What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach grow or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine of proven strength, from the roots of native American medical herbs: plants. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Propps., Buffalo, N. Y.

one of the mysteries the solution of which would clear up many difficulties in the understanding of the history of the early races and civilization of Peru and Central America. The character of the architectural and other remains evidently points to an Eastern origin, the ancient sculptures being typical of those of Egypt.

The position of Easter Island offers little clue to the mystery of the original settlers. It is near the southern verge of the southwest trade wind, which blows constantly from October to April. During the rest of the year it is in the tropical variables, for a few months westerly winds prevail, which brings much rain. It is therefore probable that this was the time of the voyage, but how such a craft could be guided due east without a compass is still a mystery to modern navigators.

The sculptors of the great stone images of Easter Island, the remnant of whose work and terraced platforms of the ancient people have struck every visitor to Easter Island with astonishment were from Central America, according to the theory now offered. These people may have had their beginnings in Yucatan, where the late Dr. Le Plongeon recently traced a civilization and art that goes to show that what geographers have called the new world was really the old world, the seat of the ancient civilization that gave Egypt and ancient Babylon their arts and sciences. In Yucatan, where the tropical foliage grows with such wonderful fertility that it has buried temples and other things in deep forests, the counter part of these strange statues of Easter Island had been found, and the imagination can easily conjecture a theory of the long buried people who must have been great travellers in their day, a people whose diverse interests sent emigrants seeking new lands, and Easter Island was probably the home in the long past ages of one of these offshoots of the ancient civilization of Central America.

Shara," compiled in B.C. 1300 from works of greater antiquity. The character of the inscriptions carved are ancient Egyptian letters. Many were the discoveries of co-relation in art, language story and custom of the Mayas and Egyptians.

Writing of the discoveries made by her husband in his excavations in Yucatan, Mrs. Le Plongeon recently said "I think our work indicated beyond doubt that some connection must have existed between Egypt and Yucatan. Otherwise, two civilized nations so far apart, could not have developed customs so closely resembling one another. The indications suggest one and the same origin."

A still greater problem is that of Easter Island, with its statues and architectural works resembling those of Central America and the work of the ancient Egyptians. Easter Island offers to scientists one of the unsolved wonders of the world. It is a lone island, a small isolated spot set far apart in the lone waters of the Pacific, a triangular triangle, nine by ten by thirteen miles, its highest part being a peak at the north east about 2,000 feet high. The soil is of decomposed lava, of a reddish hue, thickly strewn with lava blocks, and the coast is rocky, with only two or three sandy creeks in all its extent. And here lies one of the secrets of the world which baffles modern thinkers. Only the statues and other remains give mute evidence of the mystery, and they can not tell their story.

By J. Gordon Smith.

view of attention, should never be allowed to mount the footplate. Those responsible for the appointment of men whose duties are of a dangerous and onerous character must examine applicants not only from a physical point of view, but also from a physical standpoint, as to their capacity for attention and their freedom from giddiness and fainting fits. It is further suggested by Dr. Toulouse that railway signals should be marked with the letters of the alphabet, different letters being chosen every day. As he passed the signals the engine driver would be obliged to note the various letters, and at the end of the journey his road-sheet would indicate whether he had been attending to his duties or not. Another precaution which could not fail to have salutary results is the appointment of line inspectors, who would survey the track before the track before the passage of great expresses.--Ex.

Some Summer Recipes.

FEATHER CAKE
One cupful of rather thick, sour cream, one cupful of sugar, two cupfuls of sifted flour, one egg, one half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful level, of soda dissolved in a little water, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one teaspoonful of baking powder.

CLAM BOUILLON.
Chop one pint of clams very fine, add two cupfuls of water and the clam liquor of these, with a bay leaf, sprig of parsley and a slice of onion. Simmer ten minutes, strain through a cloth, dilute if necessary serve with or without cream.

SOUR CREAM PIE.
One cupful of sour cream, two-thirds cupful of sweet milk, one cupful of sugar, one half cupful of chopped raisins, one and one half tablepoons of vinegar, one tablepoonful of flour, one half teaspoonful of cinnamon, yolks of two eggs, little salt. Bake in one crust. Use whites for meringue, with four tablepoonfuls of brown sugar.

DEVILED EGGS.
Boil six eggs hard, cut in halves lengthwise, remove yolks and mash with fork, adding enough thick, sour cream to moisten, add mixed mustard, salt and a little red pepper. If cream is too sweet add a little dash of lemon juice and put back into whites.

CREAM OF HORSERADISH SAUCE.
Beat one-half cupful of thick, sour cream, add a little salt and sugar, and beat in one-half cupful of horseradish. Serve with cold ham.

GRAHAM GEMS.
One large tablepoonful of thick, sour cream, one of sugar, one cupful of sweet milk, one cupful of sour milk, one cupful of white flour, one cupful of graham flour, one egg, one tablepoonful each of salt and soda. Have gem pans hot.

GRAHAM BISCUITS.
One and one-half cupfuls of graham flour, one-half cupful of white flour, one tablepoonful of brown sugar, one egg, one tablepoonful each of salt and soda. Wet with thin, sour cream. Roll one-half inch thick. Bake slowly.

SWEET POTATO PIE.
One cupful of sour cream, one cupful of sugar, one pint of mashed sweet potatoes, yolks of four eggs, one tablepoonful of cinnamon, one-half a nutmeg, little salt. Mix and bake with one crust. Cover with meringue or spread white hot with strained honey.

Mexico.

The passing of President Diaz brings to an end one of the compartments into which the troubled history of Mexico readily, if not naturally divides itself. Ordinarily the past of a country affords some material on which to base a forecast of its future, but he would be either an ignorant prophet or a rash one who would venture to cast his eye on the sketchy and evolutionary evolution as an independent and autonomous State dates Napoleonic regime in Spain, which was brought to a close by the victories of the Duke of Wellington prior to 1844. From 1810 to 1822

the varying struggle of the Mexicans against Spanish sovereignty went on, until General Iturbide, a French military adventurer in the service of Spain, traveled the country to the revolutionists and was declared Emperor of Mexico. His short reign ended in exile and afterwards execution, a similar fate having been visited by political opponents on two Presidents who followed each other in rapid succession, Guerrero and Bustamante, whose terms were brief and unsuccessful.--Tor. CATRARRH CURED
By Breathing.

You breathe in Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) and inhale the antiseptic vaporized life of the pine and eucalyptal forests. As you breathe in this delightful air it passes over the germ-ridden membrane, allays inflammation, kills the germs and drives out the disease.

Druggist J. Sutton Clark sells Hyomei and guaranties it for Catarrh, coughs, bronchitis, asthma and croup. A complete outfit includes hard rubber inhaler and costs you $1.00. Extra bottles of Hyomei cost but 50c. By mail post-paid 50c. and $1. from the Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Remember Hyomei is guaranteed or the money back if it fails you.

Devonshire House Ball
Brilliant.

London, June 1.—The most important and at the same time the most magnificent entertainment in London last night was the ball given at Devonshire House by the Duchess of Devonshire. For some months past this ball has been the topic of much conversation, as it was expected that it would be honored by the presence of the King and Queen, but unfortunately, Their Majesties were unable to attend, owing to the death of the King's great-uncle, Prince John of Glücksburg.

This, however, did not prevent the Queen from honoring the Duke and Duchess with her presence at dinner, which was served in the gilded saloon, where the Queen's gold plate of the Cavendish family was displayed on a specially constructed sideboard.

In view of the Queen's expressed preference for the carnation above all other flowers, pink malmaisons only were used on the table, and all were prize blossoms.

When dessert was served the table was further enriched by a massive gold desert service which is one of the chief treasures of the mansion, chased and repoussé, and in solid gold. This plate is probably the finest service in Europe.

Superb jewels were to be seen on all sides. Several members of the Royal family were present at the ball, and a number of Indian princes created interest by the magnificence of their costumes.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier attended the ball.

the South Pacific. The Algerine left here last October, and after calls at Apulco, Calao and Valparaiso, she steamed out 2,000 miles to sea, to where lies isolated Easter Island. Tahiti, Henderson, Pitcairn, Henbryn Maiden, Christmas and Fanning Islands were visited. The cruise was through strange waters, among islets which have been the subject of romantic and tragic tales, among people who seldom see any vessel or visitors, people who live close to nature and will still harter their wares for the glass beads of the trader.

Weird as well as romantic were the landings at some of these islands, where lone graves marked the resting places of forgotten dead of ocean tragedies, where forgotten wrecks lay, but it was at Easter Island that the Algerine made the most romantic call. There the ship's company came in touch with the remnant of a lost civilization, and visited an island people whose population has dwindled from thousands, there were 3,000 people on the island before the slave-traders came to raid them in 1863 to a few score, in fact but slightly over a hundred.

Whence came this mysterious people who differ so much from other inhabitants of the South Sea? Who were the carvers who fashioned these strange statues from the grey, compact lava of the extinct volcano on the island with an art suggestive of the sculpture of ancient Egypt, and as different as night from day from the totemry of the Maoris, the art of the Polynesian or other peoples of the South Sea? This is one of the unsolved wonders of the world. It is an unsolved problem of migrations of race. The remaining natives have but one tradition, which is that "ages ago their ancestors came in a large boat from Rapa (Opera), which is 1,900 miles to the westward. They landed at Ompu, a bay on the east side. Their king was with them, and he made the great statues out of a quarry in the crater, near which he built his palace of stone." How these early navigators managed to reach this lonely spot and make so long a voyage in the face of the usual trade wind is the complexion of the people is very light, almost white; lighter than any of the other races of the South Sea. The language is Polynesian. The natives are proud of the ancient statues, but can furnish practically no information concerning them, not even traditions. The great stone busts are scattered all over the island, several hundreds of them. They are usually fifteen to eighteen feet tall, and some much larger, one thirty four feet tall may be seen. They are all of the same material, a grey, compact lava taken from the crater at Ompu, at the northwest end of the island, where until this day a fine ash fall to be seen.

In form the statues are trunks, terminating at the hips, with the arms curled to the sides, and the hands are sculptured in low relief and clasping the hips. The head is very flat, the top of the forehead being cut off level to allow the crown to be put on. The crown is of red tufa, found in the Terano Hat crater and in shape are short, truncated cones, or nearly cylindrical. The face is carved square, massive, nearly always aternly disdainful in expression, and the aspect is always upward. The figures are known by individual names, but they are not regarded as idols. All are of immense age.

It is the theory that these same people who came from the westward to Easter Island and cut its great statues, build stone houses, platforms and temples furnished Egypt with civilization. The famed Egyptologist, Dr. Le Plongeon who held this theory, spent his fortune in studying the connection of the people of Central America with the Egyptians, and others who have studied the great problems held that Easter Island may once have been the cradle of the ancient civilization of the world. The finds in Yucatan by Dr. Le Plongeon show that at sometime relationship must have existed between the Mayas of Yucatan and the Egyptians who lived in what is called the Old World. Over a portal in Yucatan he found sculptures which might serve as illustration of the story of the Creation as given in the ancient work of the Brahmins, the "Manava Dharma

Paris, May 12.—Though one can hardly expect railway accidents to be rendered impossible, Dr. Toulouse is firmly convinced that they might be rendered much less frequent. This well known French medical writer alleges that the general and habitual cause of such accidents, particularly on French lines, is not due to the defective condition of the material, but the man employed as engine driver, or signalman. Until that fact is recognized, he maintains, the protection of travellers will never be guaranteed. The initial error in all railway organization, according to the doctor, is that it is based on the assumption, which is pure illusion, that the human brain always acts in an equal and continuous manner. Our sensations, recollections and judgments are only exact in the measure in which our minds are applied. Dr. Toulouse, who has profoundly studied the question, urges the locomotive pilots, chauffeurs, and all those to whom the charge of human lives is committed should be selected only from the most technically expert, from those who are physically and mentally sound, and who present every serious guarantee demanded by the responsible duties demanded of the applicant. An excellent mechanic, intelligent and well educated, but who is unstable from the point of horse power. The transmission gears give speeds of one, two and one-third and three and one-half miles.

In clearing brush the engine is equipped to meet the varying conditions. The equipment used in the worst brush consists of four fifteen foot railroad rails doubled and connected end to end and drawn behind the tractor by means of steel cables. The traction has a guard on the front and wades right into the small willows and mesquite, some of which is twenty feet high. It cuts a swath 50 feet wide and clears an acre in six minutes, ten acres an hour, or 100 acres a day. In the lighter brush, besides drawing the four heavy steel rails, the engine pulls a series of rakes which are tripped automatically by ropes from the engine cab. In this way the machine clears, rakes and piles in willows the brush with one operation. A match does the rest.

From the tests given, Daly is satisfied that it will clear and rake 50 to 80 acres a day, plough 35 acres a day, and can be used for many other purposes. It will pull three five gang ploughs as well, as a heavy float for levelling.

The Example of Nineveh: A Day of Humiliation.

We see the nations, like so many giants of old, loaded with armor, and stumbling on in the dark, each anticipating a blow from the first one he meets. Each week brings news that some country is increasing its armaments. And yet, while high officers of state are devising plans of attack and defence the common people on whom the burden of these vast war preparations will fall in the end, and whose blood will be shed in expiation of national crimes, are longing for peace and would fain regard the people of other nations as brothers. When the papers announce the fresh plans of armaments by this or that nation, the voice of alarm or protest is rebuked as that of a scare-monger. But do such rebukes dissipate the solemn fact that these preparations for war are going on that each year the load is growing heavier? Is it not a mere matter of mathematics when the pain and suspense of this load will become harder to bear than war itself?

In such cases the woeeful burden will be taken up by the women of the nations, and the wail of the widow, and the cry of the soldier's orphaned child will be carried over the continents in one universal chorus of lamentation. But sorrows of bereaved ones will be only the beginning of woes. In such a conflict of naval powers is now pending, where the sea-borne food supply of millions will be interrupted or cut off altogether, the distress like that of the Egyptian plagues, will penetrate like the home of the stum and the villas and mansions of the rich. In a time of peace, when almost the whole world is blest with good harvests, so much of the wealth of nations is diverted to the great on of engines of slaughter, that millions of people are perpetually hungry and have not the wherewithal to maintain their children in health. What, then, will happen, when Moloch calls for the sacrifice of blood, and war cuts off the food of the people? The deluge of death on land and sea, when famine and pestilence follow in the wake of war, will be swiftly chased up by a tempest of rebellion against the oppressors who sow the seed of these calamities.

They that take the sword shall perish by the sword. Lust of power, lust of wealth and love of pleasures are the seeds of which war and all its inhumanities are the fruit. Can we learn nothing from the history of Assyria, Babylon, Tyre, Carthage, Egypt, and Rome? If we say "trade follows the flag" let us ask in the same breath, what does the flag follow? Is Lord High Admiral Mansueto in command of the fleets? If so, the fleet will be steered into those shallows strewn with the wrecks of empires of old.

If individuals can obtain peace by seeking to do the will of God of Peace nations can do the same. It will be well, therefore, if the Kings, Emperors, Presidents and Premiers of all great nations proclaim a day of fasting and humiliation, they and their people acknowledging their common sin in bringing the world into this great danger, and praying that these evils, which are punished by war may be removed from the hearts of mankind. Why should we dance to our doom when the example of Nineveh stands before us?

Generosity.

"Could you let me have a pair of old shoes? I am starving."

"Sure, and I can give you a receipt for cooking them too."

Public Drinking Cup.

One who must sip unboiled water from a public drinking cup or die of thirst should by all means choose the lesser evil.

But because the thirsty one must live is no reason why he should bite a drink out of the glass or chew on the edge of the cup as though it were a biscuit.

There is a better way. The drinker, instead of making a funnel of himself, may fill the glass if he will place the edge of the cup against his chin, then load his proud neck to meet the water halfway and quaff without touching his lips to the cup. Then he may wipe off his chin and be on his way.

State roads. "The time is not far distant when the Federal government will step in and aid in their construction. There is a bill before Congress for an ocean-to-ocean highway, which shall have a right of way a mile wide. The highway proper is to be 1,340 ft. wide. Along this will be roads with a macadam surface, steel tracks for electric cars, steel plate tracks for fast automobiles, and cement ways for motor-cars going less than twenty-five miles an hour. It is planned to have this highway follow the thirty-fifth parallel of latitude."

Honorable Mr. Fielding, has given the Conservative English critics of Canadian policy a little frank advice. He points out to them that Canada is the reciprocity agreement is neither establishing a precedent nor doing an injury to British interests. A little plain talk may do good in that quarter at the present time. The Conservatives of the mother country like those in Canada are disposed to play the game of politics without due consideration of the possible effect of their extreme statements.

The Americans are trembling at the threat of wheat from Canada. A wful! The dangers besetting modern civilization.

Better Homes Now On The Emerald Isle.

Great Improvement in Housing Conditions in Poorest Districts.

Dublin, May 23. Everything points to the facts that the warm and enthusiastic reception which King Edward received will be repeated on the occasion of King George's visit, and that he will leave Ireland, as his father did, with the knowledge that loyalty is of no great importance. "The corporation of Dublin has decided not to present an address to King George but their attitude cannot be taken as indicative of the wishes of the citizens. As a matter of fact, strong exception has been taken to the action of the city council by Dubliners of all parties. The real feeling of the citizens in regard to the royal visit was shown at the representative and enthusiastic meeting when the citizens' committee was formed for the purpose of arranging a suitable welcome to the King and Queen. Irish-Americans who resist the scenes of their youth this year will be struck by nothing so much as the improvement in housing conditions throughout the country. The most hopeful sign of the progress of the country is the insistent demand that is going up in every quarter for better homes for the people, and particularly for the laboring classes.

Much progress has been made in the towns, but it is in the country that the greatest change is to be noticed. In Donegal and Conemaun an astonishing change has occurred in a dozen years. Formerly the laborer's cottage having a window that could be opened, a fireplace connected with a chimney, or a board floor was almost unknown. Today modern and comfortable houses are common and curiously enough they are commonest in the most poverty stricken districts. This is due to the excellent work of the congested districts board, which wisely has spent a good deal of money at its command in providing decent housing accommodation, and its example has been effective in rousing those who could do something for themselves to the necessity for better conditions. One of the best signs is that the farmer whose cottages are of old kind now is finding it almost impossible to get laborers while the man who has marched with the times and provides decent quarters for his men can get all he wants.

SURE SIGNS Of Kidney Trouble.

If your back is constantly aching, and if you experience dull shooting pains, your kidneys are out of order. If your urine is thick and cloudy or your passages frequent scanty and painful, your kidneys and bladder are out of order. Neglect quickly brings on rheumatism, diabetes, lumbago, sciatica and etc.

Mrs. John Wagner of 110 Hollis St., Halifax, N. S., says: "Dull shooting pains would catch me across the small part of my back and extend into my shoulders and neck, often causing me to suffer with severe headaches and spells of dizziness. Spots would dazzle before my eyes and everything would turn black, I would fall to the floor and be unable to get up again without assistance. A friend told me of Booth's Kidney Pills and I began their use. The first box gave me relief and I am now well and strong."

All druggists sell Booth's Kidney Pills; get a box with a guarantee to relieve your money. They are the world's greatest specific for kidney and bladder trouble. Post paid from the R. T. Booth Co. Ltd., Fort Erie, Sold and guaranteed by J. Suttor Clark.

COMPETITIVE EXAMINATION

How two Scotchmen Settled the Abilities of Their Daughters.

Not all examinations in Scotland are for the civil service. In his "Memories Grave and Gay," Mr. John Kerr reports one held at a village tavern to decide a wager, and, incidentally, to determine the relative scholarship of two school girls. Their respective fathers had started the discussion over the table.

"Och, yes," said Norman, "we must give more education to the lassies than to the lads."

"...aith, Norman," said Duncan, "I dare say your very rich there, and I'm sure there's not a man in all Sutherland can throw a stone at me for that there's not a lassie in the Reay county like her. She's a grand scholar, our Mary."

"Your Mary?" said Norman.

"Yes, our Mary."

"I'll wager you my Jesse is as clever a lassie as your Mary."

"Your Jesse?"

"Ay, jist my Jesse."

"Done," says Duncan.

"But who will examine the lassies?" says Norman.

"Well," said Duncan, "I think you should let me examine them. You see, I have jist been down at the examination of Kinlochberrie school to-day, and the ministers was there and the parents was there, and the ministers was asking them questions, and the children would be answering them. It was a grand sight, noble, and I was there, and as I'll be jist fresh off the irons, I think you should let me examine the lassies."

"Very well, Duncan, you'll examine them."

"The girls meanwhile were amusing themselves outside. Norman rang the bell and asked the servant to send in Jesse. When she appeared Duncan began

"Jesse, your father says you a grand scholar, and as clever a lassie as our Mary. Now jist tell me this, do you know the meaning of a verrab (verb)?"

"No, I do not, said Jesse.

"That will do for you. Jist go away and send in our Mary."

When Mary appeared, Duncan said:

"Now, Mary, I have been telling Norman that you are the best scholar in Sutherland. Jist show him how clever you are. Do you know the meaning of a verrab (verb)?"

"Yes," in quite a triumphant tone, "it's a noun."

Duncan looks defiantly at Norman and says, "There, now, my friend, what do you think of that? Didn't I tell you she was the cleverest lassie in the Reay county?"

FRIDAY, JUNE 9, 1911

The Canada Life Assurance Company Canada's largest company is again up in the limelight of publicity. About 12 yrs. ago Senator George A. Cox obtained control of a majority of the shares and succeeded in having the former president under whose splendid management it had obtained the confidence of the people of Canada, superseded and his son E. W. Cox appointed as manager.

At that time to allay the feeling of distrust he was forced to grant a species of joint control, by the policy holders and his own interests now it appears that he is withdrawing that arrangement and apparently taking the full control of the co., in himself, family and friends, five of the board of management have either withdrawn or been forced to do so by him. Thus a great and influential co., in which millions of the peoples money have been put, and which should be conducted in the most open and above board manner, is absorbed by our man and will probably be carried on by him, soley in the interest of himself and his family.

In this way schemes of graft and so called high finance, Canada is today in proportion to population giving the U. S. a pretty good race if we are not almost in advance.

The Story Of Spectacles.

The invention of spectacles is by some people ascribed to Roger Bacon, and by others to an Italian monk named Di. Shina. Whoever it was deserves to be better remembered, for surely he earned the gratitude of mankind! For hundreds of years spectacles were very clumsy, for the glasses were thick and the frames, made of bone or of tortoise shell, were heavy and ugly. It was not until the beginning of the nineteenth century that men learned to refine and perfect glasses and to make the frames at once light and strong. Spectacles to aid imperfect sight have, it appears, been in use for over six hundred years; but spectacles merely as a "protection" to the eyes are of much more ancient date. Snow spectacles are worn by the Esquimaux, who could not tell who invented them; and in all Arctic countries not only men but women wear spectacles, but also animals. Farmers who are careful about their cattle will provide both cows and horses with spectacles to protect the eyes from the glare of the glittering snow. The spectacles worn by Laps and Esquimaux are not made of glass but of very thin bone or whalebone, through which it is not possible to see clearly enough for purposes of travel or sport.

A traveller in Mexico who visited some ancient Aztec ruins tells us of the tomb of a great chief on which was sculptured the head of a man wearing spectacles. These were fastened on in precisely the way common to us. In those prehistoric days glass had not been invented, so the spectacles could only be intended for protection. In Mexico there is no snow to dazzle the eyes, so the protection needed must have been against weapons of war, probably arrows or spears. This ancient Aztec warrior evidently wore his spectacles for such a purpose as they were made of solid material with only a small hole left for the purpose of sight.

Times have changed since those days. Eyes were valued then as now and the gift of sight was a thing to be guarded; but in these days we think more of assisting than of protecting our eyes. The motorist indeed wears goggles to screen his eyes from danger and these goggles differ little in appearance from the heavy spectacles worn by our forefathers. The motorist, intent on speed regards the ugliness of his goggles as a matter of no importance, but others are not so stoical and prefer spectacles with light and delicate frames. The men of Wolverhampton are said to be specially skillful in this art, and have been known to produce spectacles weighing only a quarter of an ounce, frames and glasses complete.

Diaz.

The departure of Diaz from the land he ruled for so many years is pointing the moral of many newspaper and magazine articles. One thing that is shown by the fate of the ex-President is that it would be wise to absolutely limit the term of those elected rulers to one re-election. When there are unlimited years in which a President may rule those who personally benefit by his election are sure to work together to continue it. Here is a graphic illustration of the whole matter from the Boston Post, which is worthy of thought: "Mexico's greatest man sailed away from his country yesterday, hopeful of return, but probably destined never to see his native land again. Some day he will be brought back and given a pompous burial and a majestic monument, for the Latin races are peculiarly appreciative of their national heroes after they have departed. The exile of Porfirio Diaz is pathetic, because of his years and because of the constructive work he has given Mexico. It seems rather a poor requital for services rendered. But through its harshness can be seen the insistence of liberty, the final protest against one-man rule, the verdict of a freer Mexico. Diaz was in himself the old order of things, and his time was up."—Globe.

A Remarkable Status.

Buried in a jungle of merchandise in a city warehouse for over fifteen years, the "Guarnacci Hercules," reputed experts to be twenty-two centuries old, has once more been resurrected and transferred to Earl's Court, where he will constitute one of the numerous interesting attractions of the Ancient Art Exhibition to be held there this summer. Attributed to Lyssippus of Syracuse or one of his pupils, this ancient marble has a remarkable history. It is supposed to have come into being in the fourth century B.C. With the fall of the Eternal City, it lay buried for centuries until during the pontificate of Clement XI., 1700-21, it was resurrected between the slopes of the Aventine and Palatine hills. Sometime in the early seventies it was purchased by an Italian art dealer in London and exhibited by him at his showroom in Regent street. The damage which Hercules sustained through the fall of Rome was as nothing to that which it suffered during its return trip from Paris to London after the close of the exhibition of 1878, where it was shown. At the docks Hercules' right leg was found amputated, and the massive right hand separated from his wrist. The cunning of the Grecian chisel is seen in every detail.

General Lord Wolseley is 78 Years of Age.

General Lord Wolseley, one of England's greatest soldiers, was born June 4th, 1833, when he was wounded. He as a staff officer through the greater part of the Crimean war and all of the Indian Mutiny. At the siege of Sebastopol he was again severely wounded. In 1858 he was promoted major, and in 1859 lieutenant colonel, and in 1861 he was sent to Canada in consequence of the difficulties arising with the United States over the Trent affair. In 1869 he commanded the forces that suppressed the the Riel insurrection in the Northwest, and was knighted for his services. A few years later, for his services in the Ashantee war, he was made a major general and gave a parliamentary grant of $125,000. After the decisive battles of Tel-el-Kelair, when he crushed the revolt of Arabi Pasha, he was created Baron Wolseley. In 1884 he commanded the expedition to relieve Gordon and Khartoum, and on his return to England he was elevated to the rank of Viscount. In 1895 he was made commander-in-chief of the British army.

I wot not whye such things should be,
Sir Knight of the far countree,
Whye is't that when thou art near
The sunne shines out, the skies are clear,
The birds leap up and sweetly sing,
The flowers speele by on lightning wing,
The flowers bloom fresh along the waye,
Where ere our happy footsteps straye,
Can'st tell me whye these things should be
Sir Knight of the far countree?

The Knight.
You aske me whye such things should be
My Lady Fayre of Arcadie?
Ah, woulde that I mighte dare to telle
The secret of that mystic spell.
Aske of that gentle summer breeze
That whispers to the blustering tree;
The rose, that blushing with soft fire,
Bares to the sunne her heart's desire;
The waves that rush along the same,
Eager to kiss the pebbly strand;
The birds that sing in yonder dale,
All these methinks, to you could telle
The marvel whye such things should be,

King George's 46th Birthday.

LONDON, June 3. King George's 46th birthday is being celebrated at Buckingham Palace today. There is a family luncheon party and many birthday offerings will be made.

Queen Alexandra's present, according to the Daily Express, has been brought by her from her recent foreign tour. A large case had arrived from Berlin, containing the present of the German Emperor and Empress. A special messenger brought a sealed packet from the Tsar. One of the young princes is giving to his father a small terrier, while Princess Mary's present is a tobacco pouch embellished with herself with the King's monogram and crown.

None of the delegates of the Imperial Conference will discuss a report current here two days ago that the body had voted in favor of complete naval autonomy for Canada, Australia and New Zealand, but that no definite action has been taken is the inference to be drawn from the significant admission of one of the delegates who, on being asked if the conference had acted upon the matter, replied:

"My lips are sealed by a pledge, therefore I can neither affirm nor deny the report, I cannot even discuss the matter now."

The other delegates were absolutely amazed when told that the matter was known outside the conference. Their astonishment was so real as to give credence to the report.

opens out of the cavernous restaurant kitchen stood a score of housewives and about the same number of white-coated and white-coated cooks while the new wizard of the kitchen performed his miracles.

The particular task which M. Sover had set himself was to cook an eight-course dinner within the hour. This entailed the preparation for the oven, and the actual baking of 31 separate dishes, including fish, entrées, vegetables, joints and sweets. Perhaps the most surprising thing of all was the manner in which boiling and stewing may be performed in the accommodation bags. In one M. Sover popped a pound of chopped mutton, a little seasoning, and a cupful of water' afterward sealing the opening by folding it over. After being in the oven for 40 minutes, out came the mixture as a delicious stew, still enclosed in the bag which had retained the savory flavoring.

A chicken "boiled" with a cupful of water was delicious. The eccetras were a little rice, onion, carrot, herbs, mushroom, pepper and salt. Time: 40 minutes in a slow oven.

"God was simply "boiled" in its own juice, which, when the paper bag was opened, poured out in astonished quantity.

Pears were proved to keep their color with the addition of a little sugar only, apples turned into soft snowballs out of breaking, and puff pastry came out of its bag crisp and brown.

All of the 31 dishes were got into the oven in 30 minutes, and the majority had Civilization V. War.

The brutal conquest of nations has had its day. You can annex their commerce but not their mind. The hope which lies at the bottom of a national consciousness is stronger than the blows which assail our bodies. Nations live as long as they are not willing to die. War has become a profession of dupe. It sheds plenty of blood and brings about infinite misfortunes, but its conquests are temporary and delusive. It is not victorious armies which determine and mould the destiny of nations. Civilization alone counts. It creates, grows and destroys communities. Contemporary Review.

"Pelorous Jack" Is Dead.

News comes from New Zealand that "Pelorous Jack" is dead. His body, after a long search, was found on the beach. The sharks made several meals out of "Jack's" dead body. He had the distinction of being protected by a special act of Parliament. Whether this honor was due to the fact that he was the sole survivor of his species or to the circumstance that he voluntarily acted as a sort of pilot for ships is not quite clear. Certain, however, it is that for twenty years and more this huge fish met all the steamers bound for Wellington whether they arrived by day or by night. He usually took up a position ahead of them in Pelorous Sound, as if with a perfect understanding as to their destination. Thus he earned the sobriquet of the "pilot fish" while by some he was known as the Lone Fish of the French Pass.

"Pelorous Jack", to employ his more general appellation, was one of the "sights" on the voyage to Wellington. Sometimes passengers had such little respect for him that they tried to "pot" him with their revolvers, but this sort of thing was stopped when the New Zealand legislature said it down that the fish must on no account be interfered with. But no statute could give "Pelorous Jack" an indefinite lease of life, and the report comes that his body has now been found, partly eaten by sharks. He is supposed to be the last of a race of marine monsters which flourished in French Pass half a century ago.

"Pelorous Jack" was a species of dolphin and he was to be about four teen feet long.—X.

Already Bospoken.
(National Monthly).
A young and enthusiastic minister, who had lately been installed in his first parish in a New England town, made it a point to shake hands with every stranger he saw at any of the services and do his best to make them feel welcome. Accordingly when Mrs. Ward's new servant girl, a buxom Swede appeared in the Ward pew one evening the young pastor hastened down after the service to shake hands with her. In his usual genial manner he enquired her name, asked if she were a member of any church, and finished by saying that he would like to call and see her if she would name some evening when she would be at liberty.

Ontario to Order The Dogs Muzzled.

Toronto, June 5.—(Canadian Press) —With the approach of hot weather and consequent danger of rabies, it is probable that the provincial board of health will again order all dogs in the province to be muzzled during the summer months.

Already several cases of dog bites have been reported, and as there were so few cases reported last summer when all dogs were muzzled, it is expected that a similar order will be issued soon.

The Horse's Activity.

(New York Herald.)
The gasoline engine is cutting into the horse's sphere of activity, but it is not putting the noble animal out of business. Horses are greater demand than ever, and command higher prices. The United States Department of agriculture has just published some interesting statistics on this point.

There were 21,000,000 horses in the country last year, as compared with 17,000,000 in 1905, and the average value in 1910 was $108 per head, as compared with $79 in 1905. Automobiles, motor trucks, motor cycles, power plows, etc., have been swarming into the horse's domain during the five years interval, but the horses in use have gone on increasing and their price rising.

At the coronation review of the fleet at Spithead there will be in line 170 British warships and about 60 ocean liners and yachts. With the other vessels anchored outside the lines of the review ground there will be what a London cable describes as "an imposing display of British shipping."

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Are Your Children Properly Fed?

LET us talk about the right feeding of children. Of course, you want your children to grow up strong and healthy; you want to equip them for the battle of life with rugged constitutions and good red blood. Now, the first step is to see that they are properly fed. And these words "properly fed" mean much in the diet of children. For it isn't quantity that counts, but quality.

There is no better food under Heaven for growing children than plenty of first class bread and butter. They thrive on it, grow strong and fat and rugged. Their systems crave it because it is a complete, well-balanced food.

But the bread must be good—the very best, and the best is made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR which contains the full complement of Manitoba Red Eye wheat—for only wheat of this character contains enough of the right quality given to balance the starch. Gluten makes bone and muscle, starch makes fat. It takes the right combination of both to make properly balanced bread.

Bread made from OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is richest in blood building, muscle building, health building power. Children like it better and thrive better on it.

With "Royal Household" you need never have anything but the very best results for it is always the same, absolutely uniform, year in and year out and is just as good for baby as it is for bread.

If parents knew this important difference between ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR and other flours they would never use any but "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD".

New Road-Cleaner With Notes for Church Organ.

British chauffeurs of the new road-cleaner will, it seems, have to study musical notation to mechanical ability.

For the newest road-cleaner is not merely a hoover or brush or bumper or something of the nature of a church organ, with a range of ten notes.

Its latest invention, the Gabriel, has its name has ten horns turned into following notes G, A, B, C, D, E, F, G, A, B, C, D, E, F, G.

It has a brass key which in cases of 40 notes to purchase. It is played the melodies possess the highest tone and harmonies of an organ.

Festival of Empire.

Iron workers Engaged in Turning out Armor for Knights.

Elaborate preparations are now being made for the pageant of London, which is to be one of the principal features of the forthcoming Festival of Empire, to be held at the Crystal Palace, from May to October next, under the patronage and under the support of His Majesty's Government—a distinction rarely accorded to events of this kind.

The pageant promises to be one of the greatest historical spectacles ever witnessed, for neither money nor pains are being spared in the effort to make the 4 scenes which are to be enacted, accurate representations of the various periods selected.

The costumes and dresses for this huge undertaking are in themselves a very big job and some idea of the work that is being done in the way of dressing the pageant in the exact mode of the respective periods, may be gathered from the fact that there are no fewer than 15,000 performers taking part in the various scenes.

curate, a Research Committee was formed, whose duty it was to trace in the various museums and private houses old master pieces and traces of portraying characters and scenes in striking lines long ago by. Then a large staff of artists, all specialists in this kind of work, was engaged to make copies from the paintings, and from these colored drawings the designs for the dresses were executed.

Of the ten thousand or more costumes required for the pageant there are nearly seven thousand already completed, work which necessitated a staff of over 200 workers being engaged practically night and day during the past twelve months.

It will thus be seen that the cost of dressing the pageant alone is a very big item of expenditure. For the dresses range in price from £2 to 30 guineas, the latter price having been paid for the outfit for the lady who will play the part of Queen Elizabeth.

Falling Hair.

Mrs. Jas. Harris of Wapelli, Sask., says—

"I have found Parisian Sage to be the best scalp and hair tonic and dressing. I have ever used. My hair had been coming out in clumps full and was very dry and brittle and the scalp was always itching and full of dandruff. I have used two bottles of Parisian Sage and it has stopped my hair from falling, the itching and dandruff have disappeared and my hair is fine and soft and glossy. I would not be without this fine hair tonic for many times the price."

For women, men or children Parisian is without any doubt the finest preparation for the hair. Daintily perfumed, it is free from grease or stickiness and ought to be where every member of the family could use it daily. Large bottle 50 cents at all druggists or from the proprietors, The Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont., postpaid. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. Sold and guaranteed by J. Sutton Clark.

Quick and Permanent Relief from Rheumatism

It is not exposure to cold or wet that is the real cause of rheumatism—it is bad kidneys. So long as the kidneys are doing their work properly, filtering from the blood all the Uric Acid formed there from the waste products of the body, rheumatism cannot exist. It is only when the kidneys fail, and the blood becomes loaded with this Uric Acid, that the slightest exposure stiffens up the joints or muscles and causes agony.

Rev. Father Morrissy

Father Morrissy's No. 7 Tablets

promptly relieve and permanently cure rheumatism by putting the kidneys into perfect shape for their work. Once the strengthened, invigorated kidneys get the Uric Acid cleared out of the blood the rheumatic pains disappear. If they ever show symptoms of returning a few No. 7 Tablets will tone the kidneys up again and keep you free from the dreaded rheumatism.

Father Morrissy's No. 7 Tablets have proved their value in hundreds of cases where other remedies have failed entirely.

Hunting Enthusiasm.

A country laird with his man John was riding to market. The laird and John were passing a field in the moon, when the laird turned his stamper over his shoulder and said, "John, I saw a fox (five) gang in there."

"Did ye indeed, laird?" cried John, all his hunting enthusiasm instantly on fire.

"Ride ye your lane to town; I'll look for the creature out." Back went John for pick and spade, leaving first, of course, stopped the effort.

It was the hour of evening and he rode home. He came to a mighty excavation on the hillside. The trench was both long and deep. Very tired and somewhat sleep-grained in temper, John was seated on a mound of earth, east as the foundation of a fortress.

"There's one fox here, laird!" said John, wiping the honest sweat of endeavor from his brow.

"The laird was not put out. He was indeed exceedingly pleased with himself. "Dear, John," he responded, "I would have been much surprised; get there had been a fox in the hole. It's ten years since I saw the fox gang in there."

Taking No Risks.

A lady had in her employ a bachelor gardener. Valuing his services, she imagined that if she could get him to marry she might make sure of retaining him in her service. Meeting him one day, they indulged in conversation.

Mistress—"Do you ever think of getting married, John?"

John—"No, mum. I'm all right like I be."

Mistress—"But if you had a wife she could look after you, John."

John—"I can look after myself, thank-ee."

Mistress—"But she would be company, John."

John—"I tell 'e I don't want to get married."

Mistress—"Adam was the greatest gardener, and the first, and he had a wife, you know."

John—"Aw, yes, I know; an' he soon lost 'is job, didn't 'e?"

And Again!

A recruit was being shown the use of the rifle, and after firing seven shots at the target, which all missed, the instructor, in a rage, shouted—

"Here is another cartridge. Go behind that wagon and shoot yourself."

In a few minutes the recruit came back from behind the wagon and announced: "I'm sorry, sir, but it's another miss."

Tramp—"Please, mum, me feet's on th' ground, an' if ye could spare me an' de pair o' shoes, I'd—"

Mr. Spinks—"There's a wedding going on in the big house across the street. When the couple come out the family will throw a lot of the bride's old shoes after her."

"But, mum, they'd be too small."

"Hah! Wait till you see her feet."

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as with our fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

How the Glory Departed from Shelburne, N. S.

By Daniel Owen.

The story of the growth and decay of Shelburne, N. S., that Loyalist haven of is as romantic as it is fascinating, and goes back to that memorable day in October, 1781, when Lord Cornwallis and his army of seven thousand men surrendered to Washington.

At that time there were many wealthy families living in the cities of New York Philadelphia and Baltimore who were still loyal to the British Crown, and had no desire to live in the republic which all realized must follow the surrender of Cornwallis. They knew that to remain in the United States, possessing as they did British sympathies, meant that all their property would be confiscated, and they themselves imprisoned until they were welcome to renounce their allegiance to the King of Britain and subscribe to the constitution of the republic. This they were resolved never to do, and they therefore decided to emigrate to some other part of the Empire. Accordingly meetings were held in the three cities to discuss ways and means. From these cities were appointed representatives who formed a "Union Committee," with full power to decide upon the new home for the Loyalist citizens of New York Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Before the committee appeared, one Gideon White of Plymouth, Mass., who, possessing a personal knowledge of Shelburne, strongly advocated the advisability of emigrating to that place. Impressed by the claims of Shelburne, which were so ably presented by White, the committee, after long and heated debate, which at one time threatened to dissolve the meetings and also the committee itself, declared that on the south shore of the Province of Nova Scotia the Loyalists of the three premier cities of America should seek a haven of refuge from the imminent persecutions of a victorious enemy.

The next step was to take the matter up with the Imperial Government, with through a Lieutenant-Governor controlled Nova Scotia. For this purpose a committee consisting of seven members was appointed. Joseph Durfee of Newport, R. I., James Doyle of Albany, N. R., Peter Lynch and Thomas Courtney of Boston; Wm. Hill, Joseph Ponchon and Joshua Pell.

The Imperial Government gave the intending settlers every possible encouragement and inducement. They promised them large grants of land. Every family was to have a town lot measuring sixty by one hundred feet, a water lot on the harbor and a fifty-acre farm back of the town. In addition they were promised free lumber with which to build and food as long as it should be necessary.

As soon as all the arrangements were completed the exodus began. Palatial residences were taken apart and placed on ships which were to carry them to Shelburne, there to be again erected in all their grandeur and dignity. The new settlers men, and women of noble families, the elite of three great cities, to the number of five thousand, arrived in twenty ships, bringing with them all their worldly possessions. These were traded for furs, these occupations were beneath them, it was not a farming country and so they starved. Famine followed feasting; lamentations took the place of mirth. They had houses, palatial houses but these, unfortunately, were not edible and so they began to scatter. Some turned back to the States, some went to the neighboring towns. One after another they gathered their movable possessions and turned their backs upon "New Jerusalem." And their stately mansions with mahogany balustrades and marble mantels, were left for the birds to build their nests in.

Never did a city rise so grandly and fall so miserably. The fourteen thousand and soon became a beggarly, tearful band. Boys wandered through the streets and amused themselves with stoning out the windows with none to hide them for there were windows to spare. Some of the houses were torn down and carried away to other towns to build again, and others of these stately mansions, brought followed by six thousand more in the following September. With surprising rapidity the new settlement took shape. The town was perfectly laid out like a city (the plans having been prepared in New York), and to this day may be seen the ruined mansions, built over as large an area as that on which many a city of thirty thousand souls now stands, alas, now inhabited by less than a thousand people.

Seven million dollars were spent in modelling and improving the town; beautiful gardens were laid out, fronting on graceful boulevards; stately buildings were erected with magnificent appointments, all forming a fitting setting for the wealth and aristocracy that made up the population of Shelburne.

It was at this juncture that the citizens of Shelburne received a gift from His Majesty George III of Britain, that the citizens of the Shelburne of the present day point to with the utmost pride, to wit, one fire engine. But what a fire engine! It came with the King's compliments to protect the property of those who had remained loyal to their crown and person, and with the assurance that it was the most modern and very latest thing in fire fighting appliances. For this then modern fire engine it was necessary to first carry the water in buckets to the "tub" and then pump it out again to quench the flames.

But to go back. For long, romance gave way to stern reality, and soon the new settlers realized that the founding of a city on the rocky forest was not as easy as it had been represented. Another has so graphically described the tragic ending of that Loyalist haven that I will let him tell the pathetic story in his own words:

"They built their houses in New York and brought them with them—houses of oak that would stand for centuries, with stairways of mahogany and mantels of marble. They brought their slaves with them to do their work, and they furnished their mansions in a style fitted to their station. When Governor Parr sailed a year later from Halifax to visit the new city they had already expended upon it nearly three million dollars—a trivial sum now, but lavish in those days; and they entertained the Governor right royally, and they changed the name of the capital from New Jerusalem (which they had first christened it) to Shelburne in honor of Britain's premier, Prince Edward, father of Queen Victoria also visited the famous seaport on the south shore, and the whole city came forth to do him honor. Never before was there so gay a metropolis. They dined and feasted. No one worked for no one knew how to work. And why should they work? The English Governor furnished all their supplies. The neighbors in Yarmouth and Barrington and Lockeport, hard-working sea-faring men from Massachusetts, looked upon the newcomers with amazement, and contemptuously styled them the dancing beggars."

But the day of reckoning came. The Government supplies were cut off, and the gay capital began to grow hungry. They would not fish and they would not trade in furs, these occupations were beneath them, it was not a farming country and so they starved. Famine followed feasting; lamentations took the place of mirth. They had houses, palatial houses but these, unfortunately, were not edible and so they began to scatter. Some turned back to the States, some went to the neighboring towns. One after another they gathered their movable possessions and turned their backs upon "New Jerusalem." And their stately mansions with mahogany balustrades and marble mantels, were left for the birds to build their nests in.

Never did a city rise so grandly and fall so miserably. The fourteen thousand and soon became a beggarly, tearful band. Boys wandered through the streets and amused themselves with stoning out the windows with none to hide them for there were windows to spare. Some of the houses were torn down and carried away to other towns to build again, and others of these stately mansions, brought

Six minutes is all the time required for brewing Red Rose Tea; and the result is a beverage of matchless flavor and satisfying strength. The verdict of your family will be that RED ROSE TEA is good tea.

From the states at so great expense were palatial down and used for firewood.

Is there another city on the North American continent with such a history? Is there another whose story is so unique and fascinating?

When the settlers left Shelburne many of their slaves remained behind; some from choice, the majority because the empty purses of their masters forbade their removal. These, with the addition of three thousand or more free slaves who had from time to time emigrated from New York to Birchtown, a small settlement two miles from Shelburne, formed a colony of nearly five thousand souls, and their subsequent history is deeply interesting.

Slavery was prevalent in Nova Scotia in those days, and the "whites" of the Province had attached many of the "blacks," who, it may be mentioned, were not treated with least degree of kindness, but were, on the other hand, little better than beasts of burden.

Wilberforce and Clarkson, the great British reformers, heard of the ill-treatment of the negroes in Nova Scotia and determined to remove them to the negro colony that was in process of building in Sierra Leone. To this end, John Clarkson, brother of the reformer, Thomas Clarkson, came to Nova Scotia, made arrangements with the owners of the slaves, and personally superintended the deportation of the negroes. No ransom or force was used; those who went went voluntarily. The main inducement held out to them was the promise of being allowed to form a state of their own, with their own officials, selected from amongst their own number. This so appealed to their sense of self-importance that practically every man of them joined the expedition, and in 1792 twelve hundred negroes left Shelburne for Sierra Leone, and more followed later.

Each married man was given thirty acres of land, and each male child was given fifteen acres in the new African settlement. They were furnished with free passage and also with provisions on their arrival until they were able to look out for themselves. After that they were all supplied with provisions and the products of their plantations taken as pay.

Of the result of the experiment a local historian has said: "In their new homes some of these negroes remained steady and peaceable, and welcomed the arrival some years later of an English Methodist missionary, but the majority became so unruly and violent that they endangered the existence of the settlement, and even attempted the murder of the Governor. So difficult was the task of keeping them in order that when eight years later, the managers or the colony were asked to receive the Maroons, also from Nova Scotia; they only consented in the hope that the race would prove a counterpoise to the other."

The Shelburne of today shows the result of that Loyalist invasion of so many years ago, and in the beautiful little village with its shaded streets, its stately residences, and a harbor that has no peer on the North American coast, the citizens talk with pride of the days of the long ago, and of the blood that courses through their veins, that blood of the "Loyalist Fathers" who, true to the motherland, sought a haven of refuge on the south shore of the Province of Nova Scotia.

The Law Must Be Changed.

No one will be disposed to quarrel with Judge Winchester's statement that Colonel Munroe, President of the defunct Farmers Bank, "was deceived as to the condition of the bank," and intentionally so, by both Travers and Fitzgibbon, and that he was entirely innocent of any knowledge of wrongdoing. In the present state of the law Judge Winchester holds that Colonel Munroe is not guilty of unlawfully and wilfully making false and deceptive returns of the condition of the bank to the Government.

But if this is the law the people of Canada will see to it that the law is changed. They are strongly in favor of the adoption of some amendment to the Banking Act, such as that proposed by Mr. Fielding, which will place the responsibility for the correctness of returns made to the Government, the official figures upon which rest the very foundations of banking in Canada, on the shoulders of the men signing them.

Heiress Cashier In Restaurant.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 3.—After a search that has lasted more than two years, Miss Margaret Ingersoll, heiress to a fortune estimated at $1,000,000, has been found in this, and will start for New York today. Miss Ingersoll was located by detectives employed by Mr. Joseph H. Choate, former United States Ambassador to England, who is the executor of her father's estate. For some time past the young woman has been working as cashier in moving picture shows and restaurants. She was employed in a small eating house in Marietta, Ga., when found by the detectives.

New York's New Fire Alarm.

New York City is to have a new system of fire protection which will not only revolutionize all previous methods, but will make this the most thoroughly protected against fire of any city in the world. The new system is styled the air alarm. Its basis consists of a small hollow wire of copper alloy, one-eighth of an inch in diameter and containing a tiny insulated wire.

The hollow wire acts as a conductor for the air whose expansion causes a fire alarm to sound. The tiny wire is known as the trouble wire. If for any reason the hollow wire is cut or broken, the result is that an electric circuit is also broken, which causes the little wire to send a "trouble alarm" to the headquarters of the company. Fire headquarters bears nothing, unless there happens to be a real fire at the time the wire breaks, or is cut.

Loops of this inconspicuous hollow wire are strung around the molling of the rooms, houses, tenements and buildings to be protected, the loops ending in a detector which consists of a disc, containing a delicate diaphragm.

If a fire starts in a room the air in the hollow tube expands under the influence of the heat and operates a sensitive diaphragm in the detector, causing it to close an electrical circuit which sets in operation all the marvelous fire alarm machinery.

All the other systems are largely defective, due to the use of what is known as a "thermostat" placed at intervals on the ceiling. These are constantly exposed to the effects of the air and the electrical contacts become oxidized, or clogged with dust, and when needed fail to operate at all, or only after a raging fire is in full blast.

Briefly, the new system scores its main success in the principle that the best way to solve the great fire hazard problem of the day is to deal with incipient fires instead of conflagrations.

The new system gives an almost instantaneous alarm. It is a pair of curtains catch fire, or even a newspaper, an effective alarm is given within ten to forty seconds. Moreover, another alarm is rung on a box outside of the building, which also indicates the exact location of the fire. Thence, the alarm goes on, and directly into fire headquarters where the exact location is also announced.

Recent Revelations Have Put Beyond Question the Fact that the Missionaries of the Christian Churches in the West are Not Only Overworked but Underpaid.

Conditions are not likely to be improved in the near future, and to meet the needs of the country more effectively the Methodist Church proposes to raise a fund of a million and a half dollars.

The Passing of the Dumb.

(Harper's Weekly)
When, two years ago the New York Board of Education opened a school for deaf-mute children it was looked upon as an experiment. "Now it is recognized throughout the United States as an unqualified success. From an enrollment of 48 pupils in 1908 with ten classes it now has nearly 200 pupils and 19 classes including shop-work, cooking, painting, drawing and sewing. It is the aim of the school to qualify the pupils to enter the trades and professions and to be self supporting." In place of the old fashioned finger language the deaf-mute child now learns the use of his voice and reads the speaker's lips often across the room. All persons interested in the training of deaf-mute children should read this article.

Sheep are Profitable.

Sheep require less attention than any other farm animal. They do not have to be carried or brushed or washed, neither do they have to be tied with halters or confined with stanchions. All they need is good food, clean water and absolutely dry shelter, and for this care they will return a better profit, considering the investment, than any other animal on the farm.

The town of Franklin, Pa., has a school teacher whose service has been continuous for 49 years. She has taught in one building for 43 years, and for 22 years in one room. The number of her pupils reaches above 2,000.

The Italian Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church has selected the Rev. Dr. N. Wailing Clark and Mrs. Italia Garibaldi, a granddaughter of the liberator, to represent it at the General Conference of the denomination, to be held in Minneapolis in May 1912.

Man Uses $50 Bill As A Token.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 7. Frank Fox of Pittsburg, father of Frank Fox Jr., Indianapolis Taxicab Line owner, stood in the Hotel English drying his face with a $50 bill. He threw the bill on the floor and then produced from a bundle under his arm a handful of fives and fifties. Throwing them on the bar, he said: "Bartender, give me a drink, quick, or I will buy this hotel and have you fired."

The bartender produced the drink, but the price were notified and Fox was taken to headquarters, where it was found his bundle contained $3,005.

Berlin, June 10. As a result of a student prank played on the German Emperor during his visit to Karlsruhe, the Senate of Karlsruhe Technical University has suspended an entire student fraternity for the current semester. While the Emperor was here some half a dozen hilarious members of the fraternity entered an open carriage and drove up and down before the Grand Dural Palace, where the Emperor was staying, drinking beer out of a keg, and singing questionable songs. It was only with great difficulty that the police were able to put an end to the convivial performance and restore the carriage to its owner.

6 Year Old Girl Cured of Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Alex. Moore of James St., Oxford, N. S., says: "Booth's Kidney Pills cured our little daughter, Christian, age six years, of many symptoms of kidney weakness. She complained of a sore back, the kidney secretions were frequent and uncontrollable, especially at night. Her stomach was weak and her appetite poor. This caused her to have frequent headaches, and she was unable to do any work. We had tried many remedies, but she did not improve. I finally weaned her of her kidneys with Booth's Kidney Pills and she was cured. In a short time she was well and does not now complain about her back, the kidney secretions have become normal, and she plays around the house with no apparent fatigue. We always recommend Booth's Kidney Pills."

Booth's Kidney Pills carry a guarantee that if you derive no benefit your money will be refunded. Booth's Kidney Pills are a specific for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder. Sold by all druggists, 50c. box, or postpaid from the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie Ont. Sold and guaranteed by J. Sutton Clark.

Delays A Trolley Car.

Columbus, Ind., June 3.—Minding from right to left a young woman who was trying to board a trolley could not lift her foot as high as the step. Her skirt was to tight and she looked around in a helpless way. The conductor, who was fast losing his patience, suggested that she "hurry, please." She raised her dress a trifle, but still the skirt was too tight. Then she raised the skirt a little higher and her feet came up a few inches. Still the step was above her.

The motorman's hand was getting impatient on the controller and the conductor was urging the young woman to get on the car. An extra conductor came around the end of the car and sought to be of service. A wag suggested that an inclined plane be erected and the woman rolled into the car barrel fashion.

All situations have an end and this one did when the young woman became excited, looked desperately around and then hoisted her skirt to her knees. Even then two conductors were necessary to help her on the car.

Condolence.

Dear Sister: We the Officers and members of Golden Rod Lodge, No. 212 desire to convey to you our heartfelt sympathy in this your hour of bereavement. The one who has taken a kind and loving mother to dwell with him has promised to be a friend to all. We can only say, "His will be done." We know He doth all things well. May you meet around the throne of God an unbroken family. We shall meet, we shall sing, we shall reign.

In the land where the saved never die; We shall rest free from sorrow and pain; Safe at home in the sweet bye and bye. Signed on behalf of Golden Rod Lodge L. T. B. A. Eleanor Stuart O. F.

Indigestion.

If you are suffering from indigestion and the attendant distressed stomach, you should give Mi-o-na, the guaranteed remedy a trial. Mr. Wm. Shafer of 230 Queen St. S., Berlin, Ont., says: "For years I have been a sufferer from acute indigestion, which caused the most distressing pains in my stomach. I started to try Booth's Mi-o-na Tablets and they have done more good than anything I have ever used. I am now free from this trouble than I have been for years. I am pleased to endorse and recommend this remedy to all who suffer with stomach trouble."

Remember Mi-o-na Tablets are guaranteed to cure acute or chronic indigestion and turn the old stomach into a new one in a few weeks. All druggists sell a box or postpaid from the R. T. Booth Co. Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Sold and guaranteed by J. Sutton Clark.

Bucking the Trust

By W. Y. SHEPPARD

(Copyright, 1908, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

ANGLEY had a cigar store on Locust street. It had taken him two years to raise the business to a point where it could support itself and Langley. When it arrived at that point his ambition was to raise it one notch higher; that is, to where it could support itself and Langley, and at the same time pay off each month part of the debt which had descended upon them during the period of non-support.

For a time it seemed as if Langley would succeed as he was an enterprising, energetic young fellow, shrewd beyond his years. Then one day Mr. A. B. Rockway, the local representative of the cigar trust, blew into his store. He had heard that Langley was pushing a "low" brand of cigars to the detriment of the trust goods.

"Look here, Langley," said the trust man, "this has got to stop. I like you well enough personally, but business is business."

Langley tried to explain that the increasing demand for the local cigars was not due to any effort of his. But Rockway knew better.

"You've got to cut Turner & Co.'s goods out," he said, "or we'll cut you. Now Langley was not a man to be dictated to, and he fired up right away.

"If you think you can do it, go ahead," he returned. "I've got the only cigar store in the block. And what's more, you can't rent a store in this block. There're all leased except Miss Child's, the millinery shop, next door, and she owns that. Now, if you think you can run me out, try it."

"Well, try it, and we'll do it," snapped the trust man, as he flung himself out of Langley's store.

Two days later Langley was greatly surprised and a good deal chagrined at seeing a brand of cigars packed with sales showcases in front of the millinery store next door. Before night the cases had been installed and filled, every one of them, with trust cigars. Miss Child's, now no longer a milliner, stood behind the counter, dispensing cigars and smiling so that made Langley feel sick at heart.

During the next week Langley's trade fell off distressingly. And no wonder, when the shop next door was selling five-cent cigars three for ten and ten-cent cigars four for a quarter, to say nothing about the smiles that were given so lavishly with each purchase.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

He stopped and whirled about, the pen extended in his hand, as the door of the private stateroom opened, giving admittance to a man of perhaps thirty-five, who exuded a certain bonhomie and rakish atmosphere. At the neck of this gentleman's elaborately frilled shirt there gleamed a huge cameo, and conspicuous stains fastened the cuffs at his wrists.

"Gentlemen, your servant, and my humble apologies," he said, with an elaborate bow. "I trust this is not an untimely intrusion."

CHAPTER II.
THIS is a private stateroom, in a grand, colonial, and well-ventilated vessel. It is Colonel Moreau's by all the odds, your admiral's seat, my dear friend," he said, with a certain air of familiarity. "What—Why, as I live, it is Colonel Moreau—by all the odds, your admiral's seat, my dear friend," he said, with a certain air of familiarity.

"Not at all, I assure you," he replied, smiling into the other's somewhat sunken eyes. "Come, if your friend is willing, let me sit in. I really insist upon being in your company. Won't you introduce me?"

Moreau hesitated, trying to read the other's eyes. Then, apparently satisfied, he turned to the intruder. "My friend, sub. Mr.—Mr. Jackson of New Orleans."

"Honored, sub. Honored!" replied the intruder, arising and extending a frank hand. "I warn you, sub. that the Randall luck has turned and that you will surely lose. Stay out, sub. stay out, sub. He added impressively, patting the other's shoulder. "For I am about to make a killing, and I don't want you to be among the dead. I'm the colonel and I'm old and of the world, sub. but this is no place for a young man like you. I trust you will take my advice in the spirit in which it is offered. For I am a father, sub. and I like you. By the way, you really use of a dear friend I once had—the Kirbys, sub. of Massachusetts."

"Come," interrupted Moreau, "let us resume our conversation." Mr. Randall, who you make your landing, sub. in about half an hour."

"I thank you for your advice, sir," said the intruder, with a certain gravity. "I am a man of the world, sub. and I must of necessity substitute our checks. We are strangers to you, sir, and—"

"Yoh word, sub. is entirely sufficient," interrupted the planter, waving his hand. "This is a question of honor between us, fob I might draw a deed to a plantation I never owned. I am a man of the world, sub. and I reckon we each can recognize a southern gentleman on sight."

"Yes, in the present company that is not a very difficult matter," gravely responded Mr. Jackson. "Shall we cut for the deed? The four best hands take all. Ah, luck is with me. I take the card, sir."

"One moment," said Moreau, "as no stakes are up I reckon I'll give my check for the full amount should I lose." Picking his roll, he glanced satirically at Mr. Jackson.

one of the colonel's undertakings were highly estimable he naturally held the best hand when, for a moment, the cards were in his power, and it speaks eloquently for Mr. Jackson's large charity of judgment that he refrained from criticism even when actually aware that the middle aged crew had rather clumsily garnered his third ace from the bottom of the deck. But as youth must be served, especially when possessed of such consummate skill as that owned by Mr. Jackson, the latter handsomely won his fourth showdown with surprising ease, verve and dash.

"Well, that winds her," airily remarked the colonel, arising and stretching his long arms. "One hundred thousand such a bad cleaning, I reckon, but yoh always were lucky, yoh young scamp, and there's no playing against it. Yoh even topped my fob kings. I calculate the Randall luck finished a very long run. How about yoh theory now, sub?"

The planter did not reply, for it is somewhat difficult for a man newly become used to seeing the full humor of his condition. In silence he drew toward him the pen and ink, while for a long moment he stared at the white sheet of paper, upon which he was about to give title to all which he owned. He and his children were beggars, total and complete. This was the turning of the tide, his royal home coming. For a moment he bowed his grizzled head, then, starting his teeth against all thoughts of the future, seized the quill pen. For a Randall must show the world how it can lose.

A Randall must be beaten at nothing—seven at placing the foot.

"Yoh name, sub?" he courteously inquired, turning to the young stranger who had proved so fortunate.

"Eugene Kirby, sir."

"Ah, the General. I have a boy, sub. whom we affectionately call by that name," replied Mr. Randall irrelevantly, starting at the ceiling. "I have three children, sub. These is Tom and Adele and the General. Their mother is dead, sub. And yoh say yoh name is Eugene Kirby. Very strange, sub. Eugene Kirby, sub. of Massachusetts, sub. No relation, I suppose. But yoh pardon, sub."

And, with a hand now steady and sure, he wrote and signed the deed to the Randall plantation and, with a bow, handed it to the gambler whose father he had befriended; the gambler whose reputation was said to be the worst on the river; the son of the man who had been his nearest neighbor and closest friend.

This accomplished, Mr. Randall arose unsteadily and walked to the door, where he turned and for a moment surveyed the smoke fouled room with its litter of empty bottles. And if for a moment a fleeting realization of the very thorough manner in which he had been victorious permeated his throbbing brain no hint of it was depicted in face or bearing.

"Good evening, gentlemen," he said gravely, and then took for the old gambler, "Good evening." Head erect, he walked out and very softly closed the door.

Kirby resumed his preoccupied attitude at the table, while Moreau, carelessly lighting a cheroot and pouring himself a drink, sprawled elegantly over an adjacent couch.

"Well, I calculate that's the easiest mark that ever came our way," he observed, with a laugh. "Green as the everlasting hills," quietly pocketing Mr. Randall's wallet, a delicate maneuver which Kirby neglected to note. "I calculate this is the first time you and I ever played together, eh? Yoh're a deuce of a hand at the cards, my boy—never saw yoh equal before. I take it, yoh partner, Mr. Randall's name, is not with yoh this trip or yoh wouldn't have so unceremoniously doubled up with me. Or perhaps yoh two have fallen out, eh? If so, sub. I will be happy to make our impromptu partnership permanent."

Kirby swung slowly around and fixedly regarded his magnificent and amiable companion. "Since when have you contemplated such an admirable partnership?" he blandly inquired.

"Ever since I first saw yoh play, Kirby. Come, yoh partner, hance, is crude—a blubber faced Yankee, with no manners whatever, sub. But yoh and I are gentlemen and would make the best team on the river. I consider our play tonight the biggest haul in a decade, and I promise yoh mosh like it, fob I never go in fob pleasure affairs. My fingers are growing a little too stiff fob skillful manipulation, and I frankly own I haven't yoh delicate and admirable finesse. But I have the manner, Kirby, and can rope the cattle for yoh to brand, sub. I'll guarantee yoh the biggest game on the river."

"You will oblige me, sir," replied the other, carefully lighting a cheroot, "by employing the prefix to my name—if ever in the future I am unfortunate enough to have you address me. Permit me to inform you that you are a deuce of a hand, sir. I cannot be too emphatic concerning that statement. Whenever I form a partnership with you I will be more qualified for a front seat in hance than I am at the present moment. Why, yoh low, thieving swamp cat," he cried, losing all self control, "how dare you think I

The Grasshopper and the Wheat.

There were crop experts and weather prophets in Israel in the days of the Preacher, who spent their time frightening the grain-growers of the valley of the Jordan pretty much after the fashion of the alarmist who announced last week that the grasshoppers were working havoc on the tender shoots in the Dakota Wheat-fields. They were in some instances no doubt sincere pessimists, but one cannot help thinking that a good many of them were in the pay of the grain-dealers of Samaria or Jerusalem.

It was against the craft and guile of the corn merchant who made the ephah small and the shekel great, and falsified the balances by deceit, that Amos launched some of his fiercest denunciations, while the writer of Ecclesiastes discounted the crop pessimists' words, by pointing out that "he that observeth the wind shall not sow, and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap. . . . In the morning sow thy seed and in the evening hold not thy seed: for thou knowest not whether shall prosper either this or that, or whether both shall be alike good."

The sower, it would appear, plays the oldest and most honorable game of chance known to man. There is need to emphasize this point in a country the prosperity of which depends so greatly as does that of Canada upon one of the world's most important wheatfields. We have been disposed to pay a good deal too much attention to the talk of the bulls and bears of the Chicago wheat pit who for the most part are neither more nor less than gamblers. If William Whyte or some other authority hurts the gamblers engaged in putting wheat futures up by his statement that the Northwest crop is likely to be very large, his remarks are speedily discounted by an announcement that grasshoppers have been discovered in the wheat. A little later rust and drought stories will try their share to frighten the western farmer and the eastern manufacturer and capitalist interested in the success of the crop.

It should not be forgotten that a crop failure in the Canadian West as a whole is no longer even remotely probable. When the Northwest wheatfields were confined to the Red River Valley on both sides of the boundary there was always danger of a general failure. But all sorts of weather conditions are to be expected in a wheatfield a thousand miles wide. There may be very serious failure in one part of it, as there was in southern Manitoba and Alberta last year, while in other districts crops may be distinctly above the average in both quantity and quality, as they were in northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

It would be well for Canadians of both East and West during the next ninety days to pattern themselves after the ancients, who left the crop to the care of Providence after they had done their best for it in the work of preparing the land and sowing it. They, like ourselves, knew not whether should prosper this or that, or whether both would be alike good.—Tor. Globe.

At last kerosene (or paraffine, as the English call it) is cheap in Great Britain. The British papers refer to the competition for the refined burning oil trade in the United Kingdom, and state that retailers are buying kerosene, even in remote corners of the British Isles, at 6 cents per gallon.

A lupine twist came to the other's lips as he produced pen, ink and paper. "Yoh just make out that deed now, sub," he said saucily. "My name

THE BURGLAR AND THE SAFE.

The burglar of forty years ago carried a "jimmy" or crowbar, and a set of "twirls," or skeleton keys. With these he was able to tackle any safe of the old-fashioned sort.

Safe-making became a science, and the "jimmy" useless, so Bill Sikes of the next generation provided himself with dynamite cartridges, or small charges of "soup," or nitro-glycerine, which he forced into the crack under the safe door, and fired by means of a small pocket battery.

The safe maker took a step in advance and, behold, the cracks were stopped, and no cranny or crevice left into which any form of explosive could possibly be injected.

It seems as though Bill would have to reform.

But chemistry and electricity have both come to his aid. Wherever a burglar can manage to strip electric wires, he has at hand a simple method of producing a degree of heat sufficient to melt anything.

PIERCE HARDEST STEEL.

He uses a carbon pole, safely insulated, and produces an arc powerful enough to melt anything.

On August 21st last, an attempt was made belonging to a firm of Birmingham jewellers which contained $200,000 worth of diamonds and other valuables. A great hole has been melted through two inches of solid steel, and if the thieves had not been disturbed at their work they would infallibly have secured the "swag." These men used the oxy-hydrogen blow-pipe flame, which produces the most intense heat known to man, next to the electric furnace.

All that is necessary is a small cylinder of compressed oxygen, such as doctors use for patients suffering from pneumonia, a length of india-rubber tubing and a blow-pipe. The india-rubber tube is connected with the nearest gas jet, the oxygen is turned on, and mixed with the gas, and the result is a flame with a temperature of over

2,000 DEGREES FARENHEIT which will melt the Harveiseil steel of the burglar.

Another dodge of the up-to-date safe robber is the use of a chemical compound known as thermit. This consists of a finely powdered mixture of aluminum and metallic iron.

The heat evolved by this chemical action is so terrific that under its impact steel runs like melted sealing wax.

Fortunately for the public at large, thermit has, from the burglar's point of view, two formidable drawbacks. Magnesium must be employed to light the cartridge, and burning magnesium produces a brilliant glare of light. Again, thermit itself, in process of combustion, sends off huge

COLUMNS OF SMOKE, which is apt to betray the operations of the safe breaker.

Some little time ago, a policeman arrested a suspicious looking character leaving a house in Bronesbury at an early hour in the morning.

"It's just as well to tell you I am a burglar," said the fellow.

This man had in his possession a bottle of methylated spirits another of some other chemical, and a brass apparatus with a blow pipe attachment. The use of the latter puzzled the police, but the burglar frankly explained its use.

"You see," he said, "I just smear the glass of the window above the catch with the stuff in this bottle, then I turn the flame of a soldering lamp on it by means of the blow pipe. As soon as the glass melts, I put this hooked blade through, pull back the catch, and there you are."—London Answers.

PARISIAN SAGE Will Grow More Hair.

Parisian Sage will stop falling hair in two weeks—cure dandruff in the same time and stop scalp itch at once. It makes the hair soft, silky and luxuriant.

As a Hair Dressing Parisian Sage is without peer. It contains nothing that can harm the hair—it is not sticky, oily or greasy and prevents as well as cures diseases of the scalp.

Women and children by the thousand use it daily as a dressing and no house is complete without it.

Money Back if it Fails

Druggists and stores everywhere guarantee Parisian Sage and will refund your money if it fails. Ask druggist J. Sutton Clark what he thinks of it. He sells it at 50c. per large bottle or you can secure it by mail postpaid from Giroux Manufacturing Co., Fort Erie, Ont. See that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. Sold and guaranteed by J. Sutton Clark.

A Dream and its Result.

In 1720 a terrible epidemic decimated Marseilles and Provence, France, and Sardinia owed its escape to a dream, says the London Globe. At this period the Viceroy of Sardinia dreamed that the disease had invaded Sardinia and that the ravages were frightful. When the Viceroy awoke he was deeply impressed by his dream, and a little later a merchantman put in its appearance at Cagliari and demanded a place to berth. The Sardinian refused, and when it was hinted that the merchantman wanted to land some sick the Viceroy threatened to train the guns of the fort upon the vessel if the captain did not depart instantly. The people thought that the Viceroy was mad but great was their joy later when they learned that this very ship, which went on to Marseilles, was responsible for introducing the plague into the famous port.

Child Suicide.

Increase in Russia Causing Wide spread Alarm.

The increase in suicide in Russia is such that the medical faculty has been searching for remedies of what can fairly be called an epidemic of self-destruction. It is especially the frequency of suicidal tendencies a mong school children that is engaging the attention of educators and physicians.

In three months 125 cases of suicide among boys and girls of tender age have been reported. Prof. Charkotin in finds various causes for these suicides. Resentment at fancied wrongs or slights, fear of punishment, or of failure at school, and even unrequited love are the main causes.

The age of these youthful suicides begins at 14. That was the age of a boy who hanged himself. The natural surmise in this case was that it was an accident, but Dr. Koroschke, who made a close investigation into the circumstances surrounding the affair, states positively that it was a genuine premeditated instance of suicide.

In Germany, too, the distribution of the Easter school certificates has been marked by a series of schoolboy suicides. The famous pedagogue, D. Ludwig Guritt, in an open letter, frankly confesses his apprehension that there must be something radically wrong about the much vaunted German educational system which is unapproached by any other country in Europe with the sole exception of Russia.

Making the Best of It.

What's the use complaining And our temper straining Just because it's raining? Some time it will stop. And the snow is needed For the garden seedbed To the carrot cutting Or some sister crop.

What's the use of crying, Trouble multiplying Just because we happen To be good and broke? Chase the melancholy, Mope as well as jolly When you come to notice That it's all a joke.

What's the use in taking Extra time for making Trouble you will never Need to get along? Better to be resting Than to be investing In a lot of worry When you aren't strong.

What's the use of kicking When you might be picking Cherries, plums or kisses In the time you waste? Save your strength and force, Just read your resources. Of the feast that's waiting Come and have a taste.

Taking Long Chances.

A robbery youth was explaining to a friend of the family about the preparations that were being made to welcome home a brother who had been away for some time.

"Aren't you missing yourself rather conspicuous under the circumstances?" asked the friend in a solicitous tone of voice.

"Why shouldn't I?"

"I should think you would keep in the background as much as possible."

"Why?"

"They are going to kill the fatted calf, you say."

"Sure thing."

"They might get you by mistake."

Facts and Figures.

To Study Over.

The cost of Militia and Defence of Canada in 1880 was $690,018. In 1900 it was $46,178, and in 1910 the outlay of that department was $4,679,956. This did not include the cost of armories, or expeditions for naval service. It takes the cost of the nucleus of the Canadian navy, the "Rainbow" and "Noble"
and the votes for new drill halls, armories, military store-houses, the items in the Marine and Fisheries Department chargeable to the naval service, we have a grand total of over $22,280,000, to which the country is committed for 1911 and we are warned by the Minister of Militia that the estimates in the naval branch may be considerably exceeded.
The Auditor-General shows that since 1896, $12,118,150 has been spent in the Militia Department that has been charged to capital account, or, in other words added to the public debt. The total cost of the military and naval preparations of Canada for the current year amount, therefore, to about twenty per cent. of the country's income.

The grand total expenditure of Great Britain during the past fiscal year, in round numbers, was $829,500,000. Of this vast total $175,614,008 was for the navy and $137,125,000 for the army.
When the present Kaiser came to the throne the expenditure of Germany for its navy was $12,500,000 a year. By 1901 this had increased to $45,000,000 and in 1910 the German naval preparations cost $105,000,000. Adding to this the cost of the German army, war preparations absorb two-thirds of the income of the German Empire. What this means should be a great war break-out may be conceived when we reflect that in times of peace and normal trade twenty-two per cent of the population of Germany are not able to earn enough to keep above hunger and want.

During the 19th century 20,000,000
lives have been sacrificed in war. Debts of great nations chiefly incurred by war amount to over $25,000,000,000 and interest on these debts $1,000,000,000.
Annual cost of armies and navies, $2-$30,000,000 and value of men's services
diverted from peaceful pursuits $2,170-000,000.

A modern battleship costs more than the land and buildings of the oldest university on this continent, and yet becomes obsolete in fifteen years.

What the United States spent on acquiring the Philippines would have irrigated every acre of arid land in that country.

The United States is spending sixty-five per cent. of all its national revenue for armaments, pensions, and interest on war debts, leaving barely more than one third for civil administrative purposes and other constructive work. The United States War Department requires this year over $219,890,000, while the pension list from past wars absorbs $253,500,000.
The annual cost of Britain's armaments
at the present time, if shown in dollar
bills piled like the leaves of a book,
would make a pile 17 miles high.

Since 1850 the population of the world has doubled, but the war indebtedness

has quadrupled.
Wars do not consume the weaklings and criminals, but the strong and fit. It is alleged that Napoleon's wars left the French soldiers of to-day two inches shorter than their ancestors.

Edmund Terry, the noted French economist estimates that preparations for war have cost Europe $28,000,000,000 in the past twenty-five years.

Choice Of An Employer.

German Servant Girl Method of Selecting a Mistress.

A domestic servant at Heidelberg advertised for a position as cook and maid of all work, announcing that she would be glad to receive offers of employment in keeping with her special talents,
writes a correspondent of the London Daily Mail. Forty-five replies reached her.

The five ladies on whom the servant
noticed either because of insufficient wages or because the would be mistress lived in an "undesirable" locality or higher than the second story.

The five ladies on whom the servant
decided to bestow her favor temporarily received written notice that she would do herself the pleasure of calling on the succeeding Sunday between 2 and 4 o'clock.

She devoted the afternoon to informing herself as to the manner of living of each family, the regular periods at which rises in wages might be expected the amount of entertaining done, the character and value of gratuities and presents customarily given to servants, how many free evenings a month were allotted and how long a summer holiday might be expected.

After imparting the desired information the ladies were informed that their offers would be taken into consideration and decision sent.

Three Years' Job.

Canada's decennial census-taking will take practically three years to complete.
She tabulating and analysis of the population, figures of the extensive information asked for in regard to trade, industry, etc., will the census bureau busy for that length of time. The total population will not be definitely known until October, though an approximate figure may be given out a month or so earlier.
The returns will begin to come in from the cities in about a fortnight's time, but the enumerators have three weeks allowed to complete their work, and the Commissioners are allowed another month in which to forward the returns to Ottawa.

The work of tabulation and compilation will be done at the census Bureau thereby a special staff of 160 clerks,
working with specially devised tabulating and compiling machines, similar to those used at Washington for the census of last year.

Mr. Charles W. Spicer, an official of the American Census Bureau, who has been temporarily borrowed by the Canadian Bureau, is now in Toronto superintending the manufacture of a number of machines to be used in tabulating the schedules turned in by the enumerators.

Reports from Census Bureau officials who have been receiving reports as to the prospective amount of work required of the Commissions in the various parts of the Dominion indicate that the growth of population in many districts has been considerably larger than was estimated.
The final figures will probably show a population increase of about fifty per cent. during the decade. West of the great lakes it is estimated there are now about a million and a half more people than there were in 1901. Eastern Canada should show an increase of a little over a million and a quarter.

In the general laugh that followed
this answer the lawyer subsided.

Alleged Wife Murder in Prince Edward Island.

GEORGETOWN, P. E. I., June 9.—
The preliminary trial of William Molyneaux, of Milltown Cross, charged with murdering his wife, on May 24, was resumed here yesterday. The most important evidence was that given by Dr. Brehaut, who performed the autopsy. In addition to marks made on the throat by the rope, he said there were others, two on the right side and one on the left, which could have been made by the thumb and fingers. The wind pipe was soft as a rag. The upper marks were made by the rope and were not ecchymosis rank and file want to know what they are to get out of it. They want peace, not promises. Moral victory is very fine for Malero, but the men of the southern army, who neglected their crops and went to fight must have money now or they will go to pillaging. The only thing that is keeping the army together is the hope of getting pay and bonus from the government. If that does not come quickly, the army will break up into several bands and prey on the country.

The only solution is to follow Diaz's policy by making rurales of the greater part of them. This would mean putting about 10,000 more men on the government pay rolls; but if Boss Madero says
so it will be done.

A Career of Obedience.

The great life-long duty of the woman of Japan is obedience. First,
she has to practice unswerving, unflinching obedience to her father so long as she dwells under his roof.
When she quits her home for that of her husband, she has to swear the same stern vow to her husband and his parents, and even to the wife of her husband's eldest brother, and then added to all these visions of constant self-abnegation, she has, on the death of her husband, to give obedience to her son, if she has them.

The writer of "Things Japanese"
says: "In her dealings with her husband, both the expression of her countenance and the style of her address should be courteous, humble and conciliatory, never peevish or intractable, never rude and arrogant—that should be a woman's first and chiefest care. When the husband issues his instructions, the wife must never disobey them. In doubtful cases
she should inquire of her husband and obediently follow his commands.
If ever her husband should inquire of her she should answer to the point to answer in a careless fashion would be a mark of rudeness. Should her husband at any time be roused to anger
she must obey him with fear and trembling, and not set herself up against him in anger and disputations.
A woman should look upon her husband as if he were heaven itself, and never weary of thinking how she may yield to her husband, and thus escape celestial castigation."

Disputed One.

The case before the Court, was one involving the ownership of a tract of land, and the solicitor, for one of the parties to the suit was cross-examining a witness.

"Now, Mr. Grimshaw," he said, "the property on which you live was originally a part of the twenty acres in dispute, was it not?"

"Yes sir."
"And your title is based on the original title to that land, I presume?"

"Yes sir."
"How long have you resided there?"

"Over twenty-one years."
"Have you had—now, mark me—have you had, twenty-one years' undisputed possession of that property?"

The witness hesitated a moment.
"Remember, Mr. Grimshaw," said
the lawyer, raising his voice, "that you are under oath. Have you had twenty-and years' undisputed possession of that property?"

"It has been disputed once, and only once," answered the witness.
"I found a nest of bumble-bees in my backyard one day last summer."

In the general laugh that followed
this answer the lawyer subsided.

The Scientific Age.

(Delineator.)
When I was married to my wife
I shared her sweet domestic labors
We led a simple country life,
And were contented with our neigh-

In all the jobs a housewife finds
I always was adept and certain.
I fixed the catches on the blinds
And quelled the savage window curtain.

To fit a stovepipe in the wall,
To make a shelf or mend a table—
These really were not tasks at all
To one mechanically able.

But when we moved to town, alas!
I found my talents much diminished
A city man must join a class
In engineering ere he's finished.

I fear the incandescent light,
I cannot mend the radiator;
It never seems to be quite right,

Field Crops in Canada.

Ottawa, June 10.—A Bulletin of the Census and Statistics Office issued today states that the season this year has been favourable for field crops in all parts of Canada, and excellent reports have been received from all the provinces. The lowest percentage of condition is made for fall wheat,
which suffered from in adequate protection in the winter months, and also to some extent from spring frosts.

The areas of fall wheat are greater than last year by 4.50 per cent and of spring wheat by 13.70 per cent. The total area in wheat is 10,503,400 acres
as compared with 9,304,800 in 1910 and 7,750,400 in 1909. The per cent condition of fall wheat at the end of May was 80.63, and of spring wheat 65.69. The area in oats is 10,279,800 and its condition 91.79 as compared with 9,864,100 acres and 93.93 per cent condition last year. Barley and rye each show

a small decrease in area, but the condition is higher than at the same period last year. Slight decreases are also reported for areas of peas, mixed grains, and hay and clover, with per cent condition of over 90. Hay and clover a reported condition of 91.45 for the Dominion, being practically 100 in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The area of the field crops named is 32,051,500 acres for 1911, compared with 30,554,200 acres for 1910
and 28,194,900 acres for 1909. In the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta the area in wheat, oats and barley was 8,491,413 acres in 1909 and it is 15,355,500 acres this year. The increase of these crops from 1900 to 1911 was 2-663,669 acres in Manitoba, 7,364,315 acres in Saskatchewan and 1,836,073 acres in Alberta.

Want Wage Increase.

G. T. R. Freight Staff Makes a Request—Checkers Quit Work.

(Ottawa Citizen.)
The staff of the G. T. R. freight sheds, about twenty-four men in all,
have requested an increase in wages
from the company. The three checkers left last night, but it is stated that no thing in the nature of a strike has been declared. The truckers, as a greater number of the freight hands are known, are now receiving $1.55 per day and ask for $1.65, stated one of the employees. The checkers who left were paid $1.65 and asked for $1.85 per day.

"The rate of pay is not quite so high as on jobs of a more or less temporary character, but on the other hand the men are guaranteed steady work all the year round, indoors, and are independent both of weather and of slack conditions generally. They have made an application for higher wages
and are considering it," said Mr.
Morley Donaldson, superintendent,
in regard to the matter.

A revolution, a Presidential expulsion, an earthquake and a tidal wave,
almost at the same time, are sufficient to fill to the brim the cup of Mexico's misery.—X.

Mr. and Mrs. David Cook and Miss Lillah were guests of Mrs. Hugh Harris recently.

Miss Elva Cook is spending a few days in St. John.

A good position can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy. Since the 8 hour law became effective, and since the wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R. R. and wireless officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Cincinnati, Ohio, or Philadelphia.

LELETE

Rev. John Lord who has been doing evangelistic work in the province for the past five months has decided to remain a while longer and is keeping house in George Matthews home, all are glad to have him and his wife settle with us for the present. A number of church folks gathered at their home one evening last week and welcomed him to our community by a donation that would help supply the wants of the inner man. The evening was past very pleasantly in looking at some curiosities which they have collected while on their foreign travels especially nice is a lot of hand work collected by Mrs. Lord which shows much skill and patience on the part of the persons who did the work.

The Viking leaves Back Bay instead of Letete on Monday morning's now as formerly, some of the passengers failed to make connections on Monday

Mrs. H. O. Chubb returned home last week after spending a few days at her former home in Calais.

Mrs. Wilson Wentworth visited her sister in Eastport one day last week. A number of folks made a trip to St. Andrews one day recently.

Pastor John Lord will hold service here Sunday morning at 10.30 and in the evening at Back Bay at 7.30.

A baby girl has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard McNichol.

Rev. Mr. Lord was called to Robinson on business this week.

LOCALS NOTICE

As Thursday June 22nd has been proclaimed by the Governor General a public holiday, being the day set apart for the Coronation of His Majesty, King George the V, I would respectfully request all citizens to observe the same as far as possible, closing all places of business.

C. H. MCGEE, Mayor. St. George, N. S., June 16th, 1911.

Carrie Nation of Saloon breaking fame died at Kansas Texas last week.

The local election in Nova Scotia resulted in an overwhelming victory for the Murray gov't. they capturing 27 out of 38 seats, one Cabinet member was defeated and 2 without portfolio.

Miss Anne Murray who has been ill with that dread disease Consumption, for many months died Wednesday night, she was of a very bright disposition and highly esteemed by all who knew her.

Our friends of Blacks Harbor will celebrate by a monster picnic and day of sports, to which they will give a hearty welcome to all friends who visit their village that day. A game of baseball, the home team vs. Back Bay, Land and Water sports, Supper in the big tent, Dancing afternoon and evening in the hall, Box supper during intermission 10 p.m. being among the attractions offered. Proceeds will be in aid of the building and for the new church.

Judge Cockburn and Sheriff Stuart of the Shire Town who had some legal business to attend here last week, made the occasion of an excursion and invited about 20 lady friends and the Sheriff's son to accompany them. Clustering the Coronator motor boat "Navy Isle" they arrived here about 11 a.m. and after taking dinner and visiting among their friends left for their homes at 3.30 p.m. Many more such pleasant parties make visits to our town during the summer.

Coronation day, Thursday of next week will be observed in fitting style, although St. George itself will likely be almost deserted for the many excursions private and public that will take place.

The principle event for the town will be the excursion of the Cornet Band to the border towns, for particulars of which read their ad. in this issue. The boys are sparing no pains to make for their patrons a pleasant day, and should the weather prove favorable no doubt but a large number will take advantage of the pleasant sail provided by the boys of the band.

On Friday night of last week occurred another sample of bad effects of strikes when two of the men who were working for the Pulp Co. came along where a number of men and boys of the town were sitting talking and listening to the band practice, they came along in a braggadocio style with a chip on their shoulders apparently looking for trouble and quickly got it, while such occurrences are deeply to be regretted, still one who will deliberately fire a stone into a crowd deserve about all they get, even if there was a sample of stale hen fruit flying.

Men who put themselves in such a position as they had in a community should have sense enough to keep as much as possible in the background, instead of forcing themselves into company where they know they were not wanted. They came and sat down among the crowd, the small boys as usual sent in compliment's calling scab, while the men shifted their position, they also got up and moved away slowly, the small boy still sending compliments and it is said one sample of above fruit, when one of them turned and deliberately threw a stone among the boys striking one of them. This, in the present temper of the men was like a match in gunpowder, the two men were at once pounced upon by a number and quite badly hauled, although no bones were broken, another one of the workers coming along in the company of two girls was also pounced upon and also treated to some rough usage, during which the crying went out Plude next, but he made himself scarce and escaped. The Mayor while trying to quiet the crowd was treated to some talk not the most complimentary. In the mix up some of the men of the Granite Mills seem to take as much interest or more than the strikers of the Pulp mill.

On Saturday all the outside men who were working for the Co. left for their homes and most of the few town men who went back to the mill also stopped work, and both mills are again idle, the schooner which was loaded all at a small portion of the forward deck was finished by the crew on Monday and she sailed on Tuesday.

The fair minded it appears too bad that the Co. should act as they have, instead of meeting the reasonable demands of the men; and by such action losing the sympathy and respect of the people of the town generally, as a Co. that will ask men to work 11 and 13 hours alternate weeks year after year show themselves to say the least of a heartless disposition that might easily be called by a worse name, and also have doubtless stirred up trouble for themselves for all future time of their business.

ELACKS HARBOR

A meeting was held in Connors Bros. Hall, June 13 to arrange for a picnic on June 22 in which they agreed to hold the program for the day will be published later, they intend having a baseball game in the afternoon between the home team and Back Bay, and also land and water sports, so we expect to have a good time and invite all to come and spend a good day with us, there will also be dancing in the afternoon and evening.

Connors Bros. are making some improvements on their factory as the supplies are very scarce, they are rushing the work under the management of C. Elliott.

Capt. Gordon Tucker of Schr. Bobin arrived with a load of sardines one day this week, Capt. Tucker can certainly find the little fishes when he goes after them.

Owing to the bad weather on Monday, June 12, the dance was postponed which was to be held by Lodge Bros. of Eastport.

Bernard Connors and John Thompson enjoyed a pleasant drive to Letang on Sunday.

Stmr. Connors Bros. arrived here Saturday with a load of freight from St. John.

Schr. Clare Banning landed a load of brick for Connors Bros. which they will use for erecting their new boiler.

MACES BAY

A runaway accident occurred on the Lepran road last Thursday when Frank Cassidy's horse got frightened and ran away throwing him out and causing him to be unable to get to his feet again, but for the help of Silas Mawhinney who happened to drive along at the time, the carriage was damaged, and Mr. Cassidy is still quite miserable.

Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson of Musquash were recent visitors here.

Maxwell Bassen has recently been selling goods here.

Work is in operation now on the embankment to be built along the shore road, everything arrived by Steamer Wilfred C. to be used in connection with the work, also Contractor Mr. Smith has arrived.

The Orangemen of Kings Own Lodge, No 140 intend holding a picnic on the 12th of July here, if the day is fine it will be a very enjoyable time as the band will furnish music, there will be dancing and refreshments on the grounds, all are cordially invited to attend.

Miss Bessie Mawhinney and brother Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Snider, and Fred Mawhinney were guests at tea at Mrs. John Snider's Sunday.

W. H. McGowan has been plastering Wilson Snider's new house.

Mrs. Wm. Corncalden Sr. spent Sunday afternoon with her daughter Mrs. D. Thompson Dipper Harbor West.

Dan Murray is building a new house at Dipper Harbor West.

The many friends of Ernest Lomaz at Little Lepran are glad to see him home again after an absence of 2 years.

People who in advance of the census returns talk confidently of a population of over eight million should not be so cocksure. If Canada has even seven and a half million people it will be a very great increase over the 8,371,000 of 1905.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

One Barrel of Flour Instead of Two

YES, in the old way there was one kind of flour for bread and another for pastry.

Now, OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is an all-around flour. It makes not only the very best bread but also the very best cakes, pies, biscuits, rolls, muffins, pop-overs, pancakes, dumplings, anything that you want to make or bake from flour.

"ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" saves money and trouble. Instead of having two barrels of flour in the house you can get along much better with one. And you can be certain that it is always uniform—will always come out right whether for Bread or Pastry.

ROYAL HOUSEHOLD is made from the finest grade of wheat in the world, Manitoba Red Fyfe wheat, and milled by the very finest machinery, in mills that are a model of cleanliness.

"ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" costs a trifle more by the barrel than ordinary flour but this trifle extra proves real economy when the loaves are counted. For "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" goes farther than ordinary flour—farther in actual quantity of baked product.

Even if "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" cost a great deal more than ordinary flour it would be well worth it for it is more nourishing.

You can't afford to buy impoverished flour at any price. You can't afford to skimp on health when you buy flour just because it costs less than "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD".

American Banker's

Daughter's Whim.

Chicago, May 30. From a home of wealth with servants to attend her and nothing to do but go to school, Helen Mumford, 15 year old daughter of Wm. O. Mumford member of the Board of Trade, voluntarily left home to become a housemaid, it has been found.

Detectives discovered today that the girl, who has been missing since last Tuesday, obtained work as a domestic, under the name of "Marion Grant in the home of Oliver Solitt.

She proved a model servant, except that she remained at work only two days. The Solitts were congratulating themselves on their good fortune in finding a girl so anxious to please, when suddenly last Thursday she left through an alley without saying "Goodbye." An attempt was made to follow her to prevail upon her to return, but she was not overtaken.

The new servant at the Solitt home demanded no afternoon off, asked for no provision to receive callers of her own and seemed perfectly satisfied to be left alone with her work. She went out once just long enough to go to a corner store to buy a newspaper. It is thought she feared detection and determined to escape. The police believe she is at work in some other home.

Starting at Both Ends.

The Dominion Government has set about the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway with perfect intelligence and commendable caution. There is no taking of things for granted. Many months ago it was openly announced in Parliament that the railway would be constructed by the Government from a selected terminus on the Saskatchewan River to the most suitable harbor of the south-western coast of Hudson Bay. As the result of carefully conducted surveys the Pas Mission, some distance west from Lake Winnipeg, has been chosen for the southern terminus of the line. It has among others, the merit of being easily accessible to all the transcontinental railway companies that care to make connection with the new traffic route.

From the Pas one hundred and eighty-two miles of the line have been located, and the construction of so much of it will soon be under contract. Pending the completion of this part of the undertaking the Government has sent an expedition by sea to determine once for all by a hydrographic survey which of the two harbors—Port Nelson or Port Churchill—would be the most sensible one for a terminus. In view of the importance of the scheme, this precaution is eminently justifiable. It should be born in mind that the portion of the line now under contract will form part of the completed railway which ever terminus may be chosen.

It would be easy to either under-rate or exaggerate the economic advantages to the country from the construction of the line now in progress. Easily first in estimating its value as a public work stands its agency in opening up a great stretch of territory at present inaccessible. It is certain that there is good land on the Nelson River Valley for settlement; it is probable that minerals will be found there it is definitely known that there are very valuable water-powers on the main stream and its tributaries.—*Tor. HYOMEI

The Breathable Remedy for Catarrh.

The rational way to combat Catarrh is the Hyomei way, viz: by breathing. Scientists for years have been agreed on this point but failed to get an antiseptic strong enough to kill Catarrh germs and not destroy the tissues of the membrane at the same time, until the discovery of Hyomei (pronounced High-me.)

Hyomei is the most powerful yet healing antiseptic known. Breathe it through the inhaler over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane four or five times a day, and in a few days the germs will disappear.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including the inhaler, costs $1.00 and extra bottles if afterwards needed, costs but 50c. Obtainable from your druggist or postpaid from the R. T. Booth Co. Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Hyomei is guaranteed to cure asthma, croup, sore throat, coughs, colds or grip or refund your money back. Sold and guaranteed by J. Sutton Clark.

The Declaration of London.

It is quite possible that when a full report of the transactions of the Imperial Conference is given to the world the most important item of business will be the approval of the "Declaration of London." Its importance is greatly enhanced by the fact that several of the dominions, notably Australia and Canada, are likely to become a few years hence the possessors of considerable navies made up chiefly of vessels suited to become either the protectors or the destroyers of commercial vessels. The only premier who withheld the assent of his country to the ratification of the Declaration was Mr. Fisher of Australia.

The first attempt to define the rules of Maritime law to be applied in time of war was made in 1856, when the plenipotentiaries of the powers were in session at Paris for the purpose of settling the questions raised by the Crimean war. The outcome was the "Declaration of Paris," which adopted rules abolishing privateering recognizing that the neutral flag protects the enemies goods except contraband of war, providing that neutral goods except contraband of war are not liable to capture under an enemy's flag, and that blockades must be effective in order to be binding. These rules were ratified by Great Britain, Austria, France, Prussia, Russia, Sardinia and Turkey but not by the United States.

The "Declaration of London" is the outcome of a conference of the chief naval powers, held in London in 1908-1909, for the purpose of revising and amending the rules of 1856. Blockade was laid as it has been since 1856. An important change was made regarding "contraband." A classification of goods was made, some being "absolute" contraband and liable to seizure as such; others were declared to be "conditional" contraband, and these might become liable to seizure under certain conditions. Conditional contraband was defined to include "food," and this led to an energetic protest by the London Chamber of Commerce against the ratification of the Declaration by Act of Parliament.

In spite of the adverse feeling thus expressed the British Government has, so far from dropping the draft Declaration, submitted it to the Dominion Premiers for approval, and has now secured that all but unanimously. Sir Edward Grey and Mr. Asquith told the Conference that while the Declaration was not satisfactory to them on all points, it was, on the whole, a distinct advance on the Declaration of Paris, and that in their opinion it ought to be ratified. The Premiers of Canada, South Africa, New Zealand and Newfoundland assented to this view, and the Premier of Australia did not venture to do more than decline to endorse it for his country. That it will be ratified by the Imperial Parliament is beyond all doubt. It is thoroughly understood, on the assurance of Mr. Asquith himself that the Declaration is open to further improvement, any of the signatory powers having a right to propose amendments when the machinery decreed by the second Hague Conference has been perfected.—Tor. Globe.

International Bridge.

Work is progressing finely upon the international bridge over the St. John River between Van Buren, Me., and St. Leonards, N. B. One span of the steel work has been completed, the false work constructed for the second span, and a start made upon the steel work of the second span. The bridge is a truss bridge of about 762 feet and consists of three 148 foot spans and one 322 foot span. The sum of $75,000 one half appropriated by the Maine legislature of 1909 and the other half by the Dominion Parliament of 1910 was the amount of the original appropriation for the bridge, and a small additional amount was appropriated by the Maine legislature and the other half by the Dominion Parliament.

Off to Face Perils in Love of Science.

On a 7,000 mile journey Prof. Henry E. Crampton, curator of the department of invertebrate zoology of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, started on Wednesday with two companions. They were bound for British Guiana and other points in South America to make a biological study of the life of those countries.

Crampton's companions are Dr. Frank E. Lutz, and Roy W. Miner, assistant curators in the department of zoology. The explorers first visit the Le Ser Antilles and then go to Dominica and Georgetown, Indians will join the party.

The members of the party are prepared to face possible attacks by mountain lions and jaguars. One feat planned is to ascend Mount Koraima, which is about 8,000 feet high. It has been scaled four times before, as far as known.

This expedition is the first of a series planned by the American Museum to continue over a period of ten yrs. Dr. Crampton has made important trips for the museum, including four voyages to the South Pacific seas.

If plus do not go askew, Crampton and his staff will return home next September by way of the isthmus of Panama.
