens, only half-comprehending; and Weston opens the door of the room and stands aside to let him pass.

The room is so shaded with Indian curtains of a dark hue that it looks dim in comparison with the sunlight in the hall; and the thin, graceful little figure reclining on the couch, and wrapped in a soft cream dressing-gown, appears almost ethereal in the faint light.

Prepared as he has been, Sir Herrick starts as his eyes fall upon the well-known face. Altered indeed it is, and yet how beautiful still—even more beautiful, for the peace which has fallen upon her has subdued the restlessness of the dark-blue eyes; and there is a peaceful smile on the curved lips very different to that which used to sit across them in the old days of the Frivolity and Raglan Street.

For a moment he stands looking down at her, and she meets his eyes with a calm smile; and it is she who speaks first.

"Well, Rick," she says—and he notices how low and feeble the musical voice has grown—"you have come, then. Did you enjoy the ball?"

He is silent for a moment; then he takes the hand she draws from the rug that covers her, and holds it in his own.

"Have you been ill?" he says in a low voice, full of remorse and misery—a man's misery carefully hidden and suppressed.

She nods lightly.

"Yes, I suppose so. You are sorry? Don't be—there is no cause. You think that—that what passed between us was the reason. It is not; I should have been like this if—nothing had happened. They tell me now—why didn't they tell me before, when there was time—that it was bound to come. So don't look so sorry, please. And you will sit down? It hurts me to look up so high."

He sinks into a chair which Weston has put beside the couch, and stares at the carpet.

"Have you grown taller," she says, almost to herself, "or is it because you are thinner? I suppose that is it. You don't look well, Rick; you are pale and haggard. You look as if you had been going the pace. Ah, dear me! And she sighs heavily; then she looks up at him with a strange smile. "But you have not told me how you enjoyed the ball?"

"I have not been to the ball," he says. "You did not send for me to ask me that."

"No," she says. "At any rate, you are not altogether changed; you have the old habit of going to the point. I might have known you were not at the ball."

And she touches the sleeve of his morning-coat with her white, thin forefinger.

"Tell me about yourself," he says in the same low voice. "How—how did you run down like this?" and he

Easy to Make This Pine Cough Remedy

Thousands of families owe to its prompt results, whooping cough, and croup about 50c.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements—that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose. And this Pine Cough Syrup are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup, and you can make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2 1/2 ounces of Pine (30 cents worth) in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for 50c. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly. You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membrane—and this Pine and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, asthma, laryngitis, or any ordinary throat ailment. Pine is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs. Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pine" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

She laughs a low, musical laugh.

"It is the old story, Rick. How did it commence? Didn't you hear?"

"I have heard nothing," he says, concisely. "I left England the day after—after I parted from you. I should have left the same day, but that I had to see Major Vericourt"—his lips tighten as he mentions the name, and Flossie notices that he does not say "my uncle!" "I have heard nothing. I have not been in England since then, and reached here only yesterday afternoon."

She looks at him thoughtfully, and once more the pale lips murmur, "Poor Rick!" Then she goes on:

"Well, it is a short story. After you left, I—I stumbled over something, and the shock caused me to break a blood vessel—don't start and look like that!—I tell you I fell! I didn't appear at the Frivolity again—they never heard that great song of mine any more, Rick. Wasn't it a loss? And she laughs—a laugh more sad to hear than a groan. "Then—and let me see—oh, I saw doctors—ever so many; they made me—and I came here—I have been to Nice, and all sorts of places, and each has done me a wonderful deal of good, as you see, and she holds up her arm with a gently sarcastic smile, "and here I am. That's all!"

He is silent, his eyes fascinated by the thin arm, which has dropped heavily on the dark fur.

"But—but something can be done," he murmurs, hoarsely.

"Oh, yes, a great deal!" she says in the same tone of high banter. "I am better, much better than I have been. But if I didn't send for you to ask you about the ball, neither did I talk about my most insignificant self. You say you only came yesterday afternoon?"

He nods.

"Then you haven't heard from other lips the story I sent for you to tell you?"

He stares at her absently.

"What do you mean?" he asks, wearily.

She puts her hand to her lips and coughs, panting softly afterwards with a weary gesture.

"It is a short story, Rick. It will amuse you, even though you haven't been to bed all night. Sit where I can see you."

He moves his chair almost in front of her, and draws the muslin curtains so that they shade the delicate loveliness of her face.

"Thanks. I cannot bear much light. I, who used to face the gas foals at the Frivolity. This is the story, Rick. It is about a young girl—I have met her here! Such a beautiful girl, Rick! The loveliest, in my eyes, it is possible to imagine! As straight as an arrow, tall and graceful, with the most beautiful eyes; they could make you laugh or cry just as they liked."

She pauses, struggling for breath, and strives to hide it by pressing a blossom to her lips.

"You are tired out," he says in the stern tone one assumes to hide their pity. "Don't talk any more now; I will come later on."

She smiles and shakes her head.

"Better wait now, Rick," she says. "This girl—I should like you to see her! In all my life I have never seen such hair. I know golden hair when I see it, and this girl's is real golden hair—"

He doesn't start, but his eyes fix themselves on her down-cast ones with intense attention.

"You might coin it into sovereigns. They say she is the most beautiful girl in Noville; but that goes for little"—with gentle contempt—"and yet, with all her beauty, she is dreadfully unhappy; almost as—more unhappy than I am. Don't interrupt me! She has a story—most beautiful girls have. It seems that she was once engaged to be married to a man she was decidedly attached to—bahi! she loved him! that is better. Loved him as a woman only can love men don't know what that means!"

He smiles bitterly, wearily.

"They were to be married when—when suddenly she heard that this man had been false to her—"

He moves his hand, fast clenched on his knee.

"So he had been; but not to the extent she thought. You see, she was a pure, innocent-minded, unworried country girl, and didn't understand"—bitterly—"how a man can have two sorts of love. Don't speak! The fact was that this lover of hers had got entangled—that is the word—with a wretched, unprincipled, worthless actress—"

He moves and opens his lips, but she puts up both hands with a gesture of entreaty.

"Hear me out. One of those creatures of the hour which, as the good people declare, are the cause of nearly all the bad in the world. No doubt they are right; but—but these creatures suffer sometimes; they suffer when they happen to have hearts—most of them have not. This actress, this creature had. In a weak moment she yielded to temptation and stepped in between this country girl and her lover, and—separated them. It was a vile business; the creature sees and understands it now; but she suffered, she was punished, and"—the voice breaks for a moment, a moment only—"she was very sorry."

Silence for a moment; then he says, hoarsely:

"She need not have been. This pure, innocent, unsophisticated girl soon recovered from her loss, and replaced the false lover who was poor by another who was rich. My poor Flossie! We have both been great fools, and suffered in vain. Paula Estcourt forgot my unworthy self long ago."

"That is false," says the low voice, calmly.

He starts, and looks at her under his brows, knit together by suppressed emotion.

"How do I know it? Because I have seen her, yes, seen her, and talked with her, and learnt to love her—to love her!" she repeats, her face flushing, and then growing deadly pale again. "And why not? Am I not fit to love her? She did not think so! She—she would have kissed me the last time we met"—the hands go up to her face, and a sob shakes the thin frame—"but I didn't let her—I could not! Some day, when she knows who I am, and what I did—ah, but there will be cursing instead of kissing!"

And the tears run through her fingers.

"Hush!" he says, hoarsely. "I tell you she has forgotten me and you, everything; she has sold herself to a man, a brute named Stancy de Palmer—"

The hands drop, and clasp pityingly.

"Oh, poor girl! Poor girl!"

"You pity her?" with a sneer.

COMPLETELY GRIPPLED

Terrible Experience of Mr. J. Harrop

It is seldom that anyone who has been continually exposed to every weather condition does not contract some form of Kidney or Rheumatic trouble. In many cases, cold, settling in the kidneys, so weakens those important organs that they are unable to stir the waste and poison out of the blood. The latter is carried through-out the body, causing uric acid to accumulate in the joints, with consequent rheumatism, stiff joints, swollen ankles, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, constipation, torturing pains in back and side and head. These ills can all be made right. GIN PILLS give quick, certain and sure relief. Read what Mr. J. Harrop writes to us:—

"I have been crippled up so completely that I could not stand. Work was out of the question. A few doses of GIN PILLS put me right. I cannot praise GIN PILLS too much, and every home should have a box."

GIN PILLS can help you. If you suffer from backache, or have that dreadful feeling of lassitude, with floating specks before the eyes, highly-colored urine, stings in the bladder and general debility, get GIN PILLS at once. At all druggists or dealers, 50c. Money refunded if you are not relieved. A sample large enough to demonstrate its value, free on request.

MOSLEM UPRISING FEARED.

Arabs and Turks May Join Forces -- Sensational Reports From Ireland--Forty-two Mexican Miners Missing in Eldorado Fire -- Paris to Increase Bachelors Tax -- Prince Ready For Australian Tour.

NEAR EAST TROUBLE SERIOUS.

LONDON, Mar. 12. Earl Curzon's speech on the Turkish problem, made in the House of Lords yesterday, and other official and unofficial statements on the subject, are generally regarded as showing that the Near East tangle is quite serious and is causing the authorities some anxiety, an anxiety increased by complications threatened in connection with Syria and Mesopotamia. The shadow of Indian and Moslem opinion darkens the problem, and it is believed will influence the counsels of the Allies more than is always immediately apparent. The suggestion that the employment of force against the Turks might excite general hostility in the Musselman world is regarded as one that cannot safely be ignored. In some quarters the feeling prevails that there is danger, if the Turks are pressed, that they may immediately be joined by the Arabs.

MEXICAN MINE HORRORS.

MEXICO CITY, Mar. 12. Forty-two of one hundred and thirty miners, who were caught in the main shaft of the El Porado mine at Pachuca, in the State of Hidalgo, were still unaccounted for to-night, thirty hours after the fire had broken out in the shaft. The mine was sealed to-day for twenty hours, for the purpose of smothering the flames. It will be opened on Friday, when the workings will be explored and an attempt made to rescue the missing men, although there is small hope of finding them alive.

TROUBLE IN IRELAND.

MONTREAL, Mar. 12. A cable to the Montreal Star from London says that the Irish correspondent of the Daily Graphic telegraphs that big guns are arriving in Dublin and that the streets are being patrolled by armored cars. Excitement is reported to be running high. Police to-day raided the residence of Mrs. Eamonn De Valera, wife of the Sinn Fein leader, in search for Countess Markievitz, Sinn Fein Member for Parliament for St. Patrick's division of Dublin. They were unsuccessful, however, in their quest. It is stated that the police mistook a cousin of Mrs. De Valera from London for the Countess in disguise.

BACHELORS' TAXES.

PARIS, Mar. 12. A supplementary tax on the incomes of bachelors has been approved by the finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies. The income tax bill provides a scale of from six to forty per cent.

GOOD FOR BILLY.

SYRACUSE, Mar. 12. Billy Sunday announced here to-day that he is ready to run for the office of President, and has already picked his Cabinet. He has slated "Ma" Sunday for the office of Secretary of State.

CURTAILING LUXURIES.

OTTAWA, Mar. 12. Measures to curtail the importation of luxuries, it is rumored here, may be a feature of the next budget proposals. There has been some discussion of the matter, it is understood, but so far the Government has reached no decision. Reports from Washington that the Government is contemplating an embargo on the importing of non-essentials as stated to-day has reached no such definite conclusion, and in any event any action decided upon would not be announced before the budget is submitted to Parliament.

VICEROY HOMEWARD BOUND.

OTTAWA, Mar. 12. The Duke of Devonshire left the capital to-day by special train for St. John, N.B., sailing from that port on Saturday on board the steamship Empress of France for England. His Excellency is accompanied by Lady Rachael and Lady Ann Cavendish, Miss Cavendish, his niece, and Lady Helen Ballie Hamilton, Captain, the Earl of Haddington and Captain Wallace. His Excellency hopes to return to Canada early in May. The Duchess has been in the Old Country for some time past.

MAID OF LA HAYE.

NEW YORK, Mar. 12. Captain Hays and five men of the crew of the British three-masted schooner Maid of La Haye, arrived here to-day on board the White Star Line steamship Ardiatic from Southampton. On Mar. 10th about 750 miles east of Sandy Hook the Ardiatic sighted the distress signals of the schooner and bore down on her, launched a life boat, took off six men and set fire to the wreck. The schooner was bound from St. John's, Nfld., for Bahia.

WHEAT VACCINATION.

CAMBRIDGE, England, Mar. 12. Farmers may soon be able to make their seed wheat vaccinated against rust and other troublesome diseases before they plant it. Tests of botanists of Cambridge University are said to have shown the possibility of breeding disease-proof plants and immunizing wheat, oats, barley and potatoes.

FLOOD FOLLOWS TORNADO.

BRANSON, Mo., Mar. 12. Flooded streams to-day made further menace to life and property in South Missouri, where yesterday a tornado killed at least thirteen persons, injured a number of others and did property damage as yet unestimated.

Re Steamships.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—I have just read the letter of your correspondent "A" in today's issue and can vouch for the correctness of his contention that the S.S. "City of Halifax" was originally so named and subsequently, upon her acquisition by Baine and Johnston, re-named "Mc-Mac." The "Monticello" was never here under any other name. She was here, if I remember aright, two springs ago and was lost on returning to her home port after the seal fishery of the year she was lost. The "City of Halifax" was a sister ship of the "City of Durham" in name only, as the ships were very dissimilar in every respect. When the Inman Line contracted for the Nfld-Halifax fortnightly mail service, they bought the iron boat "City of Durham" for the Summer Service and built the "City of Halifax"—wood—for the Winter Service. She was later lost as stated.

First Doctors Then a Skin Specialist—Then a bottle of D.D.D.

I will consider it a favor if you will allow me to add my testimonial to the many hundreds you no doubt have in praise of the great results effected by the D.D.D. Prescription. I, as a sufferer for two years with eczema on the legs and ankles, I have tried three or four different doctors and none of them did me any good. I got tired of trying their remedies. I then went to a skin specialist but he was no better than they. I was reading the Sunday paper and happened to see your ad. I am very glad that I did.

I secured a trial bottle of D.D.D. and it did me so much good that I sent for a dollar bottle, also a cake of soap. That is all I used, and I am perfectly well. I have advised several others to use it and the results have been the same. You are at liberty to use my name for I consider D.D.D. the best remedy in use.

Scapa Tragedy.

GERMAN PRISONER SHOT—BRITISH SEAMAN ACQUITTED.

A trial for murder with some unusual features, inasmuch as it arose out of the war, took place in the High Court at Edinburgh on Feb. 8, before Lord Anderson and a jury. The accused, James Woolley (20), a British seaman, was charged with having shot and killed a German prisoner of war on June 23 and 24, 1919, on board the U.S. Resolution, then stationed at Scapa Flow, discharged a loaded rifle at Kuno Eversberg while a prisoner of war on board the Resolution, and shot and murdered him. Capt. A. H. Alington, Ewhurst, Surrey, said he was captain of the ship when the incident took place. On June 23 last they had about 80 prisoners on board from the German cruiser Frankfurt. On the morning of June 24 the witness received a report as to the shooting. The two officers reported they could not find out who fired the shot. A very thorough search was made, but no one was found near the spot where the shot had been fired. Shortly afterwards the ship went to Invergordon to rest, and afterwards about 10 of the men, all youngsters, did not return at the end of their leave. Ultimately the accused was arrested at Leyland as a deserter. Nothing whatever was ascertained during the inquiries about the shooting to involve Woolley. He was first incriminated at the second Court of Inquiry at Weymouth on September 1 or 2, when an able seaman named Berry said something which directed suspicion against Woolley. Up to the moment of the desertion his character was spotless from a service point of view.

Lord Anderson, in charging the jury, said that at a time when Great Britain and her Allies were demanding from Germany the surrender of war criminals, it was necessary that they should have clean hands in this matter, and the jury should do their duty and not evade it by reason of the fact that the accused was a British sailor and the dead man a German. The jury, who were absent for about half an hour, returned a unanimous verdict of not proven.

The prisoner, who burst out weeping when the verdict was announced, was discharged from the bar.—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

Moderate Prohibitionists Meet.

AND ADVOCATE AMENDMENTS TO THE PRESENT LAW.

The meeting of citizens by invitation arranged to take place last night in the T. A. Armoury was attended by over 350 people representative of nearly every class in the city. A chairman and secretary being appointed, the object of the meeting was outlined. It was proposed to form a committee of citizens to draft a set of resolutions advocating amendments to the present Prohibition Act and present them for consideration at a public meeting to be held later. The Chairman and Secretary explained several plans whereby the obnoxious features of the present law could be overcome. A test of the sentiment of the meeting proved that it did not desire the open saloon, the destruction of the Prohibition Act as a whole, the wholesale distribution of liquor, or the taking of the control from the hands of the Government. Some six or seven citizens spoke on the prohibition act emphasizing its unjustness and its un-British principles. It was stated that during the past year 29% of the arrests in the city during the past year was for drunkenness despite the law that liquor was to be sold only for medicinal use. A committee of thirty was formed and they will meet Monday night next. It was proposed to hold a public meeting in the Casino Theatre on Thursday night if the hall is available for that date. A country wide campaign on the lines laid down last night will be started after the public meeting if it is shown that there is sufficient sympathy with the movement. The meeting closed at 10:45 p.m.

Lyndoch via Wolfe, Ont., March 12. (Special.)—"I feel like telling everybody about what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for me." This is the joyful exclamation of Mrs. Frank Kargus, a well known and highly respected resident here. Mrs. Kargus gives splendid reasons why she is so enthusiastic over Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I don't know the cause of my trouble," she says, "but I know it dragged along for over a year. I had a bad pain in my back and I was so weak that I could not get out of bed. My heart troubled me very much and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing."

"I was always tired and nervous and sometimes I was so bad I thought I could not live much longer. I tried two doctors and they did not do me much good so I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"They have done me a lot of good. I can do my housework again and I am getting alone fine."

Mrs. Kargus troubles are all symptoms of diseased kidneys. That's why she got such prompt relief. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not relieve all kidney ills.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ONE COMPENSATION FOR THE H.C.L.

What a wonderful time we do live in!

Here are three little tokens of that fact that came to me within a few days of each other.

I picked up my newspaper and saw headlines across the page to the effect that mysterious wireless messages had been received all over the country and that it was thought possible that Mars was trying to signal us.

Another morning I saw an item quoting Sir Oliver Lodge. This famous scientist declared that the next great discovery would be a way to release the force that holds the atoms together. So inconceivably great is this force, he declared that if it could be released, the force that holds an ounce of matter together would be sufficient to raise the German fleet that lies at the bottom of the Scapa Flow and put it on top of the Scottish mountains.

He hopes it will not be discovered yet.

Of course you may say that neither of these items represents anything tangible that has really come to pass. It is a vague conjecture, the other a prophecy about something that may never come to pass. Sir Oliver Lodge himself says he hopes the discovery will not be made until the world is more civilised and able to use it more wisely than at present.

But before you say that such things do not prove that these wonderful ages to live in, consider them in the light of a third.

Passengers Watch Clouds Instead of Waves.

The third was not a printed item, but a picture of the cabin of a transatlantic airship. It was beautifully fitted up with wicker chairs, in which the passengers are evidently reclining at ease while through the windows they observe the clouds as they pass a time we observed the waves.

And this isn't a vague conjecture or a prophecy—it's a fact!

Yet 20 years ago would not the suggestion that people would soon be crossing the Atlantic in the air, have been considered just about as preposterous as a message from Mars that the atoms together?

Yesterday's Miracle.
 Only 10 years ago I went to the first air meet that was held in my part of the country, and I remember the awe and thrill we felt when the first machine rose feebly from the ground.

And 20 years ago, Darius Green and his Flying Machine was a humorous recitation beloved of all schoolboys.

In the light of what 20 years ago thought of to-day's miracle, are you not afraid to declare anything impossible in the next 20 years?

A Doctor Peer.
 Before streaks of silver began to change the Prime Minister's locks, Sir Bertrand Dawson, one of the new peers, was occasionally mistaken for Mr. Lloyd George.

The King's physician, Sir Bertrand did some wonderful work as head of the medical staff on the Western front.

The story of his marriage to a daughter of Sir William Yarow, the famous shipbuilder, provides a charming romance. Regarded as "a coming man" in his profession, he was taken by the family on a yachting cruise for the benefit of Miss Yarow's health.

The end of that cruise has been succinctly summed up in these words: "The daughter regained her health, but the doctor succumbed—to the daughter."

THE FUNERAL.

When Jimson died (we miss him vastly, whose face we never again shall see) we made his funeral more ghastly than any human rite should be. The pastor's talk was long and dismal, and fraught with morals stale and trite; he spoke about the void abyssal, more than he spoke of morning light. And while the clergyman was droning, and filling all our souls with dread, a lot of alecks kept on moaning as though they hoped to raise the dead. And then the choir sang dreary dirges, in voices wet with useless tears, till we could hear the wailing surges of Death's cold river, in our ears. No hope inspiring hymn they lifted, but dirges full of maudlin whines, and women wept and strong men wilted, and felt pink gooseflesh down their spines. Oh, when I die, and folks assemble, to see that I am planted right, let no man speak with voice a-tremble, about my sins or virtues bright. What man may say will cut no figure when I have met the common fate, and I step up, with pep and vigor, to dodge old Peter at his gate. No, let the urbane undertaker get busy, like a dead game sport, and take me to the churchyard acre, with all the briny stuff cut short.

AWAY FROM THE WORLD.

It's good for a fellow to walk away from the busy world and the busy day's things.
 It's good for him now and then to turn from the crowded streets, where there's gold to earn, and spend some time in a quiet zone and be for a little while alone.
 It's good for a man to take his ease in the shade of the wise and ancient trees;
 To lie by a stream that has danced along since the world began with its right and wrong,
 And spend some time with the content things
 That has outlived empires and crowns and kings.
 It is good for a man when the spring comes back,
 To get away from the beaten track,
 To quit the hurly and fret and grind of the daily tasks, and rest his mind in the fields and woods, where the air is clean,
 And ponder awhile on what has been.
 So when spring returns and the trees awake
 And the streams break the shackles of winter break,
 It is good for a man to leave the crowd
 And turn from the eager and rich and proud,
 To walk alone where the skies are fair—
 For he shall strengthen his faith out there.

Millionaire Humorist.
 In private life John D. Rockefeller, who has broken all donation records by his latest gift of $25,000,000 to American institutions, is by no means the morose recluse he is sometimes thought to be.
 He is a man of careless, cheerful, and humorous demeanour.
 His pet aversion is having his portrait taken. "I wonder you don't get Sargent or Abbey to paint your portrait," suggested a lady. "John D." smiled.
 "Oh, no madam," he said. "That would never do. You see, I have never been done in oil, and I don't want to spoil the record."
 We have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in our home for a number of years and use no other Liniment but MINARD'S, and we can recommend it highly for sprains, bruises, pains or tightness of the chest, soreness of the throat, headache or anything of that sort. We will not be without it one single day, for we get a new bottle before the other is all used. I can recommend it highly to anyone.

The spirit of adventure in the Dunmore Murrays that led the late earl into Christian Science and helped the present peer to win the Victoria Cross, shows itself also in Lady Evelyn Cobbold, Lord Dunmore's eldest sister. Married to a wealthy Suffolk man with a beautiful home that more or less dominates Ipswich, with two daughters, who wedded young and satisfactorily, and a son who in son-in-law of the Duke of Devonshire, Lady Evelyn seems more and more inclined to escape from the shackles of English social life and habits. She became a Mohammedan some time ago, it is understood, and she is going to Morocco soon for a visit that will be of a more intimate character than the ordinary tourist's trip. ### The World's Biggest Choir.

Facts About the Royal Choral Society.

The Royal Choral Society has just over a thousand members, and is thus the largest as well as the most important choir in the world.

This famous choir used to be known simply as the Royal Albert Hall Choir, owing to the fact that its concerts were always given in that magnificent building. However, a few years ago the King, who is its patron, commanded that it should be renamed the Royal Choral Society.

The Duke of Connaught is the Society's president, and Sir Frederick Bridge is leader of the choir. Mr. H. L. Balfour is its organist, and few musicians can control the Albert Hall's gigantic instrument as he does.

The immortal composer of "Faust" founded the choir in 1871. Then, after Gounod relinquished the leadership, the baton was taken over by the late Sir Joseph Barnby, the composer of many beautiful songs and works, who gave up a £3,000 a year post in order to have the honour of conducting the Royal Choral Society.

During Sir Joseph Barnby's leadership, Sir John Stainer presided at the organ, and his son, Dr. Stainer, is the husband of the present leader's youngest daughter. Sir Frederick Bridge became leader of the choir about seventeen years ago.

Each member of the choir receives a free ticket for all concerts and a pass that admits a friend to rehearsals. The members are not paid, and it is considered a great honour to be accepted by this charmed choral circle after having passed the stiff sight-reading and singing tests held by Sir Frederick Bridge.

Every Monday evening during the season a rehearsal is held at the Albert Hall, and it is then that Sir Frederick Bridge gives vent to his humorous sallies.

One evening, during a rehearsal of the oratorio, "Israel," a number of members' friends in the stalls were giggling and disturbing Sir Frederick. He turned round once or twice and looked reprovingly at the offenders, but still they rustled and chattered. Then Sir Frederick stopped again and looked in the direction with a severe frown. At that the disturbers of his peace got up and walked towards an exit.

"Now," said Sir Frederick, tapping his desk with his baton, "let us start again at the line: "And Israel was glad at their departing!"

A delightful illustration of his humour is provided by a parody of the famous ballad, "Sally in our Alley," which he wrote and called "Lobby in our Abbey." He sang it at a choir dinner in 1902. The parody was written when Mr. Labouchere, the well-known journalist and editor of "Truth," lived in a house near Westminster Abbey. The last verse was as follows:—

The Ministers and members all
 Made game of truthful Lobby,
 Though but for him 'tis said they'd be
 A sleepy set and flabby.
 And when their seven long years
 are out
 They hope to bury Lobby;
 Ah! then how peacefully he'll lie;
 But not in our Abbey.

A picturesque feature of the Royal Choral Society is that on concert nights each lady member wears a wide silk sash across her shoulder. Those on the right of the organ wear bright blue from the left shoulder; those on the left, bright red from the right shoulder. These sashes are worn thus in order to form a huge V in honor of Queen Victoria.

The Problem of the Adriatic.

President Wilson stands pat on the question of Fiume, as between Italy and the newly created republic of Jug-Slavia, and holds to his contention based on Article X. of the Covenant of the League of Nations, that to give Fiume to Italy, or to any other people but the Jug-Slavs is in direct violation of both the spirit and letter of the agreement. The raid of the Italian poet-aviator D'Annunzio and his occupation of Fiume was an almost successful attempt to hold that Adriatic seaport for Italy, and though he had not the cachet of the Quirinal authorities at Rome, there is not the slightest doubt but that the sympathy and sentiment of all Italy favored the project, and regretted the withdrawal of the army of occupation, possession, even though of an unauthorised expedition, being still regarded as nine points of the law. But the tenth Article stood in the way, and Wilson stood by it. Hence the problem of the Adriatic and the muddle that has been made of it.

Article X. of the Covenant of the League of Nations reads as follows: "The members of the League undertake to respect and preserve, as against external aggression, the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League. In case of any such aggression, or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression, the Council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled."

Italy wanted Fiume, and Great Britain and France, being bound, to some extent, by their secret understandings, were obliged to favor Italy's position, but President Wilson, being bound by no such agreement, refused to accede to the Italian demand, holding that to do so would be a direct contravention of Article X. Even after the treaties with Germany and Austria had been signed, the question of Fiume and the Adriatic generally were "held in abeyance." And "held in abeyance" it has been ever since, and is likely to be, unless all the powers concerned come to a complete understanding. The position of the United States President has been, in this connection, at least, perfectly simple and perfectly logical.

So far back as last April, he declared that he could not agree to the annexation of Fiume by Italy, as the port was, in his opinion, the pre-eminently natural outlet for the commerce of the newly-born republic of Jug-Slavia, and nothing since has apparently happened to cause any alteration of that opinion, and moreover Mr. Wilson has consistently kept his view before the Supreme Council, and is quite willing to accept any settlement "mutually agreeable to Italy and Jug-Slavia regarding their common frontier in the Fiume region, provided such agreement is not made on the basis of compensation elsewhere at the expense of nationals of a third power." Premier Lloyd George, of Great Britain, and Millerand, of France, are now agreed that this would be an ideal way of settling the question and have expressed their willingness to reach a settlement via the Wilson road. In order to facilitate the progress in this direction, they have expressed their willingness to withdraw all previous proposals, and have invited President Wilson to join them in the preparation of a formal proposal to the Italian and Jug-Slav Governments, in order to negotiate a new agreement on the basis of all such withdrawals. Buttressing this comes the consent of Premier Nitti, of Italy, to enter into fresh negotiations with the Jug-Slav Foreign Minister, and the British and French Prime Ministers have hastened to convey this joyful announcement to President Wilson, with the request that he use his good judgment to expedite a mutually satisfactory agreement. And thus the matter stands at the moment. That it will be a win for Wilson seems to be in the air.

Ask Preferment for Service Men.

At 4 p.m. yesterday, the Civil Re-establishment Committee met, Hon. Justice Kent presiding. Forty-nine claims were presented and thirty-nine granted. The committee went into the matter of having preference given in all Government appointments, to men who had served in the forces, and a deputation will meet the Prime Minister and consult on the matter.

Streets in Disgraceful Condition.

If by any freak of fate, a municipal inspector should pass along that portion of Hamilton Street, extending from the West End Fire Hall to Lester's stables, he would be deeply impressed with the need for improvement in its condition. The dirt and filth which have accumulated on this street are revolting to the stomach and senses, and constitute an ever present danger of infection. The people who are compelled to reside there are demanding that something be done without delay. With so much influenza, pneumonia, diphtheria and other death-dealing diseases going the rounds, the presence of this dirt is a peril to the health and happiness of all. It is up to the Mayor, the Council, the West End representatives or some one to see that something is done in the way of removal or cleaning up at once.

Prohibitionists Meet To-Morrow.

As will be seen in the "Church Services" column, a mass meeting of the friends and supporters of prohibition will be held in the Methodist College Hall at 8.15 to-morrow evening, after church. Rev. Dr. Bond, Rev. Dr. Jones, Rev. D. B. Hemmeon, Rev. Gordon Dickie, Rev. E. W. Forbes, Rev. A. B. Stirling, Staff-Capt. Thompson and others will be the speakers, and a good meeting is assured. In view of the attempt being made to renege the ground captured by the prohibitionists in 1915, every one believing in the principle should attend to-morrow's meeting.

An Irish Afternoon.

AT THE AULA MAXIMA, IN AID OF THE PRESENTATION CONVENT ASSOCIATION. Those who wish to spend a pleasant few hours on St. Patrick's Day could not do better than secure tickets for the annual entertainment in the Aula Maxima St. Patrick's afternoon. There will be heard Irish music and song, the old songs; those of Thomas Moore that appeal to the Irish heart, the pathos of which has never been surpassed; then we have the new songs which appeal to the younger set, and we have also some of the old music with new words, the latter is a treat indeed which should not be missed. The playing of the Irish melodies has received special attention; the elocution will be up to the usual excellent standard, and the dancing of the little Colleen a feature in itself worth the admission fee. These together with various other attractions and the sale of home-made candy promises to make the patrons of an "Irish afternoon" on St. Patrick's day feel that not only are they helping a good cause, but that a feast of music and song is in store for all who attend. Don't forget the performance begins at 3 p.m.

Musical Service at St. Andrew's.

To-morrow (Sunday) evening, the fifth of the series of monthly musical services will be rendered by the choir of St. Andrew's Church under the direction of Mr. Moncrieff-Mawer. An interesting programme has been prepared, and the choir will have the assistance of several well-known soloists. Miss Alice Mackenzie, soprano, who is at present fulfilling a professional engagement in the city has kindly consented to sing at this service. The following is the programme: Anthem—"Sing O Heavens"—Sullivan—Soloist, Mr. A. Lawrence. Solo—"The Promise of Life"—Cowen—Miss Mollie Ellis. Anthem—"Crossing the Bar"—Woodward. Solo—"My God and Father while I Stray"—Marston—Mr. W. L. Woods. Male double quartette—"Holy Art Thou" (Largo)—Handel. Solo—"My Task"—Ashford—Miss Alice Mackenzie. Anthem—"O Clap your Hands"—Stainer.

Consumers' League Mooted.

At last night's meeting in the T. A. Armoury a well known citizen spoke of the profiteering that is going on in the city and gave it as his opinion that people should organize a Consumers' League to combat the high cost of living. His remarks were well received and it is not unlikely that such an organization will be formed.

Dr. Harvey H. Wiley.

Director of Good Housekeeping, Bureau of Foods, Sanitation and Health, Washington, D.C., in an interview with the Evening Telegram, said: "I have always contended that it is the best way to treat milk. In such a way you preserve all that is pure and wholesome in it." K.L.M. is in every way an ideally preserved milk—soluble, containing the lowest obtainable percentage of moisture, offering no breeding place for bacteria, and free from the strong "pasteurised flavour" so noticeable in all condensed and evaporated milks.

The January issue, collaborated with the Canadian Teacher, make good reading. An entirely new make-up and shape greatly improve the "Journal" and its readers are sure to be impressed with the change.

Cadet Sports Last Night.

Last night the C. C. C. continued their postponed sports. Capt. McGrath acted referee in the various contests with entire satisfaction. Sgt. Morrissey of the Old Comrades was coach for the two winning teams in the tug of war. The Bugle and Band teams being the winners against the N.C.O.s and the Old Comrades. The different items on the programme were keenly contested and the affair proved highly successful.

Fell on Pavement.

An ex-soldier named Atwell, while passing down Water Street yesterday, became suddenly ill and falling to the pavement inflicted a deep gash over his eye. He was taken to Kavanagh's drug store, where Major Parsons attended him. He was afterwards removed to hospital at the Institute.

To-Morrow Night's Prohibition Meeting.

The object of to-morrow night's mass meeting in the Methodist College Hall for friends and supporters of Prohibition is the passing of three resolutions and the appointment of a Vigilance Committee. One resolution will be to the effect that dope vendors and unscrupulous medical men should be gotten after, while another asks to have more stringent regulations attached to the present Act.

Police Court.

A young woman of Spaniard's Bay, arrested yesterday afternoon, was charged with the larceny of some clothing. The owner of the goods did not wish to prosecute and owing to the delicate condition of the accused, the Court has held her over for investigation, rather than have her left destitute and without a home. A city barber was charged with using threatening language toward a woman who lived in the same house. The hearing of the case was adjourned until the wife of the accused can come to court as a witness. She is now in hospital.

More Favorable Than Canadian Regulations.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In certain of to-day's papers appears an open letter from Lieutenant C. F. Garland to all members of the Great War Veterans' Association which, I think, calls for some explanation from the Civil Re-establishment Committee. I am sure that Lieut. Garland had no intention of misleading either his comrades or the public; yet he insinuates unworthy conduct on the part of the Committee and is guilty of much inaccuracy. Surely he should take the pains to be accurate in his statements.

For the information of the public, then, I beg to state:

1. That the men taking courses at the Re-establishment School have not, so far as I know, "got up a petition asking that they might be put under the same rules as the Canadian soldiers." They did, however, present a petition concerning the application of a new rule that has been posted concerning a bonus for attendance and punctuality.

2. The Committee has, notwithstanding Lieut. Garland's suggestion to the contrary, done all that it can do to have the Canadian scale adopted. The Canadian scale, however, differs from the Newfoundland one only in relation to married men.

3. The Committee is not "made up with few exceptions of ex-soldiers." At present there are only two ex-soldiers on the Committee but others may be appointed to it as time goes on.

4. It is not an authentic fact nor any other sort of a fact that soldiers having parents in influential positions can "demand or get courses and periods at college abroad with transportation and allowances." The Committee does not know the parents in the matter and has never been approached, as stated, by parents holding influential positions. The Committee has been careful to be just and, barring accidents, no man has been given a course of training except in accordance with the Committee's regulations.

5. No one draws a salary as a member of the Committee. Their work has been extremely arduous and has been rendered without fee or favor. The members most regular at the meetings, excluding myself, are the Hon. Mr. Justice Kent, Chairman; R. B. Job, Esq., and H. E. Cowan, Esq., Vice-chairmen; Major Parsons, Medical Officer, the Rev. Dr. Curtis, Dr.

Burke and Major Butler. The public, will, I submit, refuse to believe that any of these gentlemen would knowingly do a returned man or any other man a wrong.

The Committee is handling a very difficult problem to the best of its ability. It does not claim to be beyond human frailty but it does claim to be conscientious, honourable and sympathetic in the discharge of its responsible duties.

While a small number of the returned men, who are not eligible for courses may feel aggrieved with the Committee, there is a large and silent number who deeply appreciate what the country is doing for them through the Civil Re-establishment Committee.

At present the Committee has some 350 men taking courses of one kind or another and in all, some eight hundred courses have been granted. At the present moment the monthly expenditure is about twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00). It will be found that in its effort to give as many as possible a helping hand, the Committee has stretched its authority to the limit. The regulations followed in Newfoundland are more favourable to the men than are those of Canada.

Yours faithfully,
W. W. BLACKALL,
Vocational Officer.

Produce and Provisions.

(From the Trade Review.)

CODFISH—During the week just closed there were exported from St. John's 19,950 qtls. of dry codfish. Of this amount 12,827 went forward to Halifax and New York by the S.S. Rosalind, 2921 qtls. were cleared for Bahia, and 4202 qtls. were shipped for Lisbon. Most of the Rosalind's fish is destined for the West Indies and South America when the markets are in good condition. There is very little buying in St. John's these days, and $11.25 to $11.50 is the range of No. 1 hard cured shore, "Labrador" is getting scarce. The nominal price is $8.50 to $9.00.

COD OIL—The demand for common cod oil in the U.S. market is fair with a prospect of improved conditions. The price is $1.13 a gallon and is well maintained, and in a few instances the price was run up to $1.16. In the local market there is not much doing and the highest sales so far this spring, have been made at $305 per ton. The holdings of old oil are fast being reduced, and the market will be cleaned out by the time the new product is available in large quantities.

COD LIVER OIL—The demand in the United States shows some signs of improvement. Oil is available only in small quantities just now at 95¢ per barrel, for both Newfoundland and Norwegian product. It is good news to know that Newfoundland has at last reached a level equal to Norwegian, and shows the result of careful handling and inspection on the part of our oil manufacturers. There is a good prospect for the coming season. New oil has opened at $2.25 per gallon, and is likely to go higher before long.

HERRING—The New York and West Indian demand for herring has improved a little the past week. The S.S. Rosalind took away 2,375 barrels last trip, the largest total consignment for the season. Most of these were split herring for transshipment to the West Indies. There are ten thousand barrels of Scotch Pack in Notre Dame Bay, which are shut off by the ice conditions, and probably will not reach here till May. The quotation for S.P. in New York last week was $20 to $22.

PORK—There is a decided weakness in the U.S. Pork market at the present time, and consequently there is a reluctance on the part of the trade here to make contracts which may become lower at the point of shipment, when such purchases reach St. John's. It is feared that if carried too far, this condition is likely to create a scarcity here when pork is wanted for the fishery supply, unless in a short time the market will show a firmness that would warrant the trade in believing that it had reached the bottom for this season. Prices here to-day run from $51.00 to $60.00 per barrel. Ham Butt, being scarce, has so far not shared in the general decline.

BEEF—The disparity all the time since the war between the prices of beef and pork prevents beef from showing the same decline as pork. Exchange conditions at present seem to be the leading factor in both beef and pork quotations, and any alterations in the exchange rates are immediately reflected on prices of these products. Prices per barrel of beef wholesale in St. John's to-day, range from $30.00 to $40.00; boneless is $35.00 to $37.00 according to quality.

SUGAR—The last consignments by the S.S. Rosalind supplied the present requirements and the market is quiet now with no scarcity. There is likely to be a full-tide of sugar trade the coming season, as the demand is likely to increase on account of the high prices of molasses. The outports north of Trinity Bay are all short of sugar, but from that point south where the railway reaches, the want has been fairly well supplied the past few weeks. In the United States sugar is being absorbed by the trade as fast as it comes from the refineries. It is difficult to get quotations for export. The sugar coming here all the winter was bought last fall. The St. John's quotation to-day is $19.50 to $20 per 100 lbs.

MOLASSES—There is very little old molasses in the St. John's market now. Messrs. Harvey and Co., the largest dealers, are pretty well cleaned out. The first new cargoes are expected early in April from Barbados. Fancy, it is expected, will sell at $1.25 wholesale in puncheon lots, and $1.20 by the single puncheon, $1.40 in 4 tierces and $1.50 in barrels. These are probably the highest prices on record here for molasses.

FRACTICE ECONOMY.

The planters and fishermen will have to pay such high prices for all articles of outfit the coming season, and prospective prices for fish being so low, that right economy only can make it possible to carry on at the fishery with paying results. If strict economy is practised, the fishery can be made to pay well even with the present high prices of outfit. There is certainly room for economy in the fishery. Less pork, less beef, can make a great difference—other foods can be substituted with advantage, such as beans, peas, and potatoes. Our fishermen, except the men on the north side of Bonavista Bay, use 50 per cent. more pork than any other fishermen in the world, and it is well known that a good deal of consumption is caused by waste. The flour also could be cut down 30 per cent. under careful management. It will be absolutely necessary to do so the coming season, and all can do what a few are doing all the time, and the fishery be made pay well even at present high prices of outfit.—Trade Review.

WILDE HOLDS CHAMPIONSHIP.

Ringside Coliseum, Toledo, Mar. 12.

—Jimmy Wilde, of England, recognized flyweight boxing champion of the world defended his right to the title to-night by decisively outpointing Frankie Mason of Fort Wayne, Ind., American claimant of the title. Throughout the battle the plucky little Briton was the aggressor and carried the fighting in all but one round the fifth, when Mason braced himself and put the Englishman on the defensive. Two of the rounds were even, the fourth and tenth. The ring, which was twenty one feet square, gave the little American plenty of room to jump away from the pressing Britisher. Mason started to bleed from the mouth early in the battle, but he wore a smile of confidence, while Wilde from the time he entered the ring seemed set and determined. Time after time, Mason, when urged on by his enthusiasts, attempted to break through the Britisher's guard, but pluckily the little Briton dodged, feinted, shifted and retaliated with a right and left chasing the American around the ring. After the fight referee Smith declared that never in his life had he seen a young fellow, or any fighter, who was so willing to carry or mix matters as was Wilde.

THREE PERSONS ASPHYXIATED.

TORONTO, March 12.

The dead bodies of John Callicott, manufacturer of an automatic air vent, his wife, and M. Johnson, hydro-electric worker, were found to-day in a house on King Street West. The swollen, discolored condition of the three, indicated that they had been asphyxiated. A small gas jet in a range in the room was open.

TURKS NOT IMPRESSED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 12.

Numerous despatches from London and Paris announcing that the Supreme Council has decided to take drastic action at Constantinople to prevent the killing of Christians and to enforce peace terms more radical than were contemplated before the trouble at Marmash, have been received with apparent indifference by the Turks, the only effect being in the designation of a slightly changed cabinet. Allied naval displays in the Bosphorus and British and French naval parades in the streets of Constantinople, are watched indifferently by the public. The Black, Marmora and Aegean Seas are alive with allied warships ready to co-operate with land forces in defense of the Straits and enforcement of the blockade, should such action be taken.

THE SIMS' CHARGES.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 12.

More shipping was saved by keeping track of German submarines and routing vessels clear of them, than by any other single measure, Rear-Admiral Sims told the Senate Investigating Committee to-day. Admiral Sims' statement was in support of his charge that the Navy Department had "a fundamental misconception" of the problem of defending home waters in keeping American naval forces on this side of the Atlantic rather than by giving "whole-hearted and vigorous co-operation" to the Allies.

NEW HUNGARIAN TREATY.

LONDON, March 12.

A new Hungarian peace treaty has been definitely agreed upon by the Peace Conference, and placed in the hands of a drafting committee, which has come to Paris. It is expected the treaty will be completed within a week. The territorial terms, against which Hungary protested so vigorously, remain unchanged, but various economic concessions have been wanted.

CHARITY BEGINS AT HOME.

PARIS, March 12.

MINERS ASKING FOR MORE WAGES.

LONDON, March 12.

Following their defeat at yesterday's session of the Trades Union Congress on the question of direct action, the Miners Federation yesterday held a meeting at which it was decided, by an overwhelming majority, immediately to apply for an advance in wages of three shillings per shift for workers over 16 years of age, and one shilling and six pence for workers under 16 years.

CHRISTOPHER HAS HOPES.

NEW YORK, March 13.

A cable despatch received from Frederick Wirth, Jr., as legal advisor of Prince Christopher of Greece, dated at Geneva, was received by the Associated Press yesterday, stating that in view of the published reports that the Official Gazette of Athens had announced Prince Christopher's renouncing all his rights to succession, both Greek and Danish, he was directed by Prince Christopher to state that the published reports are absolutely without foundation.

A MILITARY COUP D'ETAT.

LONDON, March 13.

A proclamation was issued in Berlin this morning at ten o'clock stating that the German Government had ceased to exist, according to a Reuter's despatch from the German capital received here. Revolting troops entered Berlin this morning and occupied the Wilhelmstrasse, the despatch declares. No acts of violence are reported.

VERY SIGNIFICANT.

PARIS, March 13.

(Havas.)—A military pronouncement has been issued at Berlin, proclaiming a new Chancellor, according to advice received here.

REVOLUTIONARY GOVERNMENT SET UP.

PARIS, March 13.

(Havas German.)—A proclamation issued in Berlin to-day declares that the Government of the Empire ceased to exist, and that the Powers of the State have passed into the hands of General Director Von Napp, who becomes Chancellor, and his appointed Chief of the military forces, Berlin despatches state. A proclamation declared the national assembly dissolved, and it is announced that a new Government is being formed. Socialist parties have declared a general strike, the despatch adds.

The Irish in Newfoundland

Their Influence in Religion, Government, Trade and Commerce.

H. F. SHORTIS.

The breeze often shakes the rose and the thistle, whilst Erin's green shamrock lies hushed in the dale; it grows whilst the wintry winds whistle, and lies undisturbed in the moss of the vale.

Newfoundland will may be termed the Home of the Irish Exile. At what period the first immigration of Irish emigrants took place along our shores it is difficult to say; but I do know that Irishmen figured largely in our population in 1780 and there about, because, in my rambles through some of the old cemeteries in the outports, I have perused the inscriptions on the time-worn tombstones, giving the year and date of the demise of the Irishmen, whose names rest in mother earth, under the shade of the trees which surround the sacred plots. Of course Irishmen were here in the 17th century, but not in large numbers, and they left their impress upon our country's history. It is also a well known fact that the religious requirements of these Irishmen were attended to by priests of their own nationality. These priests were few in number it is true, and the amount of labour and hardship that they had to undergo was almost beyond belief. From bay to bay they had to proceed, often in open boats, in all kinds of weather, and when sail-boats were not procurable, the hardy fishermen would row the clergyman miles along our coast, until he arrived at his destination, and administered the comforts of his holy religion. It often appeared that those pioneers of religion and civilization were driven from a lee shore, and their escapes from death were most, miraculous.

And it also happened that those same missionaries were overcome by blinding snow-storms, or caught far out to sea in heavy gales of wind, where the hardships experienced by them can be better imagined than described. The first Irish priest, whose life was lost in carrying out his sacred duties along our coast, was the Rev. Patrick Phelan, whilst en route in a boat along the shores of Conception Bay, on the 3rd of September, 1799. His body was found, floating erect in the water in the middle of the bay, with his breviary under his arm, and I have heard it stated by very old residents (handed down from their predecessors) that the leaves of the book were barely damp with the salt water, and that it was kept in the succeeding priest's house for many years afterwards. I also distinctly remember as a child, hearing a man named Snelgrove relating that it was his father and the boat's crew who picked up the body of Father Phelan, and conveyed it to Red Head Cove.

A HISTORIC INSCRIPTION.

Some years ago whilst in Harbor Grace, I visited the tomb raised to the memory of this first martyr-priest in Newfoundland, and foreseeing that the ravages of Time would soon obliterate the inscription, I took the precaution of copying it. The late illustrious prelate Archbishop Howley remarked to me that he regretted that he did not know that I copied the inscription, as he would very much liked to have placed it in his Ecclesiastical History—that invaluable record of our heroic priests and pioneers of our early days. But Hon. Justice Kent can now do so, as I understand, he is at work on the second edition of that very important work. A somewhat recent visit to the scene of the tomb convinced me of the wisdom of what I had then done, as the epitaph is now nearly undecipherable. I had two objects in view—the one, to hand down to posterity a description of this saintly and self-sacrificing life; and the other, to show that in those remote days here, there were Irishmen in our midst possessed of a fund of profound learning that is not to be found, generally speaking, in the present day, notwithstanding our vaunted higher education and all that is supposed to follow it. These Irishmen who, at that time, were scattered all over the island, were men of polished culture and education. In the classics they were masters, and their knowledge of ancient history was not a smattering. They knew the history and the literature of the ancients thoroughly, and were perfectly conversant with the English literature of their own day. Whatever records we have possessed from them amply testified to this fact. The following is a facsimile of the inscription I refer to above, and will be of advantage to the future ecclesiastical history of our country, now in course of preparation by the Hon. Justice Kent:

IN EXCELSIS DEO

PIONEERS OF AGRICULTURE.

When the Irish youngsters arrived on our shores they prosecuted the codfishery, as well as the herring fishery, and in time managed to secure sufficient land upon which to build houses, and raised sufficient vegetables, potatoes, cabbage, etc., as would meet their requirements. They were indeed the pioneers of Agriculture in this country, and even to-day, in the various outports, as well as in St. John's, are to be found remains of stone walls, the stones of which were removed from the earth by the brawny arms of the early Irishmen as they determined to dig out a living for themselves in the New Land, which was denied them in the Old. These great walls mark the great march of agriculture in our island as the Celtic Cross marks that of Religion in the Old Land. Those hardy and industrious people combined fishing and farming, and ere many years after their arrival had erected comfortable homes and reared large families. As time rolled on, they procured small schooners and chased the codfish and seals to more distant resorts, until in the early part of the past century, we find them settling for the summer months on the stormy and hitherto unknown coast of Labrador. I know for a fact that those Irishmen fished at Grady and other parts of the Labrador coast previous to 1810, and I was well acquainted with a descendant of one of those hardy pioneers, who was a nonagenarian, and could, if asked, have given the historians sufficient facts of the lives and adventures of the early Irish settlers to fill a very large volume and a very interesting one also. As they were the pioneers in Agriculture, so they were in the fisheries, and one has only to look up the past records of our shipping fleet, connected with both seal and codfisheries to be convinced of this fact, as he will there find the names of the Walshes, Houlihanes, Ryans, Fitzgeralds, Lynchs, Mullownys, Morans, Dwyers, Gerrans, Murphys, Macleays, Kiellys, Barrons, Malones, Mackeys, Thomes, O'Briens, Hallerans, Jackmans, Nowlans, Greens, Costigans, Wades, O'Keefes, McCarthys, Byrnes, Kellys, Burkes, Sheas, Silvies, Feehans, Duggans, Stapletons, O'Neills, and Doyley, whose thorough knowledge of their dangerous avocation placed them in the front rank, and who were the means of placing Newfoundland in that proud position which she holds to-day—the first fishing country in the World.

SUCCESSFUL SEAL KILLERS.

At the Seal-fishery, until the end of the sixties, Irishmen commanded our most expensive and well built vessels, and in many cases they were either the owners, or at least part owners, and proved themselves to be some of the most successful seal-killers in the country's history. Many of them were of profound learning and sound practical knowledge, as well as great physical strength. No hardship could weary them, and no dangers could terrify them. Their word was their bond, and, even in my own time, I have seen bargains struck which involved hundreds of pounds, in some cases; all by word of mouth, and never was it known that their word of honour was broken, or that a lawyer made a five cent piece in drawing up an agreement, which would be, of course, interspersed ed with whereas, and whereas, etc. They were held in high respect and confidence by the merchants.

EXponents OF LIBERTY.

As mechanics their work lives after them, and the various public buildings, as well as private residences, which have been placed under the master hands of the early Irish masons, carpenters, etc., are there to-day—the stone and brick work especially as firm and intact as it was seventy, eighty and even one hundred years ago. In every branch of the public service, as well as trade and commerce, the Irish took a most prominent place, and it is to them, to a very great extent, that we owe the political and religious liberty that we exercise to-day—the former won by the untiring exertions of such men as Kent, Little, O'Brien, Morris, and others, and the latter by the firm stand taken by that illustrious prelate and liberal-minded Irishman, Rt. Rev. Michael Anthony Fleming, fourth bishop of St. John's, his predecessors being Bishops O'Donnel, Lambert and Scallan. Political and religious freedom was denied them in their own country, being hounded down by the emissaries and mercenaries of a tyrannical Government, and knowing from bitter experience the terrible sufferings of a people subjected to such unchristian persecution, upon their arrival in this country they exercised all their energies and inherent abilities to place our people of all classes and all creeds upon an equal footing, and it was their successful efforts that have brought forth such result to-day, where we live in our own land in peace, happiness and prosperity, each and every one of us exercising our rights as British subjects and peace-loving christians. #### An Amusing Point.

Here is an amusing point, says the Liverpool Weekly Post. The last time the King opened Parliament in State was in 1914. Then the secretary to the Address in the House of Commons was the present Solicitor-General, Sir Gordon Hewart. In his speech he emphasised our improving relations with Germany, and paid a great tribute to the international foresight of our Foreign Office. Six months later we were involved in the big war. So much for legal foresight, inspired by Ministerial coaching, for the proposer and seconder are always semi-officially "instructed." One point of ten misunderstood may once and for all be cleared up; it is not necessary that either of these selected young speakers should thus be making their maiden speeches, though on this matter one of the permanent officials of the House was mistaken this week, for he laid down the erroneous dictum that this was essential.

CROWN PRINCE'S OFFER.
A letter purporting to be from the German ex-Crown Prince is published in an Amsterdam paper. The writer states that he has sent telegrams to the Kings of Britain, Belgium and Italy, the Presidents of France and the United States, and the Emperor of Japan urging the impossibility for Germany to find a Government able to meet the Allies' demands in regard to the surrender of persons for trial. The ex-Crown Prince declared in his telegram that the consequences for all Europe would be immeasurable if the demands were persisted in and carried through by force, and offered himself for trial as ex-heritor to the throne in place of those who had only served their country in time of war. It is whispered in diplomatic circles that there has been a considerable migration of Germans on the wanted list to Russia lately. It would also be no surprise to hear that there has been a considerable migration of war criminals to Scandinavia as well as Switzerland. These developments are not being overlooked by the law officers engaged in carrying out the punishment clauses of the Peace Treaty. In a competent official source it is said that a German counter-list of persons they allege to be guilty of international acts and offences against international law committed by Allied soldiers is ready and printed and will be published shortly.—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

By SIR BERTRAM WINDLE, F.R.S. (in Lloyd's Magazine.)

THIS earth of ours had a beginning, whatever that beginning may have been, though as to the exact nature of that beginning, as was shown in a previous article, there is some difference of opinion, and there is little doubt that it will have an end, at least, as a place of habitation for living things. In this, it falls in with the lot of other parts of the universe, as to which a recent writer has said that "the picture which physics exhibit to us is that of the universe as a clock running down, of an ultimate physical death." We will not stay to consider how the clock was wound up, nor shall we linger over any of the suggestions which have been made as to the possibility of its being rewound; it is with the way in which it may run down that we are here concerned. If the earth is indeed to become once more what it was in the beginning, a place unfit for living things, how may this take place?

The possible advent of another Glacial Period is the first thing which occurs to one. Many people have seen glaciers for themselves, and it may be assumed that those who have not have at least seen pictures of them, and have a fair idea of what they look like. Most people have heard of the Glacial Period, and will be at least aware that there was a period in the history of the earth when the extent of the glaciers was much greater than it now is, a period during which not only the British Isles, but Scandinavia, Northern Germany, and almost the whole of European Russia as well as nearly half of Northern America were covered by huge and thick sheets of ice. It has been calculated that the thickness of the sheet amounted to about one mile in Europe, and from one to three in North America. It is needless to say that human existence was impossible in those areas and at that time.

Most geologists believe that there have been four such Glacial Epochs, separated from one another by genial intervals, such as that in which we are now living.

In each of these epochs enormous glaciers descended upon the face of the earth, and, slowly moving, acted like gigantic planes, shaving off the surface of the land, and depositing their spoils in the shape of rubbish-heaps or moraines which testify today to the happenings of long ago. There is a good deal of difference of opinion as to the dates of these epochs and even as to the date of the termination of the last, as to which calculations should be more possible than as to the earlier occurrences. One eminent authority says that "large areas in Europe and North America which are now principal centres of civilisation were buried under glacial ice thousands of feet thick while the civilisation of Babylonia was at its heyday," that is, some six thousand years ago.

As to the cause of these glacial epochs there is great difference of opinion, and since it must be frankly admitted that we do not know why they made their appearance, or why they disappeared, we have no means of knowing whether or not another is on its way; indeed, some have thought that another five thousand years may see the advent of a fifth Glacial Period. We do not seem as yet to have reached the maximum of the present interval, since the glaciers of to-day still seem to be shrinking. So far as we know, no glacial invasion has ever occupied the entire surface of the land, so that it is unlikely that any fresh incursion of ice would render the whole earth uninhabitable, but nothing is more possible than that it might drive out all life from these islands, from North America and other parts of the world, and ultimately entirely obliterate all traces of the great civilisations which once flourished in those areas. Nor would there be any conceivable method of resisting the approaches of this inexorable foe. Nothing would remain but flight, and, should such a fate once more befall the world, there would be a repetition of those scenes of emigration of human beings and of living things which archaeologists tell us occurred in earlier days. What, however, we are considering is not a mere partial or temporary episode, vast though it might be, but the end of the world as a place of habitation for living things as we know them.

To begin with, then, many have supposed that the earth is slowly cooling down and tending towards the condition mentioned in the previous paragraph. What is there to be said for this theory? In considering it, it will be useful to dwell for a moment on the history of the moon, so far as it can be conjectured by us. Sir George Darwin has shown that there was a time when our satellite was quite close to the earth; only a few thousand miles off, in fact, instead of some quarter of a million. Perhaps it may have been actually detached from our globe—cast out of it as a single mass of matter by our rapidly rotating planet. At any rate, the moon and the earth seem to have been close to one another and to have rotated together as if they were parts of one rigid body, so that the day and the month were then of the same length, namely, about three to five hours.

It may be assumed that the moon then possessed an atmosphere similar to ours—a point of some importance, since it has now none. To complete the history of the moon, we are told that it slowly receded from the earth—the length of the month becoming proportionately greater and that of the day also—until things came to their present condition, when the lunar month occupies 27.3 days. We are also informed that the day is slowly growing longer, like the month, but more rapidly. After the lapse of many years the day and the month will once more become equal, but instead of being only a few hours, their joint period will be about fifty-five of our present twenty-four hour days. When matters have reached that stage the moon will begin to revert slowly to her first position, and will finally return to the earth from which she may have sprung.

Such are the events foretold by astronomers. Now let us for a moment consider the present condition of the moon. Most people have looked at it, if not through a large telescope, at least through a pair of good field-glasses, and will know what a splendid and thoroughly satisfying object it is—one of the things which is better in itself than in any picture when the sky is really clear. Of course, we only see one face, or a very little more, of the moon, but there is no reason to suppose that the face which is hidden from us but may be visible to astronomers—if any then exist—millions of years hence in any way differs from that which is familiar to us.

When the moon is examined through a telescope it looks as if it had suffered from a severe attack of small-pox, for its surface is covered by a number of irregularly distributed pits. Some persons have suggested that these resulted from bombardments by meteors, and others have thought that they may have been the effects of the bursting of bubbles in the molten mass of the early days of the moon. The general opinion, however, of astronomers is that these pits are the craters of volcanoes long since extinct. On our planet, besides active volcanoes, there are the remains of others which have been out of operation for many years, yet which are quite recognisable for what they were once. There are marked differences between these and the volcanoes of the moon, but in spite of this astronomers are all in favor of the volcanic explanation of the features of the moon.

Gazing upon it through a telescope, one of the things which can scarcely fail to strike any observer of the face of the moon is the general radiance and brightness of the scene and the exceeding sharpness of the shadows cast by the different elevations. This we may attribute to the absence of an atmosphere, a fact which is rendered obvious by the behaviour of stars when the moon passes in front of them, and without any of that previous dimming which would occur if they had to encounter the influences of an atmosphere. No one has ever seen any trace of a cloud over the moon, nor any effects of water in any of its forms on its face.

From these things we may feel quite clear that our satellite is incapable of supporting anything which we should recognise as life; in fact, it is absolutely cold, and, so to speak, dead.

Yet, according to the nebular theory, or even the most meteoric theory, the moon is composed of like materials to those of our earth, of which, as we have seen, some have thought that it may once have formed a part. As it glows with no light of its own, but only with the reflected radiance of the sun, we cannot examine it spectroscopically as we can those heavenly bodies which have their own luminosity, but no one has ever suggested that there is likely to be any marked difference of composition between the earth and its satellite, or between it and the other heavenly bodies which have been studied in the manner indicated. Hence the question arises as to whether what has happened to the moon may not also happen to the earth, and that planet also cool down and lose its atmosphere and become a "has been" of the skies.

Such, in fact, was the fate predicted for this earth until the discovery of radium and radium-activity came to disturb things here as in other corners of the scientific field. Hence, though the cooling down theory is not finally discredited, there is another and very widely differing theory which is put forward by those who have made a study of radio-activity.

This we may now briefly consider. Radium—though no doubt in very minute quantities—exists in most of the solid materials of the earth's crust, and radium is capable of disengaging a good deal of heat; it can, in fact, produce sufficient heat every hour to raise its own bulk of water from freezing to boiling point. Moreover, it is not the only radio-active substance known. The process of radiation must have been going on for a long time, but there is no obvious sign of its coming to an end.

The heat thus produced at the surface, as well as that which reaches

Nothing Else Ever Helped Him, Says Bob Young

Was All Run Down When He Began Taking Tanlac—Gains Twelve Pounds.

"I have actually gained twelve pounds in weight and that is surely proof of what Tanlac has done for me," said Robert A. Young, of McDougall Street, St. John's, when in M. Connors' Drug Store the other day. "Bob" as he is familiarly known to his friends, works in the office of The Daily Star, and his case is still another demonstration of the fact that Tanlac is a most powerful reconstructive tonic and tissue builder. He made the following interesting facts known to the Tanlac representative and gladly assented to their being published.

"I have been more or less sick for about a year and really was completely run down. I had no appetite and scarcely ate enough to keep me alive. You can imagine how thin I was when I tell you that I only weighed a hundred and six pounds. I couldn't sleep at all well at night, and I never seemed to have enough strength for the day's work. I was losing all interest in life and felt that it wouldn't be long before my folks collected my life insurance money. I didn't consult a doctor because I didn't know there was anything definitely wrong with me. I just tried my energy, and felt as though I wanted some good medicine to give me strength.

"I tried quite a number of tonics but they didn't seem to do me any good. Hearing that so many people were getting good results from Tanlac I thought I would try a bottle. In but a few days I began to feel stronger. I found that my appetite increased enormously and I began to get better sleep at night. I have just finished my second bottle and up to the present I have actually gained twelve pounds and I'm feeling dandy. I am only too pleased to speak of my experience with Tanlac and shall speak a good word for it wherever I can."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv.

the surface from lower depths by ready conduction is, like all other waste heat, radiated off and becomes ineffective for all purposes. But what about the occurrences at greater depths? Is there any radium there, or do any radio-active manifestations take place there? There was probably a sorting out of materials during the molten condition of the earth's crust. Were the radioactive substances all or mostly sorted out into the superficial layers? It is hard, perhaps impossible, to say. One eminent observer has made a number of calculations which go to prove in the first place that if the interior of the earth to a depth of only fifty miles contains radio-active substances in an amount proportionate to those of the samples of the crust which he examined, the heat which they must generate would be ample to make good any loss of heat which could occur on account of the cooling down process of which we have been speaking.

But he further claims that if the entire of the interior of the earth was as rich in radium as we know the exterior to be, then the surface of the earth ought to be a great deal hotter than it is, always supposing that radium in these deeper regions can exert the same effects as in the shallower, and that there is perfect conductivity throughout, a fact which some consider to be very doubtful.

In this connection it may be well to remind readers that "rich" is perhaps a somewhat misleading term to apply, having regard to the fact that pitchblende, which supplies more radium than any other mineral, only contains one part in every four millions. Further, it must be borne in mind that all we know about radium and radio-activity is but of yesterday, and that doubtless there is far more yet to be found out than has so far come to the knowledge of scientific observers.

Suppose, however, that there is radium at these lower depths, and that it there displays the activities with which we have become familiar in recent years; and suppose again that there is no perfect conductivity or anything like it; all of which things are not impossible according to those who have studied the matter, what then?

The result of that state of affairs would be that some of the heat evolved must be stored up where it is produced, and thus must be making the duced, and thus must be making the bowels of the earth progressively hotter and hotter.

That is not a process which can go on for ever; that is obvious. Professor Joly, whose interesting calculations as to the bearings of the saltiness of the sea on the question of its age were dealt with in another article, has also been exercising his ingenuity in this matter. He calculates that if there are two parts of radium and the corresponding uranium in every million million parts of the globe—and that is less than the average found in the surface materials—the temperature of the globe must increase by 1,800 degrees C. in one hundred million years. What that means is that at some point or another the world must explode and burst into bits. When that event would take place would depend upon the resisting power of the crust, but it must come sooner or later.

Why has it not come before? Some would say that it has happened before, perhaps more than once; that is to say, that some pre-existing body has burst into fragments which, reinforced or not by meteoric fragments, have consolidated once more to form our planet. Overcooling or overheating, such seem to be the alternatives. Which—if either—is the true solution, he would be a very rash or a very wise man who could say to-day. It does not concern us nor our children nor their children, for either of the events is spoken of in those terms of millions of years with which geologists delight to juggle. It is probable that we may experience another Glacial Epoch, perhaps even several epochs, before the final curtain.

BRITTON AND LEONARD.

Regardless of what chance he would have in a return match with Jack Dempsey, big Fred Fulton is getting very busy. As the leading contender, Fulton is rolling up a formidable record in various parts of the ring with men who have no chance at all with him.

Fulton cannot be blamed for meeting these set-ups, since none of the big names care to take a chance with him. A time it looked as though Fulton's ring career had been brought to a premature end because of his ill-considered remarks concerning his quick exit at the hands of Dempsey at Carson. But when Dempsey proposed to forget all about his previous record and to fight as an active champion, ring promoters turned to Fulton as the only heavyweight capable of meeting all comers.

It is remarkable how well Fulton fares in a financial way as a result of his bouts in the smaller cities of the country. He can average one week without straining himself in the least, and his end always worth more than some of the older fighters got for championship battles. At the present time Fulton has not a single opponent in the world, for there is no generous opponent hounding him for a match. That condition may not last long, however, as one of the new names in the heavyweight division may be running him a close second.

CHANGE IN COURT SUGGESTED.

London—A. G. Hales, one of the ablest and best known sporting writers in the world, has sprung a new one on the Queensbury game. Mr. Hales contributed an article to The National News of London recently, suggesting that the ten-round count-out rule be abolished and that fifty seconds be substituted. Mr. Hales' article in part follows:

"Boxing is a great sport; it is now recognized as one of the principal pastimes in the most important centres of the world. It can be classified as the 'sport of sports,' as horseracing has long been nominated as the 'sport of kings.' Boxing is, par excellence, a young man's game, and a very splendid game when carried out under proper conditions, for it demands much in the way of self-restraint from its votaries.

"To be a successful boxer, either amateur or professional, a man must live a clean life. Every fight fought with the gloves is a 'warmer in action'—each battle cries aloud to the thousands looking on: 'Live like real men; be clean, control the beast that is in you; muzzle your appetites, both of flesh and spirit.'

"There is another side to boxing, quite apart from the sporting side. I refer to boxing as a business, and it is a business of great and growing importance. When we see purses verging upon $500,000 put up by promoters of championship events, we must realize that boxing is a business. And as far as the financial element is concerned, it is the most important business connected with athletic sports.

Big Purse Justified.

"Are these great prizes justified? Yes, by all the laws that govern supply and demand they are justified, every man is worth what he can draw, not a cent more or less. Caruso gets a small fortune for singing one night. If there were fifty Carusos in the world he would not get a tenth of his present salary; he would not stand alone, he would not draw the public, and it is the public that pays.

"Both Dempsey and Carpenter have achieved fame. They will draw a vast crowd to watch their fight, and the crowd provides the purse, not the promoter. It is morally certain there will be a goodly sum left over after the 'purses' deducted to recompense the 'promoter' for his energy and outlay. This is business—legitimate business. So there is nothing for the public, this promoter, or the fighters to cavil at. The game is wide open, and all know what they are doing.

"But now I am right up against the problem which is the root cause of this article: 'Are the rules that govern present-day boxing satisfactory to promoters, fighters or the public? I say emphatically they are not, and I have no hesitation in asserting that unless the most important rule of all, the 'knock out' rule, is quickly altered, boxing as a public pastime is going to die as wrestling and foot-running have done. The public is sick to death of paying big money to watch one-found fights.

"No man, living can make sure that a battle between two big men is going to last more than a few seconds while we cling to the essence of the Queensbury rules, and the essence of these rules is that a man shall be counted out when down ten seconds.

Wrong in Principle.

"In informal bouts in mining camps, where rules don't count for much, if both men are willing I have been 'dropped' many a time, and in twenty or five-and-twenty seconds have been able to go on and enjoy myself, but ten seconds—just take your watch in your hand and see what a fraction of time it is. Ten seconds, and the championship of the world and $500,000 hanging on it! No my friends; it is wrong. It is wrong in principle, wrong in fact; it is going to kill professional boxing.

"Our fathers knew better than we know in this respect. They gave a man a half minute when knocked down in which to recover, and the result was they got good battles in return for their money. I am no slavish believer in things past, but in some matters the 'Old Brigade' could teach us a thing or two; and this is one of them. No sound, thoroughly fit man can be beaten by one punch if he's game, providing he has a reasonable time in which to pull himself together.

"Is the ten-second limit a reasonable time? It is not. A jolt on the chin properly applied will drop the gamest and fittest man on earth for that period, and thirty seconds later he may be as fit as a daisy, able and willing to continue the match—but in the meantime he was counted out.
