CHAPTER XXXIX
MR. STRIPLEY'S REVELATIONS.
 "It may be a doornail for them to wipe their feet on, a football to be kicked. Yes—all I've been for years, but"—with a chuckle—"I know all Sir Joseph's affairs, e-v-e-r-y one of them. And that's why I've waited, waited until he was flush and able to pay. We shall get our money, Mr. Elliot; for Sir Joseph has floated the Great Byeworthy Mine, and he'll have plenty to pay us."

Elliot rose and leant against the mantel-piece, with his hands thrust in his pockets, his head bent.

"And, if I'm not deceived, that's the last piece of rascality Sir Joseph will pull off. And it is a piece of rascality worthy of the great Sir Joseph himself! To wheedle a young girl into selling him a valuable piece of land, land worth a quarter of a million for all I know, for a paltry thousand pounds. Oh, there's no secret about it! Any one can see the deed at the office of the Company. Scandalous, isn't it? To rob a young girl, little better than an orphan! I wish I'd been beside Miss Nora Ryall when he asked her to sign that deed! I'd have torn it up and flung it in his face. But there's no getting out of it—and, in a sense, of course, I'm glad there isn't; because we are going to get that fifty-four thousand pounds out of that mine. But mind, Mr. Elliot, you must be prepared for some amount of trouble, and Miss Deborah, here, must be prepared to spend some money. It would be easy enough to floor Sir Joseph if we had your father's part of the agreement; but as we haven't, Sir Joseph will show fight."

Elliot took the agreement from his pocket and tossed it across the table. Mr. Stripley pounced on it, glanced at it with eyes that seemed to revolve like glass balls, then sprang to his feet and, waving the document, shouted—

"It's it! It's it! We win all along the line! Upon my word, sorry as I am for the young lady, I'm glad she signed that paper! Sir Joseph will pay now," he waved the agreement again, "on the nail!"

Nora rose, pale and trembling, impelled by a force she could not resist. "She didn't sign it," she said, in a low but perfectly distinct voice.

Mr. Stripley started back and gaped at her, his jaw falling, his eyes protruding.

"Didn't sign it!" he gasped. "How do you know? How do you dare say such a thing? Forgive me, my dear young lady, but you don't know the importance of the assertion you have made."

"How can you tell whether she signed it or not? Do you know her—did she tell you she didn't sign it? Surely you are joking! What a—a wicked thing to say!"

The perspiration stood thickly on his brow; he dashed it away with his handkerchief, and stared at her severely.

"You've given me a terrible shock, Miss—Miss—" he panted. "If Miss Nora Ryall didn't sign that conveyance, Sir Joseph's a ruined man, and I've been working all this time for nothing. But you were only joking, I'm sure, Miss?" he said persuasively. "How do you know whether she had signed it or not? Come, come!" He shook his forefinger at her and wagged his head. "You've made an extraordinary assertion; you must explain yourself—mind, I don't think there's anything in it!—but how do you know that she didn't sign it?"

Nora went towards Elliot, and he met her and put his arm round her; and from her shelter she looked steadily at Mr. Stripley and then falteringly at Miss Deborah.

"Because I am Nora Ryall," she said in a low voice.

CHAPTER XL
SIR JOSEPH'S TRIUMPH.
 If Nora had exploded a bomb at Mr. Stripley's feet, the effect could scarcely have been greater than that which was produced by the words "I am Nora Ryall." He gasped, stared wildly about him, then leapt across the room and, seizing her hand, exclaimed—

"You are Miss Nora Ryall, really and truly? And you didn't sign the deed? Remember you are on your oath—I beg your pardon!—I mean you are quite sure you didn't? Hurrah!" He waved his hand above his head and actually danced.

Nora gazed at him in amazement, and drew a little closer to Elliot.

"Don't you see!" cried Mr. Stripley, "Mr. Elliot does! You're the sole proprietor of the Byeworthy Mine—and

The following day there was great stir and excitement at the Hall and its vicinity, for, as Mr. Stripley had said, Sir Joseph was expecting a large party to inspect the work at the recently opened mine. At an early hour everybody about the place and for miles round was in movement, and small crowds hung about the Hall and collected in the roads leading to the great house or the valley. It was rumored that not only was it "open house" at the Hall to the better class of people, but that Sir Joseph had issued instructions that every one who applied should be supplied with refreshment; and the erection of a marquee in the Hall grounds gave support to the rumor.

Not within the memory of the oldest inhabitants had the place been in such a state of excitement and ferment, for it was easy to see that the discovery of the copper and the working of the great mine would bring money and prosperity to the hitherto quiet and humdrum locality. Unfortunately, Lady Ferrand was confined to her room by ill-health; but no one thought of the poor little woman. The great Sir Joseph filled every eye and occupied every thought. As a matter of course a formal invitation had been sent to Mr. and Mrs. Ryall, but no answer had been received, and Sir Joseph had clean forgotten them; they were absolutely of no consequence to him now.

After the party had had some lunch at the Hall they were conveyed in carriages to the valley, quite a large crowd of the country folk following in vehicles or on foot. It was a triumphant moment for Sir Joseph, and he leant forward in his barouche and waved his hand and smiled benignly at the crowd, his sallow face exuding pride and satisfaction.

"You're very popular here, Sir Joseph," said a well-known City financier who sat beside him. "You ought to sit for the place. But I suppose it wouldn't be worth your while going in to the House of Commons; we're sure to have you in the House of Lords presently."

Sir Joseph's smile deepened, and he shook his head modestly; but suddenly the smile vanished, and he leant forward and looked out of the window. A wagonette was passing rapidly, and, to his amazement and anger, Sir Joseph saw Elliot Graham and Stripley. A young lady was with them in the wagonette, whom Sir Joseph recognized as Nora Ryall. Their presence puzzled him and damped his enjoyment; but he told himself that Nora Ryall's sudden appearance on the scene could not affect him. The deed by which he acquired the land was carefully and tightly drawn and properly signed. But why were Elliot and Stripley in her company?

"There's that insolent fellow Elliot and that man Stripley!" he exclaimed. "What the devil are they doing here? And wasn't that Miss Ryall with them?"

"Quite so," said Sir Joseph blandly; "they have gone to fetch Mrs. Ryall—and Mr. Ryall if he is well enough."

"I hope they'll enjoy themselves," said Selwyn thickly. He had been at the champagne already.

Cape Ray Station May Be Closed.

PAPER STRIKE NEARING CLOSE.
New York, June 29. An arbitration agreement was signed today by Union workers at all paper mills in this country and Canada with the exception of the International Paper Company. Workers has been on strike since May 1st. John F. Burke, President of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper workers, expressed the opinion that all mills, signing the agreement would have resumed operations in full by July 5th.

HATS OFF TO VETERANS.

Detroit, June 29. Fifty delegates to the convention of disabled American veterans of the world war, invaded the Socialist Nationalist convention, shortly after noon today, and warned the Socialists that the Veterans are ready to fight again to defend the flag against sectional, disloyalty and treason.

TERROR IN STROMBOLL.

Messina, June 29. The Volcano Stromboli, on Stromboli Island, off the North Coast of Sicily, burst into wild activity last night, and terror fills the Island. Molten Rocks and Sulphurous Gases, pouring from the crater, it is feared, may spell impending doom to the panic-stricken inhabitants. The people of the Island, frenzied by the uncanny behaviour of the volcano during the past three days, are congregating on the shores, preparing for an attempt at flight, but waiting in hope that the volcano will subside.

TO CLOSE CAPE RAY STATION.

Ottawa, June 29. Decisions of the Lighthouse Board regarding the maintenance of wireless stations in the gulf and river of St. Lawrence were made public today by the Department of Marine, following two conferences with representatives of the shipping industry. The shipping interests asked that the station at Heath Point, Anticosti, remain in operation. The Board recommended instead that wireless equipment be installed on the lighthouse which is maintained off Heath-Point. The station at Point Amour will be maintained permanently, either in its present location or Canadian territory in that vicinity. In regard to a station at Point Riche on the Newfoundland coast which the shipping interests asked be continued, the station will be continued for some time by the Department. The Lighthouse Board did not make any recommendation in regard to this station. A majority of the Board of Marine reported in favor of discontinuing the station at Cape Ray, holding that it was unnecessary as an aid to navigation. Thomas Robb, Montreal manager and Secretary of the Shipping Federation, who is also a member of the Lighthouse Board of Canada, dissented from the findings of the Board, holding that maintenance of all stations was necessary in the interest of navigation. The view of the Department and its technical advisers is that the recommendations of the Board when they are carried out by the Department of the naval service will meet the situation as far as aids to navigation are concerned.

JUST SO.

London, June 29. (C.A.P.)—Australian papers are hostile to the proposal to place representatives of Overseas Dominions in the British office, declaring they would exercise no real influence, whereas they might become a "con-founded nuisance" to British Ministers.

DE VALERA DECLINES.

London, June 29. Eamonn De Valera in a letter to Sir James Craig, says that the proposal of the Prime Minister for a conference in London between representatives of Southern and Northern Ireland and the British Government owing to its limitations is impossible of acceptance in its present form.

QUEBEC STRIKE SETTLED.

Quebec, June 29. The strike is over and firemen, as well as the police, will return to duty, said lawyer Sampson at twelve thirty today. The time limit which we gave them, we are willing to extend, now that the affair is satisfactorily settled.

WINSTON ON FRIENDSHIP.

London, June 29. Pleading continued Anglo-American friendship, in speaking before the Winston Churchill, declared the joint advance of British, Australian and American troops in France on July 4, 1918, raised an impassable barrier to future quarrels between English speaking people. We must never hesitate in our exertions to counteract those malicious and falsehearted people who, while professing to be friends of the British Empire on the one hand, and of the United States on the other, are endeavoring to create divergencies between the two countries.

THE DREAMY FISHERMAN.
There's something about a rod an' line
An' the gentle swish o' the willow trees,
That sets this wanderin' brain o' mine
To drowny dreamin' of mysteries.

Out on the bank of the river, I
Can see what never I've seen before,
Ships an' their cargoes passin' by
Jewels an' silks from a distant shore.

Out of the dust of the centuries
Kings an' princes an' princes rise,
An' the bugles call to the summer breeze,
An' the wide world travels before my eyes.

I've talked with sages an' walked with men
Who lived an' died in the long ago,
They've sprawled on the bank with me,
Too, right then
An' chummed with me like the folks I know.

A lovely fisherman! Oh, no! I
There's never a minute that I'm alone,
I sit there in a patch of sky
I can see all things that the world has known.

Saint John's Man Could Not Walk One Block Up Hill

Five Years Of Stomach Trouble Had Almost Made A Wreck Of Robert Peckham.

"I want to go on record in black and white as saying that Tanlac does all that is claimed for it," said Robert Peckham, tinsmith, George's St., East, St. John's, N.F.
"For five years I had a bad form of stomach trouble and almost everything I ate soured and the gas that formed bloated me up and often gave me palpitation of the heart. I got so short-winded I couldn't walk a block up hill and often would have to sit down on a door-step to get my breath and give my heart a rest. I was not sleeping so do any good, either, and everyday was getting weaker and thinner. I was bothered a good deal with dizzy spells, too, and would feel that I was about to topple over in my tracks."
"Tanlac did more for me than I expected. I was only hoping for temporary relief, but it has fixed me up so that I am like a new man. I have a tremendous appetite and am never bothered with indigestion. I sleep all night long without waking once and in the morning I get up feeling full of life and energy. I have gained fifteen pounds, too, and feel like a new man. I am not surprised that Tanlac has such a big reputation, for it certainly is in a class by itself."

Wireless Telegraphy.

The Council for the Board of Trade have made very strong efforts to get the Government to put the Marconi contract for a definite settlement, but we find now that the Cable Companies are doing everything possible to prevent the ratification of this contract. One Company has tried to get a monopoly of the Newfoundland business for a long period (not less than fifty years) and promised a rebate revenue to the Government of two cents per word, which they estimate will be at least $60,000.00 per annum. Another Company asks the Government to remit all present and future taxes, and they will make attractive terms to meet any competition.

This talk of monopolies after all the troubles that Newfoundland has experienced in the past should be enough to discontinue all negotiations with a Company possessing such ideas. There is no discrimination between Wireless Companies or Cable Companies, in England, Canada or the United States, and there is no reason why we should have it here, but each Company wishing to carry on business should be allowed to do so on the same conditions. The Government are making school boy efforts to put one Cable Company against the other, and are losing sight that the Marconi Wireless Telegraph and Telephones are a great advance on all previous efforts for communication in an economical way. The advances and improvements of numerous inventions appear to be beyond the comprehension of our Legislators, and unless we "wake up" very soon we will find that the psychological moment has passed, and others have taken out of our hands the possibility now in our grasp of making Newfoundland one of the Main World Centres for Wireless Telegraphy.

The position of the Newfoundland Government refusing a license to the Marconi Company to handle Transatlantic business or messages from ships and local points is farcical. The Government cannot give one reason for objecting to lift the embargo. The Members of our Legislature should enquire into this thoroughly, as there is certainly some hidden motive that must be disclosed, as no right thinking person can be so utterly stupid as not to see the benefits to be gained by the whole country.—Com.

Scathing Denunciation of Government.

"Destruction Not Construction," Charges Sir John Crosbie--Present Roadbuilding Policy Mad and Expensive.

During yesterday's session of the House, those who were present had the pleasure of listening to the most bitter arraignment of the Government made since opening day. And all the more bitter because true and accurate in every word, sentence and paragraph. Mr. Archibald, the only man on the Government side of the House to have the courage of his convictions, and to act accordingly, waxed eloquent over the conditions pertaining to road work in the neighbourhood of Badger and strongly denounced the Government's "system" of providing for the dependents of the men who would go out on that work. The independent member for Hr. Grace is fast making a name for himself both as an accomplished orator and a keen and severe critic.

Sir John Crosbie was scathingly denunciatory and pounded the Government most unmercifully, his address being applauded roundly by those in the spectators' places, whilst such encouraging remarks as these could be heard: "Keep it up, Sir John"; "We are behind you"; "Take the old ship out of the frons in which they have her" and other expressions of an equally complimentary nature. Sir John was in such magnificent form that "e'en the ranks of Tuscany could scarce forbear to cheer." Whilst telling the Government that if they had no fixed policy yet ready, he would furnish them with one, conditionally, Mr. Samson (Twillingate) told the member for Port de Grave that if he could do that, then he was prepared to accept Sir John's leadership. There was obvious uneasiness along the Government benches when Mr. Samson made this statement. Sir Michael and Mr. Bennett took part in the debate on the building of useless roads, precipitated by a motion to adjourn made by the Prime Minister shortly after the House had resumed. It had been learned that the Government contemplated giving employment to men who could not go to the Fisheries, by sending them to build connecting roads, (1) from Badger to Springdale, (2) from Deer Lake to Bonne Bay, (3) between various points in Placentia district. This outlay was strongly condemned by the Opposition, not only because of the useless purpose of these highways, but because of the low rate of pay being offered, $2 to $2.50 per day, and the ultimate pauperisation of the men now being engaged. It was not a sane policy but a crazy one, and would never be tolerated under such conditions as the Government proposed.

The House met at 3.15, and at the request of Sir Richard Squires who gave as his reason the fact that he had an important meeting on his connection with the "future operation of the railway"—a much worn phrase that last, as a consequence the promised debate on railway matters did not materialize. Before the Speaker could put the motion for adjournment, Mr. Archibald (Independent), on privilege, rose to comment on certain matters in connection with his district of Hr. Grace. He asked Sir Richard Squires if he knew anything about the 22 men who had commanded a car on Tuesday morning's Carbonar local at Spaniard's Bay and had come to town in it. Sir Richard seemed to be ill-informed on the matter so Mr. Archibald told him and the House that these men had been met at the station by Dr. Barnes and a Mr. Butler, and taken to a restaurant and given a meal, and had then been conducted to the Seaman's Institute where lodging was provided for them. From these men, five Labradors were fitted out by Hickman & Co., two were sent to Badger and the remainder got 150 worth of supplies each at Knowling's. Dr. Barnes, however, must have suddenly become frightened, for he failed to provide dinner for the men to-day. Now this was alright, said Mr. Archibald, but what about the men who were still left in Harbour Grace? What was going to happen to them? He, for one, didn't propose to let the Harbor Grace men suffer. He was going to look after his district and he wanted to see that Hr. Grace men were properly attended to.

The fact that he had moved his seat to the centre of the House was, said Mr. Archibald, the cause of Dr. Barnes looking so well after these men who came from Spaniard's Bay Tuesday. No deputation from any district had ever got such a reception as these men had received. Mr. Archibald then turned his attention to the question of work on the road at Badger. He said that 60 passes were sent to men in Bay Roberts, 30 to Spaniard's Bay and 20 to Island Cove. Before these men went to Badger he wanted to know what wages they were to get.

Sir Richard Squires—"They will receive 25 cents per hour."
Mr. Archibald—"Will they work an eight or ten hour day?"
Sir Richard Squires—"I am not absolutely certain but I should say 10 hours."
Mr. Archibald—"Will they have to find themselves?"
Sir Richard Squires—"Yes. If the Honourable Member requires further information I could see him at my office at a quarter to four and tell him all he desires to know."

Mr. Archibald said that as the House was to adjourn until Monday he wanted all the information he could get before he left it. He wanted to know what provision would be made for the families of the men who went to Badger and was told by Mr. Jennings that a system had been devised by means of which supplies would be given the dependents of the men and the cost of which would be deducted afterwards from their wages.

Mr. Archibald thought this a disgraceful action. These men would find it hard enough to live on what they were getting and it was scandalous to think of killing them afterwards for the poor supplies which their families would receive. At this juncture, Mr. Samson who like his Biblical name sake seemed to be itching for a fight but who unlike the "Samson of old," was unable to exert the same force, had to interrupt. This was the continuation of a series of interruptions on the part of this same member. He was understood by Mr. Archibald to ask what scale of wages he was paying for labour in Hr. Grace.

Mr. Archibald—"The reason I am in the centre of the House, sir, is because no one can get labor as the result of the actions of the present Government."
Some further cross firing occurred between Messrs. Archibald and Samson on the question of the use of district grants, the latter member accusing the former of not helping his constituents with his grants. Mr. Archibald explained that his district was divided into three sections, each member having a certain section to care for. He was using his grants to the best advantage.

Mr. Samson—"Why did you not spend your district money when you were over here? Don't forget that."
Mr. Archibald—"Don't forget it! I'm sorry I stayed as long as I did on your side of the House. Are there any men out of work in Twillingate District?"
Mr. Samson—"Yes."
Mr. Archibald—"Whose fault is that?"
Mr. Samson (hesitatingly)—"I don't know."
Mr. Archibald said that he knew members of the Government whose only bankers were their wives and children.

Mr. LeGrow, evidently getting "fed up" with the constant bickering, suggested that the two members go out in the Park and finish it there.
Mr. Archibald—"There are a good many in this House who would be better out in the Park. From the standpoint of the people, the whole Government would be better out in the Park. After some further discussion Sir Richard Squires told Mr. Archibald that his proposal to help the dependents of the men going to Badger would mean an outlaying of $20,000 and he wanted to know if he (Mr. Archibald), wanted them placed on poor relief. Under any name relief would be well-comed, said Mr. Archibald who read a petition signed by 55 men from Tiltus who were starving, and concluded his address by stating that it was futile to expect anything of a helpful or constructive nature from the Government. Sir Michael Cashin said that until he had heard Mr. Archibald speak he did not know that the Government intended to do any road building and he wanted to know what was really intended. Government intentions could only be gleaned on the street. Before the present session closed he said that all proposed expenditures should be tabled as the Opposition was not going to permit any further extravagance on the part of the Government.
Sir Richard Squires explained that the Government intended to build a road from Bonne Bay to Deer Lake, finish the road from Badger to Springdale and complete the road from Whitbourne. Already some surveyors had gone over the proposed roads and in all cases preference would be given returned soldiers and sailors. The rate would be $2.50 a day.

Sir Michael Cashin said he was glad to hear something would be done to help the returned soldiers! The Prime Minister was actually going to set them at road work at $2.50 a day! What a fitting memorial to the gallant dead!

Sir John Crosbie said that some systematic way of helping the unemployed should be devised. It was useless to expend money that would give no returns and tax the people to get it back. He was greatly interested in the story of the 22 men from Spaniard's Bay. The Government's action in giving them money was the most dangerous trap which had yet been set for the destruction of the Government and the country. He saw no reason why every man who was out of employment should not receive the same treatment. He did not doubt that these men needed the money but it was the discrimination which he objected to. He wanted to know what the Government were going to do but as usual, when important matters were under discussion, the Prime Minister was absent from his seat in the House. He said that if these men from Spaniard's Bay were to be given money to spend as they wished he was going to see that those in a destitute condition in his own district were similarly treated. After Sir John had concluded his stinging castigation of the Government, Mr. Bennett spoke, along the same lines and also scored the Government for their display of discrimination and incompetency. Upon the conclusion of Mr. Bennett's address the House adjourned until 3 p.m. on Monday.

Obituary.

MR. WM. F. ASPELL.
For Many Years Sacristan of the Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. John the Baptist.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)
A very wide circle of friends in every part of the country will bear with feelings of the keenest regret the sad news of the death of Mr. Wm. F. Aspell, for about a quarter of a century Sacristan of the Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. John's, which occurred yesterday evening at his late residence 38 Gower Street, at the ripe age of 81 years. A native of this city, a descendant of one of our oldest families, and in his younger days a cooper in the employ of the firm of Messrs. J. & W. Stewart, Mr. Aspell early displayed qualities of character and capacity that won for him a unique position. An intellect of unusually high order and a gentility that exuded kindness and courtesy was the outstanding qualities of the deceased, and it is no commonplace to say that his death creates a void in the large circle that knew him, which must for long remain unfilled. Generous to a fault he was the friend of all, and the older portion of the Roman Catholic community, particularly, will sincerely lament his passing from amongst us as a personal loss. During the past twelve months he was a constant example to those around him of resignation and patient faith in the designs of Divine Providence. In that he ever displayed a beautiful submission to, and a cheerful compliance with the trials so inevitably characteristic of a prolonged illness. Few men in this country were better revered in church history, more especially in that pertaining to St. John's. He was indeed an ideal type of a Newfoundland citizen. "As a man lives so he shall die," may be justly applied to Mr. Wm. Aspell; his whole life was a preparation for death and the silent messenger found him waiting with his hands full of good deeds ready to lay them at the feet of his Redeemer. During his dying hours he edified the bystanders by his constant prayers and supplications for mercy, and we feel sure he is now enjoying happiness in heaven. It can be truly said he lived a holy life and died a happy death, fortified by all the rites of the church he loved so well. Requiescat in Pace.

MRS. VIOLET SYBIL MARSHALL.
There was laid to rest on Tuesday, June 21st, in the C. of E. Cemetery, by the Rev. Canon Jeaves, Violet Sybil Marshall, widow of the late Robert J. Marshall, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tulk. Although she had been ill for the past ten months, suffering from bronchitis, yet her death came unexpected to all. For the past three months she had been confined to her bed, but had improved quite rapidly and was going to be allowed up the next week; suddenly she was taken with a severe cold and pneumonia developed, which she was unable to fight against. Everything that human hands could do was done to try and save her, but God thought it best to take her from all her suffering and the dear one, whom we loved so fondly, passed to a brighter, happier world above on Sunday, the 19th. Sybil had many friends. To know her was to love her; she had such a sweet and uncomplaining spirit and bore her sufferings without a murmur. In the midst of it all she always bore a smile and when the Angel of Death came she was ready to go. Her death has cast a gloom over the whole family; she was the joy of the home and loved by all. We can hardly realize yet that she is gone, but when we see the vacant chair it causes the heart to bleed.

Carpentier Picked By French Fans To Win Big Fight.

New York—Georges Carpentier, the French people, is the man of Destiny. No more do they doubt the ability of this man, decorated for bravery during the world war to defeat Jack Dempsey on July 2, than they doubted the ability of the Allied armies finally to overcome Germany. They have followed the steady rise of the young pugilist from the days when as a bantamweight, he first gained national note. They have studied accounts of his history before that time. In their minds, Dempsey will be unable to fall this national hero, just as German machine guns which are said to have riddled his plane repeatedly were unable to bring him down.

Carpentier's official war record investigated recently, revealed that the boxer spent 18 months at the front, flying a two-seater observation plane. He received the Croix de Guerre and the Medaille Militaire.

The record shows that Carpentier enlisting as a chauffeur in August, 1914, received a license to pilot a Farman airplane in May, 1915. He was sent with a squadron to the front, remaining three months and then was assigned to general reserve aviation as a spare pilot.

On August 28, 1915, Carpentier suffered a leg injury but recovered rapidly and was sent to the front with the Farman Escadrille for reconnaissance work in preparation for the Champagne offensive which began Sept. 25, 1915.

Carpentier's citation, which resulted in the award of the Croix de Guerre, reads: Sept. 25, he did not hesitate to fly during misty weather and rain less than 200 yards above enemy lines. He has given proof in many circumstances of sang froid, never returning until his mission was accomplished, often with his machine riddled with bullets and shell splinters.

On Nov. 5, 1916, Carpentier received the Medaille Militaire for heroic action. In December, 1916 he was forced to quit the front because of illness and never returned in May, 1917, being declared physically unfit to continue as a pilot. He was detached from aviation and detailed as army physical instructor near Paris. Six months after the armistice, he was transferred back to the aviation and demobilized.

Carpentier's courteous demeanor and evident culture, unusual in a boxer, have created the impression in America that he is the son of wealthy parents. This is not so.

The son of a miner, Carpentier was born in Lens the coal-mining centre of France on Jan. 12, 1894. He started work as an office boy in a brewery. The ring called at an early age, however, and when only 14, he took up boxing, then being popularized in France by the visits of "Kid" McCoy and other American fighters. At the same time, he was dancing and singing in the cafes and restaurants of his native Lens, with Francois Desamps who had ever since been his companion, guardian and manager. It was Desamps who discovered in Carpentier the requisites of a potential boxer. He attempted, one day, to punish him, using boxing gloves rather than the American "switch" in the midst of the scheduled "punishment". Desamps relates that "Georges slipped stepped with agility and poise—the lights suddenly went out on me."

From that moment, Georges was a boxer. Desamps, somewhat of a fighter himself, took the youth into the gymnasium to train him. He fought three four round battles in that first year and his total ring earnings amounted to $184. He will receive that much for each two seconds of his bout with Jack Dempsey, provided the match goes the scheduled 12 rounds.

Climbed Steadily.
Since that time, Carpentier has climbed steadily and slowly. Sometimes, he has slipped but the progress has been consistently forward and upward. He gained his first knockout in 1908 when, as a bantamweight, he stopped Molanessa in three rounds. The same year, he defeated Salmon, one of England's cleverest little men in 18 rounds. A short time later, he knocked out in one round Wetnick, a lad who had almost held him over two years before.

It was in 1909 that Carpentier defeated Charlie Ledoux, famous French bantamweight and the craftiest boxer that the lad had met up to that time. More fame followed when he defeated Paul Tib in 10 rounds, but soon after Georges was knocked out by Gloria in six rounds.

Carpentier met his first American opponent, Frank Loughrey, in May, 1911, winning a decision Meeting the best of American boxers, including Harry Lewis, a well known middleweight, and Dixie Kid, by whom he was knocked out in five rounds, he nevertheless developed steadily, gaining in weight, strength and cleverness until he defeated Jim Sullivan for the middleweight championship of Europe.

Two defeats at the hands of the Americans Billy Papke and Frank Klaus, marked his 1912 record rounds and Frank Klaus beat him on a foul when the nimble-brained Desamps clambered into the ring to save his portage from a knockout.

The two bouts with Bombardier Wells, both of which the Frenchman won by knockouts, featured his 1913 battles. Carpentier showed great gameness in his first fight with Wells when he was knocked down for the count of nine in the fourth. The second Wells battle was a Carpentier victory in one round. In the same year, he knocked out Cylone Smith, Bandman Rice and George Gunther.

Defeated by Jeannette.
Carpentier lost no ground in the eyes of ring followers when defeated by Joe Jeannette, the American negro heavyweight early in 1914. It was to his credit that he twice sent the negro to the mat for count of nine.

But the war was close at hand and his six-round victory over Gunboat Smith on a foul was his only important battle before the young Frenchman exchanged boxing gloves for an airplane and machine. Exhibitions behind the lines composed his entire boxing activities until 1919 when, shortly after being discharged from the service he knocked out Dick Smith in Paris. Since that time, his battle with Joe Beckett, of England, which he won in a round and that in which he knocked out Battling Levinsky in four rounds at Jersey City, N.J., last summer, have been his only contests of importance. The Levinsky fight is the only one in which Americans have seen Carpentier in formal action on this side of the water. It was a fiasco so far as a championship test is concerned. The Frenchman will climb through ropes on July 2 an unknown quantity, so far as the first hand information of American boxing fans is concerned.

Notice to Subscribers

Owing to the greatly increased cost of news-print the publishers of Daily Newspapers have no option but to increase the subscription price.

Newfoundland is probably the only country in the world where the one cent rate prevalent before this war has been maintained throughout the struggle and during the days of reconstruction. This has been due to the courtesy of the Anglo-Nfld. Development Company, which has supplied news-print to local offices at a minimum rate.

The strike situation in Grand Falls, and the maintenance of the wage schedule in force during the period when the cost of living was at its maximum, make an increase in revenue imperative.

It is with regret that the decision has been arrived at, but no other course is now possible, and the proprietors feel sure that the increased cost will be approved by the public. It is not necessary to remind our readers that the same price for the Daily Newspaper has prevailed hitherto, as existed when four small pages formed the daily issue.

COMMENCING ON JULY 1ST, THE PRICE OF ALL CITY PAPERS WILL BE TWO CENTS A COPY.

In the case of prepaid subscriptions, the new rate will be effective on expiry.

Acknowledgments. Subscriptions Lists, and Reading Notices of an advertising character, will, in future, be charged for at regular advertising rates.

Rates for Births, Deaths and Marriages, fifty cents (50c.) for five lines or under. Extended notices, ten cents (10c.) a line, payable, invariably, in advance.

Wedding Bells.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at St. Patrick's Church, on June 30th, the contracting parties being Mr. Stephen Maddox, of Bay Bulls, and Miss Mary Leonard, of St. Leonard's. The bride looked charming in a dress of white silk with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, and was attended by her cousin, Miss Margaret Malone, who was tastefully dressed in cream silk with hat to match. Mr. Michael Williams, of Bay Bulls, ably supported the groom. The wedding party motored to Bay Bulls, their future home, where a happy time was spent. They were the recipients of many costly and useful presents.

Ranger From Labrador.

S.S. Rauger, Capt. Taylor, arrived in port last evening from Labrador. The steamer was as far north as Emily Harbor and on the way down called at practically all the ports north of Cape Charles. After leaving Battle Harbor scattered ice was met, but it did not interfere with the ships progress and all the crews with their gear were landed at the desired points. The Ranger reports that when leaving Emily Harbor, there was a solid jam of ice to the northward. Many schooners were seen in the Straits when the Ranger was crossing. There is a fair sign of fish from Spear Harbor to Cape Charles and prospects for a good voyage are considered favourable.

C. of E. Orphanage Garden Party.

A meeting was held in connection with the above in the C.L.B.C. Armory on Wednesday evening to make arrangements for the event which takes place on August 10th. The election of officers resulted in the appointment of Mr. R. Dowden, Chairman, and Mr. C. E. A. Jeffery, Secretary. Judging from the enthusiasm of the large and representative gathering and from the elaborate programme of athletic contests, and events amusing and entertaining, drawn up, it is safe to predict that the Garden Party this year will be an even greater success than any in the past.

Many Happy Returns.

To-morrow, July 1st, is the birthday of Mr. George W. B. Ayre. We do not know just how many years ago it is that "Our George" first "saw the light" but it gives us much pleasure, all the same, to offer birthday greetings and wish him many happy returns to-morrow.

Commemoration Day.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Friday July 1st is a public holiday. It is Commemoration Day. It is a holiday in honour of the brave lads who laid down their lives so gallantly that the world might be safe for democracy, that the Empire might be sustained and the honour of this country upheld. Several years have passed since the eventful day in the Great War when those heroes of ours made the supreme sacrifice. It is fitting that the day should be set apart in their honour. The question now is how should we observe it. Shall we forever or even now treat this as a day of mourning, a day of sadness, or shall we be natural and let those divine instincts to be happy be unrepressed. How would those departed heroes wish us to observe the day—with cheerful faces or with sad? I think there is only one answer. What would we ourselves if in their places, wish? Surely to be happy. Play the game of life like men and women. Take what is sent and take it without murmur. That is what we are taught. Why not follow the instruction? Time is the great healer. When one's beloved parent, wife, child or lover dies, one does not for evermore mourn that day. In time the grief is assuaged, normal living returns, and once more the saddest face is wreathed in smiles. It is not that desirable? Surely no one will contend that for the rest of time, July 1st is to be a day of mourning; that what ought to be one of the proudest days in our year is to be the saddest. Why should we grieve? Those young men paid the supreme sacrifice in the noblest of causes: they died for their country and for others. Greater love hath no man. If they erred before, surely their deaths would be sufficient to stone for their faults, if they had any. Where have they gone? If there is a heaven those men are there. If they are not there, then who wants to be there? If they are in heaven why should we be sad? Had they returned to this country they might have had to live on, sick, maimed, blind or starving, as many who have returned are. Is there any comparison between the two fates? In one case in the realms of bliss, in the other in the depths of woe. Why then should we mourn? Shall we mourn? Can we forever keep it up? If games and other amusements are debarred what will the people do on this public holiday? They will, with few exceptions, do much worse. Then let us be natural. Let those who wish, attend their churches and say their prayers. Let others who wish play, especially the younger people, and do not let them feel that those who so gallantly gave their lives are to be a stone around the necks of the living. When a soldier is being buried, the men parade slowly, the drums are muffled, the band plays the saddest airs. Once buried, the men step out lively, the drums are no longer muffled, the band plays the liveliest airs they know. Those men have died glorious deaths. Their memory is dear to us. In time memorials will be raised to them as an inspiration to future generations. What more can we do? Let us do what they would have us do, what we ourselves would wish if in their places. Live this day naturally, and naturally is happily if we are healthy. Let us consider this the proudest day in our year, the day on which our fellow countrymen upheld the best traditions of their race and country. Let relatives hold their heads higher, let parents rejoice that they bore such sons, let the country be proud that she produced such men who are acclaimed throughout the Empire, and the world, as "better than the best."

What more can we ask for or what more can they desire. Let us not be hypocrites and pretend what we do not feel. We are proud not sorry. We have lost those men in the flesh but they forever are with us in the spirit. Then let us rejoice and not sorrow. Again I say rejoice.

Towns in Pawn.
LIFE IN OCCUPIED TOWNS IN PEACE TIME.
It was an imposing military pageant when the British cavalry and tanks, and the French and Belgian forces, entered Dusseldorf and the other German towns now in occupation.
Before the coming of the troops, the burgomasters had caused proclamations to be posted asking the public to offer no resistance, and warning them against any demonstrations; also advising women and children to remain indoors when the troops arrived.
Nevertheless, dense crowds thronged the approaches to the bridges leading across the Rhine between Dusseldorf and Oberassel as our cavalry came over the bridge.
These people knew what terrible things had happened when their own countrymen had occupied towns in Belgium and France; and no doubt they wondered what change these troops would make in their own everyday lives.
They had little cause for concern, however. They soon learnt that their liberties would be but little restricted, and that while they behaved themselves they had nothing whatsoever to fear.
The commanding officers of the investing forces did not take possession of the town halls, demand the keys of the public buildings, or impound all State documents.
Nor will any censorship be exercised over newspapers or posters so long as these are not used to publish attacks upon the Allies.

any time you will

You may end corn troubles any time you will. Millions of people have done it.
Blue-jay is at your drug store in liquid and plaster form.
A touch applies it. The corn pain stops instantly. In a little while the whole corn loosens and comes out.
At least 20 million corns a year are ended in this simple, easy way.
The way is gentle, scientific, sure. It makes harsh methods unnecessary. It makes paring corns a folly.
This laboratory of world-wide fame created it and makes it.
Try Blue-jay tonight. Watch its action on one corn. Then you will never again let a corn ache, never let it linger.

Prince Finds Little Interest for Resting.

TAKES INTEREST IN SPORT.

During the war there was no busier man in Britain than King George, present the Prince of Wales in him, according to press correspondents. One reason he is so busy is that in addition to the formal duties which go along with his position and which he discharges with the most punctilious care, he is an avid sportsman. He has ridden three or four times this past winter, and he will be commencing his riding again by a brisk walk in the park, or perhaps by a gallop in Rotten Row. The rest of the morning is usually devoted to the discharge of private business.

Princess Alice, who is called upon to attend as representative of the King occur in the afternoon and evening. His activities during the week are typical. On May 14, he left London for the West country, going direct to Exeter to unveil the war memorial in the Cathedral. Next day he went to Dartmouth to inspect the senior division of the Royal Naval College where he underwent training. Thence he proceeded to Plymouth to visit the Royal West of England Yacht Club headquarters. Princetown was the next stop and here he had a personal talk with some of the prisoners and attendants. Afterwards his itinerary called for a call at Newquay and across to the Scilly Isles, where he hopes to give a boost to the decaying industry of bulb growing. On his way back to London he called at Tavistock for the Devon Agricultural Show of which he is president. Canadians hardly need to be told of the boyish pleasure the prince takes in meeting the people over whom one day he will reign, and his consideration for those who wish to have a glimpse of him. On his recent visit to Glasgow a Scottish drizzle at times broke into heavy showers, but he used a small car with a hood instead of a closed car, explaining "The people, especially the children, want to see me." This was true enough. The children gathered along the streets in many thousands waving flags and cheering. From Maryhill to Glasgow they lined the route for two or three miles with hardly a break. The London correspondent of the New York World wrote, "With the engineers, the shipwrights and riveters, among whom he spent most of a day, his reception was tremendously good. He rubbed shoulders with the shipyard workers and enjoyed it. So did they."

Even in places notorious for Red proclivities, the charm of the prince is irresistible. For instance at John Brown & Co.'s yard at Clydebank, after he had launched the Windsor Castle, the prince raced up the steps to the rostrum and cried "Three cheers." The correspondent says, "The sea of workmen's faces broke into smiles. Before the cheers had died away a man in blue overalls with gleaming teeth in a dirty face yelled, 'And one for his nob.' (a reference to the extra point given in the game of cribbage to the holder of one of the jacks.) The prince smiled merrily and waved his hat to the man with gleaming teeth." As he walked through the great mills thousands of girl employees lined up and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," a song which the prince appears to enjoy more than "God bless the Prince of Wales." At Paisley Town Hall, the Provost said to him, "You do not refuse to do your work. You are one of the hardest workers in the whole Empire. Your pluck and endurance in the war have produced in our hearts the deepest esteem. More than all our respect for your ancient lineage we like you."

UNLUCKY DAYS.

Some days the luck is all against us; misfortune with barbed wire has tamed us. At early morn we leave our couches, and feel possessed of grievous gronches; we step upon a tack on rising, and hand out language most surprising, such adjectives as start pink blisters upon the eardrums of our sisters. We do no smiling and no joking; the breakfast's late, the stove is smoking; the soft boiled eggs are hard as thunder, the biscuits are an asphalt wonder. And when we leave our homes, proceeding to daily tasks, our bosoms bleeding, our bald and beakly luck continues; we fall a block and sprain some sinews; an auto hits us with its tender and leaves us bruised and sore and tender; and all the bores we have been shunning come round us now, and come a-running; and soon we mix with ire and loathing that rain has spoiled our new spring clothing; and bill collectors sternly trail us, and threaten they will sue and jail us. We meet all accidents that bore most, and everything is hind end foremost. You've known such days, and did you weaken and let the briny tears start leakin'. Or did you rear on end serenely, with grace and dignity most queenly, and say, "Though fate be raw and clammy, I'll show that I am Sunny Sammy!"

No Soap Better For Your Skin Than Cuticura

Small text describing Cuticura's benefits for skin health.

FROM 6 LBS. AT SEVEN WEEKS TO 20 LBS. AT EIGHT MONTHS ON "NEAVE'S"

Mrs. Frew, 1066 St. Urban, Montreal, writes: "I have pleasure in forwarding you photo of my baby Muriel, eight months old. At seven weeks the child weighed less than 6 lbs., but thanks to Neave's Food she is now as strong and healthy as I could wish. She weighs 20 lbs. now."

You Cannot Go Wrong
 If you follow the advice of doctors and mothers based on a century's experience, and feed your baby on Neave's Food, which builds bone, nerve and tissue, forms healthy flesh, and is easily assimilated and digested.

WHICH SHALL IT BE!

What kind of an old lady are you going to be? Needless to say that question is directed to the feminine contingent of my readers. The male contingent may wonder, if they care to, what kind of old men they are going to be. Only I can't picture men being so much interested in that sort of thing. By the nature of things they don't have to be.

A group of old ladies, evidently on their way to some meeting or convention, sat opposite me in a railway station while I was waiting for the train recently, and as I watched and listened to them I found myself remembering that some day (barring accidents) I should be like one of them, and wondering which one.

There were several types in the group. There was the woman who has evidently, for some reason, led a very repressed life, and the results of that repression showed in the thin, tight line of her lips and in every line of her face. Whether the habit of repression was something she had acquired herself, or was something forced upon her I did not know, but I did not like the result.

The Bound-To-Be-Young Old Lady.
 There was the bound-to-be-young old lady. She wore a hat faced with cerise, a plaid skirt and a bright scarf. Her hair was frizzed and her skirt short. She had none of the charm of youth, naturally, and none of the dignity of old age. I was glad she wasn't my mother.

Beside her sat an imposing looking old lady, large of figure and large of men, large old-fashioned diamonds on her hands, rich furs around her neck. One felt instinctively, that she had always been liberally endowed with money by the males of her family, that she had the habit of having what she wanted and of thinking that people who didn't must be rather stupid. I could imagine that she would be autocratic to deal with, generous and mean by fits and starts, entirely unamenable to reason, logic or justice.

She Spells Them; They Bally Her.
 A nervous, deprecating little old lady in shabby, old-fashioned clothes sat on the end, effecting herself into an small a corner as possible. She had a sweet face, but was so nervous and fidgety that it made one nervous to look at her. The type of woman, I should say, who has spoiled her children by carrying the natural unselfishness of motherhood to the nth degree, and has been repaid for the spilling by being bullied and set aside.

A Typical Grandmother.
 A typical grandmother, as we vision one, was a plump motherly looking old lady in a dark blue suit and a measurably homely black bonnet. She had a bag with her from which she produced some knitting at which she bustled herself while waiting.

A Lovely Old Lady.
 An erect little old lady in grey suit, and a grey hat with a plink rose in it, completed the group. She had white hair, prettily arranged, very bright brown eyes and a clear skin. She had as pretty a laugh and voice as a girl's and seemed as interested in everything going on about her as a girl.

Everywhere about us are old ladies of all kinds and types. Watch a group of them some day and ask yourself what kind you are going to be like.

You are making to-day the old lady you are to be. What kind shall it be?

Keen Football Game.

FELLDIANS AND C.E.L. DRAW IN PAST EXHIBITION.

What was undoubtedly the most keenly contested game of football played in this year's League series, took place last night when the C.E.L. and Felldians drew with one goal each, scored in the last ten minutes of the game. In expectation of a good contest, many hundreds of footer enthusiasts, turned out to witness it, and were by no means sparing in their plaudits and encouragement of their respective teams. The C.E.L. team played a good all round game although there were slight weaknesses in the half line and amongst the forwards. In spite of the fact that he was partially crooked, George Adams gave a good exhibition and got in some excellent play. Drover at center half played a fine game also, whilst Churchill at back and Smith in goal did some brilliant defence work, the latter practically saving his side from defeat by clearing in fine style, what seemed almost certain goals. The Felldians made no mistake in playing Tait in his old place of full back for he proved a tower of strength in that position and was always on the job. Fletcher played a good game, whilst Chafe did well at centre half and Ron Martin gave a sparkling exhibition at right half. The Felldian forwards had a very noticeable tendency to bunch whilst the outside forwards were often to be seen playing too far inside.

THE FIRST HALF

started with a rush by the C.E.L. which failed to materialize and the Felldians, taking the ball up field, kept it in their opponent's territory practically throughout the half. The C.E.L. defence work was excellent and the opposing forwards were effectually kept out. Time and again Smith was called upon but he always cleared well. The occasional visits of the C.E.L. forwards to the Felldian goal gave Tait and R. Martin opportunities to play some fine football. When the half ended, no scoring had been done.

THE SECOND HALF

was a fast one from beginning to end. For the first few minutes the Felldians, defending the Western goal, had the best of play but all attempts at scoring were ineffectual. Then the C.E.L. got busy and attacked in their turn. A swift, low shot from Bartlett nearly materialized, Fletcher bringing off a great save. After some confused play in mid field, Nic Hunt broke away with the ball, and dribbling through alone, scored for the C.E.L. with 10 minutes to go. For the remainder of the game the spectators were treated to a thrilling exhibition, both sides working hard, and the Felldians pressing. Three minutes after the C.E.L. had scored, Pavn put a stinging shot behind Smith, thus obtaining the equalizer. The last few minutes of the game was a hammer and tongs struggle, both teams, playing the keenest football seen on St. George's Field for many a year, and they were still going strong when the final whistle blew, leaving the game a draw. Both C.E.L. and Felldians deserve to be complimented on the fine games they put up. The latter team is now out of the running for the championship, unless they experience some miraculous luck, but the chances of the C.E.L. are still good.

The line-up was:—

C.E.L.—Goal, Smith; backs, Hussey, Churchill; halves, Stick, Drover, Evans; forwards, Bartlett, Winsor, Hunt, Adams, Stick.
