CHAPTER X
"I feel sure you will understand me, and won't think me presumptuous when I remind you that—that you have a great responsibility in this business—I mean Lord Gaunt's return."

"I—I do understand," said Decima, but faintly.
"Well, I scarcely understand it myself," said Mr. Bright, with a puzzled air, "but I can't help thinking that I would not have resolved to stay on—in fact, that he would have been off to Africa—but for something you said. I didn't catch what passed, but that's my impression. And about this promise of yours; you'll admit that—that it's most important that he should be induced to remain, to settle here, God gracious me, it will be the saving, the making of the place, the people! It will turn this God-forsaken hole into a prosperous village. Just look around you!" He waved his hand in a semicircle. "See those cottages? There isn't one that doesn't need repairing. Most of 'em ought to come down. They're not fit to live in. They're fever dens. There's no proper water supply; drainage awful; no ventilation. I want a score of new cottages, decent ones, put up. Lord Gaunt will do it if he settles here, and if—if you'll help him."

"If I help him?" No wonder Decima shrunk back and opened her eyes upon him.
"Yes," he said, earnestly. "It's a fancy of his—call it that if you like. But isn't it your duty—yes, I'll go so far as to say your duty—to encourage him, to help me to get what I want? I'm sure you are a good, kind-hearted girl—I beg your pardon. You see how carried away I am, Miss Deane," he broke off, apologetically. "What I mean is that any one of us, any of the county people, his neighbors, one one with any sense of what ought to be—and nothing is as it ought to be here—would do what I ask you to do. You look sweet and charitable and tender-hearted. Just think! Wouldn't you do a little—no, a great deal—to see these people properly housed, to bring prosperity to the village, to find work for the unemployed, to—to save Lord Gaunt himself?"

"I will speak to my brother—he must help me," said Decima; and she hurried on. There seemed no escaping this strange responsibility. She realized this more fully the next morning when Mr. Bright came up for her. The man from the famous decorators in London had come down. She went with Bobby, who had a morning off, to the Hall.
"I—I hope I am doing right, Bobby," she said, as they entered and made their way through a small crowd of workmen, and the mess and lumber which they can so quickly produce.
"Oh, that's all right," said Bobby, carefully. "You and Bright and this awful swell"—as he caught sight of the gentleman from London—"can work your wild will and squander Lord Gaunt's cash while I smoke a cigarette in the gallery. He must be an awful flat to intrust a woman with the spending of his money, and it will serve him right if you ruin him."
"Bobby don't tease me, or I shall cry!" she said, smiling rather fitfully.
"Oh, go on! You know you're enjoying yourself!" he retorted.
The gentleman with the patterns got to business at once, and presently Decima found herself surrounded by squares of silks and satins, and tapestry, and little models of decorations. He was kind enough to advise when she was in doubt, and gracious enough to commend her taste.
"Admirable, madame," he said. "You could not have done better. This room will be as perfect as it could be. And now for the library"—he looked round the room with a compassionate air.

"I Wonder Would It Help Me?"

THIS question has been answered by many thousands of women who have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Sleeplessness, irritability, nervousness, gloomy forebodings of the future, depression and discouragement—these are some of the symptoms which tell of exhausted nerves.

In order to avoid nervous prostration or some form of paralysis it is well to get the building up process established at once by use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Decima turned crimson, then very pale.

"I beg your pardon!" he stammered. "My feelings carried me away. But it's no more than the truth. You will save Lord Gaunt if you will only consent to humor this whim of his. I put it at its least, you see. If you refuse, it's as likely as not that he will get tired, disgusted, with the bother and the fuss, and rush off, and we may not see him or hear of him again for years; and away—poof!—will vanish all my dreams of raising the village to a decent level, and—and this, I'm ashamed to say, is more to me—of seeing Lord Gaunt settled down on his own place, and happy." He mopped his brow and furtively passed his red handkerchief over his eyes.

"What do you want me to do?" asked Decima; and her voice was very still.
Mr. Bright caught eagerly at the assent in her tone.
"Just this," he said. "I've wired to London for a man to come down with patterns for curtains and—and all that kind of thing, and he will be here to-night or to-morrow. Now, I don't understand anything about them, but you—will you see him and tell him what to do? Lord Gaunt relies on you, and I'm sure will like anything you choose."

"But my father—I must ask him," said Decima.

"That's all right," he said, quickly. "I'm going up to The Woodbines to see about some repairs—your father has asked me about them some time ago, but of course I couldn't do anything. Last night, however, Lord Gaunt gave me full permission to do anything and everything. I'll speak to your father. I'll go at once. I shall meet you coming back. Thank you—thank you! You don't know, you can't fully understand, the service you are doing all of us—these poor people—Lord Gaunt himself."

He was off before she could say a word, and she walked on, not a little troubled and uncertain. She could scarcely realize the significance of the thing she had promised. A few days ago she was just Aunt Pauline's "little girl," and now she was responsible for the welfare of a whole village—and the salvation of a man!
She came to the church—the tiny church half choked with ivy—and leaning on the gate, gazed at it. Like the cottage, the whole place, it had a neglected air. The living was small, the vicar an old man and poor. The man who ought to have kept it for God's house had forgotten it. And she could help him to remember it, and induce him to care for it!

She turned back, with bent head, and just outside the village met Mr. Bright.

"I've seen Mr. Deane," he said, with a rather bewildered and puzzled air—most persons came from an interview with Mr. Deane puzzled and bewildered. "An extraordinary man, your father, my dear young lady—extraordinary! Er—er—he says, yes; I'm sure he said that you should do as you pleased. And you will help us, will you not?"

"I will speak to my brother—he must help me," said Decima; and she hurried on. There seemed no escaping this strange responsibility. She realized this more fully the next morning when Mr. Bright came up for her. The man from the famous decorators in London had come down. She went with Bobby, who had a morning off, to the Hall.

"I—I hope I am doing right, Bobby," she said, as they entered and made their way through a small crowd of workmen, and the mess and lumber which they can so quickly produce.

"Oh, that's all right," said Bobby, carefully. "You and Bright and this awful swell"—as he caught sight of the gentleman from London—"can work your wild will and squander Lord Gaunt's cash while I smoke a cigarette in the gallery. He must be an awful flat to intrust a woman with the spending of his money, and it will serve him right if you ruin him."

"Bobby don't tease me, or I shall cry!" she said, smiling rather fitfully.

"Oh, go on! You know you're enjoying yourself!" he retorted.

The gentleman with the patterns got to business at once, and presently Decima found herself surrounded by squares of silks and satins, and tapestry, and little models of decorations. He was kind enough to advise when she was in doubt, and gracious enough to commend her taste.

"Admirable, madame," he said. "You could not have done better. This room will be as perfect as it could be. And now for the library"—he looked round the room with a compassionate air.

"Not much comfort here," he said, "if I may say so."

"Lord Gaunt cares nothing for his own comfort," said Bright. "He is used to sleeping under a tent in the desert, or without a tent for that matter. Better leave the room alone, perhaps."

Decima looked round rather pensively.

"Couldn't there be an easy-chair?" she said, timidly.
"Certainly," said the gentleman, making a rapid note. "I know the kind of thing you'd like. A club-chair; a really easy chair; most of them are uneasy. And some new curtains. This is the kind of thing. Yes."

So it went on for hours, amidst the clatter of the workmen's hammers and the click of chisels, the tearing of paper, and the slapping of the whitewash brushes.

"But—but will not all this cost a great deal of money?" said Decima.

The gentleman smiled.

"We'll, rather a large sum, perhaps," he admitted; "but a mere nothing to his lordship; eh, Mr. Bright?"

Mr. Bright nodded cheerfully.

"Money's no object," he said. "Don't be in the least alarmed, Miss Deane."

Decima got away at last and went home. She had a little headache, and felt bewildered and uncertain.

"If Lord Gaunt should be displeased," she said to Bobby, "I should die with—with shame!"

"Not you," he remarked. "Nobody dies of that complaint, especially young women. Now, if it had been I who had had the ineffable cheek to pull a man's house to pieces and spend a fortune in sticking it together again—"

"Oh, Bobby, don't!" and her voice quavered.

"You goose! I'm only chaffing. Lord Gaunt will be no end grateful, and he ought to be; for, from what I saw, I should say you have a good deal of taste—as the man remarked of the bad oyster. Don't you worry, or you'll spoil those eyes of yours, and they're not bad looking—when you're asleep."

CHAPTER XI

The excitement in the village increased as the days went on and the work at the Hall progressed. Great packing-cases were continually arriving from London; sometimes accompanied by gentlemanly looking men, who exchanged their smart clothes for white blouses when they reached the Hall, which they proceeded to renovate and beautify with a skill and rapidity which, to quote Bobby, "knocked the sawdust out of the Stretton workmen."

One morning Decima on her way through the village met a string of horses and carriages in charge of a couple of smart grooms and a stately coachman; and she stood for a moment near the admiring group of villagers who had collected to stare at them.

"Like the old times, miss," said Mr. Cobbet, the builder, with a satisfied jerk of the head toward the long procession, and the hostler at the Gaunt Arms expressed his approval in characteristic fashion.

"Never see a better lot, miss," he remarked, knowingly. "His lordship's a judge of horses, whatever else he be. You'll have to hurry up with them stables, Mr. Cobbet."

The interest and excitement were not confined to the village. The Roborough "Gazette"—Roborough was the nearest market-town—came out with a long paragraph announcing Lord Gaunt's return; and an especial leader in which it rejoiced, in a column and a half, over the fact that "the representative of the oldest and most honored family in the country had decided to take his place among us once again, and so set flowing that tide of prosperity which ever flows in the wake of our great nobility. Lord Gaunt's presence," it remarked, "will be welcomed not only by the pretty village in which his ancestral home is set, but by the county at large. May that welcome convey to him how deeply his absence has been deplored, and how fervently it is hoped that he may remain in our midst."

And notwithstanding the weakness of the grammar, the editor expressed very fairly the general sentiment.

It is a misfortune for such a place as Leamore to be closed, and the county rejoiced in the news of Lord Gaunt's return.

International Commission on Fisheries

Canada Newfoundland and United States to hold Investigation--Starvation Only Will Defeat British Miners--Wrangel Defeats Bolsheviks--Mr. J. M. Devine Contradicts Mr. Brookes.

HOPE LOW.
LONDON, Oct. 15. Although two days remain in which some unexpected turn may be given to the alarming situation created by the decision of the miners to strike, hope at the moment is at a low ebb. All reports from the mine fields show a majority of the miners are determined to have nothing to do with the wage proposal of the owners and are ready even eager to fight it out. "There is a better spirit among the men," said Herbert Smith, Vice-President of the Miners' Federation today. "If the Government refuses to give way only starvation will defeat the miners and they will go back then discontented."

TO CARRY-ON MARINE FISHING INVESTIGATION.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. Canada, Newfoundland and the United States are to appoint three members each on an international committee on Marine Fishery Investigation under an agreement reached at an informal conference held last month at Ottawa. The conference also recommended that the international committee establish contact with permanent international council for exploration of the sea.

GENERAL STRIKE IN ITALIAN CITIES.
ROME, Oct. 15. A general strike has been declared in Trieste, Bologna, and Brescia, the Messenger announces to-day.

WRANGLER OVERTHROWING BOLSHEVİK RESISTANCE.
SEBASTOPOL, Oct. 15. General Wrangel's advance across the Dnieper is proving successful in spite of the stubborn Bolshevik resistance and counter movements by the Bolsheviks in the direction of Pologu station on the northwestern front.

WRANGLER'S SUCCESS.
PARIS, Oct. 15. The offensive begun by the forces of General Wrangel, anti-Bolshevik leader in South Russia, on the right bank of the Dnieper has been pursued successfully, says an official statement issued by the Wrangel Administration Monday and received here to-day. "We defeated sixteenth and twenty-first Regiments of Bolshevik cavalry and part of the third division of sharpshooters." The statement adds, "we captured six cannons and other booty."

TO AID CHINA.
NEW YORK, Oct. 15. A final consortium between representatives of banking groups of Great Britain, France, Japan and America for extending financial and economic aid to China was signed to-day by representatives of the various groups at their meeting at the Chamber of Deputies of New York State.

BIG REVOLT REPORTED IN MOSCOW.
ZURICH, Oct. 15. According to an announcement of the German Foreign Minister a great revolt is reported to have started in Moscow. Kremlin territory is declared to have been invaded.

THE CAPE BRETON DISPUTE.
INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 15. Hope for a peaceful settlement of the difference between Miners and Operators in district No. 26, comprising all the Nova Scotia Local Unions of the United Mine Workers of America was expressed to-day by John Lewis, International President. Lewis said the strike as yet had not been called and the miners were still ready to negotiate.

BOMB THROWING IN RIO.
RIO JANEIRO, Oct. 15. One person was killed and twenty persons were injured as a result of the explosion of an anarchist bomb here last night. The bomb was thrown into the Central Railway Station.

CHECKING UP COAL SUPPLIES.
LONDON, Oct. 15. Foreign shipping officials here were told by the British Coal Controllers' Department this afternoon that the order issued prohibiting the coaling of foreign ships was issued to enable the checking up of available supplies. Officials were given assurance that after this had been done passenger and mail carriers would receive first consideration in the allocation of stocks on hand. Orders also were issued that there would be consideration against foreign shipping in these classes.

MR. DEVINE'S OPINION.
OTTAWA, Oct. 15. J. M. Devine, member of the Civic Commission for Newfoundland, who is a delegate to the Convention of the Self-Determination for Ireland League and who arrived in the city to-day, declares that the much talked about industrial depression in Newfoundland does not exist.

WILL TIGHTEN FUEL IN U.S.A.
NEW YORK, Oct. 15. The impending strike of British coal miners together with the precautionary embargo order on exports and bunker fuel, will tend to tighten the fuel situation in the United States, a steamship man said to-day.

"WET" POTATOES.
SARNIA, Ont., Oct. 15. A United States Secret Service man working in co-operation with authorities on this side of the border, last night stopped a train as it entered the Sarnia tunnel and on investigation revealed that one car labelled "potatoes" contained a hundred cases of wet goods.

Not of Lordly Birth.
The story is going round the clubs that Lord Curzon was recently praising the lost enchantments of the Middle Ages to Mr. Bonar Law, and wound up by asking him whether he wouldn't have liked to have lived in those far-off, golden days. "No I shouldn't," was the curt reply. "Pray, why not?" inquired Lord Curzon. "Because," said Mr. Bonar Law, "if I had been born in the Middle Ages I should not have been your leader; I should have been your serf!"

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup
Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your drugist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Notes From Brigus.

Miss Clara Jerrett arrived from St. John's on Thursday last.

There passed away, almost suddenly, one of our respected citizens in the person of Mrs. Joseph Fry, on Sunday last, at the age of 73 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thomas Bartlett left for the United States, where they will in future reside with their daughter. Their son, Mr. Joseph Bartlett, accompanied them as far as Millertown.

We notice lately by the papers that apples and other fruits are exhibited on Water Street. But they can't beat Brigus, as Mrs. Thomas Roberts has a Pumpkin weighing 13 lbs. and several of our local farmers have fairly good apples and fruit.

Mr. Ernest Payne and wife arrived here on Monday last to spend their honeymoon.

A gloom was cast over this town on Tuesday when news reached here that one of our fine specimens of manhood, in the person of Michael Fahy, son of Mr. Patrick Fahy, was accidentally hurled into eternity.

The Sagona arrived here on Tuesday morning from Labrador ports, bringing but two passengers for here viz. Mrs. N. Smith and Mr. Ernest Jerrett.

Some of our local farmers have fairly good crops of potatoes this year. Some of them who have no room for them in their cellars, are selling off the field at the rate of $4.00 per barrel.

Master A. Winter, who is attending St. Bonaventure's College, arrived home on Saturday last for a few days.

Mr. E. V. Hall, our local Bank Manager, is off on a brief holiday.

Mr. Michael Appell and his son, Michael, returned home last Sunday from the Labrador, having landed from the S.S. Seal at Spaniard's Bay.

The stork has visited the home of Mr. Peter Fowler the past week and left a son.

Mr. William Cantwell, wife and child left here on Wednesday for Cape Spear to visit the former's parents.

Mr. W. Piercey, of James Baird, Ltd., paid a visit to friends here on Sunday last. Mrs. George Gushue accompanied them back to town and returned by Tuesday evening's train.

Fishermen belonging to this town, having returned from the Labrador, says that the fishery and the price is not what some of our local papers boast of.

Harbor Grace Notes.

The three masted schr. "Felsen," Captain Gushue, arrived in port on Wednesday morning; and after discharging ballast, will go on dock for repairs. Captain William Davis is in town in connection with this schooner.

The schooner "Barbara Barr," Capt. Jno. Snelgrove, did not get away until Wednesday, owing to head winds.

Mr. R. S. Munn has been in the city for the past few days attending to business.

Mr. T. Dunn was among the passengers to arrive here by the S.S. Sagona from Labrador on Wednesday week last, after having spent a very enjoyable summer.

Mr. R. S. Parsons is able to get around again and attend to his duties, after having received treatment in St. John's. His many friends will be pleased to hear this.

During the past few days some more crews have arrived home from the Labrador; and, no doubt, all have now made a start homeward. There are three or four schooners expected here daily; and we trust they will soon get along.

One buyer in town has been taking in small quantities of fish during the past few weeks. Very little of the "white naps" can be seen coming along, but most all No. 2.

Mr. J. J. Winter of Brigus was in town yesterday, on a business visit.

Mr. John Butt, who has been attending to business in connection with H. M. Customs at Blane Sablon for the summer past, returned to town again last week; his seasons duties having been finished at that port.

HOW YOU CAN TELL GENUINE ASPIRIN

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Aspirin—No others!

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.

There is only one Aspirin, that marked with the "Bayer Cross"—all other tablets are only acid imitations. Look for the "Bayer Cross"! Then it is real Aspirin, for which there is no substitute.

Aspirin is not German but is made in America, and is owned by an American Company, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" have been proved safe by millions for Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages, can be had at any drug store.

Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 761), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid-ester of Salicylicacid.

Drives for Soldiers in Hospital.

As the weather is now so uncertain the regular drives for the soldiers in hospital will be discontinued. The men thank all the people who have so kindly taken them out during the summer, and will still appreciate a drive on any fine day.

Telegraph Lines Repaired.

The repairs on the Placentia and Gander Bay Telegraph lines have been kept busy during the past summer, replacing several hundred poles and rewiring a considerable part of the services. Under the supervision of Messrs. Nicholas Wall and Geo. Saunders the work has now been completed and both lines are in first class condition.

The Stuff That Makes Heroes.

(From the Topeka State Journal.)

Led by a Santa Fe conductor, passengers on board a train at Las Animas rushed a bandit, recovered their valuables, and turned him over to the authorities. For hours, the passengers had been held at bay by the one lone man with a pistol in his hand. Each passenger wanted the bandit captured, but each feared for his own personal safety and dared not make the break toward him. When the train official led the attack, they all joined in. That is the difference between the heroes and the general run, the difference between those who succeed and the man who forgets personal safety in an effort to serve his fellows, the man who dares get out of his rut, who wins and stands out above the common herd.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE KITCHEN BEAUTIFUL.

What sort of a place is your kitchen? Is it a room where you endure the ugly and the routine for a while until you can escape to the pleasanter parts of the house, or is it a place which you have made pleasant and artistic in a way consistent with its utility?

When I was buying a bowl the other day I asked if it were possible to get a blue one instead of the brownish yellow which is the characteristic color of mixing bowls. The owner of the woman who served me it up. "I try to keep everything blue in my kitchen, too," she said. "I don't see why a kitchen shouldn't be pretty just as much as other parts of the house."

her pantry by doing away with all paper bags and such slovenly arrangements, and putting in their place glass jars with bright yellow labels. Since kitchen things become so costly it has been the style to give showers of kitchen utensils as well as linen and china, and these occasions can be made even more auspicious where the bride-to-be is consulted on the color scheme of her kitchen and an effort to produce a harmonious whole is made.

If One Could Only Begin at the Beginning!

Why not, indeed? This clerk was evidently a married woman of limited means, but she evidently had imagination and a love for the beautiful.

Of course one cannot have an ideal kitchen unless one can build it oneself with a view to having everything as convenient and attractive as possible, but one can add some feature at no great cost that will transform an impossible room into a possible one—a window over the sink at which the housewife must stand so many hours (or sit, the new housewife knows that she can often save herself this way) is one feature.

Unnecessary Utensils. I would like to go into her kitchen and love any kitchen in which the desire to do away with unnecessary ugliness manifests itself.

Perhaps some of my reader friends will want to tell the rest of them, through me, of some small ways in which they have made their kitchen more useful and more beautiful. I hope so.

The Four-Leaved Clover

In another little cottage kitchen, curtains of blue checked gingham and a red geranium on the sill between, have given a touch of color that has made the kitchen twice as livable a place as it was before.

Even in Druidic worship, in pre-Christian times, the trefoil leaves of the clover plant were symbols of religion, setting forth the three grades of Druids, Bards and Neophytes. In Christian mythology its leaf is frequently held to symbolize the Trinity, and some Irish authorities insist that it is the true and original shamrock which St. Patrick used to illustrate how three separate objects, such as leaves, could be one.

Some Artificial Sunshine. Another kitchen, a dark northern room, has been made much more cheerful by bright yellow curtains. The owner of this kitchen had some bleached cotton on hand; she dyed it the desired yellow with a good cotton dye and now she has some imitation sunshine in her room. She has heightened the effect by using one or two bits of yellow pottery that she happened to have on hand and has asked her family to give her more on Christmas and birthdays. She has also brightened up

The four-leaf clover is a freak growth and the causes that produce it are heredity and nutrition. After a moist season clover plants with from four to seven leaves, and some having only two leaves, are found. Some plants are abnormal by heredity, and reproduce themselves with the same characteristics in successive years; when their environment remains the same, external influences merely modifying the size of the leaves.

Brick's Tasteless at Stafford's. Price $1.20 bottle. Postage 20c. extra.—11/19/19.

The four-leaf clover is everywhere held as an omen of good luck to the finder, partly on account of its rarity and partly because of its crosslike form.

These are the joys which life gives to me.

PERIL.
I fear to cross the village street where all the autos wind and mix, for I am shaky on my feet, and can't do a crobatic trick. I tried this morning just for luck to dodge across to Johnson's store, and I got tangled with a truck, and broke three ribs, or maybe more. By modern ways I'm badly bored; I cannot ramble near or far, but some one climbs me with a Ford, or spolls my person with a car. In olden times when horses drew the vehicles in which men rode, a man could walk a verst or two and have no scarp wounds to be sewed. Then one could cross the public way, according to his sane desires, and not be squashed beneath a dray, or wound around some rubber tires. You laugh to scorn the old time ways, the horses and their sluggish gait; but trade went on in those brave days, and people got there just the same. And sports found just as much delight in driving Dexter or Maud S., as speeders in their autos bright, who fill the countr' with distress. I'd like to cross the village street, to have a haircut and shampoo, but I'm no longer bilthe and fleet, I can't outjump a kangaroo.

The World Craves Music.

That nations are individuals in miniature has been proven so often that it has long ago become a truism; but perhaps it has never been indicated more effectively than in the present attitude of the nations of war shattered Europe toward music. From England, France, Belgium and Italy, not less than from Germany, Austria and even Russia comes the same story through the mouths of trustworthy observers returning to this country, as well as through other news channels. "Europe is mad for music," they all say. "No other words will describe the craving that has seized these countries for all its forms." There are tragedies which at their cruellest take from the individual all solace, not to mention any delight, in the loveliest of the arts. "I shall hate sweet music my whole life long," wrote Swinburne in the bitterness of disillusionment, and happy is that human being who has not at least once in his life touched the supreme height of agony when to hear music is an unbearable thing. But as with man so with countries in which disillusionment, far worse than bereavement, has yet followed close on its footsteps. One of the first signs of an ability to take up life once more in healthy human fashion is a returning willingness, even a longing, for the joys of music. And when the flower of charity blooms once more in the soul laid waste by hatred, music is not far off, in races as in individuals.

King Hiram's Tomb.

Now that the horrors of war are over, the interest of all Jews, Gentiles and Freemasons should be roused when they learn of the proposed expedition that has for its object the excavation of the site of the tomb of Hiram, King of Tyre, that has been partly ruined by the Tyrians. For now that the day of the Turk has passed, that of the Bible student and the archaeologist has dawned.

British soldiers occupy Jerusalem, who are unlocking the secrets of Christianity, which also opens the gates of El Sur or Tyre, that now be scientifically explored. This is well worth while, for beneath its soil are remains of valuable prehistoric records. Close to the city the mills are still running that cut the cedars of Lebanon for the house of Solomon, while about two hours' ride to the southeast of Tyre are the remains of the tomb, in fairly good condition, called by the natives "Aber Hiram," that contains, it is said, the ashes of Hiram, King of Tyre. (3 Chronicles, 2:3-11). The excavation of the site may throw light on the history of one of the first three Grand Masters of the Craft of Freemasons.

It is hoped that "Masons' marks" may be found in the cornerstone of the tomb with other important links in the historic chain that connects the Craft with the builders of King Solomon's Temple 1,000 years before the Christian era. Therefore, the brethren should be personally interested in the excavation of the Tomb of Hiram, King of Tyre, as well as Bible students who will find a new field opened to them.—Chaplin Tobin in New York Times.

The fishing schooners' race was a most interesting nautical event. No finer setting could have been chosen and no better theatre could be found anywhere for the staging of a great marine picture. The course, the weather, the racing conditions, the contestants—all combined to make a noteworthy race and to provide a spectacle, stirring in its appeal to the imagination and representative of an important industry of our Province. Congratulations are due to all who contributed to make the first fishing schooner race the splendid success it was, and, not the least, to the intrepid men of Louisburg who demonstrated that the genius of Nova Scotians for the sea still lives.

The Lunenburg skippers have been famous for their seamanship and their daring exploits in the prosecution of their fishing operations. During the contest, their skill in handling their boats under right racing conditions, was put to the test, and they proved themselves masters in the greatest of blue water sports.—Morning Chronicle.

An Innocent (?)
Abroad.

Perhaps the least said about that famous interview had with Mr. H. R. Brookes, in Montreal, and reported in yesterday's Canadian Press despatches, the better. But it would be permitting the President of the Newfoundland Board of Trade, who is also a director of Messrs. Job Brothers & Co., at present one of the Big Three, to have his expressions telegraphed broadcast for the consumption of those who were not acquainted with the actual facts, if his statements were not taken up and discussed. It is quite within the bounds of possibility that Mr. Brookes' interview was arranged. Certainly the alignment of his views was not made on the impulse of the moment, and to all intents and purposes the marshalling of his facts had been previously thought out. Mr. Brookes, to have been quite frank with his Canadian interviewer could have truthfully declared and with more wisdom than he displayed, that the Fish Regulations themselves are to be held responsible for the depression that prevails in Newfoundland at the moment. Mr. Brookes (we write open to correction) was one of the knowledgeable gentlemen who expressed the opinion at a certain meeting—or if he did not so express himself, his ideas coincided with those of others—that to permit West Coast dry fish to be exported in June and July to Portugal was to place that section of the island in undue competition with other parts, which could not possibly get their fish to market until August. A solon-like opinion, which resulted in West Coast shippers being penalized and their cargoes held up for months, some of them being already laden.

Mr. Brookes, in this interview, which will hereafter become famous, "attributes the present depression to political manipulation on the part of opponents of the Export Regulations." Why not tell the actual truth and place the blame where it really belongs. If the Regulations had been good, and made to give the greatest benefit to the greatest number, there would not have been any of the depression which Mr. Brookes alleges to exist. But the regulations were specifically designed to confer extraordinary privileges on a certain class of fish exporters. When the effect of them were felt the industry was paralysed, and the prohibition on moving cargoes from the West Coast immediately terminated in the introduction of a cessation of purchases and a curtailment of supplies. Certainly that was not in consequence of "political manipulation." It may be also asked have the Regulations given the exporters maximum prices? If they have then what about the fishermen? Did they receive maximum prices? Was it not rather to profit the few at the expense of the many that the regulations were enacted? Why is it to-day that parcels of fish are going a-begging on Water Street, with no offer at all, and why is it that the trade generally is suffering from inability to realise quick returns on cargoes? There has been no "political manipulation." Politics do not enter into a discussion of the iniquity of the Fish Regulations so belauded by Mr. Brookes, therefore out of his own mouth is he condemned. The opponents of the measure have been at least honest in their criticisms of the effects produced. They have not introduced politics into the discussion, but have arraigned the sires of an infamous enactment as ever passed a legislature, before the bar of public opinion, and that opinion challenges every statement that Mr. Brookes has made.

Notes and Comments.

The reason an Oyster has no intelligence is because he doesn't travel around and see what's going on.

"I thought you owned an automobile."

"I do, but I taught the wife to drive it, and now I'm back to the street cars."

A fisherman of Catalina in answer to our query of yesterday, informs us that "Mutty" is one of the "under (ground) dogs."

Mr. H. R. Brookes, President of our own Board of Trade, tells Montreal newspapers that "political manipulation" is responsible for the present depression in Newfoundland. Quite so Brother Brookes, but people, whaddya know about such an admission?

It has been stated so persistently and frequently that the expensive appendage known as the Department of Militia, when we have no military forces, is shortly to be closed out, and the present numerous officials paid off, that the ear tires of hearing the repetition.

Recently the Anglican Church at St. Lambert, Que., had been decorated for a wedding, but when the guests had assembled and the bride-to-be ready to enter the church, it was discovered that the bridegroom was missing. Investigation showed that the absent principal—a soldier—had had a recurrence of shell shock and was picked up in an unconscious condition from the street. He was taken to hospital but subsequently got away without being seen. The wedding was postponed.

Flour Shipments Short of Requirements.

So far this season very little flour has been imported and it looks as if there will be a shortage here during the winter. The Canadian Miner and Cornua which arrived here during the week brought only 6000 barrels between them, their cargoes being mostly hay and oats. A falling market and the non-payment of bills due by small dealers is said to have kept importers from ordering the usual fall requirements. Unless larger shipments arrive shortly another serious situation will confront the country. The port of Montreal is closing to trans-Atlantic shipping on November 27th this year and as the coastwise boats finish their work early in December there is not much time to lose.

Will Demand Reasonable Price.

If weather conditions become more favorable it is expected that the northern fleet of fishing schooners will arrive here during next week. About 130 sail of vessels are at the northern ports awaiting a favorable opportunity to sail. When they arrive here it is said that a reasonable price for their catch will be demanded. The demand, it is said, will be made by the men in a body, and arrangements to hold a parade of protest against the price offered were being made more than a week ago.

J. W. Jones, J.P., of Hant's Harbor, is in a precarious condition. His hosts of friends feel anxious concerning him and hope soon to hear that he is on the way to recovery.

Mr. Ella Button, J.P., of New Melbourne, T.B., met with an accident on the 6th inst., by falling over a fence and nearly breaking his leg. The foot and leg were very badly bruised and as a result he has been confined to his home since, suffering intense pain. Dr. Templeton, of Old Perlican, was called and attended the bruised limb.

Merchants Only Buying From Dealers.

During the week a large number of schooners arrived from the Northern Outports with cargoes of fish and oil. A large proportion of the fish is Labrador and is on the whole of a splendid quality and much superior to what had been coming here in recent years. The merchants are for the most part taking the fish only from their dealers and are not inclined to stock up stores full of fish as in former years. In many cases this is unavoidable, as the Banks are not advancing the same liberal amount of money to buy fish as in former years. Besides this, the merchants who have money to buy do not seem inclined to lay in fish in large quantities as formerly, as the present uncertain condition of the market in the Mediterranean leaves them in the position that if they buy largely there may be no outlet for some time, and carrying stores full of fish for six or even three months, involves heavy expense. These are the reasons that it is not easy to sell fish this Fall, especially Labrador.

It is said that the total Labrador catch is upwards of 500,000 quintals, and Italy and Greece were depended on to take about half of this number. It is possible that arrangements will be made in such a way that all this fish will be taken at paying prices within the next five months.—Trade Review.

Received Bunker Supplies.

S.S. Wassenaar, which arrived here Thursday, short of coal, took on board 100 tons. This amount will not carry the ship to her destination and she will have to call at Halifax for the remainder. The captain of the ship is naturally disappointed as it means more delay and expense to the owners as in addition to paying port charges, etc. in St. John's, he will also have to pay the Halifax charges. Yesterday evening the Minister of Shipping wired the fuel controller in Canada asking for the extra coal for the steamer, and late last night the necessary permit was received. The ship was being coal'd this morning and was expected to get away early in the day.

One drunk was discharged on paying cab hire; another drunk was dismissed.

In a case of a serious charge made by one woman against another, a material witness, husband of one of the parties, did not appear, he having gone North, when he found that he was subpoenaed. The constable who served the summons testified that he had served the writ on the witness's brother. The hearing was postponed till Wednesday next.

In a breach of the Prohibition Act preferred against a beer shopkeeper of Water Street the point as to the witness giving the name of the party who informed, was raised by the defence. The point was noted by His Honor for consideration. Three beer bottles of liquor were found on the defendant's premises and according to analysis the liquor was not different from that supplied by the Controller's Department. The burden of proof, as to where the liquor came from, being on the defendant in this case, the charge was dismissed.

In the Magistrate's Court.

Constable S. Churchill vs. Henry Smeaton — Breach of the Street Traffic.

This is a prosecution for a breach of Section 1 of "Street Traffic Regulations" made by Inspector General Hutchings, under the authority of an act to amend Section 21 of Chapter 36 of the Consolidated Statutes, 2nd. Series entitled, "Of Nuisances and Municipal Regulations." The defendant is charged with having driven his motor car on the wrong side of the street.

Regulation 1 reads:—"Vehicles must travel on the left hand side of the road or street. Vehicles moving slowly must be kept as close as possible to the curb or side drain on the left, allowing more swiftly moving vehicles passage on the right."

The evidence of the complainant is that on the morning of the 8th, at the corner of Adelaide St. he saw the defendant, Smeaton, go down in his car in the centre of the street. He continued in the centre of the street pretty nearly all the way down Water Street and drove between the two street car tracks. There was no traffic on the road at the time.

This is the only evidence admitted. Mr. Emerson, B.L., on behalf of the defendant, moves for a dismissal of the charge, contending that "The Nuisance Act and the Common Law provided that vehicles must pass each other coming in opposite directions on the left. When there is no traffic on the road there is no rule of the road. The Inspector General had no authority to change the Statute Law of the Country."

The only Statute Law we have as to the rule of the road is contained in Section 24 of "The Nuisance and Municipal Regulations Act," which enacts that vehicles "shall, by the person in charge of the same, on meeting any other vehicle, be conducted and kept on the left side of the road, so far as the state of the highways or roads will permit, and each person conducting such vehicle shall give one-half of the said road to the other." That Section is still in operation, but under the amending Act of 1918 the Inspector General has the power to make Rules and Regulations in "any case where the streets are thronged or liable to be obstructed." The Inspector General is made the judge of street conditions and the necessity of making rules and regulations to govern street traffic.

Within recent years, owing to the greatly increasing traffic, and the large number of motors and motor trucks unrestrictedly operated on Water Street, the pedestrian citizen goes about his business in fear and peril of his life. The present regulations are in the best interests of all concerned.

In my opinion they are legally in force and must be obeyed. I therefore dismiss the motion.

TRINITY.

I am always sorry to see an old custom discontinued, especially when it is a custom that had its origin in an age, when the fundamental truths of Christianity (if not better known than they are to-day) were more generally associated with the common things of daily life, and were in evidence in daily actions. Our forefathers were fond of flags. So many of them were sea-faring men, used to flags in their daily life at sea, and so they bought one or two for the staff at home, to be used to bid them God-speed when they went from home, and to welcome them upon their return.

There were certain days, and certain occasions when, at least, one flag was flown at the mast. One of those days was Sunday, and one of those occasions was a funeral in the port where the vessel was lying. At the time of a funeral the flag, usually the red Ensign, was flown at what is known as "half-mast," i.e., about one-third of the mast down; in reality "half-mast" means only sufficiently far down to admit of another flag being flown above it. The flag was flown at "half-mast" till after the funeral, and then it was run up to the top of the mast. This, I know, is always done on board of a man of war, and I have no doubt that it is as regularly done on board the vessels of the mercantile marine, for our sea captains are very conservative about old customs and traditions.

The old custom I have in my mind as I write is that in connection with the use of flags at funerals. I counted ten flags flying in Trinity at a funeral last week. The majority of them at "half-mast" were too far down on the mast. That in itself (though it shows a misunderstanding of the word "half-mast") is not a very serious mistake. I observed, however, that after the funeral, only a few of the flags were run to the mast head, and this is what I maintain is wrong. In time of war, during a sea fight, the national flag of each ship is displayed. When one of the ships is defeated, that ship strikes its flag, i.e., lowers it to "half-mast." The space above the flag then belongs to, and represents the enemy's flag. Hence a flag at "half-mast" means defeat.

That is why a flag is lowered to "half-mast" at funerals. It is an admission of our defeat, and the space above it belongs to the conqueror, who in this case is Death. No battered, helpless ship ever showed more evidences of defeat than the poor body does at the time of death, and at the funeral. Surely, we say, through our tears, death has conquered, and we strike our flag to "half-mast." Then as we take part in the beautiful burial service of holy church, we are reminded over and over again, that our elder brother Jesus Christ came to our rescue, fought death and conquered it, and on that Easter morning, changed defeat into victory "for us and for our salvation." We say, thank God! our defeat is only temporary; the poor, helpless body will rise again, and we run the "half-mast" flag of defeat to the top-mast of victory. Our forefathers, whether they all knew the reason or not, never neglected to do this, and surely it is worth continuing, especially when we know the beautiful meaning of it, and the reason for doing it, and the great truth it reminds us of. "Let ancient customs prevail." Let us forget.

The Government steamer Daisy came to us on Thursday week, bearing the flag of the Circuit Court. On Friday morning the Court was opened by the Chief Justice, Sir William H. Horwood. There was nothing, however, for His Lordship to deal with, and the session was closed. We were all glad to meet Sir William again in Trinity, where he is held in highest respect by everybody. Several of our townsmen took advantage of the opportunity to call and pay their respects, and Sir William returned the calls, and pleasantly renewed several old acquaintances. We were glad too, to meet our old friend Sheriff Carroll, and to hear from him of such a pleasant trip to all concerned.

Rev. Charles M. Stickings, who has been confined to bed through illness during the last fortnight, is up and about again.

Mrs. White, who came to Trinity to attend the funeral of Mrs. Christian, returned to Brooklyn, B. Bay, on Monday.

Rev. Llewellyn Godden, of Bonaventure, assistant priest of the parish, spent a few days in Trinity visiting the sick, during the Rector's illness.

Mrs. Grant went to Hant's Harbor by the Neptune to visit her father, Mr. Gulliford, and to be with him on his 95th birthday.

Mr. Edwin Grant, who returned from Blanc Sablon last week, is now at St. John's in the interest of the firm he so faithfully represents.

In our list of local industries in Trinity, that of Mr. E. Granger's general wood-working establishment stands in the front rank. Though small in number of workmen, yet with a steady application to business, and with a good equipment of modern machinery—such as circular, and hand saws, planer, morticing, and moulding machines, turning lathes, etc., all driven by a powerful gasoline engine, it is surprising what a large amount of excellent work, and what a variety of articles are turned out week after week. This branch of industry has probably been harder hit by scarcity of stock, and increase of cost than several others, necessitating such an advance in charges to a point undreamt of a few years ago. Still the articles required in this line are largely necessities rather than luxuries, and hence the production goes on as of old.

A schooner with a flag up, anchored in the S. W. Arm during the last week, has been a pleasant reminder of the feet of such schooners that used to be at headquarters there years ago. The schooner belongs to Mr. F. Snelgrove, of Catalina, who is buying fish from the Dunfield and other fishermen in the vicinity.

Mrs. Charles Morris, who has been ill with pleurisy is getting better.

Messrs. Clarkin and MacInnis left for St. John's on Tuesday. They will return to Trinity later. They know a good place when they see it.

A land-slide of more than ordinary proportions occurred on the shore, just below Salvage Cove on Tuesday morning. An acre of earth, boulders and trees fell, with a tremendous noise on the shore, and into the water of the bay.

We are glad to see the Commercial Stores opened up again for the fall trade, and the usual activities going on there.

We are always sorry to see the windows of public or private houses in town boarded up; and it should be avoided as much as possible. It is often unnecessary, and always depressing.

Miss Guy, who has been in the Hospital at St. John's for treatment, came home last week. She will take charge of a school at Bonne Bay.

Two hundred barrels of flour, two puncheons of molasses, and other packages of provisions, were landed from the Prospero, and consigned to Mr. F. Snelgrove.

The day school under the supervision of Principal Smith, shows signs of good organization and efficiency. Mr. Smith has 25 pupils in his department, and Miss Goodwin has 35 in her department.

Mr. Kenneth Somerton, of the Cable Staff, Heart's Content, is spending his vacation with parents in Trinity.

Miss Ash is spending a holiday with friends in St. John's.

Mr. Somerton was in camp two days this week on the barrens near George's Brook, and returned with three partridges.

Mrs. Hollands, who has been with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Morris, left for Carbonear on Thursday morning. —W.J.L.

Trinity, Oct. 15, 1920.

Not the Same Homer.

One of the best christening stories was told recently by the Rev. Thomas Nightingale, the new Secretary of the Free Church Council.

The baby's name (said he) was "George Homer," and in the vestry afterwards the clergyman who had performed the baptismal service was making the usual entries. When writing down the second name, he paused thoughtfully, for the parents were working-class people.

"Strange," he thought, as he recalled the original Homer, the great Greek poet. "It's a curious name for the son of a navy."

Then he turned to the proud father. "Your favourite poet?" he asked, pointing to the name.

"Poet, sir?" repeated the man, with a surprised look. "Poet, sir? Lor, no; I keeps pigsties!"

Keeping True to the "Old Paths" of Religion.

Rev. G. W. Ridout, of Phila., Pa., U.S.A., in a recent message gave utterance to the following with regard to the trend of the times to depart from the faith and religion of the Fathers:—

A great deal of confusion and change has been brought upon the cause of holiness and good old-fashioned religion by the failure of so many people and so many preachers and so many leaders (so-called) to keep on the main track. There has always been this tendency to "fly off." The great solar system operates by certain fixed laws of attraction by which the planets and stars are kept in their course, but when it happens that a star gets out of its orbit and "flies off" it soon burns itself out to a cinder. I have known religious people and they were good people, too, at the beginning; I have no doubt whatever that they knew God as well, perhaps better than I did, but after a while they "flew off," they sidetracked, and finally burned themselves out and they reached a place with power gone, influence gone, liberty gone, nerves gone, steadiness gone. Oh it was sad!

I know no better counsel to give inquiring folks in these days of so many voices, and so many movements, and so many sidetracks than to urge them to walk in the old paths (Jer. 6:16), and keep to the main track.

The Church needs to get back to and keep to the main track of the "old gospel" of a free and a full salvation. Much that is going on in the churches to-day can hardly be called gospel or religious. Well has one said:

"The Church is not filled with prayerful expectancy. We do not expect God to do great things. Wrapped in fateful apathy and security, the majority of Christians know nothing of that travail for souls, that passion, that intercession, those tears, which are the essential conditions of soul-winning. Let us ask the Vine-dresser to prune His 'choice vine,' and make the root send forth tides of life!"

Bishop R. S. Foster said: "To say that the Church is now living, and from the time of the beginning has been living, beneath her privilege, below her mission, would certainly be but a mild and moderate though humiliating utterance of the conviction of Christendom. She has not entered upon her full heritage. She has consciously and knowingly left much land to be possessed. What is true of the aggregate of believers is mournfully true of almost each soul in the communion of Christ's body.

"Individual Christians have fallen below the standard. But few exceptions, comparatively, could, in truth or charity, be made. Only one in a multitude, with mightier impulse and greater faith than his fellows, has nobly dared to brook the difficulties, and go up to the possession of the entire promise. These stand as so many examples of the power of faith amid surrounding sterility and desolation, and at the same time are inspiring witnesses to the Church of her privilege, and reproving admonitions of her inexcusable shortcoming."

The ministry needs to get back to the "old paths" of pulpit power and effective gospel ministry. Dr. Daniel Steele has well said:

"If a hesitating and powerless ministry, weakened by doubts, palsied by fear, would suddenly become boldly, mightily, aggressive, and conquering, let them pray to be strengthened with might by His Spirit in the inner man. This is like steam to the motionless engine. If a complaining minister, fretting and chafing on hard appointments, would be lifted into a state of perfect acquiescence with the Divine will, where none of his powers will be washed by friction, but all subsidized for Christ, let him seek the Spirit's anointing with the oil of gladness. For the Holy Spirit in the soul is both impulse and lubrication, both steam and oil to the locomotive."

Dr. S. A. Kean bears a similar message when he said:

"Jesus said: 'Tarry till ye be endued with power from on high.' Yet how many ministers, teachers, missionaries, evangelists, and workers have gone to their mission without this power to achieve it! The great blunder of the Church to-day is, that so many are attempting to do God's work, and to save souls, without the power of the Holy Ghost. Then we wonder why, for so much giving and doing and going, there is so little fruit and so little salvation.

"If the column of the Church would halt a few moments, get on its knees, look up, and receive the Holy Ghost, without stopping long enough to get into camp, it would push on the campaign so successfully that it would be the surprise of the century."

Methodism needs to-day more than silver and gold, more than brilliant orators in pulpits, more than a red-edited and great programme a return to the "old paths" of Bible doctrine, revival power and holy living.

"There were," he said, "gentle friends of Dominion settlement, who were perturbed by the special dangers, which they thought they saw in regard to the question of strategy and foreign policy." He saw no difficulty whatever. No Dominion had anything more than a consultative voice in these matters. He did not propose to give Ireland more than they gave to any other Dominion.

Obituary.

JAMES SHANAHAN.
A message from Witless Bay conveys the information that James Shanahan, a well known and respected resident of that place, had died there early yesterday morning after an illness of only a few hours. The deceased lived to the ripe old age of 78 years and is survived by one son and five daughters, to whom the Telegram extends sympathy. Before his death the deceased had the consolation of the rites of holy church. His funeral was to take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Turn Your Rain Coat Into an Overcoat.

Overcoat prices are going to be high this winter, and overcoats no better. $70, $80, $90, sound dolefully to the ears of your pocket-book, eh? Why not turn your raincoat into an overcoat? And that's where we step into the breach. Yes, sir, when we present one of our cosy lamb's fleeces linings to your admiring gaze your sense of comfort will rise in rejoicing and your pocket-book shout hurrah! For here's the solution to high overcoat prices.

Fleece Interlinings for Raglans, Raincoats, and Overcoats.

Buttons inside your own raincoat, remains invisible; the only difference it makes is in your added comfort. The whole combination weighs scarcely half as heavy as a winter coat. Bring this with you and you are prepared for any weather, rain, hail or snow—or shine. In summer just unbutton the lining and wear the coat in the ordinary way. An overcoat can be worn only for one season; fit your raincoat or raglan with a fleece lining and you can wear it all through the year. Yes, it sure does put the half-Nelson on the weather.

Special To-Day:

Waterproof Walking Coat, fitted with lamb's wool lining, both totalling $60. $50 To-Day.
Fleece Linings separately, priced $20. $15 To-Day.

Harry Kemp, playwright and theatrical manager, is remodeling an old house in the Greenwich village section of New York to construct the smallest theatre in the world. The stage will be 10 by 14 feet and the seating capacity 65. There he will produce his own plays and use as actors "those who have never before walked the boards."

Andrew Soutar, the English newspaper correspondent, finds that Maxim Gorki and his wife are the censors of the entire artistic movements in Russia, that nothing is put on the theatrical stage without their sanction, and the newspaperman finds that the Russian theatres were never so well patronized as now, due to the diminished cost of production and artists' small salaries.

Edward Selwyn and Archibald Selwyn, big theatrical men in New York, came to the big city from Selma, Ala., with little over their careers. Edgar began as an usher and lived in a $4.75 hall room. Then his brother came and he had to live on $10 a week. Their first venture was "Within the Law," which they sold to William A. Brady, and had to scratch gravel to get $10,000 to buy it back. It gave them a big start and now they have the beautiful Times Square Theatre and are rapidly becoming famous and wealthy.

Early Egyptians and Music.

We first hear of music in the land of the pyramids at the beginning of the nineteenth dynasty, about 1350 B. C., when the power of Egypt, which had been steadily mounting during the eighteenth dynasty, had reached its height under Rameses II. Passing down the crowded streets, where, through the open shop-fronts, we may see the artisans in thousands at work at their laborious daily tasks, let us go in quest of music. We may traverse the busy streets of Thebes or Heliopolis in vain, and it is not till the shades of evening fall, and the entertainments of the wealthy begin, that we discover the existence of music in Egypt at all. We have to penetrate some brilliantly lighted hall full of guests and attendant slaves; and at the far end of the luxurious room we shall see a band of men and women playing on their instruments, amid all the clatter of the dishes and the chatter of the guests. They are all slaves, and before each piece they play they do obeisance to the master of the house. The business of these slaves is to attend the banquets of the great, and play and sing for the amusement of the company. We find them constantly represented in sculpture in groups of from two to eight persons—some women and some men—playing on various instruments as the harp, pipe, flute, etc.

Is Woman Old at Thirty.

While one expert says that a woman is at her best at thirty-five, others say she is old at thirty.

The latter statement is not born out by the cases of the most fascinating women of history, many of whom staggered the world with their love affairs long after they had passed the thirtieth milestone.

Ninon de l'Enclos, the wonderful Queen of Hearts, was adored madly when she was sixty, and at ninety received a fervent declaration of love. Cleopatra, who toyed with the love of monarchs, was thirty-eight when she poisoned herself, and there was never a suggestion that her allurements had begun to fade. The Empress Josephine, who captivated Napoleon, was so much older than her lover that when they were married their ages were given wrongly—there was such a wide breach of years between the boy Emperor and his middle-aged bride.

The indefinable thing we call charm is not a question of birthdays passed. There are some old women of twenty-five, and gay grandmothers of sixty. George Sand was considerably over thirty and extremely ugly when she was loved with such vehemence by Chopin; Helen of Troy had lovers by the score when she was forty, and, to come to a later date, Mme Patti retained the wonderful freshness of her youth to the end.

What the Drums Say.

Signalling by drum is extensively practised in Africa, and messages of astonishing variety can be conveyed by this means.

Among messages that can be signalled are: That food is ready; a call to a dance; any personal name; that a death has happened; that an animal has been killed in the bush; a sum of money such as ten shillings, or a summons to bring money.

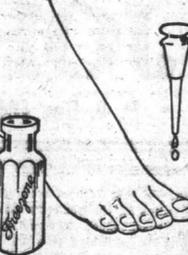

A writer in "Man," the journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute, tells of an amusing test he made of the drummer's powers when he was living among the Mendi people of the Gold Coast Colony.

Returning home one evening he heard an especially good drummer playing, so he told the man with him to take threepence to the drummer and ask him to call up one of the native boys, Mosey by name, and tell him that he was a fool.

After his return to the house, he heard the drum say "Mosey! Mosey! Kiri-kiri Kiri-kiri!" Mosey the boy heard it too, and was very put out, because, he said, the drummer was abusing him.

"FREEZONE"

Lift Off Corns! No Pain!

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation. Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.

First Girl Ever Photographed.

While France claims to have invented photography through the genius of Daguerre, the painter, America is proud of the fact that it was one of her sons who photographed the first face.

After years of patient labour, Daguerre succeeded in taking sunlight pictures of scenery on a sensitive plate. This was in 1839, and a year later Professor John W. Draper, of New York, took a photograph of his sister, Dorothy, the first person to have her likeness reproduced on a prepared background with the help of the sun's rays.

It took an hour to take the photograph, and the picture may still be seen.

The Americans celebrate the day that photograph was taken as an anniversary and call it Draper Day.

Delawana Wins Blue Ribbon in Ocean Race

Nine Schooners Raced in a Twenty-five Knot Gale Over a Forty Mile Course—Thrilling Contest From Start to Finish.

(Halifax Morning Chronicle, Oct. 12.)

The great ocean race of Halifax Harbor is run. It has been won and lost. To the bowsprit-schooner Delawana, of Lunenburg, Captain Thomas Himmelman, master, goes the victory, snatched in the last few miles of the contest from the knock-about schooner Gilbert B. Walters, also of Lunenburg. Captain Angus Walters, which had led the fleet from the starting line to the last buoy before the finish. It was beyond doubt the most remarkable sailing race ever staged in Halifax Harbor, and one of the most spectacular on world record. These two schooners, leading the fleet the whole way, had as close a battle on the forty-mile course in a fresh north-westerly breeze as the most ardent yachtsman could wish for. On the last leg of the race, as the two were off Thrum Cap beating in, the Walters, still ahead—so some said—carried away her fore-topmast and lost with it her best chance to win.

Thereafter the Delawana gained slowly but surely and finished 4 minutes and 27 seconds ahead of the knockabout, capturing the $1,000 first prize money, trophy and a name-pennant. To the Walters goes $750 and a signal code. The knockabout schooner Alcala, also of Lunenburg, Captain Roland Knickle, took third prize and with it $600.

Sailed Splendid Race.

To Captain Angus Walters, skipper of the Gilbert B. Walters, belongs the credit of making the best start. What is more, he sailed a splendid race. Whether or not his boat was the best in the prevailing wind, twenty-five to thirty knots north-west, is the burning question along the waterfront. Certain it is that on the runs and reaches on the first part of the course his boat had the better of the Delawana. The official figures show that the knockabout crossed the starting line 31 seconds ahead of the bowsprit boat, and they show that, at the Outer Automatic Buoy, at which mark the boats came on the wind for the first time in the race, the Walters had increased her lead to exactly two minutes.

It was the best home that raised the question that has not yet been answered to the satisfaction of all. The crux of the whole argument is whether or not the Walters was ahead when she carried away her fore-topmast. Some say she was, and some as vigorously affirm that the Delawana had just caught her and that the loss of the upper stick had no effect on the final stretch. On the Delawana it is claimed that this boat was footing faster and pointing higher than the Walters, and that the loss of her fore-topmast was not a serious handicap. On the Walters it is said that, had the fore-topmast held, this boat would have sailed over the finish line for the "first gun" by a margin of several minutes.

Apparently there is only one way to settle the point on which local yachting sharps who followed the race are about evenly divided. Captain Walters says he is willing to sail a special race against the Delawana, and Captain Himmelman undoubtedly is ready for such a test, though naturally he stoutly avers that the best boat won. Whatever the upshot of the dispute, the fact remains that both skippers sailed a rattling good race. It was a treat to watch the way they handled their boats from start to finish. No finer exhibition of seamanship or marine judgment has ever been given in Halifax Harbor. The rest of the boats were skillfully manoeuvred, too, but they lost out on the start, which proved to be the most important advantage of the whole race for the leaders.

The Alcala, Mona Marie, Bernice Zinck and Democracy, finishing in the order named, had a great race all their own, while the Ruby Pentz, eighth, and the big Independence, last, had a sort of a brush, though there was a lot of time between the two at the finish. The Alcala carried away her fore-topmast on the reach for the Outer Automatic, but sailed a splendid race notwithstanding this, and at one time seemed to be gaining on the two leaders.

This knockabout got away to a comparatively poor start, being in sixth position. At the finish she pulled up to third place but figures for the actual elapsed time show that she had not travelled as fast over the course as had the two leaders, the Delawana beating her out on this basis of over eight minutes and the Walters having a lead on her, on the same basis, of more than three minutes.

All Speedy Vessels.

One of the most remarkable features of the race was the speed with which the vessels covered the course, a distance by the chart of 39.65 sea miles and an actual distance, including the extra water covered by the schooners when starting at an angle to the wind on the thirteen mile beat home, of about fifty miles. The leading boat went over this distance in the actual elapsed time of 5 hours, 7 minutes and 40 seconds, or at the rate of about 10 sea miles an hour. The fastest time made was on the reach from the Inner Automatic Buoy to the Lightship Buoy and then again on the reach from the Lightship Buoy to Outer Automatic. On both these reaches the vessels averaged 10.4 sea miles per hour. They were travelling much faster than the steamer Tyrian, which, with the Sailing Committee, other officials and fifty or so excited spectators, was following the race.

At eight o'clock yesterday morning virtually all of the schooners were away from their berths on the south water front and lining out in the harbor preparatory to heading for the starting line. It was a foregone conclusion that the race would commence at nine o'clock sharp, the scheduled time. Most of the boats made for the line without delay, but the Ruby Pentz, which was short-handed and slow hoisting sail, using the donkey-engine for every one, remained north of George's Island, where, too, the big Independence sailed to and fro. Hovering on the line when the fifteen minutes preparatory signal was fired were three or four of the boats, including the Delawana and the Walters. The schooners were racing through the water, kicking up a smooth-er of foam as they went and it was obvious that a flying start in such a breeze, then about 20 miles northwest, was a truly ticklish proposition for these big craft.

The Captains Daring.

But the captains were daring and at the same time cool in judgment. Some of them, well to windward of the starting point on the Breakwater, did not hear the fifteen minutes preparatory signal and so did not have the exact time. They were, therefore, late getting to the line. When the starting gun flashed the Gilbert B. Walters, which on Saturday was only thirty seconds behind the signal, was speeding for the line for another record start. This time Captain Walters was 45 seconds behind the gun, but he had to take the line on the run, instead of beating up to it as on Saturday, and under the circumstances made an even more remarkable start than previously. The Delawana was second getting over the line. It was apparent that her skipper did not have the time as exactly, for he was up to the line before the signal and was up in the wind headed north when the gun came. He was before the wind in a jiffy, however, and crossed 3 seconds after the Walters. The Democracy came five seconds later. The Mona Marie was the next to cross, followed by the Freda L. Himmelman, Alcala, Bernice Zinck, Independence and Ruby L. Pentz, the last two well in the rear.

The course signalled was No. One, calling for a run before the wind to a broad reach 10.25 miles to Sambro Lightship buoy, then a broad reach to Inner Automatic Buoy, then a head beat back to Inner Automatic, completing the triangle, and then long and short tacks home.

they run before the wind.
Left Steamer Behind.

The Tyrian, chasing the schooners, was having a hard time of it. When the leading ship was half-way out to Inner Automatic, the steamer, hitting her very best, 8 1-2 to 9 knots, was only at the Lighthouse. It was a long stern chase and from the steamer, it was impossible to take the correct times of the schooners as they left the Automatic to starboard, they left the Automatic and hauled in sheets somewhat for the reach to Sambro Lightship buoy, but taken on one of the leading boats, were as follows:
Gilbert B. Walters, 9.39.30.
Delawana, 9.41.45.
Freda L. Himmelman, 9.34.30.
Alcala, 9.43.31.

Times for the other boats were not available, but next came the Mona Marie, Democracy, Bernice Zinck, Independence and Ruby Pentz. As the schooners scudded along, with the spanking northwest steadily increasing and driving them through the white-capped waves, they presented a beautiful picture. Excitement on the Tyrian became intense as the Alcala and Himmelman were seen to engage in a luffing match, the result of which was that the Alcala worked up to windward and passed to third position. On the reach the schooners were carrying about all the canvas they could spread, but it was forecast that they would reduce sail somewhat when they came on the wind. The wind was considered to be topping 20 knots in the squalls off Chebucto Head. It was fairly steady, however, and decidedly true, making excellent conditions for racing and a real test of the respective merits of the various boats.

The two vessels astern of the fleet, the Pentz and Independence, were seen to be losing slowly but steadily, while the Walters and Delawana were opening a wider gap between themselves and the next five boats. When the schooners were about half way to the Lightship Buoy, the Tyrian cut across the apex of the triangle in order to take times for the boats as they gybed round the Lightship mark which were taken but the only boats that were distinguished were the first two, as follows:
Gilbert B. Walters—10.47.20, Delawana—10.49.35.

Reaching for the Outer Automatic, the schooners continued to romp along. Their sheets were a wee bit closer for this reach and they lay over further to the breeze. As they passed the Tyrian, lined out in orderly procession, their tall spars standing out against the sunlight, their sails billowing with the wind and their lee topsides well down, they made a truly beautiful picture, worthy of the brush of the best seascape painters. When they were half-way over to the Outer Automatic it was seen that the Alcala had carried away her fore-topmast and had dropped back into fourth place, the Freda L. Himmelman taking third position. They lined up the buoy and their times were taken officially as follows:

Gilbert B. Walters	11.42.00
Delawana	11.44.00
Freda L. Himmelman	11.46.05
Alcala	11.47.15
Mona Marie	11.48.30
Democracy	11.49.30
Bernice Zinck	11.50.55
Independence	11.56.00
Ruby Pentz	11.59.10

The Crucial Test of Race.

And now the schooners settled down for the long beat home. They all remained on the port tack, heading over to the east of the harbor entrance. This was the crucial test of the race. The respective merits of the knockabout and bowsprit type were due for final settlement, the experts said. The Walters seemed to be holding her own with the Delawana. At 12.03 the Independence came about, taking a plunging chance, with nothing to lose and everything to gain, headed over for Sambro Island, hoping to get a better westerly slant than the other boats. As it proved, it was an unfortunate move, for the big schooner lost out and came in last by quite a margin, though it was remarkable that there was a difference of only about 36 minutes between the first and ninth boats in actual elapsed time at the finish.

At 12.05 the Delawana came about, followed five minutes later by the Walters. On this starboard tack for the western shore, the Walters seemed to be footing a wee bit faster and pointing as high as the Delawana. The latter was carrying her hallon jib and main gattoposal, in addition to lower sails, while the only upper canvas the Walters had was her main gattoposal. Shortly after 12.30 the Delawana took in her hallon jib and the Walters was seen to be getting slightly the better of it and holding a lead of about two minutes. Both boats went in well under Chebucto Head. At 12.50 the Walters came about, laying her course far inside the Inner Automatic. A minute later the Delawana was about, with hallon jib up again. On the port tack the Delawana seemed to make better weather of it than the Walters. They kept on this track for the eastern shore, towards Thrum Cap. At 1.08 the Walters, which had her hallon jib up, carried away her fore-topmast and her best chances of winning went glimmering. The Walters came about and when, at 1.15, the two boats crossed tacks the Delawana was seen to be ahead by a minute or less. A minute later the Delawana was about and to

Bedrooms & Beds

There's nothing more important to the bedroom than the Bed itself, is there? From the point of usefulness or ornament it ranks first. Does your Bed suit your taste? Does it harmonize with your room? Does it give you the sleep-comfort you need? No? Well, then it's time to discard it and get another, quick.

We are showing All-Brass, Brass and Enamel, and All-Enamel Beds in all sizes and very fine designs. Each and all of which Beds can be fitted with Springs and Wool or Felt Mattresses if desired.

Prices quoted on request.

One thing essential in your Winter Coat is QUALITY. One has to wear their Winter Coat for many months, and to stand against this you require the best of material in it.

We have carefully selected our stock of Winter Coatings and feel we have goods that merit your approval. You can purchase enough excellent material to make a coat for $24.00, and if you wish we can make it up for you, and deliver the finished garment in a week or less if necessary. The material is equal in quality to that in coats which retail at $70.00 to $90.00.

We ask you to come in and see the goods, examine them, get samples and prices, compare with others, and come back and purchase the goods.

If a Testator

although seeing the benefits to be derived from a Trust Company's administration, hesitates about canceling any appointment he may have already made, the Montreal Trust Company can be named to act with the Executor or Executors already appointed. In this way the Trust Company co-operates with the Testator's appointees in the administration of the Estate. This plan is very acceptable when the Testator's wife is named as Executor. Few women have the necessary business training to enable them to carry on the administration of an Estate, but with the co-operation of the Montreal Trust Company the Testator's wife can be appointed with full assurance that the Estate will be well looked after.
